FASILION. BY GUY RIVERS.

Man laughs at the follies of woman. And sneers at her penchant of dressing, Instead of an instinct for blessing. But if without favor or passion The difference between them we scan, We'll find woman mistress of fashion, While Fashion's the tyrant of man,

Philosophers teach, but their teaching Is vain as the prayer of the sinner: Long years of denouncing and preaching Have passed and left Fashion the winner. Saint and worlding, and clergy and lafty. I've noticed wherever I've been, respect less the wisdom of eighty Then the bright blooming styles of eighteer

There's a charm in arrangement of colors. There's a power in a ribbon or feather, More potent than all the gold doilars A miser can jingle together. A dress that sets well on the wearer. Though only a six-penny print. Vill distance a form that is fairer Misrobed at the cost of a mint.

No man of experience doubt it, Though much they pretend to deplore it, That Fashion has something about it Sweeps all opposition before it. It may be the shape of a bonnet, It may be the arch of a shoe, But whenever your glance alights on it,

You feel it is master of you.

We picture a form full of sweetness, Too bright for this planet in seeming. It beauty so rich in completeness, We shudder to fear we are dreaming. But a picture, though much we may prize it, Is insipid a part from its frame, And however we try to disguise it, We are caught by the dress all the same.

A Strange Reunion.

BY ADA E. II.

Author of 'Reaping the Whirlwind,' etc.

"No, Hal, take my advice and be warned in season," emphatically. "Have nothing to do with either widows or divorced women!" savagely gnawing the tawny ends of a long mustache which covered, but could not entirely hide, a wonderfully handsome you so wrought up. One would imagine you had been bitten by some such designing female yourself, or knew something about it personally. You are not usually so bitter." The deep red which gradually overspread Chifford Torrance's countenance at these words, showed that the chance shot had taken effect in some way. His companion noticed this with surprise, for he had never before seen Torrance embarrassed. A clever, genial comrade, universally liked, his nonchalant manner was such as to give no index to his real opinions, and Harry McGee had supposed him to be only chaffing. Torrance laughed in a hollow fashion, plainly making an effort to regain his composure, and rising, took a finely browned meerschaum from the mantel and began to smoke furiously. McGee followed suit, and for awhile there was silence. At length he said, "You must have good reasons, Clif, for your evident aversion to widows. I wish you would unbosom yourself. Perhaps I need a warning," with a smothered sigh.

An exquisite vision rose before him, youthful, enchanting, seeming to lure him on to destruction. Again he Widows are bad enough," muttered Torrance; "always trying to inveigle some poor fool," innocently unconscious of his friend's rising wrath. "But it was of divorced women especially I was thinking. Such women are a liv ing lie!"

"Shall I tell you a little story, Hal?" he continued, more quietly. "It concerns one who was perhaps the dearest friend of my childhood. Very early in life he married, even before leaving college. His wife was a sweet, pretty creature, the belle of the university town. As she had been a great flirt, he was naturally intensely jealous of her watching her every action with suspicion. Probably he was unjust. I am inclined to think now that he was though at the time my sympathies were all with him. One evening, in a sudden fit of anger, he so far forgot himself as to strike her. Well," clearing his throat with an effort, "he never looked upon her face again. She left him, and the next he heard of her .was when the summons was served on him to appear in court. He did not appear and an absolute divorce was allotted with alimony." "Glad of it," responded McGee, laconically. "You think she did right?" incredulously. "Nothing but death should part man and wife!"

"Why did her husband not ask her forgiveness? Women are loving creatures—easily won over." "True Hal. But he was intensely proud, too much so for his own good Besides, he thought himself in the right, and so do I. While I've no doubt but that Nellie was as pure as an angel, yet 'Cæsar's wife should be above suspicion.' Brush the down from the peach, its beauty is injured. What husband could bear to see the smiles, the swift glances, the many little attentions that should be his alone, bestowed upon any other man who might take his wife's fancy for a moment? I tell you, Hal, it is asking too much of human nature.' "I suppose your friend has consoled himself long ago," remarked McGee. "Conosled himself!" sadly. "Not long afterward he came into possession of a considerable inheritance, which he is fool enough to spend in traveling over the world in search of his wife-per-haps only to find her married again." "I should think it would be an easy natter to discover her whereabouts.

t is only to ask her lawyers." "Who positively refuse to disclose her address without her permission. But enough of this," recovering his usual easy manner. "Come let us go down to the ball-room awhile. The hop has been in progress an hour already."

"Agreed," cried Harry, who had been onging to make his escape. Although not a dancing man, there was a queer fascination in watching his inamorata. the fair widow Hamilton, as she lloated by on the arm of some "dude," as McGee mentally termed the fashion able male butterflies who hovered about The lady was not present, but a few moments later she entered the spacious salon. Her soft, delicate white draperies suited well the slight, yet wellounded figure. The solitaire pearls which adorned her tiny ears were not purer than the white cheek against which they rested, while the shining black hair, becomingly dressed, enhanced the lovely pallor of her plexion. Mrs. Hamilton was accompanied by her friend and constant companion, Miss Willis, a retiring blonde, whose quiet manners and subdued type formed a complete foil to the exotic brilliancy of the widow. Murmurs of admiration, as usual, greeted their entrance, and our two friends were among the first to pay their addresses.

behind her glasses as Torrance approached. She seemed to throw off some strange spell which had hitherto | pulsive and passionate, and that blow oppressed her, and to awaken to strange life and energy.

Torrance hung upon her words entranced. The flashes of wit which scintillated from her tremulous red mouth held him captive. The shy, uplifted glances of her veiled eyes af fected him powerfully. Without ap parent effort she kept him at her side while the widow did the same for Mc-Gee, until the lateness of the hour caused the assembled guests to dis-

"How cool and inviting this chamber seems, after the heat of the ballroom!" exclaimed Mrs. Hamilton, stepping to an open window to admire the moonlight on the ocean. "By-the-way, Helen, you seem to have made quite an impression upon that handsome Torrance," mischieviously. "I am told he is a regular woman-hater, and as we overheard him ayow to his friend, he passionately detests certain classes of women," laughing merrily. "Do but rance?" bring him to your feet, and you will "Ther have accomplished wonders."

Two weeks is a long time at the seaside, when the ladies have only to assume becoming toilettes, and pose for the admiration of the men, who apparently, at least for the time being, have no other purpose in life. If it were not that the candles so far out-number the moths, some of the feebler lights might have more chance to shine.

No one in the vicinity of the brilliant brunette Hamilton, could hope to capture other than some stray admirer, who, perhaps, had received the cold shoulder from the bewitching widow. The fact that every one called her a fearful flirt, and applied to her the term "fast," and all the other choice epithets with which the envious betray their jealousy of one of their own sex, troubled her not. Serenely oblivious, she moved on her way, satisfied with observing the admiration of all the se-lect few who were admitted to her acquaintance, save one. Torrance's devotion to Miss Willis she did not attempt to shake. Poor Clifford! A slender, lissome figure, smoothe bands of pale gold hair, a red kissable mouth, little hands and feet, each peculiarity of Miss Willis', whether of manner or of dress, was ever vividly present to his mental vision. Yet, when the business holiday had come to an end, he returned to the city, and made no sign. Not so with McGee, who staid on, more and more infatuated with the widow, who kept him tantalizingly at a distance, but who favored no other so

It was about three weeks later, that, unable longer to resist the unsupportable longing to see Miss Willis, Torrance closed his office earlier than was his custom, and made a flying trip to the beach. Almost the first persons he met were his friend McGee, and Mrs Hamilton, who saluted him gaily. Upon her finger sparkled a magnificent sapphire, the one spot of color in her rich but subdued toilet. It attracts Torrance's attention immediately, and as he took the proffered hand, he said, glancing from one to the other, "Are congratulations the order of the day?" McGee beamed, while the widow slyly retorted, "Yes, in spite of your second-hand advice to your friend, to "bevare of the vidders." Clifford blushed and cast a furious look at McGee. "Don't blame him," exclaimed Mrs. Hamilton, laughingly. "I assure you Hal did not betray you," and leaving Torrance to wonder who had, she drew her companion on. But where was Miss Willis? Some hours later. Torrance finally discovered her seated in a retired nook. Had she became aware of his unexpected presence and purposely kept out of the

"Speak," begged Clifford, "tell me that I am not indifferent to yon, dear one!" clasping more tightly the nerveless hand he still held. "I cannot," was the faltering response. "Oh, do let me go!" as he clasped her to his breast, and rained kisses upon her tear-wet face. "Do you know that I am that creature of vour aversion—a divorced woman!" In the confusion, her glasses fell, unheeded, and the beautiful, clear, brown eyes were for the first time fully exposed to Clifford's view. What was there in their translucent depths that sent a shiver through his verv soul? Long and searchingly he gazed, his keen eyes piercing the uncertain light.

"Who are you?" he queried, in strained, anxious tones For answer, she raised her hands with a swift, graceful motion, and the Early in September following, a brilliant wedding took place in the city. It was that of the dashing widow, and her devoted lover, Harry McGee. Prominent among the guests were the rich Mr. Torrance and his lovely wife, who had been privately re-mar ried the day after their reunion. Their romantic story had been a .nine days' gossip and their devotion formed the theme of every tongue. As they drew near to offer congratu lations, the bride mischievously murmured: "How about widows, Mr. Tor wiles," he smilingly responded, with a roguish glance at the newly-made husband. "And divorced women?" sinking her voice to a whisper.

"There would be none if all husbands were worthy," was the earnest reply. "And if all women realized the awful responsibilities of the marriage vow," added Mrs. Torrance, her lovely face radient with subdued emotion.

The German Municipal System. A striking feature of the German municipal system is its entire independence of national politics. No issues but those arising out of municipal questions are allowed to influence the city elections. Every male inhabitant, twenty-four years of age, has a right to vote on municipal questions, provided he has his own household and is not dependent on father or mother: that he has not received alms from the public funds within twelve years; that he has paid all municipal dues; that he occupies a house or pursues a trade with two employes; that he pays an income tax or a class tax. Under one or another of these five conditions all industrious persons in the city are included. That all voters should count equally is regarded as unbusines-like. The arrangement adopted to meet this point of view is this: Voters are divided into three classes, each of which elects one-third of the city council. To the first class are assigned so many of the largest tax-pavers as pay one-third of the taxes assessed; to the second, so many as in the aggregate pay the second third of the taxes; to the third class belong all not included in the first and second. Each of the three classes elects forty-two members of the council, its influence upon questions of finance being kept in strict equality with its tax payments. The City Council of Berlin has long been conspicuous for the educational and financial standing of its members. Election to it is accounted an honor to which the ablest men of the city aspire. Hints for the Kitchen.

A handful of hay in a pailful of water neutralizes the smell of paint. If the saucepan in which milk is to be boiled be first moistened with water, it will prevent milk from burning. I was riding up town in a Third Avenne car the other day when a butcher's boy, a lad some fourteen years of age, in a hickory shirt and a battered Derby hat on the back of bis head, stepped airlly upon the back platform and hung his basket on the handle of the brake. He had sandy hair cut close to his head. He was very much freckled, his eyes were pale blue, and keen in their expression, and his nose was of the genus pug. He was smoking a cigarette. For some time he shared the privileges of the platform alone with the conductor. who began talking to the boy about the wrongs of the conductors and their right to strike.

"What are you givin' us?" said the boy; "yer call it hard work to stand out here on the platform and yank a bell? When you ain't doing that, you are inside taking fares, and knockin' 'em down, too. That ain't no work. Jest you begin at 4 o'clock in the morn ing, like me. Open the shop, sweep it out, clean ice-cold fish out of the refrigerator, and never get no chance to warm yourself; then lug big baskets of meat up to the top of flats all day long, and be cussed by the boss because you don't move round faster. You fellows have struck it soft, you have. You can't talk to me. NUMBER 16.

Selecting Imperial Brides. Pekin (March 20) Correspondent ondon Times: Much interest is awakened in the coming events in the Imperial family. The Emperior is approaching maturity, being now 16. His guardians have been letting him out gradually, and during the present winter he has enjoyed much recreation on the ice on the lakes which form the most beautiful features of the palace grounds. Her Imperial Majesty, the Empress Regent, has also spent much of her time out of doors. But the time has now arrived to prepare for the marriage of the young Emperor, and all Manchu families above a certain rank, having daughters between the ages of 12 and 18, must bring them to the palace for inspection by the officials charged with the duty of choosing a consort for the sovereign. These pilgrims of love have in many cases to perform long and arduous journeys from their homes, and it would not be difficult to construct a romance out of the incidents of such pilgrimages, the hope which sings in the maiden's bosom each fresh morning when she resumes "There is no withstanding their her journey, the disgust and despair year that attention has been called to the extent of alien landlordism in this country, and the necessary evils resulting therefrom. One of the most striking instances is that of Mr. Scully, who resides in England and is a British subject. He owns 90,000 acres in Illinois, occupied by hundreds of tenants, from whom he receives one million dollars per annum, all of which he expends in Europe. Another instance is that of the Schenley estate in American estates $100,000 per annum.

Jefferson Davis Answered.

Paste jewels make a poor show when real jewels are placed beside them. Jefferson Davis has been peddling paste political diamonds down south the past fortnight, and his sonorous periods about liberty and loyalty have a glitter which may possibly deceive. Therefore, beside those spurious gems we place a diamond of the first water, Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg, at the dedication of the Union Cemetery, November 19, 1863. That immortal prose poem puts to silence the delusive and diffusive utterances of a disappointed man whose treason merited death at the hands of the government. Lincoln's speech was as follows.

"Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, test-ing whether that nation or any other nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who have struggled here have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. to the great task remaining before us; that from honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain: that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."-Boston Record.

The following from Carlisle, Penn., in Chicago Tribune of May 14, tells a story that will be a good Democratic campaign yarn. That party will do well to preserve it: Norman Porter, a grandson of ex-Gov. Porter, of this state, and now conductor on the Pullman car running from New York to Atlanta, on the Cumberland Valley railroad, who was brutally attacked while attending a meeting in the South where Jefferson Days was delivering one of his speeches, said yesterday: "When Jeff Davis delivered his speech at Montgomery I was present and heard every word he said. The crowd was an immense one and the cheering, when he said anything particularly vindictive, very loud. I listened and kept quiet, although my blocd boiled within me, until Davis said: 'I often prayed to God to live to see the day when both Lincoln and Grant were dead and in h-1, and as my prayer has been answered I am ready to die.' This was too much for me, and I turned to get out of the crowd, being indiscreet enough to remark as I left: 'It is a pity Jeff Davis wasn't hung at Fortress Monroe.' I had hardly said it when a man from behind me reached forward and wish a knife cut me in the face. He started to run and I after him, but he got away in the crowd. I called for an officer, but they were slow about coming, and I was beginning to be covered with blood. I went to my hotel and had the gash sewed up. My father is prominently connected with the Grand Army, and this being my home, I thought I would report the matter to the post here and see what can be done.

WHAT might have proved a frightful accident, occurred last evening at eight o' clock, to Rev. and Mrs. Benjamin Finney, Miss Carrie Finney and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Place of this city, while on their way to participate in a surprise party tendered the Rev. Mr. Adams at his home in Branciforte. The party, ensconsed snugly in Mr-Place's carry-all, left home at atout 7:30 o' clock and proceeded across the upper bridge and to a point near Chalk Rock Hill, where the hitherto level roadway assumes the shape of turn pike, with embankments fifteen feet high on either side and without fence, posts or other guards to prevent the falling of vehicles to the ground below. Arriving at this point, a cow, in the field along side the road, became frightened at the carriage and rising hastily, shot away in the darkness. This so frightened the animal attached to the carriage, that it became unmanageable and despite Mr. Place's frantic effort to bring it to a standstill, the horse backed the carriage completely over the embankment, and as it fell it overturned, throwing the party out and then rolling squarely upon them. Mrs. Finney, besides several severe bruises about the body, sustained a very painful wound of the right ear, that member being split from its edge to her head. Mrs. Place probably sus-tained the most serious injuries, which consist in a horribly sprained ankle, several contusions about the body and evidence of entense injury to the chest and lungs. Miss Carrie Finney seemed most fortunate, escaping with but few slight bruises. The young lady this morning however, complained of pains in the back and hip probably occasioned by the carrage falling upon her. Messrs. Place and Finney sustained severe bruises; the latter a most serious one on the hip joint. They apprehended no difficulty, however, in being able to be up and about in a day or two. Mesdames Finney and Place and Miss Finney are confined in bed at the Place residence and are attended by Dr. Fagan who proclaims their injuries not of a serious nature. Mr. Place, to a Surf reporter, said that it was a miracle to him that the party should fall down such an embankment and escape without a single broken bone.

More Counterfeiters. For twenty years past suspicions have been had, and many officers of the law have tried to ferret out the scheme of counterfeiters, which were supposed to be manufacturing coin in Cass county. On May 11, Hannah Hoover, a colored woman, was arrested in Kalamazoo, charged with passing counterfeit money. On her being arrested she squealed on one Wellington Jones, saying she got the money of him. J. Frank Blackmond, Deputy U. S. Marshal for the Western District, on being notified by Sheriff Saunders, of Cass county, obtained a search warrant and warrant of arrest, and in company with Sheriff Saunders and under-sheriff Keed, went to "Monkey Run," in New- | neatly engraved thereon.

Oil Inspector La Du has issued a | northwest of Cassopolis, and one of the most isolated and dreary places in Michigan, surrounded as it is on either side with swamps and marshes, a lake etc., where Wellington Jones lived.
On arriving there, Deputy Blackberg township, Cass county, 11 miles mond took possession of Jones' log house, where he and his family, consisting of a wife and aged mother (very sharp old people), resided. While Deputy Blackman held possession of this log hut, Sheriff Saunders and undersheriff Reed went to a pond near by where Prof. Louis H. Leon was fishing Leon is known as "professor" from the fact that he is a mesmerist. He was brought to this log hut and a general search of it was had. In this house was found a crucible (used for melting hard metal and made of black lead), and a large quantity of plaster paris The officers were tolerably well satis fied with their search, but not wholly convinced. In company with officers Blackmond and Saunders, Leon went a short distance from the log hut, and a conversation was held.

The next morning, May 12, Leon was prought to this city for examination. Before time for the examination, Leon wished to talk with the officer in charge, Blackmond, and to him, after five hours' talk in privacy at Gilbert's office, he was induced to reveal every. thing, and then agreed to go with Blackmond to a cave in Monkey Run. Taking Leon to Cass, in company with Sheriff Saunders and under-sheriff Reed, they started for the cave. On arriving there, Leon and Sanders went into this cave, which was built of logs and entirely under ground. There Leon passed the whole outfit to Blackmond, and it is now in his possession. Leon was brought to this city yesterday, and this morning he was taken before U.S. Commissioner Wm. J. Gilbert for examination, and was bound over for trial in the sum of $1,000. In default of bail he was sent to the county jail of Kent county. All implicated have been arrested, and we await de velopments .- Niles Star.

JACKSON, Mich., May 17.—The latest excitement from the Crouch murder cases was caused this morning by the finding of three bloody shirts and some underclothing buried under a stump on the farm of Jacob Hutchins, by George Hutchins. BY ORDER OF COM. THE amount of primary school money apportioned Buchanan township from last semi-annual apportionment is five hundred seventy-four dollars and eight cents, apportioned to the different School Districts as follows:

No. 1, $387.20. No. 2, $27.52. " 3, 44.16. " 4, 28.80. · 5, 43.52. " 6, 23.04. " 7, 19.84.

With the first enstallment which was received last fall, this is $62.26 more than the apportionment of last year for District No. 1, and a proportionate increase for the other dis-

THERE are several rooms in this place devoted exclusively to that ennobling pastime, poker playing. The RECORD has called attention to them without avail, but cannot resist the temptation to object to the city capitol being converted into a poker den, which the RECORD learns has been done. For the sake of decency, let us have the Common Council move out and not contaminate this business with their presence. We learn that the the work around the "Jack Pot", which should not be.

RUNAWAY. - One of the Berrien Springs creamery teams, a span of mustangs, ran away when gathering cream in the vicinity of Wm. Blake's, in the bend of the river, Tuesday. Something became wrong with the harness, and while the driver was repairing it the team started, with the tongue down. About two cans of cream that had been gathered was quite evenly distributed along the road side and one of the mustangs had a foot badly injured by the wagon

ONE of the questions that should interest every tax-payer in this village is, can the village collect her taxes? It is true that nearly all of the taxes have been paid, but each year a few parcels are returned as uncollected, and no sale of land ever made to force collection. If the village can sell to enforce collection, why has she not done so? If she cannot sell and confer a title, the sooner we have a change other kindred improvements. In other in the foundation of our village government the better for all concerned. There is no justice in making one person, who does not resist, pay, and allow another, who is indolent or obstinate, enjoy the government without so large a crowd as common on such occasions. The few sharpers who came here found poor pasture. They wanted license for all kinds of snap games. One started a wheel prizedrawing machine, but when his stool pigeon had succeeded in drawing in one victim, Deputy-sheriff Smith told him to close business and move out. The managers of the circus have been doing what they could to free themselves of these fellows, and if other towns will give them as thin picking as they found in Buchanan, they will not flourish many days. The nightwatchmen and police picked up a cooler full of fellows who didn't have brains enough to take care of their stomachs, and were drunk. Jim Madron was arrested by A. A. Jordan, but resisted, and after paying his fine for making a swill-tub of himself was placed under $300 bonds to keep the peace six months, in default of which he has gone to jail to stay until he finds his bonds, or six months. The rest of the grist were: Tom Croxon, $3 and cost; Ras. Hamilton, John Miller and Henry Hus, each $1 and cost; and Frank Mansfield, $5 and cost. IF there be one thing more detestable than another it is the practice of parents lying to their children. While on Front street, Friday, a young mother, accompanied by a little boy of three or four years of age, the little one lagging behind and fretting, when the mother called out, "Come on, or I'll trade you off to the show." Another mother was heard to tell her child that unless he behaved, the elephant would get him. But a few months can elapse before these little children will have learned that their mothers have been lying to them about these things and will not believe her about other things. They also learn to think that if mother can tell such damnable lies, there is no harm for the youngster to do the same, and these mothers, while they imagine themselves doing humanity a grand favor in bringing forth bright, smart children, are actually acting a curse by bringing up a generation of liars, who will be a disgrace to themselves, their parents and the community in which they live. Another mother teaches her children that the dark is filled with all sorts of imaginary evils, and, besides making liars of them, they are brought up perfect cowards, who are afraid to look behind them. If you must lie, tell your lies to some one who is old enough to know you are lying and will give it the consideration it deserves, but tell your child the TRUTH and nothing but the truth.

[Benton Harbor Wedge.] An unknown tramp built a fire in the cellar of one of James McDonald's new cottages on Pipestone street last Saturday night and had it not been discovered by the neighbors there is no doubt but that the house would have been in ashes ere morning. Several of the neighbors tried to capture him but he was too smart on foot for them.... At six minutes to six o'clock last Friday night a scaffold, 16 feet high, upon which were three workmen, gave away at Frank Baxter's new house on Broadway. Ezra Kenney received some very severe bruises on the left hip and shoulder, but no internal injuries. Messrs. Wood and Crane, who were also on the scaffold at the time, fared better, receiving only slight injuries....Jessie Humphry, living in Hagar, went into Jas. Bradford's store last Saturday to purchase a revolver. Jas. handed him one to examine and told him to be careful for it was loaded. However, while examining it it was accidently discharged. The ball passed through the fore finger of Jessie's left hand, which he had over the muzzle at the time it was discharged.

[St. Joseph Herald.] Perch and cisco are biting quite freely just now....Jas. Fikes, who has been captain of the river steamer May Graham for many years past, has accepted that position again this year. ... A young man named Jessie Porter, voungest son of S. W. Porter, of Royalton, while boat-riding with Earnest Everhard in the St. Joseph River, near the mouth of Hickory Creek, last evening, was accidentally precipitated into the water and was drowned. It is expected that a detail from the St. Joseph Life-Saving Crew will go to the scene of the accident this morning to aid in the recovery of the body.

Scenes of the French Rovolution Repeated-Anarchy Reveling-The Dead and Dying-Bloodshed at the Old Haymarket Place.

Those who have comforted themselves that there never could be such mobs and rioting America as there have been frequently in the old world, must by this time begin to conclude that they have been sleeping above a volcano. The scenes at Chicago, May 4, bear a tragic resemblance to those at the storming of the French Bastile, July 14. 1789, three years less than a century ago. Curious facts of race appear in the Chicago events. Looking over the list of names of the killed and wounded among the Socialists, it will be seen that they are not those of native Americans, but of Bohemians, Poles, Hungarians and Germans, the very element that Bismarck has been doing his utmost to get rid of. A smile broke over his iron face, undoubtedly, when he opened his favorito morning paper and read how the factories and mills of Chicago were going to the bow-

Another fact will strike the general reader. The fearless policemen who were killed and wounded in trying to disperse the rioters were, at most, without exception, Irish. England fancies that Irishman is only another name for lawlessness, but in the United States they are on the side of the law.

It was a man mounted upon a wagon who made the speech the night of May 4, that precipitated the bloodiest part of the riot. It was in the evening at the old Haymarket on the west side.

Twelve thousand men assembled in the old Haymarket after the riotous proceedings in the afternoon. They were the fermented in-crease of the host that had been dispersed by the police in the afternoon. Then twelve determined policemen had begun to scatter a crowd of 20,000 people-men, women and children. They were re-enforced afterwards till their number was 200, but the fact remains that before their brother officers arrived those twelve brave fellows made the throng yield before them. There was blood spilt on both sides, though no more than one or two lives were lost. The afternoon fight at once embodened the police and whetted the wrath of the throng.

In the evening they reassembled to vent their anger and breathe out vengeance. Now there is no law in this country against a man's speaking his mind. It is quite possible that if the red rag speakers had been allowed to finish their harangues the crowd would have dispersed in peace. They doing so. In fact August Spies and T. R. Parsons had made violent speeches which had fallen Father flat. The crowd had dwin dled down to 1,000.

This would never do, thought Anarchist Fielden. He sprang upon a wagon and called wildly on the people to kill the police hirelings. Word was sent in a moment to a colice station, and 125 men started at once to the Haymarket. "To arms!" cried Fielden, as they advanced on the scene. Police In-spector Bonfield ordered them to disperse in the name of the law. A second time he gave the command. The next moment it seemed as if earth and sky split open. The policemen marched in ranks, one row behind another. A number of bombs were seen to Policemen dropped to the ground shattered Some of the Socialists drop ped too, it is said. Immediately after the explosion the officers fired volley after volley from their revolvers into the crowd, who replied to the bullets with knives, pistol; and clubs. They had come prepared, but they were dispersed. In a few moments they broke ranks and fied, before the officers, in all directions. It only proved for the thousanth time what they ought to have known, that a few well-armed, determined, drilled men, who stand shoulder to shoulder, like a

AFTER THE BATTLE. wounded from both sides were con-by the patrol wagons to the station house. The scene there was neartrenuing. The officers' legs were torn and their fingers, shot away and their braye breasts the lodging place of bullets. "Don't touch in the cried one who dragged himself home to die; "Don't bullets," "Don't bull touch me; I am shot full of holes!"

MORMON WOMEN WHO DECLARE THEY BELIEVE IN POLYGAMY.

They Look as Though They Might, Really-Three of the Leading Female Lights of Mormondom-The Saints Storm Congress.

Having exhausted every other resource, the Mormons are now endeavoring to put their women forward to bolster up the tottering pillars of polygamy. They wish to demonstrate that their great truth is true because the women believe in it, which does not follow at all. Indeed, the tough old Brighamites themselves are not went to attach so much importance to the opinions of

A delegation of doubled and twisted wives recently pleaded their polygamous cause (caws) before the judiciary committee of the house of representatives at Washington. Of these, the alleged intellectual one was Sister E. B. Wells.

The hearing of the Mormon question in Washington attracted much attention from the inhabitants of the gay capital. Young women and old sat hour by hour in the committee rooms, listening to the testimony.

When Dr. Mary Walker will Marry. Now, I would not think it any particular favor if half the men in the United States should ask me to be their wife. I have had men, intelligent and wealthy men, come to me and say: "Dr. Walker, I respect you; I respect your intellect and your good sense, and I believe if you only dressed like other women I would love you and ask you to be my wife." Well, do you know what I told them? I said: "There are plenty of women in the world who dress just as you want them to; go and marry them." I don't want any to marry me for my clo when I am dressed up, I look well. If I am married it must be from the highest motives. -From a recent interview.

One of the President's Fancies. Ever since he first took possession of the White House Mr. Cleveland has manifested great interest in the blushing brides and grooms who wander through the stately rooms hand and hand, happier than they ever have been before or ever will be again. The president is not over fond of babies—he may come to that after a while-but he loves to gaze upon the examples of marital bliss who come to see what a great and good man he is.-Washington Letter.

AN ANARCHIST'S HEAD

The Typical Lawbreaker Is Shown in the Portrait of Herr Most. "Whose portrait is that?" a lady asked when shown the photograph from which the accompanying portait was engraved. "That is Herr Most, the Anarchist." "Well, he looks it" was her laconic comment, and mo-t readers will agree with her. Herr Most has a rotund face and body that would indicate he was not lacking any of the good things of

JOHANN MOST. this world. Meeting him with his hat on one would take him to be a well-to-do saloon proprietor. But with his hat removel and his hair closely cropped his physicgnomy is on on which no mistake can be the characteristics are too strongly defined. The great, heavy jaws, heavy eyes and overhanging eyebrows, the receding forehead, the absormal development of the posterior portion of his cranium all indicate a head admirably adapted for the mission he has in life. What the mouth and chin would show cannot be told, but it is presumed his luxuriant beard cover equally strong characteristics necessary to the man. It does seem cruel to call attention to the abnormal phrenological points of this monster, an 1 yet it is the most charitable thing one can do. His training from child-hood has developed the brutal and animal passions to the sacrifice of the inherent humane nature, so that it has molded his head, until it shows the brutal nature within, Herr Most is what he is because he canno now be otherwise, though it is unfortunate that men will follow such a leader. He gained his notoriety in Europe some dozen years ago through his connection with a Sociali-tic organization in Russia, from which Nihilism was develored. He was forced to fire from Russia and lived for a time in Germany and Austria, where he quietly advanced his doctrines and gathered some followers, the outcome of their plotting being, it is claimed, the assassination of the late czar. Germany and Austria becoming too hot for Most and his conspirators they scattered. Their leader next appeared in London, where he was finally imprisoned. On his release he came to this country, as being the last one among the civilized na-tions that would harbor him. Here he has Die Freiheit, growing gradually bolder and bolder until the police and grand jury had become convinced that his methods had become unlawful and ordered him to be locked before his "Workingmen's Rifle club," a society of Anarchists in New York. Twenty kegs of beer were drank by his auditors to rifle in hand. He advised his hearers to arm themselves against the interference of the police and brought his rifle to his shoulder occasionally to illustrate his intentions. Two detectives were in the audience whose evidence will be sufficient to convict Most when caught. Two lieutenants of Most's, who were arrested, became so terrified when they found they were within the law's grasp, that they were willing to promise to renounce Socialism forever if they would be illowed their freedom. This is one of the peculiarities of the Socialist leaders that they are personally arrant cowards. NEW CINCINNATI COURT HOUSE. It is Planned, but When Will It Be Finished? Two years ago this spring the people of Cincinnati had an impression that justice had not been done in a murder trial. A colored murderer was sentenced to imprison ment instead of to be hanged. Thereupon the indignant populace proceeded to weak vengeance, not on the judges who bossed the trial, or the jury who lot the prisoner off, or yet on the lawyers whose eloquence magnetized the jury, but on the magnificent Hamil ton county court house. They riddled it and set it on fire. The fire des'royed the finest law library west of the Atlantic states. The damage done was almost incalculable. A vast amount had to be added to the tax list of the county, and the citizens will have to go down into their pockets and pay it. It was a jolly sort of vengeance that.

A splendid new court house will rise phonix-like from the ashes of the old one, to the tune of about $1,000,000 or more. The judges, jury, and lawyers are living still and in good health. The new building is not like the old one outwardly. That had the roof all upon the level, and had Greek columns it front. The new one will have offsets and hitches in the roof, to conform nor · to the requirment, of modern high art.

Conveying an Idea of Size. A naturalist who has bestowed attention upon the sea and its inhabitants says that he has observed whole shouls of herring, "in their anxiety to escape when pursued by whates, piled up above the surface of the sea to a height of from three to six feet. On one occasion the fish formed a mass even with the top of the mast of a fishing boat, namely, about filteen feet, and had part of this mass fallen into the boat it would doubtless have smale? There is on record another curious sunk." There is on record another curious description intended to convey an idea of size, namely, that of "a pumpkin so big that eight menicould stand around it."

DAVID DAVIS. Judge of the Supreme Court, Senator and Vice-President. Ex-Judge David Davis has been a big mar in more than one sense. For nearly thirty years he occupied a seat on the bench fifteen years of that time as a judge of the supreme court. During the quiet and dignity necessary to this position, he acquired a ponderosity which brought his weight past the 300-pound mark. But then the judge in EX-JUDGE DAVID DAVIS. herit ed a large body. He came of a stalwart family, who settled on the eastern shore of Maryland, where the future judge was born in 1815. He graduated from Kenyon college, Ohio, in 1832, studied law in Massachusetts and Connecticut, and when alm tiel to the bar began to practice at Bloomington, Ills. Speaking of this the judge said recently: "While going to college in the west, I got to see western people and the better chances in the west, so I settled in Illinois. When I got out there I think every member of the bar drank and gambled. Some of them were as brilliant men as ever you knew. I looked on awhile, and made up my mind I would neither drink nor gamble, and consequently I have survived a mall host of men probably better entitled to live and le useful than myself. I did not smok-a cigar until I was pretty well advanced in life; indeed, only a few years ago. Perhaps my loss of flesh of late year; is at tributable to my stopping smoking, which I did for some time." Mr. Davis entered politics in 1841 by being elected to the Illinois legislature He was a member of the state constitu-tional convention of 1847, and was elected a circuit judge in 1848. Latest English Improvements in Cycling Machines-Why Not Cycling Vacation Farties?-Tour Through Italy Upon a Tandem-Healthful Pleasure.

Every year there is a bicycling show in England. It is given under the suspices of the Stanley Bicycling club, and is called the Stanley show. It is a great event. England in the world. To a slight extent cycling has taken the place of the old stage coach. It is a healthful and beautiful recreation. Ladies there thing in America? Coaching has necome tiresome, fox hunting has died a natural death, and the fashionable world is put to its wit's end to devise something new wherewith to amuse itself. A summer rural tour of a cycling party, made up of both sexes,

THE TRICYCLE. Trundling over the roads upon tricycles and bicycles, their cheeks aglow with the exercise, their eyes bright with health and the pure air, our neople on such a summer vacation might actually learn something about their own country. (I suppose as far as local history of our own country goes we are about as ignorant a lot as ever pointed with pride to heroic ancestors.) Mr. Joseph Pennell, artist and literary man, describes, in the last number of Outing, the Stanley show. His pictures have been redrawn and engraved from that lively magazine for our purpose here. His sketch deals with the latest and best improvements in cycle mechanism in England. He finds the greatest improvements have been made recent years in tricycles. An objection has been made to bi and tri-cycling that it is unsocial, that only one fellow can ride off in a grumpy way by him-self, like one of those detestable fast horse men in a sing e-seated wagon. But that has been change I. A double tricycle has been invented. All the world can now take it: girl cycling along with it upon its steel stead. You can see how it is done.

This social machine is called the tandem ricycle. In some of them the lady sits in front, in others behind. The tandem will be something new in America, where for some reason ladies do not take kindly to the tricycle. It would attract more attention than would be pleasant in the cities, but in tho country it would be just the thing. Many a time, on the farm, it would obviate the necessity of taking a horse from needed work and harnessing him to a buggy or wagon. When I get that home in the country for which I've been pining ever since I have lived in a city and done newspaper work, I mean to have a tricycle, and ride to the postoffice, three miles away, upon it. See if I don't! The jostoffice sha'n't be a foot nearer than three miles away, either.

The tanlem, and indeed many of the bicycles and tricycles, have rests and supports to which baggage may be strapped, and the tourists are thus enabled to take a tooth brush and a change of clothing with them. The ideal journey of this kind was taken by Mr. Pennell himself, accompanied by his wife. It was a tour through Italy, that described in The Century. When, at the end of their tour, Mr. Pennell and his wife arrived upon their cycle at the city of the Casars, they were fined ten francs

THE TOURISTS.

It will be a gratification to cyclists in this country to have the writer say that the be is sure the favorite American make of machine could have held its own with the British manufactures. He also says there are rumors over the water that the coming cycle is to make a mile in less than two min utes. Over 50) cycles were exhibited at the Stanley show, 400 different varieties. The steerage and brake apparatus of a tandem should be controlled by one person. One tandem at the show had the driving wheels of a bicycle and tricycle connected. Dwarf, or so-called safety bicycles, are pronounced a delusion and a snare. SARAH KING.

THE LICK OBSERVATOBY.

Californian's Munificent Gift to the Cause of Science.
It is but right that a successful merchant should on dying see to it that his wealth should be distributed among the people from which he collected it, and in the state whose government protected him in the acquisition of that wealth. So thought the late James Lick, one of the most tightfisted old misers of California. James Lick was a Pennsylvanian by birth and a piano and organ maker by trade. He began business life in Philadelphia away back in 1820, this be carried on successively and successfully in Baltimore, Md., Buenos Ayres and Valparaiso, South America, and California. He reached this last place in the early days of 1847, "getting in on the ground floor," as they say in Wall street, in speaking of one who gets a big hold of an enterprise on the start. Old Lick kept cautiously hoarding and increasing his pile until it amounted to some $4,000,000 in 1874. "And then a wonder came to light" in the shape of a trust deed by which he conveyed all of this fortune to a board of trustees to be divided among public charities and for the eraction of valuable scientific institu-Among the other bequests was one of $700,000 for the construction and equipment of an astronomical observatory for the University of California. The spot selected for the observatory site is

Our illustration from a photograph shows the present appearance of the work, but it conveys no idea of the amount of labor it was to get them there. All the building material, tools, food, water and workmen had to be hauled from the valley

It will contain a thirty-six inch objective, the largest ever at tempted and the largest the great telescope makers, Alvan Clark & Sons, of Cambrilgeport. Mass. The next largest objective measuring thirty inches in diameter, has recently been finished by the same firm for the government of Russia. At the time of Lick's death the largest telescopes in existence was the one in the Naval observatory at Washington, D. C., which has a twenty-six inch objective, and Lord Ross' great six-foot reflecting telescope in Ireland. The im perial government of Austria has just constructed a very powerful telescops with a twenty seven inch objective, but it is the intention of the trustees of the Lick observatory to keep ahead of the world in the power of their telescope.

The dome is well shown in this sectional plan presented herewith. It will weigh fifty tons, being probably seventy feet in diameter, though this cannot be determined until the polishing of the objective is complete and its focal length is found. This, it is hoped, will be accomplished this year, and two years later this country can proudl; claim the best equipped astronomical obser

ST. LO JIS JOCKEY CLUB HOUSE

The St. Louis Jockey club is one of the institutions of the city, and is now building a club house which will be one of the attract tions to the visitor. It is a beauty, architecturally, of the Queen Anne style, and is to cost $50,000. The entrance to the building is from the side shown in the illustration. though the front proper faces the race track and contains two broad piazzas, from which an admirable view of the whole course may be had. Though these porches will be an important feature on racing days, it is to the social features of the club that architect Thomas Walsh has devoted most of his skill. There are large and small parlors and cosy little private dining rooms, an ample restaurant, billiard rooms and bowling alleys, gynmasium and all the appointments of a well regulated club house, with the additional creditable feature that unusual pains have been taken to render the building attractive to the wives and families of the REPRESENTATIVE JOHN J. O'NEILL, Chairman of the Labor Committee of the House of Representatives.

A valiant champion of the cause of the workingman is John J. O'Neill, the St. Louis congressman. He is chairman of the very important committee of labor of the house representatives. Just now he has his hands full in investigating the causes of the recent labor troubles throughout the country and principally in his own city. Mr. O'Neill was a St. Louis boy, and will be 40 years old on June 25. He received a common school education, and was in the civil service of the government during the war, after which he was engaged in manufacturing pursuits. For the indomitable energy, perseverance and pluck which is shown so well in his portrait he was elected to the legislature of Missouri in 1872, and was twice re-elected. The workingmen's party nominated him for congress in 1878, but he withdrew from the fear of injuring their cause through the risk of defeat. He was elected to the Forty-eighth congress as a Democrat, and immediately received t place on the labor committee, of which he became the head on his election to the ores ent congress

ADMONITION TO MOTHERS.

Do not let your daughters say, as so many have said to us again and again, almost in the same words: "If my mother had known and had taught me the facts contained in your book, instead of leaving me to learn them bitter experience, how much better it would have been for me." "If my mother had known of Zoa-Phora, and had used it to correct my ailments when they first began, how much of suffering I should have escaped.

SPRING DANGERS.

The dangers of this season are simply appalling. The system has been braced up to meet the severity of Winter and the warm weather coming on opens the pores and renders diseases both possible and probable. The great source of all Spring disorders is to be found in the blood which is almost always out of order in the Spring. Men, women and children must take something; do something. Blood-poisoning is so common and is becoming so dangerous it is necessary to exercise much more caution than ever before. The breaking out which is so frequent is in every case the result of impure blood, and usually a result of rheumatism. But suppose this impurity does not break out? What becomes of it? Often it attacks some vital organ, usually the heart, and sudden death or lingering suffering are the results. These are absolute facts and serious ones too. For the treatment and cure of rheumatism in all its forms, as well as all blood disorders, and the functional derange ments that cause them, Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup is strongly recommended alike by the medical faculty and by prominent citizens, where it has once been in troduced. Acting immediately on the blood and the organs through which it is purified, it dissolves and removes the uric, lithic and lactic acids which are its immediate cause, and by expelling them at the same time thoroughly purifies the system, cures skin diseases and urnary and liver complaints. Being purely a vegetable preparation, it exercises no in-jurious effects on the digestive organs, but aids them in the performance of their duties and braces the nervous system. Men have suffered, died and been mourned by their friends who did not know the real cause of their death. Women have passed away and their families could not understand why. Little children have broken out with fearful sores and have sickened and died, and the parents did not save them. These things are all wrong. With a proper knowledge, are all wrong. With a proper knowledge, and the use of the right remedy, they should never occur, and let us hope they

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY By reason of its central position and close relation to all principal lines East and West, at initial and terminal points, constitutes the most important mid-continental link in that system of through transportation which invites and facilitates travel and traffic between citles of the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. It is also the favorite and best route to and from points East, Northeast and Southeast, and corresponding points West, Northwest and Southeest.

The Rock Island system includes in its main line and branches, Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Genesec, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, Cameron and Kansas City; in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns, villages and stations.

THE GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE Guarantees its patrons that sense of personal security afforded by a solid, thoroughly ballasted road-bed; smooth tracks of continuous steel rail; substantially built culverts and bridges; rolling stock as near perfection as human skill can make it; the safety appliances of patent buffers, platforms and air-brakes; and that exacting discipline which governs the practical operation of all its trains. Other specialties of this route are Transfers at all connecting points in Union Depots, and the unsurpassed comforts and luxuries of its Passenger Equipment.

The Fast Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River are composed of well ventilated, finely upholstered Day Coaches, Magnificent Pullman Palace Sleepers of the latest design, and sumptuous Dining Cars, in which elaborately cooked meals are leisurely eaten, "good Digestion waiting on Appetite, and Health on both." Between Chicago and Kansas City and Atchison, are also run the Celebrated Reclining Chair Cars.

THE FAMOUS ALBERT LEA ROUTE Is the direct and favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul, where connections are made in Union Depots for all points in the Territories and British Provinces. Over this route, Fast Express Trains are run to the watering places, summer resorts, picturesque localities, and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. It is also the most desirable route to the rich wheat: fields and pastoral lands of interior Dakota.

Still another DIRECT LINE, via Seneca and Kankakee, has been opened between Newport News, Richmond, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Minneapolis and St. Paul and intermediate points.
