Poetry. A COUNTRY SCHOOL

Pretty and pale and tired,
She sits in her stiff back chair,
While the blazing summer sun
Shines in her soft brown hair, And the tiny brook without, That she hears through the open door

Mock with its murmur cool
Hard bench and dusty floor. It seems an endless round— Grammar and A. B. C; The blackboard and the sums; And stupid geography; When from teachers to little Jem

Not one of them cares a straw, Whether "John" is in the "case," Or Kansas in Omaha. For Jemmy's bare brown feet. Are aching to wade in the stream Where the trout to his luring bait Shall leap with a quick, bright gleam, And his teacher's blue eyes stray To the flowers on the desk hard by, Till her thoughts have followed her eyes With a half unconscious sigh.

Her heart outruns the clock, As she smells of their faint sweet scent But when have time and heart

Their measure in unison bent?
For the time will haste or lsg,
Like your shadow on the grass, That lingers far behind, Or flies when you fain would pass.

Have patience, restless Jem,
The stream and the fish will wait;
And patience, tired blue eyes,
Down the winding road by the gate, Under the willow shade, Stands some with fresher flowers; So turn to your books again,
And keep love for the after hours.

Story.

THE FOUR SPANIARDS.

In 1828, I was second mate of the brig Isabel. We had been freighting for six or eight months among the West India Islands, and picked up a good deal of money. At last the hot weather came on, freights grew dull, and we made ready to sail for home. In the meantime there came on board four Spaniards, who wished to engage a passage to the North, and being able to accommodate just that number, we accepted them. They were all sinister-looking fellows, and one in particular was so much so, that I wondered why Captain Hillman entertained so little distrust of him. Neither myself nor the chief mate iked the arrangement; for in those days every sailor had the dread of pirates pretty deeply impressed upon his mind. And, indeed, we had, only a few months previous, been chased by the murderous scoundrels off the Isle of Pines. We set sail, and I must confess that I passed the first night in some uneasiness. The passengers spoke but little English, and their conversation was, therefore, mostly between themselves. During such colloquies, it seemed to me that I could detect in them the manner of guilty men-a constant look of distrust and watchfulness; but as the second day wore on, and I became accustomed to the appearance of their well-dressed figures at my side, my anxiety abated.

Toward the evening of this day, however, my attention was drawn to a slight altercation between the cook and the Spaniard, Bacalardo, the man whom I had remarked as the most villainous-looking of the four. Drawing near them, I asked what had happened. "Why, sar," replied the negro cook, "while I was out ob de galley, dis Spanish gemman sprinkle something on de meat. I scrape it off de best way I could. I doesn't want no interferunce in de fairs ob my galley."

The faithful old negro looked angry; nor was this all—his glance and tone told me that a grim and dreadful suspicion had entered his mind. The Spaniard, however, remarked that he had merely intended to season the meat with a kind of pepper highly esteemed in Cuba; but, upon my expressing a curiosity to see it, he regretted that he had none remaining. I was about to order the cook not to produce the meat at supper, when the captain, approaching us, made light of the affair, laughing at the old negro's jealousy of encroachment upon his peculiar province; and as the mysterious substance seemed to have been wholly removed by the cook's knife, I hoped that no harm might result. The captain ate freely of the meat; the mate was evidently affected at what had transpired, yet his appetite prevailed. I avoided it entirely; and as to the Spaniards, the circumstance of their leaving it untasted seemed not remarkable, as we had learned on the day previous that they were not in the habit of eating animal food at

Shortly afterwards, the captain, mate, and three of the crew became dreadfully sick. I felt a terrible presentiment of the worst, yet what was I to do? The captain was helpless in his berth; the mate lay in agony upon the transom; the only foremast hand able to come on deck was at the wheel; the cook was paralyzed with fear; and my ideas of what could or ought to be done, were confused by the suddenness and appalling difficulty of my position. Should I arm and attack the villains? Whom should I arm, and how stir from his station, a knife would be at his heart; and were the cook to leave his galley, he would not walk to the end of it.

I went to the cabin, where the captain and mate were vomiting in great distress: and while overhauling the medicine, more from that sense of fully. Yet never had the blood stains hope of affording relief, the companion doors were shut upon me, and the and more fully than before I realized slide shoved to its place. At the the awfulness of the tragedy which same moment there was a slight strugsame moment there was a sight struggle on deck, a groan and a fall; and next came a heavy splash in the water under the stern. I had felt that I could as easily defend myself in the cabin as elsewhere, for upon deck I had been perpetrated.

Strongly the north-easter piped—it would not fail me now—and the to strike; but reason for their not doing so soon became evident. Bacalardo came to the slide and ordered me to come on deck. I refused, and expressed a determination to defend myself. "We no kill you," he said: "we want you for navigate."

"What have you done with the cook?" I then asked. "We stab him; he is overboard; so is other man. All men in the forecastle dead; we stab them all." Then I knew that the villains had killed the three men whom the poison had rendered helpless, and that only myself and the two fearfully sick officers remained. The latter were already at the point of death.

I told Bacalardo that I would come on deck when the captain and mate should have passed all suffering. It seemed dreadful that the impatient wretches should murder them with knives: and hence I could not bear to leave them. My refusal to do so, however, availed nothing, for crowding into the cabin, the pirates at once dispatched their victims, and passed the bodies out of the windows. The pirates divided the moneyabout ten thousand dollars; and they then informed me that I must navigate the vessel to South America. They were all sailors, and the brig being easily handled the task would not be very difficult. But to think of heading for distant seas, with that sickening borror upon my heart! There were blood stains upon the deck, in the cabin, and in the forecastle-and how could I remain in such a vessel? But no one knows what he can do until suffering has taught him.

We were now becalmed, and with the full strength of the gulf Stream were drifting northerly at the rate of four miles an hour. The ignorant pirates, whose operations had never brought them much to the northward of Cuba, had no idea that the current was thus bearing us along, while it was upon this fact that I built almost my only hope.

In high spirits at the success of their enterprise, they laughed over their gold, and were continually boasting of the murders they had at one or another time committed. Bacalardo remarked that he had probably sent more persons into eternity than any other man living; and I had | grasp an oar, and commence sculling little doubt of my being added to the | with all my might when the pirates st, whenever my services longer be required.

Three days were passed in this manner; and in the meantime I had assured the Spaniards that it would be madness to proceed on the South American voyage without a further supply of water. I had, at a favorable opportunity, let out the contents of two casks in the hold. At the end of this time, the wind sprang up, and it was decided to enter an inlet which I described as upon a wild portion of the southern coast, with which they were entirely unacquainted, and there obtain the needed supply.

Though it was the month of August, the weather became tempestuous with squalls and heavy gales from the south and west. We were obliged to and all the while I managed to keep the brig in the Gulf Stream, so that | the certainty of his doom, had impellwestward, she had a strong northerly drift. The pirates kept me almost let them suspect that this was the two or three times I wedged the compass so that it could not play. I was afraid they would discover that we were making too much northing, and though their ignorance of the lay of the coast was a most hopeful circumstance in this connection, I dared not wholly trust to it. At last I ran out of the Gulf Stream, and just after I had taken an observation of the sun, which till then had not shown itself for several days. leaving me to be guided by the gulf weed and the water's temperaturethe wind came from the northeast, piping in great and good earnest. My heart beat quickly, for the quadrant had shown me that my hour had

Our water casks were almost empty, and the pirates were very glad when I told them we should reach the coast in a few hours. And I-vou cannot imagine my sensations. Oh, if the wind should die out-if it should head us off-if morning should dawn, and my plan be only half accomplished! Often had the villains drawn their knives across my throat, in signification of what would come should I play them false; and now it was success or death. Headed west-north-west, the little brig bounded along, and you may well every sail, as I have never watched previous reckoning-"Yes, yesterday struck out for the Gulf Stream: last night I headed thus and thus. I so-I have made no mistake. Yet how if I cannot manage at last? A single error, a shadow of suspicion. commence? Were the helmsman to and a knife will end all." Thus I mentally conversed with myself.

Here and there were vessels sailing upon various courses, but I dared not approach, dared hardly look at them. As evening approached I saw the land. It would be dark ere we should reach it, and thus far all went hopethe awfulness of the tragedy which that moment! I was right. There they were, the two beautiful lightsyes, beautiful indeed to me. But the hour of greatest peril was at hand; and I studied again and again the various contingencies that might cross my plans, and reveal my intentions to the murderous Spaniards.

We passed between the lights, at a considerable distance from both, and still self-possessed. many were the inquiries of the pirates as to our position. I told them that we had a few miles further to run, when we should have reached the anchorage at the watering-place. Darkness prevented them from seeing the land, and they had not the most distant idea of their surroundings. The lights they imagined to be upon two islands—at least, they took my word for it, and had no suspicion of our real whereabouts. On and on flew the Isabel: and if ever, at one time more than another, I have tried to exert my nautical judgment and forethought, it was then. We saw other lights; but the pirates supposed them to be upon the ocean coast, along which they believed them selves sailing. At length I requested them to take in the light sails and the courses. This completed, I called out-and it was with a dreadful thrill in my heart, I assure you,—"Let go the top-sail halyards, and clew up! It was done, and I could see that a dark bank was rising under the lee

It must be day I had glanced at the yawl, and the tackles that held it; and now, quickly, but with a steady hand, I sprang to the davits-falls. First the larboard, then the starboard, I seized; but was careful to lower away with both simultaneously, that the boat might not be swamped. Then, clapping my hands on the taffrail, I dropped into her, unhooked the tackles, and with my hands against the brig, pushed with a force that sent the yawl shooting from under the counter. At this moment I heard the anchor go overboard. I had just time to and loud. His horrid Spanish oaths might at another time have curdled my blood; but now I had him upon the dark bank so close at hand. The voice that answered was the most blessed sound I ever heard. It was from one of the United States' sentinels, and I was gliding under the walls at old Point Comfort! Escape for the pirates was impossible, for the strong easterly wind must preclude all hope of getting to sea, while the fort could have disabled the brig in an instant. A boat, with armed soldiers, now boarded her. Three of the pirates were taken into custody, shorten sail, and sometimes to lie to; but Bacalardo was found dead in the cabin. From the Cleveland Sunday Times. Following a Whale.

A ship some time ago arrived at Bristol, after a successful whaling voyage. Time was when thousands of vessels tracked the great sea monsters in search of oil, but the discoveries of the mineral article have made the trade no longer remunerative, or at least much less an object of pursuit. The ship referred to was the West Wind, commanded by Captain Parker, who had a most perilous adventure during the cruise, and which came very near costing him his life. Under the most favorable circumstances the occupation of the whaler is one of great danger and physical trial, and very few ships ever return to port without losing one or more hands by the ordinary exigencies of the service.

It seems that Captain Parker was out from his ship with a boat's crew, chasing a whale, and, having fastened his harpoon to the creature, it dived, as usual, and the line, coiled in the bows of the boat, began to run out with lightning speed, as the monster sunk to the extreme depth of the ocean. At this critical juncture Capbelieve that I watched every variation | tain Parker went to the forward part of the breeze, and the drawing of of the boat, to be sure that there was no twist in the rope to prevent its before, over and over I resolved my | working clear. The line was running out with such rapidity as to cause the smoke to arise from the wood work of the boat, and the captain threw water, was sure of my figures. It must be as is the custom; but by an unlucky lurch of the boat he was canted from his position, and he naturally threw out his left hand to prevent himself from falling, but in so doing he placed it so that the rope coiled around his wrist, and he was overboard and out of sight in an instant.

He was perfectly conscious while he was rushing down, head foremost, and with an incredible swiftness, and it appeared to him that his arm would be torn from the socket, so great was. ure, broken the nightmare of horror, aware of his perilous situation, and that his only chance for life was to instant, and it seemed as though a stream of fire was passing before them; and now came that inevitable activity of the brain which characterizes all such perilous situations where one's whole life seems to pass in review in an instant of time. But the captain was a very practical man, cool and courageous always, and, consequently,

He began to struggle with all his muscular power to reach the knife which he wore in his belt. He felt that he was growing weaker every instant, and it was now or never with him, though we should say, parenthetically, that what requires so long to describe, occurred in time that was reckoned by seconds rather than minutes. Oh, if he could command but his right hand for one stroke upon that fatal line! Now his heart began to fail him. He did not absolutely despair, but his brain reeled, his nerves seemed to alternate before his eyeballs, and his head felt as though composed in an iron vise. Were these his last moments? He thought, in spite of the agonizing pain he endured, he would make one more brave

The line providentially slackened for a second; he reached his knife. and, as quick as thought itself, as the rope became taut again, the keen edge of the blade was upon it, and by a desperate effort of his arm it became severed. He was freed, and then commenced his upward passage, caused by the natural buoyancy of the human body. After this he only remembered a feeling of suffocation, a gurgling spasm, and all was over until he awoke to an agonizing pain of reviving consciousness in the arms of his boat's crew. His complexion is not too florid; at any rate, too much ruddiness in youth is not a sign of longevity. His hair approaches to the fair rather than to the black. His skin is strong but not rough. His head is not too big; his shoulders are round rather than flat; his head is not too long; his abdomen does not project; his hands are large, but not too deeply cleft; his foot is rather thick than long, and his legs firm and round. He has a broad, arched chest, a strong voice, and the faculty of retaining his breath for a long time without difficulty. There is harmony in all his parts. His senses are good, but not too delicate; his pulse is slow and regular; his stomach is excellect; his appetite good and digestion easy. The joys of the table are to him of importance; they tune his mind to serenity; and his soul partakes in the pleasure which they communicate. He does not eat merely for the sake of eating, but each meal is an hour of daily festivity. He eats slowly, and has not too much thirst, the latter being always a sign of rapid self-consumption. He is serene, loquacious, active, susceptible of joy, love and hope, but insensible to the impressions of hatred, anger and averice. His passion never becomes violent or distrustive. Supposed Burial Alive. A horrible story is abroad concerning Mr. Samuel Lester, of Shelter Island, who recently suddenly died, as was supposed, at Forwich, and whose body was taken home for interment. It is to the effect that the person employed to fill the grave while doing so heard strange noises coming from the coffin, as of a man trying to break his way out. The report continues that the man superstitiously fled, to return soon after and hear the noise repeated; that he finally filled up the grave, but said nothing concerning what he had heard until some day after. The coffin was after a while exhumed, and it was found that the man had been buried alive, the evidence of a struggle for release from his awful fate being painfully apparent.

Your menory is bad, parhaps, but I can tell you two secrets that will cure the worst menory. One I mentioned above-or read a subject when strongly interested. The other is, to not only read but think. When you have read a paragraph or a page, stop, close the book and try to remember the ideas on that page, and not only recall them vaguely in your mind but put them into words and speak them out. Faithfully follow these two rules, and you have the golden keys of knowledge. Besides inattentive reading there are other things injurious to the memory. One is the habit of skimming over newspapers, all in a confused jumble, never to be thought of again, thus diligently cultivting a habit of careless reading, hard to break. Another is reading of trashy novels. Nothing is so fatal to readthem as soon as read. Toughened Glass.

The new process for making a tough or unbreakable glass has been greatly improved since its first announcement, and the material, in the form of lampchimneys, tumblers, etc., is now offered in commercial quantities. The sucess attending the experiments already made have inspired futher research in the same field, and a number of new processes, of more or less value, are reported. In the original process, glassware, raised to a red, or melting heat, is plunged into a bath of oily and fatty matter, and the result is to give the glass an entirely new character. Instead of breaking with a star-like fracture under a slight blow, it resists serious blows, and besides a certain amount of elasticity above that it had before, displays a toughness and cohesion many times in excess of its ordinary. If broken at all, it disintegrates and flies into a great number of minute particles, resembling quartz sand.—

Mrs. A. T. Stewart sctually had to leave New York on account of the persecution she underwent from those who solicited charity. Petitions poured in upon her from all quarters for every purpose. Needy institutions; chartites that were ready to be started, provided liberal donations or endowments could be obtained; people in distress themselves, or whose friends were unfortunate: children to be adoped or educated; some who only needed capital to start a grand enterprise, and innumerable suggestions as to the best way to invest her capital. Al this advised her to leave the country. His son and daughter accompanied her in her travels, besides relatives

It looked like the bottom of an extinct lake. We were pursuing the Indian trail, but the Sioux had burned almost every blade of grass behind, so that our horses were nearly starved. That entire section of the valley is a huge coal-bed-one of the most extensive in America, and accounts for peculiar sterility of the surface of the soil. We saw huge lumps of coal sticking out of the sides of the canon, while the ground in many places was black as ink from genuine coal dust. NEWPORT BLANC MANGE.-To one quart of milk add one onuce or half a box of gelatine; soak until dissolved-not less than two hours-add a small cup of white sugar, and place over the fire. When the sugar, and gelatine are mixed with the milk and the blanc mange is gently boiling, remove and add one wine-glass of sherry wine and half a teaspoonful of extract of lemon. Stir while cooling to prevent the cream rising to top. When cool pour into moulds and set on ice,

RICH APPLE PUDDING. - Parc. core, and chop five or six apples, or enough to make half pound of shred; a quarter pound of suet; blanch and pound one dozen almonds; half a pound currants, a small cup of sugar, half a nutmeg, equal quantities of bread crumbs and flour, teaspoonful of salt, the whites of three eggs besten to a stiff froth; just milk enough to mix, a wineglassful of brandy the last thing. From ten to twelve ounces of bread crumbs and flour make a good size pudding, but if more flour is liked add a teaspoonful of baking powder, sifted dry in flour.

GERMAN POTATO CHEESE. - Boil sound white potatoes, peel and mash them perfectly smooth; to five pounds of the mashed potatoes, when cold, add a little more then a pint of sour milk; season it with salt and knead it well; cover it and let it remain. according to the season, from two to four days, then knead it afresh and make it into small cheeses; hang them up in a basket in the shade to dry: when they are sufficiently dry put them up in layers in large pots or kegs, and keep them closely covered. It will be fit for use in three or four weeks, but become finer the longer it is kept. It must be kept in a dry place, well covered.

PINEAPPLES PRESERVE.—Twist off the top and bottom of pineapple, pare off the rough outside, then weigh them, cut them in slices, chips, or quarters; to each pound of fruit allowa teacup of water, put in a preserving kettle, cover it and let it boil gently until it is clear and tender, then take it up and put into the water a pound of white sugar to each pound of fruit, stir it till the sugar is dissolved, then put in the fruit, cover the kettle and let it boil gently until transparent throughout, take it out then and let it cool, put it in glass jars; as soon as. the syrup cools a little pour it over the fruit and let it stand until the. next day before sealing up the jarr.

OATMEAL PUDDING. - Mix two ounces of fine Scotch oatmeal in a quarter of a pint of milk; add it to a pint of boiling milk; sweeten to taste. and stir over the fire for ten minutes: then put in two ounces of sifted breadcrumbs; stir until the mixture is stiff; then add one ounce of shred suet and one or two well-beaten eggs; add a little lemon flavoring or grated nutmeg. Put the pudding into a buttered dish, and bake slowly for an

The Virginia way to cook chickens: The fowl to be killed, picked and eviscerated in the shortest possible time; on no account is it to be washed, but must be wiped dry with a clean napkin and cut into six parts-the breast, the two wings, the back and the two legs. The whole is then to be thrown into a frying-pan with butter, cream, mush (small cakes of Indian meal dough); the whole to be done before the flesh loses its natural heat. and the frying-pan and contents must be heated in advance to recieve the chicken. Insulating Bedsteads. - An-Englishman who insulated his bedstead by placing underneath each post a broken-off bottom of a glass bottle, says that he had not been free from rheumatic gout for fifteen years, and that he began to improve immediately after the application of the insulators. A local paper, quoting this item, wisely adds: "There's many a fellow" who could cure this gout, if he would break off the bottom of his bottles in PEACH PUDDING .- Heat one quart of milk, mix three tablespoonfuls corn starch with a little cold milk, add two eggs, six even tablespoonfuls sugara one teaspoon salt, one teaspoonful lemon or vanilla, and stir in the hot milk. Let it cook until it thickens, stirring constantly. Prepare peaches as for the table, and put in a deep pudding dish. Sprinkle sugar over them, and pour the pudding over the fruit. Best when eaten cold.

APPLE Snow.—One pint bowl of the pulp of roasted apple, strained; one half pint of pulverized sugar; whites of three eggs; beat the eggs. to a stiff froth, then add the apple and sugar alternately, a spoonful of each, and beat altogether until it stands perfectly stiff on the spoon; it will swell immensely; serve this in saucers on a custard made of the yolk of the eggs, one pint of milk, two tablespoonfuls sugar, and flavored with

THE 'Independent' Greenback party of this County held their Convention at Berrien last Thursday. About three-fourths of the members were from Buchanan, and of the fiftyone voters, thirty-two were Democrats who of course nominated Democrats to the most important offices. A committee consisting of Dr. J. M. Roe, Levi Sparks and C. S. Black had been appointed to correspond with the candidates on the tickets already nominated, asking them whether they were in favor of the repeal of the resumption act; the remonetization of silver; making greenbacks a legal tender for all dues, and "Boss" Kelley's 3.65 interconvertible bond scheme. With one or two exceptions the Democrats replied, and always in the affimative. and from their letters, all were very anxious to be placed in nomination, when they were already nominated by a party which does not hold to these principles. In the vote for Prosecuting Attorney the name of A. B. Riford was proposed, but he most decidedly declined, stating that he had been a delegate to the Republican Convention, had helped to nominate that ticket, and now he wanted to support it, and did not see how he could consistently do so and run for office on another ticket at the same time. For Representative from the Second District the names of N. A. Hamilton, T. J. De Puy and J. S. Beers were proposed. Mr. Hamilton being present was asked if he would support a Greenback man for United States Senator if elected: He said that he would vote for Thomas W. Ferry so long as there is a chance for an election, and then for the one who nearest represented him in views. He was then asked if he was in favor of taxing U.S. bonds the same as mortages and other securities. He said that he was not, and gave as his reason that the taxes in many places were equal to and exceeded the interest on the bonds, and to tax them in that way would drive them from the country. Mr. Hamilton requested that his name should not be placed upon the ticket.

A Washington letter says that the retirement of fractional currency has been relatively more rapid in the fourth issue than in any other. The amount retired of each issue during the month, and during the six months ending Oct. 1 has been:

61.50 71.58 $2,869.53 2,313.52 Second..... 843.34 333,984.45 20,770.12 2,181,448.74 Third.... Fifth..... 1,162,484.96

Total $1,496,895.83 $12,746,478.06 Within six months 45.3 per cent. of the latest issue has been redeemed, and only 24.7 per cent. of the fourth, and insignificant proportions of the older issues. The inference is clear that nearly the whole of the older issues, and over 4,000,000 of the fourth issue, have been lost or destroyed; while the retarding percentage of retirement on the fifth issue indicates that the loss on that will be somewhat greater than has been generally supsed—perhaps fully

West Virginia is, as usual, Democratic, but by a reduced majority. The returns received are very meager, but, as far as received, show Republican gains. The Democrats claim the State by 5,000 majority.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 11.—While it is impossible to-night to send the official figures by Congressional districts, sufficient have been received here to make it certain that the Democrats have elected the following Congressmen: Sayler in the First District, McMahon in the Fourth, Rice in the Fifth, Dickey in the Seventh, Ewing in the Twelfth, Southard in Gardner in the Third, Cox in the Sixth, Keifer in the Eighth, Jones in the Ninth, Foster in the Tenth, Nea in the Eleventh, Voorhees in the Fifteenth, Danford in the Sixteenth McKinley in the Seventeenth, Monroe in the Eighteenth, Garfield in the Nineteenth, and Townsend in the Twentietb. ticket voted is a long one, and in most places the count was abandoned until this morning. The returns are very meager, but, as far as received, show Republican gains.

Brooke County gives about its usual Democratic majority of 100. Taylor County, heretofore strongly Democratic, gives 300 Republican majority.

Two townships in Wetzel County show Republican gains. Cameron township, Marshall County, shows a Republican gain of 105 over the vote of 1874.

Three townships in Berkley County give 260 Democratic majority-a Democratic gain of 250.

Mason County, partial returns, indicate 100 to 200 Republican majori-Jefferson County gives about 800 Democratic majority.

Greenbrier gives an increased Democratic majority. Mineral County gives a heavy Democratic majority.

Wood County gives about 250 Democratic majority. No returns have been received from Ohio County yet, but it is supposed to be carried for Goff, Republican.

These reports are from private sources, and the official; returns may entirely change them. The adjacent townships in Ohio show heavy Republican gains.

Ohio and Indiana, "The returns from Ohio and Indi ana come in slowly. There is sufficient data from Ohio, however, to determine the fact that that State has gone Republican. The majority will probably be about 7,000. The Democrats give up the State. There is also, a certain gain to the Republicans of four Congressmen, and possibly five. The district in doubt is that of Stanley Mathews, which will require the official count to determine. A reference to the votes of Ohio during the last four years shows that the Republican party strength in that State remains substantially intact. At the October election in 1872 there was a Republican majority of 12,104, which was increased in November to 34,268. In 1873 there was a Democratic majori ty of 817, which was increased in 1874 to 17,202. But last year Governor Haves was elected by 5,544. There is no consolation for the Tilden Democracy in these figures. They leave nothing to be hoped for in that State by the Democratic party in November. The news from Indiana is very meager. The column of Republican gains increases as the returns come in, and if the rate of increase in the Republican vote as far as returned is maintained victory is assured. The gain in Congressmen is very gratifying. In the present Congress the delegation consists of eight Democrats and five Republicans; the delegationelect stands nine Republican to four Democratic. According to the theory of percentages, much indulged in by Democratic "speculators" in politics, the next National House of Representatives, if we are to judge by Ohio and Indiana, will be nearer one-third than two-thirds Democratic, and exrebel soldiers will not be as plenty as blackberries about the halls of Congress. The country is to be congrat-tory in Indiana. THE LATEST .- Our dispatches at 3 a. m. place the Republican majority in Ohio at 6,000 to 8,000. Twelve of the twenty Congressmen elected are also Republican. In Indiana the election of Congressmen, as above, is confirmed, but nothing can be stated positively as to the State ticket. The latest dispatches say that the vote is so close that it may take the official count to determine the result."-Inter Ocean.

GREENBACKS IN INDIANA.

Mr. Walcott, nominee of the Independent Greenback ticket for Governor of Indiana, withdrew from that ticket in the following letter to the Chairman of the Independent State Central Committee:

WALCOTT, Ind., Oct. 4th, 1876. DEAR SIR :- My most recent observations have confirmed me in the belief that the sacred cause of the people in the work of financial reform cannot at the coming State election be materially advanced. Party prejudices yet have more conby their great sufferings. But very Democratic party, loud and clamor-ous as some of them have been and legitimate business purposes, the curare in professed zeal for the Greenparty is as distinctly and positively, terest to loaning it on long time at the greenbacks as a permanent currency as is the National Republican organization, and the people are left | that ushered in the present year and strength of the party prejudices are is there is an abundance of currency, holding almost the entire masses of without resort to inflation schemes, Hamilton-Republican, 1,587. A friend gives us the result of two publican gain, 86, in the Republican party have most A friend gives us the result of two days—Republican, 70. Democratic earnestly and zealously devoted votes taken on the Canada Southern Independent party as now constituted consists mostly of men who, aside from the financial question, have been, and are, Republican. It is true there are many Democrats in the Independent organization, but the number is comparatively limited. Were those who profess to be Greenback men, both Democrats and Republicans, all true to their professions, it would be the duty of those, engaged in the greenback cause to persevere in their noble work, but when only a division of the Republican party can result from our perseverance, no success can come to our cause, and defeat may result to the Republican party. No Republican can favorable contemplate such a result as a matter of premeditated purpose until the people of both parties have suffered sufficiently to emancipate from thralldom to the old party organization can the greenback cause succeed. The people are not yet disciplined by their adversities. Present success is hopeless, and, therefore, Mr., Chairman, I tender to you, as the repre-

even were active participants in the rebellion, and, as indicated by the course pursued by some of them during the late civil war, it may with truth be said that, in the leadership of the Democratic party, there are as many enemies to the Government as friends. The Southern States, the States that rebelled and invoked the trial of an army conflict, are very largely Democratic. If the Green- tional plank on the Re-monetization back cause can gain nothing, and if of silver and the coinage of the standour efforts may have the effect to turn our Government over to the doubtful friendship of the Democratic party. many of whose leaders yet reek with the crimes of unrepentant treason. reason and duty call upon Greenback men to remodel their organization and start anew, except where existing efforts are fairly and honestly united in by men of both parties, and then the work should go on. The contest of the Governor of the State lies between General Benjamin Harrison and the Hon. James L. Williams. General Harrison was a Union soldier, is a man of tried patriotism, pure character, of splendid intellect and learned in all the lore of statesmanship, a man whom the office would not exalt, but who would dignify the office. Mr. Williams is a man who during the trying ordeal of the war evinced no special patriotism, who indeed stood with his party in Indiana when that party was on the verge of active treason. His qualifications for the high office of Governor of one of the principal States of the nation are generally conceded to be greatly below the requirements of that exalted place. Politically and personally his qualifications compare most unfavorably with those of General Harrison, for whom I shall cast

It appears that a man who called himself Porter took a team from the livery stable of John Judge some 10 days ago, to stump Mason county in the interest of Tilden and Hendricks. Everything went smoothly at first, and as he daily returned to headquarters he brought glowing accounts of the success of his labors in behalf of reform. But Johnnie noticed that the team was running down, and on Monday morning sent word to the gentleman to come down and exchange it for a fresh one. But Porter didn't come, and on calling at his stopping place, it was discovered that he had gone South, having an appointment at French's School-house, as he claimed. But he did'nt stop there; he pushed straight through to Pentwater, and arriving at Mr. Burrington's, about a mile beyond, he left his team, which was pretty thoroughly tired out, and with John Delano's overcoat on his arm started eastward. That was the last that was seen of him, but he is supposed to be still searching for reform. - Pentwater

VEGETINE

VEGETINE Is not a vile, nauseous compound, which simply purgethe bowels, but a safe, pleasant remedy which is sure to purify the blood and thereby restore the health.

VEGETINE VEGETINE

Does not deceive invalids into false hopes by purging and creating a factitious apportite, but assists mature in clearing and purifying the whole system, leading the patient gradually to perfect health. VEGETINE Was looked upon as an experiment for some time by some of our best physicians, but those most incredulous in regard to its merit are now its most ardeat friends and supporters.

VEGETINE instead of being a puffed-up medicine has worked its way up to its present astonishing success by actual meri in curing all diseases of the blood, of whatever nature. YEGETINE

Says a Boston Physician, "has no equal as a blood purifier. Hearing of its many wonderful cures, after all other remedies had failed, I visited the labratory and convinced myself of its genuine merit. It is prepared from barks, roots and herbs, each of which is highly effective, and they are compounded in such a manner as to produce astonishing results." VEGETINE

Is acknowledged and recommended by physicians and spothecaries to be the best purifier and cleanser of the blood yet discovered, and thousands speak is its praise who have been restored to health.

Dear Sir—This is to certify that I have sold at retail 154½ dozen (1852 bottles) of your VMMETINE since April 12, 1870, and can truly say that it has given the best satisfaction of any remedy for the complaints for which it is recommended, that I ever sold. Scarcely a day passes without some of my customers testifying to its merits on themselves or their friends. I am perfectly cognizant of several cases of Scrotlous Tuners being cured by VRGETINE alone in this vicinity.

Berrien Springs Journal.

Will the Hon. Levi Sparks tell us to-night how, after the greenbackers carry their inter-convertible bond, he, Dan Wagner, Doc Roe and the Journal are going to get one of them? Remember, Levi, that the Berrien people can't be made to believe that i bird can be caught by throwing salt on its tail. We have got beyond that.The Goodrich line has cut down the freight on apples to Chicago from here, to fifteen cents, and from Twin Springs to Chicago to twelve and onehalf cents.

[St. Joseph Republican.]

The Hartford Day Spring has changed hands. A man from New York, we believe, is the purchasing party..... The deck hands on the propeller Trusdell, made a strike on Monday, and she was obliged to run short of help that day. A new set of hands was shipped on Tuesday We are pleased and gratified to know that Judge Keightley is making hosts of friends throughout this district, friends who will sustain and elect him, and know they have done an act of justice when they vote for him. Mr. Keightley is a plain matter-of-fact man, free from demagoguery and trickery. We are satisfied that Mr. Keightley will represent this district in Congress, and will work for the best interests of the people, hence we would advise all voters regardless of party feeling, to send him to Congress, and have our interests looked after, something that has been neglected heretofore. [Niles Mirror.] Miss Minerva Earl gathered twenty-two bushels of apples from off one tree this fall. Two years ago she gathered twenty-four bushels from the same tree. It is doubtful if there is another apple tree in the county that bears as much.

[Niles Democrat.] The dwelling of Joseph Morley, in the northern part of the county, was totally destroyed by fire on Monday morning last. The loss is between five and six thousand dollars; no insurance. A trial, quite unusual, came off in this city this week. The parties are west siders, one a man, the other a woman; they got into a quarrel, then to blows, the "lord of creation" got worsted. The manwhipper was arrested and fined a V. LocaIs.

To Shake, or Not to Shake ?

Aye, that is the question. Is it better to quiver from head to foot in the paroxysms of fever and ague, or to banish the atrocious disease by a course of that standard anti-febrile remedy, Hostetter's Bitters. There cannot be much doubt as to the response of the malaria-stricken to this inquiry. From every locality on this continent whose inhabitants are tormented with the shivering plague comes an increasing demand for the only genuine preventive and eradicant of malaria provided by science. The denizens of fever and ague districts well know how utterly nadequated to do more than give a brief espite are the so-called remedies of the faculty. Quinine, arsenic, bismuth—what are these but poisonous palliatives, which cease after a time to produce any beneficial effect whatever, and if persisted in wreak irreparable mischief up in the system? Everywhere they are being abandoned by intelligent persons, and that genuine vegetable specific for intermittent and remittent disease, Hostetter's Bitters, substituted in their place.

"If your State did not have the repu tation of being 'Grasshoppered' every year, I would have had to pay twenty dollars an acre instead of six, and the grasshoppers have done me solid benefit." We heard these exact words from the lips of a farmer from McLean County, Illinois, the other day; a man of experience and observation who has just purcased half a section chand in Fillmore County, on the line on the Burlington &

Missouri River Rangoad company.

There is a great deal of truth bottled up in this confession. Men from Illinois and other States who come to Nebraska and examine for themselves, go away convinced of this fact, that the Grasshopper is by no means as destructive as the Chinc! Bug, they see that the stories they have heard are either wholly false or greatly exaggerated, and they realize that n the young State of Nebraska men can raise bigger crops, and make more money than they can further east, notwithstanding that we do have an occasional Grasshopper to worry us.

The Grasshopper troubles of the past two years have done us no damage of any consequence, and everything goes to prove the truth of what Professor Riley says, which is, that Grasshoppers will, only trouble Nebraska once or twice in a a long series of years, and that year by year the chances of our being troubled will grow less.—Nebraska Exchange.

Indiana and Other State Elections!
Money Lost by Betting can be Speedily Recovered! How to do it! Have you lost money by betting or otherwise on the Indiana or other State elections? Then, we can tell you now how to get it back: Buy a ticket, or tickets, in the Kentucky Cash Distribution Company, of Frankfort, Ky., which, being authorized by Legislature, and managed by ex-Gov. Thos. P. Porter, General manager, and other leading men of the State, is bound to be fairly and honestly conducted. The first grand cash gift is $100,000, with 11,155 other gifts; tickets only $12 It is understood that the sales of tickets have been unparalleled in all parts of the country; that they will probably bring a premium before the date of drawing, on 30th

November next; and that a full drawing is already assured. If you have lost money by the elections, therefore, do not rush off to the Black Hills to retrieve your losses; but invest at once in the Kentucky Cash Distribution Company. If you have any scruples, remember that Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin both approved of just such a "lottery" as the "Kentucky Cash Distribution Company." G. W. Sunday Law in Grand Rapids.

Eighty persons were arrested Monday morning for violating the state Sunday law. Forty were taken up for going to the post office, and twenty for selling milk. Others were for riding out for pleasure and other diversions. The list of these terrible sinners includes three officials, officers of the court, etc. The trials will last all this week. Of course there is the most unbounded astonishment and a great deal of excitement, and it is ighly probable that now some of the leading minds of the state can begin to think up some means of wiping the Connecticut blue law off the state statute books.

A few days ago Mr. Frank Everhart, of Porter, Cass County, "sent -We make a specialty of this class | his two boys, one ten years old and of work, and claim we cannot be beat, | the other younger, to turn his horses into the pasture and drive up the cows. They took the horses to the field and turned them in, turned out the cows and started for home. On the way played horse with the halter, the headstall being buckled about the body of one and the other holding on to the strap and driving him. Before getting home, the one holding the strap tied it to the cow's tail, and the animal becoming frightened started upon a run, throwing down the boy who was fastened in the halter, and dragging him a long distance over various obstructions, crushing in the skull and otherwise bruising and lascerating him in a dreadful manner."- Evening

The total receipts at the Lansing Central Michigan fair were nearly $4,000. The trots in general: In the four minute race there were four entries. The prize was won by the bay mare Kitty, owned by A. A. Nichols of Lansing; time, 4:07. In induced to give it a trial. Enclosed | the free-for-all race there were four competitors, viz : P. L. Daniel's horse Sherwood, the Hon. N. G. Isbell's horse Bay Prince, Mr. Ingall's mare May Miller, and North Hawk, owned by Sutton & Kerr, of Jackson. Sherwood won the first money in 2:51½ 2:51½ and 2:50. In the last baby show there were 11 entries besides three pairs of twins. Walter Hudson took the first prize for single babies.

Carl. Schurz says of Gov. Hayes: 'To charge Governor Haves with Know-nothingism is the greatest absurdity that can be imagined. Everybody knowing him will confirm what I say. As a foreign born citizen, who loves his rights as dearly as enybody, I do not hesitate to declare that if there is any man in the country in whose hands I would consider my rights as safe as in my own, that man is Rutherford B. Hayes. I shall therefore vote to make him President with a feeling of the most absolute safety."-Inter-Ocean.

Among other articles exhibited in the "Centennial" department of the Branch county Fair, were quite a number of old books, dating back, some of them, to 1592 and upwards, a commission signed by Washington; an autograph letter by Thomas Jefferson: a knife and fork used by Chas. Warner, one of the crusaders; the baby cap and baby shirt of Gen. Philip Schuyler, of Revolutionary fame, and a napkin owned by him, with the English arms woven in; a large Bible, when open, about 20 inches square, printed in 1638; several powderhorns, and a sword used in the Revolutionary war; old papers, ladies slippers, dresses, etc., over 100 years old, and many other things, making a large and satisfactory collection in Sometimes we grow tired of the old ways, , And like robins that flit from the nest, . The world seems so shining and source. We think its broad highways the best-So we leave a good-bye with the homestead,

And fly out where gaity sings.
But we feel there's a world full of danger
For poor little unfledged wings.

But one path seems brighter to us than anoth-The path leads homeward to Eather and

The years that come up to meet us, May furrow our brows their care, But thy cannot blot out from our memory The touch of a mother's kiss there; And the Time may reach out his old fingers, And weave in our hair silver thread, Yet he never can mar our first blessing-A father's dear hand on our head.

These sweet thoughts still linger above every other, When we think of the Old Home with Father and Mother,

There are times when the best life seems a sheer failure when the man who has lived in it, his wisdom folly, his genius impotence, his best deeds poor and small; when he wonders why he was suffered to be born; when all the sorrows of the world seem poured upon him; when he stands in populous loneliness, and, though weak can only lean upon himself. In such hours he feels the insufficiency of such life. It is only his cradletime—he counts himself just born; all honors, wealth and fame are but baubles in his baby hand; his deep philosophy but uursery rhymes; yet he feels the immortal fire burning in his heart. Still worse, the consciousness of sin comes over him; he feels that he has insulted himself. All about him seems little, yet clamoring to be great. Then we feel an immortality, through the garish light of day we see a star or two. The soul within us feels her wings, contending to be born, impatient for the sky; and restless with the earthly worm that

To be rich, to be famous! Do these profits a year hence, when other names sound louder than yours, when you lie hidden away under the ground, along with the idle titles engraven on your coffin? But only true love lives after you, follows your memory with secret blessings, or pervades you, and intercedes for you. Non omnis moriar, if dying, I yet live in a tender heart or two; nor am I lost and hopeless, living, if a sainted departed soul still loves and prays for mr. -Thackeray.

folds us in .- [Theodore Parker.

God is not honored by those extravagances of a well meaning piety, which would force upon the faith of the church theories repugnant to her reason. It is with the principle of Inspiration-with its grand general self-assertion - with the noble, the impressive conviction that in opening that Book I enter God's presence chamber, and shall hear, if I lister, for it, the voice from the excellent glory attesting to me Christ, it is with these splendid magnificent thoughts that we, most profitably, as most safely, concern ourselves, casting aside, as impertinent intruders, those human glosses, which are too ften made the attacking weapons of anti-christian strife.—[C. J. Vaughn.

No man can be a Christian without a Christian spirit. It is the condition of the heart that determines whether you are a Christian or not. Being a Christian is not being fault less, it is not being in a state in which you will not stumble or fall; it is being in that state in which you recognize the hatefulness of sin and seek to overcome it. Taking the soil, cultivated as it is, and subduing it, and putting in the right kind of seed and giving it the right tillage, and then wiating patiently for the harvest —that is what makes you of Christ's husbandmen.—[Beecher.

Every natural longing has its atural satisfaction. If we natural thirst, God has created liquids to gratify thirst. If we are susceptible of attachment, there are beings to gratify that love. If we thirst for life and love eternal, it is likely there are an eternal life and an eternal love to satisfy that craving.-[F. W. Robertson.

Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name in kindness, love and mercy, on the heart of thousands you come in contact with year by year; you will never be forgotton. No, your name, your deeds will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind as the stars of heaven. -- [Chalmers.

The teacher who succeeds best is: he who puts his whole soul into his speech, and thus imparts his soul to others in the very process of conveying information to their understandings .- Edwin P. Whipple.

. Good nature is môre agreeable in conversation than wit, and gives a certain air to the countenance which is more amiable than beauty. It shows virtue in its fairest light, takes off in some measure from the deformity of vice, and makes even folly and impertinence supportable.—[Addison.

In vain do they talk of happiness who never subdued an impulse in obedience to principle, He who never encrificed a present to a future good, or a personal to a general one, can speak of happiness only as the blind do of colors.—[Horace Mann.

Friendship is a vase, which, when it is flawed by heat, or violence, or secident, may as well be broken at once—it can never be trusted after. The more graceful and ornamental it was the more clearly do we discern the hopelessness of restoring it to its former state. Coarse stones may be eemented again-precious ones never-Anon.

New paths marked out to Health by that plainest of all books—PLAIN HOME TALK AND MEDICALCOMMON SENSE, which contains nearly 1,000 pages of original matter, as entertaining as a fascinating Comion Sense, which contains nearly 1,000 pages of original matter, as entertaining as a fascinating story. Health and long life made easy for the learned and unlearned. Crammed full of brand—nevy ideas, which are cheering to the sick, and intensely entertaining to those who are fortunate enough to escape disease. It guards the reader against the pitholes of human suffering, and points the way of deliverance to those who are aiready enguiphed. By all means, find out all about it. It is for you. It's author, Dr. E. B. Foors of 1200 Leyngron Attents. already engulphed. By all means, find out all about it. It is for you. It's author, Dr. E. B. Foots, of 120 Lexington Avenue, New York, is consulted by invalids at home and abroad, in person and by letter, and has had the experience of nearly a quarter of a century in the treatment of long standing and difficult diseases of every character; hence his ability to write practical truths for the invalid reader. His consultations are free to the sick everywhere; hence his immense correspondence with the sick all over the globe, You, Readers, Are At Lineary to consult the able author of Plain Home Talk and Medical Common Sense. Write to him and you will be struck with his Common Sense. Whatever your malady, you will receive light which will do you good, by investing only a postage stamp, and writing to Dr. F. We wish to interest you in both the doctor and his immortal book. The Book itself, which gives satisfaction to all who read it, can be had of agents, or of the publishers direct. Plain mustin binding, $3.25, in the English or Germanian panage. Library binding, in English only, $3,75. Sent by mail, postage propaid, on receipt of the price. A lady writes the author: "I have always felt that you were the physician of the world, from the fact of your wonderful success and original ideas." One reader says—"I have found it to be one of the grandest works of the age." Another says—"I would not be without it for tryice its cost." Similar letters reach the author every day. serious sickness and suffering is prevented by their timely use; and every family should have them on hand for their protection and relief, when required. Long experience has proved them to be the safest, surest, and best of all the Pills with which the market abounds. By their occasional use, the blood is purified, the corruptions of the system expelled, obstructions removed, and the whole machinery of life restored to its healthy activity. Internal organs which become clogged and sluggish are cleansed by Ayer's Pills, and stimulated into action. Thus incipient disease is changed into health, the value of which change, when reckoned on the vast multitudes who enjoy it, can hardly be computed. Their sugar coating makes them pleasant to take, and preserves their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, so that they are ever fresh, and perfectly reliable. Although searching, they are mild, and operate without disturbance to the constitution, or diet, or occupation.

without disturbance to the constitution, or diet, or occupation.

Full directions are given on the wrapper to each box, how to use them as a Family Physic, and for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression, a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy. pathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Dr. Price's reputation has been acquired candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with. Pars of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their allment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogation and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. Visits made regularly.

"Who are You, Sir ?"

The following story is told of Colonel Samuel Colt, who, in his lifetime, was sometime inclined to be a little pompous. When he was building dwelling-houses for the workmen employed in his great pistol factory, he one day encountered a boy picking up chips on the grounds:

"What are you doing here?" he said, gruffly. "Picking up chips, sir," replied the younster, evidently unawed by the great presence. "Perhaps," said the Colonel, with dignity, "you don't know who I am. I am Colonel Samuel Colt, and I live in that big house up yonder." The boy straightened up, swelled out and answered. "Perhaps you don't know who I am. I'm Patrick Murphy, and I live in that shanty down yonder," pointing in the direction.

"Sonny," said the Colonel, blandly patting the boy on the head, "go on and pick up all the chips you want, and when you get out, come back for more.'

The other day a man took home a book containing several anecdotes showing the power of imagnation, and after reading them to his wife he tenderly said: "Now, Angecina, you may imagine that you heard me kissing Maudalina in the other room, and you see how wicked it would be to accuse me of such a thing." "Julius John," she replied, in a smooth voice, "if ever I imagine such a thing you'll need a doctor in fifteen minutes, and I'll send for him, no matter what the book says."

A woman halted at the gate of yard on Brush street Thursday evening and asked a girl nine or ten years of age if her mother was at home. "No, marm — she's gone down street." was the reply.

"Is your father in the house?" "No. marm: father's gone down street to bring mother home." "Well, where's your brother William, then ?" "Bill? Oh, he's gone down street

The Waskins Express is responsible for this: "A few Sundays ago we heard a prea her of the Gospel, who holds forth over there in Chemung County, make use of this vigorous comparison: "A hypocritical Christian can no more get to heaven than a raccoon can climb a
