Driving up the main street, which was far finer than I expected. I reached the establishment of my cousin Jack, be-handsome pony was pawing and prancing. "Ten to one," I said, "that is a adjusted my hat carefully. The mo-ment I entered the door, Jack uttered an exclamation of delight, and greeted me in a very affectionate manner; but he didn't budge from behind the coun-some Berlin wool. Turning to the light to better distinguish the color, she was immediately under my gaze;

and though by this time Jack had sprung across the counter and deluged me with questions about all at home, I could get no words to reply. Coming as I did from the very center of civili-

"A LAUGH IS WORTH A HUNDRED GROANS."

BY JOSEPHINE POLLARD.

Whose kindly smile and words of cheer

We often meet upon the street

Bid gloomy shadows disappear.

Nor yet perform an actor's part,

He does not show the marks of woe.

To keep us distant from his heart.

When he is near we have no fear,

Or thought, that he is insincere,

So frank and cordial are his ways.

And says, in bright electric tones:

We turn away to bid "Good-day"

To one who comes in sad array, With lengthened visage, and the air

That Sorrow's children always wear.

There is no mirth around his hearth,

His touch is cold as churchyard mold.

Without a word his griess are told;

And adds not to the joys of earth,

And fails to comprehend the jokes

Of merry, laughter-loving folks.

And few are anxious to attend

Who thus in sombre livery go,

And ever stubbornly endure

His steps, or own him as a triend.

Life's sunny glow they never know

The ills a hearty laugh might cure.

More blest are they-the glad and gay-

Who see the light through every cloud.

The heart must bear its weight of care,

And of life's troubles have a share.

Of what avail these mournful moans:

"A laugh is worth a hundred grouns!"

The Victim of a Prejudice.

BY MRS. FRANK MC'CARTHY.

The other night, at the christening of my cousin's third baby, somebody asked this conundrum: "Why do our people resemble the Rothschilds?"

family," was the happy reply. I didn't join in the laugh which followed, but there were plenty there that did. You night search the world over and not find a jollier, lighter-hearted community than ours; and the very business we follow gives us a superiority over the generality of our fellow creatures.

We can afford to snap our fingers at the grim array of melancholy superstitions and fancies that have been handed down from one weak generation to another. What other people avoid and tremble at, we make part and parcel of our existence; and though familiarity breeds no contempt, it certainly engenders a hardy philosophy.

and makes us proof against weak misgivings and forebodings. We marry our cousins because they have been brought up to look upon the business as an heirloom; to foster, adorn, extend it; lend the resources of their minds to its neatness and success. When cousin Sue was studying over her fluting invention, a more beautiful, rosy, fresh, dimpled, lively creature it would be hard to find; yet she spent the most of her time in the ware-rooms. She had to be there to study the effect. She didn't mind it; it was difficult to keep her away. And there was Aunt Cynthia; why, she'd take the greatest interest in any new style that was agreed upon, and come down herself in the early part of the day to criticise and give her opinion. It never seemed to interfere with her appetite, or digestion, or recreation. Of course these were in the family; and where I did foolishly was to fall in love out of the family. To confess the truth, I was so humored, and praised, and petted, and befooled, that none of my own people seemed good enough for me. I was decidedly a handsome boy, and of a style of comeliness that was just the thing for our line of trade. As long back as I can remember, the folks were always praising the clear pallor of my complexion, my large dark melancholy eyes, and a certain sympathetic ex-pression that was in its way invalua-ble. I grew tall and shapely; my manner, of course, was modelled from those of our best and most successful people; my voice was naturally excellent, and the deep chest tones were cultivated to a rare degree of perfection. Never once dreaming of striking out a new path for myself, or questioning the wisdom of my forefathers in selecting their branch of trade, I, on the contrary, was proud of the partnership offered me by my father, and in a short time the big traffic known as Clay &

Son, owed its greatest success to the son. At twenty-five I considered that able young fellow, and in our circle had the world at his feet. Ah! had he been content to linger therein, thesemelancholy memoirs would never have been written, for I have jotted down this brief but bitter experience so that a fellow-mortal in a like position to mine may profit by it, and not venture beyond the safe and salutary precincts

At twenty-five, as I said before, I had conquered my part of the world, and longed for a fresh field of endeavor. Some relations of ours had settled out in Colorado, and had long been anxious to see me on a visit that would combine business and pleasure. I arranged everything so that I could leave my father with very little to do, and on just such a bright and beautiful morning as this I took passage for the West. The journey was begun in a sentimental frame of mind. Upon going down to the ware-rooms to leave some final orders, I found cousin Sue superintending the handling of her new invention. I remember perfectly well even how she was dressed. Of course

I notice these things more than the generality of men. A shot silk and wool combining the colors of old gold and dusty green set off her beautiful complexion to advantage, and when I came in, the crimson deepened in her cheek; her big black eyes softened, and fixed themselves upon mine in a pleading way that I wonder I could have resisted. A triangular bit of India muslin trimmed with deep Valenciennes was tied loose about her pretty throat, and the saucy way that girls had of wearing those Gainsborough hats with ong sweeping ostrich plumes, was particularly becoming to cousin Sue. I

The Fortune-Hunter.

The butchers in Washington Market were greatly exercised to-day about the persence of a live cow on exhibition in their midst with six legs and a vertebrate as crooked as the branch of a sour apple tree. She was brought by a man named Charles Andres all the way from Colorado, where she was picked out of a herd of cattle grazing on the plains, but the herd was in complete ignorance that any one of its number carried six legs. The cow in question, which was exhibited in a shed in the rear of West Washington Market, was of average size, and covered with a suit of somewhat rough brown hair. The forehead and breast were white, and the horns curved forward in crescent shape, Her keeper said her age was six years, that she was gentle, and recognized him whenever he placed his hand upon her. She stood on four legs like any other cow. and the two extra legs growing out of the top of the shoulder-blade, dropping on either side, and in shape were exactly like a pair of hind legs. The leg on the right side terminating in an elongated hoof, measured twenty-six inches, and was at least twenty inches from the ground. The leg on the left side measured sixteen inches, and was about thirty inches from the ground and evidently undeveloped. Leading from the tail of the cow toward the head, the spine assumed a zigzag line, and the buttocks were widely separat ed while the hips were unusually prominent. She eats bran and hay like any other cow, and drinks a pai of water a day. She has fine bright eyes, and the white hair curling over her forehead gives her quite a fashionable appearance.

Lynching is not so popular in Ottawa county, Mich., as in many parts of the West. Seven men led a mob into the jail, last summer, for the purpose of hanging a murderer. The Sheriff's wife locked them in, thus frustrating their design; and now they have been fined $100 each, on pleading guilty to charge of assault. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Earl of Inof the persons confined in Irish jails under the provision of the act for the protection of person and property. Four hundred and sixty-three persons are now confined, being an increase of 109 during last month. Several prisoners have been recently released. "I'm sorry I haven't anything less than a silver dollar," said a Boston man to a beggar who asked for ten cents to relieve his famishing stomach. "Oh, never mind," said the beggar, "I can change it," and taking out a handful of silver handed over the ninety cents. A fanciful story comes from Akron,

A rich copper mine has been re-discovered in the vicinity of Tucson, Arizona, within a few weeks. Nearly fifteen years ago it was first found, but the men who located the claim were driven from the mountains by hunger, and neglected to take accurate bearings of the spot. Since then four or five prolonged attempts to find the rich deposit have failed.

Nine months of hard and ingenious labor by Johnny Sansome, a convict in the prison at Folsom, Cal., enabled him to escape. By thrusting a wire down between the granite blocks in the floor of his cell, he discovered a cavity underneath, which was an abandoned sewer. With a chisel which he smuggled in from the work shop, and a heavy piece of wood, he broke one of the stones. This required a month, because he could only strike a blow when the door was closed, or some other noise was made to hide it, and he frequently set up all night without being able to strike more than once or twice. In the daytime he was in the shop. After removing the half square of granite, he dug slowly down through three feet of stone and cement, first boring a hole, and afterwards letting the chips fall through it. At the end of three months he got into the sewer. It was plugged with stone and cement ten feet thick at its former outlet. The remaining six months was spent in digging through this obstruction. He worked at night, and naked leaving his clothes so arranged in bed that the guard supposed he was in them. Foul gas in the sewer nearly suffocated him, loss of sleep made him ill, and his weight fell off twenty-five pounds. But he got out at last. Within three hours an officer recognized him, and he was again a prisoner.

Canine Fidelity.

During the 'last cold snap Mr. Paul Thomson of West Hartford with his men were engaged in cutting ice on Mallory's pond, a mile and a half distant from home, and at the close of work for the day the tools were left on the ice and all returned home. Mr. Thomson has a fine Newfoundland dog, who, seeing the tools left, remained behind to watch, refusing to leave even when some neighbors went to the pond in the evening to induce him to go home. He remained faithful at his post until the men returned in the morning. Many places on the ice were found marked by hur from the faithful animal's side where he had lain down and became frozen to the ice .-Hartford Courant.

The Gentleman Back of the Door. At Navajo Springs, N. M., a saloon-keeper named O'Neill got into a quarrel with a man named White, in his bar-room, no one being present. The dispute becoming hot, O'Neill drew his pistol and shot White through the beart, killing him instantly. O'Neill then stood the body up in a corner of the saloon and went behind the bar. The room became filled with men in a short time, drinking, and one of them, noticing the stiff figure in the corner, asked what it was. "That's a dead man," said O'Neill. "Who killed him?" was the question of the startled revelers. "Oh, he got into a fight here a while ago," carelessly answered O'Neill, "and a fellow shot him and skipped out. The explanation was satisfactory, and the monte and poker went on.

Abstract of Titles.

N abstract of title is a brief statement of all the conveyances, liens and tax sales of record af-ting the title to a lot or tract of land. A set of Abstract Books shows the conveyances on every lot of land in a county, and to be of value must be thoroughly made and MINUTELY ACCURATE. The making of such an abstract is a work requiring the greatest care and patience in searching, and the closest scrutiny of all matters relating to the

It always seemed to me a part of the pretty speech to accompany it with a pressure of the hand, if one was intimate enough to venture upon the familiarity; and surely the relationship between Sue and myself warranted this little tenderness. Would to Heaven it had culminated there and then in an engagement! I told Sue I never saw her looking so beautiful, and keeping her hand in mine, drew her to a corner "Oh, Mort," she said, "I do so hate to "I'll be back soon," I replied, "and say; "he'll never let you have her in the world. In truth the place was hedged in with rare and wonderful felicity. Time and money and thought had been expended in shielding it from the bleak side of nature, in adorning it, and coaxing it to a lengthy bloom. Flowers and fountains, conservatories, artificial ponds and grottoes, statues, and Heaven knows what, lined every side of it. "Isn't it a paradise!" There were only the two of them—the old man and his lovely daughter. Florence had always a smile for me, and what was far bet-ter, a blush. When her eyelashes drooped, and that sudden bloom dyed her cheek, and she turned her face aside, leaving her hand perhaps in mine, I was always on the point of falling at her feet and begging her to finish this agony of suspense, and make our lives a heaven meet for the paradise in which we strayed. And I was a fair and fitting match for her-young, handsome, rich; yes, I could match the

The landscape about me was raw and Their velocity varies from 20 to 40 miles per hour, so that either stormcenters or cold waves travel from the mountains to the sea in from two to five days, then passing off upon the ocean, frequently taking a northeastery direction after reaching the coast. Sometimes a storm may be deflected from its course or spend its force midway, or increase in severity, as it moves eastward. It is these possibilities, together with the varying velocity of the wave, which render us dependent on the telegraph for its record of daily or even hourly progress, and which sometimes contradict the best founded predictions. But with all these possibilities of error, 80 to 90 per cent of the predictions are verified and upon perhaps 75 per cent. our reliance may be almost perfect. At times, either on land or sea, a single warning may save property to an amount greater than the whole annual expense of the bureau, to say nothing of life and comfort. Our weather then, in general terms, comes from the west, and when we read in the papers that "an area of low pressure with heavy rain and severe gales is developing in the upper Mississippi, or upper lake region," the farmer had better not begin his haying or his harvesting, and the traveler had better not set out by way of the lakes or the ocean, until it has passed by. While if in the fall or winter you read that "an area of high pressure with violent winds and rapidly falling temperature is prevailing the same regions, the farmer had better look to his young stock, and make all snug about cellar and barn, and the traveler will do well to take along his

It was telegraphed over the country a few days since that Mrs. Garfield had written to President Arthur, asking him to reprieve Guiteau, the murderer of her husband. A correspondent of the New York Herald called upon the lady and asked her if there was any truth in the report, when she answered, "There is not a word of truth in it. Drunkenness in the New York Legislature will not be so popular as it was before the disaster at Spuyten Duyvil. It takes an expensive experiment to teach the people that the dignity of legislative office should be above common drunken rowdyism, and to elect accordingly, and the newspaper criticisms now being directed at the present members, may have the effect to instill a bit of caution into Burning Oil.

BRADFORD, Pa., Feb. 12.—A spark from a locomotive on the Buffalo, New York and Philadelphia railroad this evening set fire to little pools of oil in the lowlands near Olean, N. Y., where the United Pipe Line have a number of large iron tanks located. A few moments after the pools were set on fire the flames were communicated to three iron tanks containing in all 105,-000 barrels of oil, which are now in flames. Pipe Line men from all sections of the oil region have been summoned by wire to the scene of the fire. Superintendents Snow and Smedley, with a large force of men, left Bradford by a special fast-running train. They took picks, shovels, cannon, and chemical fire extinguishers. Embankments will be formed to prevent the spread of the boiling oil when the overflow occurs, which will be two or three Olean creek runs near the scene of the fire, and there are great fears that the oil will strike the surface of the stream, float down, and destroy a number of railroad bridges, and houses near the banks of the creek. The oil will be drawn off as rapidly as possible by perforating tanks with cannon balls. The night is bright as day for several miles about the tanks. What the result will be cannot now be conjectured. Later.—Danger all past. 105,000 barrels of oil burned.

court martial in the army, and notwithstanding the punishment was just, the terrible memory of the tragedy weighed upon my mind for many days and nights. I thought then I should not want to see another execution during the rest of my natural life. But I want to see Guiteau hung from the same instinct that would prompt me to throw a brick at a rat that chanced to cross my path. If the sight should possibly betray me into any momentary feeling of pity or sympathy I, think I could easily banish it by letting my mind revert back to the picture of General Garfield as I saw him lying wounded and bleeding on the depot floor, or, to those weary days of pain and suffering that followed; or to the forlorn hope journey to Elberon, and the bringing back of his mortal remains to lie in state, under the dome of the grand old capitol which had so often echoed with his masterly eloquence; or the long and solemn funeral train, like an army of mourning, marching in silent tread out to the lonely grave by the somber shores of Lake Erie; and lastly, to a bereaved family and a Nation bowed with sorrow-any pity I might have for the wretch on the scaffold, I say, would be banished in a moment by recalling these awful consequences of his terrible crime. His ugly, sinister, wicked face, however, forbids sympathy. Man was created in the image of his maker, we are told. If so, Guiteau was the handiwork of satan. He looks the devil incarnate his acts show him to be. And the worst trait in his character is his craven cowardice. His brave and defiant talk only comes from his mouth, for he has the heart of a chicken. It is a part he has acted to support the plea of insanity. When the fatal hour comes I shall miss my guess if it will not be found necessary to carry him to the scaffold."

Anti-Polygamy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.-Mr. Willetts, Chairman of the Sub-committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the Shallenbarger bill for the suppression of polygamy in Utah, and who reported the bill to the full committee with some amendments, states that the full committee has determined to report the bill favorably to the House without any modifications whatever. This conclusion has been arrived at as the result of Cannon's extraordinary defense of polygamy before the committee last Wednesday, which caused a reaction in the minds of those hitherto disposed to go slowly in the matter. It is also stated in connection with Mr. Cannon's recent denials in the Washington press of an intention on his part to assail the personal record of members of Congress prominent in opposition to polygamy, that one of the members who has been thus prominent has in his possession and intends to read on the first occasion, in open session, an affidavit of the polygamous wife of a prominent Mormon elder that she has repeatedly heard George Q. Cannon, in his sermons in the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City, declare that every member of Congress had from one to three mistresses.

The McGibney family, who several years ago gave concerts here and through this part of the country, are now in trouble in New York City from the interference of the "Society for the prevention of cruelty to children." One of the young McGibneys, who is yet in short dresses, beats the drum in the family band, and the society call it a barbarous proceeding at which common decency revolts. The Herald devotes a column to the affair under the caption of "The McGibney Horror," and ridicules the meddlesome interference of the society who have taken the matter up.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

Probably the best investment ever made by the State in any State document, was when the Commissioner of Immigration issued his pamphlet on Michigan and its resources. A terraced platform in the rear of the stage at Power's opera house at Grand Rapids fell the evening of Feb. 10, during the presentation of the "Allegory of the great republic." About 300 children were on it at the time, and all went down, but happily the carpet spread over it was whole, and the little ones went down in a lump without coming in contact with the broken timbers. There were several sprained ankles and bruised bodies, but only one suffered from broken bones, a boy aged 13, named John Withers, having a leg broken. Had it not been for the carpet many would have been killed. A spark from the engine drawing the Grand Rapids express on its west bound trip, Wednesday night last, lit on the seat of a tramp's pantaloons, said tramp having stationed himself on the front end of a baggage car for the purpose of stealing a ride. When they took him off at Holly to quench the fire, the seat of his breeches was gone, the flesh blistered, and his coattail smoking like a dish of hot potatoes. He is now the occupant of the anxious seat. Strange what dry fellows those tramps are.—Ovid Union. For the benefit of the superstitious it may be said that some five weeks ago David Aldrich dreamed that Spencer King had been foully dealt with, and saw him distinctly in his dreams. He came down and related his dream to a crowd at the corner of Fletcher's store and inquired where "Spencer" was. Several people will vouch for the above, and now the body has been found drowned in the river. Can any one account for the circumstance? Mr. A. is not superstitious, but says the impressions received from the dream have followed him up to the time of finding the body.—Battle Creek Journal. Wm. Bilsborrow of Antwerp, near Paw Paw, attempted suicide Tuesday. On returning home a few days ago he found that his wife had departed for parts unknown, since which time he has appeared despondent. It seems that they had had some difficulty. He was a well-to-do farmer, about forty rears old, but was not possessed of a well balanced mind. Some of his friends staid with him Monday evening. About 4 o'clock Tuesday morning he got up, and after starting a fire went to the barn. Not returning as soon as he ought the friends went in search and found him in the barn in an insensible condition. He had taken a razor with which he had fearfully slashed both sides of his neck, missing, however, the large arteries and veins, Truman Boldray left his team unhitched in the street in Jackson, Feb 8, while he stepped into a store a moment. A train of cars passing by frightened the team, which ran at the height of its speed up street, and ran into the carriage of C. Raymond, of Sandstone, in which he and his wife were seated. Both were injured, Mrs. R. seriously. The buggy was smashed to kindling wood, and one of Mr. Boldray's horses badly injured. Boldray was arrested and fined $5 for leaving his team unhitched.

Tuesday evening a curious accident happened in the house of Horace Maxam. While enjoying themselves, a loaded musket suspended overhead fell, striking a boy on the head, cutting a gash. After striking the boy the hammer struck the bed-rail, and the contents discharged, many of the shot lodging in Mrs. Maxam's legs just above the ankle, some striking the floor rebounded, inflicting slight wounds in the face of a young man present.-Marcellus News. Cassopolis, Feb. 13.—Last Saturday a young man, John Buell, employed at the Cass house in this village, for the past month, entered the room of the proprietor, Mr. Freemyer, who was asleep, took about $6 in silver and the office drawer key from his pocket, went to a bureau in which was $250, and took that, and skipped for Chicago, Mr. Freemyer, discovering his loss, notified Sheriff Jones, who detailed deputy sheriff Stamp. Yesterday afternoon Stamp found Buell in Chicago, where he had been having a jolly time among the soiled doves at Freemver's expense. When arrested he had only $25 of the money left. He had left $40 with his father for safe keeping. who lives at Walkerton, Ind., bought an overcoat, and other articles of clothing. He was returned here this morning, had a hearing before Justice Glover, and was bound over to the March term of the circuit court. This is the third time in less than a year that Mr. Freemyer has lost money. During the regatta about $70 was taken from the office drawer.

In the Parthenon.

Col. John M. Francis tells the following incident of the historian Bancroft's visit to Athens in 1872, while the former was Minister to Greece and the latter Minister to Berlin. Mr. Francis went with him to the Acropolis by moonlight 'Standing in the Parthenon, on the spot where the statue of Minerva in ivory and gold once had its location, but where only the platform now remains. Mr. Bancroft, with uncovered head and eyes slightly raised, repeated with spontaneous inspiration a magnificent passage from Homer. The scene was impressive; the moonlight flooding those ancient ruins and gilding the figure of that snowy-headed pilgrim from our occidental shores, august with official honors, past and present, of a great repub lic, but more august as a citizen of high rank in the imperishable republic of letters. Whole centuries of high achievement and aspiration and progress, the stately march of thought and culture and genius through the ages and afar over the broad seas seemed epitomized in that one exalted moment."

French Remedy for Stuttering. M. Chevin of Paris appears to have been very successful in his new system of treatment for stuttering. This system is divided into three stages. The first involves various respiratory exercises, during which the patient is first taught to make a long, full inspiration, the respiratory movements being then made with various rhythms until they become full, regular and easy, instead of jerky, laboring and fatiguing. In the second stage of treatment exercises with vowel sounds are substituted for the previous mute breathings, giving to each vowel the various modifications of tone, pitch, duration, etc., heard in conversation. The third stage comprises exercises on consonants alone, and in combination with vowels, at first slowly, then rapidly, varying the duration and pitch of cach syllable. Making Paint of Mummies.

A gentleman, passing through Long Acre, peeped into a little shop and started suddenly at the sight of several dead bodies. They had been dead for over 2,000 years—they were mummies Where did they come from? From Thebes. Are more coming? Yes; plenty. There appears to be a regular business going on in mummies between Thebes and Long Acre. The mummics are brought over enveloped in their rich bituminous covering, and—horresco referens—ground up, bones, cases, coverings, bitumen and all. What for? Why, for paint. There seems to be no burnt sienna like ground mummy. The artists are willing to pay high prices for this mummy paint. Our Academy walls may be limned with the dust of the Ptolemies.—London Truth.

The Future of the Telephone. It may be a long time before tele-phoning is brought to such perfection, but the world moves. Our grandfathers would have scouted the idea that we should ever read in our New York afternoon daily journals the same day's news from all parts of the Old World, flashed under the ocean through the cable. Who shall say that our great-grandchildren may not see the time when the American modistes will be inquiring from their Canton correspondents through the telephone, the latest fashion in Chinese pigtails, and when the President of the United States, at Washingon, will be enjoying a morning chat ith his dear brother of all the Russias, it Constantinople?-New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Reminiscence of 1783. The first American flag that was ever displayed in Great Britain waved from the mast of the ship Bedford, Capt. Moore's, of Nantucket. She arrived at the Downs on Feb. 3, 1783, and reported at the custom-house on the 5th. A London journal of 1783 states that "she was not allowed regular entry until a consultation had taken place between the Commissioners of Customs and the Lords of Council, on account of the several acts of Parliament yet in force against the rebels in America. She is loaded with 487 butts of whale oil, is American built, manned wholly by American seamen, wears the rebel colors, and belongs to the island of Nantucket in Massachusetts. This is the first ves-sel to display the thirteen rebellious stripes in any British port. The vesse himself upon the head. The attending return to New England."

The French Republic. France is the most prosperous country of Europe. Its agricultural industries are large and the people are industrious and economical. The debt is owned at home and the people don't want it paid, because they believe more firmly to their own Government than in outside powers. The French republic will be per manent. The death of the Prince Imperial was a great blow to the Bonapartist faction, but the three monarchical parties together are not formidable against the republic. The Republican party can hardly be defeated unless by serious divisions among the leaders, which are not to be feared. The days of coup d'etats in France are past, Jenkins came to New York from a suburban city, and, going to a first-rate restaurant, had a broiled porterhoues beefsteak which was cooked by a wellpaid man who had a fine fire. He paid 75 cents for it, and went away satisfied and happy, saying that after all it is nonsense for a woman to think that she cannot cook a beersteak in the right style. Then he got out of the train at his station that evening he thought he would have another fine, tender, juicy and rich beefsteak, and, as he was used to doing the marketing, he went into the butcher store, bought a thin piece of boof from the round for 20 cents. Largest Land-Owner on the Continen. Col. Dan Murphy, of Halleck's Station, Elko county, came to California in 1844, and may be said to have made the country pay him well for his time. He is now probably the largest private land-owner on this continent. He has 4,000,000 acres of land in one body in Mexico, 60,000 in Nevada, and 23,000 in California. His Mexican grant he bought four years ago for $200,000, or 5 cents an acre. It is sixty miles long, and covers a beautiful country of hill and valley, pine timber and meadow land. It comes within welve miles of the city of Durango, which is to be a station on the Mexican Central. Mr. Murphy raises wheat on his California land, and cattle on that in Nevada. He got 55,000 sacks last year, and ships 6,000 head of cattle a year right along.—Rome (Nev.) Gazette.

Reading Notices.

Why is it So? The reason why Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" cures complaints of the Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, and Blood, is that it is compounded of the very remedies which nature herself has provided for this purpose. Being at first scattered through the woods and fields, Dr. K. has collected them and condensed their virtues in the form which he now confidently offers to the sick and suffering. One Dollar expended for a bottle will convince you and make you grateful that you read this item. The Doctor's office is in Rondout, N. Y. Write him a statement of your case. Farmers and Citizens, Attention. Every farmer and citizen should hear the lecture of Mrs. Augusta Cooper Bristol, at Peak Hall, Niles, February 21, at 2 o'clock p. m. Subject: "The Farmers' Relation to Society, and his duty as an American Citizen." Mrs. Bristol has but few equals and no superior in America as a lady speaker. Remember the lecture is free, and all who do not avail themselves of this opportunity to hear this celebrated speaker will miss a rare treat.

WE are pleased to see the RECORD'S local items so freely used by the county papers. Some have manliness enough to give the paper credit and they have our thanks. The others-well, it is good for them to know how to make up the deficiency in brains of the establishments they represent.

One hundred and fifty car-loads of steel rail are in Marshall for distribution along the Michigan Central road. It is the intention to relay all the track from Niles to Jackson with steel rail, and a gang of men with boarding and sleeping cars accompany the steel for the purpose of doing the work.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

WE do not believe in putting money into cheap premiums for subscribers, but prefer to use it to add to the value of the paper, and give our patrons as much more than the worth of their money that way as possible. We will send the RECORD to new trial subscribers three months for twenty-five cents. After that time the usual price will be charged.

A NILES man is very much in need of a farm. He has been trying about two years to buy, but has thus far failed to find what he has been looking for. He wants forty or sixty acres of good improved land with good buildings and all modern conveniences, and for this he is willing to pay as high as $500. Any one feeling liberal enough to supply his long felt want can obtain his address at this office.

A NEW INVENTION.—Dr. J. M. Roe. of this place, has just had made, by his direction, a stethoscope, to operate on the same plan as the acrustic telephones that are in use about this place, the sound being conducted to the ear by means of a copper wire. The doctor informs the RECORD that his invention works like a charm, and, whether he makes anything out of it of not, he will have a good stethoscope for his own use.

POSTMASTER ALEXANDER, at this place, has been instructed by the department at Washington that on and after March 1, he will have the work of making up the Berrien Springs mail for transportation over the narrow gauge railroad, instead of having it go from Niles over the stage route, as heretofore. This will give the Berrien Springs people their mail a few hours earlier than they have been used to. The representatives of the Chicago Music Company, who managed the musical convention here, as mentioned last week, gave an entertainment at the Christian church Saturday. They are spoken of by all we have heard as the best managers of music classes that stopped at Buchanan, and gave the best of satisfaction. Their happy faculty of keeping everybody in a good humor pleased the singers. They closed a convention in Three Oaks by a concert Monday evening.

TREASURER SMITH finds it his experience that the hardest tax to collect is dog tax, all kinds of excuses being given for not paying it. Some claim that the dog assessed is dead and they have another; "My neighbor's dog, at my house on a visit at same time Supervisor called," and others equally absurd. The man who is not willing to pay the tax of $1 on his dog acknowledges his dog to be not worth so much and should not object to having it disposed of.

"When Eli Perkins delivered his lecture in the Illinois House of Reprehensibles, there was a great rush—hundreds of people left the building, and they said if he had repeated it the next night they would have left the city."-Chicago Times.

Mr. Beecher, an author quite well known in Brooklyn, thus writes to the London Times in regard to Mr. Perkins' eloquence:

"Words cannot describe the impressive sight How sublime! to see Mr. to see the great orator declaiming per-fectly unmoved, while streams of people got up and went out! How grand a spectacle, as joke after joke fell from the eloquent lips of this Cicero of ora-tors, to watch the enthusiastic crowds arising majestically as one man and waving their hands as they clamorously demanded their—money back at the box-office." P. S.—Eli Perkins distributes a sixdollar chromo to all who remain to the end of the lecture. Parties of six who and lot.

REV. W. I. COGSHALL is of the firm belief that he is a victim of a conspiracy, not being able to recognize in an express package he received Monday, a valentine. The package contained a fine gold watch from the Western agency of the American watch company, but nothing about it to show who are the conspirators, or by what authority. He ought to be able to stand it if the conspirators can.

The Berrien County Record: Buchanan,

Lucius Walters drove to his home on the Chicago road, on the Dalrymple place Sunday night, opened the bars, drove his team through, but before going farther fell on the ground in what the doctor said to be an apolpectic fit, and laid there until the next forenoon when he was discovered by his people, after having lain there through the heavy rain of that night, and was badly chilled. He died Tuesday night.

•THE Buchanan RECORD has entered upon its (sweet) sixteenth year, and the eighth under the management of our able friend Holmes. Brother H. has, by dint of great perseverence and untiring industry, raised the paper to an enviable position among the Republican journals of the State. We can not blame the Buchananites for feeling a just pride in their beautiful school building and their ever true RECORD. -Benton Harbor Times & Palladium

In another part of this paper is a notice of a portion of the business of the Board of Supervisors at their last meeting, that interests all voters, as it is an appeal to the pocket book. The protection of the records of the county against fire is a question that ought not be discussed in but one way, and that for their safety. The Board at its last gathering at the county seat made an examination of the county office building, and decided that for an outlay of $2,000 a sufficient vault could be built to protect these books against fire or any malicious burglary, and ask the voters of the county to say whether it shall be done or not. The private parties who own the abstracts of title, not near so important and valuable a property as the county books, do not think of leaving their books out of a fire-proof safe a single night, and it is proportionately important that the county books shall be protected. The vote should be, Yea.

A show company was brought here Tuesday by one Harry Marks and Chas. Ross, and advertised as a can-can, highkickers from Oshkosh, giving the impression of something far from firstclass, but during the day the manager skipped for parts unknown, and left the company to shift for itself without any money. The company went on with the entertainment, which had no semblance of can-can or anything more immoral than any minstrel show, got out more paper, and gave another entertainment Wednesday evening, and are to perform in Berrien Springs tonight. The actors appear all right, paid their bills, and went their way happy as possible, under the circumstances. The manager, Ross, was formerly a mixer of drinks in South Bend, and Marks, a Chicago adventurer, who got the company together by an advertisement in the New York Clipper, and are now under arrest in Chicago, on complaint of an actress who has been left in some country town by these fellows, to get home as best she

Feb. 13, 1882. ED. RECORD: — Weather fine and warm. Roads getting better, and colds getting worse. Meetings at Hill's Corpers still continne. The Farmers' Institute at Stevens ville, on the 4th inst. was a grand success, as it was largely attended out side the Order of Patrons of Husbandry. Among those outside who participated in the discussions was Mr. Cummins, from St. Joseph. Rev. Stormy Davis (subduer of evil), who is holding a series meeting at Stevensville, gave the Patrons of Husbandry a great momentum on their journey, and everything went off smooth as a marriage bell. Another Farmers's Institute was held at Mt. Tabor Grange Hall, on the 17th inst., but nothing of any great importance was accomplished.

St. Joseph is reported to have the small-pox, but no one there knows anything about it. Huntsman's saw-mill is doing rather a down-hill business since last June. It has had three accidents. The first was, Thomas Sterns got too close to the saw and his index finger shortened. The next was Bill Kreamer got his hand between a belt and pully and dislocated his wrist, which will never be as good as it was. Next, Charles Strong got close enough to the big saw to take off two fingers close to the knuckles (the two middle fingers), and Wednesday forenoon. It is thought by many and said by others that Friday is the unlucky day, but not in these instances. Cannot tell who is going to be the next victim, as the chances are good.

success, and germs for every description of ailments are being relegated to that realm where ghosts and hobgoblins were long since banished.

Supported by several eminent British and French physiologists, many of the doctors are making a sally upon the Jenner discovery, and are insisting that more discovery, and are insisting that more discovery are insisted into the human system by rescription then is every kent system by vaccination than is ever kept out—that, indeed, vaccination is a humbug, and, therefore, no preventive of Laymen have been compelled to give more or less credence to the new departure of the medical fraternity, but they have sought consolation in the belief that the theory of malarial poisons, or "miasmic germs," was still left them. Alas! this prop is being knocked from under them, and the compound of whisky and quinine is no longer a boon. It is asser-ted, and the assertion is supported by the facts, that fever and ague obtain as much on the hills as in the valleys; that to dwell on the shore of stagnant pools and lagoons, surrounded by a damp at-mosphere, is as conducive to health as to shiver on mountain peaks surrounded by ice and snow. During the summer it is claimed by physicians that the inhabitants of New Orleans who spear young alligators and seek pleasure on the banks of the numerous ponds and quagmires which surround the Crescent City are fully as robust and eat as heartly and as regularly as New Yorkers who daily bathe at Manhattan Beach or hunt and fish among the Adiron-

There has been less fever and ague in this immediate locality than for years before. The inhabitants of the bottom lands of the Little and Big Miamis, and way down on the Wabash, where people have been known to eat only with a spoon, and at their regular daily banquets to have alternated between a tablespoonful of victuals and a tablespoonful of quinine, the "shakes" have been comparatively a stranger. Is there some convulsions going on in nature to thus antidote the convulsions usually going on in humanity in these heretofore miasmic regions?

Professor Chadbourne, of Williams college, cites the prevalence of ague on the barren tops of the Rocky Mountains.

Has the eucalyptus tree planted in many of these malarial localities compelled the germs to "flee to the mountains!" At Elberon and in Washington the physiologists have proved their absolute infallibility. Their outslaught apon the germ theory must therefore be justifiable. The position they take on missma must be correct. Lavmen can now expect any thing. They can expect to be convinced that reppermint is no remedy for the colic, that gout comes of long fasting, that "jim-jams' invariably follow a too frequent use of ice-water, that indeed food is entirely unnecessary and pain all imaginary.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Donations to American Colleges.

Johns Hopkins gave $3,000,000 to the university which bears his name. John C. Green presented Princeton with $750,-(). The gifts of Ezra Cornell and H. W. Sage to Cornell University aggregated more than $1,000,000. Lafayette College has received from Ario Pardee more than $500,000 since 1864, and the Western Reserve Coilege was endowed with $500,000 by Amasa Stone. Mrs. Valeria G. Stone, the wife of a Boston merchant, has bestowed more than $600.-(00) on different American colleges among which curiously enough, Harvard has not been included. Besides the sums allotted to the Southern educational fund, George Peabody gave to Yale and Harvard $150,000 each; to Washington College, Virginia, $60,000; to Kenyon, Ohio, $25,000, and to various scientific institutions about $1,500,000. Joseph E. Sheffield gave to the scientific school of Yale nearly $400,000, and Amherst College received $150,000 from Samuel Williston. Nathabiel Thayer and Nathan Matthews have each given more than a quarter of a million to Harvard University; and the gifts of the younger Agassiz to the museum at Cambridge, which his father founded, already exceed $300,000. In general, it may be said that the aggregate donations received by American colleges since 1860 equal their entire valuation in that year. In the last twelvemonth covered by these statistics (1878) the total amount of gifts bestowed on collegiate institutions was about $1,390,000. It had reached $1,-274.000 in the preceding year. About one-third of these amounts was given to the colleges in New England, and more than one-half to the colleges of the seaboard States. Ohio Legislature Eighty Years Ago. Michael Baldwin, the irrepressible and mcorrigible, was no more dignified, ab-stemious or moral in his position as-Speaker of the first Ohio House of Representatives than he has been in former years or lesser stations. He presided over the Chamber in 1803, 1804 and 1805. It is a matter of tradition that for his own pecuniary benefit, and for the enter-tainment among those of the legislators who had a penchant for gaming, he established in his rooms the game of "vingtet-nn," himself acting as banker and dealer, and as a matter of course winning more frequently than any of the other players. On one occasion, after much drinking and a late setting at the gam-bling-table, Baldwin found himself in possession not only of all the money of his companions, but of many of their watches. In the morning the House of Representatives was found to be without a quorum; but Baldwin, accustomed to heavy drinking and late hours, was in his place back of the Speaker's desk. Rapping savagely with his gavel, he de-manded the roll-call of the House, and hen sent the Sergeant-at-Arms out with orders to bring in the delinquent members. After an hour or so that functionary returned, followed by about a dozen members of the Ohio Legislature, whose blood-shot eyes, suffused faces, unsteady, shambling steps, and general air of shamefacedness indicated the late hours they had kept, and their heavy indulgences. With much austerity of manner, Baldwin reprimanded the tardy members, reminded them of the cost to which the infant State was subjected by paying of their per diems, and was proceeding to further elaborate his censure on their late arrival and the consequent delay of legislation, when one of the delinquents, exasperated beyond control, cried out, "Hold on there, Mr. Speaker, hold on! How could we tell what time it was, when the Speaker of the House had all the watches?"-Alfred Mathews, in Harper's Magazine.

Veteran Beaux. I beg leave here to give notice that by the following I mean no reflection on old Eachelors; on the contrary, I hold that, next to a fine lady, the ne plus ultra, an old bachelor to be the most charming being on earth. Inasmuch as by living in "single blessedness" he of course does just as he pleases, and, if he has any genius, must acquire a plentiful stock of whims, and oddities, and whalebone habits, without which I esteem a man to be mere beef without mustard, good for nothing at all but to run on errands for ladies, take boxes at the theater, and act the part of stick in the streets. I merely speak of these old boys who infest public walks, pounce upon ladies from every corner of the street, and worry, and frisk, and ramble, and caper before, behind and round about the fashionable belles, like old ponies in a pasture, striving to supply the absence of youthful whim and hilarity by grimaces and grins, and artificial vivacity. I have sometimes seen one of these "reverend youths" endeavourse bloomtobile. oring to elevate his wintry passions into something like love, by basking in the sunshine of beauty; and it did remind me of an old moth, attempting to fly through a pane of glass toward a light, without ever approaching near enough to warm itself, or scorch its wings.—

Washington Irving.

Female Smokers.

Many women fancy that woman suf-frage is going to abolish man's political and moral vices by force of election and legislation. All this work of the imagination is of the same sort as the fancy that the freed woman's chief object will be to please man. A robust minded view ithat emancipation is to free woman from all the restraints which servitude has kept upon her conduct, and that she will enjoy her freedom in the way that man And when emancipation shall have brought equality, it is analogical to conclude that when Darwin has pointed out in that lower stage of development in which the French savant finds equality of the sexes will be restored in the high stage, and that the male will be that sex in which the desire to be agreeable to the opposite sex shall be the chief motive.

A false assumption is that woman will not be attractive to man if she smokes. Why not, if the man smokes? If they enjoy it, as they pretend, why deny the enjoyment to women? That which they keep in their own months they cannot call unclean in others. He whose mouth is odorous with tobacco can have no sensitiveness as to the same odor in in other months. Kissing is an exchange of endearments peculiar to human kind. It is current coin of the newly married. If the man's lips are reeking with tobacco, shall not the kiss have stronger zest if the woman's lips exhale the same flavor? Does he not need this strong flavor to reach his own highly flavored sensibility?

If tobacco tanned lips be repulsive, the wife needs to tan hers in the same way in salf defense.

way in self-defense. The married state is a leveler. One of the twain, who are now one flesh, can not continue delicate if the other is coarse. In many ways they become, in fact, as in the marriage theory. The wife of a smoking man can have no reason of cleanliness or delicacy towards him to keep her from smoking. He who smokes or chews can have no delicacy to be revolted by a smoking or che ving woman. This distinction is not seen in the lower civilization is a badge of woman's inferior state. She means not to rest until she has overthrown all marks of her slavery. Smoking is a social indulgence; why forbid it to her who makes social happiness? Women have to take the most of all that is unwholesome in the use of tobacco by men; why not compensate them by sharing whatever there is of enjoyment? Beside the propensity of woman, from a very early period of her existence, has been to de-sire whatever was forbidden. Smoking looks like enjoyment. This is the chief propagator. This temptation is continually before women.

But the question will be decided by women, according to her own sweet will. It will enter into the claim of equal rights, and when thus the abstaining comes to be associated with denial of rights, she will smoke to assert her equality. When women have punctured the dam of a great flood by claiming rights. When the question takes the shape of the right to smoke, there is no question. When women shall be really emancipated, she will act upon this matter according to her own will, freed from those rules of conduct which are the chains of her slavery, and relieved from any necessity to consider whether it will make her less agreeable to the man.

Smoking has a convenience which woman needs as much as man. It is a habit of stimulation which is exempt from the reproach of intemperance. A cigar is a stronger intoxicant than a dram, but he who takes daily drams is called a toper. One may keep his brain fuddled all the while with tobacco; may be so subject to it that if he misses his cigar, pipe or cud, he runs down, as the tope when he misses his stated dram, and yet, be not a subject for the temperance crusaders; may himself be a crusader. Here is a way in which women may get a share of that incessant stimulation which seems a necessity to men. With unlimited cigars, and those positive nerve stimulants, tea, and coffee, they will have not a bad chance. The rest will come with the expansion of their minds by freedom.—Cincinnati Gazette.

ONCE upon a time a woman died; and as the mourners were carrying her to the grave they tripped against a stump and let the coffin fall. She revived having been only in a deep trance. Two years after she really died, and as they were carrying her down the same road and neared the same stump the disconsolate widower sobbed, "Steady, boys; steady there. Be ve-ry careful!"— Quiz.

In French cities extravagance runs riot in dress. Economical and thrifty in other respects, the Frenchwoman will always disburse freely, according to her degree, for purposes of personal adorn-

The Chivalrous "Comanche Bill." An incident is related of Bill which happened in Wichita. Bill rode into the town dressed in a complete suit of buckskin and with a gang of honest rangers at his back. As he went along he saw a "counter-jumper," as he was pleased to call him, roughly catch a little girl about 18 years old by the shoulder and solicit her attention. The girl withdrew her arm angrily, and just then the scene fell under Bill's personal inspection.
"She was a poor girl," says Bill, "and plainly clad in an old dress, but I wan't going to see her insulted by any durned counter-hopper under my mountain eyes. I jest jumped down from my hoss and I called for that fellow to stop. He didn't seem to want to, but I made him stop. I took up the little girl in my arms and sat her down on a box. I took off her shoes and said to the counter-jumper: 'Now, I want you to get down and lick the dust off the soles of that poor girl's feet whom you have insulted!' And I made him do it. He looked down in the muzzle of a 45-caliber Colt's for just about half a minute, and then he came to his milk like a little lamb. And I made him lick that girl's feet for a plump two hours, though a big crowd gathered around, but I had all my men with me and did not care whether they liked it or not." -Kansas City Times.

until her hand had become a mass of putrid flesh did she turn to Dr. Kennedy, proprietor of the "Favorite Remedy," for help. He at once informed her that it was impos sible to save the hand—it must be amputated. She received this terrible intelligence quietly, declined to take ether, stipulating merely to hold her husband's hand during the operation. and underwent the painful process without moving a muscle or uttering a groan. Dr. Kennedy then gave "Favorite Remedy" free-ly to cleanse the blood and prevent the return of the disease, and Mrs. Myers now lives and rejoices in her great deliverance, "Favorite Remedy" is fast becoming a trust ed household friend in all cases of Female Weakness and diseases of the blood. poisoned, without exactly understanding what it is. Poison is a disorganization of flesh and blood, or both. Poisons are of two kinds: one, the result of medici-nal agents taken into stomach or circulation, the other the result of bites or stings of living creatures. I will now state two ideas, which, if generally known and remembered, would save thousands of lives every year. If you have swallowed a poison, whether laudanum, arsenic, or any other thing poisonous, put a table-spoonful of ground mustard in a glass of water, cold or warm, stir and swallow quickly, and instantaneously the contents of the stomach will be thrown np, not allowing the poisonous substance time to be absorbed and taken into the blood; and, as soon as vomiting ceases, swallow the white of one or two new eggs, for the purpose of autagonizing any small portion of the poison which may have been left behind. Let the reader remember the principle, which is, to get the poison out of you as soon as possible; there are other things which will have a speedy emetic effect, but the advantage of mustard is, it is always at advantage of mustard is, it is always at hund, it act instantaneously, without any after medicinal effects. The use of the white of an egg is that, although it does not nullify all poisons, it antagonizes a larger number than any other agent so readily attainable. But, while taking the mustard or egg, send for a physician; these are in order to sent time as the these are in order to save time, as the difference of twenty minutes is often

We all have a great horror of being

The "Old Society" of Washington. One will see on a bright afternoon a carriage drawn by a pair of fine bays. On the box are two aristocratic negroes; inside is the aristocratic owner—an old lady with the traces of youthful beauty still about her. She represents what thinks itself at the very topmost round of the ladder, the old Washington and Georgetown society, mainly composed of the descendants of old Virginia and Maryland families. Once in every five years this old lady throws open her mansion and gives a formal reception. No one is invited in whom any of the present generation has any interest, or who has any interest in it. Grave old men who were dandies in Jackson's days, and the very old ladies who recollect "Dolly" Madison, sit around the old rooms, whi h are astonished, probably, at the admission of air and sunshine into their dusty old precincts, and at the intrusion of men and women who used to come there often enough in their younger days, but who might easily have been ghosts many years ago. They have the courtly elegance of an older day, and to listen to them one would think one's self in a by-gone age.

About Moths. The destruction caused by these little pests can only be counted by millions yearly, and they are the plague of every housekeeper. Unless you hermetically seal a cask or box you can scarcely keep a miller out, as she will crawl through a good-sized pin-hole. Therefore we must ase something offensive, and the writer has found nothing so effective and cheap as petroleum paper, and even tar-roofing paper will answer. Buy your paper in rolls, cut in sections long enough to cover the inside, the bottom and the sides, and lap over on the top of the box. All of the inside of the box must be covered, and on the inside of this again place wrapping paper to prevent the contact of nice clothing with the petroleum paper. Use a large box—no matter about its being very tight, as the paper will cover the holes—and pack in all your woolens and furs, filling it full. Bring the paper up which has been hanging over the sides of the box, and let it cover the hole so that the miller cannot enter without crawling over the petroleum paper, which she will never do. Nail on he cover of your box, and your clothing is safe for three years, if you wish to leave it that long. It is much cheaper and does not evaporate like camphor, and the carbolic acid in it seems to act like an antis-ptic on the animal fiber of the wool, to preserve and make it healthful.—Exchange. A Large Collection of Spiders. Capt. Holden, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is credited with an exceptionally valuable collection of spiders, numbering nearly 25,000 specimens, and embracing 4,000 specimes, and embracing 4,000 species. They are arranged in glass bottles, with labels giving name, collector, and locality. California furnished 5,000 specimens, and New England as many more. One species is represented by 100 specimens, from all parts of the United States, showing how much effect environment has in modifying form. The collection is supplemented by a full and complete catalogue of the literature of the subject, comprising about 70,000 references on 10,000 cards. This valuable contribution to the study of this little known branch of natural history he hopes to complete and publish at an early day.

Advice 3,500 Years Old. One of the oldest books in existence is a collection of proverbs by Ptahbotop, an Egyptian, who lived somewhere about the time of Abraham. Among his injunctions is the following, which we commend to the writers on woman's emancipation, domestic economy, and other topics, who may think that the subjects which they discuss are fresh and suggested by the increased intelligence of modern civilization: "If thou be wise, furnish thy house well; woo thy wife and do not quarrel with her; nourish her; deck her out, for fine dress is her greatest delight. Purpose to make her glad as long as thou livest. She is a blessing which her possessor should treat as becomes his own standing. Be not unkind to her."

This counsel is none the less useful at the present day, because 3,500 years have elapsed since it was given.

Ruined by a Spider.

Spiders crawling more abundantly and conspicuously than usual upon the indoor walls of our houses indicate the near approach of rain; but the following anecdote intimates that some of their habits are equally certain indication of frost being at hand. Quartermaster Disjonval, seeking to beguile the tedi-um of his prison hours at Utrecht, had studied attentively the habits of the spi-der, and eight years of imprisonment had given him leisure to be well versed in its ways. In December, 1794, the French army, on whose success his liberty de-pended, was in Holland, and the victory seemed certain if the frost, then of unprecedented severity, continued. The Dutch envoy had failed to negotiate a peace, and Holland was despairing, when the frost suddenly broke. The Dutch were now exulting weather monitor never deceived. He upon his assurance that within a few days the water would again be passable by troops. They delayed their retreat. Within twelve days frost had returned and the French Generals prepared to retreat, but the spider warned Disjon-val that the thaw would be of short duration, and he knew that his contrived to communicate with the army of his countrymen and its Generals, who duly estimated his character, and relied —the French army triumphed. Dis-jonval was liberated; and a spider had brought down ruin on the Dutch nation. PROF.
