

Berrien Co. Record.

JOHN G. HOLMES, Editor. WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 23, 1876. Eight million children attend the public schools of the United States.

A terrific Cyclone passed over the East Indies, Oct. 31 in which 120,000 persons perished. 50,000 pounds Sterling more of the American Eagles were drawn from the Bank of England, Nov. 1, for the United States.

Two of the gang that attempted to rob the Lincoln monument of its sacred contents have been arrested and will be brought to a speedy trial.

England is manufacturing cartridges for use in that little unpleasantness they are having over on the continent, at the rate of 2,000,000 per week, four times the usual rate.

Three prisoners were received at the State Prison at Jackson, last Thursday. They were Harry Cyclopedia, from Hillsdale, ten years for arson; from Branch, Frank Riggle, burglary and larceny, eight months; and Norman Smith, one year for the same.

One of the indications that better times is close at hand, and that goes to show that our country is entering upon a more prosperous era is that, instead of a continuous draining of the country of coin to supply the deficiency of trade with foreign countries, the balance of trade is now with us and the coin is being shipped to, instead of from, this country.

E. W. KIGHTLEY'S MAJORITY. Judge E. W. Kightley's majority for Representative in Congress, from this District, foots up as follows:

Table showing election results for E. W. Kightley's majority: Van Buren 1080, Kalamazoo 900, Cass 237, Berrien 112, St. Joseph 172, Total 2,501.

THE ELECTION.

The question as to who is to be the next President of the United States is still undecided, but as present the prospect is very favorable for the election of Hayes.

Table showing votes for Hayes and Tilden: Florida 10, Alabama 10, Louisiana 10, South Carolina 10, Georgia 10, Kentucky 10, Maryland 10, Mississippi 10, Missouri 10, North Carolina 10, Tennessee 10, Texas 10, Virginia 10, West Virginia 10.

THE TRIAL OF THE YOUNGER BROTHERS.

The trial of the younger brothers for the murder of Heywood, the heroic Cashier of the Northfield, Minn., Bank, was begun yesterday at Fairbault, and terminated quite suddenly and unexpectedly by the entering of a plea of guilty by each of the three prisoners.

NATIONAL FINANCES.

The debt of the United States on the 31st of August, 1865, stood at $2,756,481,591.43. This was the maximum amount reached since conquering the Rebellion.

George C. Kimball has been appointed receiver for the Chicago and Michigan Lake Shore Railroad. He is at present the general manager of that road.

The Silver Question.

We have given in a previous article, in answer to one of a list of interrogatories submitted by the United States Monetary Commission, our reasons for believing that world-wide disaster would follow the entire abandonment of silver as unlimited legal tender in all the countries of Europe and America.

If the United States should establish the double standard, do you think it would have the effect of confirming France, Italy, Belgium, and the other nations of the Latin Union, Austria, Russia, Holland, Mexico, Asia, and South America, in their present policy of employing silver as an unlimited legal tender?

By the establishment of the double standard is meant, of course, the re-establishment of the silver dollar in our monetary system from which it was displaced by the act of Feb. 12, 1873. Our currency, after the re-emption of specie-payments, would then resemble that of France. Gold and silver would circulate side by side, coined at their relative value of 15 1/2 to 1.

In France, the silver 5-franc piece is the standard, but the two-franc piece circulates together. In this country the silver dollar was the standard, but gold dollars circulated freely. There can be no doubt as to the proper answer to the question quoted above.

The representatives of the nations that compose it—France, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Greece—have even gone so far as to debate the advisability of following Germany in the abandonment of silver legal-tender. Mr. Marien, one of the French delegates proposed this step, and was supported by two delegates from Switzerland. He was outvoted, but succeeded in having the amount of silver to be coined by each State limited in amount, and having the aggregate coinage for 1876 reduced to 110,000,000 francs, or 50,000,000 less than that of 1875.

The school question passed some time ago into a new phase. The Roman Catholic head-centers have ordered a change. The public schools are to be treated as a "great national blessing," and are to be controlled just as fast and just as far as may be practicable.

Dr. Henry B. Baker, the very ingenious and industrious Secretary of the Michigan State Board of Health, has just published a brief monograph upon the death rate of each sex in Michigan, a comparison with Dr. Farr's Life Tables of the healthy districts of England.

On Wednesday, Nov. 15, the commissioner of the State land office offered at public auction about 80,000 acres of State land. It consisted of lands heretofore reserved on state road contracts, of homesteads which had reverted to the State, swamp lands recently patented from the government, lands recently sold by the State as indemnity primary school lands, and a quantity of mineral lands located in the counties of Isle Royale, Keweenaw, Houghton, and Ontonagon.

Thomas Lilley, of Cassopolis, charged with the murder of Charles Kreiger, of Bainbridge, in this county, November 11th, has been admitted to bail by Judge Coolidge in the sum of $7,000, to await trial.

Specie Resumption in 1877.

In those days the question of resumption of specie payment was the great and paramount topic. All the banks suspended specie payments during, and some years after the war of 1812, and the efforts at resumption established the fact of Greeley's proposition "the way to resumo is to resume."

The Detroit boys ran away from home, and without means they worked their way to Philadelphia by blacking boots. They saw the great show, and now fall of its wonders in the same manner as a man does who spent $100 in the trip.

Farm and Household. Sticking Fat Hogs

From boyhood we have been accustomed to stick fat hogs when they were to be slaughtered. We have tried several ways, but we like the following the best of all: Turn the animal on his back, and let one man stand astride of him and hold the fore-legs down firmly against the chest of the hog; the stickler then places one hand on the under jaw of the swine and places it down until the mouth of the animal is closed. Let the jaw be held down firmly. Then with a sharp knife, cut a slit two inches long, about midway between the jaw and the breast bone, in the middle of the throat. Now, aim the knife directly towards the root of his tail, thrust it in to the handle and draw out the blade quickly. When stuck in this manner, we never knew a hog to fail to bleed satisfactorily.

Another way is to let the animal lay on the side and press back the head. If the point of the knife is entered halfway from the jaw to the breast, thrust down along the windpipe straight, the sharp edge will divide the left vena cava. If carried still further before cutting outward, it will pierce the aorta's leading from the heart. Either of these will be a good stick. A little observation while doing the work will enable the operator to learn quickly just the place to touch with an eight-inch blade. Above all things, avoid what is called "shoulder stick," by which the flesh will be discolored and mangled. If the first thrust is not successful, try again immediately. In dressing a hog, a little examination of the vital parts will show you how to use the knife for bleeding.—Practical Farmer.

Burying Apples. Inquiry is made as to the merits of the practice of burying apples to keep during the winter. If the proper conditions are observed, it does well, and in those districts of the country where the present heavy crop is larger than the cellars of the owners, it may be profitably resorted to. The first requisite is to select only good keepers, that usually last through winter. Secondly, choose a very dry place of ground, where there is a natural drainage; and better if under the shelter of evergreen trees. Instead of placing the apples on the bare ground, first lay a thin stratum of stiff dry straw, corn husks, or soft evergreen branches, which will keep the fruit comparatively dry without excluding the warmth from below. On this stratum place the heap of apples, and then cover them with plenty of straw, which will be eight or ten inches thick when packed. Three inches of earth outside of this will protect them from freezing. Turf makes an excellent covering; and six inches of rye straw, instead of straw, will answer an excellent purpose. Apples do not need so much protection as potatoes. There should be a ventilating hole at the top, filled loosely with straw, or the heated air collecting there will make many rotten apples at the apex of the heap.—Country Gentleman.

Tar On Fruit Trees. According to the experience of Mr. Henry Reynolds, of Montgomery county, N. Y., tar is a perfect remedy for scabred and sun cracked apple trees. He says that by coating with new tar the trunk of a favorite fruit-bearing tree that was cracked and so decayed that the bark was dead and would peel off, he has restored it fully. He applies it to all the branches that show signs of decay. Since practicing this cheap remedy, he has not been troubled with insects. By applying tar to the trunk, and clearing away the surface from the roots so as to let the sun down on them, peach trees badly damaged by borers are fully restored. The dirt, and you will have no more trouble with the trees for two years or more. If the tar is applied to young trees, the borers will not trouble them at all. It states that the coating should be applied in the winter, or in the spring, with new tar.

Now is the time for housewives to see to it that there is in store a plentiful supply of kindling wood under cover, so that the fall rains cannot reach it. Those who depend upon wood for fuel have little time enough, if they are not already attended to the matter, to prepare for the winter's cold so fast coming to us. Green and wet wood does not go nearly so far as dry in heating or cooking, and its capacity to use up one's patience is simply wonderful. A stick in time will save him. "Sheltering fuel beneath a snow bank in winter, and under a thunder-cloud at other seasons of the year," is the worst of economy.

STARTING A FIRE IN STILL WEATHER.—All householders have at some time realized the difficulty of lighting a fire in a still, damp morning when the chimney will not draw, and vigorous blowing proves inefficient. This may be remedied by first lighting a few bits of shavings or paper placed upon the top; thus by the heated air forcing itself into the chimney and establishing there an upward current, the room is kept free from the gas or smoke which is so apt to fill the room, and the fire can then be lighted from below with good success.—Prairie Farmer.

A farmer states that he has planted five rows of corn with seed that has been three inches below the top of the ear, rejecting the imperfect grains at the extreme points; then five rows taken from the middle and base of the ear, rejecting the imperfect grains from the butt. The result was that the five rows planted from the middle and the butt of the ear ripened about two weeks and a half before the other rows, and the corn of the former was better and well filled to the end of the cob.
