I was afflicted for several years with disordered liver, which resulted in a severe attack of jaundice. I had as good medical attendance as our section affords, who failed utterly to restore me to the enjoyment of my former good health. I then tried the favorite prescription of one of the most renowned physicians of Louisville, Ky., but to no purpose; whereupon I was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I found immediate benefit from its use, and it ultimately restored me to the full enjoyment of health.

thought it was a great pity that Mrs. Arbuthnot and her husband had been appointed sole guardians of Jasper Nevins's nieces, with full care of their money, as well as of the girls themselves; for Mr. Arbuthuot, although a good man, was as clay in his acute wife's hands, and all who knew her knew that money was her only god. In her way she was fond of these girls, whose mother had been her favorite sister, and she gave them a happy home—happy that is, until the ever troublesome question about lovers began to arise.

Lilias Navins was but little more than a year older than her sister Minnie, and the two were as united as twins could have been - rather too united on one point for the comfort of Arbuthuot, and that was their opinion of Frank Carroll and Felipe Mariscal,
"I do declare, Lilias," said Minnio one night, after they had retired te their room for the right, "I cannot comprehend why Aunt Hettie so dotes on Mr. Mariscal; he is thin and shallow; he hasn't two words to say for himself; he is not very polite to auntie -why does she like him so much?"

"It is clear enough to me," replied Lilias. "You know Aunt Hettie was poor when she was young and she dreads poverty for us; she thinks she is acting for my good in snubbing Frank Carrol because he is a poor young book-keeper, while this Mariscal has heaps of money and fine estates in Mexico. At first I thought his re- in exactly a month after the date of puted fortune and position all hum-bug, but since aunties inquiries have older ward was married proved him all he pretends to be, I am love. not so uncivil to him as I was at first." "The worst of the affair is that Mr. Mariscal intends to propose right off; I judge so from a word or two he said to uncle to-night just before he left. I heard uncle say, I will tell my wife about it when she returns from the party she has gone to, and she will write you to-morrow.' To what but a proposal could have he referred?"

"Well, I will not marry him," ex-claimed Lilias, determinedly; "I'll say and you wanted to know why I was no at the altar; I'll elope with Frank!". gone so long? I said I had paused to "If you marry against auntie's wishes, remember you forfeit all your share of the money, and Frank is not rich," said Minnie, Come,let us go to bed and try to dream of some way of softening auntie's heart," said Lilias, commencing to undress. "Why, where's my watch?

I do believe I left it on the library table, and I am barefooted- Minnie, do you mind going down for it?" Not she! Neither of the girls was one bit timid, so Minnie, who had not begun to undress, ran to the library for the watch. She was gone some minutes, and Lilias was just beginning to be alarmed about her when she returned, apologizing for her delay by saying that the evening paper had caught her eye and she paused long enough to read over the deaths and marriages—just as any of the girls would. The next morning Mrs. Arbuthnot said calmly, as if she were saying nothing at all odd,-"I will want you to go into the city with me by-and-by, Lilias, to select some new bonnets and dresses; we may as well begin to prepare for your wedding." "For my wedding?" gasped Lilias, in great surprise.

The wedding must take place quite soon, for he told my husband last night that some matters concerning his Mexican estates made it necessary for him to return home within a month, and he desires to take his wife with him." "Really, auntie, I think he might give me a little say in the matter," cried Lilias in vexation; but said no more because Minnie trod on her foot in a very significant way, and gave her Lilius understood all her sister's signals, for Minnie, though the younger had much more discretion and acuteness than impulsive Lilias. Exactly what plan Minnie now had, she could not imagine, still she thought she would not spoil it by saying too much. "Buy your clothes and don't con-tradict auntie," said Minnie, by the deaf-and-dum alphabet; their aunt was not looking her way.

"You should remember it is not the custom in his country for a young man to speak of his intentions to any girl until her guardians have been consulted, and have given their approval to his proposal; so, like a well-bred Mexican, he has come to me and obtained my opinion about his suit," replied Mrs. Arbuthnot.

by what I have written to both Mr. Mariscal and Frank Carroll; if they are not suited with what I wrote I cannot help it. I will abide by my decision, and so I have told your Uncle Arbuthnot, so that in case I do not get home from my trip to Paris before the very latest date set in my letter, the wedding must go on without me-or else you, Lilias, will be a "Lilias is so impulsive, you know, Aunt Hettie, that I do wish you would write that down so she will not forget," suggested Minnie handing a sheet of paper to Mrs. Arbuthnot and then withdrawing it, adding, "suppose I write it and let you sign it, as you say your eyes trouble you to-day."

"Do so, my dear; my eyes are very bad to-day; but for them I would postpone my journey until later in the So Minnie wrote:-

same moment.

To this, Mrs. Arbuthnot appended her name and the date. Somewhat to Mrs. Arbuthnot's surprise, none of the family saw anything of Mr. Mariscal all that day; and she had to start that night for New York, whence she was to sail for Paris, without seeing him again. Early the next morning there came to the house, not Mr. Mariscal but Frank Carroll, who, to Lilias's intense amazement, greeted her as if he were her accepted lover. As soon as she could do so—that is, as soon as she could make up her mind to do so-she withdrew from his enfolding arms and exclaimed,—

"Why, Frank! How courageous you are to venture here in such an assured manner after what Aunt Het-tie wrote to you!"

"Courageous?" he repeated. "I don't understand you; it is because I received her card that I am here now. I must own that I was a little surprised when I read it through."
"What could she have said to you?" asked Lilias in amazement still.

"Here it is, read it for yourself; I only got it this morning, having been away on business, or I'd have been here last evening," he enswered, handing a postal card to Lilias. Mrs. Arbuthnot was one of those people who use a postal card for any or all purposes, she had a perfect mania for them and could not be persuaded not to write the most confi dential things upon them; so Lilias was not at all surprised that she had written her communications to the two young, men on these cards, though most people prefer to send such missives in a sealed envelope. She read:--

"so sorry I cannot see you to-night. I write in haste and confusion to say that I am more than willing that you should marry Lilias, and I trust she will appreciate the compliment you their Aunt Hettie, as they called Mrs. have paid her-from her past treatment of you I am sure she will. At any rate it is my desire that she marry you and no one else, on pain of my To this was appended her name and the date of the preceding day.

Lilias was mystified, Frank jubilant, Mr. Arbuthnot mildly puzzled but acquiescent, and Minnie smiling but silent. When Mr. Arbuthnot told Frank that his wife had said something about having Lilias married within a month, even though she were away, and when Lilias and Minnie both agreed with him, he was only too glad to aid in carrying out her expressed wishes; so the wedding dresses were made up in a hurry, and her card to Frank, Mrs. Arbuthnot's

An hour or so after the wedding, Minnie said carelessly to Lilias.— "Did you ever hear any more of Mr. Mariscal's desire to marry you?" "Bless me, no! I had entirely forgotten the man! Why, sure enough, didn't auntie say she has accepted his offer and-what are you laughing at,

Minnie?" said Lilias. "Do you remember the night I went read deaths and marriages in the paper; well, that was true, but there lay on the library table two postal ch," said Minnie.
"Oh dear, so 1 do; well I am in a fix! ed to your two lovers. I picked them up and read them-now don't frown, postals are not private! I found that she had evidently made a mistake in addressing them, for the one bearing Mr. Mariscal's name, was a very blunt request for him to keep away from you: the other Frank has shown you I was so afraid that she would find out her mistake before she went abroad, that I just opened the frontdoor and ran out and mailed them." Such was indeed the case. What would otherwise have been Mrs. Arbuthnot's wrath at Minnie's haste to mail the mis-directed cards no one knows, but as she chanced, almost as soon as she arrived in Paris, to learn that Mariscal was already privately married, she never in any way referred to the matter, and as Frank made the best of husbands, she soon forgot that she had ever been opposed to the match.

That 'the best laid plans of mice and man gang aft aglee" has almost a daily illustration. The particular instance referred to is the case of a young Washington blood, who, for a number of years, has laid siege to the heart of a young lady whose father is one of the wealthiest men in town. The old gentleman looked approvingly on the satisfactory progress that the young man was making, but thought it would be well to see whether it was the daughter or the money that he wooed so ardently. So one bright day he called the would-be-son-in-law to him and told him blandly that he was not averse to the marriage, but that when it was consummated he must take care of himself and not expect her to take care of him or, in other words, that he could not support them. This was done solely as a blind, a wink which certainly meant "keep for the pater familias doubted not that the boy was sincere in his affections. And so they parted, the fond lover avowing his unutterable, attachment and his entire willingness to shoulder the responsibilities of his prospective new life. But the old gentleman experiment worked like a charm. The young man has never showed up from that day to this; and now "all bets are off," as it were. The young lady and her father are congratulating themselves at the narrow escape the bank account has made, and the booby is looking around for a hole to crawlinto. Meantime another fellow, with good hard horse sense, came along and married the girl, and the generous father-in-law gave them a goodly pile of boodle. - Baltimore

Sunday in Paris.

The French positively refuse to recognize Sunday as a day of rest. The French workman seems to identify the breach of the Sabbath with self-respect and the vindication of liberty. He will refuse to work for an employer who makes it a condition that he does not work Sunday. A church has been known to be kept waiting for necessary repairs-a roof that let in the rain-because the cure would not consent to have the men working business houses to close Sunday was the Bon Marche, and it was predicted that it would soon become bankrupt: but the Bon Marche held on its way, and in this case virtue earned its own reward, and no house of the kind has ever flourished, probably, as that popular shop has done. The large shops in Paris are now closed Sunday and the majority of the smaller ones. But the workingmen proper holds out. He holds to the principle of working Sunday and resting Monday.-Boston

Popping the Question. The Latest Large Guns.

"But why don't you get married?" said a rosy cheeked girl with a laugh It may be assumed, says Iron, that ing eye, to a smooth-face innocentlooking youth, who blushed up to the eyes at the question.
"Well, I—" said the youth, stopping short with a gasp, and fixing his eyes upon vacancy with a puzzled and fool-"Well, go on: you what?" said the fair cross-questioner, almost imperceptibly reclining nearer the young man. "Now just tell me right straight out-"Why, I- Oh, pshaw! I don't know." "You do—I say you do know. Come, now—I want to know." "Ch, I can't tell you."
'Yes, you can. Why, you know I'll

"And I'm sure I always thought you liked me," continued the maiden, in tender and mellow accents. "Oh, I do, upon my word-yes, indeed I do, Patty," said the unsophisticated youth, very warmly, and he found that Patty had unconsciously placed her hand in his open palm. Then there was a silence. "And then-well, Joseph?" said Patly, dropping her eyes to the ground.

"En? Oh, well!" said Joseph, dropping his eyes and Tatty's hand at the "I'm pretty sure you love somebody, Joseph-it's a fact," said Patty, as "Well, I!' Oh, you silly mortal!

What is there to be afraid of?"

"Oh, it ain't because I'm afraid of anything at all; and I'll-well, now, Patty, I will tell you." "Well, now, Joseph?"

"I—" "Eh?" "I—" "Yes?" "I am in love! Now don't tell—you won't, will you," said Joseph, violently seizing Patty by the hand, and looking in her face with a most imploring expression. "Why, of course, you know, Joseph, I'll never breathe a word of it—you know I won't, don't you, Joseph?" This was spoken in a mellow whisper, and the cherry lips of Patty were so near Joseph's ear when she spoke, that if he had turned his head to look at her, there might have occurred an exceedingly dangerous collision. "Well, Patty," said Joseph, "I've told you now, and you shall know all about it. I have always thought a great deal of you, and-' "Yes, Joseph."

"I am sure you would do anything for me that you could—" "Yes, Joseph, you know I would." "Well, I thought so, and you don't know how long I've wanted to talk to you about it." "I declare, Joseph, I -you might have told me long ago, if you wanted, for I'm sure I never was angry with you in my life." "No, you wasn't; and I have often felt a great mind to, but-" "It's not too late now, you know. Josech.

"And you'll grant it?" "I will." "Then, Patty, I want you to pop the question for me to Fanny O'Neal, ťor---'

"What?" "Eh?"

"Do you love Fanny O'Neal?" "Oh, indeed I do, with all my heart." "I always thought you were a fool." "Oh!" "I say you're a fool, and you'd better go home, your mother wants you. Oh, you—you—you stupid!" exclaimed the mortified Patty, in a shrill treble, as she gave poor Joseph a slap on the cheek that sent him reeling. It was noonday, and yet Joseph declared he saw myriads of stars, flashing around him, more than he ever say before in the night time.

we are proud of our 110 ton gun; but the satisfaction of being at the head of all other nations in gun making is destined to be but short lived, for already we hear that the formidable Krupp, of Essen, is going to lick all creation, this little island included, in the art. His latest monster, now being manufactured, is to weigh close upon 139 tons, or 143,000 kilogrammes, against our 111,760 kilogramme arm, and to have a caliber of 40 centimeters (15.7 inches). Its length is 16 meters, or 521/2 feet. The projectiles to be used with this gun are of two kinds one a steel shell 1.12 meters (2 feet 9 inches) long. and weighing 740 kilogrammes (1,630 pounds), and the other 160 meters (6 feet 2 inches) long, and weighing 1,050 kilogrammes (2,314 pounds) equal to the weight of the barrel of a 12 contimeter gun. The barrel of a 12 contimeter gun. The and although the plaintiff offered no service charge consists of 485 kilogrammes (1,069 pounds) of brown prismatic Dunwalde powder. With this charge, the lighter shell will have an initial volocity of 735 meters (2,411 feet), the heavier shell one of 640 meters (2,089 feet) per second. tention might be drawn to the fact that when rifled guns were first in treduced, the highest initial velocity attained was only 300 meters (884 feet). The lighter shell will penetrate a (21.65 inches) and 0.838 meter (33 inches), placed a short distance from the muzzle of the gun. In the case of the heavier projectile, the figures are 1.207 meters (47.52 inches), 0.60 meter (23.62 inches), and 0.88 meter (34.64 inches) respectively. As far back as 1868, the artillery of the day was unable to penetrate as many millimeters of armor as now centimeters; its penetrative power has consequently increased tenfold, and Krupp is now able to pierce with his new gun an armor plate three times as thick as the bore of the gun. Rut he is reported to be even now endeavoring to surpass his latest achievement, for a 45 centimeter (17½ inch) gun is in contemplation, weighing 3,000 cwt. The shell to be fired from this piece of ordnance is to weigh 30 cwt., and to be 1.80 (nearly 6 feet) long.

Testing Eggs.

Even though you do not use an in cubator, you will find it quite an advantage to test the eggs on the fourth or fifth day of incubation, for settinghens are sometimes scarce when wanted most, and by testing the eggs and throwing out those that will not hatch. you can make room for more eggs. When three or four hens have set at the same time, all the fertile eggs can be given to two or three of the hens, and the rest be given a fresh lot of eggs. And even when setting-hens are plenty, it is well to throw out the unfertile eggs; it leaves more room in the rest for those that remain. Testing eggs is a very simple matter; all you have to do is to hold the eggs, one at a time, between your eye and a strong light, and determine by the appearance of the inside whether it contains a living embryo, a dead one, or is "barren"—i. e., never been fertilized. Eggs that contain a living embryo will show a small dark spot with some red veins spreading out from it. These veins will appear distinct, as you turn the egg over between your thumb and forefinger; the dark spot will slowly turn and rise to the top. When the embryo is dead, the veins will usually appear broken and indistinct. or 'cloudy," and sometimes the dark spot will be found adhering to the shell, Barren eggs will look clear like a fresh

Some time ago we gave our opinion of the osage orange as a hedge and of Michigan farmers in connection therewith. We do not care to restate our objections at length to the hedge for a fence, but boiled down they amount to this:

The osage orange hedge takes up too much room and impoverishes the land on each side of it for a rod or two. These two are minor objections. The major one is, nine farmers out of ten will not give the attention to a hedge necessary to keep it a fence when once made by a hedge company or anybody else. An observation of nearly forty years sustains that statement. The average farmer will not seasonably trim and care for a hedge, and the imperfect hedge fences patched with old rails or paralled with board or wire fences proves it. No one sent us a criticism of our former article, but we saw in the Michigan Farmer not long after a letter from a correspondent of that paper that by one inquiry settled the whole business. We had made a statement something like this: That very few hedges were at best a fence more than half the time, and the correspondent wanted to know what they were the other half. This inquiry we now answer: They were hedges not in leaf, with many openings convenient for sheep and hogs to pass through, that when in full leaf were sometimes a fence against animals not particularly curious to know what was on the other side. The tenth farmer will have a fence if he has a hedge, for he will give it the necessary attention. The other nine should promptly say "No" to any man who applies for a job of hedge fence making.—Grange Visitor.

An Expensive Hobby.

The orchid craze is one of the most expensive hobbies a woman can have. Once, in England, a rich but "low-born" woman got herself into royal society by cultivating orchids, and making a collection that was the talk of England, and won the smart owner a visit from the queen. Orchids are air plants, and grow up in the air fastened on the trunks of trees. They sometimes droop down eight or ten feet and bloom profusely, often having as many as three hundred blossoms on a single plant. They come from all latitudes, will grow under all climatic conditions and are as facinatingly curious as monkeys. They resemble in appearance reptiles, insects, animals, and there is one that looks the picture of a whiterobed nun. They are so enormously expensive a plant may cost hundreds of dollars. The richest colors known are displayed by orchids. They stay in bloom a long time, and an orchid has been known to retain its flowers in full bloom for five consective months. -Ex.

The Supreme Court said, in giving judgment in the case: If goods are lost or injured while in the custody of an express company, in the absence of evidence which rebuts the presumption of negligence it will be presumed that the loss or injury was occasioned by the company, and it will be liable for the actual value of the goods. A Race of Dwarfs.

It is said that there exists in the valley of the Rebas, at the end of the Eastern Pyrenees, a somewhat numerous group of people, who are called dwarfs by the other inhabitants, and as a matter of fact are not more than four-feet in height. Their bodies are fairly well built, hands and feet small, shoulders and hips broad, and making them appear more robust than they really are. Their features are so peculiar that there is no mistaking them among others. All have red hair; the face is as broad as it is long, with high cheek bones, strongly developed jaws and flat nose. The eyes are not horizontal, but somewhat oblique, like those of Tartars and Chinese. Men and women are so much alike that the sex can only be told from the clothing. They are very ignorant.

----A Costly Wagon.

A family wagon belonging to one of wealthy tribe of gypsies is a very costly affair. Its interior is fitted up in Oriental splendor, with rich gilt carvings, and inlaid wood designs, and is sumptuously upholstered. The accommodations are arranged somewhat after the plan of the Pullman sleeping coach. Large plate-glass windows heavy raw silk curtains, are on the sides, and a stained glass window ornaments the rear. These wagons, of which there are five, are for women and children. The kitchen utensils are carried under the wagons, and all the cooking is done in the open air. The temperate, sanitary, out-door life of these people is conducive to good health, and sickness among them while on their travels is an unusual thing.

Ingenuity in Smuggling. If all the ingenuity which is expended in deceiving the Custom House officers could be turned in the direction of some great invention, the world would be overwhelmed with surprise. The smuggling of diamonds, because they are the most valuable, as well as among the smallest commodities oc cupies, perhaps, the most attention. Think of wearing them across the ocean under a porous plaster, as one individual did a while since. The fact is that the two motives which are the most powerful factors in causing people to take such risks are love of gain and vanity, and they are the main-spring of pretty much all of the evil in the world in one way or another. The two are oftentimes very closely connected, but the love of gain is the stronger and quite as common. In the case mentioned above the carrier finally came to grief, for he was watched, and when he took off the plaster there was some one ready to seize the diamonds.-Toledo Blade.

Wood Oil. Wood oil is made on a large scale in. Sweeden from the refuse of timber cuttings and forest cleanings, and from stumps and roots; and, although it cannot well be burned in common lamps on account of the heavy proportion of carbon it contains, it furnishes a satisfactory light in lamps especially made for it, and in its natural state is said to be the cheapest of illuminating oils. Thirty factories produce about forty thousand litres of the oil daily; turpentine, creosote, acetic acid. charcoal, coal tar oils, and other useful substances are also obtained from the same materials.

Naming the Baby. In the old town of H---, in Vermont, lived a man to whom the unique idea had occurred of following the order of the alphabet innaming his children. In accordance with this plan, No. 1, a boy, was damed Ashley Brig-ham. The brief existence of No. 2 was shone by her name, Death-born Epthenia. Then followed Foster Gilman, Hilarity June, Kathira Ledona, Melina Notilla, Obadish Polander, Quiretta Rosena, Serviah Trusty and when this point was reached the old gentleman died, leaving a girl without a name, and his widow finished the list by skipping the intervening letters and called the unnamed baby &.-Harper's Magazine.

There is a world of pathos in the remark of a poor woman coming from a wretched garret in an inland town, and seeing the ocean for the first time. A common trouble with us all is that if we fail in our business we think little about it. No man truly succeeds of it. No man has a good opinion of his business who uses it only to make money out of it. House cleaning season is on in all its glory, but the most extensive job of house cleaning being done in this country is that instituted by the new Republican mayor of Chicago, that is ridding that city of the popular resorts and whisky haunts of anarchism, and closing out the low dives that have been the seat of power of his predecessor and the Democracy of Chicago.

Last Friday the United States treasurer issued a call for the last of the three per cent government bonds, amounting to a little less than $20,-000,000. No more of the debt is payable for several years, excepting the bonds be bought at a premium in open market, a move the people will hardly be satisfied with, and presents a condition of affairs to be met with by the next session of Congress. There must either be a radical change in the revenue system to prevent the accumulation of the large surplus, or means must be provided for the distribution of the money so that business may not be crippled by the contraction of the currency. The United States is the only country in the world likely to suffer because it has no payable debt on which to use its surplus wealth.

Marriage Law License.

LANSING, May 24.—The bill of Mr. Palmer of Mecosta, providing for marriage licenses has passed the House and is now in the hands of the Governor. The principal points of the bill require all persons contemplating marriage to first procure a license from the County Clerk, who is directed to grant the same if the parties are of proper age and otherwise competent as may appear by their answers under oath to the questions he will put to them. Taking into consideration the difficulty which people in the newer counties may have in reaching the County Clerk, provision is made for such to obtain a license by applying to a notary public or any person authorized to administer oaths. The fee to the County Clerk is fifty cents, and the revenue these officials will derive from the new Mr. Palmer said to-day he was on the whole opposed to the fee system, and pelieved in having public officials perform all their public duties for a sufficient salary without taxing individuals, but in this case it was a new kind of duty inflicted on the County Clerks. This bill will secure a more perfect registration of marriages.

Got Caught At It. Atlanta, Ga., May 20 .- The prohibition law has at last landed a victim whose condition excites deep interest. Mr. Julius Martine, who is highly thought of and well connected, was formerly a wine merchant in this city. When the law making liquor selling illegal went into effect he retired to his home and was always glad to see his friends. A case was made against Martine, but so well did he maintain the air of injured innocence it was dropped. Finally the officers decided to try him again. So last Sunday two guests of Mr. Martine were arrested as soon as they landed upon the sidewalk. In their pockets were well-filled flasks. It was upon evidence thus secured that Mr. Martine was fined $500 in the city court and sentenced to a term of thirty days on the rock pile, and bound over in sums of $2,000 each on several charges to the superior court. Mr. Martine, who has been two days be hind the bars, where he has been visit ed by hundreds of citizens, was yes terday started in on his experience with the public work. The fact that a man in his standing should be so heavily dealt with has given the peo-ple a new idea of the severity of the

A Bill That Ought to Pass.

One of the bills before the present Legislature that ought to pass is Senthat each county register of deeds shall assessment district in the county, and shall register every mortgage or deed in the book for the assessment district where the land is situated. The assessor of each district shall each year make a list from such book of all mortgages or assignments taxable to his district, and of the mortgagees and assignees; and if any do not reside in his district, he shall notify the assessor of the district in this State where such a one does reside:

This bill possesses many excellent features to commend it to the people of Michigan. The cost of the extra books required would be a mere trifle. there would be no additional labor for anybody, but much saving of labor and expense for assessors. Under this system each township, village and city would have within its own assessor's office at all times a list of mortgages and assignments for the preceding year. The register's office books would show the deeds and mortgages of property within any township, village or city, kept in the book for that particular township, village or city, thus saving every person who wants to look up a land title the cost and trouble of looking through the hodge-podge and jumble of the books for the whole county, as he now has to. The assessor of each village, city, and township would have in the book for his district all the transfers of land in his district and the value for which they sold. This would enable him to make honest assessments based on the average value of the land sales per acre or lot in his district, or any part thereof. If any farmer or other person was over assessed he could easily and at once refer to the books, and find and prove for how much lands next to him, and everywhere else in his township, had been

Dakota Correspondence. BEAR BUTTE VALLEY, Dak., May 10.

MR. EDITOR: - The month just passed was the most changeable April I have known. Storms we learned to expect, but at which moment and whether rain, snow, sleet, or wind only, was a problem none could solve. Of only one thing were we certain, and that was the uncertainty of the weather. The changes from sunshine to storm were of the "lightning change artist" order, and the ground made white with snow during one interval, was made bare by the sun in the next few minutes. Rubber boots would be a necessity in the morning and the ground dry at night, or vice versa. But as an extra supply of moisture was needed after last summer's drouth, the farmers could not complain. April 30, was a day of sunshine. We went fishing but not being successful as an angler I quit the business after a fair trial. There were plenty of fish, but these, unlike "suckers" generally, would not bite even though a tempting bait was offered them. A long ramble gave me new views of Spring Creek and the broad valley and an apronful of blossoms:-vellow violets. golden currant, choke cherry, Virginia lungwort, diapepsia, buffalo apple, and another leguminous plant. The last three are new friends, and the two last named I can not find in Wood's Botany or Gray's Field Book. The next morning we found the ground white with snow and the day continued stormy. This was "beautiful May" with a vengeance! a five inch snow-fall down here, and up in the Hills three feet! By Tuesday the fields were bare again, and for a week we have had clear weather. Crops are growing rapidly; the unplowed fields are covered with a fine growth of blue grass. Last Saturday I took another ong ramble, finding another new flower, unmentioned in my Botanies, but bearing the local name Prairie Lily. It is a charming little blossom, rising directly from the root, the perianth forming a long and very slender tube and spreading out in a starry top, among the grass like leaves; it is of a clear waxen white and quite fragrant. Every day brings a new blossom. The vetch's are lovely; and last week I had sent me a beautiful golden flower, resembling the Baptisia in growth. Ye botanists, come to my assistance, amid these "fresh fields." Today we have been favored (?) with a "stiff breeze" all day, blowing at the rate of about fifty miles per hour. We have used a window as the chief means of exit and entrance today, as our school house faced the "gentle zephyr," and the use of the door endangered life and limb. We are the happy inmates of a neat white school house fitted up with a good set of wall maps, seven in num ber, a tellurian globe and an organ; and my little "kingdom" is well behaved and interesting. Though "twelve miles from a lemon" we are not without some advantages. Sunday hool is held weekly and church ser vice fortnightly. This broad valley lies between Bear Butte and Spring Creeks, bounded by hills or "benches," the water courses marked by the "bush." Up the valley, to the West, Bear Butte rises in solitary state, not a high hill near to share his sentinel watch. Our first look at morn and our last at eve are toward our mountain barometer, and from his frowns or smiles we foretell the weather that awaits us. And for the changing views we love him; for rugged as he is, there is a beauty of shifting shadows and gathering clouds about his form not to be seen on the plains. To the southwest, the line of The Hills is seen, the snow crowned summit of Bald Mt. overtopping the Residing in this neighborhood is a family consisting of two pairs of twins and a group of triplets. Last week I went to see the babies, and found them as interesting as eight months old children can be. They are fat, fair and jolly: weight respectively 1914, 19, and 1814 lb. The mother is an educated lady with whom it is a pleasure to converse. I was quite amused at her remarks on the visitors the babies have had; as many would say "triplets never live, you know, and I wanted to come before any died;" and speak in all candor and simplicity without a thought of wounding her feelings. Mr. and Mrs. S. have been offered a good salary if they would consent to exhibit the family. When on their way from The States the two pairs of twins created a sensation at every hotel, and callers debarred them from rest quite often.

National Garment Cutter. To the People of Buchanan:

Desire to call your attention to our National Garment Cutter, the most perfect system for cutting all kinds of garments now in use. It is no chart or paper model, but is composed of a fine folding square, a full set of graduated scales and a book of diagrams and instructions, and is so simple that a child that can guide its hands and read figures can use it successfully and obtain correct results. The only true method of cutting clothing or any other mechanical work is by actual measurement, and this system is one of complete measurement applied to all classes of garments, ranging through the entire list worn by men, women and children, and not like most other systems giving instructions how to cut a few pieces (usually a basque to the the waist), but gives full instructions for cutting the entire garment and making and trimming the same, What we claim for it: 1st, That it is more simply and easily learned than any other system; 2d, That it is absolutely correct, giving a perfect fit in all cases, thus saving time and waste of goods; 3d, That when once introduced it becomes an indispensible article in every household; 4th, That in no case when this Cutter has been used has it failed to give unbounded satisfaction; 5th. That in short it is the ne plus ultra of all systems of cutting, and never fails to please wherever introduced. To all who are interested in stylish and wellfitting garments, we can only say, investigate the National Garment Cutter. We shall be pleased to explain it

THE riddling of a small walnut tree vithin a few rods of Frank Hamilton's place in Dayton, Sunday, had a tendency to lead Frank to believe that some one holds a grudge against him. He had a barn burned and a horse killed by that agent last summer. A string of telegraph poles on the other side of his place were split a few minutes later. During the same storm a large cherry tree in the vicinity of Benj. Chamberlain's was struck.

THE ladies of the M. E. Church will hold a Decoration Day festival and lawn social at the residence of Mrs. G. E. Howe, (the former Sumner Black place), on Monday afternoon and evening, May 30. Ice cream, cake and strawberries will be served on the Hillsdale county, treasurer of Michigan | lawn, under the shade, from 3 P. M. State Temperance Alliance, and author | till 10 P. M. Music will be furnished by the band.

THE people in the vicinity of Benton Harbor and Watervliet continue to talk as if they really intended to complete the proposed canal and water power between the two places. It is a magnificent scheme and a commendable enterprise that when completed will add greatly to the wealth of that section, beside being a good material beginning for the much talked of Michigan ship canal, that may be the means of securing to Benton Harbor the western terminus of that important waterway.

ED .- Mr. Henry Blodgett, who had been a prominent brick and tile manufacturer in this place for the past sixteen years, died on Saturday afternoon, the 21st inst., after an illness of several weeks, aged 59 years, 10 months and 9 days. The funeral service which was held at the Advent Church on Monday afternoon, was in German, conducted by Rev. Mr. Kline, of the Lutheran Church at Niles, and was largely attended. Mr. Blodgett leaves a large family in moderate cir-

THE undersigned desire to say to the public that only after the repeated statement of the advance agent, that the company represented by him were the "Original Fisk Jubilee Singers," did we arrange to have them sing here in the interests of the Presbyterian and Methodists churches, and no one can regret the deception more than we do. We do not complain of the concert, it was all well enough, enough, and under a proper name for the troupe would have been quite satisfactory, but we object to their coming to us under false pretences. Deceit is to be condemned under any circumstances, and the interests of the church, financial or otherwise, are not served and cannot be by fraud.

On Friday last they were observed to rise to the top of the water in large numbers, dead, and at the same time a scum formed upon the surface of the lake. It is supposed that not a live fish is left in the lake, which has heretofore supplied the people of that portion of the township with fresh fish. Can any one explain the cause of this singular occurrence?

TIME FOR REFORM.—During the past years too numerous to mention it has been the practice of our marshal, by the consent of the Common Council to be all summer in collecting the village taxes, extensions being made from month to month for the accommodation of a few of those who can best afford to pay promptly, and finally some of it never collected. It is time to call a halt in that kind of business.

for the village alone. SEVERAL went from this part of the county to help swell the crowd at the launching of the Graham, Morton & 'Co's new propeller which they christened "Puritan". The launch lacked something of being a perfect success. The boat did not slide squarely down the ways which broke before the boat was safely in the water. The water at that point was not deep enough and caused the boat to ground and careen to one side far enough to take water at the cabin windows. The Lora and ferry steamer Belle, worked an hour or so and finally succeeded in hauling her off where she righted up in

One of the most curious funerals on record occurred here last week. A party of four repaired to the cemetery one evening, and then disagreed as to which one should be the corpse. COMETHING ON THE SUBJECT OF

STATE MILITIA.

A Valuable Adjunct in the National Defonse-The Southern States and the Annual Drill of Yo Olden Time-Camp

George Washington. The revival of interest in the maintenance of an effective militia finds striking expression in the interstate drill this week at Washing of the militia and the volunteer. It is a very safe esti mate that of the millions who have fought for their homes or govern-ment since the first

S. E. WHEATLEY. settlement, not one n twenty was a drafted man or regular soldier. In fact, the elaborate militia system of our early history had its origin in a jealonsy of standing armics—a very wholesome jealousy, inherited from England and intensified by our peculiar conditions.

At the beginning the settlers volunteered to fight the Indians; every able bedied man was a soldier, if need arose, and the colonia militia was generally kept in effective condi-tion. But the revolutionary war subjected them to much ridicule; they were not fit to meet the British regulars, and immediately after the peace a vigorous reform was inau-gurated. The congress of 1793 passed a very stringent act for enrolling every able bodied man between the ages of 18 and 45; every man was to own his gun and equipments and keep them in good order, and they were exempt from seizure for debts and taxes. The whisky insurrection was suppressed by the militia thus organized. Feb. 28, 1795 congress authorized the president to call into action any part of this militia either to defend the country, suppress insurrection or as-sist officials in enforcing the law where the criminal combination was too great for the ordinary posse comitatus. All the states maye adopted this provision, and instances of its employment have been painfully frequent since 1878. This country opened with a roally valuable militia force. Great pride was taken in its efficiency, and men of wealth and social standing gained promotion in the militia with as much enthusiasm as do officers in the regular army. But after the second war with Great Britain the system began to decay. The Federalist writers and orators ridiculed the militiamen mercilessly; in a few instances during the war they refused to march, and the feeling was insidiously culti-vated, especially in the north and east, that the whole was a ridiculous buriesque. But in the south and west pride in the militia long survived, probably because the volunteers of those sections had won some bright honors in the field. If any man objected, he was pointed to Tippecanoe and New Orleans as conclusive proof of what volunteer militia could do. The annual "muster day" in Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois, and perhaps other states, was a time of unbounded hilarity, increasing from year to year till the Roman Saturnalia. It was taken by consent that ordinary law was suspended. All labored. had holiday without loss of pay no one was fined for fighting, swearing or getting drunk on that day, T. C. DE LEON. and not infrequently the majority did ge drunk after the muster closed. And thus the system wore out in all the northern states. It cials that the three great states of the north-west did not contain 5,000 well drilled men on-the 15th of April, 1861. The fact that Ellsworth's Zouaves could execute every movement in drill and manual excited amaze ment in 1860. But in the south local conditions caused the militia system to be retained in some vigor; and commenting on this, there was universal prediction in the north that

GUARD HOUSE. the militia would thereafter be kept well organized. This prophecy was singularly falsified. The organization decayed much more rapidly after our civil war than after 1815; and in the average town of two or three thousand it is difficult to get 100 drilled and uniformed men for a Fourth of July parade. This condition is felt to be dangerous and disgraceful, and many states are now taking vigorous measures to reorganize their militia.

Acting on questions arising in 1812-15, the supreme court decided that the president had the right to call out, act as commander in chief and name the general officers for the militia of the states, and the right has never since been questioned. Congress, however, fixed the conditions very carefully by the law of July 17, 1862, and the right of governors of states to appoint all officers below the rank of brigadier general is now fixed. In practice the enlisted men elect the first set of line officers, and thereafter promotion supplies vacancies. And finally the supreme court (in Martin v. Mott, 12 Wheaton, 19) declared the right of the president to decide finally and conclusively whether the militia should be summoned, and place them under federal officers ranking their own. It is worth noting, however, that the revived militia system in nearly all the states differs from the old system in this: the troops are not enrolled and placed in infantry, artillery or cavalry by the state; they volunteer under a general law, organize on their own motion, choose for themselves what branch they will serve in, then report, are accepted, and receive their arms. But those arms remain state property, and bonds are given for their irn in case the organization disbands. We have, therefore, a purely volun-teer militia, to serve as a nucleus in case of a war, till the larger body of undrilled citizens

MESS HOUSE "CAMP GEORGE WASHINGTON. can be drawn upon; and so much latitude is ment seems almost like that of differen nations. The drill and encampment at Washington, which began on the 23d inst., has revived, an interest in militia matters. We give herewith portraits of two of the active promoters of the encampment and drill, and also sketches of "Camp George Washington" and its surroundings.

Commissioner Wheatley is the young commissioner of the District of Columbia, and he is the leading Washington city influence in regard to the drill. He is a big fat fellow, full of good nature, and possessing much executive ability. He is one of the pushers of the institution, and the success of the drill is largely due to him. De Leon, the secretary, is a dark young man, with gray hair. He is full of life and energy. He has written a book about the various organizations here.

AMELIA'S PALACE. Brigham Young's Reigning Sultana-Hor

Elegant Residence. Salt Lake City is not noted for general style, but it boasts a temple, a tabernacle and a palace. Pictures of the first two are common enough; but the palace is unknown to most Americans, so we present herewith an engraving of it, taken from an original photograph. It is familiarly known as "Amelia's Palace," at least so known to Gentiles; and the history of Amelia's reign is almost the history of the palace. Very queer history it is, too; and Americans who realize in its fullness what such a history means may conclude that some missionary work, contemporary with a more vigorous presecution of the law, would be wholesome. To begin at the beginning, Brigham Young was born June 1, 1801, was a widower when he joined the Mormons in 1832, married Mary Ann Angell soon after at Kirtland, O., and followed the Mormon migrations to Nauvoo, Ills., where polygamy was introduced (secretly at first) in 1843-4. Being among the first initiated he there married Clara Decker, Lucy Decker (divorced for the purpose from Dr. Seeley) and Harriett Cook. After reaching Utah he married, in rapid succession, Harriet Bowker, Harriet Barney, Emmeline Free, Margaret Alley, Augusta Cobb, Miss Twiss, Clara Chase, and six or eight servant girls that were needed in the family. He then left off marrying for sov cral years, as Emmeline Free had attained a great ascendency over him. She was a very sweet and pretty woman, and her ten chil-dren are rather the best in the family. But she grew old, and Brigham cast his eyes upon Amelia Folsom, whose parents had brought her from Portsmouth, N. H., her native place, when they joined the Mormons. She had an ardent young lover, but Brigham sent him on a mission to Europe, and in his absence courted so successfully that Amelia consented to be his twenty-ninth. Enough of her predecessors had died, however, to make her the seventeenth in regular succession from the legal and living Mary Ann Angell. So Brigham's domestic menagerie was arranged on the plan of Lighteen souls with but a single thought, Eighteen hearts that beat as one. But Amelia soon made sixteen other hearts ache-sixteen superfluous wives take back scats. She was young, artful perhaps, and just willful enough to give spice to the old man's life; and from 1966 to 1877 she was practically Brigham's queen. She was his sole companion in his carriage rides and theafre box; and for her exclusive use he built the so called palace. Its reputed cost was $60,000, so it would not be much of a palace in an eastern city. Its style is hard to de scribe, being rather composite, as shown in our picture: but the general effect is very fine After a few rooms had been made ready for the queen, the remainder was long in being finished-in fact the last touches had scarcely been given it when Brigham died in the summer of 1877, and his vast fortune was scattered. The heads of the church, by some law known to themselves, divided his propcrty among his sixty odd wives and children some of the heirs revolted and brought suit: a compromise was effected and the palace got into the hands of the church. John Taylor, successor to Brigham, occupied it a while: but he is now a fugitive, and, as some report, an imbecile, and the final disposal of the pal-nce remains to be decided. Amelia lives quietly on her share of the great estate; the AMELIA'S PALACE. legal wife has died since Brigham died: Eumeline Free died twelve years ago of a broken heart and excessive use of morphine, and Brigham's large family is well scattered. A Mormon keeps his secrets well; but as the laborer of that faith walks the street before the palace and thinks how many no account roung Youngs have been enriched by the tithing, and how many men once boldly prominent in Salt Lake are now hiding from the United States marshal, he must think that "the Lord loves the Mormons" in a very peculiar way just now.

NOVEL WAR MACHINE.

A Device for Transporting Troops at Rapid Rates. Medical science continues to invent new methods of saving life, and military science new engines of destruction, and similarly

INFANTRY ON MULTICYCLE. things for the good of mankind is contempo rary with improved transportation for killing purposes. Among the many new device for the latter purpose the most novel is the so called multicycle—a sort of compound velocipede by which a squad of soldiers may all move together, have their baggage or ammunition with them and have a ready made breastwork when they stop. We pre sent engravings of the machine in action and serving as a slight defense to the legs of the soldiers. The machine has been tried on the streets of London with apparent success, and is now being severely tested at Alder shot by authority of the British War office. It is called a multicycle because it usually carries twelve men and can be constructed to

Our engraving gives a fair idea of its make up. It is an adaptation of the so called "Victoria," or four-in-hand quadricycle; the soldiers sit on it in single file, their guns strung on their back, and work on the treadles. A light cart may be attached at the rear. On the London streets ten miles an hour is the regular rate, but six-teen are often accomplished. It is claimed that the whole concern can turn around in no more space than is required by a cab, and READY FOR ACTION. labor required. The steering man can give it a quick turn in an instant, and little trouble was experienced even in the most crowded streets. Such are the reports of the London papers, and if the same success can be attained in the fields and on country roads, we may yet see the soldiers go riding instead of may yet see the soldiers go riding instead of walking. Of course, field work proper must go on in the old way, but for rapid transfer of troops from one section to another the nulticycle may prove a great success. Indeed, the idea of utilizing the velocipede principle for long marches is one that readily suggests itself to any observer.

THE LATE JUSTICE WOODS.

Something About the Personnel of the Supreme Court. Justice Woods was buried at Newark, O., Tuesday, the 17th, and nearly every lawyer of national prominence in the Democratic party is named as a possible successor, and there is no more certainty in the prophecies than there was at the time the president selected. his cabinet nor when he lately chose the interstato commerco commissioners. No one, in fact, knows except President Cleveland now anything about who will be appointed, though the appointment may be made at any day. The position of attorney general has been considered in times past a sort of stepping stone to the supreme court, and a number of presidents have attempted to make supreme court judges of their attorney generals.

President Grant nominated three ex attorney generals for the supremo court, and overy one of them was rejected. His first nomination was E. Rockwood Hoar, of Massachusetts, who was defeated chiefly through the torney general. Grant nominated also Caleb Cushing, who had been attorney general unsenato also refused to confirm him. Edwin M. Stanton, another attorney general, was nominated and confirmed, but he died before he secured the appointment, and the only attorney generals who have ever sat upon the supreme court bench were Roger B. Taney, who afterwards became chief justice, and Nathan Clifford, who was attorney general during the administration of Polk. Levi Lincoln, one of the most noted lawyers of Massachusetts, was offered a position on the supreme court bench. but declined it, and John Quincy Adams also declined a similar offer in 1811.

Four of the supreme judges are now ready for retirement. Chief Justice Waite, Judge Bradley, Judge Miller and Judge Field could leave the court room to-morrow, and they would receive $10,000 a year for the rest of their lives without doing a stroke of work. They, however, evidently prefer to keep their places than to letting others have them. Few judges in the history of the court have been retired, and there is only one supreme court justice on the retired list. This is Justice Strong, a hale old man, who lives at Wash-Chief Instice Waite has already served thirteen years, Miller has served twenty-five years, Judge Field, of California, has served twenty-four years, and Bradley sixteen years. Of the other judges Harlan comes from Kentucky, and he has served about nine years. His age is 52 and he bids fair to live a long time. Stanley Matthews shows little gray in his beard and hair, but he is only 63 years old, and his term of service is about six years. Gray was commissioned in 1881, and he is now about 60 years of age. Blatchford, of New York, is 67 years old, and he was commissioned in 1882.

Nearly all of the supreme court judges of the past have died in office. Not counting the present court there have been thirty-four of them, and they have as a rule lived long and and reported him, with his 800 followers, as having arrived safely at Banza Mundeka, fifty miles above the foot of the Congo cataracts. Mr. Stanley, it appears, has decided to take a route by way of Stanley Falls for Emin's camp at Wadelai. He will restore the authority of the International association at Stanley Falls, install Tippoo Bey, and afterward ascend the Mboura, which is now known to be for a great part navigable. At the point where navigation ceases the caravan will start across country, striking the Albert Nyanza at Murswur, where Stanley intends to form a fortified camp and then send in advance boats to warn Emin of the arrival of the expedition and solicit transportation to Wadelai by Emin's two steamers. The association steamer Stanley, the Livingston mission steamer Henry Read and the trading steamer Florida are to wait at Leopoldville to carry the expedition to the upper Congo. The great caravan is said to present an imposing spectacle. Be-sides the force which Stanley brought from Zanzibar, he is accompanied by a body of Haoussas, a sea coast tribe, who make good We give herewith a group of Haoussus, Stanley's native soldiers.

O'ERIEN IN CANADA.

Wild Scenes Accompany the Irlsh Editor's Tour. The Hon. William O'Brien, the editor of United Ireland, arrived in New York city or May 9, having for the object of his visit a speech making tour through Canada, denouncing Lord Lansdowne and his eviction of tenents on his Lish estate of Luggacurran, Mr. O'Brien's arrival in New York was distinguished by a peculiar scene on the when the commitered by Mr. Cloran, which was greeted by cheers, interspersed with groans and hisses. He afterward spoke at Albert hall, and tho enthusiasm of his hearers was intense.

On the afternoon of the 18th he, in company with Mr. J. A. Mulligan, the president of the Montreal National league, and Secretary Cahill, started from his hotel, the Rossin se, for a short walk, and were greeted with a shower of sticks, stones, rotten eggs and other missiles, and with cries of "Kill him," "Hang him," "To the bay with him," etc. During the disturbance they were all more or less bruised, and Secretary Cahill was seriously though not dangerously injured. He afterward spoke in Ottawa and other important Canadian cities. The excitement occasioned by his visit to

Canada is something unusual in that quiet country, and is calculated to create a hostile feeling between the league and anti-league

Superstition of Sea Folks. The portents and superstitions of sea folk are numberless. Passing clouds presage "light winds and variables;" light clouds in the northwest mean, look out for squalls; a scorching sun brings an easterly wind; when the loons give a short stifled cry, then look out for a nor east wind; a great storm will surely come up after the sun rises clear but goes into a heavy cloud; if the daylight breaks high in the air, storms will follow; a clear sunset promises certain fair weather; when the porpoises or blackfish head in any given direction, favorable winds will come from that direction; low flying seaguils fore-tell the coming breeze, and if you have one already, then look out for "a howler;" winds come from the lair of the sun dogs, whether to the north or south; in a storm, fire balls dancing on the rigging below the masthead are sure proof that the storm will continue, and if as high as the tiptopmast, then the storm has spent its fury; a dead flying fish on deck carries alarm; clergymen are "Jonahs," and bring bad luck; if a sailor's razor shaves overwell, it is a bad sign; falling out of one's bunk without striking on one's feet means a quarret is brewing; if the fo castle plates are once washed between Sundays, luck will turn; cats bring good luck; rats in the hold mean a death among the crew: pocket mirrors must carry a film or the vessel will be lost; accidental tolling of the ship's bell "be twern bells" is certain ill luck; and to kill one of Mother Carey's chickens means endless

All these things, and vastly more, are caught by one from the sailor in a half deprecation of their belief by himself; but you will find, in many ways, that they are really a part of his life, sentiment and belief, and they are as foully hugged to his inner heart we on land cling to our fireside legends and tales of old .- Cuban Letter. A publishing house in New York city displays the sign: "Good literature for cents a pound."

A Novel Enterprise of "Our Own Buffalo Bill" Which is Attracting the Attention of the Britishers from Queen to Pensant.

Not only do the illustrated papers in London give much space to this feature of the exhibition, but the humorists and comic poets have taken it up; Punch and Judy, the Puck and Judge of London, revel in this new material for humor, and popular songs about the red Americans are eigner who visited "BUFFALO BILL," the plains to employ him as a guide. But be soon proved himself far more than a hunte -an accomplished gentleman and man of the world. After an adventurous career as hunter, trapper, scout and guide, he became a ci.izen of Nebraska, member of the legislature, colonel of militia and nide de camp to the governor. Then followed an era of life on the stage as hero in dramas portraying wild western life and displays of skill in shooting. Through it all he preserved his dignity, and by a gentle and affable manner made many friends; so Americans have a right to feel pleased at his success in London, and that his show has been patronized by the queen and Prince of Wales and has excited the lively interest of Gladstone The American exhibition covers an area of twenty-four acres in the very heart of resi dential London. Besides the Wild West show there are the gardens, covering nearly half the grounds, exhibiting American plants as completely as climate will allow, and the large building in which are specimens of American art and machinery. The whole affair has proved a very gratifying success. Speaking of the show, The Burlington (Vt.) Free Press says: Red Shirt, of the Wild West show, has "put his foot" into it again. After the performance in London before Queen Victoria and Princess Louise, he was presented to her majesty, and under the genial infavor, thawed out Hе oratorically. said that he had "come a long way to see her majesty. He had heard of the great mother, but never expected to see her." was glad to see "the squaw who

Two of the the most noted of the group with the show are Buck Taylor and his Texas horse and "Nigger," a horse with a long tuft of mane growing out of the middle of his back, as shown in the accompanying cut.

ELMER ELLSWORTH.

THE FIRST FEDERAL OFFICER OF NOTE KILLED IN THE WAR.

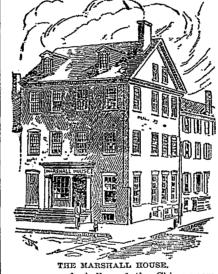

The Old Marshall House Where a Brave but Reckless Young Colonel Fell-A Monument Which Marks his Tomb at Mechanicsville, N. Y.

Twenty-six years ago, the 24th of May, the news was firshed over the country that the gallaut Col. Eimer Ellsworth had fallen, and soon the national flag was at half mast in most towns, and in many the public buildings were draped. It was but an ordinary event of war, but the people had not yet grown used to such events. The body was taken to his parents' home at Mechanicsville, N Y., escorted by a guard of honor. and buried with amid the mourning of millions. One year afterward the death of one man scarcely excited nocircle of immediate relatives and friends. But Col. Ellsworth's fame is immortal as the first distinguished victim of the great civil war A beauti ful monument has been erected over Salar Challed and Challe his grave, and the

COL. ELLSWORTH'S old tavern in which he was shot is visited by many strangers. We present berewith pictures of hotel and monument from original photographs. Elmer Ellsworth was but 24 years old at death, yet he had acquired a national reputation by the splendid drill he taught the noted Ellsworth Zonaves, who exhibited in severa cities the year before the war. Born in New York in 1837, and too poor to get a classical education, he earned money enough to study law in Chicago, living in the most frugal manner. Personally he was pure as St. John, temperate and extremely faithful to obliga-tions. But he was a military enthusiast from boyhood in the drill and discipline of soldiers. He early organized a company in Chicago, but they revolted against his discipline and chose another commander. So he went to Elgin, Ills., organized and drilled another company and challenged the Chicago company to a competitive drill, his company ob-taining a complete victory. Soon after he was made captain of the Chicago cadets, which he developed into the noted Zouaves. His mother chided him for devoting so much time to military studies, telling him he would have to go to Europe, "where they always have war," to utilize his knowledge. He assared her she was mistaken, as there would soon be war enough here. A year after that conversation he was in Washington at the head of the New York Fire Zouaves. They were the first soldiers of the Union to invade Virginia, and the particulars of the colonel's death at Alexandria, Va., are well known.

SIULEN BY CUBAN BANDITS.

Sons of Rich Parents Held for a Rans —Fear of a "Venganza."

A young Cuban was lately "secuestrado" by banditti, and afterward restored to his parents for 92 tentenesnear $500. It is quite common, in the country in Cuba, for young men and boys-usually the sons of rich parentsto be "secuestrado," which is being captured and held in concealment by banditti until such sums as they choose to demand of the parents be paid them. The sum exacted is more or less large, according to the reputed wealth of the parents.

The "secustre" is sometimes done in the boldest, most positive but most polite manner, thus: The banditti find out-often through secret information furnished them by some person or persons living in the neighborhood of the coveted captivewhat the movements of the family are and when to make the attack. The latter point settled, they ride up to the house, dismount, enter, salute the family in the most polite manner, and demand a certain sum of money or the son as hostage till the required sum be paid. Fault of money, which is generally the case, the son is carried off. The parents dare not refuse to let him go, for, unlike Sheridan, "they are afraid," as on the least show of resistance politeness takes wings and disappears, and daggers and pistols without coffee appear on the scene. When the prize is not captured in the highly refined and civilized (?) manner, but is caught wandering off by himself in some lonely spot, the parents are notified of the capture by receiving a note from the banditti-no doubt a B. L. M. -demanding money. This, in return, is sent at once; the son is restored to the happy bosom of his delighted family and no questions are asked.

The parents, considering themselves only too lucky in getting their child safely restored to them, dare not pursue the highway kidnappers or bring them to justice, even if they know their exact whereabouts, as they fear a "vengenza." This-a revenge-is, indeed, quite often serious. In some cases whole plantations, crops, houses and all perish by fire to gratify a "venganza." In fact 'venganzas" seemed to be feared to such an extent that many offences which would not be tolerated elsewhere are often unresented by individuals here.-Cuba Cor. New Orleans Times-Demo-

A Miraculous Escape From the Grave

I have been in poor health with a diseased stomach and liver, causing a cankered mouth continually for ten vears. I kept about my house until a year ago last June. For three years prior to that time I had a severe pain in the region of my heart, at times seeming bast endurance. It affec ed my arm; could get no relief tally by pulticing. My stomach being so diseased, my food caused me great dis-tress. My age also sectived to be in the way of my recovery, and not the least of my sickness. I employed the very best, of medical assistance I could get while in Caro, this state, but little encouragement could I get. Was moved to Vassar, Oct. 1, 1885, on a bed, giving me every ten minutes a tenspoonful of brandy and ice with only a teaspoonful of nourishment at a time, I commenced bloating soon ofter arriving here, had every appearance of dropsy. We called our Caro physician here, and he said my condition was worse than when in Caro. On the 27th day of May last called a council of doctors from Vassar, "three in number." All of them pronounced my case incurable. I had with the rest inflammation of the bowels, and I lay almost lifeless, and one of the leading physicians said if I could be restored to a sane mind again it would be all my husband might expect, and anything that would soothe me was all that could be done.

Johnson & Williamson's druggists at Vassar, and commenced giving it to me, and in three weeks' time they began to put me in an easy chair, "for a short time each day," at which time I had no use of my lower limbs and my back was numb; it was a little more than two months before 1 could walk without crutches. I am now a well woman, have walked one and a half miles within a month, can est all kinds of food and enjoy it, have gained from 82 pounds, since last May, to 116 now. Could say more of my sickness, but delicacy prevents. I want to say my friends that Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and plasters are the medicines that cured me. I used four plasters with the first five bottles; have used ten bottles in all and am well. If anyone who reads this has any doubt as to the authenticity of my statement, it will afford me pleasure to refer them to my neighbors all about here, as they are all astonished at my recovery. It is a great family remedy.
