lassitude, or languor, is one of Nature's warnings of the consequences of neglect.

Is the only remedy that can be relied upon, in all cases, to cradicate the taint of hereditary disease and the special corruptions of the blood. It is the only alterative that is sufficiently powerful to thoroughly cleanse the system of Scrofulous and Mercurial impurities and the pollution of Contagious Diseases. It also neutralizes the poisons left by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fover, and enables rapid recuperation from the enfeeblement and debility caused by these diseases.

by whom it was employed. Druggists everywhere can eite numerous cases, within their personal knowledge, of remarkable cures wrought by it, where all other treatment had been unavailing. People will do well to

than AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Numerous crude mixtures are offered to the public as "blood purifiers," which only allure the patient with the pretense of many cheap doses, and with which it is folly to experiment while disease is steadily be-coming more deep-seated and difficult of cure. Some of these mixtures do much lasting harm. Bear in mind that the only medicine that can radically purify the vititated blood is

TWO MAIDS. "Certainly not," said Mrs. Torrance, developing strong hysterical symptoms. "If your Cousin Brown intends There were two young maids that wandered to insult us—"
"But he doesn't intend to insult us,"

And one wore a silken gown, and ruffes, and ribbons, and lace so gay, And wonderful curls of brown. Right royal fair in the face was she, And passers marvelled who she might be-And they wandered far from town.

The other walked in homespun clad: Hor face -it was scarcely fair; No ribbons, ruffles, nor lace she had-And she braided her yellow hair, But she dropped a coin in a beggar's palm, She soothed a child with a kiss like balm, And smiled at the freshing air.

That dainty maiden gathered her lace From the beggar's touch aside; She frown'd at the child's small, tearful face; She scowl'd when the wind blew wide; It rulles my toilet, so complete!" 'Yet, alt," said the other, "it blows so sweet!

"Now listen," said she, of the yellow hair "Do you hear the sheep bells ring?" But the other answered- "Care, take care See that ugly spider swing!" It's web is finer than finest lace!" Said Yellow Hair, with a sparkling face. "And its crown is fit for a king!"

And they wandered side by side.

Then that dainty maid in a vex'd despair Said the marsh had wet her feet: But Yellow Hair, with the happiest air, Cried-"Violets!--ah, how sweet!" and she plucked them fresh from the mois tened grass, and decked her girdle, and on did pass

With steps that were always fleet. 'The sun's so hot!" on the meadow crest Cried the maiden so dainty bred; Afar the forrest nodded at rest, And the new oak shoots were red. All tremulous shimmered the heated air; With eyes uplitted-"The world's so fair!" Was all that the other said.

And ever to one the woods were dim And the troublous thorns detained. There was mud by the river s crystal rim, And the strange wood berries stained, While the other harkened the forese's hush And noted the river's gleam and rush, In the strength of the spring unchained. When questioned "What have you seen to-

Then the danity maiden cried, "Thorns, spiders, a marsh; so hot the way!-I'm torn and awry beside!" But, Yellow Hair, "Twas so fresh and sweet! The fair land blossomed beneath our feet, And the sky was so blue and wide!"

And oft and oft to myself I say, O, maid with a baughty grace, You'll go through life in the self same way. With a frown on her handsome face; But give me the maid that can see alway The beauty that blossoms for every day, Where you see never a trace.

Her Despised Accomplishment.

Old Mr. Brown stood in his private office with his back to the fire and his coat-tail balanced in either hand. He was a bald-headed old gentleman with a ruddy complextion, keen black eyes, and leg-of-mutton whiskers were white as snow. And Miss Nelly Torrance sat looking at him timidly from the depths of the big arm-chair, in which he had beckoned her to seat ierself.

"So you are my cousin Adrian's daughter?" said he, after a pause. "Yes," said Nelly, wondering what was in all those mysterious tin boxes, and whether the monster iron safe was full of gold and silver.

"And you want something to do?"
"Yes, please." "Humph!" said Mr. Brown.

Nellie glauced shyly up into his face. "But," she added, with some spirit, on green plush screens," satirically observed the old gentleman. "I don't call that work.' "Nor I either," retorted Nelly.

"Then what do you mean?" said Mr. Brown. "I mean that I shall be glad to undertake any sort of honest work by means of which I can earn my own "Humph!" again interjected Mr.

"I don't believe it!"

"But I can.' "Very well," said Mr. Brown, releasng his coat-tails and sitting down at his desk as if the questions were definitely disposed of. "My cook went away this morning. I haven't engaged any one in her place. You can come this afternoon and see what you can do for me."

Mr. Brown fully expected that his young cousin would recoil indignantly from his proposal, but she did nothing of the sort. She simply said: "I'es, Cousin John," and asked him for his private address.

as Nelly entered.

The old man smiled. He had a pleasant expression of the face when ne smiled, and Nelly wondered that she had not before noticed what a handsome man he was. "O," said he, "you did come then?"

rance's voice uttered the words:

"Dinner is ready, Cousin John."

"Oh, I always keep my engagements," said Nelly. "Punctuality is the soul of business, isn't it Cousin John? At least that is what I used to write in my copy-books, at school."

Mr. Brown patted her hand as she helped him off with his overcoat. "You are a good girl," said he.

And in his secret mind he decided to put up with any deficiencies in the cooking of a girl who had such excellent business principles. But to his infinite amazement, there were no deficiencies to overlook. The soup was on the table clear as water flavored like a dream of Sover's own! The first course was baked trout swimming in wine sauce; the second a pigeon on toast. A small and compact roast of beef-ribs was flanked by a dainty giblet pie, and the dessert was fruit, peach tarts, and Bavarian cream. Mr. Brown ate and relished and wondered by turns. "My dear," he said, at last, when the tages over the Ayrshire, among which cloth was removed and the wine and walnuts brought on, "all is very nice. I'll concede that you are a tip-top housekeeper. "My dear," he said, I should like to have you come here and live." "As cook, Cousin Brown?" "No—as my adopted daughter and housekeeper. I need someone to take the helm of my affairs. By Jupiter!"

he added, as he remembered the flavor of the giblet-pie; "I haven't eaten such a dinner in ten years." "But, my mother," hesitated Eleanor, and my sister Lucetta?" "Let them come, too," said Mr. Brown. "Bless your heart, my dear, there's plenty of room in the house. Can they cook, too?" "No, Cousin Brown," confessed Nelly. Well, perhaps it's just as well, said Mr. Brown. "There can't be more than one head to a household. I hope you have preserved the receipt of that giblet pie, my dear. It was really something extraordinary. So the Torrance family found a comfortable refuge for the soles of their feet, and Nelly's despised accomplishments proved the sword wherewith she opened the world's oyster. And Lucetta sighed and wondered why she, too, had not taken cooking "Nelly is the old man's first favorte," said she. "He'll leave her his

Mr. Brown, however, looked at this matter in a different light. "Nelly is a trump," he said. "Nelly is not like the typical young lady who is too lazy to work and too proud to beg. She is the one ennobles the humblest task, and does with all her might whatever her hands find to do."

Among the Romans the lily and the oak were emblems of power; the myrtle and the rose of love; the olive and the violet of learning; the ash of war, and the grape leaf of festivity. Even the days of the week are named from deities, who had each his special flower. Sunday from the sun, to which belonged the sunflower; Monday, the moon, the daisy; Tuesday, the god Tur's day, the violet; Wednesday, the god Woden's day, the blue monkshood; Thursday, Thor's day, the burdock; Friday, the goddess Frea's day, the orchis; and Saturday, Saturn's day, the horse-tail. In our time we are familiar with the shamrock as the emblem of Ireland, the fleur-de-lis as the badge of the royal house of France, the amaranth of Sweden, the rose of England, and the thistle of Scotland. -Ladies' Floral Cabinet

The Country Gentleman, upon the subject of bitter cream, gives the following as some of the more important greeable, intense bitter, quite different from that caused by fermentation of the milk. Mildew, but especially the red, spot-ted mildew, which forms upon the cream in damp cellars, and appears in spots about the size of a split pea. This is caused by the impregnation of the cellar with spores of the mildew, and is very difficult to get rid of. The only way I have succeeded in doing it is by burning sulphur in the cellar, which is kept tightly closed for a considerable it, and afterwards by keeping the air dry by means of a box of freshly-burned lime kept in it until it is air-slaked. Keeping the milk too long without skimming, until the whey separates, and the cream too long without churning. Thirty-six hours is long enough either, which makes the cream three days old when it is churned. Imperfect cleaning of the milk-pails, of the churn, and leaving curd in the seams or corners. ## Phosphate Deposits of South Caro-

The phosphate rock bed of South Carolina now supplies the world with the chief part of all the phosphate of lime used in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers, and this industry was unknown there until 1868. The greatest length of this phosphate rock bed is about seventy miles and its greatest width about thirty miles, the city of Charleston being about the center of the most accessible deposits. It crops out at the surface in many places, and is found distributed over large areas at the bottom of many of the rivers. It is mined in three ways-by open quarrying and digging in the land; by dredging and grappling with powerful steam machines in deep water; by hand picking and with tongs in shallow streams. Its average price is about $6 a ton, and the State levies a tax of one dollar a ton on all that is shipped, making it an important item of revenue. These phosphates are the remains of a very ancient animal life,

The latest direction in the line of utilization of the sunflower is the planting of a seed in a place at the proper distances, so that the stalks as they grow will serve as bean poles. We have seen them started in that way this season, and as they grow the leaves are re-moved, thus forming an excellent stalk for the beans, but what the effect will be upon them remains to be seen. #### Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24, 1885. The week has passed without event of political importance at the Capitol. There has been sensational rumors regarding the health of the President, but these have been quieted by intelligence direct from his camp in the mountains, that he is unusually well. He is not expected with his string of fish until the latter part of September.

The Cabinet is scattered here and there, Secretary Lamar and Attorney General Garland being the only ones who remain permanently in the city. The various Departments of Government are conducted without hitch, and with very little friction, by the subordinates trained and skilled by long experience.

Secretary Bayard has gone to his country residence in Delaware and the Department of State is in charge of the Assistant Secretary, ex-Gov. Porter of Tennessee.

Secretary of the Treasury Manning is making a short stay at Watch Hill, Rhode Island, while Assistant Secretaries Fairchild and Coon are superintending the machinery of the Treasury Department.

Postmaster General Vilas is in the woods of Lake Superior, and Secretary of War Endicott is at the traditional home of witches, Salem, Mass.

The only two Cabinet members who remain in Washington are those from the extreme south; Mr. Lamar from Mississippi and Mr. Garland from Arkansas, who, seasoned by the sultry heat of the cotton-belt, find no terror in the summer climate of the Capital. There was never a greater scarcity, of Senators and members in Washington than at present. Senator and Mrs. Logan, who had spent the greater part of the heated term in the city, have gone to the Thousand Islands, where they will remain for two weeks. They | it makes men drink mostly on the sly, were quite busy last week moving into hence loses its charm. Farther, you their new $30,000 home. thousand portraits and caricatures. In a month or six weeks all the celebrites will be back in Washington, for, no matter how far they wander in the summer, the winter brings them here again. Here many of them have palatial homes, and here all enjoy social opportunities such as cannot be found elsewhere on this side of the sea.

Great improvements have been made during the summer, but they have been made, here and there, over an immense area, and are not directly apparent to a casual observer. In a drive which I took yesterday I counted over two hundred buildings either in the course of erection or finished during the season. The improvements at the Capitol, for which nearly a million of dollars were appropriated last year, will add greatly to the symmetry as well as to the convenience of the huge pile. Improvements of streets and parks are constantly going on, and if they are continued for ten years longer the progress of the city will be no less remarkable than that of the past decade.

The Washington papers are discussing the style of monument to be erected to the memory of General Grant in Washington. Prevailing opinion seems to favor an arch similar to the Arc de Triomphe in Paris. One artist, who has an eye to the useful as well as the commemorative in art, has proposed a stupendous stone bridge with a single arch spanning the Potomac from Observatory Hill to Arlington; the latter place is now a cemetery where thousands of the soldiers of the late war are buried, it was formerly the home of General Lee. Such a bridge spanning the Potomac would be in itself profoundly suggestive, and memorial art could make it all that could be desired as a monument to Grant.

Kansas Correspondence.

WINFIELD, Aug. 15, 1885. EDITOR RECORD:-There has been no period since the close of the war of the Rebellion that has been of equal interest to those that wish to see the restoration, to the people of this country, of a unity of interest in its prosperity and perpetuity, regardless of geographical location, than that which has just closed. Commencing with the first intimation of the fatal disease that caused the death of our illustrious and beloved Grant, and continuing until the last dirge was played at the final resting place of his remains at Riverside. It is beyond the power of your correspondent to add one word to the eulogies pronounced upon his character, or untold honors bestowed

As it was my privilege to pass a considerable portion of that time upon what has been termed the "dividing line" in the State of Missouri, where battles were fought, property confiscated, and the State barely saved to the Union from seceding, by the promptness of General Lyon, at Wilson Creek, being the battle that stemmed the tide, it gave an excellent opportunity to note the actions of the people who had suffered much, and their opinions, as expressed by the public and through the press. It seems strange to see men who, less than a quarter of a century ago, were engaged in deadly conflict upon the battlefield, who would even shoot each other on sight, march shoulder to shoulder in the same procession, to the music they despised so much, in doing honor to the very man who conquered them. Stranger still, to see these veterans decorating their homes with emblems of mourning, out of respect towards him who but a short time ago was compelled to reduce them to ashes by the stern usages of war. The press, with an exceptional case here and there, whose pages have been filled with personal hatred and abuse, even denouncing him in the most vile and blasphemous language, too vulgar at times to print, are full of editorials and comments of his greatness, deploring his death, and with an intense interest, that his life should ever be first in the memory of coming generations, in erecting suitable monuments for them to admire and preserve.

To an observer the question arises, What means all this? Are they really sincere? From a personal experience I believe that the sincerity of the south, in its desire to obliterate the evil effects of secession and to strengthen the Union in its growth, with a patriotic love of country from all the people that compose it, has become a potent fact, and that the "death knell" of sectional strife and jealousies, too long

The law is enforced where public sentiment sustains it, and in a few counties it is difficult to procure the ardent in any form. The number of drug stores has increased wonderfully, and it is not difficult to obtain a prescription. Was in a doctor's office yesterday, and a gentleman came in and said: "Doctor, I would like a prescription for a quart of brandy," stating it was for some lady who was probably sick. He gave him one, and no charge. Some men have a variety of diseases, for their sufferings require a quart of brandy from one to five times a week, and no other medicine will core the complaint. The fees derived by some physicians and probate judges must add a comfortable amount to their regular income. Drinking is largely confined to private places, such as club houses and rooms, private houses and hotels, but the greatest is the solitary bottle in small towns and cities. In large places it is sold openly, and as publicly as when license is given. There are several great benefits derived. It does away with the saloon as a common resort, and those who favor the law say will find that Kansas has a less per-

Sensible Temperance Views. The Christian Union of New York, a religious paper of large circulation and great influence, contains an article upon the temperance question which will be ant to attract widespread attention. coming from so high a source. Its treatment of the subject is the most practical and the most in accordance with common sense that we have yet seen in any religious journal. It takes strong ground against either State or National prohibition, assuming for its basis of discussion the position that intemperance is a moral disease, and hence that the remedy must be moral, and necessarily from this point of view that legal force cannot stop it. As to the impotence of prohibition amendments it makes the following strong

"The South is wiser in this matter than the North. Georgia has made more progress toward prohibition by local option than Kansas and Iowa by legislation. We think it would be easy to go on and show that criminal law cannot be enforced by a free government except in communities where it is sustained by the moral sense of eight-tenths of the community; that is, by something very much more than a mere narrow political majority. But we do not propose to do so. For we shall not enter into a controversy with any wing of the temperance army, however unwise and impracticable we egard their methods. We shall fight intemperance in our own way; the Prohibitionists may fight it in theirs; and the time shall show which of us is

Its point that under a free government law cannot be enforced in any community where the majority of public sentiment is opposed to it has often been made by The Chicago Tribune and by numerous other papers representing the real temperance sentiment. and has never yet been answered by the Prohibitionists. There is no more power in any law than there is in the public sentiment which called for and made it. If the majority of public sentiment is hostile to it, it will remain a dead letter, and until public sentiment is educated up to it it will not be obeyed. The whole temperance question lies in this nutshell; and until Prohibitionists can reverse this plain, matter-offact, and every-day experience, prohibition will remain a dead letter in every community where public sentiment is opposed to it, no matter how rigid a law may be passed. This is not only a matter of demonstration today, but it has always been so. The Union cites an interesting case in point. In 1876 the Constitution of the State of Virginia forbade the sale of wines and spirits, but the majority of the people were opposed to the provision, and selling and drinking went on just the same, because there was no means of enforcing it—the law not representing the sentiment of the larger part of the community. The experiences of Iowa, Kansas, Maine, and other States where prohibition has been tried all show the same result. The Albany Evening Journal says that Prohibitionists of New York have recognized this fact and last winter introduced a bill in the Legislature providing for local option by counties—too late, however, to be of any avail. It is a pity that Prohibitionists in other States could not get their eyes equally wide open. Proceeding from these premises, the Union warns Prohibitionists that the cannot advance their cause nor secure the sympathies of law-abiding people by gross personal abuse, or "by putting in the same condemnation the man who drinks a glass of beer or wine for his dinner, as his father did beforehim. and the man who befuddles his brain by swilling beer by the barrel, or fires it by drinking whisky by the bottle. In the place of the methods of the Prohibitionists, it formulates the following little platform, containing the essence of its views, and submits it to

"(1) Obedience to the law of the land whatever that law is. (2) A higher tax, or a higher license, discriminating against distilled liquors, and in so far n favor of malt and fermented liquors. (3)|The strict and impartial enforcement of the present prohibitory clauses in our liquor laws against selling Sundays, to minors, and the like. (4) Local option—that is, the recognition of the right of each local community, town or county, to prohibit the liquor traffic within its bounds altogether."

The platform is not only practicable, and one that can be adopted in any community, but to any person who can read with unprejudiced eyes it will commend itself as being conducive to temperance and as containing the rudi ments of the education that is likely to create a sentiment in favor of tem perance. Such a program, faithfully carried out, would do more for the cause of temperance in a single year in any community than centuries of the most stringent prohibition laws, provided the sentiment of that community were opposed to them. If there are any Republicans who have been led astray by the "God and Home" Probibitionists and been humbugged into casting their votes for the benefit of the free-whisky Democracy, they would do well to read and reflect upon the Union's reasonable and sensible little platform.—Chicago Tribune.

John Curley's house, 21/2 miles from Grattan, Kent county, burned Monday morning, and Mr. Curley, father of John, perished in the flames. He was 78 years of age and alone in the house, the son being away from home. Loss $1,500; partially insured.

The Lowell Journal says; Geo. E. Carr some years ago found gold on his farm, section 1, Lowell, near this village, and he recently discovered the precious metal in what he believes to be a "paying quantity." He will continue investigation.

Ferdinand Yandki, convicted at Frankfort on Saturday of murder in the second degree for the killing of John Armstrong June 14 in a house of ill-fame, hanged himself in his cell with a picture cord during the afternoon, and was found dead when an officer went to bring him before Judge Fallass for sentence.

While Fred. Miller and Chas. Evarts were coming home from a dance at East Saginaw Sunday morning, an altercation took place, during which Miller stabbed his companion in the breast, striking the lung. He was arrested at his home in Carrollton and jailed. Evarts will die. The men were both young and unmarried, and had been fast friends.

Sarah May of Indianapolis has commenced suit against the Eaton county board of supervisors, in the United States court at Grand Rapids, for $3,-000 damages for using her patented invention for locking doors on the cell doors of the Charlotte jail. •

Alderman Briggs of Ann Arbor looked upon the Bohemian oats last spring and was snared. He paid $200 for 20 bushels of seed, and contracted to sell the yield to the agents at $7,50 per bushel. Alderman Briggs then leased 10 acres of ground, sowed the seed, and dreamed of fortunes awaiting him. If Alderman Briggs harvests 10 bushels of Bohemian oats from his 10 acres of ground he will be agreeably disappointed.—Detroit Journal.

A dispatch from Tekonsha, dated Aug. 18, says: The town is greatly grieved and excited over the serious results of a fire last evening. County Treasurer John C. Failing's children three in number-had gone to sleep in an upper chamber, when their parents who had not yet retired, were alarmed by perceiving fire up-stairs. They attempted to save the children, and in so doing were burned in a terrible and probably fatal manner. One of the children, aged six years, was fatally burned, dying in a few hours, and another older one suffers from badly burned face, hands and arms.

Over 100 children have died from diphtheria at Springwells this season.

The Ionia Standard calls attention to the way criminals are propagated, thus: "About 20 years ago a man was sent from Otisco to the Jackson prison for a heinous crime. He served ou his sentence, came back and married woman of doubtful reputation. He dead, but was assisted for several year before death by the county. The we man with three children are now su ported by the county. One daughte is under arrest as a common prostitute while a second, also a prostitute, wa married a week or two since and ma be expected in due time to contribut her quota to the county charges. SI was a township charge when married

The deepest sea soundings know were made in the Pacific, where the line reached down 4.575 fathoms, at off the east coast of Japan 4,600 fat oms. VITALIZED OZONE

For Catarrh, Rheumatism, Piles, Cuts Sores, Ulcers, Sore Throat,

And in fact all diseases that are accompanied by INFLAMMATION, either severe or mild, has, in our opinion, no equal in the whole range of medicine. We would also say to owners of horses, that we have used the remedy upon horses for Cuts, Sores, Clicers, Blood Poisoning, and its effect was truly wonderful. We consider it the best remedy we ever used.

Are Indigestion and Constipation. Their primary symptoms are among the most distressing of minor human ailments, and a host of diseases, speedily resultant from them, mutually aggravate each other and assail at once the whole machinery and assail at once the whole machinery of life. Nausea, Foul Breath, Sour Stomach, Dizziness, Headaches, Bilious Fever, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Kidney Diseases, Piles, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Dropsy, and various Skin Disorders, are among the symptoms and maladies caused by derangement of the stomach and bowels.

· A Thorough Purgative medicine is the first necessity for cure. Then the cathartic effect must be maintained, in a mild degree, just sufficient to prevent a recurrence of costiveness, and at the same time the liver, kidneys and stomach must be stimulated and strongthoused.

Ayer's Pills Accomplish this restorative work better than any other medicine. They are searching and thorough, yet mild, in their purgative action. They do not gripe the patient, and do not induce a costive reaction, as is the effect of other catharties. Withal they process special properties Withal, they possess special properties, diuretic, hepatic and tonic, of the highest medicinal value and

Absolutely Cure

The prompt use of AYER'S PILLS to correct the first indications of costiveness, averts the serious illnesses which neglect of that condition would inevitably neglect of that condition would inevitably induce. All irregularities in the action of the bowels—looseness as well as constipation—are beneficially controlled by AYER'S PILLS, and for the stimulation of digestive organs weakened by long-continued dyspepsia, one or two of AYER'S PILLS daily, after dinner, will do more good than anything else.

Leading Physicians Concede That AYER'S PILLS are the best of all cathartic medicines, and many practitioners, of the highest standing, customarily standing that highest standing.

Is like the man who always keeps his word. It performs all that it agrees to do. It has cured, and will cure Bright's Disease. It has won its way to popularity on its own intrinsic worth as a reliable cure in all the prevalent diseases of the Liver, Kidneys and Urinary Organs. We gnarantee it to cure 30 per cent of such diseases if directions are strictly followed. Do you feel weary and dull, pain under the shoulder blades, an oppressed feeling after eating? The Liver is at fault. CRAIG'S KIDNEY CURE, in connection with Craig's Laxative Pill, will relieve you. Have you pain or soreness across small of the back? Do you have any irritation of the Urinary passages? Do not neglect these symptoms. If you do they will terminate in some serions organic disease. Perhaps there are many remedies that will cure you. We know that CRAIG'S KIDNEY CURE will do so. Beware of imitations. See that it is manufactured at No. 72 Mill-st, Rochester, N. Y., and bears our trade mark—a divided kidney. In all cases of constipation of the bowels, use Dr. Craig's Laxative Pill.

These remedies are for sale by S. A. WOOD and D. WESTON, and druggists generally.

"DR." GRAY, who was going to put the RECORD through a course of legal sprouts, has had his case settled by a trial in Hageman, Ind., in which he was found guilty and fined $25, and charged $21 costs, in default of which he is in Porter county jail boarding out his fine at $1 per day. This looks like a pretty light punishment for what from this distance appears like an assault with intent to rape, but the most the jury could see in the case was assault and battery, and in this case the punishment is the full extent allowed by Indiana law. When he gets out of jail he will doubtless be ready to commence on the RECORD libel suit.

purity, remain! OUR ENGLISH COUSINS.

Some of Their Peculiarities-An Amusing Instance-An Ingenuous Reply.

[New York Commercial-Advertiser.] The English are decidedly a commer cial nation. That is, they endeavor to secure all they can at the smallest expense to themselves. If one has a title he is their be-all and end-all of perfection. If he has not, there may be some good in him if he has money and was born in England, but let the unfortu-nate suitor for favors be an American or from the colonies and there is no good in him. These honorables, right honorables, baronets, barons, lords, viscounts, earls, and what not, come to this country and are set upon a pedestal like gilded calves, and all Israel falls down and worships. They are feted, and wined, and dined at unlimited expense. All the American has to do is simply to play poodle to his serenity." In fact, it has now become necessary so to treat these visitors or they will insult you or your wife and daughters by their intolerable boorishness. A few years ago it was a pleasure to meet an English gentleman, but since professional athletics and an affected disdain for women have been cultivated some Englishmen of good birth are mere prigs and bullies. They never think of returning a favor, whatever it may be. They except every-thing for granted, as though it was simply their due. In fact, they have received so many courtesies over here that they regard any diminution of the same as an outrage and an injury.

lather an amusing instance was stated to me by one of the sufferers a year or so ago. The victim was a young American club man who had married an exceedingly charming wife. It was an elopement. They sailed for England and immediately managed to inform their English friends that they were in town. They waited for some days, and then went to work and waited some more days. Their English acquaintances had seen them driving on several occasions, but never indicated in any way that they were aware of their existence. Finally the bride and groom bade a farewell to London, somewhat in the spirit of Pope, and went to

But after a few months the sequel came. The turtle doves came back to the natural nest and settled down after they had related their experience to the edification of their friends. In a little while two sons of the family who had treated them in such an abominable manner in London arrived in this city on their way to some Big-Horn shooting in the Rockies. They called on the newly-married pair, but, strange to relate, the latter were out every time. At last, wearied with unre uited at tentions, the visitors made a confidant of a common friend of the two families. The confidant related the casus belliand then came the ingenuous reply: "Why, are they offended at that? Some persons think because we know them in New York we must know them in London. No one knows Mr. and Mrs. Blank in London." This explanation was so refreshing that the common friend whispered quietly into the ears of the youths that it was a shame to withdraw such sparkling naivete out of London fog.

[Youth's Companion.

Watch a good workman. He is never in a hurry; he never works fast; he seldom gets tired, and when he is tired, he stops. The great art of working is not to go beyond your pace. Every good horse has his pace, and in that pace he will do ten miles with pleasure, and come in fresh. Urge him beyond his pace, or fret him with alternate fast and slow, he will show signs of fatigue, and end his day exhausted.

One test whether we are working right or wrong is our enjoyment of our work, or our want of enjoyment. The person who is working calmly and doing his best takes pleasure in his work. The merely fast worker becomes fatigued; fatigue induces haste; haste causes mistakes and slighting.

There is a man in New York who will paint several large landscapes in two days. An artist in oil would require four months to paint one of them, and then he would think it imperfect in many of its qualities and details.

Cotton-Seed Oil in Cookery. [The Cook.]

Cotton-seed oil is extensively manufactured in the south, where it is much used in cookery, and there is no good reason why it should not eventually supersede hogs lard everywhere; it is not only more economical, but it is decidedly more healthful, being less liable to adulterations. Put up in air-tight cans, it is less apt to come in contact with foreign impurities than the barrel of lard found in the groceries (ine can get lard put up in tins, which is usually pure, but even the very best of hog's lard does not meet the re nirements necessary to give it preference over vegetable oils.

The Defense of London.

The wealthy merchants of London are discussing the advisability of private subscriptions toward the defense of that city against assault by war ships. They fear that in the event of war with a foreign country, equipped with a powerful navy, a fleet might make its way up the. Thames and enforce an enormous ransom for sparing the town.

Why a Orunken Man Staggers. I hilade phia News |

"Why does a drunken man stagger when he is drunk?" A representative Philadelphia physiscientist and philosopher addressed this query to a reporter as they passed by a well-dressed, gentlemanly-looking young man who had evidently looked through the bottom of too many wine glasses.

"You must know," said the doctor, in reponse to a request for a plain but scientifie explanation, "that the nervous system, which has its seat in the brain and the spinal cord, divides its re-sponsibility among its several parts, much as in the executive department of the government the responsibility is subdivided, but centers in one headthe president. In the case of man the cerebellum presides over the co-ordination of movement, the cerebrum over volitional life and the medulla oblongata over respiration. In the case of alcohol intoxication the influence is first felt at the cerebellum, and the victim loses that complete control o er the movement of his muscles which characterizes him in his normal state, This is the reason he staggers. If the intoxication is carried further the cerebrum is attacked and he loses control over his thoughts, the power of expressing himself intelligently and, in fact, all his intellectual faculties are behis intellectual faculties are numbed. When this narcotization becomes complete the man is dead drank. In many instances the intoxication has so affected that part of the spinal cord which presides over sensation that surgical operations have been performed without producing the sensation of pain. The last portion of the system affected by the potations of the drunkard is the medulla oblongata.

When this becomes narcotized respira-tion ceases and death ensues.
"I have gone even further than your original question implied, and have given you all the stages of drunkenness It is when the influence of the alcohol is felt in no other portion of the brain than the cerebellum when the individual is said to be drunk in his legs, but all right in his head."

Forcing the Voice.

Temp' Bar.] During the summer of 1884 a young man, splendidly built, called on me, having previously demanded an appointment, explaining that he had my advice to ask in a matter of paramount importance to him. He asked me what he should do under the following circumstances: He was the happy possessor of a very sweet tenor voice, of which he gave an instant proof. He was recommended to go to a certain Italian singing-master for the purpose of developing the strength of his voice. his gentleman recommended him to to take hold of the lack of a chair with both his hands, and then pressing on it as hard as he could to shout with all his

Did I think that was the right way to go to work? I replied that if his object was to break his voice he would undoubtedly reach that object by so doing, otherwise I could not imagine any good it could do. Such murderous ignorance I really think ought to be brought before the court, because either intentionally or unintentionally that young man would have been deprived of what he had to make a living from. He is now engaged and sings at a theatre of not too big proportions in the sweetest way possible, and would certainly not have tone left in his throat had he followed the advice above indicated.

The Hot Bath for Hot Weather.

[Detroit Free Press.] In sultry and oppressive weather the hot bath is of all others the most cooling. No matter how heated the system, water as hot as it can possibly be endured is the safest and most e cient relief. One should remain long enough to give every part of the body a thorough scrubbing with soap and a mohair wash-cloth, which cleanses the skin more thoroughly than a brush. The hot water dissolves every particle of refuse that clogs the pores, the rough cloth and soap remove it searchingly, and the towel is hardly laid aside before a delicious coolness and freshness comes upon one like that of a dewy summer morning, or emotion to that ef-

All enervating effects are warded off by an instant's plunge into cool water of say seventy degrees. This temperature seems like an ice dip after a bath of nearly 150 degrees. One can by this means secure in a common bath-room much of the real benefit of a Russian vapor bath.

A Vision for the Peacemakers.

[Toronto Week.] There are indeed enthusiasts who fancy that there is a way of putting an end to war at once and forever. Their talisman is the discovery of an all destroying projectile. An invention of wholesale slaughter thus becomes the dream of the philanthropists, and the infernal powers themsol as are to be made ministers of peace. It would be a curious, and for mankind at large might prove an awkward, part of the discovery that it would invest its first possessor with omnipotence, and enable him to compel all nations, on pain of annihilation, to receive him as universal emperor.

The Invention of Chess. [Chicago Herald,]

The Hindoos say that chess was the invention of an astronomer who flourished several thousand years ago, and who was possessed of supernatural knowledge and acuteness. The Greeks claim that it was the invention of Palamedes to begile the tedium of the siege of Troy. The Arab legend is that it was devised for the instruction of a young despot by his tutor, a learned Brahmin, to teach the youth how a king was dependent upon his subjects for safety.

States. THE FAMOUS PONY EXPRESS.

What a Company of Fearless and Determined Men Accomplished. [Cassell's Family Magazine.]

Twenty years ago settlers starting for the far west, with their heavily-laden wagons, knew that the journey would occupy six months of hard travel, and might involve many dangers of varied characters—chie'ly from hostile Indians, prairie fires, and rattlesnakes. Once started on that far journey many a weary month must elapse ere any tidings could reach the.n from the home they had left.

Great was the excitement when a company of fearless, determined men announced their resolution to carry letters from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific in fourteen days. The feat was deemed impossible. Nevertheless the Central Overland California and Pike's Peak express was duly organized, the vast expanse of country right across the continent was divided into runs of sixty miles, and at each terminus rude log-huts were erected as stations and stables for men and beasts. The latter were strong, swift ponies, selected for their hardiness and great powers of endurance, and the riders were all picked men, experienced scouts and trappers, noted-even in that region of keen, hard-riding men—for courage and good horsemanship; and many a time must both have been tried to the uttermost in the course of those terribly long and awfully lonesome rides across the trackless prairie, continually in danger of attack, by day or night, by wild Indians or highway rob

Once a week an express messenger started from either side of the great continent. From the first moment to the last not a second must be lost. As long as the pony could gallop, gallop he must; and the eager beasts seemed as keen as their riders, and scarcely needed the cruel spur to urge them on. For sixty miles at a stretch they must keep up their utmost speed; and when at length the goal was reached, where the next messenger was waiting in the saddle, ready to start without one minute's delay, the precious letter bag was tossed from one postman to the other, and, ere the wearied incomer had even dismounted, his successor had started on his onward way.

Then pony and man might rest and feed, and rest again, till the return of the messenger with a refilled letter-bag, which was warranted to accomplish its journey of upward of 2,000 miles in 240 hours. (The railway on the New York side being already constructed as far as St. Joseph, that station was the eastern point to-which the pony express had to run). This pony express was continued for two years, accomplishing its work with amazing regularity, and involving many a feat of splendid riding and wild adventure. It proved however, a ruinous failure from a commercial point of view, and the company collapsed with a deficit of $200,000.

The Khedive of Ezypt. (Harper's Bazar.)

An American visitor to that bothered monarch, the khedive of Egypt, was agreeably impressed by his appearance and manner. The khedive, who is somewhat short and stout, wore a black frock-coat, white vest, grayish trousers, and neat morocco shoes. His linen was spotless, and his shirt front was orna mented with three simple gold studs. There was no conspicuous jewelry on his person. His dark, luxuriant hair was carefully arranged, and his full beard was closely trimmed. Alto-gether, with his rich brown complexion, his expressive eyes, and his striking features, he struck his American visitor as a remarkably, well-dressed and handsome man.

The American Vice of Rurry.

[Harper's Bazır.]

Even making allowance for the fact that the invisible friction of every day is left out of the report as trivial and momentary, it is still plain that no other people were ever so corroded with the vice of hurry as we contemporary Americans. It is not business mon only, lawyers, editors, mechanics, nor business women, mothers of families writers, teachers, journalists, artists and artisans, who thus wear themselves out by rapidity of motion. It is the ornamental classes also who are beaten thin in this daily attrition is the maids and matrons must dress three or four times a day, be seen at this tea and that dinner and the other reception; who must not neglect the practice for the piano club or the harmonic society, or omit the ride, or drive, or theatre party, or shopping, or calls of condolence, or the races, or the day's notes of courtesy, or the scores of calls, or the picture exhibition, or the books from the library. The babe begins life with this in herited nervous excitement, the school child hurries through it tasks, advanced pupils, boys and girls, work with a feverish haste that ambition and emulation encourage, and so the business and pleasure of mature existence are en-tered upon with powers wrought to a high pitch, and with a sense of the inadequacy of time that keys them still higher.

It is easy to see how we are all incited, persuaded, compelled to do too much from the first moment of conscious existence to the last. But how we are to help it is a much more troublesome matter to settle. Where everybody runs, no sane person can afford to walk, lest he seem insane. The time has come, however, when people must be persuaded to walk, or drop out of the ranks altogether. Statistics show an increase in the number of deaths from apoplexy, paralysis, and diseases of the heart, and in the number of cases of brain deterioration, incident to the rush and strain of daily life, that point a very alarming moral.

Washington Breakfasts Fifty Years Ago [Ben: Perley Poore.] The breakfast table at a first-class Washington "mess" (where from eight to a dozen congressmen of congonia tastes had the entire possession of a house, paying different rates in accordance with their accommodations) was very different from the present mati-tudinal repasts at the metropolitan hotels. There were tea, coffce, beefsteaks, oysters, eggs, ham and eggs, sausages, devilled turkoys, bread—wheaten, Indian and rye, and mixed of all, dyspeptic and anti-dyspeptic—pancakes and buckwheat cakes, rivalling those far-famed ones of Pennsylvanian Chester, hoe cakes and Johnny cakes, with an interminable variety of Indian cakes known to the Virginia kitchen, together with the appropriate condiments of sugars, domestic and foreign, molasses, honey, pepper, vinegar and moutard de Mallie.

Doctor Johnson was in error, pace tanti viri, when he observed of his breakfast in Scotland, "where the tea and coffee were accompanied not only with bread and butter, but with honey, conserves and marmalade," that, "if an epicure could remove by a wish, wherever he had supped, he would breakfast in Scotland." The breakfasts at the Washington messes cast those of Scotland far into the background, nor were the dinners less enjoyable. There were wild and tame turkeys and geese, Virginia hams, Kentucky beef, canvas-back ducks, terrapin, oysters, shad, sheeps head, and occasionally a buffalo-hump or a beaver-tail brought from the far west. Wine was drank by every one.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between cities of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southwest. The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE Guartees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly billisted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culvers and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten, "good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both," Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.

There are a few advantages along with the many disadvantages. Almost everybody has a home of his own, and all are on an equality, because the most of them are poor, and no one thinks himself too good to associate with his neighbor, if he has one. The homestead law is a boon to many poor men who come here for homes. It is a hard country to live in, and, if buying land were added to the many other expenses, nine-tenths of those who come would hundreds and even thousands have been induced to sell all they possess and come west. Little do they know of its privations. Men become bankrupt from numerous expenses, great and small, on a new farm, and women grow old and haggard from incessant work and loneliness. In summer, farmers and their wives are so over-worked that they seldom go to church or visit the neighbors, and in winter they are content to stay in the house by the fire, safe from the howling blasts of this treeless desert. It will not always be a treeless desert, for ten acres out of every 640 are being planted in trees.

The farmers' only recreation is when necessity compels them to go to town to sell their produce and do some shopping. This is a gala day. The husband dons his best overalls and clean shirt, and the wife puts on a neat-looking calico dress and a plain hat, and undergoes certain corresponding changes in position in obedience to the Apples are shipped from the east, and when the farmer goes to town, if he possibly can, he buys 5 or 10 cents worth to take home to the children. So most of them harmless nature were not well known it would seldom be molested, but might bask in the sun for centuries to come, instead of becoming a comparative rarity by gradual extermination. The common iguana is from three to five and even six feet long when full grown. It inhabits the West Indies and tropical America, and belongs to an exceedingly numerous family of lizards. As a rule, all of these relatives have broad, flat heads, often ornamented with comb-like ridges or membranous lobes; similar appendages usually continue along the dorsal region. The throat is almost invariably furnished with a dewlap, or membranous e pansion of some kind. Their eyes are always furnished with lids, which may be completely closed; their tongues are short, thick, and only free at the end, and their ears are freely exposed. There can be but little doubt but that the white population of tropical America learned to eat the flesh of the igu-ana from the ancient Indians. In Mr. Eryan Edwards' "History of the West Indies," published some 100 years ago, he says: "I believe it seldom happens that they (the iguana) were served at any English table, but their French and Spanish neighbors still devour them with exquisite relish." Mr. Edwards also says he has been assured by a lady of great beauty and elegance, who spoke from experience, that the iguana is equal in flavor and wholesomeness to the finest green turtle."

The old time priests evidently enjoyed the flesh of this lizard as well as the sport of its capture, if we may judge from the following extract from the writings of Father Labat, which ap-peared in The Sporting Maga in for Sentember 1794. September, 1794:
"We were attended," says he, "by a negro, who carried a long rod, at one end of which was a piece of whip cord with a running knot. After beating the bushes some time, the negro discovered our game basking in the sun, on a dry limb of a tree; hereupon he began whistling with all his might, to which the iguana was wonderfully attentive stretching out his head and turning his neck, as if to enjoy it more fully. The negro now approached, still whistling, and, advancing his rod gently, began tickling with the end of it the sides and throat of the iguana, who seemed mightily pleased with the operation, for he turned on his back and stretched him-self out like a cat before a fire, and at length fairly fell asleep; which the negro perceiving, dexterously slipped the noose over his head, and with a jerk brought him to the ground. Good sport it afforded (continues the reverend historian) to see the creature swell like a turkey cock at finding himself entrapped. We caught others in the same way, and kept one of them alive seven or eight days, but it grieved me to the heart that he thereby lost much delicious fat."

The Negro Dialect. [Exchange.]

At the American Philological society meeting at New Haven, Conn., recently, Professor J. A. Harrison, of Virginia, who is by birth a Louisianian, gave an essay on the negro dialects spoken by some 6,000,000 blacks, and a sketch of his remarks appeared in The New Haven l'alladium:
"The fertility of the negro really wonderful, not only in the ingenious distortion of words by which new and startling significance is given to common English words, but more especially in the domain of imitation of sounds, cries and ani-mal utterances. To the negro, all nature is alive, replete with intelligence; the whispering, tingling, hissing, boom-ing, muttering, 'zoonin' around him are full of mysterious hints and suggestions which he reproduces in words that imitate, often strikingly, the poetic and multiform messages which nature sends him through his auditory nerve. He is on intimate terms with the wild animals and birds, and the flora and fauna of the immense stretches of pine woods among which for generatious his habitation has been pitched. It is an ear language altogether; the only wonder is how the negro could have so truly caught the swiftly uttered sounds of the lan-

> Let Rim Who Runs Read. [Boston Budget.]

The age at which running can be practiced, an eminent physician says, by a healthy man in training, is from 20 to 30. Boys and girls, also, of 10 or 12, can run with no apparent fatigue. In toys' races, for those under 14 years, no previous training should be inflicted. No one should train for running until he is 18, but 20 would be the safer. Between 20 and 27 is the best age for attaining speed in running. Between 30 and 40 a wise man will think twice before undergoing training for race running. Older men should run on no pretence whatever.

If the a erage temperature of non-smokers were represented by 1,000, that of moderate smokers would be 1,008; while the heart in the former case was making 1,000 pulsations, in the latter it would beat 1,180 times hence the harm of tobacco smoking.

They are usually the men and women who know that their fathers and mothers did not belong to the gentler class, and who are striving eagerly to make their own election to it sure. It is the uncertainty of their own position and their own breeding that makes them stagy, whether they are in the pulpit, in the ball-room, or behind a counter.
