JNO. J. O'NEILL,

FAREWELL TO THE OLD YEAR. HELEN WHITNEY CLARK.

Farewell, Old Year, tarewell to you; You've been for many a day A friend most tried, a friend most true-And as we bid you our adieu, We give our heart-felt thanks to you And speed you on your way.

We've had full many a merry time Since first we met. Old Year. You've sung for us the Christmas rhyme, And sung for us the Christmas chime, And many a joy at Chrstmas time You brought with hearty cheer.

You crowned the woodland banks with bloor Of roses red and sweet-You gave the violets their perfume, Riponed the cornfield's tasseled plame, And filled the mill wheel's running finne To grind the golden wheat. You brought the yellow danodil

To blossom in the spring-Strewed cuckoo flowers on every hill, The cat tails by the rippling rill— And taught the lonely whip-poor-will His vesper song to sing. You turned the ivy's green to red, The maple leaves to gold-Purpled the lasters overhead.

And showers of ripened nuts you shed

When fallen leaves lay thickly spread Above the forest mold. And if you gathered some full flowers That blossomed on your way, You bore them to a fairer clime, Where neither cold, nor care nor Time Could blight them in their golden prime. And ah! you brought, Old Year! Old Year!

One tiny baby flower To nestle on its mother's breast, And close its blue eyes into rest When song-birds sing ther cradic-nest At twilight's shadowy hour. And now, Old Year, farewell to you! We grieve to lose you so— You have been a friend both tried and true,

And a . we bid you our adieu, And give our heart-felt thanks to you, And sigh that you must go.

HOW AUNTIE SAVED ME.

BY MISS S. A. G.

I had been restless and unhappy all day; had sat down to a dozen different things, but find it impossible to confine my attention to any more than five minutes at a time; and now, after an early dinner. I took a book and wandered out in the grounds with the hope of diverting my mind with "The Duchess' "spirited chatter. It was a warm but pleasant afternoon in July, and I walked silently among the rose bushes and shrubbery till, as I was passing a little rose-embroidered summer-house, a voice called, "Is that you, Edith?" and, turning in, I found aunt Muriel in her favorite rustic seat among the sweet tea-roses. with her favorite Proctor open upon her lap, and her favorite work (knit-ting) in her hands. The whole picture was so cool and sweet and peaceful that I paused a moment at the door to contemplate it.

Aunt Muriel was my great aunt, my father's aunt, and had lived with us ever since I was born, and long, long before. She was the handsomest old lady I ever saw. Tall, straight and active, with bright black eyes, and hands over aunt Muriel's knee, said: "I've got the blues, auntie, and I don't like them. I want you to drive them away.' Aunt Muriel smoothed back the "bang" from my warm forefrowzv

"But who is it this time? Tom, or Philip, or Rufus, or John?" Here I nodded, and squeezed aunt Muriel's knee. "John, auntie," I said, solemnly, while my lips trembled, and I felt the tears rising to my eyes.

Aunt Muriel looked very grave. "I had hoped, Edith, that you would young men around here. There is cere about him, and when he is in earnest, I think he would be very much in earnest, indeed."

"And you?" "Refused him, auntie. And, oh! I know I've behaved very badly," with a sudden accession of contrition, and the tears really filled my eyes, "for I've made him believe all the time that I really cared for him, and gave him every encouragement in the world, as is my wont, you know; but I didn't think he'd take it so hard. And last night, when I pretended surprise at his proposal, he said such cruel words and called me a heartless flirt, and left me in such anger. I know I'm a flirt, but I'm not heartless," half sobbing.

Aunt Muriel, stroked my hot cheek

I exclaimed eagerly; "tell me about the time when you were young and pretty and admir-ed—and when you flirted." I added mischievously; but the pained look that came into the dear old face, made me regret my thoughtless remark.
"Yes, Edith," she answered gravely, "I will tell you of that time, and if the

How They Fish Through the Ice. The ponds are frozen over, and pickerel fishing will be in order within a few days. Several Hartford gentlemen are well prepared for business. A tobacco dealer has several thousand minnows for bait in the cellar of his State street store. Capt. Sherman generally has a good supply. A North End gentleman has 10,000 at least in tanks in his cellar, captured out in the Blue Hill road section. The little fish sell at $1 per hundred usually. Mr. Lane, "Ted" Naedele, and several other gentlemen have fine lots of tip-ups of improved models. A well known dentist has had fifty new ones made this winter. Favorite places in this section for pickerel fishing through the ice are Weathersfields' Cove, Keeny's Cove, Bolton Reservoir, Snipsic Lane, Shuttle Meadow Lake, Cranberry Pond, and Farmington River. Pickerel will not bite on Sundays. Down New London way there is good sport "jigging" frost fish on the Thames. The fisher man uses no bait. He takes a couple of sticks two feet in length. Upon the end of one he ties a cluster of oak leaves, and the end of the other a sharp ook, making a minature gaff. H

I passed the rest of the evening in dancing, chatting and flirting, trying to banish the thought of my illused lover, thinking that on the morrow I could easily make it all right, went to sleep that night thinking of the rosy future before me when I should be Langdon Serle's wlfe. Late the next morning I awoke as my maid entered the room. She brought me a note which she said had been sent from Mr. Serle's hotel an hour before. A happy smile of love and triumph lighted my eyes as I saw the well-known handwriting. Though almost half a century has elapsed, every note is imprinted on my memory. 'Muriel,' it began, 'when I met you, my ideal of womanhood was realized. I thought you the embodiment of all my fastidious taste demanded - the perfect woman, nobly planned, whom I have been seeking all my life-to find in her stead a heartless coquette, who, for the gratification of an inordinate vanity, can deliberately play with the strongest and most sacred feelings of the human soul, is a shock and disappointment which I cannot survive. The future, which a few hours ago. when I felt sure of your love, looked so bright, is now a dreary blackness, which I have not the courage to enter I enter now upon another blackness of

When you read this I shall be dead-"I read no further, but with a wild scream jumped out of bed, and commenced distractedly to dress myself, calling to my afrighted maid to help me quickly that I might go to him. In a few minutes I was at the street door, and my maid hailing a cab, I was driven rapidly to his hotel. There was all consternation and dismay. I demanded to be shown instantly to his room, and my wild looks and imperious manner none could resist. They opened the chamber door. There upon the bed, dressed in the evening dress he wore when I last saw him, with even the heliotrope in his button-hole which I had plucked for him in the conservatory—see how a stunned mind takes in little details-there in his strong, manly beauty, with an awful pistol shot wound in his temple, lay my darling, my hero, my husband that would have been. Regardless or rather oblivious of the awed and sympathetic spectators, I flung myself upon him with wild and frantic shricks, adjuring him by every endearing epithet to come back to me and forgive me, till ex-

He believes that the era of cane sugar is near its close anyhow. Cane sugar has already been nearly banished from Europe by beet sugar. The price of sugar will not be lowered by the treaty, because the price is already regulated by the price of beet sugar, and because the price of Cuban sugar will continue to be governed by the price of European beet sugar. He insists that sorghum sugar can be and will be manufactured at a profit at less prices than beet sugar, and cheaper than it is possible to produce it from cane in any country, since the value of the seed for fodder, and of the refuse for other purposes, will pay for the cost of manufacturing, which cost, he says, need not exceed one cent per pound where large factories are

. A Woman of Business. There is a live business woman in Bellville, Ill., who is said to have made "plenty of money" the past year by plying her vocation as a street contract oress. She is accustomed to buy materials in large quantities, and never failing to meet her obligations promptly as they fall due, she has succeeded in establishing a credit in business circles that is really gilt-edged She buys lumber in Chicago by the carload; sewer-pipe at Anna, this State, while stone is brought direct from the quarries at Alton and other places; the balance of the raw materials, such as composition, lime, etc., are purchased in St. Louis, where she always gets her asphalt at a handsome percentage off

In one day she removed at her leisure about twelve inches, and after a brief interval she resumed her repast and swallowed some more. She was then placed in a very narrow box in the hope that something might be done with the bleeding stump, and that she might be prevented from further assaults upon herself. But she was not to be denied. The tail has almost entirely disappeared, and she has now directed attention to one of her fore paws. If time only is allowed she

An iron tower of the astonishing height of 1,000 feet is to be erected in the grounds of the French Exhibition in 1889. An elevator, the safety of which is guaranteed, will communicate with the summit, and visitors to the exhibition will be taken to the top for a small fee. Those who have the courage to make the ascent will enjoy an almost uninterrupted view for nearly a hundred miles all round. The tower will also be utilized for astronomical and meteorological observations, for experiments in optic signaling, for the investigation of certain problems in experimental physics, and for various other scientific purposes.

The other day was printed the calculation of the London Echo in regard to the number of grains of corn that would be on a chess-board if one grain was placed on the first square, two grains on the second, four on the third, and so on. The Echo said that the corn on the squares would fill 1,884,875 barns each holding 1,000,000, allowing 100,000 grains to each bushel. A clever Brooklyn correspondent who has figured it out says that the English paper is away off, and gives the following as the true figures: There would be 184,-467,440,737,095 bushels of corn on the squares, which under the conditions named would fill 184,467,440 barns.

Sunday Reading.

The following sermon by Rev. C. H. Yeomans, of Girard, Kansas, at the request of the Democratic committee of Gibson, Ill., published in the Jim River Valley, Dakota, Eagle, we commend to the perusal of our Democratic friends: "Members of the Democratic committee of invitation and Democratic friends of Gibson, Ill.: I received your pressing invitation by telegraph to preach for you a funeral sermon over the Republican party, and being as ever anxious and willing to accommodate you, I comply with your request; but, as you are evidently too poor to prepay the charges on your message, I took it for granted that it would be impossible for you to provide for my expenses to Gibson, and such other necessary expenses as your knowledge of courtesy would suggest to you. I therefore accommodate myself to your impecuneous circumstances, and we will hold a short service through the columns of the Enterprise: We will open our services by singing that old and familiar hymn: 'Return ye ransomed sinners home.' Brother Hughes will please lead the singing, and let all the singers sing. We will next give our attention to the following lesson: Verily I say unto you, the kingdom of this land is like an husbandman who had two sons, and the elder of the two rose up and saith unto his father: If I cannot rule the inheritance as I wish. and compel thee and my brother to serve me in my greed and iniquity, then, old man, down comes your shanty, and his brother harkened not unto his brother's demands nor sanctioned his iniquity, which so incensed his brother that he straightway stole all the silver and gold from the coffers of his father's house and threw down the walls thereof and carried away all the treasures of the house and sought to steal one-half the inheritance and set up for himself another kingdom, wherein the iniquities and wickedness of his ways might find no hindrance. Then rose up the man of the house and taketh that son by the collar and leadeth him away to the wood-shed, and laboreth with him there for a term of four years, until he repented himself in sack cloth and ashes. And verily say unto you, that son was forthwith returned to his former rights in his father's inheritance like unto his brother who tended the vineyard, and in four and twenty years, by false promises and deceitfulness was admitted to full management of the inheritance. The choir will sing the following

There is a fountain filled with coin, Drawn from the mines of earth, A treasury with vaults so fall, We may all share its wealth,

The rebel thieves rejoice to see, That fountain in their day; And there may we though vile as they, Wash all our debts away. I will call your attention to the following passage in my text: He is not dead but sleepeth. The subject of these remarks was born in the year 1856. Its father was Freedom and its mother Justice. The offspring became the inseparable Union of the two, and was called the Republican party.

When only four years of age the affairs of the Nation were given into his hands, and no sovereign on the face of the earth ever assumed the reins of a government in a worse condition of demoralization, financial, moral and political, than was ours when intrusted to his hands. No sovereign in the annals of time ever accomplished more or brought about a greater National improvement and prosperity than has resulted to this Nation under the management of the Republican party, and no sovereign ever retired from the throne of any kingdom in the world, leaving to his successor a Nation and a people in more perfect enjoyment of peace, prosperity and happiness than this Nation to-day. Such a record of the grandest National career of twenty-four years which this or any other Nation ever saw or ever will see, and with the honors of such a record upon it, the Republican party retires from the reins of government—not dead—but sleeping for a time to be called again to power. Not alone of its own volition, but called as it was at its birth to respond to the cry of forty stalking forth unmasked in the land. And may God in His mercy defer that day to the uttermost limit of His allwise providence. You, my Democratic friends, do not deceive yourselves by thinking that day will never come, but let me tell you, the seasons will not have made a circuit of the year before you will behold it, if your eyes be not blinded by passion and prejudice. Writing as I do from this locality, which was in times of war the border line, I may say to you, that already, before your victory was assured, I beheld it. At cities in this country has the rebel flag been flying to the breeze in jollification over your victory, and not only flying to the breeze, but maintained and defended there at the muzzle of the gun, and this, not in the atmosphere of Democratic shot-gun supremacy, but in a country as strongly Rapublican as your own. You say such men have no sense, and I agree with you. They've got no sense, and that is the only difference between them and you, for, as long as you cling so close to them with lack of sense to hide their principles, you must in your hearts hold common principles with them, and when your rebel friends who, lacking for the want of sense and education that wisdom which Republican institutions have given to you shall show forth to the world your common principles, then will the loyal again demand the restoration of the Republican party to power. Look at your banner State, Missouri when these principles were dropping out during the present campaign, when you presented a rebel general for governor who boldly declared from the stump in my own hearing. "They say I was a rebel. I say I was a rebel, and am proud of it. The Confederacy is in the saddle to-day, and will regain in this campaign what they lost in the The loyal men of Missouri saw it, and the Democratic majority of 55,-000 only two years ago, for governor, stands cut down to hardly 5,000. But the hour has arrived for closing these exercises, and in conclusion by explanation let me say, if I speak too plain, or my manner seems harsh, I want you to take me as I mean and not as I say, for I mean it far stronger than I say it, and if my discourse is not altogether satisfactory to you, then—well, per-haps you have tickled the wrong mule.

The Salt Lake City Mormon church organ, speaking of the arrests of Mormons accused of polygamy, advises the Mormons to shoot the United States officers who attempt to make such arrests, or to serve criminal warrants issued by the the courts of the United States. It says: "It is the opinion that officers who prowl around citizens' houses and invade their premises in the search for law breakers are, in the eyes of the local statutes, intruders who may be shot as burglars. They may be mistaken for burglars, and be treated to a dose of buckshot. If they expose themselves to this danger they may take the consequences. The people of Utah should stand on their rights: and, if it becomes necessary to suppress the nuisance, let it be done effectually, without child's play." The officers referred to are United States marshals and their deputies; the "local statutes" are the Mormon laws. The article is an incitement to resist the United States courts, laws and officers by armed force, and take the old Democratic ground of squatter sovereignty that local rule is superior to national authority. The Mormons are anxious for the coming national administration to begin. They believe that the national authority will cease to "intrude" on their Mormon "local self government" as soon as the Democratic party obtains power.—Detroit Post.

POSTAL cards were introduced by Prof. Emanuel Herman, of Vienna, They were first used in England, Germany and Switzerland in 1870, in Belgium and Denmark in 1871, and in millions of loyal freemen. Called again Norway, Russia and the United States whenever treason shall again be seen in 1872-73. Australia's Scarcity of Water.

The greatest difficulty of all this country is this one of water. There are no great rivers such as we have in America, and such as there are either appear in raging torrents or a succession of water-holes. Many of the larger streams have no outlet, but end in lagoons or disappear by evaporation. Experiments show that there is quite sufficient rainfall to supply the wants of the country, but it is so irregular that to depend upon it would be precarious in the extreme. Artesian wells have been discovered in certain localities, but they are not numerous enough to test their practicability. The only remedy that at present appears feasible is that of making reservoirs for the storage of water during the rainy season for supply during the long droughts. "Necessity is the mother of invention," and I have no doubt that this or some other plan will be adopted for irrigating the land, thus making it capable of supporting millions of people. During the dry season it is extremely hot in the interior, the thermometer often rising to 120 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade. The ground becomes baked and cracked and so hot as to burn the feet into blisters if not well protected. The atmosphere is extremely dry, otherwise it would be impossible for human beings to endure ic. Thousands of cattle and sheep perish during the dry seasons. The only way of keeping them alive is in driving them to some water-hole where they may drink, while for food they may subsist on the dry and parched grasses of the plain, which, strange to say, have retained all their nutritive qualities, though withered by the sun. Shepherds say that sheep, as well as cattle and horses, will fatten on this grass, and that they will choose it in preference to the green grass of the rainy season. Large droves of horses and cattle, sleek and fat, may be seen running wild over these plains in the dryest sensons, especially in districts where a plentiful supply of water may be found in water-holes, as above mentioned. These horses are often so numerous as to become a pest, and as they are of no use on account of their intractability, they are often driven into corrals and killed by thousands. The timber on these plains is of one genus, namely, the encalyptus. There are many species, but all have the same general appearance. Generally speaking the trees are sparsely scattered over the ground, and but very seldom do we find there thick-set forests as in America. The eucalyptus does not look unlike our sycamore. It does not shed its leaves, which are of a somber green color and very crisp, but annually the bark dries up into thin shreds and falls off. So light and dry is it that the east wind will carry it away as our leaves are driven by the autumn wind. New bark is formed before the old falls off, and the tree is left quite white and new looking at the beginning of each year of its life. Some of the trees grow to enormous height. Indeed, the brighest trees in the world are of this genus, and are to be found in Gippsland, in the eastern portion of Australia. Some of the tallest are over 500 feet in height. They grow very straight, and as much as 100 feet from the ground there is neither limb nor perceptible diminution of diameter. The lumber from this trea is an important article of commerce

Ger. Warren was the officer in command of our troops at this time. He was rather strict in his ways; the boys at first thought more so than necessary. When we came into the town it had been hastily descried by many of its inhabitants. They supposed that their former activity in behalf of the Confederacy would subject them to arrest and punishment. Stores were abandoned with goods in them. Some of the boys would insist upon looking them through. Gen. Warren had properly given strict orders against their doing so. One evening, as he was walking along the street, he found some of the lawless soldiers who had found a way through a back window into one of the deserted stores, and were taking a look at the tobacco and other like goods. Instead of having them arrested Gen. Warren dismissed them in his own prompt and energetic way. One of them was the eccentric Weed, of Company A. He was always sure to be caught, if any one was. Weel soon returned to our company quarters. He had been suddenly converted. Gen. Warren was now his ideal of a thorough soldier. He rushed into the company quarters wild with enthusiasm—"I tell you, boys," he exclaimed, "Gen. Warren is just one of the staving best officers we ever had! He means business! He is the kind of officer we want!" Such unexpected commendation for Gen. Warren brought all the boys around him, asking for explanation. Weed explained: now saw the General catch some of the boys who had broke into a store and were stealing the tobacco and sugar. He did not fool about it a bit. He caught one fellow and kicked him lively-kicked him clear into the middle of the street. I tell you, boys, he is a splendid officer! He is a staving fellow! He is the boss!" As soon as this eloquent praise could be broken into, the boys asked: "Weed, who was it that got the kicking?" With increased enthusiasm Weed answered: "Oh, I tell you, boys, Gen. Warren is a staving fellow—a good officer—chock full of energy! I—got the—kicking." And it was true. Weed in his awk-ward way had stumbled in after some of the other soldiers; they had skipped lively out of sight, and Weed, the most innocent one of the crowd, was left to be caught and booted into the middle of the street by the angry and energetic Fitz Henry Warren.—"Army Life," by A. O. Marshall.

The Duration of Sleep. Let us briefly allude to the duration of sleep-how in some cases a few hours will suffice, and in others a longer period is needed. Dr. Reid, the metaphysician, could work for two days without a break if he got one sound sleep after a full meal. If the stories about Lord Brougham could be believed, he could work on less sleep than most people require. Frederick the Great and John Hunter required only five hours' sleep; but it must not be supposed that because men with exceptionally powerful nervous organizations can dispense with the normal quantity of sleep it would be safe for everybody to follow their example. The sleep of the heart, which we have seen to amount to eight hours out of the twenty-four, is a fair indication of the quantity of sleep which on an average ought to be allowed to the brain. As Sir Thomas Browne, the learned knight of Norwich, hath it: "Half our days we cass in the shadow of the earth, and the brother of death extracteth a third part of our lives."-

A Tragic Half Hour. Rev. A. B. Sasnett, of Enfaula, tells the following incident which occurred within his experience. His friend was in the sitting-room engaged in conversation with a friend; his little boy came in while he was talking and was troubling his father, and the father not wishing to be disturbed, gently pushed the little fellow aside, telling him at the same time to go away. In pushing the little fellow aside he stumbled and fell against the stove, killing him instantly. The father screamed, and in so doing startled his wife, who was up stairs bathing her baby. In trying to come down stairs she fell and broke her neck. The heart-broken father and husband went up stairs a short time after and found that his wife had left the baby in the tub, and it had fallen over and drowned. This was more than the father could stand, and in a few min-ates he blew-his own brains out. Thus, a family that half an hour before was perfectly happy was each and every member dead.—Atlanta Constitution Phact's and Physic.

MARSHAL Shook thinks that when young fellows living about town return from their night sprees they should go homeinstead of making common use of the engine house, as was done last Thursday night. . We think that Mr. Shook's idea is wrong. If there is any class of tramps that should receive special attention and accommodations it should be the home product, in preference to those from

AT the special meeting of the Common Council it was decided to borrow $1,000 for eight months, at 8 per cent. interest, to pay for supplies for the fire department and for current expenses of the village. People do not like to pay high taxes, but it does not appear like bettering matters materially in not raising enough money by taxation from the first to supply the village wants for the year.

THE question that will engross the minds of the Common Council now is where shall the new steamer be kept. For temporary purposes it is thought that space in Rough Bros' wareroom may be rented until a new engine house may be built next spring. This necessitates the purchase of a lot and the erection of a brick building, at some point convenient to the central portion of town.

THE melting snow and soaking rain this part of the country has received the past week, has filled a want "long felt"-felt since sometime in August, by the ground that has been too dry for the good of growing wheat or to keep wells in good condition. There being no frost a large portion of the moisture has been absorbed.

THE young ladies took advantage of the last moment, and had a leap year party at Gotlip Boyle's residence, just west of town. Monday evening. It was new business for the ladies to tramp around through the rain and and mud doing the gallant, employing teams and other necessaries, but under the circumstonces they did pretty well. Commenced pretty late in the year.

THE spelling school in Rough's Opera House Monday evening was a decided success. Mrs. S. Whitman was the champion speller, and took the bed rived here on the 24th to spend the quilt. We learn that it is the intenholidays and a few weeks with her tion of Mrs. Whitman to put up the quilt for another match at some near future date. The second prize was captured by Warren McDaniel. It would be no great damage to the country if such entertainments might be of frequent occurrence, for if there is any one thing in which ordinary young America is more deficient in than another it is in the orthography of the on duty again. Wirn to-day the time expires in which the lamented Parker was to have had the St. Joseph Valley railroad in perfect operation to St. Joseph. It is not quite perfect, but the company is now at liberty to contract with someone else to complete the work Parker commenced and did not finish, and not be in any way liable to Mr. Parker. Again our hopes arise.

MRS. MARY SMITH, wife of James Smith, sister of C., F., and H. J. Howe, died at the home of her son, R. A. Demont, in South Bend, on Wednesday, Dec. 24. The remains were brought to the Howe cemetery for interment. A number from this place attended the funeral, which was held at the residence of C.F. Howe, in Bertrand town-

HENRY SMITH, of German township, about five miles north of South Bend, was killed Tuesday forenoon, while out rabbit hunting, by the accidental discharge of his shot-gun, the entire charge taking effect in the abdomen. He lived about half an hour after the accident, retaining consciousness until the last. He was 55 years of age, a widower, leaving five children, all grown, and claims to be the first white child born in St. Joseph county, Ind. The funeral is held to-day in Portage Prairie chapel.

Mr. WM. Burrus has been sweetening up ye Editor's palate with a card of fine honey. He says it is in consideration of the scoring we gave him as Highway Commissioner, in the question of the road at the south-west corner of the township, but we think that must be a joke of some sort. The score was meant more for the people who live in that immediate vicinity and have wallowed through that mud. from twenty-five to forty years, rather than spend a couple of days each with teams to gravel a ten rods strip of road, just because the tax of the district did not compel them to do so. It shows a degree of public spirit, rarely met.

THERE appears to be considerable premature complaint about the action of the Common Council in the purchase of a steamer. The men who formed the committee to recommend the purchase, are men of good judgment and who are personally interested in village affairs, and who would not be likely to recommend any purchase they did not, upon thorough investigation, consider the best that could be done. The purchase by the Council is a conditional one, and if the machine does not completely fill the bill, there is no necessity for the village to be at any expense for the trial, nor be under any obligation to take the machine. The probability is that the engine will be exactly as represented. There will be time enough to protest when the engine has been brought here and proven unsatis-

THEY BOUGHT IT -At a special meeting held Saturday forenoon, the Common Council contracted with the Silsby Steam Fire Engine Company for one of their $4,000 engines, to be delivered in Buchanan within thirty days. The company sends a competent engineer to teach the fire company how to operate the machine, and give a good and thorough warranty of the machine to do good work for ten years. The engine they buy is one that has been rebuilt by the company and costs $2,000, delivered here in good working order. Agents for the Button and & Jones engines both piston pumps, were here with offers of $2,900 and $3,100 respectively for new engines. The Silsby has a rotary engine and rotary pump. The machine most in favor of the committee was the Clapp & Jones, but the difference in the value of the two machines did not look to the committee as great as the $1,100 difference in the price. A most excellent rule is to never buy secondhand machinery, but there are a few exceptions, and this may be one of them. The warranty is a good one, if the ma-

New Orleans Correspondence. Dec. 27, 1884.

EDITOR RECORD:-Perhaps some of your readers .who were shivering around their red hot stoves, with the mercury below zero, during the late cold snap of the 18th, would like to know how that part of the land of flowers in which the crescent city is located fared. Candor compels me to admit that we did not escape entirely, but had one day and night that were decidedly too cold to be pleasant, ice forming in the streets at night as thick as window glass, killing many of the tender flowers and vegetables that were not protected. Fortunately the wind had dried the water off the oranges so the frost did not hurt them. The orange crop this year is above the average in quality, and much above in quantity. I have seen trees so loaded with the rich, yellow fruit that the foliage was scarcely visible, and nearly all the limbs had to be propped up to keep them from breaking.

At the exposition there is an orange tree that was shipped here from Florida in a tub, is six feet high, five and one-half feet across, and has 150 oranges on now, several having fallen off.

The city of New Orleans being lower than the river, the system of drainage is very poor, all surplus water being pumped into a canal, carrying it to Lake Ponchartrain. The ground at all times has all the water it will absorb, and immediately after a heavy rain the water will be a foot deep on some of the streets, making it very inconvenient for pedestrians for a few hours, but when the water has passed off one partially forgets the disagreeableness of the streets, by seeing so many elegant yards filled with a great variety of roses and many other kinds of flowers, statuary, tropical plants, live oaks, and of course orange trees everywhere. The exposition is gradually assuming proper shape, and thousands of the exhibits are completed, yet the great majority of them are not yet in order, but as the sound of hammer and saw is heard in every direction, and thousands of workmen, including painters, decorators and glaciers, are constantly at work, and new booths and pagodas are springing up every day, we conclude that it will not be long until all the exhibits will be in proper place. I am frequently asked the question as to how this compares with the Philadelphia exposition, and can only say that I am not yet prepared to judge, as I saw that at its best, and so far this is only in its infancy; but if this turns out to be all that is promised it will go far ahead of the centennial exposition. but if it should not equal that in magnitude there is so much to be seen here that can be seen nowhere else that no one who can afford to come should miss seeing it. Hotel and boardinghouse accommodations are high, but so far, plenty of it, and the general opinion is that there will be no lack of accommodation for all who come. Yesterday the car drivers all struck, leaving thousands of people to foot it home from the exposition, through the mud and rain. Fortunately the subscriber and better half (generally there) happened to stay at home yesterday. The cars will probably be running all right again in a few days, and in the meantime boats and steam cars will be brought into service. H. II. KINYON.

DR. JOHN BULL'S FOR THE CURE OF

FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER. AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. whatever will it fail to cure it the direc-tions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole fami-lies have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

A NEW DRESS REFORM.

made by nature to protect animal life, linen underclothing, the cotton linings

From these facts Dr. Gustav Jaeger, professor of zoology and physiology at Stuttgart, deduces his medical theory, which has won innumerable disciples in an incredibly short time. Dr. Jaeger points out that the human body is most susceptible to disease when it contains too large a quantity of water or of fat.

What is now known as Dr. Jacger's ingette undergarments made of pure unbuttoned well up to the throat, contains no lining nor padding, unless of pure wool, and is either undyed, or treated with only uninjurious fast dyes. The same rule applies to the trousers, while the waistcoat is either dispensed with altogether or it forms an inner lap affixed to the side of the coat. Inside the sleeves and the trousers legs there is a contrivance, which, fastening tight round the limb, prevents up draughts, for cold, rheumatism, lumbago, etc., are caught by the sudden rush of cold air to one particular part of the body, and not by the gradual cooling of the entire system. The feet are clad in pure woolen socks, with divisions for each toe, while the upper part of the boot is made of felt, the lower part also of felt or of porous leather, and the inner soles consists of perforated leather and layers of felt. Thus the boot is thoroughly porous, and the feet are consequently body where the blood vessels converge these are stimulated, and, as an even temperature throughout is maintained, the necessity for great coats is obviated, rain or damp having little or no effect, for in every case gradual and even evaporation is insured. While they are the best protection against cold, these clothes are also the coolest in summer.

Little or no change need be made between winter and summer, at least in may be called. The substitution of a collar made of unstarched white cashmere for the customary starched linen collar is the most conspicuous feature in the dress; otherwise it would be difficult to detect the disciples of this system. The cashmere collar, however, is not only most comfortable but is a pre-the day must be continued at night.

The bed must also be free from vegeta-ble fiber. The linen sheet must be re-placed by woolen blankets or camel-hair rugs, with white cashmere sheets if preferred. The mattress and the pillow should also be stuffed and covered with wool; but when thus protected the sleeper need fear neither cold nor change of temperature, and is, therefore, urged to keep his window well open at night.

Indeed the possibility of thus securing pure air in the bed-room without risk is one of the most important advantages of the system. In reward for this great change in the mode of living the action of the skin is so stimulated that the noxious principles, the "bad humors" our fore-fathers so often spoke about, are soon given off and evaporated. Corpulence is reduced, the flesh becomes firm and thoroughly "hardened," while the acceleration of nervous action and general improvement in the physical and mental working newers is demonstrated by the working powers is demonstrated by the stop-watch test. Then, according to Dr.

Jaeger, the body has resumed its "normal" condition.
Such, briefly, is the reform in clothing approved and carried out by thousands of Germans, not a few Russians, and some Englishmen, and which has been introduced in our midst at the South Kensington International Health exhibition, and by the opening of a depot in Fore street, where articles of The Unpleasantness of Interviewing.

[Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.]
In spite of the fun and excitement there is in interviewing—the flying all over the city for a man who is nobody knows where, the speculating on the chances of making the man talk when he has been caught—there is a great deal of unpleasantness in some interviews. It's very hard to go into a family where a father lies dead and interview the son for an obituary; it's harder still, if there is no son, to face the widow and have to ask her cold, business-like questions. Yet it has to be done, not because the newspaper wants the obituary—unless it concerns a famous man—but because the relatives desire to see it printed. Reporters are not the hardened, calloused mortals some people think they are. They are as susceptible to distress as other men, though they must face it, being pushed on by their business. Sometimes the circumstances are too much for them,

People in considering reporters are apt to forget one important fact-that he is an impersonation of his paper's circulation. Wherever he goes upon a business errand he represents all who read his paper — say 100,000 persons, for the readers of a good paper are more than twice the number of the subscribers. The reporter is a committee of one sent by all those people as it were, to inquire into certain matters for them. This is a consideration which places a self-respecting re-porter on a level with the most exalted man he meets. If he is not a gentleman, he ought to be, in spite of his numerous temptations, for there is no nobler profession on earth than his if he

[Los. Angeles Cor. Pioneer Press.] Into anything like close contact with Thousands of Germans Now Wearing Woolen Clothing Only. [London Times.] The doctrine starts with the fundamental principle that, being animals, we should wear animal clothing. The absorption by vegetable life of poisonous emanation from animal life is a process not limited, it would appear, to living plants, but continued by vegetable fiber such as cotton, linen, etc., with the dif-ference that while the living plant assimthe ostriches we could not come, as a space intervenes between the fence which bars out visitors and the enclosure containing the birds, such precautions being rendered necessary by the viciousness of the latter. It seems that these curious creatures are the greatest kickers in the world, our host having had five men kicked to death by them in Africa. The keepers have to exercise the utmost care in approaching them, even when giving them their food. Each pair is placed in a separate enclosure, and ilates these emanations; the dead fiber can not do so, but exhales them again when wetted or warmed. Thus our clothes, in consequence of their vegetaone obstreperous male I observed in solitary confinement—the penalty for a ble character, attract and retain those successful attempt to kick his mate to noxious principles which should, on the pieces. The amiable creatures will frecontrary, be thrown off with the greatquently kick the pickets of their enclosures into splinters, sending the frag-ments flying directly into the faces of the amazed spectators. Their feet are shaped much like one's thumb and foreest possible promptitude. On the other hand, animal material, such as wool, is and will not prevent, but assist the evaporation of the emanations coming finger in conjunction, and at the end of the longer toe is a claw about an inch in length, with which they strike. The muscles of the legs are astonishingly powerful, and the kick is not an ortho-der kick being forward instead of backfrom the body. This can readily be proved by the sense of smell. It suffices to wear clothes of pure wool throughout, and there is at once an end to the unpleasantness noticed in the dox kick, being forward instead of backward. When the feathers are to be plucked, the birds are driven into a V-shaped pen at the end of the enclosure, the plucker operating from behind. Their food con-sists of corn and alfalfa; and when eating they are excruciatingly hideous, being all mouth. An ostrich, with its long, lank legs, and ill-proportioned, overtop-ping body, its elongated neck, absurdly small head, and stupid, sullen eyes, is about as devoid of beauty as anything living could possibly be. But the feath ers? Well, the feathers—gray in the female, and black, with white under the wings and tail, in the male-are beautiful, when separated from their legitimate owners and placed in close proximity to the bright eyes of a pretty woman; and Mistress Bright-Eyes may sport her plumage without wasting sentiment on the original possessors of these enhancements to her charms, knowing that the ungallant creatures would gladly kick her to death, were they only given the chance.

Tricks of Parisian Beggars

[Paris Cor. Philadelphia Times.] The beggars of Paris have been written up in a variety of ways, and though they have been in a measure suppressed by the present system of police they are still an amusing and interesting feature. They practice medicancy as a fine art, and instances have been well authenticated of successful deceptions carried on for years. One man with a distressing ulcer on his leg, who had for a long time excited disgust and compassion, was found to have two healthy members he had his limb painted and swathed to represent disease in a manner that defied detection; and a blind beggar with two disfigured and swollen eyes had been for years "doctored" so as to carry out his deception.

A poor, lame, and apparently distorted cripple was one day the butt of some aggravating gamins. Suddenly he raised the crutch he always had besides him when sitting apparently helpless, and straightening himself up fled after his tormentors and displayed to the astonished passers-by a straight and active figure. It is almost incredable the way these mendicants can distort and disfigure themselves to excite compassion, and many prefer it to obtaining a livelihood in an honest way. There are artists in "deformities" who make money by their curious and repulsive art. and some excel in their skill, and the beggar will counterfeit the same deformities for years with a persistency worthy of a better cause. Odd Facts and Figures

The substitution of a [Atlanta Constitution.] In glancing over Mr. Mulhall's book of statistics one comes across some odd facts and figures. Here are a few selected at random: The English people lected at random: The English people use $2,800,000 worth of blacking annually. There are 7,000,000 cats in the united kingdom. The countess of Desmond was killed in her 146 year by falling from a cherry tree. Madame Fresobaldi, of Florence, had fifty two children. Great Britain makes 330,000,000 pins weekly. It will be seen from these specimens that it is posseen from these specimens that it is possible to extract fresh ideas and material for small gossip, instruction and amusement, even from a mass of dry sta-

Fisher's Balloon Discovery.

[Paris Dispatch to London Standard.] An engineer named Fisher is reported to have made an important discovery in aeronautics, by which he is enabled to condense or expand the gas in a balloon. The agent he employs is compressed carbonic acid, with the help of which he can ascend or descend with pleasure. This perpendicular movement puts it in the power of the aeronaut to go up or down until he finds a current of air moving in the horizontal direction he wishes. Military critics attribute great importance to this discovery, because in time of war a balloon will be able to reach the enemy's territory and ascend again without requiring a fresh supply of gas.

The aggregate length of submarine cables in existence is no less than 60,000 geographical miles, or nearly three times as much as the circum-ference of the earth. Each of these cables consist, on an average, of forty wires, core and jacket together; therefore it may be said that the length of the iron and copper wire by which the telegraphic communications are carried on at the bottom of the sea is no less than 25,000,000 miles, or ten times the distance of the earth from the moon.

> Lightning Tricycles. [Exchange.]

Experiments with an electric tricycle in England have been so encouraging that 250 machines will be built. They are driven by a storage battery, carry two persons and are expected to run at the rate of six miles an hour on level ground. One of them is now on its way to this country.

In Mexico it is unmannerly to eat anything outside of a house, even candy. A Fortune in "Beeswax."

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

"Did ye ever hear of the original dis-coverer of the Toughnut mine at Tomb-stone? Well, he was a regular tenderfoot from 'way back, and was workin' with two pards on the claim, an' one day he came up from the bottom of the shaft an' says he, 'Boys,' said he, 'I'm played out, and I ain't got no more heart in this racket. I allow as long as I was striking anything like ore I'd stand it out here, but may ye spit on my graveif I ain't working heasway' an' he showed ain't working beeswax,' an' he showed his pards a piece of rock thickly covered with a brown substance as did look un-commonly like wax. 'Will ye take $300 for your share?' said one of his pards. 'Bet yer sweet life I will,' and so the stuff was handed over, the quitclaim deed made out, an' the tenderfoot lost a fortune. The thing he took for bees-wax was chloride of silver, an' the rock went $15,000 to the ton: stranger, it ain't every man's a judge of rock."

One Woman's Heroism. [New York Tribune.]

Doubtless the late postmaster general of England owed his success largely to the ability, energy and devotion of h's excellent wife. But there is no truth in the current story that she once had her finger crushed in the carriage door hinge as she was riding to the house of commons with him, and bravely endured the torture in silence rather than dis-Mrs. Benjamin Disraeli was the heroine of it, and but for her fortitude then her husband perhaps never would have be-come earl of Beaconsfield.
