AN abstract of title is a brief statement of all the conveyances, liens and tax sales of record affecting the title to a lot or tract of land. A set of Abstract Books shows the conveyances on every lot of land in a county, and to be of value must be thoroughly made and MINUTELY ACCURATE. The making of such an abstract is a work requiring the greatest care and patience in searching, and the closest scrutiny of all matters relating to the same.

THE PHANTOM HAG.

BY HENRY D'IDEVILLE.

The other evening in an old castle the conversation turned upon apparations, each one of the party telling a story. As the accounts grew more horrible the young ladies grew closer

"Have you ever had an adventure with a ghost?" said they to me. "Do you not know a story to make us shiv er? Come, tell us something." "I am quite willing to do so," I replied. "I will tell you of an incident that happened to myself."

Toward the close of the autumn of 1858 I visited one of my friends, subprefect of a little city in the center of France. Albert was an old companion of my youth, and I had been present at his wedding. His charming wife was full of goodness and grace. My friend wished to show me his happy home, and, moreover to introduce me to his two pretty little daughters. I was feted and taken great care of. Three days after my arrival I knew the entire city, curiosities, old castles, ruins, etc. Every day about 4 o'clock Albert would order the pheaton, and the dark horizon, which was lighted a little by the rays of the sun. The afternoon wind blew violently and sighed through the stunted trees that grew around the stone cromlechs; not a dwelling or a human being was in sight. We hastened to get down, and silently traced our steps to the carriage.

scarcely time to reach home before night. He carefully wrapped the robes around his wife. She tied the veil around her face, and the horses started into a rapid trot. It was growing dark; the scenery around us was bare and desolate; clumps of fir trees here tinkle of their bells. Suddenly I felt the heavy grasp of a hand upon my shoulder. I turned my head quickly. A horrible apparition presented itself before my eyes. In the empty place at my side sat a hidneys more on I tried to gry out; the eous women. I tried to cry out; the phantom placed her fingers upon her lips to impose silence upon me. I could not utter a sound. The woman was clothed in white linen; her head with a corpse-like palor, and in place of eyes, ghastly black cavities. I sat motionless, overcome by terror. The ghost suddenly stood up and leaned over the young wife. She encircled her with her arms, and lower-place occupied by the phantom was empty. I looked out to the right and left—the road was deserted, and not an object in sight. "What a dreadful gale!" said Madame Albert. "Did you feel it? I can not explain the terror that seized me; my veil was torn by the wind as if by

A cold perspiration covered my forehead; a shiver ran through me; my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth, and I could not articulate a sound; a sharp pain in my shoulder was the only sensible evidence that I was not the victim of an hallucination. Putting my hand upon my aching shoul-der, I felt a rent in the cloak that was wrapped around me. I looked at it; five perfectly distinct holes—visible dreadful moment of my life. Finally I became more calm; this nameless agony had lasted for some minutes, and I do not think it is possible for a human being to suffer more than I did during that time. As soon as I had recovered my senses, I thought at first I would tell my friends all that had passed, but hesitated, and finally did not, fearing that my story would frighten Madame Albert, and feeling sure that my friend would not believe me. The lights of the little city revived me, and gradually the oppression of terror that overwhelmed club but I shall do all that I can do to frustrate the objects of it by influ-protective policy.

I was a radical free trader until I visited Ireland and saw the blighting effects of compulsory free trade there. It has ruined the manufacturing interests of Ireland and made the whole people depend on agriculture, and therefore, practically the serfs of the owners of the soil. What that policy has done absolutely in Ireland, where English free trade has full sway, it would do relatively in every country in the world. It would make us serfs of the American soil-for the benefit of England. For one, I have had quite enough of England. I believe that it is good sense to "buy in the cheapest market and sell in the dearest," but not as this policy is taught by the advocates of free trade. I hold that the dearest market to buy in, without regard to prices. is kept by your enemy, whose political and commercial interests render her desirous of destroying your business and nationality. England, both political and manufacturing England, is our enemy. She demonstrated her hatred during our civil war. Democratic England is friendly to us. Now as our policy of protection, with all its defects of detail, tends to bring to our shores and incorporate with our people this the only element of the English population that is kindly disposed to us—the working classes, and at the same time, weakens that malignant power—official and trading England, that hates us and is our rival for the markets of the world, I hold that it is our duty to maintain the existing American system until, by the public declaration of the protected interests themselves, a prohibitory or protective tariff is no longer demanded or neces-

goods we will also help to make it imcates and to sustain any policy that would injure her. As a war measure, therefore, against a political enemy and commercial rival and as a philanthropic policy—to help the people of Europe in their struggle against their so-called ruling classes, I shall advocate, first, protection as nearly prohibitory as Congress will enact; and, second, a voluntary system of "boycotting" all English goods even after they have been imported into this country. has just declared "that there is no room for sentimentality in politics; but your club has adopted as his motto "the field is the world," and therefore you must acknowledge that political policies on the future and prosperity not of our own people only but of the oppressed peoples of the word as well.

Watering Work Horses.

Horses need drink as often as a man, and where is the man who works hard that does not drink but once in five hours. But this is just the way work with histrionic aspirations. "I don't

to say something, "there was a woman, a neighbor of mine, whose husband belonged to more lodges and societies and fraternities and leagues and orders and unions and clubs and rites and teams and things than the two of them could count in a week. Why, this man used to take some of his meals at home, and he went to bed in regalia. Plain, but regalia. And from force of habit he used to call his wife 'Worshipful Mistress,' and he addrssed his children as Junior Wardens' and 'Cheif Tough Moguls' and 'Most Worthy Bashi Bazouks,' and other titles. That man's children grew to regard the entire system of secret societies in the United States as their father. They had a vague idea that they were in some degree blood relations of Solomon, and they told their Sunday school teacher that their grandfather worked on the Tower of Babel, and they always spoke of Hiram Abiff as "Uncle Hiram." They believed that Great Heart was a post commander in the Grand Army of the Republic. And this man used to go down and pound the boiler, and hold one corner of the blanket, and grease the pole and help heat the pitch nights when there was a candidate to be assassinated; and he watered himself into a dropsy at a Good Templar meeting, and fermented himself into a beer vat at Druid picnic and ate himself into a chronic indigestion at Odd Fellows' suppers' and sat up nights with sick Grand Army comrades, and visited Masonic widows, and comforted Knights' orphans—females—16 years and upwards, and he danced himself into a paralysis, and gets his eyes blacked at all sorts of balls, and has a good busy time of it, and was considered a capital fellow because he had to write 'S. O. O. F. W., and B. B. G. E., and E. O. D. tf, and W. 2, T. p. d.,' after his name every time he wrote a letter or registered at a hotel."—Burlington Hrwkeye.

What Weeds Cost Us. The utter waste of weeds is never more thoroughly exemplified than in a one cannot afford to grow weeds; that ought to consume. But it is not merely a matter of food, it is one of drink | also. During the very hot and dry spell last year, we noted a field of corn had been somewhat neglected, aud weeds were "ahead"—a rather rare thing in these parts-for our farmers more perhaps than those of any other part, understand the importance of keeping weeds down. Only divided by a fence was another plot. The quality of the land was evidently the same in both instances, and the corn both grown to about the same height. There seemed but a little difference in any respect except one had been carefully harrowed to keep down the weedsnot one was to be seen-while the other was very much neglected in that respect. But in the case of the latter the hot weather had curled the leaves, and the plants have evidently received a great check to development, while the clean-kept was as green and vigorous in appearance as if it had had all the moisture it needed. And so it had. The land here had nothing to do but to furnish moisture to the corn plants. while in the other case it had to do for the weeds as well. We never saw a better illustration of the injury of weeds. It is not only what they eat, but what they drink, that robs us of our due rewards; and then the loosening of the surface soil in some measure aids the soil in retaining what moisture there may be there. That is providing the loosening up be not too deep, for there may be extremes even in this good practice. If the surface inclined to bake, the turning over of the surface only tends to expose fresh parts to evaporation, and there is a loss instead of gain in such cases.

Poisoned by Nutmegs.

Few people are aware of the fact that the common nutmeg, used daily in the culinary departments of our house holds, is narcotic, and when used in large doses may produce death. In Louisville recently, Miss Nellie Brown, feeling unwell, ate two nutnegs for relief. Mrs. Webster, with whom she boarded, found her unconscious, summoned a doctor. When he first looked at the girl, he supposed she was suffering from the effects of opium, but on a close examination he discovered that the pupils of the eye were dilated instead of contracted. Emetics were administered, and after a great deal of labor the girl opened her eyes, looked wildly around and gasped out the words "nutmegs." Then fell back on the pillow unconscious again, and in this condition she remained for several hours. She was again brought to, but only for a few moments, during which time, however, she related what awful dreams she had had. She spoke of having died several times, and that the deaths were of the most horrible description. She again became unconscious, and remained so for 48 hours.

Kissing the Bride.

The New York Graphic says: At the marriage of John Russell Young to Miss Coleman, at Hartford, recenty, Gen. Grant was a guest and when the ceremony was over the company waited for the general to take precedence in extending congratulations. The General went forward, leading his pretty little granddaughter, Fred Grant's child, by the hand, and after shaking hands with the bride, said to his grandchild: "Won't you kiss the lady?" The bride caught the child in in her arms, kissed it, and then looking up blushingly said: "I would like to kiss the grandfather, too, it I dared." The veteran warrior, who had faced a blazing battery, seemed all at once to be a trembling coward. He flushed up, looking sheepish, but conscious that the bride was peeping at him from behind the drooping eyelids and was waiting for him to say or do something, mechanically extended his head, and the next moment a fair face was in his beard, imprinting a kiss on the line that marked his mouth. He seemed to be in a tremor as he grasped his grandchild's hand and backed away. All the young gallants were surprised at the cowardice of an old soldier before a pair of fresh, inviting lips.

. Potatoes from Sprouts.

Potato growing has been the object of a curious experiment just completed in England. A pound of early potatoes was taken and allowed to sprout freely. From each potato a sprout was brokand the earlier in growth.

Commercial Bulletin.

The Number of Farms.

A bulletin from the Census office gives the number of farms in the United States in the years 1880, 1870, 1800 and 1850, together with a statement of the rate per cent. of increase from 1870 to 1880. The great increase in the Northern Western and Pacific States and Territories is explained by the rapid settlement of those regions during the past decade, and an increase in the Southern States is accounted for by the subdivision of the large plantations of ten and twenty years ago. The total number of farms in the United States in 1870 was 2,659 985, and in 1880 4,008,907, an increase of 51 per cent. The State of Ohio is credited with 195,953 farms in 1870, in 1880 there were 247,189, an increase of 26 per cent. Kentucky shows a remarkable increase of 41 per cent. in the last ten years, having a total of 118, 422 in 1870 and 166,453 in 1880. Indiana has increased 20 per cent. showing a total of 194,013 farms in 1880. against 161,289 in 1870. Tennessee has increased the number of her farms 40 per cent. in this time, having a total of 165,650 at the last census. The largest increase is in Dakota, where the enormous gain 91.4 per cent. is given. Nebraska is next to Dakota, with an idcrease of 41.5 per cent. The New England States being but little subject to changes, show the smallest increase. Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont having increased the number of their farms 8, 9 and 5 per cent., respectively. Massachusetts is credited with an in-

In Madison square, New York City, much interest is taken by frequenters in the performances of a horse, Texas Jack, employed in shaving the lawn. Jack is nominally under the guidance of his master, but he is really quite capable of doing the work unaided. Being taken to a plat Jack will, without command or direction, drag the machine carefully around the circumference, avoiding trees and obstacles, and then after completing the circle step three feet nearer the center and begin dry time. We often near it said that | cutting a new swath. He does this with the greatest accuracy, gauging they feed on the nutrition the plants | the width of the cutter to a nicety. ·He will proceed leisurely in this way until the entire surface is shaved, and then start for a new plat. Sometimes, in occasional reaches for a bunch of leaves while passing a tree, Jack will swerve from his path far enough to leave a strip four or five inches wide, and say eight feet long uncut. When his work is finished his master will point to these imperfections, and Jack will at once start for them and shave them clean, laying his ears back however, to show that he doesn't like his slight mistakes caviled at in public. McDermott, who owns and takes great pride in Jack, says he can trot in 2:45 but eats $9 worth of feed a week. #### The Ideal Indian.

The Osages are said to be nearest to ideal Indians in appearance among the remaining tribes of Indian territory The average height of the men is fully six feet, and their features are strongly characteristic. "They retain the savage dress," says a correspondent of the Providence Journal, "shaving their heads except a ridge of bristles on the top, like a cock's comb, streak their faces with red ochre, and their bodies and arms with dark lines. When the three youths presenting this appearance dashed up to us on their ponies, it looked as though we had got among the aborigines at last. They extended their hands with a smiling greeting that showed their white teeth and uttered the talismatic 'Howgh,' to which we responded with an attempt to equally deep-lunged emphasis, and then they clattered on, sitting straight on their horses' backs and riding like centaurs." In the same manner, however, the writer describes something far less picturesque and more civilized—the spectacle of a native constable leading a drunken Indian to fail, and clubbing him, policeman fashion, on the way. He also heard some squaws singing some selections from "Pinafore" in a most dreadful manner, to

A Brave Little Girl. Says the Montezuma (Ga.) Weekly: A gentleman living near Henderson, while plowing a few days ago, sent a ten-year-old daughter to the house for his gun for the purpose of shooting some rice birds that were in the field. Returning with the gun, the brave lit-tle heroine was attacked in the road by an infuriated bull, and, instead of running and screaming, and thus urging the beast on, as most children would bave done, she stood her ground, and, as the beast advanced, she let go the contents of both barrels into his face. The beast, seemingly in a state of intoxication, ran here, there and everywhere in search of the child, against fences, trees, etc., but climbing the fence hastily the little girl managed to escape. She ran and told her father of the incident, who, hearing the report of the gun, was rushing to her to ascertain the cause of the shooting. With the assistance of two colored men, the now cowed animal was driven home, and it was discovered that both of his eyes had been shot out.

A well-dressed young man approached the conductor of the special train for Norwich at New London Saturday night, and asked him if he would de lay his train a few minutes while he went for a valuable package he had left in the palace car of the Lake Shore road. He replied "I will," and kindly waited. The conductor saw the ferryboat nearly across the river with the car which the young man was looking for. He gave the signal to start and the train sped northward. He interviewed the young man and upbraided him for detaining him longer than necessary by not giving him notice when he was ready to go aboard. Thinking there might have been government bonds or priceless jewels in the missing package, he asked what was in the package, that he might aid him in re-covering it. At first the young man declined to answer, but he finally replied, "A pound of French candy." The candy was returned to this city from Providence, Wednesday night. Wm. Edwards, of Hillsdale, who was accidentally pierced by a red hot iron a few days ago, is still alive, despite the announcement in the Detroit morning papers that he died soon after the accident. However, the chances of his living are very slight. The wound was in the breast and very near a large artery which must be held by the fingers, and his friends take hourly turns holding it. - Evening

Wm. Baldwin, of Pokagon, has a pipe which has a history. It was dug up near the grave where the Indian chief Topinabee was burried, and is the pipe of peace owned and used by the father of the chief, old Topinabee who in his day was the chief of the Pottawattamies. The pipe is about 6 inches in length, has a flat stem, on each side of which are twenty-five notches, showing the number of chiefs south of the Ohio and west of the Mississippi. It has a history which would be worth reading.—Dowagiac Times.

HARVESTING will be commenced in this vicinity this week, and with a good prospect in all but a few spots, that the granaries will be well filled. In some fields the fly has done considerable damage, and some are quite badly fasted, while others are affected by the heavy rains, but the injuries are so limited that on the whole the crop will be of a good average.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.-Mr. Dana Phelps has bought the lot next south of his brother's home, near the school lot, and has material on the ground for a new frame dwelling. Mr. J. M. Bliss has bought the lot of Elias Eaton, next north of that owned by John Arthur, and will erect a fine dwelling there at once; and Joseph Johnson is building a new house in place of the one that he tumbled into the cellar a few weeks

ABOUT 120 persons went up to Gano's grove Saturday to enjoy the picnic given by the Buchanan Manufacturing Company for their employes, and all report having had a good time. The band was there. This is one of the finest picnic grounds on the river, and has been specially arranged for this purpose, with seats, swings and other necessaries for such amusements which, with the fine spring close at hand, makes it nearly perfect.

THE extension of the Cincinnati Wabash and Michigan railroad was completed to Main street, Niles, and the first train run over it last Thursday afternoon. All arrangements were made for a grand jubilee, 100 guns, a royal feast, speeches, and other extras, but there was a chill placed on the whole proceedings by the gun, which was prematurely discharged at the second loading, and Irwin Strong, who was just ramming the cartridge home. was badly mangled. He loses one arm near the elbow and a good share of the other hand, besides being badly shaken up generally. Regular trains will now be run over that road.

It is a rare occurrence for a fourth of July celebration to pass without some accident, and this year was not an exception, notwithstanding the celebration was on a small scale. In reer, when the head one ran his team across the road, and drove the other into the bank and upset his wagon Mrs. N. J. Slater and a little son of Mr. Garlic were thrown out. Mrs. Slater was somewhat bruised, although not seriously, and the Garlic boy had a thumb broken. The whole affair was one of gross carelessness on the part of both drivers. No driver should

GALIEN ITEMS.

We had no celebration at this place on the fourth, although there was a dance in the brick hall during the afternoon and night. In the afternoon there were several impromptu foot, sack and wheelbarrow races, and the firing of the anvils occasionally all day, interspersed with martial music and a game or two of base ball. Quite a number went to Michigan City, and some of them came home feeling pretty jolly, having probably imbibed too freely of --- lake water.

The Sabbath School picnic in Thurston's grove was a success, considering the weather. Three prize banners were offered, one for the largest delegation, one for the best singing and one for the best rhetoricals. The school from this village carried off two of the banners, for the largest delegation and best singing. The school from the Centre took the banner for the best rhetoricals.

The "Dancing Nine" of this village played the Beaver Dam boys, on the day of the picnic. The tally stood 10 to 18 in favor of the Galien boys. A little son of Bert McOmber fell off the post office.

him not to waste much time in reading about smallpox, as it would soon disap-pear from among men.

The failure of this prediction has arisen in part from the neglect of vaccination, and in part, also, from the fact that what is recognized as virus has been weakened by transmission through a long line of human subjects. It has also been more than once combined with diseases far worse than that which it was intended to keep off. People who have been more than once vaccinated, or who have supposed that they were, have been attacked with smallpox in severe, and perhaps fatal forms, while others have been made wretched invalids for life.

These facts have led to an organized opposition to vaccination, which has its headquarters in England, though its ramifications extend to other countries, our own among the number. It publishes tracts and reports, helps poor people to fight the agents of compulsory vaccina-tion, and boldly asserts that unmodified smallpox is preferable to that which may come after vaccination, perhaps with deplorable accompaniments. Of course this is exaggeration and absurdity. One has only to glance at the literature of the seventeenth and eighteenth conturies to find abundant evidence of the fearful ravages of variola, and of the terror which it inspired in palace and in hovel. Still, it may be questioned whether much of what passes for vaccine virus is really such. If long humanized it may have become inert, if not impure. Recognizing this possibility, it has become the fashion to take virus directly from the cow, and the severity of the symptoms following vaccination from this source has been thought to prove the wisdom of the step. Yet it does not follow that every pustule found on a cow is identical with that observed and experimented from by Jenner. It is certainly true that while in the early days of vaccination one operation was thought enough to protect one during life, it is now held that repeated vaccinations are essential—that the process should be gone through with at least as often as smallpox threatens to became epidemic. This may be a conclusion established by more careful observation, but it seems to indicate that the quality of the virus has been impaired. We have been told of a man who was vaccinated in the early years of this century by matter brought direct from Jenner. When his arm was well, to test the value of the process, he was inoculated with smallpox virus. He went to a pest house to await results. He did not have varioloid, even in its mildest form. Could as much be hoped from much of the vaccination of the present day?—Exchange.

An English lady writes that coffee taverns are not only great promoters of temperance, but also pay their way as an investment. One of the best coffee taverns is in a town in Hertfordshire. The window is painted half-way up, showing the words "Coffee Tavern," and above hangs a small sign telling that lodging can be had, and nice, neat rooms they are with pretty frilled mus-lin curtains, fit for a lady's boudoir. A large shop is fitted up with counters for the huge tea and coffee urns; small tables are dotted about, as in a foreign restaurant, and at the side there is a large table given up to newspapers and magazines; in the bar-parlor there is a bagatelle board. If properly managed the experience of most of those who have established coffee taverns over the country is, that they are not only self-supporting, but remunerative; and to bring this about, the eatables and drinkables must be of the best, and the place rendered as attractive as possible. Such establishments are calculated to improve, raise and refine the general character of the people. A breakfast cup of tea or coffee is sold at the rate of two cents, and a slice of bread and butter for one cent. The cheap coffee restaurants here charge five cents, and the stuff is anything but inviting; the places, too, are dingy and miserable looking.

Let the temperance people get up a company to establish coffee taverus such as they have in England, and not only will they advance the temperance cause, but also obtain a good dividend on the investment.—Philadclphia Item.

Measuring by the Eye.

A correspondent of the Boston Transcript suggests that children should be exercised in measuring by the eye. He says that years ago, when he went to school in a little weather-beaten schoolhouse, the scholars had most exciting contests over the teacher's favorite exercise of having them estimate with the eye the size and weight of different objects in the room.

He would hold up his cane and have each scholar tell how long it was, and it was a lucky child that could come within half a foot of the right length. He would measure an urchin and then have the scholars try to produce the measure on the wall. He would mark off an inch, or a foot, or a yard, in some conspicuous place and then see how near anybody could come to chalking the same length upon the blackboard. And it was astonishing how wide astray one would go. The fact is, our eyes deceived us ridiculously, even upon the commonest things.

At first thought which would you say was the taller, a three-year-old child, or a barrel of flour? And could anything but actual measurement convince you that the same child is half as high as a six-footer?

There is an old saying that a child two years old is half as tall as he ever will be, and after a few experiments in measuring, one can easily believe it, but not Unche Mose met Jim Webster on Austin Avenue: "I heered bofe yer pa-rents was dead. What did yer git from 'and asked Uncle Mose. "Lemme 'em?' asked Uncle Mose. ## Early United States History.

Congress, on June 11, 1776, resolved that a committee should be appointed to prepare and digest the form of a confed-eration to be entered into between the colonies. On the day following a committee composed of members of one from each colony, were appointed to perform that duty. The result of this committee's labors was seen in the Articles of Confederation which were in due time subscribed and ratified by the several States. The second article contained the following: "Each State retains its sovereignty, freedom and independence, and every power, jurisdiction, and right which is not by this confederation delegated to the United States, in Congress assembled." In May, 1785, a committee of Congress made a report recommend ing an alteration in the Articles of Confederation, but no action was taken upon it, and it was left to the State Legisla ture to proceed in the matter. This was taken up by Virginia in Janaury, 1786, and the conclusion was the great convention which gave birth to the Constitution.

Previous to 1772 a person accused of crime in England who refused to plead, was remanded to a low, dark room, and laid on his back, and heavy weights placed upon his breast, with no other sustenance than bread and water; and he was not allowed to eat the day he drank, or drink the day he ate, and he remained until he died.

How Trees Influence Rainfall and Climate.

In a general way there begins to be spreading a popular belief that forests increase the rainfall of the country. As to how this is done, however, no very definite idea prevails. Scientific men have been recently making some very inter-esting experiments in this field. The results show strongly that forests do exercise a decided favorable influence on climate and the water supply.

It is not conclusively established that they directly cause heavy rains. They do, however, according to the best light at the present to be had, increase the frequency of light showers, and thus are of incalculable benefit to vegetation. In other ways the beneficent effect of trees on climate, crops and fruits is sufficiently well established. Dr. J. M. Anders gives in the American Naturalist a good summing up of the latest research on this subject. Not the least of the bene-fits he mentions is the good service belts of woodland do in protecting vegetation from storms and icy winds. It is very common now for enlightened farmers in the West and Northwest to plant dense rows of trees and hedges of evergreen along the northern line of their or-chards and grounds. Dr. Anders says: "The experiment has been tried extensively in France of planting trees in belts one hundred meters apart, and with marked benefit to the climate, and there are some good reasons for believing that a similar experiment in various places in our own country would prove equally advantageous. It has been observed many times that fruit grown in the city surpasses in quality and size that grown in the country, and this is ascribable to the more effectual shelter in the formulator."

Forests influence the atmosphere more powerfully by their effect on its general humidity than in any other way. An evaporation of moisture from both earth and trees takes place constantly. The evaporation is greater from open soil than from woodland, but the difference is far more than made up by what is called "transpiration" of leaves of the trees. This corresponds in a degree to the insensible perspiration of animals. Some conclusive experiments were made with growing pot plants, going to show that leaves do not absorb moisture, but that on the contrary, they give it out. Moisture is absorbed through the roots.

The quantity of insensible vapor that is given off through leaves amount to one and a quarter ounce to the square foot of leaf surface. The world-old metaphor of counting the leaves of the trees has a new significance in the light of science. Paintaking experiment has enabled those studying the matter to make an approximate estimate of the comparative amounts of vapor given off by earth surface and leaf surface. They have calculated that a square foot of soil sets free about six times as much mois-ture as a square foot of leaf. The leaf surface is, however, many times greater than the soil surface—twelve times greater, the scientists put it—so that twice as much evaporation takes place from forest as from open land. When the wood of the country is cut away, therefore other things being equal, twothirds of the moisture-giving material of the atmosphere is gone with it. Hence the long and fearful drouth on lands bare of trees. The Naturalist writer says:

"From the data obtained it would seem safe to infer that when the percentage of woodland is fair (25 to 30 per cent.) at least twelve inches of water is transpired in the course of a season in mild or temperate climates; or, in other words, twelve inches of the total annual terrestrial evaporation. All this vast amount of water is transpired in about six months, or during the vegetative period. Under these circumstances an equivalent of nearly half the rainfall during the warm season may be accounted for by the transpiration. Another noteworthy fact too is that even during long continued drouths, when brooks and ponds have dried up, this life-bringing exhalation from the trees continues constant. Our writer

"Moist air during winter tends to moderate extreme cold; during the sum-mer, on the contrary, it tends to cool the draughts; hence forests by moistening the air in summer give us cool and delightful breezes; another means by which forests affect extremes of temper-

The facts so far ascertained with certainty, are a sufficient comment on the ruinous folly that lays the ax of destruction at the root of our beautiful trees. They also point to the need of immediate forest planting in localities where a sufficient amount of woodland does not exist.—Cincinnati Commercial.

LIBERALISM is a luxury—temperance a necessity of life.

Dead Stars.

Like the sand of the sea, the stars of heaven, says Sir John Lubbock, have ever been used as effective symbols of number, and the improvements in our method of observation have added fresh force to our original impressions.

We now know that our earth is but a fraction of one out of at least 75,000,000 worlds. But this is not all. In addition to the luminous heavenly bodies, we cannot doubt that there are countless others, invisible to us from their greater distance, smaller size, or feebler light; indeed, we know that there are many dark bodies which now emit no light, or comparatively little. Thus in the case of Procyon, the existence of an invisible body is proved by the movement of the visible star. Again I may refer to the curious phenomena presented by Algol, a bright star in the head of Medusa. This from a star of the second to one of the fourth magnitude; and then, in another three and a half hours, reassumes its original brilliancy. These changes seem to indicate the presence of an opaque star shines without change for two days; then in three hours and a half, dwindles body which intercepts at regular intervals a part of the light emitted by Algol.

Thus the floor of heaven is not only "thick inlaid with patines of bright gold," but studded also with extinct stars—once probably as brilliant as our own sun, but now dead and cold, as Helm-belts tells not that consensite its "will be belts". holtz tells ns that our sun itself will be, some seventeen millions of years hence.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. MR. OSCAR CRAIGG Blown up by a Permanent Blast in the Rosendale Cement Quarry—DESTRUCTION of an EXE--Its Subsequent Removal by Surgical Op... eration.

Mr. Oscar. Craigg was foreman in a cement quarry at Rosendale, Ulster county, N. Y. By an explosion one day in the quarry he lost an eye—lost it totally. Under the impression that the matter was less serious the local physician told Mr. Craigg that his eye was not lost wholly, but could be saved by treatment. The experiment was tried and failed. Worse remained behind, for he was in danger of losing the other also, through sympathetic infamation. In this straithe consulted Dr. David Memedy, or Rondout, N. Y., who told him that the injured eye must be taken out to save the other. To this Mr. Craigg demurred, and went back home in doubt. His local physician said: "Go to New York." To New York the patient went, and one of the most eminent oculist in the country, having looked at the case, said: "You have lost one eye entirely: go back and do what you can to save the other." Briefly Dr. Kennedy removed the ruined eye and treated Mr. Craigg with "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" to build up the system, and the result was successful.

Dr Kennedy's great success as a Surgeon is due to the use of "Favorite Remedy" in the after treatment.

Are you troubled with Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Constipation or Derangement of the Kidneys and Bladder? then use or Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy." It will not the Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy." It will not lis Remedy." for sale by all druggists,

The Bad and Worthless are never imitated or counterfeited. This is espe cially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it has been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money and credit of H. B. Many other started nostrums put up in similar style to H.B., with variously devised names in which the words "Hop" or "Hops' were used in a way to induce "Hop" or "Hops' were used in a way to induce people to believe that they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are initations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.

Mr. J. II. Junkin, a prominent newspaper man, in writing to Dr. White, says: "I can heartily recommend your Dandelion Alterative, having suffered for years from disease of the Liver and Kidneys, and at times the pain in my back and over the region of the kidneys was almost unbearable. A few doses of your medicine entirely relieved me, and I believe that by continuing its use a short time I shall be permanently cured. It is pleasant to take, and its effects are also decidedly pleasant." For sale by W. A. Severson, Buchanan.

This man, or model, is made of turf and rock, and is bordered with pebbles which took at a little distance like so much water. Every inlet, river and mountain is reproduced in this model with a fidelity to detail which is simply wonderful. Lititude and longitude are indicated by telegraph wires, and tablets show the position of the cities. Ingenious devices are employed in illustrating botanical atu lies also. For example, the pine is illustrated by a picture showing the cone, leaf and dissected flower, set in a frame which shows the bark and longitudinal and transverse sections of the wood.

The growth of the sect is absolutely wonderful. In 1860 its number was 40,000; in 1870, 87,000; to day it is not less than 250,000 in Utah and the adjacent Territories. Its progress has eclipsed even that of Methodism; and spite of the Pacific railroads, the death of Brigham Young and the general spread of enlightenment and friction of ideas, all of which were confidently expected to hasten its decline, Mormonism is to-day stronger, more ag-gressive and more active than ever.— From an address in San Francisco, by Dr. Jewell.

We are a nation of energy wasters. The American people are altogether too fond of useless endeavor, too much given to spending money to no purpose. Gambet a is more frequently seen in public—at the theater, in society—now that the strain of his labor is relaxed. He is now visible in a box at the Francois, now heard of at a dinner party where the company is brilliant and gay. "He is not a man of the world," once said General Galliffet of him; "he can not boast of tence, but he can say a neat thing; from his corner of a sofa after dinner he sometimes sends forth a flight of witty and caustic sayings, sure to be long remembered. Every one who has heard him in the Brewster, Chief of State for Colonel Albert Sidney Johnston, until that officer's death at Pittsburg Landing. Colonel Brewster is a hale and hearty old Texas veteran, residing in San Antonio. He said he had forgotten the circumstances of the order until he read it in the first volume of the Records of the Rebellion, moment as the order for firing the first gun in such a rebellion as this one turned out to be would soon escape the memory of the officer issuing it. He is the Alpha. The Omega is to be found in the person of Captain W. J. Locke, the officer who captured the last fort, Ringold, Texas, and received the last surrender of the war. He is also hale and hearty, is an Illinoisan by birth, served in the Texas Legislature after the war, and is now to be found on his farm four miles north of San Antonio, on
