ELIMINATION.

Filtration is elimination.—Zuluage.

Well, if filtration is elimination, our fears away'll bring For, if he's right, Damnation's thing.

A pleasant kind of thing.

And, by the way, That just experience teaches They'll be once more, Just as of yore, Damnation at the beaches,

And sad to tell, To know all well Who his experience searches, There's often been, Plain to be seen, Damnation in the churches.

"O. K."

A Tale of Wares and 'Cycles.

HELEN M. WINSLOW.

CHAPTER IV.

"No. 2 is stuck in the snow at Bardwell's cut. Engine disabled. Send help, please, quickly, and get the engine started."

"Mike," said the conductor, "I'll be right with you."

"O. K.," was the answer, as the young girl turned to the individual standing by the engine.

"Mike," said she, "I'm disabled at Bardwell's cut. They want your engine to go up and help them through."

"Get us orders then, from headquarters," was the reply. "I wouldn't go a step without orders, if it was my own brother freezing to death up there."

"But the line is open south of us, and I can't get them," persisted the girl. "Perhaps I can get them from the conductor No. 2."

"He has no right to give me orders," objected Mike.

"Certainly he has," answered Sadie; "when it is impossible to get the main office, the conductor's orders are the only ones that can give orders to a freight to come along."

"That's not in my catechism," replied the newly fledged official, "I don't take no orders from any but the main office."

"All right," replied the girl, and added to herself, "There's more than one way to manage you."

Just then came the feeble call—"V for Interment!"

"Here," said she, "I'll be right with you."

"I'll be right with you," she said to Mike. "Will you sign it?"

"No; I shan't sign no orders from Brown, nor take none, neither," was the pompous reply.

"I'll get one from the main line for you."

Mike was satisfied with this accommodating spirit on the part of the operator, and went out by the big stove, feeling that he had maintained the dignity of his office under trying circumstances. But Sadie Woodbury proceeded to repeat the message to the conductor, signing Mike's name in full to it, and took the "O. K.," which made the understanding good.

"It may be wrong and deceitful," she thought, "but when a man is an obstinate pig, there's no use in arguing with him."

"Then she took one of the blanks provided by the railroad company and made out a regular order from the train dispatcher, and carried it out to the engine."

"Will you sign this?" she said, showing him the order.

"I'll sign it," he answered when he was satisfied that everything was in accordance with the letter of the law—so far as he knew it.

"Now, that's something like," he proceeded to put his name in the wrong corner of the blank.

"Here," said the girl, laughing in her sleeve. "You've got the wrong corner. Put your name over there and get the engine to put his name right in the middle of the blank."

"I signed one before, did you?" she added, maliciously.

Mike pretended not to hear, but went out and got the signature of the engineer, and in a few minutes more the engine of the mixed train started for Bardwell's cut.

"I presume Mackay will not approve of what I did when he comes to hear of it," he muttered, as he signed to the train dispatcher for the road. "But what is the use of disputing with a thick-headed Irishman, when you can much easier outwit him by the use of your common sense?"

She bent over the instruments again. Again came her call, feebly, unevenly, and again she responded.

"Anything for us?" was the inquiry. "We're coming up here. Send help, for heaven's sake, quick."

"The engine and three men have just gone," was her answer. "Will be there soon."

"Thanks. Good-night."

"G. N.," responded the girl, using the telegraphic abbreviations; and then she resigned herself to another hour or two of waiting.

"The old man thought," she said to herself, "that my father don't come," she said to herself. "He's been gone nearly four hours."

But just then there was a stamping at the door, and her parent walked in, covered with snow.

"I thought you had frozen, father," she said. "You were gone so long."

"I did come mighty near it," was the reply. "Tipped over twice going up. You came back with me. She's over to the house. Thought probably she couldn't get through in the morning."

Sadie told her father the story as far as she knew it.

"Where'd they telegraph from?" asked the father.

"That's just what I've been wondering. The order was dated Bardwell's cut, and the telegraph was sent from there, because the wire worked so feebly and there was no time. If I got the order through, that was all that was wanted of me."

"Kind of queer, though, seems to me," reflected the old man, "not to know who you are sending messages to."

"Then Sadie told her father how she outwitted the conductor."

"The company'll turn him off for acting so," he averred. "He always was an obstinate creature."

"Don't tell them of it, father," was the reply. "He's no use. Besides, I don't care about my part of the transaction coming to Mackay's ears. Well, now, let's make it warm and pleasant here, for there'll be a lot of half-frozen people along by-and-by."

"Guess I better go over to the house and get a lunch ready for 'em, hadn't I?" was the response. "It will be one o'clock before they get here."

"You're right," said the girl, "and bring over the coffee-pot and the coffee. They'll need it."

CHAPTER V.

Meanwhile, how were matters going on, up at Bardwell's cut?

After Walter St. John had sent the conductor's order down to Victory and given the "O. K.," to him, he became conscious that he was suffering intensely with the cold. His fingers, which had been so stiff he could hardly use them for telegraphic signs by bringing the ends of the wire together, now lost all feeling as well as skill. The frosty ends of the wire, too, which he often placed in his mouth, made his tongue burn as if it had touched hot coals.

"Guess I shall have to go in and get warm," he said to the conductor. "We will come out again in a few minutes."

"No," said the conductor, "I'll be right with you."

"O. K.," was the answer, as the young girl turned to the individual standing by the engine.

"Mike," said she, "I'm disabled at Bardwell's cut. They want your engine to go up and help them through."

"Get us orders then, from headquarters," was the reply. "I wouldn't go a step without orders, if it was my own brother freezing to death up there."

"But the line is open south of us, and I can't get them," persisted the girl. "Perhaps I can get them from the conductor No. 2."

"He has no right to give me orders," objected Mike.

"Certainly he has," answered Sadie; "when it is impossible to get the main office, the conductor's orders are the only ones that can give orders to a freight to come along."

"That's not in my catechism," replied the newly fledged official, "I don't take no orders from any but

JOHN G. HOLMES, Editor.

THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1885.

The cold wave of last week is credited to the fact that Democratic politicians found it such a cold day in Washington.

The vote to pass the minority representative bill over the Governor's veto lacked five of the necessary two-thirds, and failed to pass.

The State crop report at Royal Oak says 50 per cent of the peach trees in this section are killed, and 75 per cent of all other fruit except apples.

Since Swineford received the appointment as Governor of Alaska a stock company is to be organized in Marquette to mine for gold in his new domain.

Offensive Partisan.—A Republican who holds a government office that is wanted by some Democrat. This definition will appear in the supplement of the next edition of Webster's Dictionary.

Maxwell, the young snob who is supposed to have left the headless body of his friend Preller locked in a trunk in a St. Louis hotel, and decamped with his money, has been arrested in New Zealand, and will be brought back to St. Louis to answer to the charge of murder.

A new illustration of the difficulty of procuring justice at the hands of an American jury was had in New York, when Dick Short, arrested for attempting to murder Capt. Phelan of Kansas City, in O'Donnovan Rossa's office, a few months since, was found not guilty, plainly contrary to the evidence, law, judge's charge, common decency, public safety, and nearly everything else.

Quite a number of local papers of the sanctimonious order are giving the Police Gazette fifty cents worth of advertising for each issue of that paper that they might buy for ten cents. The best advertisement that can be given that paper and all others of its sort would be the passing of a law prohibiting its circulation within the State.

Ex-Postmaster Palmer of Chicago thinks his removal, without giving him a chance to answer the charges made against him, an unheard of proceeding, and is astonished at it. He will hear of a good many unheard of proceedings before the close of the present administration.

The Russian Nihilists have concluded that in consequence of the probability of a foreign war they will spare the life of the Czar two years, and during that time no attempt is to be made to blow him up. The only safety from this terrible people seems to be in provoking a war. It is generous of them, however, to spare him for so long a time.

The recent postponement of the obnoxious tax sale is materially inconveniencing quite a number of townships in the State. Under the present law the delinquents are all carried by the townships, and they in turn depend upon the tax sales for their money, and when the amounts are large the effect on the township is not most agreeable.

The Bismark, Dakota, Tribune tells of large numbers of Irishmen passing through that country, presumably on their way to join Reil and his rebels, although they travel as hunters and make frequent inquiry about game prospects. The Tribune looks upon the immigration as a Fenian movement against Canada.

The legislative committee appointed to locate the Soldiers home were banqueting in Battle Creek Monday. They went away feeling good and pronounced the Gogneau lake site the finest yet offered. What Battle Creek does not know about handling a legislative committee it is useless to attempt to learn, in one collegiate term.

It is now becoming plain why Manning made so many discharges of employes in the treasury department when first taking control, in the interest of reform, "and to reduce the expense of the department." The places of the superfluous clerks are now being filled by his political workers who want places. Civil service reform is splendid to run a political campaign on, but for actual business it is nowhere.

The democrats have finished counting Uncle Sam's cash at Washington and were greatly surprised to find it correct to a cent. The new treasurer said on the completion of the work: "I am just as well satisfied as if the deficit had been $20. There is not a cent that has not been accounted for. It is a remarkable result and one calling for congratulations."

Not an unfavorable contrast with the condition of affairs when the change was made in 1860.

The election case in the thirty-fourth Illinois legislature district is still a source of trouble to the democrats. At last report only one of the county clerks has reported to the Secretary of State as required by law, and in the mean time the leaders about Springfield are studying up some scheme by which they can defeat the choice of the people. Mackin, McDonald & Co. are needed.

The Cubans are becoming anxious to have the United States buy their island, and a delegation of them are in Washington to see what can be done about it. While there are many objectionable features connected with the island and its population, principally the latter, there are many good reasons why Cuba should belong to this country. In case of any difficulty resembling war with any European nation, Cuba would be found a very convenient key to the mouth of the Gulf of Mexico.

President Cleveland and his Secretary of State, in getting a Democratic renegade named Kelly into some lucrative office, are doing themselves great credit. They have appointed him to a number of foreign consulates, but the several countries have each refused to receive him, because his character is such that they cannot associate with him. High honors are being heaped on this nation by the Democratic administration that appears to be scouring the country for roughs and blackguards to fill the offices with.

Three of the leading Utah Mormons have just received the maximum sentence of six months imprisonment and $200 fine, each, for unlawfully living with two many wives at one time. One of them was Angus Cannon, who has three wives, but plead that while he was married to the women and they all lived in the house with him, his habitations were confined to one. This made no impression on the Judge, and his sentence was the same as the others.

President Cleveland has made one more appointment of a foreign mission, to a man who is neither a blackguard nor a whisky blot. That was Thursday, when he selected G. V. N. Lothrop, of Detroit, to be Minister to Russia. If the President would confine his appointments to such honorable men as Mr. Lothrop there could not be such serious objection to the rule, "To the victors belong the spoils," but when he crowds such fellows as Kelly, Meiers, Pillsbury, and a number of others who have received prominent appointments at his hands, it is an insult to this country and to the ones they may be sent to represent us.

The State of Illinois probably contains the maddest lot of Democrats in existence. The thirty-fourth legislative district is, by the vote at the November election, Democratic by over 5,000 majority, and nearly 1,500 for State Senator Shaw, who died recently. Last Thursday a special election was held to fill the vacancy, and no Republican caucuses having been held or nominees announced on that side, the Democrats thought they had an open field, and only about 40 per cent of them voted, while fully 75 per cent of the Republicans, by a secret understanding, came to the polls during the last hour, and when the ballots were counted it was found that Capt. W. A. Weaver, a Republican, had been elected by over 300 majority. The news spread consternation among Democrats throughout the State, and three of the political leaders in the State Senate immediately had business with the county clerks in that district.

The legislature is at work on a plan to curtail the supply of cadavers to be sent to the University, which caused Dr. Donald McLean to remark: "Anything done by the legislature to hamper the medical colleges in procuring subjects for dissection is a mistake. Human bodies the students must have, and if the bodies of convicts are not allowed them by law—well, past experience shows what the result will be."

The Illinois Democrats, who allowed the Republicans to steal a district usually good for 2,000 Democratic majority and elect a Representative that gives the legislature to the Republicans, will please step up to the captain's office and take the largest number of medals in stock.—Troy Press (Dem.).

Certainly, if "offensive partisans" ought to be removed from office, it is much more true that the same administration which makes such removals ought not to appoint offensive partisans to office. And yet the President has appointed a long list of notorious "offensive partisans"—offensive not merely because they are partisans, not merely for doing honorable party work, but offensive for engaging in dishonest and unscrupulous conduct for notorious and loud-mouthed distasteful, offensive for ruthlessly vulgar and disgraceful manners and conduct, offensive for indecency and immorality, and offensive for dishonest and foolishness. Such appointments as Chase and Pillsbury, notorious for trying to steal an election; Meier, a cowardly, drunken bully who assaulted a gray-headed Union naval officer, who boasted of being an unrepentant rebel, and whose wife has just obtained a divorce from him on the ground of brutality; Kelley, whose foolishness of speech has plunged him into trouble all around—these are only the more conspicuous instances in a long list of appointments plainly unfit to be made. When good and reputable officials are turned out, under the pretense of rebuking "offensive partisans," and then such notoriously offensive men are put in their places, it is a recommendation that they are partisans, any pretense of reform is a self-evident mockery.—Detroit Post.

President Cleveland has done well for his own reputation in revoking the appointment of James Blackburn of Kentucky, a notorious rebel and disgraced rebel leader, written during the war, has been widely published. That letter was published before Blackburn was appointed, and he ought not to have been appointed. Secretary Manning of the treasury department is the putative father of this appointment. But if Blackburn ought not to have been appointed because of his letter, written in 1861, neither ought Kelley, because of his speech made only a few days ago, declaring the government at present existing on the basis of a bloody wrong in the invasion of the South. President Cleveland has wiped out all crime and all disgrace, and left the pardoned man as innocent and spotless as though he had never sinned; and this even to the extent of setting aside the positive disqualification of the constitution of the United States. James Blackburn was pardoned by President Johnson just the same as Layton and the others. If this made Layton a fit subject for office, did it not also purge Blackburn? If the President is going, after all, to make disloyalty during the war a qualification for office, consistency would seem to require the driving of a plank between them, and applying it to all alike. The Republicans drew the line at unrepentant treason. Where will President Cleveland draw it?—Detroit Post.

Representative Webber has applied to the superintendents of the poor in the various counties for a statement of the number of soldiers of the late war in poor houses in this state. Replies have been received from twenty-eight counties, which altogether give relief to 82 soldiers in their poor house, and to eight others outside relief. The list in detail is as follows: Gratiot, 2; Hillsdale, 5; Sanilac, 2; Washtenaw, 7; Lenoire, 2; Monroe, 1; Oakland, 2; Livingston, 1; Bay, 1; Ottawa, 1; Tuscola, 1; Jackson, 0; Isabella, 5; Allegan, 1; Tazewell, 1; St. Joseph, 2; Barry, 2; Macomb, 2; Midland, 0; Branch, 1; Newaygo, 2; St. Clair, 4.

Washington Letter. WASHINGTON, May 11, 1885. The past week has been an exceptional one in some respects at the White House. Monday, the occasion of the President's excursion to Gettysburg, was the first day he has spent away from the Mansion since he entered it. Saturday was the first day that he has closed his doors to callers and declared himself invisible. He decided some time ago that he would have to reserve one day of the week for himself, when he would be inaccessible to office seekers, autograph beggars and other bores. Saturday last he rigidly kept his day. Visitors besieged the doorkeepers in crowds. Senators and Members of the House, individual office seekers and office seekers in delegations called in as large numbers as if there had been no announcement given of Mr. Cleveland's intention to have closed doors. The doorkeepers, however, were equal to their orders, and no amount of indignation availed a caller in his efforts to ascend the staircase or send up a card. The Cabinet members were the only ones who could pass the portals, and make further progress than the East Room.

There has been much excitement among Democratic politicians about their conference held at Willard's hotel the other evening. It was an indignant meeting to protest against the so-called tardiness of the Administration in turning the Republicans out. Since then it has been stated by some of his advisers that President Cleveland has experienced a change of heart, which is to be followed by a change of policy in making appointments. However this may be, it is really true that those nearest the President are now asserting that the "clean sweep" promised during the last campaign is coming. They say it may continue to be too slow for many who are worn out with waiting, but that it will be none the less sure.

Some of the President's friends have tried to console him by the assurance that when he moves out to the Soldiers' Home for the summer, he will be comparatively free from the intrusions of office hunters. Mr. Cleveland has no faith, however, in the power of hot weather or distance to overcome this tiresome class. His summer cottage will be only two miles from the White House, and he knows that the patriots who have traveled a thousand or more miles for spoils will not mind adding two miles more to their journey.

There has been no falling off in the number of office seekers during the past week. Some Senators who went to their homes a fortnight ago have returned. They left in order to get rid of their constituents who were here, and now they come back to get rid of their constituents at home. Among the daily visitors at the White House and Executive Department it is noticed that there are three gentlemen who receive special attention and do very little waiting in corridors and ante-rooms. They are ex-Speaker Randall, Senator Gorman and Chairman Barnum.

A large number of persons went to the White House grounds on Saturday afternoon expecting to hear an open air concert by the Marine Band, and were disappointed. During several former administrations it has been the custom to have these concerts given to the public weekly, beginning on the first Saturday in May and continuing until late in September. Mr. Cleveland is disposed to frown upon these delightful entertainments, which have received the sanction of former Presidents, and it is doubtful if he orders them to be resumed.

It has been stated that Mr. Cleveland would remove his residence to the "President's Cottage" in a week or two. He could not find a more delightful place to live than the Executive Mansion will be for at least six weeks yet, and he has no intention of leaving it until the beginning of the heated term. Thanks to the good taste of ex-President Arthur, both the White House and the President's Cottage never looked so attractive as they do now. Whatever Mr. Cleveland's individual tastes may be, he has already shown that he appreciates the taste of his predecessor in his desire to make no change. He intends to allow his surroundings to remain just as he found them. Mr. Arthur made the Cottage habitable and cosy by taking the old carpets of the East Room and Blue parlor and having them made into rugs for it. Then he gathered up old pieces of furniture that were in hidden corners of the Mansion and put them in the poorly furnished cottage. The result has been to make it attractive and comfortable.

State Items. The Mayor of Jackson receives the same salary as the Governor of the State. Hon. Allen Potter, of Kalamazoo, ex-member of Congress from this district, died, Friday. Z. C. Aldrich, of Cassopolis, has been appointed deputy warden of the State prison to succeed Mr. Drake. In Benoa, Oceana county, a well was sunk 152 feet, which threw up water 16 feet above the ground level. Preparations for Fourth of July celebrations are already being made in various parts of the state. John Bessner's little daughter was probably fatally burned at East Saginaw, Tuesday, by her clothes taking fire.

Emory A. Storrs will deliver the address at the next meeting of the Cass County Pioneer Society, to be held June 17. At the last Litchfield council meeting it was voted not to license the druggists to sell liquors even for medicinal purposes. Mr. Charles Clement, of Colon, St. Joseph county, shipped 11,000 dozen of eggs during April, so says the Three Rivers Tribune. Oceana county fruit men say they have live peach buds enough to make a crop, but are afraid the fruit will not mature, owing to excessive cold.

It is reported that five Iowa young men hold one-tenth of a ticket in the Havana lottery, drawing the second prize of $200,000. A lamb with two perfect bodies joined at the shoulders, with eight legs and four ears, is on exhibition at St. Louis meat market.—Evening News.

Tramps who apply to Battle Creek officers for a place to sleep, are required to work the next day, so the city is bothered very little with them lately. In the Eaton county circuit court Helen Meech has recovered a judgment of $40 against the Chicago & Grand Trunk railway company for a horse killed by the cars. The Port Huron common council is composed of four merchants, two machinists, an insurance and real estate agent, two railway men, one blacksmith, one carpenter and one dry goods clerk. A solid bed of salt, 34 feet thick, was struck, yesterday, at Manistee by Wheeler, Magill & Co., at a depth of 1,087 feet. They will soon begin making 300 barrels of salt per day. Persons inclined to deal in option will have an opportunity, at Detroit May 21. The annual auction sale of uncalled-for packages by the U. S. Express Company will be held that day. Miss Nettie Sutton, of Kalamazoo, started a Sunday school four years ago among the poor which now has an attendance of over 100, with preaching every Sunday, and a church is contemplated. A saw at the Whitehall manufacturing company's works burnt recently, and a piece hitting Lars Thurgren in the face destroying one eye, out of his nose and otherwise injured him so that his death is probable. Fifteen fine sheep belonging to a farmer of Rollin township, Leavenue county, had to be killed last week because of being afflicted with hydrophobia. Their strange actions discounted the vagaries of a most ridiculously insane man. A leading Grand Rapids citizen is said to have given $1,000 to help pay the debt on Kalamazoo college, which debt necessitated its closing after the present term. Secretary Boyden, of the college, is trying to secure subscriptions to make up the deficit in the revenues.—Evening News.

While building a fence around the Mayville cemetery, the other day, a coffin was struck outside the platted grounds. The coffin was of small size, but contained a portion of a frame of a grown man. The authorities are suspicious that a crime has been committed. Workmen engaged in ditching on the farm of C. N. Cook, of Corunna, unearthed a part of the remains of a man, the underjaw, which is whole, measured three feet on the inside. The remains were found about three feet under ground. There is a story going the rounds about an alleged sportsman, who, at the request of a friend, went to Oak Grove for the purpose of catching frogs, and while there speared 20 big toads, which he brought back and presented them to the friend, thinking they were frogs.—Day City Tribune.

James Surlis, his hired man and girl, Jefferson township, Cass county, were taken very sick, recently, with cramps and vomiting. Five doctors examined the patients, three pronouncing the symptoms to be those of arsenical poison, and two believing them to be produced from drinking well water poisoned by the lead valves of the pump. All will recover, probably, though very sick.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

The faithfulness of a dog was illustrated yesterday on Canal street. A handsome canine was left in charge of a basket about noon, and until daylight this morning he did not leave his post. All kinds of food was offered him, but he refused to eat. A crowd of several hundred men witnessed and admired the dog's fidelity. And yet the dog is called a brute.—Grand Rapids Leader.

Incessant rain for 30 hours at Royal Oak has made creeks into raging torrents, while smaller drains have grown into rivers. Terrible damage is done in the eastern part of the town, where all the creeks and drains of the township empty, and the outlet is very narrow. Everywhere bridges are wrecked and cellars filled with water. Farmers who have sown their oats find them floating away through the country. They say the rain has put active work back fully two weeks.—Evening News, Friday.

Gov. Hill, of New York, has signed the bill passed by the legislature to make a free park of the land lying next to Niagara falls, rapids and whirlpool on the American side, so that the public can have free admission to all points of interest; and the work of removing buildings, fences and all other obstructions, and making roads, ways and footpaths, will be prosecuted this summer. The Canadian government is asked and expected to take like action on the Canadian side; and it is probable that next year the American side will be all clear; and all over the Canadian side will also be clear within two years. There will be some expense in maintaining the free park; and, as the work will benefit visitors from all over the world, and not the state of New York alone, the national government ought to take charge of it. By using the park as a military reservation, and other obstructions, and making roads, mixed troops there, with quarters on Goat Island, and using the soldiers to police the park, not only would the greatest security be given to the visitors against disorder and crime to fit the park limits, but the military would add to the picturesque charms of the locality, and the post would be a favorite sanitarium for veteran commands when relieved from hard service on the plains and sent home to recruit.—Detroit Post.

The fine green of spring is fast appearing, most prominently in a coat of paint on Dr. Roe's house.

Mrs. J. H. ROSE started yesterday for a visit of several weeks with her parents and friends in Nebraska and other parts of the west.

The question of whose duty it is to sprinkle village streets is receiving wide discussion by villages and cities in this state.

If you have any balky horses to break, call on Perry Fox. He is in the business now. N. B.—This is not an advertisement.

MR. DANIEL H. WAGNER, one of the substantial farmers of Portage Prairie, died at his home, five miles north of South Bend, May 6, aged 41.

The Niles Democrat has a column devoted to the interests of the colored people of that city, and is edited by one of their number.

The small boy is practicing crawling under the clothes line, to be prepared for the circus, next Monday. He'll get there some way.

The steamer May Graham is making tri-weekly trips between Berrien Springs and St. Joseph, connecting with the lake boats to Chicago.

HORACE HAIN is home on a furlough. He had been in an engagement while away and was wounded in the eyes. They both wear deep mourning.

MISS LOMA BEARDSLEY was in this place with relatives over Sunday. She has been promoted in her position in the asylum at Kalamazoo.

Messrs. Kern & DeArmond, of Dayton, are at work on a new frame building, for business purposes, on the east side of Broadway, where Kern's shoe store was burned a few months since.

By the appointment of the primary school fund, Berrien county gets $15,087.08, having reported 12,187 children between the ages of five and twenty years.

The Expositor reports ice off South Haven as being thirty-five feet thick. If this be the case we may expect iceberg breezes and an occasional snow storm about all summer.

A NUMBER of young bloods "made Rome howl" about Front street Sunday evening, after having had their fill of booze. If they realized just how much they lacked of being men they would repair to some quiet nook and shoot themselves.

An important case of the Niles City Water Works Company vs. The City of Niles, for collection of water rents which the city refused to pay on account of faulty construction, involving about $12,000, was decided at Berrien, Spring in favor of the city. The case will doubtless go to the Supreme Court.

THE RECORD is informed that a voluntary signal service station is to be established in this place, under the management of Mr. V. E. David, who has served in that department of government. We now look for better weather with a factory so near by.

The Benton Harbor Expositor publishes a list of 116 persons who have agreed to raise tomatoes for the canning establishment in that place in lots of from one to six acres. This crop will bring a good number of dollars to Benton Harbor.

Some of the boys who have been meddling with property belonging to the M. E. church may save themselves serious trouble by quitting now. The church will not tolerate their work, and will deal summarily with them unless it is stopped at once.

The School Board met last evening and resolved, among other business, to retain Prof. Aleshire for the coming year, at his present salary, and to offer Miss Heaton $500 to return to her position as Preceptress. A majority of the present corps of teachers to be retained.

Some of the good citizens of Dayton think that village needs either a good saloon or some one to stand guard at the portals of the city, to stop the flow of whisky into that town on Sundays, as a means of improving the character of the Sunday afternoon serenades they have been used to.

MONDAY, Claude Reese, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Reese, had a piece of bone 2 1/2 inches long and about 3/4 inch in thickness removed from his leg, it being a portion of the lower part of the femur; the effect of necrosis. The case is in charge of Dr. M. W. Stocum, of this place.

The work on Imhoff's new building was commenced Monday, in earnest, and has since been progressing rapidly. Good use is being made of the dirt taken from the cellar, in filling the ravine across Main street, just south of Fourth street, the old bridge being removed.

The citizens of this place should not be alarmed if they happen to get a good whiff of north wind that smells like the far end of perdition. It is nothing but the smoke of a factory arising from the fire where Joe Richards is burning the remains of his old slaughter house and frying his crop of rats. Nothing harmful about it.

The Common Council is arranging to place thirty-six gasoline lamps like the one in front of Rough's block. In this connection it may be well to suggest that a vault be built by the village, and the merchants who sell gasoline, for storage of the stuff, as is suggested by insurance companies for the care of such explosives.

The Bainton Brothers are improving their water power at the old "Fort Sumter" site, by putting in a new dam, flume, penstock, and other arrangements necessary to the use of the power. It is not yet fully determined what use will be made of the power. The boys are in correspondence with some eastern parties who want to use the power, but nothing has been determined upon. That is the best power on the creek, and to have it so long idle is not best for Buchanan.

CITIZENS of Sturgis and Three Rivers who own cement walks, similar to those in use in this place, are being called upon to pay their royalty or defend suits in the U. S. Court at Grand Rapids, for the collection of such royalty. Mr. Ray, of Coldwater, who claims to hold the patent and who is instituting these suits, was here Monday. He was also here last summer, but made no very loud remarks about holding the patent, then, at least no one here heard him until all that was likely to be built had been completed. It is also claimed that Mr. Suppion who built the walks knew of this patent, and that his work was in plain violation thereof. Those of his customers who have not paid his full charge might find it advantageous to refrain from remitting the little balance until this royalty business is settled.

The Benton Harbor Expositor has given its readers the benefit of the following bit of history: "Myron Hinkley found a large, heavy bladed jack-knife on Pipestone street a few days ago, and it occurred to us the knife may have a history worth sifting. The rust on the blades showed that it must have been exposed to it advantageously to refrain from remitting the little balance until this royalty business is settled.

R. L. WARREN, Chairman Ex. Com. D. BACON, Sec. of the Association.

A FEW weeks ago some fellow, for want of something better to do, took the padlock belonging to the horse shed at the Presbyterian church from the back part of Samuel French's buggy, locked it around on one of the braces under the buggy box and took the key. Mr. French is in hopes that after the fellow has carried that key long enough to fully satisfy him he will return it, as Mr. French wants to use it.

WE'LL ALL GO.—Instead of the usual method of raising funds to defray expenses of Memorial Day by soliciting contributions, Wm. Perrott Post, G. A. R., have arranged to give a first-class concert, by the Mme. Fry Concert Company, Saturday evening, May 23, the proceeds of the concert to be devoted to memorial expenses. Madame Fry is one of the best cornet players we have ever heard, and Miss A. L. Smith, playing the violin.—Trenton (N. J.) Daily Exporter.

Common Council Proceedings.

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council of the Village of Buchanan was held at the Council room, in Engine House No. 1, on Friday evening, May 8, 1885.

The minutes of the special meeting held May 1, 1885, were read, and on motion, approved.

The Street Committee, to whom were referred the matter of lighting the streets, reported as follows: BUCHANAN, Mich., May 8, 1885. To the President and Common Council of the Village of Buchanan.

Your Committee, to whom was referred the matter of lighting the streets of our village, hereby recommend that there be purchased for that purpose thirty-six square street lamps fitted for burning gasoline. We have the proposition from the Peninsula Gas Light Co., of Ypsilanti, Mich., to furnish such lamps with cedar posts, delivered at Buchanan, Mich., and will accept the same, guaranteeing satisfaction, the village to bear the expense of setting the posts. The price for said lamps with posts is seven dollars each. We consider their proposition the best that we have received, and recommend its acceptance.

On motion, the Street Committee were referred to purchase street lamps in accordance with the above report, and also to locate and place the same according to their best judgment. Moved and supported that the saloon tax, as revised by Ordinance VIII, be fixed at $200. Motion adopted.

The placing of agricultural implements on the streets by the dealers for exhibition to the public, was referred to the Street Committee for such action as they deemed necessary. On motion, the Common Council adjourned. GEORGE G. ROGERS, Recorder.

NEWSPAPER ITEMS. May 11, 1885. Mr. William Smith and family, of Stevensville, spent Sunday with his brother, C. J. Smith.

Mrs. Peter Anderson is very sick. Prof. Sherwood was home Sunday. Mr. Shetterly shipped three car loads of lumber last week, and still there's more to follow.

"The widow and her daughter," is the title of a romance in much demand hereabouts just at present. It was a welcome sight to see so many young faces at Sunday school. Come again; your presence is earnestly desired by every Sunday school worker.

I understand that Mr. Lester Kemp-ton is expecting some new neighbors. Of course the cake will be good. Eugene Hill is able to get about—that is, with the aid of crutches. I would offer the following as an amendment to the present tax law: That it shall be the duty of the township clerk to post in three public places in his township a complete list of the lands to be sold at the annual tax sale in his county, and that such notices shall be posted at least six weeks prior to such sale, and that further, the said clerk shall keep in his office a record of such lands offered or sold for taxes, for public inspection.

Mrs. A. Willis is visiting relatives in Chicago. Mr. A. W. Pierce is rather absent minded lately. He went out into the country the other day to buy a hog, and became so interested in observing an object of natural beauty that he entirely forgot his business matters and went home without even saying hog to his farmer friend.

Mr. W. F. Simmons, of Grand Rapids, was in town to-day. Preaching at the M. E. church Saturday afternoon and evening, and Sunday morning. Thoughtfully yours, SAWDUST.

CASS county paid her school teachers $37,551.50 in wages last year. The number of teachers was 271, and the number of scholars attending school was 5,103. Berrien paid $33,926 to her teachers. St. Joseph 7,855, and Cass last with 7,800. The total value of school property in the five counties is $1,144,125, and the number of school houses 702.—Dowagiac Times.

[Niles Democrat.] An egg, over two and a half feet long, was caught by the dam last Monday. The Michigan Wood Pulp Company's board mill machine last week run a sheet of paste board sixty inches wide and thirty-eight inches long without a single break or interruption in the sheet.

From California. SAN BERNARDINO, May 1, 1885. As I have formerly written you I consider it about Los Angeles, and thinking perhaps you would like to know something about the adjacent towns, and as I am stopping here for a limited time, I will say a few words about this place.

San Bernardino has not been incorporated as yet, and so remains a town instead of a city, notwithstanding it is quite a nice little place of about four thousand inhabitants. It is the county seat of the county of the same name, and no doubt in the future is destined to be quite a large city. It is situated about 2 1/2 miles from Los Angeles and about 2 1/2 miles from Colton, where the California Southern Railroad crosses the Southern Pacific Railroad, and as the California Southern runs from San Diego to this place, and is about to be connected with the A. P. road at Doggett in a few months, and will then be a direct line through from the east, this place must consequently take a boom, and, as I said, in the near future make a large city, and is at present a good place to invest capital for a speculation. The town is very nicely situated in the midst of one of the most beautiful valleys in Southern California. It covers one square mile and is laid off in blocks of eight acres each, with broad streets, which intersect each other at right angles. The sides of the streets are well shaded and most of the lots contain one acre of ground.

It is most too cold here for oranges and lemons, but all other kinds of fruit do well. The business part of the town is somewhat like Buchanan, mostly on one street, but contains a number of good business houses and some fine buildings. It has a fine school house.

and a number of good churches of all denominations, and some very handsome dwelling houses. It has two banks, three hotels and several good restaurants. The valley surrounding it was formerly a Mexican grant, and covers an area of 35,500.41 acres. The land is very fertile, some parts of it being moist land and needs no irrigation, upon which crops can be grown the year round. It has a number of creeks and streams running into and through it in all directions. Likewise a large portion of the valley is watered by artesian wells, which can be obtained from 30 to 300 feet. A large stream of nice water flows from them continually. The valley is almost surrounded by a chain of mountains, which in winter are covered with snow, which supplies the summer streams. Snow can be seen upon them at the present time, and on the higher tops snow rests perpetually. These mountains are also heavily timbered, and will supply timber and fuel for years to come to the valley below.

The climate of the valley does not differ very much from that of other sections of Southern California, except being damper. It is more liable to frosts than higher and drier regions. The valley is mostly cut up into small farms, from which large crops of hay, grain and fruit are raised each year round, and many nice and comfortable farm houses can be seen in all directions, showing signs of prosperity, and many of the best of them in the town is very nicely located, and I should judge a very desirable place to live. The scenery from an eminence is one of grandeur. The mountains in the background raising their lofty peaks to the Heavens, and it were, and at your feet the entire valley spreads out in one glorious panorama of beauty.

In my next I will tell you something about the famous Arrowhead hot springs, which are situated about six miles north of here, in the San Bernardino mountains, at an altitude of over 2,000 feet above the level of the sea. Many remarkable cures are said to have been accomplished by the use of its hot mud and waters. I expect to visit them in a few days, and then I will tell you more about it. P. B. MYERS, M. D.

A Bad Lookout For Winter Wheat.

The McCormick Reaper Company's April estimate of the winter wheat crop, based on the reports of 1,400 county correspondents, mainly agricultural implement men, was 65 per cent. of last year's crop, and a decrease in acres of 10 per cent. About 400 replies to a circular of inquiry have been received by the company since Monday morning, and almost without exception the reports are that the prospects are worse than in April. If the same continues to be as bad the May estimate will be 10 or 15 per cent. below the last one. This, in round numbers, means a shortage of not less than 12,000,000 bushels in the yield of winter wheat. This information was given free circulation on change yesterday, and served to check the downward movement in prices.

Two Enthusiastic. The appointment of Col. James Black as collector of the internal revenue for Lexington, Ky., district has been revoked, the publication of a letter written by Mr. Blackburn during the war having caused the President to rescind his order. Mr. Cleveland held the cabinet that the writer of such a letter could not expect to hold office under the United States government. Mr. Blackburn is a brother of the Kentucky senator.

"How Shall Women Dress?" is a question that one would hardly expect to be discussed in so grave an organ of opinion as the North American Review, and yet in its June number this interesting topic is to be treated in a symposium, by five eminent writers who have given the subject much attention, viz, Charles Dudley Warner, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, William A. Hammond, Mrs. E. M. King, and Dr. Kate J. Jackson.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for June comes to us, a paragon of beauty, ahead of all other magazines. Its illustrations, gravure alone is almost worth the subscription price. "No other magazines," as we often hear said, "has such steel engravings." A charming story by "Pink Lee Bennett" illustrates this pretty picture. The colored steel fashion-plate is also unusually brilliant, even for "Peterson." Most of the other illustrations—some fifty in number—begin with the July number, and are exceptionally good. Considering the low price of this magazine, and its very great merit, we wonder it has not even larger circulation; every family ought to take it. The terms are but two dollars a year, with great deductions to clubs, and costly premiums to those getting up clubs. Now is an especially good time to subscribe, for a new volume begins with the July number when those who do not wish back numbers can commence. Specimens are sent gratis, if written for, to persons wishing to get up clubs. Address Col. J. E. Peterson, 305 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
