Sauce For The Goose, Sauce For The Gander.

BY MAJOR WALTER BRISBANE.

As a rule, detectives do not care to relate incidents in which they have figured unsuccessfully, but the followng story illustrates the cleverness with which they often have to deal.

I was in Paris enjoying a few weeks' vacation. Among the acquaintances which I picked up the acquaintances was a certain Francois Dalton, a lawyer.

To say how I became acquainted would be rather puzzling. The proffered cigar, an excĥange of newspapers, or a passing recognition, had ripened under his friendly gaiety into familiarity. I had passed more than one evening at his snug office in the Rue de Ligre where he received his clients. He remarked one evening, with his irrisistible smile: "Ah, monsieur, how would you like scamper across the Continent?" "Well enough," said I, "but my "Do not speak of money. I can offer you a splendid chance to combine business and pleasure." "Indeed! May I ask where and how?" "Twenty miles beyond Buda—on the Danube — at Kisochati, a beautiful

"You will simply take charge of the only son of a wealthy baron, Emil Von Magar," adding, in his bright, bland way: "He is but fifteen, and has been placed in a Paris school; but, alasl disease has developed itself, and the father has determined to recall him. It is important that he should seek the quiet of his native valley."

Another questioning brought out the facts that a liberal sum per week and expenses were to be paid, and that it might require some caution to pass through Austria—for Hungary, where the baron lived, was then under ban. The baron, it seems, was already suspected for complicity in plots, and the son had small discretion of speech. It chimed in well with my inclinations. I desired greatly to see the home of that proud Magar people, of whom Kossuth was so noble an exam-

"Really," thought I, "this is lucky.
I am to be paid for doing the very thing I long for." As it was necessary to have a passport, I, in company with Francois Dalton, visited the school where Emil was

On entering the apartment, from the lawyer's description I at once recognized the lad from among some other forty or fifty youths. There could be no mistaking his sharp features, raven hair and black eyes.

"This is the gentleman, Emil, who has consented to take you home," said

Emil looked into my face with a questioning glance, and then gripping my hand, said, with much outspoken sincerity, that I felt drawn to him at

"Sir, I shall have no fear with you." It was the hearty expression of an unsophisticated mind. Dalton then "He is an American, and he will be kind to you. Remember to obey him

"Then he hates the Austrians! He is one of that nation where all are free; where our grand Kossuth was treated like a prince! This good American shall see how noble people are treated by the despicable tyrants."

"Hush, hush, Emil; you must not talk like this!" Then, turning to me, he said: "The very children of that proud race are filled with the deep

"Not to be wondered at," said I, as I ecalled the accounts which M. Dalton "When I am a man," exclaimed the handsome lad, "I will kill Austrians—they are not fit to live!"

"Emil," I soothingly replied, "my dear boy, repress this feeling, or we never shall reach your home alive." The following day I and my charge started. In due time we reached Vienna. A hundred miles up the Danube and we should be at the Baron's Uneventful days they were. I actually suffered with the emotions of my little friend; I learned to admire his proud spirit, as I watched his flashing eye, whenever he spoke of his beloved country, or when he shrank from the questioning of some distrustful official.

I saw his quivering lip and distended nostril when, after some of the close questions of an Austrian officer, he sank back in his seat, muttering:

"I trust all to the good American." After dinner I stood on the doorstep of my hotel, and was accosted by a police agent, asking me about my "I have never been in Austria be fore," I said; "but in France I have given a gensdarme a couple of francs to take my paper to the bureau of po-"The same may here be done," the | mouth to this day, I confess.

Happy to be rid of the journey, I submitted the document. He hurried off, after comparing the description. After Emil, who was greatly fatigued, retired, I started to the Grand Opera House, and gave myself up to the enjoyment of the splendid music. I presume I had been there a halfhour when a tap on the shoulder called my attention.

"Your passport?" I explained matters, but to no pur-M66 a week in your own town. Terms and $5 me to the hotel, I learned that Portland, Maine. Portland, Maine.

"Well," I thought, "it will be all right. I can explain matters to the Vain hope! After exhausting my eloquence, I was superciliously inform-"Until this passport is found, Herr must remain in prison. In vain I pleaded the unprotected condition of my charge. To prison I must go. Once inside the bars, I felt how often I had been instrumental in sending others there. I was mad as a hornet-mad enough to bite a nail in two. I have often since thought of the proverb, "What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander," but it did not occur to me then. When morning came I found my dander rising very high. I demanded to be brought before the American consul. When we (for the police agent had me still in tow) reached the embassy, I began to feel improved in spirits, as I thought of the American Eagle, the Stars and Stripes, and other inspiring thoughts.

I meant to give our proud bird a chance to soar a little, and strike off in a second the Austrian chains. An emaciated, spindly youth, with eye-glasses, was present, scanning the Herald. The exquisite never "turned a hair" at my entrance. He went on reading, giving an occasional yawn. I ventured a delicate little cough, as a signal that I was anxious to interview one of the tail feathers of the Ameri can eagle. Not a quiver in the attitude of the dandy... I was not accustomed to such impertinence, so I let out a little plain Yankee talk. Down went the newspaper; the gold eye-glasses were directed toward me; a drawling voice informed me that the chief of the embassy was away.

The old Adam in me grew as big as circus-tent. I yelled: "You are placed here by the American Government to afford protection to American subjects—" stolen. "Lord, my good man, I cawn't do nawthing!"

"You were placed here either for use or ornament, you little whipper-snap-per! but you are a dog-gasted failure in either capacity!" The now frightened clerk drawled out again:

"Here, Sam-muel, show this pawson the door!" Out I rushed, followed by the bewildered Austrian. I need not tell of four hours' additional labor, the result of which was my release, however. I was driven to my hotel. My heart was in my mouth when I learned that Emil was not there. I visited every hospital and police station in Vienna. All in vain. My heart bled for the poor Hungarian boy -the gentle lad who was doubtless languishing down deep in an Austrian

A day or two of fruitless labor and anxiety followed, until I was compelled to confess myself beaten-I, a Yankee detective. The poor, trusting youth, with his oft-repeated assurances of faith in the "good American," the heart-broken paron, the distracted Dalton—oh, I was in a pretty pickle.

I telegraphed to M. Dalton:

"Emil is lost! For God's sake, come on at once!" 1 received answer shortly: "M. Dalton gone. Left no address." I cursed my carelessness and flashed o the baron at Kisochati: "Your son has mysteriously disappeared from my charge. Hasten here."

The answer drove me mad almost: "Baron von Magar not known; no such place as Kisochati." Was I in a dream? I could not sleep for thinking of those big, pleading eyes, which seemed to follow me where ever I turned. I grew haggard, and must eventually have fallen into brain fever, had I not been recalled to Paris by a telegram from one of my own agents. Not knowing what else to do, I returned to that magnificent city. The first person I met, while stopping off the train, was Philander Phog, an old icauaintance.

He was amazed at my condition, for I had grown thin, and anxiety was doubtless painted on my face. Philander hurried me to his room, and lashing me fast to a bottle of wine, wanted to know what was up. I gave him the history of my case. "What was the date of your departure from Paris?" "November 17—Wednesday."

"Just a month ago!" he exclaimed. With a bound, he had taken down a newspaper file and was turning over its pages.

Presently, with a guffaw that shook the rafters, he fell back into a chair, shouting between his spells:
"Oh, Lord! oh, Lord! The best detective in America taken in-done

The blood rushed to my face as I angrily demanded an explanation; but it was impossible for him to do or say more. He rolled over the floor and held his sides. I grew mad, as was natural-even madder than when I was superciliously treated by the fop at the American Legation.

I, too, turned to the newspaper. In an instant I saw it all. I had actually smuggled one of the most adroit little thieves and confidence operators out of Paris—right from under the noses of the police agents. I had immortalized myself by chaperoning Clara Richat out of the reach of justice. The police had tracked her, after the most tedious operations, to a certain point. Emil was the very princess of adventuresses—spy, thief, forger and murderer. Her last feat had been to rob the Countess de Blazonis of her iewels. By the connivance of Francois Dalton, she had been admitted into the school as a Hungarian boy. At that point the French detectives lost her. The cordon of French and Flemish agents were dying to know how and where she crossed the frontier, for they had made every point secure.

The proprietor of the school was innocent, and he declared that Emil had been his most docile, his most intelli-

M. Dalton, it had since been ascertained, was the man of reference, the 'fence" who directed her game. It was believed that he had eloped with the dashing queen of the criminals. No wonder, indeed, that Philander ejaculated, "Oh, Lord! oh, Lord!" nor that I beat a hasty retreat from Paris. The story leaves a bad taste in my

"Chinese barbers shave without lather." This reminds us that our old schoolmaster used to lather without shaving. One is said to be as painful an operation as the other.—Boston Sunday Budget. -

"I've made $40 this week," "How?" was asked. "Well, I got $10 for a case, and I borrowed $30." The story is not unlike one told of Henri Muger, pose. The official was obdurate. In must go to the police bureau and account for myself. Going around with me to the hotel, I learned that the parameter of the hotel, I learned t

Why Women Cannot be Masons. In Austin, Nevada, at a Masonic elebration, the following interesting reasons were assigned in regard to the

Women sometimes complains that she is not permitted to enter our lodges and work with the craft in their labors, and learn all there is to learn in the institition. We learn that before the G. A. O. T. U. had finished his work he was in some doubt about creating Eve. The creation of every living and creeping thing had been accomplished, and the G. A. O. T. U. had made Adam (who was the first Mason) and erected for him the finest lodge in the world, and called it Paradise No. 1. He then called all the beasts of the field, and all the fowls of the air to pass before Adam for him to name them, which was a piece of work he

he knew might make trouble if she were allowed to participate, and if he created her beforehand. Adam being very much fatigued with the labors of his task, fell asleep, and when he awoke he found Eve in had to do alone, so that no confusion might thereafter arise from Eve, who the lodge with him. MAdam being Senior Warden, placed Eve as the pillar of beauty in the South, and they received their instructions from the Grand Master in the East, which, when finished, she immediately called the craft from labor to refreshment. Instead of attending to the duties of her office as she ought she left her station, violating her obligation, and let in an expelled Mason, who had no business there, and went around with him, leaving Adam to look after the jewels. The fellow had been expelled from the Grand Lodge, with several others, some time before: but hearing the footsteps of the Grand Master, he suddenly took his leave, telling Eve to make aprons, as she and Adam were not in proper regalia. She went and told Adam, and when the Grand Master returned to the lodge he found that his gavel had been

He called for the Senior and Junior Wardens, who had neglected to guard the door, and found them absent. After searching for some time, he came to where they were hid, and demanded of Adam what he was doing there, instead of occupying his official position. Adam replied that he was waiting for Eve to call the craft from refreshment to labor again, and that the craft were not properly clothed, which they were making provision for. Turning to Eve, he asked her what she had to offer in excuse for her unofficial and unmasonic conduct. She replied that a fellow, passing himself off as a Grand Lecturer, had been giving her instruc-tions, and she thought it would be no harm to learn them. The Grand Master then asked what had become of his gavel. She said she didn't know, unless the fellow had taken it away. Finding that Eve was no longer rust-worthy, and that she had caused Adam to neglect his duty, and let in one whom he had expelled, the Grand Master closed the lodge, and turned them out, set a faithful Tyler to guard the door with a flaming sword. Adam, repenting his folly, went to work like a man and a good Mason, in order to get reinstated again. Not so with Eve, she got angry about it, and commenced raising Cain. Adam, on account of his reformation, was permitted to establish lodges and work in the lower degrees, and while Eve was allowed to join him in the work of charity outside, she was never again to be admitted to assist in the regular work of the craft. Hence the reason why a woman cannot become a Mason.

The Pension Arrears Bill. A correspondent asks with amazement and indignation whether the universal denunciation of the pension arrears swindle means that the country grudges a paltry recompense to the oldiers who left home and family, fronted ghastly death and disease in a thousand forms, induring the agonies of Belle Isle and Andersonville, returned maimed and disabled, their careers arrested, their future lost, and their lives a heavy burden. Was it for this outcry against pensions that the young men of twenty years ago marched away to the field to save the country, which cheered and wept and prayed over their departure? We should not believe that any soldier of the Union could ask such a question, if our correspondent did not declare that he carried a musket and long ago received his pension. If any country ever showed its gratitude to its citizen soldiers, it is this, and the crowning evidence of it was the unwillingness of Congress even to seem to oppose a bill introduced, as it were, in the dark, and pushed through amid all doubt that reasonable and intelligent men could not but entertain. The sole reason that it was not thoroughly searched and exposed was that delay and inquisition would seem to show in difference to the soldiers and their service and suffering. Does our correspondent suppose that the vast sum involved in this payment goes to the soldiers? Or does he doubt that if it were to go to the soldiers there would be any opposition to the payment? No; it is because of the vast system of fraud which is known to have been built upon the claims that there is such general indignation. Every journal which has denounced it has at the same time declared that every honest claim should be paid. Our correspondent will hardly assert that poor men should be taxed to give money to imposters. He thinks that there is a feeling in the country, "outside the sordid statement of the city, which will do justice to the soldiers."

But he is singularly unjust to his fellow-citizens and curiously forgetful of the truth in implying that the cities were cold or stingy to the soldier .-Harper's Weekly.

A Cute Celestial. Recently in Butte, where Chinamen play at fare a good deal, a mild mannered heathen slid into a fare game, and after losing a few dollars, pulled out a little bag of gold dust and laid it on the ace. The ace lost, and the dealer, picking up the package, unfolded it and weighed out the dust, which was $50 worth. He was about to cast the paper aside, when the celestial motioned to it and asked that it might be given back as it had some washing accounts on it. The paper was returned, and next night he was there again, betting $50 in gold dust as before. He put his package carefully on the ace and won. The dealer handed out $50, and the Chinaman shook his head: "What's the matter, John?"

"You payee allee I bet. One hunlled fifty dollar.' The dealer laughed contemptuously, but the heathen, unrolling the package, showed a hundred dollar bill laid in between the double piece of paper which contained the dust. The dealer looked very cheap, but the Chinaman never moved a muscle.

He acted as if it was the regular thing to keep a hundred dollar greenback folded up in his gold dust packages. "Pay it," said the lookout man. "He's got us dead."

The Boy God Made.

"But there was another little incident which I call to mind. Old Bill

New York Times Interview with a Miner.

Nye of Nevada—everybody knows who he was—appointed Sam Clemens and I school committeemen for our district. Well, we had a few Piute young ones and one or two white ones, enough to make a nucleus, as Sam said, so we hired a female teacher. She was considerable on morals, and I suspect Sam had intimated that this branch of their training should not be neglected. It was a pretty barren soil to sow ideas on, but the teacher was as cute as they make 'em, and she was bound to please and perhaps astonish the committeemen. So she goes to work and stands them up like a lot of sticks and practices moral instruction upon them. She always ranged them in exactly the same order, and, like young colts, the youngsters soon learned to know which was their particular stall or standing post. For boy No. 1 she always had one question, 'Who made you?' Of course there was but one answer, and that was God. This was the alpha and omega of that youth's moral acquirements, so to speak. Well, boy No. 2 wasn't any brighter, and so he had his question and answer drilled into him. 'Who was the strongest man?' was the question, and Samson was the answer. Boy No. 3 was the son of a Piute squaw and a white man. He was dull, and his ideas were terribly difficult to cultivate. So I suppose for that reason the school-marm assigned him to say that Job was the most patient man. Well, Sam came down one day to see how things were progressing at school. The teacher stood her three particular pupils up in a row on the side of the log cabin, and, intimating that the committeeman could pull out slowly on the catechism and moral instruction, invited him to steam ahead. Boy No. 1, meantime, had complained of faintness, a sudden feeling no doubt inspired by Sam's awful presence, and the teacher excused him with the recommendation that he go out in the adjoining ten-acre lot and lie down in the grass till he recovered. To boy No. 2 Sam now addressed himself with the leading question, 'Sonny, who made you?' 'Sampson, sir,' was the ready reply. The teacher blushed, and even. Sam was taken aback. Well, my boy, can you tell me who made you? said Sam to boy No. 3. 'Yes, sir, Job.' Why, there must be some little mistake here,' ejaculated Sam in an undertone. Then back to boy No. 2 he went with, 'Are you sure, my little man, that Sampson made you? 'O, yes, sir, because he was a very strong man.' Then to boy No. 3 he put the question, 'Are you quite certain Job made you?' 'Oh, yes,' piped the Pinte cherub, because Job was a very patient man.' 'Why, you little rascals, don't you know God made you?' 'No, sir,' replied the young Piute, greatly alarmed, 'the boy God made is out in the ten-acre lot kicking up his heels and having a bully time." ended Sam's efforts at catechising and almost completely broke him as a school committeeman. But I must be goin', stranger," and a peculiar expression stole over the far western miner's features. The reporter understood it. It meant pecuniary pain, and he reheved it as he shook his acquaintance's hand with a souvenir in the shape of a greenback of a certain denomination which shall here be unmentionable.

Bribing a Boy. In cleaning up a little yesterday after the Christmas rush, a small dealer in toys, papers and confectionery on Gratiot avenue found among his trash what the boys call "a thundering big fire cracker." It had been hiding away since the 4th of July, and the man no sooner found it than he was possessed of a desire to make some one happy. He dared not throw it into his stove, and it seemed a grievous waste to fling it into the alley. He therefore waited, and patience was soon rewarded, just as she always is. A boy came in after a cent's worth of taffy, and he was closely followed by a dog big enough to carry off the front steps of a meeting house. The big fire cracker was exhibited and the case explained, and the party of the second part, in consideration of five sticks of candy, gave the party of the first part leave to attach the cracker to the dog's tail and fire it off. The convince offeral party of the second party of the first part leave to attach the cracker to the dog's tail and fire it off. The convince offeral party of the second party of t and fire it off. The canine offered no serious objections, and things were soon in shape. The boy then led the dog out on the walk, the fuse was ignited, and directly there was an explosion which set the dog to thinking faster that ever before in his life. He wheeled and dashed back into the store, made six or seven circuits of the room and then, embarrassed, confused and anxious to get home and overhaul himself for repairs, he took a jump through one of the doors and left $7 worth of glass on the sidewalk. Some of the crowd sat down to laugh, while others leaned against the wall and yelled haw! haw! haw! at the top of their voices. The fire cracker man was the only one who seemed abstracted .- Detroit Free Press.

Royal Cranks. A writer in the last number of the London Quarterly Review gives some striking instances of extravagance in ancient and in modern times. He says it was not unusual for a wealthy citizen of Thebes to will his estate on condition that it be spent in feasting, and to comply with this condition the legatee had to give more banquets in a month than there were days. The profusion of Sylla's public entertainments may be inferred from the fact that, during several days after one of them, a prodigious quantity of food was thrown into the Tiber. Crassus, when a candidate for the consulship, gave a feast of 10,000 tables to which all the citizens of Rome were invited, and Casar, to celebrate the funeral of a daughter, gave a banquet of 22,000 tables, and the entertainment was repeated. Caligula built for his favorite horse a stable of marble with a trough of ivory and put on its neck a collar of pearls. The set of emeralds and pearls worn by one of his wives was valued at $2,000,000. Nero never traveled with less than a thousand carriages and his mules were shod with silver Five hundred she-asses followed his wife Poppæa in her travels, to supply milk for her bath. Elegabalus rode in chariots of gold inlaid with precious stones. Examples of needless extrava gance in France and Spain during the seventeenth century are scarcely less striking. Madame de Montespan had a house built and fitted up at a cost of nearly 3,000,000 livres, while the Duke of Albugurque had his palace furnished with forty silver ladders and his tables spread with 20,000 dishes o solid gold.

Mr. Hannibal Hamlin will doubtless maintain at Madrid all the traditions of Republican simplicity. A friend who called upon him in Bangor just before his departure, describes him as opening his own front door to his visitors, and as being plainly, even shab-bily dressed—evidently in the same clothes in which he had worked in his garden all day. The very boots of a dandy clerk in a Government office would cost as much as the entire outfit which the American Minister to Spain wore that evening.

Prescribing for a Child by Telephone. A few evenings ago a physician of North Adams, Mass., was called by telephone about 1 o'lock last night. The call came from Briggsville, about two miles away. A child there was suffering with the croup and in a critcal condition. The night was dark and stormy, and the doctor found nothing pleasant in the complation of the rip which he was asked to make. When he was preparing to go into the darkness and rain his mind conceived a better thought, which was immediately followed by acts. He called the Briggsville house in which the little sufferer lay, and requested the parents to bring it to the telephone transmit-tar. This was done. The child cough-ed its croupy cough, and the doctor listened intently to every sound which came from his patient. He prescribed remedy, and one of the members of the family prepared and administered it. The relief was immediate and the recovery rapid. The doctor waited at the telephone until he heard of the favorable results of his prescription,

An Incident of Shiloh. The veteran Colonel Thomas Reyolds, of Madison, was one of the bravest men Wisconsin had in the war. The colonel was under arrest for some trivial matter at the opening of the battle of Shiloh, being major at the time. Without stopping to ask for a release, he seized a shillelah and took command of the regiment after the field officers had been disabled, and fought as gallantly as any man on that bloody field. Grant saw him with his peculiar weapon, and asked, "Who has command of this regiment?" "I have that honor, General." "Where is your sword?" "You have it, General." EDITOR RECORD:-This beautiful Christmas day, when all nature is smiling so lovely, the sun shining warm, with look of April, rather than midwinter. We send our greetings to every friend in old Berrien County. Today thousands of hearts will be made happy by generous hands in goodly Christianity that was established in the birth of Christ has marked the world with lustre and glory, and its teachings has caused wars to cease, and refinement and education, and love and light will consummate in a universal peace on earth, good will to man. And now may peace, and health, and joy be with every reader of the good old Recond that read these lines, and a merry, merry Christmas to all. It would be impossible to tell you how much we love the good old RECond, for it comes from our old Michigan home, full of news to cheer our western home. No one can fully appreciate a home paper until he is removed so far away. Oh, how my thoughts cluster around our old home; for I remember the many old friends that were there years ago. But death has made its tracks there, and made many a vacant home and chair. To every reader of the RECORD, what are our hopes to-day? Are we better than one year ago? Are we trying to do all the good we can, and thus fulfill the purposes of the great Creator in giving us an existence in the world? Kind reader, stop and reflect.

I wish to speak of a personal matter. Last night some near friends met at our house, and had a fine Christmas tree in our parlor. Among the presents was a fine life-size oil painting, a perfect likeness of our daughter Elma who died May 29. It was the present of a near friend, and will be cherished all through life. My wife and I went to church, and when we returned home the form of our lovely daughter stood there in the room. It caused very sad feelings, for it was a perfect surprise. Also, your humble servant received a present of a fine silver headed cane, from my daughters.

A small amount of indignation is finding expression over the discovery that the Michigan Central railroad had recently drawn four carloads of dynamite across the State. The action of the company in the matter is explained by its agents by the statement that they were imposed upon, and did not know the character of the freight that was brought to them for transfer. The jury will have the case left in their hands for decision to-day.

Men Who Wake Journalists.

It has been remarked that very few men who get into journalism start out with such intention. They drift in accidentally, are prompted as they develop capacity. Money, wealthy parents and influence are of no sort of service in getting a young man a place on a newspaper. There is no business that is so entirely independent of all these considerations as this. A wealthy father can easily get his son a location to read law or medicine, or push him forward in almost any rank in life he may select; but he is ntterly powerless to do anything for him in a journalistic way. To be sure he may buy a newspaper, and set him up in that way, but unless there is something in him called "journalistic knack," a natural knowledge of what to write and how to write it, he will be a failure in that line, and all the money and influence of wealthy and perhaps powerful relatives will count for nothing. Some fond parents educate their sons with the special view of making jour-nalists of them; but it is rare that we hear of these young men after a few years. Meanwhile, some youth born among the hills, having nothing more than a common school education, and the knowledge scraped up in a country printing office, will advance to the front rank in the profession. He has the journalistic knack, and forces recognition because he has it. He gets into a good position, not because he has wealthy parents to influence the proprietors of leading newspapers, but because he knows what to write and how to write it. His articles go in because they supply a demand, while perhaps the elaborate essays of a man educated on two continents are cast into the waste basket.

Somebody spoke up at the telegraph office, where this talk was going on, and said, "You underate Mr. Lincoln; he is a man of intellect; a fine lawyer; an excellent debater, and a man of decision of character and firmness of purpose." Record: Buchanan, A Most Remarkable Life. A correspondent at Honesdale, Pa., sends to the Philadelphia Times the remarkable history of George Avery, whose career is equal to that of Hugo's hero, Jean Valjeau. In 1870 Avery, then about twenty-one years of age, was charged with the murder of John Hayes, of Pilea County Pa. Ha was arrested. of Pike County, Pa. He was arrested and an officer detailed to bring him to Mulford. Evidence of the murder was reported to be so conclusive that he could not possibly escape hanging. On their way to Milford the officer imbibed freely of liquor and finally got "blind drunk." Avery secured the keys which unlocked his handcuffs and shackles and took them off, putting them in the bottom of the wagon. He took the reins from the stupidly drunken officer's hands and drove to the nearest hotel, where he arrived with the officer in where he arrived with the officer in charge at a late hour. He put the drunken man in bed, roused him the next morning, got him in the wagon, drove on to Milford, the county seat of Pike County, when after he had put the officer in bed at a hotel he went up to the jail and delivered himself up to the keeper. He was confined there till September, 1870, when he was tried for murder and to the great surprise of every one acquitted. Immediately after he was discharged by the court he was arrested, charged with burglary, convicted and sent to State's Prison for a year and a half. He served his term, reading law during his confinement. When he left the Eastern Penitentiary he returned home, opened a law office, arrested several citizens who had testified against him when he was on trial for burglary, charging them with per-jury, and failing to make out his case was sentenced to pay the costs. He had no money, so he went to to prison again, where he remained till his friends could scrape up enough money to get him out. When finally he became a free man he returned to his old home at Rowlands From that time forward burglaries were numerous in that section but never numerous in that section out never could evidence sufficient to convict Avery be obtained. After a while the young man went to Oil City, Pa., and hung out his shingle as a lawyer. Clients were plenty and fees large. Avery was reaping a golden harvest, when he was convicted of forgery and count to the Western Positiontians at Allo. sent to the Western Penitentiary, at Allegheny City, for four years and eleven months. While there he fell in love with the keeper's daughter, and she pro-posed to assist him to escape, but he refused to leave prison till his time was out. At the end of the term he returned again to Lackawaxen; soon after professed religion, swindled a neighbor out of a $100 and was induced by the neighbor, who enforced his arguments with a shot-gun, to refund the money. He then went to Luzerne County, where he got into difficulty and went to the Eastern Penitentiary again for a short term. Upon being released the last time he

To The Afflicted,

Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney Complaints and Rheumatism than any known remedy. ts continued series of won derful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on rheuma-tism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its emedial effects, and will always cure when curcs are possible.

ing and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams (an Indian remedy), called Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 and 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, Instruments, and Electuaries do more harm than good. Williams' Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for Piles, itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, or Cleveland, says about Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment: "I have used scores of pile cures, but it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave

AN abstract of title is a brief statement of all the conveyances, liens and tax sales of record affecting the title to a lot or tract of land. A set of Abstract Books shows the conveyances on every lot of land in a county, and to be of value must be thoroughly made and MINUTELY ACCURATE. The making of such an abstract is a work requiring the greatest care and patience in searching, and the closest scrutiny of all matters relating to the same.

To successfully conduct this branch of business and enjoy the confidence of the fublic, persons must have large experience, a thorough understanding of the business and a conscientious appreciation of its importance and responsibility, for this is the rest guarantee that their work will be accurate and reliable.

MR. DIX has been prominently and credibly before this community in connection with roal estate matters for more than sixteen years, and MR. WILKINSON has been associated with him seven years. During this time nothing has been spared to make the Berrien County Abstract Office all that an abstract office should be, and the reputation it now enjoys as trustworthy authority in all matters touching realty interests, is sufficient proof of its

Careful buyers no longer accept as satisfactory the "IT"S ALL RIGHT" of the would-be seller, for experience teaches that nothing is easier than to be mistaken, and without an abstract one cannot know what errors have been made, and responsible sellers are equally careful, for one canno safely warrant a title without a knowledge of it

While thanking its patrons for past favors, and soliciting their future orders, the office begs to invite correspondence with owners of lots and farms who have never looked up their titles. Defects readily cured now may be past healing when one wants to sell. All correspondence will receive prompt and courteous attention.

On Saturday last Mr. and Mrs. N. Hamilton were called to Amboy, Ill., by a dispatch announcing the severe illness of their daughter, Mrs. L. T. Eastman, and her two little children, with scarlet fever. Monday morning a dispatch was received from Mr. Hamilton, stating that the youngest child, Maud, had died on Sunday evening, and since then news has been received that the other childs and Mrs. Eastman | church of Latter Day Saints, also holds

INFORMATION reaches the RECORD at the home of Mr. M. A. Thayer, near Edwardsburg, Cass county, and called for his breakfast. After he had eaten he spoke of pay, saying he had no jack-knife, whereupon he went to his gripsack, and taking therefrom a brand new knife, worth about $1.50, handed it to Mr. Thayer, and went his way rejoicing. There is a great probability that that knife was a part of the world's goods belonging to Porter Churchill, of Papers in different towns are publishing lists of new buildings erected in their towns during the year, being careful to mention the additions to all barns, outhouses and such. So far as healthy improvement goes Buchanan has kept well up in the race. Nine new buildings were erected here for manufacturing purposes. Five of these were for new enterprises and gine. four for increasing the facilities of those already established, besides a goodly number of dwelling houses have been erected, but not enough to supply the demand. In several instances two or more families are occupying one house, on account of not being able to secure one each. THE ERA contains an article setting forth the opportunities for developing an extensive water power by damming the river at that place, and proposes a change of the bed of the St. Joseph Valley railroad to run by the river and on the east side of town so as to increase the inducement to improve this power. This will hardly be done on account of the increased distance and the adding of a few more curves in the road, which are now known to be few. and the road being already built and buildings erected where it is. When the business at the Era's prospective dam becomes of sufficient magnitude to warrant the outlay, a spur can be run down there that will answer all purposes and be of less expense to all concerned. CAMP FIRE.-William Parrott Post. G. A. R., will give another intertainment, at Rough's Opera House, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 24, and will make it so entertaining that all will want to attend. The price of admission has been placed at 10 cents, with reserved seats at 15 cents. The folowing is the programme:

1. War Song, by Choir. 2. Select Reading.

3. Speech. 4. Song.

5. Enlisting Recruits.

6. Awkward Squall Drill. 7. Song. 8. Pantomime.

9, Camp Life, Long Roll, &c.

MASK SOCAL.—Buchanan Hose Co. will give a mask social at Rough's Opera House on next Tuesday evening, which ought to be liberally patronized, as the object is to replenish the treasury of the company, which has become low. A prize will be given the best masked person in the hall. Good music will be in attendance. Admission only five cents.

The following officers were enstalled into office in the Odd Fellows Lodge last Friday night: John Huchinson, N. G.; Benj. F. Pinyard, V. G.; Hiram Huchinson, Rec. Sec.; Henry E. Smith, Per. G.; J. D. White, R. S. S.; N. E. Smith, L. S. S.; J. D. White, Trustee for three years; Geo. W. Smith, Rep. to G. L.

A Literary Society will be organized on Wednesday evening. Mr. Jack Woolley took inwardly two ounces of chloroform, Tuesday evening, for the purpose of killing himself. He was discovered in time and brought out of the influence of the drug. The druggist in Buchanan should be careful who they sell chloroform to. Mr. Woolley attempted to take his life once before in the same way. Nimrop.

BRIDGMAN ITEMS.

There was a good attendance, for bad weather, at the ladies' pop-corn social, on the last Friday evening in 1881, at Traver's new hall. Proceeds $3.50, to be applied in purchase of lamps for the new church. Mr. Traver gives the free use of his house for all such doings. The regular meeting of the Ladies' Social was on Friday last, at the house of Mrs. Geo. Bridgman. Ffteen persons present. Next meeting at the residence of Mrs. Geo. W. Bridgman, on the 20th inst.

Our Lodge I. O. G. T. are receiving new members every week. By the efforts of Mrs. Wight, a fine new Mason & Hamlin organ has been placed in the new church. Rev. Mr. Hankinson, M. E. church pastor, was on hand yesterday, notwithstanding threatening weather and ill health, and gave us an eloquent and interesting sermon. The services are held in the Odd Fellows' Hall, which the friends of the church have lately much improved, by fitting up a rostrum, desk and stove.-Mr. G. F Weston, a minister of the Reorganized preaching service in this hall on Tuesday and Saturday evenings. The attendance is increasing, and those who that a few days since a tramp called hear him find no good reason for the prejudice which hinders the Orthodox Christians from showing any favor to the young preacher. Those who are loudest in his condemnation know the money, but was willing to give his least of what he preaches. Where this anti-polygamy branch of the Mormon church is best known, it receives the respect of the community, and its preachers are not excluded from the use of the churches of other denominations. Not so here.

> The week of prayer was observed at Rev. P. B. Parrey's church, by meetings each evening; to be continued this week.

Mr. William A. Whipple died on Saturday morning, of fever, terminating in lung disease. Funeral services at the California school house to-day, by Rev. V. H. Helms.

Sabbath school has been begun anew, with good success, at the new church. OBSERVER.

ACORNS FROM THREE OAKS.

After a brief respite we are again in the mud. The worshipers at the Christian church were startled last Sunday night by the announcement being made that Frank Sawyer, son of our P. M., was in a dying condition, two miles west, on the railroad track, but upon investigation it was found that Frank had lit too sudden when getting off a freight train, and shook up considerably, but is all right at this time. News reached our place last night that Joseph Patridge, a farmer living 31/2 miles north of here, was killed at Buffalo. It was confirmed this morning. He was run over by a switch en-

Johny Stout, a young man well known in this place, died this morning of typho malarial fever, after an illness of two weeks. Johny had a great many friends in this vicinity and his loss will be generally mourned.

Teddy Helenga's oldest son is quite sick with the rheumatic fever. Joseph Wythe having shaved his whiskers off puts on quite a boyish appearance. A good many of his friends failed to recognize him. In last week's items it was intended to say that John Mansfield was successful in his vaccinations. It is generally understood that he is successful in his occupation.

The few days of passable going was greatly improved in this vicinity. Rev. Cole, of Dowagiac, was with us Saturday and Sunday. The Elder is a welcome visitor here. He preached in the German church both nights to good andiences.

H. L. Hess moved his family to New Buffalo this week. He will be missed in our community and has the best wishes of his numerous friends. Case of small pox reported six miles south of here. Mac Shedd contracted the disease while in Chicago a few weeks ago. Mrs. M. H. Baum is quite sick with remitant fever.

FARM NOTES.

The Prarie Farmer says grass and clover can be successfully sown with buckwheat.

LABOR should be the application of a principle, and not merely to follow a blind precepent. THE New York papers denounce the practice of spreading manure on lawns or public parks as endangering health. Why do not our courts change the oath to jurors so as to agree with the general practice? "We will find a ver-dict in favor of the smartest lawyer." For six months of the year the cattle and horses must depend upon hay as their principal supply of food and it is all important that it be saved in the best condition possible.

THE days of routine farming are or ought to be past. The farmer who will succeed now, must not only know how to do things correctly, but he must know why he does things thus and so.

WE HAVE a variety of able professors in our schools, colleges, and universities, but what they all lack now is a profes-sor of common sense. Will not some rich man endow such a professorship? GRASS in a cornfield is the same as a weed. Too many stalks in a hill diminish growth the same as a weed. It comes very near the truth to say that a weed is only a plant out of place.—Ben-

IF you are fattening hogs soak the corn, for it is hard and dry, and swine can't eat much of it. It would pay to construct a box on purpose to soak corn in. Milk turns sour in thunder storms because during their continuance ozone is generated in the atmosphere. Ozone is oxygen in a state of great intensity, and oxygen is the great acidifier throughout nature. The excess of oxygen in the air imparts acidity to the milk by the formation of lactic acid.—Prarie

A NEBRASKA dairyman gives the following advice: "Feed sound food and give clean water to your stock; be perfectly clean in all the operations of producing butter; market it while fresh, and don't wait for a rise, and I will guarantee the value will rise to an average of seventy-five cents per pound, and olcomargarine factories will slip out of existence, and both makers and consumers of butter will be satisfied."

To KULL lice on cattle, a correspondent of the country recommends a mix-ture of one bushel of dry sand and five cet them into a huddle, if you have a large lot, then go on the windward side, and throw it or sprinkle, as best you can, to get it on. One good sprinkling will bill and always a part over the sprinkling will be the spring to the sprinkling will be the spring the sprinkling will be the spring to the sprinkling will be the sprinkling will be the spring that the spring the sprinkling will be the spring that the sprinkling will be springly the spring that the springly sprinkling will be springly the springly sprinkling will be springly sprinkling will be sprinkling will be springly sprinkling will be kill and clean out every one. THE young lady goes to school or college, and if luckily she has a teacher who understands domestic economy, she will learn that albumen dissolves in warm water, but hardens in boiling water. But when she comes to assume the great duties of life, though she has learned that the albumen of meat is the most nutritious part, yet she will herself or permit her d mestics to put her meat for dinner in cold water and bring it slowly to boil, thus dissolving her albumen and losing it. Here is where a professor of common sense is needed. IMPORTANCE OF BREEDING SHEEP .-However much by judicious management we may enable a flock to produce wool under the most favorable circumstances, it is perfectly clear that the natural character of the breed will be a very important agency; management will go far to favor the growth of wool, but it certainly cannot do all we need. Hence the importance of securing sheep which are of a suitable breed, and from which we may be sure to obtain wool of the desired quality and weight. The value of a long-continued and careful breeding is shown as forcibly in the wool as in the general form of the body. These flocks which, for several successsive generations, have maintained one steady and uniform character of wool, pose without duly considering the previous history of the flock from which they may be selected. Many a sheep pos-sesses the external galifications desired —so far as the eye is able to judge—but unless the flock from which it has been obtained has been carefully fed, the buver will probably be disappointed. The value of good wool is a strong inducement for making its growth as abundant and as good as the local circumstances of a farm will allow.

FARMING IN CALIFORNIA.—A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, who has recently been journeying from California to Los Angeles, writes as follows: "Looking from the car across the great agricultural section, the range of the eye is bounded only by the distant mountains, while a broad expanse of waving grain, covering many thousand square miles of level land, lies between. Nowhere else is farming prosecuted on such an extensive and scientific scale, and the quantity of wheat and barley produced each year is something enormous. To the Eastern tourist, the lack of fences, roads, and homes is surprising. For miles and miles on each side of the road nothing but wheat-fields are seen, and the play of light and color upon the standing grain exceeds in beauty the best tints of the most famous artists. On every ranch is seen farming machinery of whose value the Eastern farmer is scarcely yet aware. Gang-plows for preparing the ground, centrifugal sowers for scattering the seed, combined plows and sowers, giant headers for cutting, and costly separators for threshing, combined headers, threshers and sacking wagons—there are the implements which have made large farming possible on the San Joaquin, and which have furnished wonderful results for the amount of capi'al employed." SELLING MILK AND EXHAUSTING LAND -Without going into the exact fig-to show the amount of fertilizing mate. carried off from the land, it will be sumcient to remark in a general way that, while a high price is obtained in selling the milk for what is carried away, a low sum is paid for the enriching substances supplied in the purchased food, and in any special fertilizers added. In other words, the cows convert low-priced material into that which sells at a much higher rate, while a large portion is still retained in the shape of manure from the animals to be applied to the land. A much larger portion of the produce of the land is retained in selling milk, than in raising and selling grain. Harris gives the following figures by way of illustrating these advantages: Five hundred pounds of cheese contains twenty-five pounds of nitrogen and twenty pounds of mineral matter. A cow, to produce it, would eat six tons of hay or its equivalent in grass, which would contain two hundred and forty pounds of nitrogen and eight hundred and ten pounds of mineral matter, a very small portion of which goes off in the cheese, and the rest remains to enrich the land; while a crop of wheat removes five or six times as much. Grain-growing farmers keep up the fertility of their land, and dairy-men can do so much more easily.— Rural New Yorker.

FERTILIZING.—Tillage, in a general sense, denotes such preparation of soil by mechanical means and fertilization, and such general treatment as will insure an improved fertile condition, even after the removal of the crops. This is very much aided by a judicious rotation of that chemical science has pointed out the manner of combining the simple ele-ments of fertility to be most serviceable to the farmer in the use that he may desire to make of the same as a supple-mentary manure; but a question of great importance to all farmers is: whether it is desirable to enter very extensively into the use of this class of fertilizers. It is supposed that the mineral elements applied are the same that exist to some extent in the soil—in fact are a part of the soil, and may, by gradual accumulations, exist to excess, and in such a state of affairs maximum crops might be expected, but in this always the case?

crops requiring a less expenditure of fertilizing material; but there has never yet been discovered any means that would entirely do away with the use of some sort of application to the soil that is continually cropped. Resources for fertility are many and various; including accumulations of the various kinds of the property of the pro manufactured articles that are found in the markets. It is a great convenience

pected; but is this always the case? May not a farm be really mineral sick, so to speak, or, in other words, become by constant application of this forcing kind of manure, as to be partially in-sensible to its direct effects? It is said that an individual by a gradual and constant use of arsenic, will produce such a state of the system as will enable the taking of a dose without fear of any harm, as would at first produce instant death. So too continual use of stimulants by an individual, in time, renders such individual wholly insensible to any stimulating effect, except when taken in large quantities; but there is food that large quantities; but there is food that is natural to the human system, and although the use is continued, if it be in a judicious manner, the body continues healthy and life prolonged. So it seems to be with the soil; a continued use of stimulating or peculiarly forcing commercial fertilizers, while good for a few crops, will, in a little time, lose their efficiency. This will undoubtedly exp'ain why, in some cases, farmers who are been accustomed to use a particular brand of fertilizer because it at first gave such excellent satisfaction, will gave such excellent satisfaction, will abandon it for another, because the results are not so good as formerly, when the cause is not so much a difference in the quality, as it is a continued use, and in that case another brand of different combinations will give, apparently, new energy to the soil. That all such fertilizers serve an excellent purpose, and are excellent helps to the farmer, can not be denied; but the part of wise policy would forbid the too extensive use of the same. It was the saying of a wise farmer who, in answer to the inquiry of the three principal things necessary in in farming, replied: manure, manure,

Girls in the Garden. If there is any one thing more beautiful than another in a garden of flowers, that thing is a beautiful girl with a sunbonnet on her head so wide and capacions that you have got to get right square before her, and pretty near her, to see the glowing cheeks that are sure to be there if she is at all accustomed to garden walks and works. Physically there can be nothing be ter for daughters, and indeed, for many wives, than to take sole charge of small flower garden. The benefits derived from early rising, stiring the soil, snuffing the pure morning air, are freshness and glow of cheek and brightness of the eye, cheerfulness of temper, vigor of mind and purity of heart, consequently she must be more cheerful and lovely as a daughter, and more attractive and confiding as a wife. If you have not the door-yard ground, then get a dozen pots and plant the seeds of flowers to your taste. The care and attention required to rear and train the growing plant occupies the mind, to the exclusion, oftentimes, of senseless novel reading—a senseless waste of time. You listless, pale-faced, fragile thing of a girl, throw off your mock delicacy, put on gloves if you will, but work in the flower garden till your cheeks vie in color with the blush of the rose you caltivate.—Flora.

Terrible Story of an Ohio Girl. An Albany shoe factory has received a diagram of a foot from a trustworthy correspondent at Sandusky, Ohio. The girl placed her bare foot upon a sheet of paper, and a pencil mark was drawn close around the outline. This foot, as shown by the diagram is exactly 17 inches long, $7\frac{3}{5}$ inches wide at the widest part, and could take a No. 26 boot, though a No. 30 would be just the thing. The ball of the foot is 19 inches around instep 18½ inches, and the heel measure 22 inches. The ankle measures 16½ inches. This immense pedal adorns the person of Miss Mary Wells, of Sandusky. Ohio, whose weight is 160 pounds, and she is but seventeen years old. The diagram was sent to the Albany manufacturer as a curiosity, but he says lots of Albany girls can beat it. He brought it up to Troy on Saturday. Barnum tried to get Miss Wells for his exhibition, but found that it would be a losing bargain, as her feet would take up too much tent room.—Troy Times.

All who knew the circumstances said I must die. Finally, my wife induced me to try a bottle of Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" which she had somewhere heard of or seen advertised. Without the slightest faith in it but solely to gratify her, I bought a bottle of a druggist in our village. I used that and two or three bottles more, and—to make a long story story—I am now as healthy a man as there is in the country. Since then I have recommended "Favorite Remedy" to others whom I knew to have suf-tered from Kidney and Liver complaints; and I assure the public that the "Favorite Remedy" has done its work with a similar com pleteness in every single instance, and I trust some other sick and discouraged mortal may hear of it and try the "Favorite Remedy" as I

In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. Aver's Ague Cure thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

HOUSHOLD HELPS.

From the Detroit Free Press Household.] CURE FOR POISON OAK.—Apply zinc salve and mutton tallow to the parts af-

GOOD VINEGAR.—A cheap vinegar consists of twenty-five gallons of warm rain water with four gallons of treacle and one gallon of yeast. Let this ferment freely, and it is then fit for use. Removing Tan and Freckles.—Take a half teaspoonful of flour of sulphur and mix with a cup of milk. Wash the face in it, allowing it to remain all HOMINY GRIDDLE CAKES,—To one pint of warm boiled hominy add a pint of milk or water, and flour enough to make a thin batter; beat two or three eggs, and stir them into the batter with a little walk.

salt. Fry as any other griddle cakes. FRIED POTATOES.—Take cold, boiled potatoes, grate them, make them into flat cakes, and fry them in butter. You may vary these cakes by dipping them in the beaten yolk of an egg and rolling them in bread crumbs, frying them in boiling lard.

boiling lard. BREADED EGGS.—Boil hard and cut in round, thick slices; pepper and salt and dip each in beaten raw egg, then in fine bread crumbs or powdered cracker crumbs and fry in butter, hissing hot. Drain off every drop of grease and serve PLAIN OMELET.—Six eggs, one table-spoonful of flour, one cup of milk, a pinch of salt. Beat the white and yolks separately. Mix the flour, milk and salt, add the yolks, then add beaten whites. Have a buttered spider very hot; put in. Bake in a quick oven five minutes DRIED FRUIT.—To keep dried fruit from becoming wormy, after being prepared, as it should always be before putting away, by scalding, as you put it in sacks scatter amongst it pieces of sassafras black from the root. Tie closely; it will keep years.

SOAP FOR REMOVING GREASE-SPOTS.— Dissolve in a half pint of water half a pound of washing soda, put in two pounds good hard soap, cut in slices, and boil until a mass is formed. Then add a half-ounce each of alcohol, camphor, ether and liquid ammonia, and mold into cakes.

PRUNE Pres.-Take a pound of prune and soak them over night, so that the stones will slip out easily; stew in some water with as many raisins as you wish, and sweeten; use less water than for sauce; when both are soft grate in the rind of two lemons and fill the pie, allowing two crusts.

CODFISH STEWED.—Boil a piece of codfish, but do not overdo it. Pick ont the flesh in flakes, put them in a saucepan with a piece of butter, pepper and salt to taste, some minced parsely and the juice of a lemon, with a dust of cayenne. Put it on the fire till quite hot, and covere. and serve. PREPARED MUSTARD.—Two table-spoonfuls of mustard, one of flour; mix thoroughly while dry. Have a teacure two-thirds full of strong mustard; fi with water, stir the flour and mustard into it and let it boil until as thick as custard; remove from the fire and add a tablespoonful of sugar. Broiled Fresh Fish.—When thoroughly cleaned and dried, split open so that when laid flat the back bone will be in the middle; sprinkle with salt and lay on a buttered gridiron, over a clear fire, with the inside downward until it begins to brown, then turn over. When done, lay on a hot dish and butter plentifully. FISH CAKES.—Cold boiled codfish, either fresh or salt; remove the bones and mince the meat; take two-thirds as a little butter and sufficient beaten eggs or milk to make the whole into a smooth paste, season with pepper, make into cakes about an inch thick; sprinkle them with flour and fry brown in butter.

TO CLEAN GOLD ORNAMENTS.—Dissolve a little sal ammoniac in s, irits of wine, and wash the gold in it; or, try the following method: Mix some jewel-er's rouge with a little salad oil, and with a tooth brush rub the ornament till perfectly clean. Then wash it in warm soap and water with a clean brush, and dry it with wash leather.

BLACK crape, when wet by rain, is almost certain to spot. Lay the crape whether a veil or piece of trimming—on a table, and place a piece of old black silk underneath the stains; then dip a soft camel's-hair brush in blackink, and carefully paint the stains over with it, gently wipe off the super-abundant ink with a piece of silk, and the stains, as the places dry, will disappear.

ORANGE CAKE.—Mix two cups of sugar with the yolks of two eggs, then add the whites beaten to a stiff froth; next, add a large tablespoonful of but-ter, then one cup of milk and flour to make as stiff as cup cake; flavor to taste; bake in jelly pans. Filling: One lemon, two oranges; grate the rinds, add the juice, one cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of corn starch, one cup of water; boil until smooth; cool before putting between cakes. RHUBARB JELLY.—Take some rhubarb wipe it with a clean wet cloth, peel it and cut it into pieces an inch long. To each pound of rhubarb add three-quarters of a pound white sugar. Put it to boil for about ten minutes, or until the juice is well drawn. Strain it into a preserving pan, let it boil quickly until it clings to the spoon, skim it and pour it into jam pots or molds. The quickest way to know if it will set is to drop a little on a plate to cool. CHOCOLATE CARAMELS.—Take a quart of the best New Orleans molasses and boil it until when you drop a little of it in cold water, it becomes brittle; add to this not more than a small handful of carbonate of soda; now, a few minutes before you are to take it off your fire, at the very end of your process, add four ounces of cold chocolate, which you have grated as fine as possible; stir it thoroughly; pour out in thin layers on buttered tins. Never put any flavor in Prehistoric Man. In Yucatan some discoveries have been made of a very interesting character, mainly by Dr. Le Plongeon, the agent of the American Archæological Institute, who has excavated the ruins of Mayapan,

once the capital of Myras, a powerful tribe among the aboriginal inhabitants. The later history of that important town is well known; for, less than a century before the arrival of the Spanish invaders the King of the tribe had been murdered by his nobles, his followers dispersed and the royal city destroyed, so that the objects brought to light by Dr. Le Plongeon's exertions find their place immediately as historical documents. Among other things, portrait sculptures of the unfortunate King have been discovered, which are at once recognized as similar in face and figure to bas reliefs of Chichen Itza, the metropolis of Yucatan, where the Lords Paramount held their Court, and where the King of Myras is represented as doing a sort of homage to the Suzerain. The coincidence seems to point to a period of special artistic development throughout that region, when pictorial or sculptured representations of the affairs of daily life had become somewhat habitual. Further proofs of enlightenment are found in astronomical instruments, such as stone dials of accurate workmanship, which were found still standing on a smooth platform, covered only with a few inches of vegetable mold. Various observations were made in regard to the religious em-blems discovered, but beyond a strong resemblance of some of them to those of Eastern Asia, no extraordinary developments are made. Dr. Le Plongeon's accounts show a remarkable and interesting continuity of language, family names, and even of habits, between the ancient inhabitants of Yucatan and their modern descendants. It has been well said that all archeological discovery originates in the endeavor to investigate traditions, which survive after brick and stone have crumbled to dust; and it is very probable that further acquaintance with the friendly and civilized and natives may furnish clues to discoveries of great importance.—New York Star.
