The responses to the New York Times' letters as to favorite presidential candidates show that Blaine is most popular among Republicans, with Arthur second, Edmund third, and 38 others mentioned. Among the Democrats Tilden is first, McDonald second, Bayard third and 37 others are mentioned.

A horrible catastrophe occurred at the Tivoli, about fourteen miles below Baltimore, Tuesday. An excursion party of some 200 persons from Baltimore had been spending the day at this point, and had gathered on the pier to await the barge to take them to the city, when the pier, which was an old rotten affair, gave way, precipitating about 100 persons into the water. Of these over seventy were drowned.

Chief Servant Begole found a stumbling block in his work making places for his Democratic friends, who have been industriously making existence for him a misery, for so few of them found fat places, when he assumed to himself the authority to take the official head of J. C. Wilson, one of the trustees of the Institution for the deaf and dumb, at Flint, a Republican, and appointed in his place Robert W. Dullam, a Democrat, without giving any reason for his action, other than that he would report his reasons at the next meeting of the Legislature, nearly two years hence, when Dr. Wilson's term of office will have nearly expired. The officers of the institution, not being fully convinced that this is an absolute monarchy, refused to recognize Mr. Dullam as connected with the institution. The question has been brought to an interesting point by the Aud. Gen. refusing to issue checks for the pay of either until the Attorney General shall have decided to whom the pay belongs. The symptoms are that Mr. Begole will either slacken his grip in the beholding his office, or give Dr. Wilson a hearing which the constitution says any officer may have. If our servant may turn the trustee of Flint Asylum out of office without reason or hearing, he may with the same propriety do likewise with the Secretary of State or any other state officer.

Michigan caught one of the whippersnappers, Monday, at Onondaga, Ingham county, that was one of the worst storms that ever visited that part of the state. The heaviest damage was done in Onondaga and Leslie townships. The house of Mrs. Elizabeth Barlow was picked up by the furious wind and actually torn to pieces, heavy timber being carried across roads. Mr. Barlow who was in the house was instantly killed. His body was found about two rods from the spot where the house had stood, and it was seen that her neck had been broken. A barn near the Barlow house was also wrecked, and several other barns were demolished, non-roofed or otherwise damaged. Orchards were sadly demoralized in the track of the storm, strong trees being uprooted or twisted off, and where the tornado passed through heavy woods the tops of the trees torn off and carried far and wide over the country. The end of a brick house in Leslie was blown in, and east of there great damage was done and the roads are blocked by debris. Mrs. Barlow, whose death is recorded above, was an old and much respected resident of Onondaga, and was the mother of A. Barlow, of Leslie. Another storm struck about two miles south-west of Eaton Rapids that scattered loose property far and wide. Eugene Henry's house, a mile east of Windfield, containing his wife and seven children, was blown to atoms, nothing whatever remained on the spot. Two children were found dead over forty rods distant, three others badly injured, as was also the mother, while the baby escaped unhurt, although the crib in which it was asleep had not yet been found. One of the dead children had its neck broken, and other its skull crushed. The track of the storm was about two miles wide and made ruins of three barns, two houses, and orchards in all parts of its path.

The New York Times report of the crop prospects for the great north-west, so famed for wheat-growing, reads as follows:

"The latest reports show that the wheat in the Red river valley is heading out in the noble way in which it never over a foot high, giving promise of a meagre crop of rejected grade in this far-famed valley. The section suffering most from want of rain is vast in extent, embracing the entire valley, and all of northern Minnesota and Dakota and the valleys of the Jim, Red and Goose rivers. A capitalist who recently visited the Jim river valley with the intention of erecting a system of elevators along the new railroad line, has returned after a careful survey of the valley, pronouncing the crop prospects so bad as to make the inception of such an enterprise foolhardy in the extreme. Other men who visited parts of Dakota with the same intent are said to have backed out in disgust, declaring that the crop will not be large enough to use the capacity of the elevator systems now in operation. The dry section embraces practically all of the increased acreage in Dakota and much of that of Nebraska, so that good judges think it unwise to count on any increase of the crop of 1883 over that of 1882 in Minnesota and Dakota."

Written for the Berrien County Record.

Immortality. Mr. Editor:—About here in the columns of the RECORD, allow us to say to that man living not three miles from Buchanan, and having a wife who it is his duty to love, support and care for, who last week accompanied a female (not a woman) out into a dense forest east of B.—stopping on a high eminence some rods from the roadside, and there for some time fought mosquitoes, while the discontented housewife stamped at the flies, ought to be fined for cruelty to animals, and also be exposed for their highly virtuous conduct while in that quiet locality. Could you know the condition of a portion of society to-day, and the true character of some of those around us, whom you would be astonished to see. Many around us are no less vile than those Jesus addressed two thousand years ago, when he said "Ye are like unto whited sepulchers, which appear beautiful outward, but within are full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness." Say what you may, this is the condition of society to-day. And to us it is strange that so many people live with their eyes and ears open, and yet appear to know or see nothing of what is going on around them. Why are they so blind to circumstances and acts that transpire right under their own observation and in their own home, and yet they appear at least to know it not. Even the love of home departs, and the yows of earlier days are forgotten, and all the ties of friendship and love are lost and disregarded, and yet all this is unknown until it is too late.

Talk not to me of gathering money by contribution, to send and support missionaries in far off lands, to teach the heathen religion, manners, and the nobilities of life, while we have those here among us who pass as the first in society, whose acts at times, when thought unobserved by the world, would not be very creditable to him if exposed. Even the animal creation, after spending upon them a few dollars of the money collected for foreign missionary purposes, in order to elevate their natures upward toward that of man in the Darwin scale of progression, would revolt at their acts. The forest, and even the public highways are polluted by their sensuality, and could testify to facts which would cause virtue to stand aghast at the disclosure. Yet when Sunday morning dawns upon our world, in silk, satin, and broadcloth they will primpily vend their way to the house of God for worship, and many times are welcomed by the minister and courted by the church, if they have property, and contribute liberally as the contribution box is passed. Yes, if they but pay, vice and virtue can sit side by side, and all is well. The harlot and the master of the den of infamy and shame can have a seat in the choir, and sing the hymns of praise to God, while a theatrical troupe chants the echoing song from another temple not far away; though ere the day closes or the week ends, their acts of life might cause even the devil to blush with shame. Christian ministers and church members, this is true. You hold your public festivals and fairs indiscriminately with the world. They are cordially invited. No matter who. None are restrained from attending. The vile as well as the virtuous mingle together. Your wives and daughters are in this gathering. To raise money for church purposes, various plays and games are instituted, to gather in the multitude and entertain the throng. The fish pond and the auction stand are among the entertaining features of the evening. A young man just from the saloon, who has drunk his third glass of liquor, casts a hook and draws the name of a church member, a young lady living up town. He pays the required twenty-five cents, and arm in arm they retire to the supper table. Another daughter and member of the church, in good standing, is placed on the auction block, and is struck off to the highest bidder. A young man reeling under the fumes of liquor bids thirty cents. The hammer falls from the hand of the minister, or one appointed for that purpose, and another daughter is escorted to the supper table, and fifty-five cents is gathered in to the church treasury, and yet we think it best to pay the price of the bread for this kind of religious practice, for it is of the devil, and he asks for nothing better or more pleasing to his taste and prosperity than these things. They will yet burn in your bosom as did the thirty pieces of silver in the hand of Judas back yonder in the days of Christ, when he betrayed his Lord. While you go along hand in hand with the world, treating them to ice cream, selling your daughters for a quarter, to accompany to the supper table any one who may buy, giving them the uppermost seat in the synagogue, the world will never burn you on the spot. Yet you will never succeed in converting a sinner from the errors of his ways by spending one day out of seven in telling him that he is on the broad road to hell, and then spend the other six in doing just as he is doing, if not worse. Living these six days of the week with the idea that "business is business, and religion is religion," spending these days with your religion so deeply buried that it will take you all day Sunday to find it.

This kind of religion will have but little effect upon the world, when "only He who knoweth all can tell the two apart."

With such a picture as the above, can any one wonder at the present terrible condition of society? Does it need to be improved, or shall we turn our attention to heathen lands? Judge ye. L. S. BROWNSON.

Oregon Correspondence.

PORTLAND, July 17, 1883. EDITOR RECORD:—We have looked forward with a great deal of pleasure to the coming of our old Buchanan friends, Mr. and Mrs. Sicksfoose. They landed here four weeks ago, but I did not know when they arrived, but saw in the paper that they had been taken care of by friends to-day. Sunday, my wife and myself went across the Willamette to the beautiful little city of East Portland, to hear Rev. Mr. Sicksfoose preach; and our meeting was a joyful one I can assure you; for the warm, friendly greeting, away out here in this rushing, go-ahead country, brought home to us the fresh recollection of our old Michigan home, and I must acknowledge that our meeting brought a silent tear to the eye, for we were so greatly pleased to see the manly face and shake the friendly hand of an old Michigan friend. We are now on the track of them, for they have settled in this city and quite near us. We did not see Mrs. Sicksfoose. She fell, yesterday, by standing upon a chair cleaning house, and hurt her quite badly. They will take dinner with us this week; then we will review Buchanan and give it a regular overhaul. There has been no one here from the east that we are more pleased to see than them, for they are good, true Christian people. The oldest son is at work in the car shops. Mrs. Sicksfoose has charge of the missionary work here among the Chinese. She commences her school to-morrow night, and will be engaged continually. They are strangers here, but will soon become acquainted all over the country. His work is a large one, with a warm-hearted people to stand by them.

We are now having the very worst drought that has ever visited Oregon. Our crops are sure to be badly injured, yet this country will stand a longer drought than any in America, on account of the natural dampness of the soil; yet we will have enough and to spare. The emigration is very heavy here all the time. The last spike on the North Pacific Railroad will be driven the last of August, connecting the last link of the road. The spike will be pure gold and the sledge hammer of pure silver, and will be driven by Henry Willard, the great railroad king. My wife expects to come to visit her old Michigan friends this fall, as soon as the North Pacific is completed. She will come to Buchanan and report at the RECORD office, and as she is such a great talker she can tell us all about it. Mr. W. E. Smith, formerly of our city, is settled here in the employ of the Railroad company. Herbert Smith, son of my old friend Seth Smith, has settled here, and has hung out his shingle. They called to see us last week. Herbert did not like it in Idaho, where they went, and where Rev. Mr. Tarr is located.

Two good men from Three Oaks came here in May, and one from south of Three Oaks. Peter Strehle and J. B. Pomeroy went right back, but Joe Bramhall stayed. I guess he is quite homesick, as I saw a letter from him in the Three Oaks Sun; but I was surprised to see in the Sun that they brought back a bad report from Oregon, for Pete told me repeatedly that he would like to be settled right here, and that he could make money. I think Joe will go back. J. L. SMITH.

Free Trade Monopolists. Instead of getting rid of monopolies free trade means placing us at the mercy of the crudest and most unscrupulous monopolies that exist—of monopolies so powerful that they continually force the English government to war to extend their markets, and have done this so successfully that they have today 800,000,000 people under the British flag who are compelled to buy English goods, besides as many more in small, weak nations, who are terrorized by British power into free trade, and the strangling of their own manufactures. In order that the Englishman may thrive at their expense.—Toledo Blade.

A Texas Mystery. GALVESTON, TEX., July 24.—The News' Lampass special says: "A carriage containing the skeletons of three grown persons and two children, sitting bolt upright, as if alive, was recently found under a large tree near the road in Lasso county. The tree was shattered by lightning. It is supposed that the carriage sought shelter under the tree, and was struck, killing the horses and inmates. The weathered appearance of the carriage and trimmings indicate that the disaster occurred a year or two ago. A small trunk was found addressed to James G. Chamberlain, London, England. The remains were found by a stock man driving cattle, and reported at once to the authorities. The parties are supposed to have been tourists. The spot where they were found is very secluded and far from any habitation.

Troublesome Floods. MUSKOGEE, July 23.—The heavy rains of the last three days have done much damage through this country. Washouts are numerous, and all trains in or out of Muskogee were cancelled to-day. Muskogee lake is two feet higher than ever before. In the first and fourth wards families had to move, being flooded out. Several docks and bridges were under water. The spot near Bear Lake gave away this morning, and the water is lower by about five feet, but there is plenty left for the regatta, and it will occur as announced. Many farms in the county are flooded. Streams are all overflowing, but the log drives are still all right.

This Settles It. It is becoming clear, by the investigation of astronomers, that the cyclone epidemic is caused by storms in the sun. The relation of sun storms and earth storms has been watched closely for the last three years, and it is now determined that they are coincident. For the last three months storms have been raging in the sun, and photographs showing their movements have been obtained with great accuracy. They then increase we may expect the cyclones to continue.—Infer Ocean.

BREATHE THROUGH THE NOSE ALONE. Toledo Journal. Much has been written, and very properly too, about the necessity of efficient ventilation. The best chamber, sitting room and shop, and very little of the need of perfect nose ventilation; and yet the latter, always and persistently active, has a more marked influence upon the health of the body than the former. Man in a savage state, and all the lower animals breathe through the nose in repose or sleep; in fact, some animals cannot breathe through the mouth. The organs of the nose are so often diseased that he has surpassed his savage brother in the nobler things of earth, can well envy him his freedom from lung and throat diseases and impaired voice and hearing, which are so often due to the vicious habit of breathing through the mouth. The nose is designed, in the economy of nature, to prepare the inspired air for the lungs as it passes through the winding canal, and pharynx by warming it, charging it with moisture and filtering or purifying it from foreign substances. The nose is also the organ in the language of the nose, and has a direct influence on the voice, playing the same part of the curves of the nostril does in enriching the tones; it is also closely associated with the sense of smell, which is often due to the breathing in to bring the cold, dry, dusty air directly in contact with the delicate mucous membrane of the air passages, often producing irritation, and their own manufacture of mucus, hoarseness and lung troubles. Snoring, the pleasant little trick of causing the soft palate to vibrate, can only be accomplished by breathing through the nose. Some of the most common ailments, such as colds, hoarseness, lung troubles, deafness, snoring and impaired voice flow as naturally from breathing through the nose as blood from an open vein.

And now, in the language of the famous American traveler, George Catlin: "If I were to endeavor to bequeath to posterity the most important motto which human language can contain, I should be in three words, 'shut your mouth.'" THE SORT OF EGGS DUES EAT. Philadelphia Times. The people of New York who have long been appealing European manners and customs, in clothes, social entertainments, weddings, carriages, dogs and other necessities and luxuries, have found a new method of showing their appreciation of the world's progress. They have taken to eating European eggs. The poor, faithful little American hen is no longer able to cater to the finely-trimmed palates of these ideal eaters. In order to keep up with the patriotic hens of Denmark, Germany, Hungary and Italy are all the rage now. Each dozen is packed separately in small, delicately made boxes, bearing the coat-of-arms or coronet of some count, earl or grand duke, with a certificate over the signature of the nobleman that the eggs were laid on his property, and that they were produced in his own house, and under his own supervision and the supervision of the noble butler.

THE CONDITION OF "DEAD DRUNK" (or "dead drunk") is described by savants of the Far West Biological Society as a condition in which there is a proportion of one part of alcohol to 195 parts of blood in the circulation. Should the proportion ever come to be one part of alcohol to 100 of blood, death would ensue. This might happen, and in fact has happened repeatedly, where a very large quantity of alcoholic liquor is swallowed at one time and quickly. In ordinary drinking consciousness is lost, and with it the power to drink more, before the proportion of alcohol in the circulation becomes fatal.

South Bend, Ind. This hospital is under the auspices of the Sisters of the Holy Cross. It is situated on Lowell Heights in the midst of beautiful and pleasant surroundings, which relieve the mind and soothe the spirit, and afford the best necessary for the recovery of my strength, and the continued use of the FERRUGAL, a permanent cure was effected. A Terrible Cough Cured. "In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed many a night without sleep. The doctor seemed as if he would die from strangulation, which relieved my lungs, indeed, and I was able to get up. The doctor continued the use of the FERRUGAL, a permanent cure was effected. I am now 27 years old, little hearty, and satisfied with my cure. HENRY ZALBANSKY, Rockingham, Va., July 15, 1882.

Group—A Mother's Tribute. "While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup. It seemed as if he would die from strangulation. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which I bought from the doctor. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little fellow was breathing freely. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours, Mrs. E. J. CHASE, 169 West 128th St., New York, July 16, 1882.

I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung trouble. The gentleman who sold it to me was DANIEL WESTON, of Buchanan, Mich. Philadelphia, Pa., April 22, 1882.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unimportant exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL will prove its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

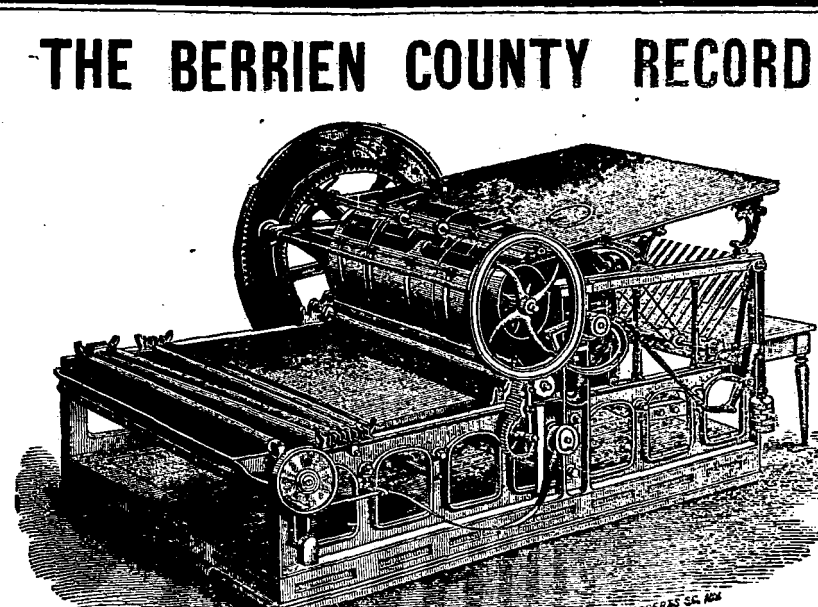

And let us show you what we can do for you.

CHRONIC DISEASES A SPECIAL STUDY FOR YEARS.

DR. F. B. BREWER

Has made Chronic Diseases of the

Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Blood and Nerves,

Special treatment for years. He is not a boastful, ignorant pretender, but an educated physician, seeking to do good, by devoting his talent and energies to the treatment of a class of maladies that have been with him a long and patient study. To be able to treat successfully chronic diseases it requires that a physician should be a sound, thorough scholar in the use of science and medicine generally. He should give his entire time to his study, be thorough in his investigations and have a long and varied experience. Dr. Brewer claims to work no wonders or to do any more than any well educated physician can do who devotes his whole time to the study and treatment of chronic diseases exclusively and has had his many years of experience. For years Dr. Brewer has visited the places he now visits, and has obtained his reputation by being honest in his dealings, candid in his opinions and reasonable in his charges. Those who are afflicted are invited to call, investigate and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing to do so. Address all letters to F. B. BREWER, M. D., Lock Box 800, CHICAGO, ILL.

If the papers in the two towns at the mouth of the river keep up their abuse, the people of the whole county will know about all the cussedness in both bergs.

ONE of the heaviest rains of the season, mixed with a light fall of hail, visited this section Saturday forenoon, and in the afternoon the dust was flying on Front street.

WE saw two letters detained in the post office in this place for better directions, which no doubt were intended for Chicago, but the way the name of that town was spelled, "cag," rather got our P. M.

Does anybody know of anybody who has invested in grave-yard insurance? It is rather a ghastly subject to resurrect, but there exists a curiosity to know how many there are who will acknowledge having dealt.

MR. J. F. HAIN wishes us to say that the person who exchanged shawls, on the occasion of the reception of the graduating class, at the residence of L. P. Fox, will save some unpleasantness by returning the one taken and taking away the one left.

HAYING and harvesting got pretty badly mixed this year. Many of the farmers who had not time to secure their hay crop before harvest demanded their attention, are now busy in the hay field. Consequently, a lot of over ripe hay.

THE busy appearance of my old time returned to Front street Friday and Saturday. There was a crowd of people and teams, denoting that farmers have so far finished their work of harvesting that they could take a breathing spell.

THE Art Amateur for August, published in New York, contains some elegant designs and valuable suggestions for wood carvers, of whom there are a number in Buchanan. The investment of thirty-five cents for this number will be a good one for those in the trade.

PICNIC—The A. C. and U. B. Sabbath Schools in this place will go to Berrien Springs, via the narrow gauge railroad, and there will be joined by the Berrien Springs schools in a picnic, at Barnard's grove, next Saturday. There will be a good time for all the little folks.

LETTERS remaining uncalled for in the post office at Buchanan, Mich., for the week ending July 26, '83: Mrs. Hannah Abel, Ene. Griffin, Wm. Maitland, (barber) Miss Emma Price, Miss E. Pinal, Mrs. Barbara Siddell, Mrs. S. E. Silliger, Postal Cards.—A. G. Gilmore, Will Morgan, Mrs. Judith Smith, Robt. Snyder.

THE Journal thinks that six terms of court a year would be a pretty fine thing for this county, because it costs so much to board prisoners. It is very easy to tell which would cost the most, two extra terms of court or the amount that would be saved on the board of the few prisoners that may happen to be in the jail.

THE School Board has engaged the services of Miss Carry Heaton, of Charlotte, as Preceptress for the coming year. Miss Michael, of Dowagiac, has for some reason declined to accept the position of teacher in the Grammar room, and thus far no teacher has been engaged for the First Primary. This leaves the rooms all provided for with the exception of these two.

MR. TOURNE shipped a car load of fat cattle to this place from Chicago, last week, to supply his market. He calculates that besides saving a drive of from ten to forty miles for each of the cattle bought, he saves between $300 and $400 on the car load over buying fat cattle of the farmers in this vicinity, at the prices they ask. He will continue to patronize the Chicago stock yards.

SOME of those who went to Diamond Lake last week returned sooner than was at first intended. The worst looking case of mumps confidence that has appeared in Buchanan was Thevon Hall when he came limping into town Saturday morning, with one knee crooked and his apparel soaked with lake water, and his mind with praises of the Island as a pleasure resort. Others returned Monday morning, and the balance of the party may be expected to-morrow.

WONG CHUI FOO, the editor of the Chinese paper in New York, has challenged Dennis Kearney to a public discussion of the Chinese question, and in case he declines to discuss, challenges him to fight a duel. We trust Dennis will discuss. Mr. Foo owes this office a dollar for printing done two years ago, and we never like to have our creditors hurt.

Mrs. LYDIA M. INGELRIGHT, an old resident of Buchanan township, died at her home, four and one-half miles north of this place, July 20, of consumption, aged 78 years. The funeral was held in Oak Street Advent church Saturday afternoon, the services being conducted by Eld. W. P. Birdsall, of the Christian church. There was a large attendance.

DRS. BONINE and BELKNAP, assisted by Dr. McDonald of New Carlisle, and Dr. M. J. White of Cassopolis, removed a fatty tumor from the shoulder of Mrs. S. Wells, Tuesday afternoon, weighing about two pounds, that had been seventeen years in forming. At this writing Mrs. Wells is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.—Eben Clark, a former Buchanan boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Clark, who left this place three years since, was killed by lightning, while at work in a hay field near Irwin, Iowa, July 1. He went to the field to get small load of hay which he had loaded, and when found was lying on the ground with the reins in his hands. He was nineteen years of age, and a promising young man.

THE work of painting the engine house has been completed, and its appearance and preservation greatly improved. We think, however, if the one who selected the colors will look at the building once more he will decide to have the doors painted yellow and the chimney a light blue, trimmed with lavender. There is no other change we would mention at this time.

THE report that Gen. Grant was dead, received here last Thursday, was a hoax and had its origin in the use of the words, "Gen. Grant dropped dead," as a signal of the telegraph operators who intended to join in the strike, to leave their keys. The adoption of this particular sentence was an unfortunate selection, as it reached ears not intended for. The Evening News says that that was not the signal, but that the report was a full fledged, pure bred hoax.

SOMEthing of the effect good, live manufacturing establishments have upon a town may be seen when the factories all shut down for two or three weeks. The change is noticed more at such a time than when new factories are being added to the supply of a town, but it is exactly the same when they are being added as when they are taken away. No town that has its own interests in view will fail to give any reasonable encouragement to any legitimate manufacturing enterprise that will locate within her borders, be it great or small, and when once located to keep them there.

DIED.—Mr. John Hewitt, whose suffering from a cancer in his cheek has been mentioned from time to time in these columns, since January, died Sunday evening, from the effect of the cancer. This was one of the most remarkable cases of rapid development of this class of sore, growing rapidly from the first, and finally so affecting his throat as to make it impossible for him to take food, and as a consequence, he has literally starved to death. Mr. Hewitt was a native Virginian, but has been a resident of Buchanan township about twenty years. He died at the age of 76 years.

Through a bit of negligence on the part of the editor, the Record failed to mention the field trial of binders, held at Jerry Painter's farm on the 14th inst. There appeared to be some dispute among the contestants about who were the victors. Mr. Morley appears to be well enough satisfied with his part, having sold four machines by virtue of the exhibition. We will have the editor do better than allow such important occasions pass unmentioned, hereafter, or turn him off and hire a better one.

While the Cass county jail has been empty for nearly three weeks past, the Berrien county jail at present contains ten prisoners. The contrast is startling and full of suggestive thought. Cass county, since it has come under Democratic administration, has been almost entirely free from crime.—Dowagiac Times.

If politics has anything to do with the case it is more likely that your Democratic officers, being "cahoot" with the criminals, do not arrest and prosecute them, while the criminals in Berrien county get into jail about the first move they make.

The question of advertising for sale accounts run up by dead beat society young men, who buy upon faithful promises of early payment, but who never pay, is under discussion among our near neighbors in Indiana. This kind of accounts are advertised by Battle Creek business men in the Moon, which carries a column of this kind of advertising. Detroit men advertise them in Every Saturday, a society paper. There are many who would object to that mode of disposing of such property, and they are property that costs the man who holds them, hard and diligent labor, and there should be no good reason for his not using any legitimate means for realizing at least a portion of the money he has invested in them. We have between $6,000 and $8,000 of accounts, many of them against good responsible parties who pay their debts when possible for them to do so, but are slow getting about it, and against whom such accounts are not collectible by legal process, but the bulk of them are against a class of people who do not intend to pay, and make the chief exertion of their brain to conceive some plan by which they can beat some one, and after having become involved to one, at once seek the next victim. With the second class there should be no objection to a disposal of their accounts, and it should certainly be done as a protection to business men, as it would effectually close up that kind of business, which is the greatest curse the business man meets. There is not a business man who does any credit business at all but has more or less of this kind of property on his hands, and for which honest, prompt paying customers must pay or the business man close his doors.

Furniture interests. EDITOR RECORD.—On Tuesday evening of last week, as was noticed in the RECORD, the several furniture manufacturers of this place boarded the cars for Grand Rapids. As the furniture manufacturing interests of Buchanan constitutes so large a part of the industries pursued here, it may not be uninteresting to those of our citizens who are directly or indirectly interested in the welfare of our furniture establishments to know why these gentlemen visited the Valley City, so famous for its furniture, and what they did while there.

To premise a little, however, the statement of a few facts concerning the furniture trade of America will prepare the reader to appreciate more readily the importance in which furniture manufacturers hold the great and growing industry of furniture making. Its proportions are grand. In 1882 it gave employment to 80,000 operatives, and the total product exceeded $110,000,000, of which New York city contributed $12,500,000; Chicago, $10,800,000; Cincinnati, $6,500,000; Philadelphia, $3,000,000; Grand Rapids, $5,000,000; Boston, $5,000,000, and St. Louis, $2,500,000. In 1882 the furniture product of the west, in round numbers, was $50,000,000, and a large proportion of the manufacturers contributing to this result are associated in what is known as the Western Furniture Manufacturers' Association, and it was for the purpose of attending the semi-annual meeting of the association that Messrs. Wm. Osborn, C. S. Black, H. S. Black, A. Willard, J. E. Barnes and B. H. Spencer, left their factories last week.

The association was formed about three years ago in an attempt to advance prices; its usefulness, however, did not end there, but continued to the amelioration of conditions that were burdensome, not alone to the manufacturer, but to the dealer and to the dealer's patrons, a very important one of which is the congestion in freight rates, which while enabling manufacturers to dispose of goods more readily, in the end materially benefits the people. At present it is agitating the question of a classification of freight rates beyond the Mississippi, so that furniture in less than car load lots may be shipped to distant points at reasonable rates. It seeks to establish a uniform system of grading lumber, and is considering the mutual plan of insurance, with a view to its adoption as a means of protecting manufacturers against the exorbitant rates demanded by stock companies. The meetings of the association also afford the opportunity of cultivating a friendly feeling among the craft, and the social features of these meetings form an interesting part of their usefulness. On this occasion, aside from the sessions of the convention and the friendly exchange of greetings, there was a banquet with good things to eat and pleasant speeches to listen to, and an excursion to Muskegon, where these lesser wood butchers were shown how the greater wood butchers of that place, with their forty sawmills, manufacture 600,000,000 feet of lumber yearly.

Propos of the social features of the late meeting the following items from the Grand Rapids Morning Democrat, concerning two of Buchanan's general representatives, is interesting. Says the Democrat: "One of the Buchanan representatives were a rare old hat of the vintage of 1887."

The "long and the short" of the convention are J. E. Barnes of Spencer & Barnes, Buchanan, and Joseph S. Hart, of Benditt, Dray & Co., New York. Mr. Barnes is about seven feet high and Mr. Hart is a sawd-off of perhaps five feet."

Sketches of these amusing features were made on the spot by the artist of the American Furniture Gazette, of Chicago, in which they will duly appear. Mr. C. S. Black has declared his intention to carefully preserve his famous hat until the next meeting of the association, which takes place at Milwaukee in July, 1884.

Of the $50,000,000 worth of furniture produced in the west in 1882, Buchanan contributed her share, and, generally speaking, while not catering to that class of trade which demands the fine furniture, her manufacturers have been able to supply thousands of homes with some of the necessities to comfort, as will be seen when it is known that in a single year they distribute 100,000 bedsteads, and 10,000 tables and stands, exclusive of large numbers of dressing-cases, commodes, lounges, washstands, hat racks, etc., etc. Through the Buchanan furniture manufacturing establishments are owned and managed by private individuals for their personal profit, yet the large sums of money drawn to Buchanan through this industry inures largely to the prosperity of the entire community, and whatever tends to make more permanent, and to widen and extend the avenues of the Buchanan furniture manufacturers' trade, also tends, not only to individual profit, as in hundreds of instances, but to our general prosperity. It is the office of the Western Furniture Manufacturers' Association to accomplish, in part, these desirable ends, hence the interest taken in it by our manufacturers.

The manufacture of trade furniture is a growing industry in the United States. With a product of less than $20,000,000 in 1880 it has grown to its present magnificent proportions. In Michigan, the growth from 1870 to 1880 was 244 per cent., and in Illinois for the same time 283 per cent. The avenues to a successful outcome in furniture manufacturing are still broad, and right here in our beautiful, thriving Buchanan, the opportunity for safe and profitable investment in the manufacture of a line of goods differing from those now made here, yet in the regular line of furniture, awaits the investment of capital.
