WHY DOES NOT GOD HILLTHE DEVIL:

BY JOSEPH HAIGH. Why does not God kill the Devil? Tae curse of his earthly domain;
That we might have plenty of pleasure,
Without any sorrow or pain?
Old Adam and Eve in the garden,
Would never have caten the fruit, If God had encompassed the Devil,
Or had made his snakeship quite mute.
But he gave him the power of persuasion, That he might accomplish his plan; And he argued the point with the woman

Why does not God kill the Devil? Why did he create such an elf? Eut perhaps I'm a little presumptuous He may have created himself. But God is almighty and powerful— The Book and the preachers say so— And once, long ago, the Lord banished

And she made it clear to the man.

The devil to regions below. But he seems to be free and untrammeled. And misterly work he has done
On the earth, for he gains o'er his darkship Why does not God kill the Devil? And trouble would never begin; For then there would be no temptation,

No sorrow, forgiveness, or sin. Hell-Bro might then be distinguished, And save the expense of the ruel, And many a poor soul relinquished From punishment, horrid and cruel. The Lord could sit down in his kingdom, And all could be singing his praise; With none to dispute he was master, And monarch of all he surveys.

Why does not God kill the Devil? And wickedness bring to an end?
There could not be much opposition,
For evil has really no friends.
And all would prefer to be happy,
And never would wander away; But the power of the Devil is greater Than God's, and leads them astray. From God's had lead them astray.

Recruits he is constantly getting

From God's holy ranks, and e'er long,

If the Devil would rally his forces,

The fight would be dreadful and strong.

Why does not God kill the Davil, It he goes about like a lion, Frightening the lambs from the Saviour, And driving the sheep out of zion?

A man never was a free agent,

And neither is he a machine; He's g werned by what is within him, And that which around him is seen. If God made the Devil to plague us, And do us all manner of harm, Just let him remove the old fellow, Taings will then work like a charm.

Why does not God kill the Devil? It would so much help the elect; He leads thom so often to trouble,
Much more so than one would expect. McCerthys and Beechers on trial, For sins that they would not commit. If the Davil was not at their clows, To urge and to aid them in it. The pious ones often play smash-

Figuring in the salary grabs,

Ab coading with the public cash. Why does not God kill the Devil? I ask this great question once more;
Of otherwise save him from sinning,
And place him on Canaan's bright shore. The glorious mellenium can never Upon this wicked planet begin; Unto God has killed off the Devil. Or turned him, away from his sins.

Then we shall be perfectly happy— No evil one here to deceive— And everything that is unholy, Along with the Devil would leave

THE COBRA HEAD.

BY JANE G. AUSTEN.

CONCLUDED.

It was at the dinner table that the Wythrops first saw the new inmate of their house; and while the lady exerted herself in cordial courtesy toto her sympathy and kindness, her husband, speaking little, studied the new comer with an attention hardly masked beneath his indifferent man-

Dinner over, and the ladies gone, the two men lighted segars, and assumed lounging chairs in front of the blazing fire. After some conversation upon matters of public interest came a pause, and the doctor meditatively said: "That young lady is a peculiar looking person." "My ward, do you mean?" asked Sheldon, in a voice suggesting the shrewd maxim, "In time of peace prepare for war.' The doctor glanced at him, a little surprised, and replied coolly: 'Yes, if you choose to call her so. What is her name?" "Miss Flora."

"Flora what?" "I do not know. Her father called himself A. Person; but Flora refuses to acknowledge such a name. I am thinking, that is to say, I dare say my mother will wish to legally adopt her, and give her our name."

"Yes, I dare say," replied Dr. Wythrop, attentively regarding the end of his segar; and another pause ensued, again broken by the doctor. "Does Miss Flora never eat anything? "Her appetite is delicate." "But, to-day, sitting next to her, I could not but notice she eat nothing at all-perhaps three morsels of chicken and a crumb of bread. No wine, no pastry or sweets, of which girls are generally too fond-literally not enough to support a baby three hours." "Well, her appetite is small, but there is nothing very mysterious in that, is there?" asked Sheldon, irri-

Well—yes replied his brother-in-law, reflectively. That is to say, if this is her usual rate of feeding, and the gets no other supplies than that at the table. She is not remarkably fragile in appearance, has sufficient fiesh and color, and her hand has a firm, sure grasp, which tells of healthy muscular action."

have heard of cowslip-dew as a beautifier. That is one of our old English traditions, and my sister used to go out May mornings to gather it in cups, to be used both as a draught and a wash. You have no genuine cowslips in America." "But I dare say the morning walk in our meadows would be as good a cosmetic as your sister's cowslip hunts," replied Sheldon, a little ashamed of his heat, and quite ready to be amiable; and then reverting to Flora, he told his brother-in-law the whole story of his finding her and bringing her home, not forgetting Mrs. Bunce's strange account of her former life, her father's peculiarities, her rich and picturesque style of dress, and the plant in the great flower pot, which Flora had so jealously guarded from contact with any hands but her

To all this recital the doctor listened so attentively that the lighted segar died between his fingers, and the long, gray ash fell unheeded into his bosom, as he leaned his chin upon the hand that held the forgotten Ha-

At the end he arose, threw the segur into the fire, and saying, "Let us go up stairs to the ladies," walked out of the room. Max followed him, a little puzzled. "Was he bored with my long story, or is he deep?" asked he of himself. In the drawing room Flora, who, utterly ignorant of rules, grasped at music as children do at language, was seated upon a low ottoman, with a guitar in her lap, to whose accompan, iment she sung wild Moorish ballads, gipsy refrains, love songs of Hafiz, set to rich barbaric chants, and, sweetest of all, worldless improvised melodies of her own. Sheldon seated himself beside her, Wythrop lounged against the mantle shelf, giving Mrs. Sheldon a desultory account of his journey, and studying Flora in long, quiet glances. His wife, busy with her embroidery and the household gossip she interpolated among the other conversation, saw nothing beyond, and was content. A week later, Dr. Wythrop, in the sacred seclusion of the conjugal bedroom, said to his wife:

"Sue, I want something." "What is it, darling?" "I want a sight of that plant which

Flora nurses so carefully, and of which she will not speak. Have you seen it?" "No; I have only been in her chamber once since I came home. She is so shy, and so evidently prefers solitude to society, that I feel it rather an intrusion to go uninvited; and she never asks any one." "Well, you went once. You saw the plant, then, I suppose?" "No. It was covered with a light frame made of wire and thick barege, which shuts down over plant, pot, and all, like an extinguisher. I approached the table where it stood, saying, 'Oh! this is your famous plant, isn't it?' and put my hand toward the frame, when Flora glided between me and the table, crying, 'Please don't touch it. It cannot bear the least ray of daylight. I never uncover it but at night. Of course, after that I let the whole thing alone, not liking, somehow, even to talk now of it."

The doctor, who was shaving himself, made no comment upon this acward one presenting so many claims | count; and when, after the fashion of her sex, his wife insisted upon an answer, he replied:

"What do I think of it? Why, Miss Flora is naturally a florist, that is all. By the way, thas Max taught. her to go out doors yet?"

"Well, she takes a very short walk with him every morning when the weather is fine; but it does not do her any good, I think. She always comes in terribly exhausted, and spends the sex, the doctor handed it to his wife, next two or three hours in her cham-

"Ah, yes! Max is a regular old Procrustes, who will kill his protege in teaching her to live after his fashion, instead of her own. Well, what did you think of Ristori last night, my dear?" The next morning was fine, and directly after breakfast Max approached his ward, who sat in a darkened alcove, listlessly playing with a tassel. She looked up at his approach with a slow smile, and yet a look of apprehension. "Yes," said he, laughing. "Here is the inexorable guardian come to take you out to enjoy this sweet morning air and brilliant sunshine in spite of yourself. Get on your outside gear, and find me waiting for you in the hall."

"If you knew how this sunshine withers me, and walking exhausts me,' murmured Flora, plaintively, still raising her pure, pale face and be-seeching eyes to those of her guardian. Max looked down at her with the tender pity and loving superiority with which men are fond of guiding the affairs of their womenkind.

With somewhat of the same an I once saw a little child thrusting a wire among the works of a delicate watch to "make it go," he said: "That is because you do not go out enough," replied Max; positively: Fresh air and exercise are good for every one." With a weary sigh Flora left the room, and presently reappeared dressed for walking, her face hidden by the thick veil she always wore. Max was waiting for her, and they went out at onco.

What would Max say?" expostulated Mrs. Wythrop, torn between her desire to oblige her husband, and sundry very proper scruples as to the proposed manner of doing it. The doctor, from cynical smiling, became absolute and "My dear Susan, I should not pursue, or ask you to pursue any course I did not think proper; and as for Max. I believe you are my wife, and only his sister.' "Certainly, my love," said she; "I did not quite think you were in earnest. Excuse me:"

"Besides, you know I shall go halves with you in the secret. I always tell you all my secrets, don't I?" asked the doctor, in his usual bantering fashion. "That's too bad," protested Susan, when you know that you never tell me anything. But what secret do you suspect here?" "Oh! To think you should so wound my feelings, and I just on the point of telling you everything!" exclaimed the doctor; and Susan, with a pretty little grimace, relinquished the inquiry, and led the way to Flora's chamber. The door was locked; but Susan, in her character of housekeeper, produced a duplicate key, and the pair entered, fastening the door behind them. "Flora asked my mother's permission to lock her door when she left the room, and she takes the entire care of it herself. None of the servants have entered it since the first morning," whispered Susan, as she turned the key. The doctor nodded, and crossed the room on tip-toe to the table in a shaded corner, when his quick eye caught sight of a frame covered with green barege, such as his wife described. She stood by his side as he lifted it off, and set it aside before glancing at

"What a queer thing!" exclaimed Susan. The doctor said nothing, but stood attentively regarding the plant. From a bulbous root, its exposed crown, singularly resembling a human heart, sprung long, sword-like leaves, erect to a height of two feet, and then drooping to their source. From their midst shot a long, straight stem, of a purplish red color, clouded here and there with black. At the height of three feet from the earth, this stem, bending in a curve abrupt and graceful as that of a swan's neck, supported a large bud, as it appeared, for the calyx-leaves of dusky green were folded closely, and no trace of the flower within was to be seen. From the position of the plant, this curve in the stem carried the bud to the farther side from the spectators, that is, toward the dark corner of the room. and the doctor carefully turned the pot, so as to bring the bud to the front. A curious musky odor exhaled from the plant and stole through the room. Susan put her hand to her head, and suddenly sat down, mur-

the thing has. I feel-" "Here, child!" And drawing from his pocket the vial of aromatic vinegar he always carried for use among his fashionable patients of the gentler watched her for a moment, and then returned to the plant.

An exclamation of amazement burst from his reticent lips. The heavy drooping bud had erected itself upon its stem, and was now swaying over upon the other side, toward the darkened corner. The doctor stood and watched until it lay folded close to the stem, as he had first seen it. but exactly upon the opposite side. Then he twisted the pot about again, bringing it to the light. As he did so, a slight sound, almost a kiss one might fancy, and an increase of the musky odor escaped from the plant. Susan uttered an exclamation of distress, and sank back in her chair.

"Dick! Dick! Take me away, I am dying; this horrible, horrible odor," murmured she. The doctor did not look at her. He was instantly regarding the bud which once more was in motion, and even as he looked raised itself upright, and gently drooped away from the light. A heavy and peculiar sigh reached the doctor's ear, and aroused his professional attention. He glanced at his wife, saw that she had fainted looked once more at the bud, whose swaying motion reminded him of a peculiar gesture of Flora's; and then he replaced the screen, opened a window, unlocked the door, and taking Susan in his arms, carried her to her own chamber, and laid her upon the bcd. Then he went back to close the

"Good gracious, doctor, how you the look and the smell of the creature saved you from marriage with as long as I lived?". "No, I should think not.

"Nor I either. Now good morning, dear. My carriage has waited half an hour. Not one word, rememcome with me to play propriety if we | ber."

For the next two days, Dr. Wythrop was busy with carpenter's tools in his dressing room, which adjoined Flora's chamber. At the end of that time, he quietly showed his wife an ingenius peep-hole commanding that

"Now, my dear," said he, "this is an exceptional case, and I am meeting it with exceptional remedies. I suppose by this time you know me too well to suspect my motives in arranging this peep-hole." "Of course I do, doctor," replied "And you are willing that I should use it; and you trust to my discretion and my honor not to abuse the opportunity?" "I trust you fully and entirely, Dick," said the little woman, with tears in her eyes, and a kiss upon her lips. The doctor took the kiss, and quietly wiped the eyes, saying: "Susan, you are a good woman, and you do not err in trusting me as you do."

Never since he first saw her had Max Sheldon known Flora so bewitching, so beautiful, so mysterious in her attraction, as on the evening of the day when the doctor and his wife held the conversation narrated above. No longer dreary and listless, she shone like a star upon all who came near, flashed repartee and bon-mots upon every side; sang, laughed, spark-led, and as Max could not but believe, returned his ardent glances with a tender love-light, such as he had never yet found in her beautiful eyes.

When at last, in answer to a hint from Mrs. Sheldon, she bade goodnight, and prepared to retire, Max followed her to the foot of the stairs, and in covertly kissing her hand, whispered: "To-morrow, darling, I have something to say to you."

She smiled back at him, and went softly up stairs murmuring, "To-mor-

And the grim echoes whispered back, "To-morrow!" with a mockery Dr. Wythrop had retired to his own room some time before this; and as Flora entered hers, and locked the door, he took his station, not without some misgiving, at the peep-hole. "Rather a mean business this," said he to himself, "but the end justifies the means." The next moment, however, he had the strange scene passing before his Flora's first act, on entering her chamber, had been to lock the door; her next, to draw the heavy curtains before the windows; her next, to light all the gas burners, in addition to the candle she had brought up. Then she wheeled the table into the center of the room, and carefully took the screen from off the plant; the doctor stared at it in amazement. The heavy, dull green bud now stood erect, its calyx-leaves turned back, displaying a flower so iridescent in its hues, so radiant and sparkling in its texture, so altogether fascinating and gorgeous in its beauty, that the observer gazed upon it spell-bound, conscious only of a wild desire growing within his heart to come nearer to the beautiful wonder, to breathe in its intoxicating perfume, and bury his face in its glowing

So apparently felt Flora, who, throwing herself upon her knees, remained for many minutes in a silent ecstasy of admiration before it. Then rising, she bent her face upon the blossom, brushing its petals with her lips, inhaling its perfume, coquett-. ing with its fiery beauty, and the rapt observer noticed, not without a thrill of horror, that, as she thus caressed it, the flower moved upon its stem. swaved itself from side to side, closed and unclosed its petals, and emitted such clouds of perfume that they seemed to hang visibly about the brilliantly lighted chamber. Once, too, the doctor could have sworn that he caught the flash of diamond bright eyes from the deep heart of the blossom, and he was confident that a flame-like tongue flickered now and again from its dnsky throat. And now of a sudden the flower became gemmed with a sparkling dew, which rapidly collected in great drops at the points of the petals, and hung there flaming like jewels.

...With an angry cry, and the dart-ing motion of a humming-bird, the young lady raised her lips to the bending flower; and sipped these dowdrops, one by one, until all were gone, and the brilliant flower hung drooping and exhausted from the stem; the dim calyx-leaves already closing over it. Then Flora, bringing water, bathed her hands in it with the same gestures the servant had watched upon a previous occasion, poured the water around the roots of the plant, covered it carefully, and replaced the a monster." "A monster!" "Yes. A woman who is nourished by an abnormal and poisonous plant instead of by wholesome food, surely deserves the name of monster. I felt, when I first touched that girl's hand, looked in her eyes, and inhaled her breath, that there was something wrong, something uncanny about her. The nature of cowslip-dew, as a possible diet, at once connected itself in my mind with what I had already heard of her mysterious plant, and the rest came along by degrees. You will never forgive me; but think of the sequel, if you, who worship health, and nature, and pure development, had allied yourself to a creature who lives upon poison, who loves nothing so much as this creation, halfplant, half-serpent, which nourishes her and is nourished by her, and who, showing the nature of her familiar fiend, as I must call it, hates sunlight, pure air, and human compan-

He was leaving the room, but Max detained him. "Get Susan, with her key, and come up stairs," said Max, hoarsely. Without a word the doctor obeyed. Max awaited them at the door of the key form his sister's hand, threw open the door, strode across the room, seized the veiled plant in his arms, and brought it out. "Lock the door, Susan, and follow me," said he, gruffly; and the two following, saw the plant, still hidden

in its veil, thrust into the midst of the glowing furnace-fire, and the door closed upon it. "And now, Dr. Wythrop," said Max, turning a deadly face upon him, "you will not tell me again that my promised wife is nourished by the dew of a poison plant." The doctor held up his head solemnly.

"Hark !" Screams, lamentations, hurrying feet, a call for help in the rooms above, and his own name shricked in his mother's voice, brought Max to the room, where, prone upon the floor, like a broken flower, lay Flora, her face white and rigid, her eyes full of a mute horror, her teeth set in in fresh leaves about four times, and

Wythorp said, of heart disease. All that Mrs. Sheldon could tell was, that after several moments of restless and uneasy motion, the girl had suddenly passed both hands upon her breast, as if in agony, uttered a wild shrick, and fallen as they found

A few days later Max Sheldon left his home for years of protracted and forgotten himself and his position, in desultory travel. He has not vet returned; but the old mother waits patiently and hopeful still, and Dr. Wythrop, Susac, and their children, make home happy for her.

But, sometimes, when Max is spoken of, the doctor falls into gloomy reverie, and even Susan heard him mutter.

"I could not help it-I had to do t; and I still beleive the end justified the means. But poor old Max. A Mountain of Saw-Logs. In the log-pocket of the Boom Comoany, about 2 miles above this village. may be seen a sight which, to the practical man, is worth traveling many miles to gaze upon. There are more than 100,000,000 feet of saw-logs, piled in one immense mass, an eighth of a mile in width, 10 to 30 feet in depth, and 3 miles in length. The high water has kept crowding them down until they are piled 15 feet high above the water's edge, and as much below it in many places. They are sticking up in every conceivable direction and shape, some of them on end, with the lower part several feet above the level of the water, and within a few feet of these you will step on the end of another, which, standing straight, just protrudes over the current. It seems as if they had been piled together much as the glaciers are formed, layer upon layer and log upon log, until they have reached their present position. One can imagine the tremendous force with which this immense mass would precipitate itself down the river il anything should give way, but, fortunately, everything is firm. Something of an idea of the value of the mass may be formed when it is known that the logs are worth an average of nearly $1 each.—Menominee Herald.

... Fruit Eating.

When fruit does harm it is because it is eaten at improper times, in improper quantities, or before it is ripened or fit for the human stomach. A distinguished physician has said that if his, patients would make a practice; of enting a couple of good oranges before breakfast, from February till June, his practice would be gone. The evil is that we do not eat enough of fruit; that we injure its finer qualites with sugar; that we drown them with cream. We need the medical action of the pure fruit acids in our system, and their cooling, corrective influence.

window, carefully rearranging everything as he had found it, and finally left the room, looking the door behind him.

"Susan's fainting fit was soon disposed of; and when her husband saw her sitting up once more, he left her side and began to pace the room, his hands in his pockets, his chin upon his breast.

Farm and Household. The Legacy that Crops Leave.

It has been found by some remarkable experiments, made in Germany by Dr. Weiske and others, that the stubble and roots left in the earth by crops that have been harvested add to the soil much more nutritive value than is commonly supposed. These experiments fully explain the great value of clover as a preparatory crop for wheat, and for all other crops which are not manured with nitrogen, potash and phosphates. The clover of a single acre has been found to leave nitrogen enough for 116 bushels of wheat phosphoric acid enough for 114 bushels and potash enough for 78 bushel. Moreover, it is found that most of this valuable material is left in the best possible condition for use. Whether the nitrogen of the clover comes wholly or partly from the toil, or from a condition in which it is of little use to most crops, and is converted into an available one, so that practically the clover is a creator of nitrogen in the soil, as it is also an efficient purveyor of potash and phosphoric acid.

A Home Recipe for Otto of Roses:

-At this time of year, when so many rose leaves fall to the ground and are wasted, every lady can if she chooses, manufacture a delicious perfume at a cost of less than 50 cents and in a few minutes' time. Take a 2 gallon glass jar, and fill full of clean, freshly picked rose leaves. Then cork it tight, and take a 2-ounce phial and fit the neck into the cork of the 2-gallon jar. Cut some sponge into narrow strips; soak them in good oil, free from smell or rancidity, put the strips into the small phial, turn it upside down, and put the neck into the bung of the large jar. Place them in the sun for four days, and the heat will distil the rose leaves and the aroma will ascend and saturate the oil in the sponge. Put agony. She was quite dead, and Dr. | you will have a small phial of the finest otto of roses that can possibly be made, and in quantity sufficient to scent the clothes and handkerchiefs of a family for a year: Pure otto of roses costs $30 per ounce. > "A Good Start" is a great help in doing anything, but most especially in growing crops. To thoroughly harrow the ground before sowing, to sow the seed while the soil is fresh, and to use some active fertilizer near the seed, but not in contact with it, will give any crop a good start. The common mixture of poultry droppings, wood ashes, and plaster, in equal parte, makes an excellent fertilizer. If mixed while dry, or immediately before using it, no ammonia from the droppings is lost.

THE Democrats held a Tilden and Hendricks ratification meeting on Front Street, Saturday evening. Speeches were made by Dr. F. H. Berrick and Col. L. F. Copeland. The last speaker made quite a point of the thieving of the "dirty," "rotten," "graceless" Republican officials now in Washington. Perhaps a few figures giving some light on the subject of defalcations from the Government may be of interest. Some time since, Henry G. Davis, the Democratic Senator, from West Virginia, offered a resolution in the Senate, calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for a list of defaulters to the government from 1860 to 1876, with the amount of their defalcations. The purpose of the resolution was to furnish a little campaign thunder for the Democrats. Some one moved to amend the resolution so as to have a list of defalcations from 1836 to the present time, and it was adopted. The Treasury clerks have been working at the matter for several months, and have sent a wagon load of mauuscript to the Senate in the form of an answer.

It was found that $13,936,870.05 have been lost to the government, according to this estimate of defalcations, many of which are only nominal, $22,266.00, or about half a million a

The amount of real defalcations, omitting these unadjusted accounts which have been alluded to, was about half that sum.

It is very interesting to examine the accounts under the several administrations. The report commences with General Jackson, and it will be seen that the defalcations in General Grant's administration, notwithstanding the constant Democratic howl of "thief, thief!" have been infinitely less than those under any other President. The losses to the government under Van Buren were by far the largest, being more than double those of any other administration. The losses on every $1,000 of disbursements were, in the administration of Jackson, (Dem.,) $10.55; Van Buren, (Dem.,) $21.15; Harrison, (Dem.,) $10.37; Polk, (Dem.,) $8.34; Taylor and Fillmore, (Wing,) $7.64; Pierce, (Dem.,) $5.86; Buckson, (Dem.) chanan, (Dem.,) nearly $6.98; Lincoln, (Rep.,) $1.41; Johnson, (Rep.,) 48 cents; Grant, (Rep.,) the first four years, 40 cents; the second four years, 26 cents. This is exclusive of the Postoffice, which administers its own revenue. In the Postoffice the loss has gone down from $11.18 on the $1,000 in Jackson's administration, and $26.19 in Van Buren's to $1.59 for the first term of Grant, and $1.01 for the second, with an average of $3.51 for the whole period. Of the head of the Democratic ticket, James F. Joy, of Detroit, says: "I think that the Democrats have put their foot in it as usual. James Blaine was rejected by the Repub licans on account of his questionable practices, but even if the charges preferred against Blaine are true, they are not one-tenth as corrupt or dishonorable in their nature as can be proved against Mr. Tilden. I say distinctly that he is a fraudulent and corrupt man. He is what may be called a railroad 'wrecker,' and out of- go on. All night the weary march his opportunities he has made himself rich by dishonesty and sharp practices. He was Tweed's counsel when the ring was in power in New York, and he aided the gang by his counsel and shared in their stealings, till they were exposed, and then he treacherously turned tail against his late associates, and ruined them. The opposition to Tilden by Tammany is perfeetly natural under these circumstances. The nomination of Tilden is one not fit to be made, and a party must be sunk very low in the mire of moral degradation that would knowingly select such a standard-bearer. From what I know of my own personal knowledge in regard to other transactions in which he has figured, I am convinced that his whole war against the New York canal ring was done simply for political effect, and also for personal purposes. So far, only one of the hundreds of men who compose that ring has been convicted of defrauding the State." THE best samples of all the different varieties of grain and grasses grown in the State are wanted. The samples should be selected with care, cut close to the ground, to show the length and quality of straw as well as heads, put up in sheaves about four inches through at the band, and labeled plainly, giving name of variety, name of person raising, location and other remarks of interest. All creditable samples of grain, wool, and other articles, sent to Gov. J. J. Bagley, Detroit, Henry Fralick, Grand Rapids, or to J. J. National Republican Platform. When, in the economy of Providence, this land was to be purged of human slavery, and when the strength of the government of the people, by the people, for the people was to be demonstrated, the Republican party came into power. Its deeds have passed into history, and we look back to them with pride. Incited by their memories and high aims for the good of our country and mankind, and looking to the future with unfaltering courage, hope, and purpose, we, the representatives of the party, in national convention assembled, make the following declaration of principles:

1. The United States of America is a nation, not a league. By the combined workings of the national and State governments, under their respective constitutions, the rights of every citizen are secured at home and protected abroad, and the common welfore promoted.

2. The Republican party has preserved those governments to the hundredth anniversary of he nation's birth, and they are now the emodiments of the great truths spoken out at its cradle: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that for the attainment of these ends governments have been instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. Until those truths are cheerfully obeyed, or, if needed to be, vigorously enforced, the work of the Republican party is unfinished. S. The permanent pacification of the southern section of the Union, and the complete protection of its citizens in the free enjoyments of their rights, are duties to which the Republican party stands sacredly pledged. The pow-er to provide for the enforcement of the principles embodied in the recent constitutional amendments is vested by those amendments in the Congress of the United States, and we declare it to be the solemn obligation of the legislative and executive departments of the government to put into immediate and vigor-ous exercise all their constitutional powers for removing any just causes of discontent on the part of any class, and securing to every American citizen complete liberty and exact equality in the exercise of all civil, political and pub lie rights. To this end we imperatively demand a Congress and a chief executive whose courage and fidelity to these duties shall not falter until, these results are placed beyond 4. In the first act of Congress signed by President Grant, the National Government assumed to remove any doubts of its duty to dis charge all just obligations to public creditors, and solemnly pledged its faith to make provision at the carliest practicable period the redemption of United States notes in coin. Commercial prosperity, public morals, and national credit demand that this promise be fulfilled by a continuous and steady progress to speci payments.

5. Under the constitution, the President and heads of departments are to make nominations for office, the Senate is to advise and to consent to appointments, and the house of representatives is to accuse and prosecute faithless officers. The best interests of the public service demand that these distinctions be respect ed that senators and representatives who may be judges and accusers should not dictate ap pointments to office. The invariable rule for appointments should have reference to the honesty, fidelity, and capacity of the appointee, giving to the party in power those places where harmony and vigor of administration requires its policy to be represented, but permit-ting all others to be filled by persons selected ency of the public service and the right of all citizens to share in the honor of rendering faithful ser-

6. We rejoice in the quickened conscience of the people concerning political affairs, and will hold all public officers to a rigid responsibility, and engage that the prosecution and punishment of all who betray official trusts shall be speedy, thorough and unsparing.
7. The public school system of the several States is the bulwark of the American Republic, and with a view to its security and permanence we recommend an amendment to the constitution of the United States, forbidding the application of any public fund or property for the benefit of any schools or institutions under sectarian control. S. The revenue necessary for current expenditures and the obligations of the public debt must be largely derived from duties on importations which, so far as possible, should be adjusted so as to promote the interests of American labor and advance the prosperity of the whole country.

9. We reaffirm our opposition to further grants of the public lands to corporations and monopolies, and demand that the national domain be devoted to free homes for the people.

10. It is the imperative duty of the government so to modify the existing treaties with European governments that the same protection shall be afforded to the adopted American citizen that is given to the native-born, and that all necessary laws should be passed to protect immigrants in the absence of power in the States for that purpose.

11. It is the immediate duty of Congress to fully investigate the effect of the immigration and importation of Mongolians upon the moral and material interest of the country. 12. The Republican party recognizes with approval the substantial advance recently made toward the establishment of equal rights for women by the many important amending the effected by Republican legislation in the laws which concern the personal and property relations of wives, mothers and widows, and by the appointment and election of women to the superintendence of education, charters, and other public trusts. The honest demands of this class of citizens for additional rights and privileges and immunities, should be treated with respectful consideration.

13. The constitution confers upon Congress sovereign power over the territories of the United States for their government, and in the exercise of this power it is the right and the duty of Congress to prohibit and extirpate in the territories that relic of barbarism, polygamy, and we demand such legislation as shall secure this end and the supremacy of American institutions in all the territories.

14. The pledges which the nation has given to our soldiers and sailors must be fulfilled. The grateful people will always hold those who periled their lives for the country's preservation in the kindest remembrance. 15. We sincerely deprecate all sectional feeling and tendencies. We therefore note with deep solicitude that the Democratic party counts as its chief hope of success 'upon the electoral vote of the united south, secured through the efforts of those who were recently arrayed against the nation, and we invoke the carnest attention of the country to the grave truth that a success thus achieved would re-open sectional strife and imperil national honor and human rights.

16. We charge the Democratic party as be ing the same in character and spirit as when it sympathized with treason; with making its control of the house of representatives the triumph and the opportunity of the nation's re-cent foes; with reasserting and applauding in the national capital the sentiments of unre-pented rebellion; with sending Union soldiers o the rear and promoting Confederate soldiers to the front; with deliberately proposing to repudiate the plighted faith of the government; with being equally false and imbecile upon the overshadowing ends of justice by its partisan mismanagement and obstruction of investigation; with proving itself, through the period of its ascendancy in the lower House of Congress, utterly incompetent to administer the government. We warn the country against trusting a party thus alike unworthy, recreant and incapable:

17. The national administration merits commendation for its honorable work in the management of domestic and foregin affairs, and President Grant deserves the continued and hearty gratitude of the American people for his patriotism and his immense services in war

National Democratic Platform.

We, the delegates of the Democratic party of the United States, in national convention as-sembled, do hereby declare the administration of the federal government to be in urgent need of immediate reform; do hereby enjoin upon the nominees of this convention, and of the Democratic party of each State, a zealous effort and co-operation to this end, and do hereby appeal to our fellow citizens at every former po-litical connection to undertake with us this first and most pressing patriotic duty.

For the Democracy of the whole country we do hereby reaffirm our faith in the permanence of the federal union, our devotion to the con-stitution of the United States, with its amend ments, universally adopted as a final settlement of the controversy that engendered civil war;

the possibility of republican self-government;

ment of their ambition. Here again profes sions falsified in the performance, attest that the party in power can work out no practical resident, Judges, Senators, Representatives, cabinet officers—these and all others in authority are the people's [servants. There officers are not private perquisite, they are a public trust. When the annals of this republic show the disgrace and sensure of a Vice-President, a late speaker of the House of Representatives marketing his rulings as a pre-siding officer, three Senators profiting secretly by their votes as law-makers, five Chairmen of the leading committees of the late House of Representatives exposed in jobbery, a late Secretary of the Treasury forcing balances in the public accounts a late Attorney General misappropiating the public funds, a Secretary of the navy enriched or enriching friends by percentages levied off the profits of contractors with the department, an ambassador to England consured in a dishonorable speculation, the President's private secretary barely escaping conviction upon trial for guilty complicity in frauds upon the revenue, a Secretary of war impeached for high crimes and confessed misdemeanors, the demonstration is complete that the first step in reform must be the people's choice of honest men from another party, lest the disease of one political organization infest the body politic, and lest by making no change of men or party we can get no change of measures and no reform.

All these abuses, wrongs, and crimes, the product of 16 years ascendancy of the Repub lican party, create a necessity for reform commenced by the Republicans themselves; but their reformers are voted down in cor vention and displaced from the cabinet. The vention and displaced from the cabinet. The party masses of lunest voters is powerless to resist the 80,000 officers, its leaders, and guides. Reform can only be had by a peaceful civil revolution: We demand a change of system, a change of administration, a change of parties, that we may have a change of measures and of men,

Tilden's Self-Conceit.

Slippery Sam is not a modest man, by any means. His first short speech in response to the screnade given him on receipt of the news of his nomination was in the worst taste of any similar speech ever made by a Presidential nominee. In that speech he

This nomination was not made by the leaders of the party; it was the people who made it. They want reform. They have wanted it a long time, and in looking about they have become convinced that it is to be found here, (pointing at himself). They want it; that is what they are Slippery Sam is likely to have his self-conceit taken down a large number of pegs next November. He will have the conviction driven into him by a pile driver that "the people" did not nominate him; that "the people" do not take him at his own estimate; and that "the people," "in looking about," have "become convinced" that "reform" is not "to be found HERE" (pointing at himself). In short, his self-conceit that families cannot do without Tildenism, and children cry for it, is destined to receive a terrible shock.—Detroit Post.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE

For Hayes and Wheeler.

The National Republican party has placed its ticket and platform before the American people. The Presidential Campaign will be one of the most exciting and important that has ever occurred in the United States. The result of the contest will determine the future good or ill of the country for a generation to The Democratic Confederate alliance is the

a "failure," and the other wing tried desperately to make it a failure. They are now a harbor of refuge for sectional animosities and pro-slavery sentiments. Since coming into control of the popular branch of Congress they have exhibited no statemanship, no wisdom nor patriotism—nothing but obstructive politics and destructive purposes, showing themselves incapable of progress or even of comprehending the wants of the country. They only "middle and muddle." With all their promises and pretensions they have prov en utter failures in dealing with question of Taxation, Tariff, Revenue, Currency or Reform. In June, 1863, an expedition com-

command had been entirely separated from mail communication, and knew nothing of the stirring events that had happened in other departments, including the surrender of Vicksburg, Lee's defeat at Gettysgurg, and John Morgan's raid north of the Ohio. Col. Hayes therefore rode forward to Fayetteville to obtain information, and on reaching the town galloped at once to the telegraph office, where, without dismounting, he called to the operator through the open window, "What's the news?" The man at the instrument turned and was about to give him a brief history of events, when a

This was startling news to Col. Hayes. "John Morgan in Ohio," he exclaimed, "and making for Gallipolis!" The operator then explained by union cavalry, and that he was evidently seeking escape from the state by crossing the Ohio river at Gallipolis, where there was no adequate force to dispute his passage, or to protect large quantities of supplies which had been callected there. Col. Hayes comprehended the situation in an in-

In half an hour his little column was in motion, groping its way along the rough mountain road. The night was moonless, and the darkness sometimes so intense that the two regiments were compelled to halt until the clouds cleared before they could was continued, and just as dawn began to streak the summits of the mountains, the column, reaching a high point overlooking the Kanawha valley, near Fayetteville, saw the two steamboats rounding a bend and coming up the river. Col. Hayes instant-

He arrived in time to go out and meet the enemy while advancing upon the town, but Morgan's officers were not long in discovering that something tougher was in front of them than military regiments and they suddenly drew off, remounted and made for Buffington's Island, a point still farther up the river. Here Morgan siezed a steamboat, and had ferried over about 300 of his men when Col. Hayes arrived, siezed the boat and put a stop to any further progress in that line. Morgan him-as follows:

SEC. 2. Every contract or obligaand do here record our steadfast confidence in the supremacy of the civil over the military authorities, the total separation of church and state, for the sake alike of civil and religious freedom; in the equality of all citizens before the just laws of their own enactment; in the liberty of individual conduct, unvexed by sumptuary laws; in the faithful education of the rising generation that they may preserve, enjoy and transmit these best conditions of human happiness and hope. We behold the noble products of 100 years of changeful history. But while unholding the bonds of our union and the great charter of these our rights, it behooves a free people to practice also that eternal vigilance which is the price of liberty. Reform is necessary to rebuild and establish in the hearts of the whole people the union 11 years ago happily rescued from the danger of a corrupt centralism, which, after inflicting upon 10 States the rapacity of carpet bag tyrannies, has honeycombed the officers of the federal government. itself with incapacity, waste, and fraud, infected the States and municipalities with the contagion of misrule, and locked fast the prosperity of an industrious people in the paraylsis of hard times. Reform is necessary to establish a sound currency, restore the public credit, and maintain the national We denounce the failure for all these 11 years to make good the promises of the legal tender notes, which are a changing standard of value in the hands of the people, and the non-payment of which is a disregard of the plighted faith of the nation.

We denounce improvidence which in 11 years of peace has taken from the people in federal taxes 13 times the whole amount of this sum in uscless expense, without accumulating any reserve for their redemption.

We denounce the financial imbecility and immorality of that party which, during 11 years of peace, has made no advance toward resumption, no preparation for resumption, but instead has obstructed resumption by wasting their resources and exhausting all our surplus income, and, while annually professing to intend a speedy return to specie pay-ments, has annually enacted fresh hindrances

As such a hindrance we denounce the re-sumption clause of the act 1875, and we hereby demand its repeal. We demand a judicious system of prepara-tion, by public economies, by officials re-trenchments, and by the finance which shall enable the nation soon to assure the whole world of its perfect readiness to meet any of its promises at the call of the creditor enti-tled to payment. We believe such a system, well devised and above all entrusted to competent hands for execution, creating at no time any artificial scarcity of currency, and at no time alarming the public mind into a withdrawal of that vester machinery of credit burstell of a scarcity of currency. t by which 95 per cent. of all business transactions a reperformed, a system open to the public and inspiring general confidence, would from the day of its adoption bring healing on its wings to all our paralyzed industry, set in motion the wheels of commerce anufactures, and other mechanical arts, and renew in all its national sources the pros-

Reform is necessary in the sum and mode of federal taxation, to the end that capital may be set free from distrust and labor lightperity of the people.

We denounce the present tariff levies upon nearly 4,000 articles as a masterpiece of injustice, inequality, and false protection. It yields, a dwindling, not a yearly rising, revenue. It has impoverished many industries to subsidize a few. It prohibits imports that might purchase the products of American labor. It has degraded American commerce routhe first to an inferior rank upon the high seas. It has cut down the sales of Amercan manufactures at home and abroad, and cheapened the returns of American agriculture, an industry followed by half our people. It costs the people five times more than it produces to the treasury, obstructs the process of production, and wastes the fruits of labor. It promotes fraud, fosters smuggling, enriches dishonest officials, and bankrupts honest merchants. We demand that all cusom-house taxation shall be only for revenue Reform is necessary in the scale of public expenses, federal, state, and municipal. Our gold in 1860, to $150,000,000 currency in 1870; our aggegate taxation from $154,000, 000 gold in 1860, to $730,000,000 currency in 1870, or in one decade from $5 per head to more than $18 per head. Reform is necessary to put a stop to the profligate waste of public lands and their diversion from actual settlers by the party in power, which has squandered 200,000,000 icres upon railroads alone, and out of more than thrice that aggregate has disposed of less than a sixth directly to the tillers of the sions of a Republican congress, and the errors of our treaties and our diplomacy, which have, stripped our fellow-citizens of foreign birth and kindred race, recrossing the Atlantic, of the shield of American citizenship, and have exposed our brethren of the Pacific coast to

The first false issue is that with which they would enkindle sectarian strife in respect to the public schools of which the establishment and support belong exclusively to the several States, and which the Democratic party has cherished from their foundation, and is resolved to maintain without partiality or preference for any class, sect or creed, and with-out contributing from the treasury to any. The second false issue is that by which they seek to light anew the dying embers of

THE Tilden and Hendricks ratification meeting on Saturday night was the tamest affair of the kind we ever witnessed, not a cheer being given from the time it commenced to the close, for the candidates, speakers or anything else. When the last speaker had finished, an enthusiastic Republican, who was not used to seeing a political meeting close without some cheering, proposed three cheers for Hayes and Wheeler, and they were given with a will, after which the principal speaker of the evening again mounted the dry goods box and proposed three cheers for Hendricks and Tilden, probably forgetting in his enthusiasm which was the candidate grocers. for President, and thus getting the names mixed. The response was very weak. We heard Democrats express themselves as disgusted with

WILLIAM PALMER, a turner in Mutzler's mill, two miles southwest of Dayton, was found on the side-walk on the east side of the Dunbar House, Wednesday night, in an insensible condition and with his head badly cut. in a dozen or more places, one gash reaching clear across the crown of his head; and another under the right eye, cutting the artery of the face. Some of the gashes looked as if they had been cut with a knife and the others with the heel of a boot or some heavy weapon. The account that Palmer gives of the fracas is, that he was sitting on the door step, when the man and woman came by, the woman went into the hotel and the man attacked him, and left him in the above condition, probably supposing him to be dead. Palmer does not know who his assailant was nor can he give any description of him. As soon as found Palmer was taken to C. W. Smith's livery stable and his wounds dressed the demagogic harangue of the last speaker. Probably this is the reason

there was no enthusiasm manifested on the occasion.

It was rather amusing to the crowd assembled on Saturday evening to hear the cause of Tilden and Hendricks expounded, the majority of whom were Republicans, to listen to the agonizing plea of the speaker for "reform." The speaker's indignation at Republican corruption was awful to contemplate, and he clung to the word "reform" with the tenneity of a lunch fiend. But in his cries for "reform," he forgot to mention that there is a paper on file in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, wherein the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad company charges Samuel J. Tilden, the great "reformer," and others, with stealing from that company and appropriating to their own use the sum of $395,196.85. He forgot to mention that his "reform" candidate was identified with the Tweed gang when that ring was in power in New York, and how he got a portion of his barrel of money' by sharing the stealings of the ring, and then, when exposed, treacherously turning his back upon his late associates. He forgot to say that Tilden's opposition to the canal ring was purely for political effect and to put more money in | state that the "sensible present" is to his "barrel," which is a fact well known. The speaker forgot to say anything about these and other matters in which his "reform" candidate was interested. How safe would this Government be in the hands of this kind of a reformer?

FROM NEW TROY.

EDITOR RECORD :- This appears to be a time of reform-this Centennial year of our Independence, and we think it high time that something was done to further justice and honesty throughout the entire length and breadth of our glorious land of freedom and Republicanism. Now is a good time to begin, and beginning, never cease until every ring is broken up, and every criminal has received his just deserts; and let every man who is instrumental in bringing any such to justice be rewarded accordingly, and do not use them as did our Hon. Board of Supervisors. Some of the Justices of the Peace, and also constables, regarding their fees in criminal cases at their last session in Berrien. They decided at said term that they (the county) would not allow a Justice of the Peace any fee for drafting any bond of recognizance, although the statute states fully that chapter COXL, section 7478 of the compiled laws of 1871, a Justice shall be allowed for drafting any bond of recognizance, twenty-five cents. Again, in the same chapter, section 7483 says: The fees hereinbefore in this chapter allowed for services, except those which are otherwise provided for by law, shall be county charges, and shall be audited by the Board of Supervisors of the county in which the services are rendered, and shall be paid in the same manner as other contingent charges of the county. It seems that the far-seeing and wise Supervisors of the county of Berrien are determined to take the law in their own hands and administer justice according to their own peculiar notions and not according to the stat-ute of the State of Michigan. I do not wish it understood that this was sanctioned by the whole Board, for there were some of them that interpreted the law as it is, and wished to reward every officer according to his labors in trying to bring thieves and other offenders to justice. This majority that is spoken of were men of reform and men who were determined to reduce the county expenses by reducing the small pittance of officers to almost nothing. Now let us look at the saving to the county. In order to cut down one certain officer's fees, the sum of twelve dollars (which was justly his, according to the statute), kept that Board of Supervisors arguing the point long enough, (we believe) had their time been accurately kept, to have paid that sum at least day night had come to a close, and twice; but that is a thing altogether different. A supervisor costs the son," one of the chief fuglemen of the county three dollars for every day that he stays at Berrien to talk of such matters as they think proper. But a constable can travel through

Justice of the Peace and every constable in the county of Berrien, if the Board does not rectify these gross mistakes at their next meeting, work against the election of every man who votes to deprive us of that which is guaranteed us by the statute.

The Fruits of Weak Digestion. There is no pathological fact more clearv ascertained than that the most formidable phases of nervous disease are directly traceable to imperfect digestion. Insomnia, with its train of direful consequences, proceeds more frequently from weakness of the stomach than from any other cause. MOORE'S HUB AND BALUSTER MACHINE.

Patented December 18, 1874. TO THE PUBLIC. In all ages the production of powerful and convenient labor-saving machinery has been an object with man-kind. Notwithstanding the great variety of improvements and inventions existing, every day brings forth new forms and new combinations of material, to render the efforts of manufacturers more accurate, more speedly and frind. Notwithstanding the great variety of improvements and inventions existing, every day brings out in new forms and new combinations of material, to render the efforts of manufacturers more accurate, more speedily and more profitable in the construction of articles of commerce.

Not the least important among recent inventions of this class are the Hub and Multiform Baluster machine, to which I invite your attention. It possesses new and ingenious improvements and combinations, which I have secured by Letters Patent. In the production of this machine as an inventor, I claim to have accomplished a result of the greatest practical importance to owners of unmerchantable timber.

1. It is well known to all practical sawmill men, that every year they operate their mills they have thousands of feet of unmerchantable lumber, and for years have felt the want of some device to render this rotus lumber merchantable. It is true a great deal of it can be converted into lath, but competition is so great, that it does not renuncrate. With the use of this machine, you can convert your refuse stock of lumber into Balusters and Newelpoets, which is a merchantable and staple commodity that commands the cash in any of the large markets; as a Baluster machine in this respect other lathes can make no comparison with it. It makes round, gruare and octagon, and flute the work when required, the knives are so arranged that one set can be adjusted to work almost any design. It has the capacity to make from 600 to 1000 Balusters in ten hours. Its work is accurate, far surpassing the most skilled hand labor in the completeness of its performance.

2. To parties who are in possession of Ilub timber, such timber as Elm, Gum, Locust, Hickory, or second growth Oak, to this item I urge special attention. It is beyond peradventure the most rapid and perfect Hub machine in use. Two men can turn and bore 400 hubs with this machine in ten hours. It can be run to any desired speed, the usual rate is from 1500 to 1800 revolutions of the main arbor per minute. Two horse power is all the power necessary to operate it, when steam or water power is not available. You can use any ordinary thresher power running either right or left hand, if speaded properly will operate this machine exceedingly for the purposes intended. No intricate manipulation being required any man with ordinary intelligence can operate it.

"The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," etc., etc. The liver is the great depurating (purifying) organ of the system, and has very appropriately been termed the "housekeeper" of our health. I have observed in the dissecting-room, and also in making post-mortem examinations of the bodies of those who have died of different diseases, that in a large proportion of cases, the liver has given evidence of having at some some time been diseased. Liver affections are equally prevalent in beasts. Every butcher knows that the livers of cattle, sheep, and swine, are ten times as frequently diseased as any other organ. A healthy liver each day secretes about two and a half pounds of bile. When it becomes torpid, congested, or if, from any cause, it be disabled in the performance of its duties, it is evident that the elements of the bile must remain in the blood, thus irritating, poisoning, and perverting every vital process. Nature attempts to rid the system of these noxious materials by means of other organs, as the kidneys, lungs, skin, etc., which become overtaxed in performing their additional labor, and are unable to withstand the pressure.

The brain, which is the great electrical center of all vitality, becomes overstimulated with unbealthy blood, and fails to normally perform its functions. Hence there is dullness, headache, impairment of the memory, dizziness, gloomy forebodings, and irritability of temper. When the blood is diseased, the skin manifests discolored spots, pimples, blotches, boils, car-buncles, and scrofulous tumors. The stomach and bowels, sooner or later, become affected, and constipation, piles, dropsy, dyspepsia, or diarrhœa, is the in-

1000 SOLD LAST SEASON WITHOUT ONE FAILURE OR REJECTION This is the famous Threshing machine that has "swept the field" and created such a revolution in the trade, by its matchless Grain-Saying and Time-Saying principles.

THE ENORMOUS WASTAGE of grain, so inevitable with other styles of Threshers, can be SAVED by this Improved Machine, sufficient, on every job, to more than FLAX, TIMOTHY, MILLET, HUNGARIAN and like seeds are threshed, separated, cleaned and saved as easily and perfectly as Wheat, Oats, Rye or Barley. AN EXTRA PRICE is usually paid for grain and seeds cleaned by this machine, for extra cleanliness. IN THE WET GRAIN of 1875, these were substantially the ONLY MACHINES that could run with profit or economy, doing fast, thorough and perfect work; when others utterly failed. ALL GRAIN, TIME and MONEY wasting complica-tions, such as "Endless Aprons," "Raddles," "Beaters," "Pickers," etc., are entirely dispensed with; cless than one-half the usual Gears, Belts, Boxes, and Journals; easier managed: more durable; light running; no cost-ly repairs; no dust; no "litterings" to clean up; not-troubled by adverse winds, rain or storms. FARMERS and GRAIN RAISERS who are posted in the large saving made by it will not employ infe-rior and wasteful machines, but will insid on this improved Thresher doing their work. FOUR SIZES made for 6, 8, 10 and 12 Horse Powers. Also a specialty of SEPARATORS, designed and made expressly for STEAN POWER. TWO STYLES OF HORSE POWERS, viz.: our improved "Triple Gear," and our "Spur Speed" ((Woodbury Style), both "Mounted" on four wheels. Dr. Prico's reputation has been acquired candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with lars of experiment and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim notto know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sonse. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogation and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free.
