A Woman's Wicked Work. BY MARO O. ROLFE.

CHAPTER I.

Very beautiful looked Monica Atherton, as she sat in the open window, from which the misty lace was drawn away, and through which the soft breath of flowers from without came laden with perfume, bathing her senses with wave on wave of delicious sweetness. She seemed the very embodi ment of grace—a type of perfect wo-manhood. The bright waves of brown hair trippled away from a low, broad brow. Her eyes were of deepest hazel, and their jetty lashes swept a cheek where the soft color came and went upon a skin of ivory whiteness. Here was a proud sensitive face, but inexpressibly beautiful; and just now, touched by the light of a perfect love, at its radi ance. Roused from her reverie by the sound of footsteps and the soft swish of a woman's garments, she turned to greet Mrs. Atherton, a sweet, motherly woman, with tender blue eyes, and hair that showed a profusion of Silver threads among the gold."

"My darling," she began, softly, laying her hand lightly on the girl's shining head, "it is but justice toward you and toward Justin Markham that I should tell you something that I ought to have told you long ago, but which was so sweet to forget that I have neg-lected it and put it out of my mind almost entirely, until I do not think that anything but a sense of duty could have prompted me to tell you now." "What is it, mother?" asked Monica, looking up wonderingly. "I am sure you can have nothing to tell me that can make any difference with the somewhat serious matter. Monica." "Please explain yourself, mother."

"This is what I have to say: Not withstanding the great love which your fath—Mr. Atherton and I have always felt for you—a love, I am sure, as fond and tender, as all-absorbing, as ever filled the heart of father and mother-most in awe of the secret they held. "And this is all?" she said. "Poor little garments, grown yellow with time, you hold a mystery as unfathom-able to me as eternity. The waves of oblivion wash the shores of that black and terrible night, and not the faintest: echo reaches me from beyond! It is as though I had been born of the dark-ness and terror. Oh, shall I ever be able to penetrate the silence that broods over my nativity and the fate of those bright with promise; why should you let shadows from the past darken your young life?"

"Let me take these things, mother.

Mother! I think the name never sounded so-sweet to me as now, when I have no right to use it! I want to go by myself and think. I will go into the garden, and when Justin comes, send him to me there. I would rather tell him this myself."

CHAPTER II. Still nervously grasping the little garments which held for her such wonderful suggestions and possibilities, Monica went down the walk and seated herself on a rustic bench near the garden gate, which opened into a wood beyond.

Musing abstractedly on the revelations which had just been made to her, she was so preoccupied that she did not take notice of the approach of a person, who came toward her, until a shadow fell athwart the graveled path at her feet, and she looked up expecting to see Justin Markham. But it was not he.

A woman, a little past middle age, with still some suggestions of a coarse beauty that was fast fading out, dressed in style decidedly loud, and with an expression of countenance that at once repelled confidence and excited dislike, stood regarding her with a strange, eager look in her hard, black eyes. Meeting the girl's questioning glance, she bowed, half awkwardly, half impudently.

"Do not trouble yourself to rise, miss," she said. "I came on a little matter of business and can attend to it as well here as anywhere." "You have evidently made a mistake," replied Monica; "you can surely have no business with me. For whom are you looking?" "I am looking," the woman answered, with an air of effrontery, "for the ed, with an air of effrontery, "for the girl who, when a baby, wore those dainty traps in your lap."

"You — you!" exclaimed Monica, starting up and scattering the little garments at her feet. "You know of these things and the mystery they hold!

Quick, tell me who you are! Who am Where was I born? Who were my father and mother? Were they both killed on that horrible night, or do they live, thinking that I was blotted out in its darkness? Answer me! Do you not see how anxious I am to know?", "My child!" said the woman, stretch ing out her arms with almost a disgusting attempt to assume a strong emotion. "Do you not guess? I have come to you after all these long years, and I want to stay with you! I am Monica shrunk back, disgusted with the woman's evident vulgarity. "You my mother!" she cried. possible! I cannot believe it!" The woman thrust her hand in her pocket and drew forth a tiny shoe-the exact mate of the one Monica had let fall a moment before.

"Here is the fellow of that little shoe. It had tired your foot, and be fore the accident happened I had taken it off and put it in my traveling A wave of conviction swept over the girl's mind. She sank down on the senseless, to be cared for by strangers. In the confusion you were separated from me and lost. When I got better, I tried in every way to learn whether you were dead or alive, and if alive, where you were. It was a long time before I got trace of you, and when I did, there were other troubles!" "Troubles?" asked the girl vaguely "Tell me of my father?"

"His name was Jacob Fanshawe. He was in—" The woman hesitated. watching the girl intently, as if gauging her moral and physical strength "She'll bear a shock bravely enough, I guess," she thought; then she continued: "He was in prison for—"
"Stop, woman!" cried Monica, "you are surely lying!" "Good for her!" thought the girl's formentor. "She's not one of the fainting kind and I know it!" Then she replied, mercilessly: "No I don't; he was in for forgery and died there, too!" "My father a criminal! I do not believe it!"

"It's good for you to stand up for him, miss," said the woman. "It's your duty! He had his good pointshad Jake Fanshawe—but he broke the law, all the same, and the law got its grip on him and kept it, too, till he gave up his claim on this world!" The woman's matter-of-fact, heartless way of speech grated painfully on the girl's finer sensibilities. "Go on!" she said desparately. "Tell me the rest!" "After a time I learned where you were. I knew good and kind people had you, and had surrounded you with every luxury wealth and station couldprocure. I wanted you, my dear!" she said melodramatically—"wanted you so much, my child! and my poor heart ached because I was so lonely. I thought I would never make myself known to you, but leave you to enjoy your riches and happiness, and the love of your good friends here, while all for your sake, my dear baby! I did not want you to learn the shame that came to me with you!" "Shame!' The girl sprang up—white, rigid, horrified! The woman's face did not flush-her eyes did not seek the ground. There was more of exultation than of pity in her attitude and manner. "Was my birth shameful?" demanded the girl.

"I had rather not dwell on that point," replied the woman, turning her face away with a poor attempt to sim ulate a shame she was far from feeling. "You must know there are things in all our lives we don't care to talk about. Please spare me needless pain. This recital is painful enough to me even if I do not go into details as to my relations with your father! While I knew that you were being reared in luxury, and could relieve my necessities an any moment, I suffered on in silence, for your sake, as long as spare,". she concluded, in a wheedling tone. Monica half-sat, half reclined, with her head hidden in her hands. The woman feared she had fainted. "Don't take it to heart so, dear!" she said, putting her hand lightly on the girl's hair.

Monica shuddered. With a great effort she raised herself up, freed herself from the unwelcone touch, and

The other day Mr. Pratt, whose smithy is a long distance from Mr. Sinclair's house, saw the pony, without halter or anything upon it, walking up to where he was working. Thinking the animal had strayed from home, he drove it off, throwing stones after the beast to make it run homeward. This had the desired effect for a short time; but Mr. Pratt had only got fairly at work once more in the smithy when the pony's head again proceeding a second time outside to drive the pony away, Mr. Pratt, with a blacksmith's instinct, took a look at the pony's feet, when he observed that one of its shoes had been lost. Having made a shoe he put it on, and then waited to see what the animal would do. For a moment it looked at the blacksmith as if asking whether he was done, then pawed once or twice to see if the newly shod foot was comfortable, of Georgia.

Boad Harris says that some years ago, he and Col. DuPree were coming from Cartersville, and stopping at a farmhouse in Bartow county to get water, they saw a gourd vine that covered over an acre of ground. This vine where it came out of the ground was as large as his (Boad's) body.

Boad thinks that the vine in a direct line would measure over five miles in length. He and Col. DuPree counted the gourds on said vine up to over 400,

and had to stop on account of the lateness of the hour, fearing they would not have time to get home before night.

So he don't know how many gourds

were on the vine, and dislikes to make his ideas were extravagant.—Cherokee,

The next man under him, a very capa-

The reason, we understand, is that the

by the quire or ream to thousands of country publishers, who make up and print the other half of the paper with home news and local advertisements

is sufficient evidence that such papers are not self-sustaining. There are about four thousand such publications

issued in this country, and if the rul-

fect, probably three thousand "co-oper-

would necessarily suspend publication,

the other one thousand papers however,

would be greatly strengthened and could then afford to publish the whole of their paper. So that in the end the

"The Berrien County Journal, noted for its suppression of nineteen-twen-tieths of the truth in any case where the democratic party will be benefited, tries to make a point against the Republican party by the claim that "only 76 per cent of the Republican members voted for submission;" while "the democrats and greenbackers furnished votes enough to submit the question if 24 per cent of the republicans had not gone back on their pledges." It was very convenient for Major Murdoch to omit the statement that 25 per cent of the greenback members went back on their ledge to submit the question and that more than 80 per cent of the democratic members of the legislature humbled themselves on their stomachs in the dust at the command of the saloon keepers of Michigan, and then cast their votes in favor of stifling the voice of the people."

This reasoning of the Journal sounds exactly like the Irishman who exclaimed, "Pat, I have a match, lend me your pipe and terbaccy!" With but few exceptions, in every church there are some hypocrites, therefore (according to the sophistry of the Journal) the Christian religion is all wrong; in the Masonic fraternity are a few who don

the masonic garb for purely selfish ends, hence Masonry is a snare and a delusion; amongst the Odd Fellows

are a few who are strangers to the principles of friendship, love and truth,

therefore this fraternity cares not to visit the sick, to relieve the distressed,

to bury the dead and to educate the orphan; in the Good Templars are those, snatched as brands from the burning, but upon whom this evil of the Devil-an appetite for strong drink

-is so firmly fixed that they sometimes fall by the way, and hence, this order

is a failure, is laboring under a misno-

The Journal is not alone in the promulgation of such fallacious arguments

as the above. A large proportion of the Prohibition party are in the mass

who are surging in a tumultuous throng, burning with a desire to seize the Republican party by the throat and throttle it, the only party that ever gave it a crumb of comfort, a voice of sympathy, or a helping hand. Are these persons aware of the dangerous ground upon which they tread? Who are to-day the real friends of the temperance issue? In Connecticut, during their recent session, the constitutional amendment for prohibition was rejected in the house by nearly a party vote.

Of the Republicans voting, 114 voted for and 5 against it; and of the Democrats, 14 voted for it and 76 voted no;

and yet these people voluntarily close their eyes to the fact that for the sake of power, for the purpose of obtaining votes, in order to obtain possession of the offices, the Democratic party having married the Greenback party, now

place one foot of the liquor traffic upon its neck and at the crack of the saloonkeeper's whip drags from the grave its other foot with which it strives to demolish every barrier and protection

that the Republican party has placed their inconsistent plea that "if the Re-votes two years since, and 14,000 at the spring election, we will strive to increase that in 1884," cannot be better met than by reminding them, that with one arm thrown around the Republican party, the other around their firesides, bow down (like one of old) and bring ruin and destruction by their own acts, for surely the Phillistines are succeeding marvelously in the blinding process. By the recent law

three villages in Berrien county can suppress the sale of intoxicating liquor,

viz: Berrien Springs, Galien and New

Buffalo. Note carefully at the next spring's election wherein lies the consistency. With 76 per cent. of the Republican members voting for submission of prohibition, less than 20 per cent. of the Democratic party likewise

What it Did for an Old Lady. COSHOTON STATION, N. Y., 1878. GENTS-A number of people had been using your Bitters here, and with marked effect. In one case a lady of over seventy years, had been sick for years, and for the past ten years has not been able to be around half the time. About six months ago she got so feeble she was helpless. Her old remedies, or physicians, being of no avail, I sent to Deposit, forty five miles away, and got a bottle of Hop Bitters. It improved her so she was able to dress herself and walked about the house. When she had taken the second bottle she was able to take care of her own room and walk out to her neighbor's, and has improved all the time since. My wife and children also have derived great benefit from their use. W. B. HATHAWAY, Agt, U. S. Ex. Co.

Rev. Father Wilds EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

Anssachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"TE E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

MESSES, J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen:
Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my linbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the Sarsaparalla, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSA-PARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

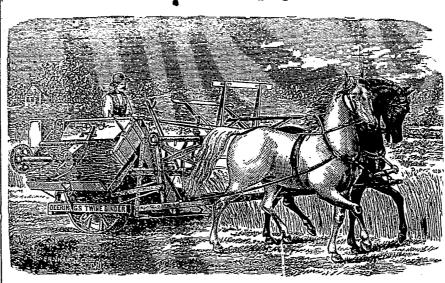

Aver's Sarsaparilla cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

First Born of all the Twine Binders

Views with plasure the efforts of its children to emulate e the virtues of their progenitor.

We work for no blue ribbon. No competition fearing; We rest our cause entirely upon The merits of the Deering.

We were the first to bind with twine, Perfection ever nearing; Old fogy machines got left behind, When farmers saw the Deering.

Probably no harvesting machine has stood so confessedly at the head of its class as the Deering Twine Binder stands to-day. Acknowledgements of its supremacy have come from all quarters, not merely from those who use them, but even competing agents and manufacturers are forced by their own convictions to confess its admirable qualities.

BUCHANAN, MICH., May 14, 1883.

DEAR SIR-Having recently heard that it is being reported that you paid me a bonus to induce me to trade my Minneapolis Binder for a Deering, I take this opportunity to contradict the statement. The truth is, I was not at all pleased with the work of the Minneapolis Binder, nor its construction, and took pains to examine the different Binders in the market and became convinced that the Deering was as good or better than any other, and this conclusion led me to propose a trade to you and pay the large difference I have done. And if the Deering works as well as its construction indicates, I shall have no reason to be sorry for my trade.

FREEMAN FRANKLIN.

Buchanan, Mich., April 28, 1883.

Mr. B. T. Morley: I notice that Wood & Samson publish, over my name, that I would not exchange my Minneapolis for a Deering Binder for $50. I never authorized such publication and you are at liberty to publish this to contradict such statement.

DAYTON, MICH., April 14, 1883. I have used two Deering Twine Binders. The first one, for some reason, did not work satisfactory, but the second one worked to perfection. The last day of harvest I cut 22 acres in about 9 hours. My fifteen-year old boy drove the most of the harvest and could handle the machine with ease, and I am satisfied that Mr. Deering and his agents will deal justly with their customers in all cases. JOHN C. MARBLE.

I bought the Deering Binder which John Marble condemned and it worked all right. There never was anything the matter with the machine, but the failure was owing to the inexperience of drivers. The expert sent here fixed it in half a minute after he got here, and I like the machine. I cut more after supper that day than I had done with my old one in all the forenoon. It is a light draft Machine and did not fatigue the team as much as light plowing would have done.

WILLARD MARBLE.

The Deering Binder for 1883 does away with the plunger bolt and 20 other pieces, and substitutes a shaft and gear instead. Do not fail to see it. B. T. MORLEY, Agent.

DEERING! THE MINNEAPOLIS BINDER.

Read What Your Neighbors Say.

BAINBRIDGE, Feb. 14, 1883.

Messrs. Wood & Samson: The Minneapolis Twine Binder bought of you last year met my expectations fully. Indeed I was delighted with it. It proved to be of much lighter draft than I thought any machine could be that did so much work, cutting nearly 7. feet, elevating and binding in the most perfect manner. Cut my level fields with two horses and my sandy and hilly fields with three houses with ease. The women folks were also loud in its praise, not having any more folks to cook for through harvest than any other season of the year. In fact it is a Godsend to the overworked and over-worried farmer, who has enough to do without riding all over the country to look up harvest help.

BERTRAND, Feb. 9, 1883.

Messrs. Wood & Samson: GENTS: I cut from 17 to 19 acres per day with the Minneapous Binder pur chased of you last season. I think it is the best and most chine of any sold in this section of country. I would not exchange my for a Deering for $50. Farmers, if you want a Binder, listen to what I tell you and buy a Minneapolis. and buy a Minneapolis.

ROYALTON, MICH., March 7, 1883.

Messrs. Wood & Samson: GENTS: The Minneapolis Cord Binder that I bought of you last season has given perfect satisfaction in every respect.

Yours truly,

A. H. CARLTON.

Messrs. Wood & Samson: 🤼

ROYALTON, MICH., March 10, 1883. GENTS: I bought one of your Minneapolis Twine Binders of your agent last harvest, and it gave good satisfaction in every way. It is light on a team and easy to handle. I do not know of any other Machine equal to the Minneapolis. I have no hesitation in recommending it to parties who want a good machine, for it saves all the grain, Respectfully yours, TYDE OF THE TAXABLE PROPERTY OF THE PARTY OF

BUCHANAN, MICH., April 12, 1883.

GENTS: I do not hesitate to say the Minneapolis Harvester and Binder is the most perfect machine I ever saw. I have used the McCormick and watched the workings of several others, and consider that for simplicity, easiness of operating and lightness of draft, raising and lowering, the Minneapolis is far ahead of any HERVY FRENCH.

BUCHANAN, MICH., March 12, 1883. I bought last year, of Wood & Samson, a Minneapolis Harvester and Binder. I have tried it thoroughly in heavy wheat and in light wheat. It is a light, easily handled machine, of light draft for three horses, and is to all appearance a durable machine. It will take up lodged wheat, better than I had believed possible for any Harvester to do. In fact I am highly pleased with it in every way, and can hardly find words to express my high commendations of it as a wheat harvesting ENOS HOLMES.

BUCHANAN, MICH., March 14, 1983.

I am perfectly satisfied with the Minneapolis Harvester and Twine Binder I purchased of you last season. After I got it learned I had no trouble in managing it, although it is the first one I ever run. I think it is a light draft machine, as my team had no trouble in handling it, and I cut with it where I thought it impossible for a Binder to run on account of hills, and I think it is a durable machine.

JOEL HARTLINE.

BERRIEN SPRINGS, MICH., March 10, 1883.

MESSRS. WOOD & SAMSON: The Minneapolis Twine Binder I bought of you works like a daisy. I harvest ed 1:00 acres of wheat and 30 acres of oats without trouble or delay. I believe it to be the "bull of the woods." THOMAS B. WYNN.

GENTLEMEN: The Minneapolis Twine Binder I purchased of you last year is worthy of recommendation. I am well pleased with it. It is by far the lightest draft of any Binder I saw work. It binds tight and does its work well. To farmers intending to buy a Binder I would recommend the Minneapolis as the best Twine Binder in use. BUCHANAN, MICH., Feb. 12, 1883. Messrs. Wood & Samson:

GENTS: I hesitated a long time before buying the Minneapolis Harvester and Twine Binder of you last season, because I always aim to buy the best of farm machinery, and I was fearful it would not meet my expectations, but I am happy to inform you that I am well pleased with its workings in every particular. As to lightness of draft, durability, capacity and ease in handling, the Minneapolis is second to none in the market. If I were to buy a Harvester this season I should certainly buy the Minneapolis, and I advise farmers in need of a Harvester to purchase the Minneapolis Harvester and Twine Binder. CHARLES F. HOWE.

BUCHANAN, MICH., Feb. 7, 1883.

GENTS: The Minneapolis Harvester and Binder purchased of you last season works to my entire satisfaction. I cut 153 acres of grain, averaging about 20 acres a day. I am familiar with the working of a number of different Binders, and I have no hesitation in giving the Minneapolis a decided preference over all

BUCHANAN, MICH., Feb. 12, 1883.

Messrs. Wood & Sanson: GENTS: Being in want of a Harvester, and after careful examination of the various Twine Binders used in this section of the country, concluded to try a Munneapolis, and after due trial find my selection was well made, as the Machine fills the bill in every respect. It runs light, binds well, making uniform bundles that do not untie in stacking. It is the only machine that has the packer trip which prevents the Binder from clogging whatever the condition of the grain. I cut my harvest of 80 acres in five days, with the ease never before accomplished. I cannot say too much for the Machine, and would recommend all farmers in need of a Binder to get a Minneapolis.

ERASTUS H. KELSEY.

DAYTON, MICH., March 3, 1883.

Messrs. Wood & Samson: GENTLEMEN: I did all my harvesting with the help of a boy. Cut 43 acres and did not have a bundle come untied. Have cut all day and did not miss a bundle. I would not take $500 for my Binder if I could not get another like it. Would say to farmers in need of a Binder, get a Minneapolis and save labor, time

BUCHANAN, MICH., Feb. 2, 1883.

MESSRS. WOOD & SAMSON: The Minneapolis Binder purchased of you does better than I expected. I am fully convinced there is no better Binder made, so far as I have seen.

THE drivers of the St. Joseph Valley railroad engine were taken to St. Joseph Sunday night, on the steamer May Graham, to be turned down, giving them new flanges. The old ones had worn so low as to make it dangercus to run, there being danger of climbing the rail. Superintendent Matthews expects to have the train running again to-morrow. In the meantime the hand-car makes regular trips with the mail.

THERE is talk of incorporating into the new village By-Laws, one imposing a tax on all dogs kept within the village, an amount equal to that paid to the township, making the total tax $2 for male and $6 for female dogs. This will have the effect to slightly decrease the number of worthless curs kept about town, and add something to the village revenue.

THE St. Joseph Traveler-Herald has ascertained from inquiries regarding the fruit prospects in that region, that considered as a whole, the season bids fair to be one of unusual prosperity in this branch of industry, and extensive preparations are being made to harvest and market the different fruits as they ripen. Trees and bushes of all kinds have passed through the winter with little or no damage, and are thriving well.—Detroit Free Press.

THE question of establishing a wool market in this place is receiving serious discussion. It is a serious question and has been for years. There is no real sensible reason why 100,000 pounds of wool should not find a market in Buchanan every year; and our merchants stand in their own light when they fail to make this a firstclass wool market. It is as much to the interest of one as another, and none

A LIGHT amount invested in draining the swamp hole on the north side of the street this side of the cemetery would be a great benefit to the appearance of that portion of town, to the private property adjoining it, and to public health. The swamp could, at a very small expense, be changed from a wet mass of filth and disease breeder to a rich, arable field, either by a drain leading to the north or by sinking a

THE reports of the liquor tax makes the following showing for Berrien county: There were in 1875, 72 saloons; 76 in 1876; 62 in 1877; 67 in 1878: 62 in 1879: 50 in 1880, and 46 in 1881. The receipt of taxes from these have been, $7,610.33 in 1875; $6,846.33 in 1876; $6,274.16 in 1877; $6,808.22 in 1878; $6,977.14 in 1879; $8,017.09 in 1880, and $8,271.68 in 1881. The counties in the State having no saloons are Benzie, Gladwin, Isle Royale, and Kalkaska. In 1881 the largest number was in Wayne, 985. Saginaw had 305; Kent 207; Bay 195. Roe, Rough & Co's saw mill, at Mutchlerville, about three miles southwest of Dayton, was burned, Saturday morning. The fire was discovered at about two o'clock, and a message telegraphed to this place for help. There was a strong south wind, blowing the fire directly into the company's large lumber piles, and it was only by the hardest work that they were saved. About 45,000 feet of lumber was moved while the mill was burning. The loss is estimated at between $1,500 and $2,-000. This fire will effectually scatter the ville, as the work furnished by the mill was all that was to be depended upon by the citizens of the place for a living, and as the mill will probably not be replaced, the last of Mutchlerville has probably arrived. The company will draw the remainder of their stock of logs to Needham's mill, in

Two quite severe accidents happened at the saw-mill in Eau Claire, on Monday afternoon. The first happened to a little son of Mr. Lovell, the head sawyer of the mill. In getting off the log truck, where he had been riding, he stepped ahead of the truck while it was in motion, and one of the wheel passed over his foot, crushing his big toe. The second accident happened to Capt. J. F. Peck a few minutes afterward. Being in a hurry to get his logs sawed, he let down the truck and rode upon the log, but coming near the mill door, he saw his leg would be caught and swung around on the log to avoid this, but losing his balance fell off the log and struck on his head on a slab pile, a distance of about five feet, and from that rolled into the water. He says he was not entirely unconscious, but thought his neck was broken. It is a wonder his injuries were not more severe, as it is he has a very lame neck.

As is usual in such times the little corner of Michigan that is protected by Lake Michigan is very fortunate in escaping the nip of the cold snap of Monday. While the thermometer registered 40, overcoats, fashionable and everyone predicting disastrous results to the crops, our neighbors were enjoy-Ohio, twelve inches of snow and sleet fell, breaking down trees, and damaging all kinds of crops. At other points in Ohio the storm was severe, but less town, Ill., mercury ranged in the close vicinity of zero, but the snow fall was light. From many other places unseasonable cold weather is reported. At night, and proceeded to find out the tween 35 to 40, and in the forencon

DURING the eight years ye editor has een connected with the Record he has not been away from his post during the issue of a paper, and as there was an excellent opportunity offered, he went yesterday for a short frolic, with about 250 others of the craft, gathered up from all parts of the country east of Chicago. The party left Chicago yesterday at noon, for Leadville, by special train over the C. B. & Q. road to Denver, and thence over the Denver & Rio Grande. The train load is made up exclusively of editors and their wives, and is accommodated in the best manner to be had in modern railroading, such as Pullman sleepers, dining-room cars, well posted guides from among the officers of the road, &c., all gotten up with the same care as if the crowd did really amount to something. The trip will occupy about twelve days. In the meantime the RECORD will be left in good hands, who will endeavor to keep up the usual interest, receive subscriptions, and in every way make themselves useful. The chair of fighting editor is turned over to Mr. G. W. Fox. If any one should desire his services and should happen to call when he is out, they are requested to sit on the steps, just outside the sanctum, and await his arrival. They will find him very efficient

NEW TROY ITEMS.

May 21, 1883. Mr. EDITOR:-While reading the contents of your valuable paper I failed to find any correspondence from "down in the woods," as your forefathers were wont to sarcastically term this portion of Berrien county, so we thought it would not be out of place to let your numerous readers know that Trov still survives the ravages of time. True, the tall pines and majestic oaks that once in time of yore did so tempt the honest hearts of our Buchanan brothers, have, like the forms that contained those conscientious souls, long since mingled their ashes with the dust of mother earth.

Under the careful management of John Shetterly, the saw mill is cutting from ten to twelve thousand feet of hard wood lumber per day.

Though Troy is as old as the oldest hill within her walls, in a point of years if not in sin, yet her miller, Mr. F. H. Morley, has a mind unclouded by the dust of her antiquity; and as he picks his way from the old unto the new process, he continues to give equal satisfaction to the merchant and the

The New Troy school, the brightest star in the galaxy of our attractions, has sent forth from her walls a class of four graduates, able and willing to cope with the stern realities of life. Although, at the present time of writing, we are enjoying the best of health, yet four gentlemen of the medical profession find sufficient practice for their support, and one of these doctors is kept busy the live-long day by -merely writing prescriptions.

A step, and the quiet village is left behind, and the broad acres of the farmer are presented to view. Corn land is being prepared and some is already planted. The superabundant crop of potatoes of last year will not lessen the acreage of this. Wheat, from its present prospects, will not be an average crop.

ONE HUNDRED TOWN LOTS FOR SALE CHEAP!

In Thresher's Addition to the Rapidly Growing Village of Benton Harbor, Michigan;

A village where there are better stores, large stock of goods and more business than in any other town in the Southwestern portion of the State, and while in 1870 there were but 652 inhabitants, and the disaster to the Peach trees was closely followed by the money panic of '73, there has been a steady and healthful growth every year, 'til we now have over 2.000 people in the corporation, and more than 6,000 in the township; and in the village the cost of the newfresidences and business blocks last season was over $300.000, which promises to be exceeded this year. The population will double the present number in a few years. The title to these lots is absolutely perfect. Every lot has an alley, or side street. The lots are large, and the streets are the broadest of any in town, and many of them command a fine view of Lake Michigan, the two rivers, the shipping, railway stations, St. Joseph, and the business portion of the town.

Lots Sold on Monthly Payments or on Long Time. SPECIAL NOTICE!!

After July 1st the prices will be advanced ten per cent. REMEMBER THIS IMPORTANT FACT, namely: Contrary to what is true of nearly every other town there are but two ways for the expansion from the business portion of this promising young city, of the residence portion convenient to the business of the place, because the St. Joseph and Paw Paw rivers and the lake occupy the territory. In one direction the desirable lots, within convenient distances of business, are nearly all taken. In the remaining direction is embraced these lots now, for the first time, offered for sale. REFLECT UPON THE FACTS. That the healthful and mild climate of this lucious fruit-producing region, bordering the great lake, the deep waters of which so beautifully modify the climate here, both summer and winter; the certainty of large crops annually; the exceptional cheapness of fuel, timber and lumber; the immense water power here only awaiting capital to develope it; the unsurpassed transportation facilities—Lake Michigan don't consolidate or pool its earnings with any competitor—insure the development and growth of new manufactories, and the success of the important industries already established, far in advance of those in less favored sections of the country; and that being, as Benton Harboris, within a few hours of Chicago, which is reached with no loss of business hours, at a cost of only $1.00, and while passengers are enjoying a refreshing sleep, is an advantage to business men and manufacturers of the highest importance.

Au Old Man of 76 on the Perilous Front of an Avalanche---A Thrilling Story.

Deer Lodge (M. T.) New Northwest. Everybody knows, or is the worse off for not knowing, Uncle Alex Hyland. He is 76 years old, hale hearty and vigorous for his years, and every day through the season does his day's work in the placers alongside such stalwarts as James Hartford and James Fleming, and never misses a lick or a meal. And he doesn't let the long winters debilitate him, either. A few days ago John Gerber wrote to him of his intended departure for California about this time, and in the due course of uncertain mails the letter was placed in Uncle Alex's hands. It had been raining two days on Elk; the four or five feet of snow that covers the mountains and gulches in the vicinity was soft and honeycombed and the vicinity was soft and honeycombed and the streams were running a freshet. But Uncle Alex concluded to come to Deer Lodge to see Gerber. The first eight miles to Bear, crossing the heavy range, had to be made on snow-shoes, and the next nine to the stage station on foot; but Wednesday morning of last week he strapped on his eleven feet Norwegian snow-shoes and started over by way of Deep Gulch. The ascent from Elk was tedious and laborious. It is a long trudge up the mountain to the top of the ridge, 1,000 feet above Beartown and 6,000 above the sea—especially to a man 76 years old. The of Deep Gulch. The ascent from Elk was tedious and laborious. It is a long trudge up the mountain to the top of the ridge, 1,000 feet above Beartown and 6,000 above the sea—especially to a man 70 years old. The summit was reached at last, and he was congratulating himself on an casy run down to Beartown, when the snow sunk in the trail and down he went. Another trial and the same result. The rains liad honeycombed and undermined the snow. A little distance on the whole body of snow had slid away and plunged down the precipitous canon side into the bed of Deep Gulch. This would never do for snow shoeing. The only recourse was to ascend the canon side to the dividing ridge between Elk and Deep and follow along on the edge of the summit. He muffled his shoes with rope brought for the purpose and the climb was made, good footing secured, and all looked clear ahead. Uncle Alex them thought it was about time for a smoke. He halted, filled his pipe, litit, took a North American whiff or two, and was just striking out when—wh-e-w-w-zip away wont the entire body of snow with a wild whirl, and in a moment he was riding an avalanche 200 feet wide with lightning speed, headlong down the precipic toward the waters of the creek nearly 400 feet below. Fortunately, he was whirled "head on," and was within a few feet of the top of the slide when it started. He struck with his alpenstock; braced himself in the shoes he could not disengage from his feet, and flew through space with the acceleration of speed produced by both the declivity and the snow-slide. Before he could say "Erin go Bragh" the slide had carried him into and across the gulch, crushed his snow-shoes, and swamped the snow up around him until only enough of him was left free and unfettered to have whipped Gerber had he been in sight. But he wasn't-nor any other living thing—and the wind singing a plaintive monody in the neighboring pines alone broke the stillness that succeeded the roar of the avalanche. He looked back to see if any more snow was coming. The canon

How Sam Trained His Wife. In a Boston restaurant, at dinner recently sat a man from Cambridge, who was a nativ of New Hampshire. Meeting an old requaint ance from that indefinite section known as "down east," the conversation soon turned or family topics, and the pair began to talk about their former neighbors in a most fa-miliar way. "Yes," remarked the Cambridge gentleman, "Sam was in many respects differ-ent from the rest of the boys. You remem-ber who he married? Well, when the old

ent from the rest of the boys. You remember who he married? Well, when the old man, his father, found that he was shinin' round with her, he called him one day in the barn and said: 'Sam, d'ye intend to marry Beckie?' Sam never said a word, so the old man said: 'Me boy, ye know all about them. I can't tell you nothin'. Ye know how the sisters has turned out, and not one of them is now livin' with their husbands.' Sam was as mum as a pantomime, and, just as soon as he was ready, him and Beckie got tied. They lived on a farm, and everything went on smooth for about a year, and it'came to a hog bucherin' time. Sam got already to have the usual party for the occasion, and, just as he was sharpenin' up the knives, Beckie came out and said: 'Sam, I'm goin' home.' Sam protested in his quiet way but it was no use, so he said he'd get a man to row her across the pond. It was about half a mile over. She said: 'No, ye won't; ye'll row me over yerself!' Sam told her he couldn't, and Beckie fired up and said: 'Then I'll drown meself.' Sam said he'd go with her if she wanted to do that, so the boat was got ready, she got in, and they rowed out till the water was twenty feet deep. Then Sam stopped and said: 'Well, Beckie, this is a good place for ye to drown yerself!' She didn't open her mouth. He waited awhile and them said: 'Come, Beckie, I'm in a hurry to get back.' She never look up. Sam put down the oars, caught hold of her and pitched her in. She grabbed for the boat, but he wouldn't let her get near it. When she was almost done out she said: 'Sam let me in that boat and ye'll not hear anything more from me out o' the way.' So he pulled her in and they went back home. She changed her clothes and entertained the guests. They're now nearly SO, and you never saw a happier old couple—did you? I don't think they ever spoke of that duckin' since the day she was goin' to drown herself."

An International Question. Detroit Free Press. "George Smith, where do you hail from?" asked his honor, of the next. "Canada, sir."

"What are you doing over here?" "Visiting my sister." "Any special reason why you got drunk last night?"

"I suppose it was."
"I shall stop your kicking for thirty days."
"But I'm a citizen of Great Britain," protested the prisoner. "But I'm a citizen of Great Britain," protested the prisoner.
"Yes, I know, but that won't prevent you from going up."
"Why, sir—why—why. I shall appeal to the British consul! Indeed, sir, I do appeal."
"Yery well; you go up for thirty days."
"Yes, but this international question isn't settled yet. I demand my rights as a British citizen!"
"And you'll have 'em. Fall back, Mr. Smith—fall-back and wait for the Maria."
The Britisher went up, but he proposes to attack this country with 75,000 men as soon as release.

Dr. Briggs' Ghost Story. From the Life of Professor De Morgan. Dr. Briggs, when quartered in the Hill country, used to meet once a week with the officers and others, the custom being to breakfast at each others houses after the sport was over. On the day for Dr. R.'s turn to receive his friends he awoke at dawn, and saw a figure standing at his bedside. Having rubbed his eyes to make sure that he was awake, he got up, crossed the room and washed his face in cold water. He then turned, and, seeing the same figure, approached it, and recognized a sister whom he had left in England. He uttered some exclamation and fell down in a swoon, in which state he was found by the servant who came to call him for the hunt. He was, of course, unable to join his hunting friends, who, when at breakfast, on their return, rallied him as to the cause of his absence. In the midst of the talk he suddenly looked up aghast and said, in a trembling voice: "Is it possible that none of you see the woman standing there?" They all declared there was no one. "I tell you there is; she is my sister. I beg you alt to make a note of this, for we shall hear of her death."

All present, sixteen in number, of whom Sir John Malcolm was one, made an entry into their note-books of the occurrence and exact date. Some months after this, by the first mail from England that could bring it, came the news that the sister had died at the very time of the vision, having on her death-bed expressed a strong wish to see her brother, and to leave two young children in his charge.

Dear Sir—I have thoroughly tried your "Worm Destroyer," and think it the best remedy for Worms known. I have tried numberless other remedies for our three-year-old daughter with no benefit. She was failing so fast her condition became alarming. Having noticed your advertisement, I immediately purchased a bottle of your "Worm Destroyer." I should feel unsafe without the medicine in the house. I have no objections to your using my name for reference, as I am glad to inform frightened mothers of so good a remedy. Slight Mistake by a Bartender Who Undertook to Read Human Character.

New York Sun "I can always tell by the expression of a man's face whether he is a self-reliant man or not," said a bartender in a Nassau street saloon to a customer yesterday. "Now, that large man just coming in has a will of his own, and the smaller one with him could be guided by any one," and he speculatively jingled two glasses on the bar as the two gentlemen approached. They were both well dressed, and looked contented with their lot. The tall one has, indeed, a face expressive of a desire to have his own way, and was not unlike Tug Wilson in appearance. His smaller friend had an exceedingly mild aspect. He seemed neryous, and not at all, as the bartender had said.

vous, and not at all, as the bartender had said, like a person of strong will power. They both took whisky, and the smaller one offered to pay for it.

"Pay at the cashier's desk, sir," said the bartender, politely, handing him two tencent checks. He looked at the cashier's desk, which was some distance away, and, suddenly losing his mild appearance, said:

"I'll be hanged if I am going to be made a waiter of by any d—d bartender. I came in to get a drink, not to run of erranda."

"For heavens sake, Jake, pay it at the desk, and don't make a scene," said his tall friend, who seemed to have lost his puglistic aspect as quickly as his friend lad got rid of his pacific one.

who seemed to have lost his puglitud aspect as quickly as his friend lind got rid of his pacific one.

"I'll be shot if I do," said the smaller man, his voice growing londer. "Here; will you take this or not? It's the last time of asking."

"I am not allowed to take money," said the bartender.

"Well, I hope, for your own sake, you are allowed to give drinks for nothing," was the reply, and the small man stalked to the door, followed by his greatly subdued companion.

The bartender considered for a moment, and then crawled over the bar and went after them. "I suppose I must take it the way you say," he said.

"Then take it," said the small man, throwing two dimes on the floor. And thank your stars that you can get it."

The bartender picked up the coins, gave them to the cashier, and went back to his place.

"I made a mistake," he said, confidentially, to his first customer. It is a little one who has a will of his own and the big one whom any one could gnide."

when Benson's Capcine Porous Plassis."

When Benson's Capcine Porous Plassiak was placed on the market about ten years ago the doctor's hope became a tact Because of the rare medicinal virtues inherent in it, its rapid action and sure results, the Caprice is fast displacing the slow acting plasters of former days, for all affections to which a plaster is ever applicable. Price 25 cents. In the middle of the genuine is cut the word Capcine. Courted Her Like $900. There was a man named Watkins in a Confederate regiment during the war, who was well on toward middle life; but when his wife came to camp one day she seemed to make him young by comparison. There seemed to be a century's difference between them; and the man, who was as ugly as a Georgia cracker usually is, was handsome beside his wife man, who was as ngly as a Georgia cracker usually is, was handsome beside his wife "How did you ever come to marry such an old witch as that?" asked one of his superior of ficers, taking him aside. "Well, you see," said the man, rather sheepishly, "her mother kept a little grocery store down on the corner of the street where I lived, and I used to go in there to get what I wanted to eat. One day I found the old woman's ugly daughter all alone in the store. Just as I came in I heard the clink of silver through the loose rafters overhead, and the old woman counting: One, two, three, and so on. I sat down and made love to the girl and the old woman in the stars kept on counting. By-and-by she was away up in the hundreds—four hundred, four hundred and fitty, five hundred. I courted that girl harder and harder as Loc on woman got higher. Finally she stopped at nine hundred. Great Scott!' I said to myself. Nine hundred dollars!' Beloved Sukcy, will you be mine?' She said she would, and we were married that same day." "Well, is that all?" "No; there were only thirty of those silver dollars; the old woman counted them over thirty times," Perhaps it would be well to investigate a little every time.

Alas! for those who never sing,

"Yes, that is beautiful, pathetic and true,"

Which reminds me of a letter shown me the other day by HISCOX & CO., ot New York, signed by Mr. E. C. Williams, of Chapman.
Snyder Co., Pa., a prominent business man of that place. He writes:
"I have suffered with asthma for over forty years, and had a terrible attack in December and January, 1882. I hardly know what prompted me to take PARKER'S TONIC. I did so, and the first day I took four doses. The effect astonished me That night I slept as if nothing was the matter with me, and have ever since. I have had colds since, but no asthma.
My breathing is now as perfect as if I had never known that disease. If you know any one who has asthma tell him in my name, that PARKER'S TONIC will cure it—even after forty years." Therewas a man who escaped the late of those whom the poet laments.
This preparation, which has heretofore been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. Inasmuch as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, and unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inlerior preparations under the name of ginger, we drop the mislending word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of

An old politician said to me: "I wonder hat the Irish Land league and the Spanish Black Hand anti-rent organization do not suggest to you that the people of New York did just the same in the anti-rent war." "I am all The Bad and Worthless are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a tamily medicine, and it is posears," said I. "In the year 1844 the tenants on the Van Reusselaer and other estates in Albany, Reusselaer, Delaware, Columbia and Greene counties refused to pay rents. Mobs and outrages just like those in Ireland and Spain followed. Fenimore Cooper's novel, "Chain-Bearer," is on this subject. New landlords, buying old Patroon grants, revived the hard conditions of the old feudal leases. The tenitive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it has been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable conditions of the old feudal lesses. The tenants appealed both to force and to political Gov. Silas Wright in 1845 addressed the legislature on the murders and outrages being conmitted by organized bands of men disguised at savages. The legislature passed such acts as the British government has done. Yet a sheriff was soon killed, and the disturbances extended over nearly a fourth part of New York state. Martial law was declared. Attorney General John Van Buren, prosecuting anti-renters, had a fist fight in court with Lawyer Ambrose Jordan. Two capital convictions were obtained. Yet the anti-renters carried a new constitution, beat Wright's re-election with Governor John Young, and he set fifty-four persons free and challenged the validity of Patroon titles. In 1852 the landlords triumphed in the courts, but subsequent decisions declared feudal incidents of sales and leases obsolete by a law of 1787. In brief, the change in the spirit of society compelled landlord reform. family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. Drug gists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.

That Little Game of Poker.

That little game of poker at Philadelphia, at which $54,000 in the "I'll see you later" sort of bet was lost, recalls a recent incident here. A game was in progress in the card room of a game was in progress in the card room of a well known club in this city, with an ante of 10 cents and no limit to the bet. Two players got "broke," but instead of drawing out kept "talking" in and telling the winner that they would owe. Finally one of the two "bet a dollar," which he indicated by a wink at the pot. A player who had become disgusted with that sort of performance promptly said: "I see your blow, and go it two bladders of wind better." The effect was reformative.

A Lazy Climate. Chicago Inter Ocean Florida Letter. On two occasions I have witnessed brakes whistled down and a train-load of passengers stopped in the pine woods, while the conductor

This has far a better than to be the temb of Shakespeare's own Juliet. It is a picture which will linger always in my memory. I see it new, the green grave, the heavy white marble cross and the vivid red and yellow flowers shiming through the mist of rain. The spattered rain-spots in my note-book are still there, where the drops fell thick and fast as I copied the inscription on the monument—these words:
