Nathan Goff, the Republican candidate for Governor of West Virginia. was duly inaugurated Monday, and when he made a formal demand upon Gov. Wilson to vacate the office, Wilson refused to do so, and referred him to the courts pending the contest of election between Goff and Fleming. The war in politices in West Virginia if not yet at an end.

A former subject of the widow Guelph has been in this place during the winter, who, having served twentyone years in her Majesty's armies in India and the Crimea, is drawing a pension of twenty-four cents per day. He goes to Canada once a year to draw his bonus and comes immediately to this side to spend it, because, he says, he can buy more for the money here than on the "other side."

One of the aides of the chief marshal of the inauguration ceremonies was E. A. Hartshorn, of Troy, N. York., whose uniform was an all-wool home-made suit of clothes costing. $10. with a $4 ulster of similar make as a eserve for bad weather IIe had also a home-made woolen blanket under which he slept. The three most prominent of the ladies at the ceremonies were dressed in silk dresses all American made, and of American design. Nothing very Henglish about the entire affair.

BRADFORD WHITMAN, an old citizen of this vicinity, died suddenly at the home of his grandson, Mr. Howard Roe, in Niles Saturday afternoon. He was sitting in his chair enjoying a smoke, and in no apparent trouble, when he was noticed by Mrs. Roe to be uncommonly quiet, and upon investigation he was discovered to be dead. He was a few months over 80 years of age. The funeral services were held Tuesday. His son, Scott Whitman, who has been in Sedan, Kansas, for the winter, was immediately notified and arrived here Monday evening. The remains were taken to South Bend for interment.

Senator Riddleberger, of Virginia, topped out his political career in great shape in the Senate Friday. He is reported as having partaken too freely of apolianaris water or cold tea and his mind become somewhat unsettled, and because he was not recognized quite so often by the President of the Senate as he thought proper he raised such a dis turbance that the president ordered him placed under arrest. He telegraphed Gen. Lee his resignation of the office of United States Senator for the ten or fifteen days of his unexpired term. Exit Riddleberger.

The book from which the following extracts are made is his latest production, and material for it was gathered during his recent visit

CHAPTER XXXL

That which strikes the European most in his first walk through New York streets is the absence of stupid faces. All are not handsome, but all are intelligent looking and full of life. The next thing that strikes him is the well grown look of the people. Few or no deformities. He does not see one halt or hunchbacked person out of the ten thousand he may meet. With the exception of the old people, few have defective sight. Apart from the complexion, which is pale, everything seems to indicate an active, strong, healthy people. The constant crossing of races must daily tend to the improving of the Americans, physically and intellectually. You see so many thin men and so many stout women that you almost immediately conclude that the former live in a furnace of activity, and the latter in cotton wool. This impression grows upon you, and soon takes the form of a conviction. The Americans do not walk much. It is not that they are indolent. Far from it. It is because their legs will not carry them fast enough.

The faces of the men you meet look absorbed in thought. Their hats are well down on their heads. This again is a sign of intelligence. Do not smile. The feel perches his hat on his head, the man with a well filled brain puts his head into its covering.

These same faces are pale, and you see many prematurely gray heads. The want of open air exercise, the dryness of the atmosphere, the suffocating heat of the rooms, the vitiated air in the houses, which seem to have windows only for the purpose of letting in a little light, easily explain this double phenomenon.

The women of every country are unanimous in pronouncing the American men handsome, and as there are few men who do not think the American women lovely, there can be but one opinion on the subject: the American race is a good looking race. But that which makes the charm of the men's faces is not regularity of feature; it is, as I have already said, the intelligence written on them, the wonderful activity which animates

This activity you find in all stations of life, in the financial world, the literary world, the world of politics, everywhere. It is a fever with which the whole nation is smitten.

In the eyes of the worthy, peaceful Frenchman who has not traveled, an American is a Innatic, who does nothing like other people. After all, eccentricity is but an exaggerated form of activity, but for certain people with narrow ideas, eccentricity and madness are but one and the same thing.

Let us take a little look at Americans at home, and see if I was wrong in calling American life pure phantasmagoria.

We will begin by the private houses In a well appointed house you will find in a little room on the ground floor a brass plate fitted with several buttons. You touch the first and immediately a cab drives up to your door. If you press it twice it is a two horse cab that comes. You touch the second and in a minute or two there appears a messenger from the telegraph office to take your telegram or carry a parcel or message for you to by the name of "gentleman;" in Chicago, he goes by the name of "loafer." In fifty years' time, when America has 200,000,000 inhabitants, perhaps she will impose her ideas upon the Old World. Then, maybe, society will have no contempt except for the ignorant and the idle. A young man, with a very intelligent look-

CHAPTER XXXV.

The Americans of today are so blase on the matter of advertisements that it is difficult to attract their attention without getting up extravagant baits for their eyes. The most effective bait is the illustrated advertisement. Here, for instance, is the 'Capilline," which makes the hair and whiskers grow as if by magic. You have to be so careful in bandling the stuff that if a drop should fall, say, on your nose, a tuft of hair would almost immediately grow thereon. On the left of the advertisement you see a poor fellow, bald, whiskerless, and wan. A young lady is turning her back on him with look of disgust. The illustration is entitled, Before using Capilline-Refused." On the right, you see a superb male beauty, adorned with a luxuriant growth of hair and beard. The same young lady reposes her head on his shoulder, and raises her rapturous eyes to his. Underneath are the words: "After using Capilline-Accepted." But the most marvel-The air is so dry in the north of the States ous part of it is that the use of the elixir has that when heated, at theatres, concerts, and changed the cut of the man's coat. and make their fortunes in America, and the greatest ambition of Mr. Barnum would be realized. Nothing astonishes an American. That which makes his conversations immensely piquant is, as I have already said, the calm. natural tone in which he comes out with the most astounding statements. My impresario had just engaged me for a ecture season in the States and Canada. "I shall have two Europeans on my list next year," he said, "Mr. Charles Dickens and yourself. I wanted two others, but they are not to be had."

"That is not very flattering," said I, "but who are the two Europeans you cannot get!" "Mr. Gladstone and Lord Randolph Churchill," he replied, quite calmly. Then, suppressing the words "Mr." and

'Lord," according to the habit of his country men, he added with a sigh: "Yes. Gladstone would have made a lump and Churchill would have been an elegant success."

CHAPTER XXXVI. 'The Americans have suppressed distances by bringing railway trains to perfection. You take the cars after dinner to go a two or three hundred miles journey. It is a hotel on wheels. There are windows and ventilators, but if you open your window, you will see your fellow travelers turn up their coat collars and get down their shawls and furs, and you will hear energetic grunblings, which will give you to understand that you are turning yourself into a public calamity. The Americans are shivery people, stewing themselves in a bain-marie. Here, as well as in the hotels and in all conditions of American life, you are at the mercy of servants. There is no remedy at hand, no appeal against it.

In America you are supposed to know everything, and no one will help you unless you should happen to address yourself to well bred people.

If you ask a passer-by in the street the nearest way to the station, he walks as though he understood you not. The word "station" is English, but here you must talk American and say depot, pronounced deepo. The invariable answer you get to the questions you ask in the street is, "I don't know." They are all like Joe, "they don't know nothink." When a railway servant has succeeded in insulting you, he is quite proud, and plumes himself on his smartness; he looks at his mates and seems to say: "Did you hear how I spoke up to him?" He would be afraid of lowering himself by being polite. In his eyes politeness is a form of servility, and he gines that, by being rude to well bred neo Jonathan will not stop here. Before long we shall see the architects of all first class houses laying on not only gas, water, the telephone and the electric light, but the opera and church service. A landlord will advertise a house to let: "The opera and church service laid on the premises." Already the ladies of Chicago are able to do their marketing at home. The housekeeper goes to her telephone and rings. "Hello!" responds the central office. "Put me in communication with 2,435" (her butcher's number). In another instant the bell rings. "Hello!" "Hello!" "Is it the butcher."

"Yes." "Send me two pounds of fillet of beef and a leg of mutton by 12 o'clock." "Very good! Is that all?" "Yes." "All right." Upon this the lady rings again. "Hello!" from the central office, where this kind of thing goes on all day long.

"Send me 1.267" (the fruiterer this time). Again the bell rings. "Hello!" "Hello"

"Is this the fruiterer" "Yes." And the scene is repeated-and so on with the baker, the grocer, and all the lady's tradespeople. There is a great effort being made now in

New York, Chicago and other towns to find out a plan to accelerate the service in restaurants and do awaywith waiters. It is very simple, and the Americans will not be haffled for such a small matter.

This is how the thing is to be done: The restaurant is provided with small numbered tables. Each table is in direct communication with the kitchen by means of rails. Close at hand are a certain number of electric buttons upon which the customer sees written "beef," "mutton," "chop," "vegetables," "tart," etc. He touches three, four, five buttons according to his appetite, and the cook receives his order.

"Steak and potatoes, tomato, salad, chocolate cream for No. 52-All right, ready!" In an instant a tray bearing the meal appears upon the table, placed there without hands. When the customer has disposed of his food, he touches the button marked "bill." In a twinkling the bill appears on his plate, and the assuaged American settles it at the desk as he goes out. The whole thing is as simple as possible.

The American complains that it is impossible to lunch or dine in less than ten minutes. This evil will be remedied shortly.

If you want a really striking sight, go to one of the great restaurants of Chicago or New York at lunch time. Those Americans using their knife and fork will make your head swim. At a little distance, they look as if they were all playing the dulcimer. Those Americans are never still, never at rest. Even when they are sitting, they must be on the move; witness the rocking chair habit.

No repose for them: their life is a perpetual motion, a frantic race.

Opposite my windows, at the Richelieu hotel in Chicago, there was a railway station. Every ten minutes or so the local trains came and went. Each time the bell announced the approach of a train, I saw a crowd tear along the path of the station and leap into the carriages, taking them by storm. By leaving their offices half a minute earlier, these good people might have walked comfortably to the station, and saved themselves this breathless

CHAPTER XXXII To show the point to which intellectual activity goes in America, I cannot do better than speak of the Nineteenth Century club. Two or three years ago Mr. Courtland: Palmer, one of the leading inhabitants of New York—a gentleman as rich in intellectual attainments as in dollars-conceived the happy idea of inviting his friends to meet twice a month in his drawing room for the purpose of discussing the important questions of the day. His nvitation was accepted with alacrity, and thus the club, which consists of lady members as well as gentlemen, was formed. The association proceeds in a manner as simple as it is practical.

Is it decided, for instance, to pass an evening in discussing socialism? The president invites a well known socialist to come and explain his views before the members of the lub; he invites, also, an anti-socialist of alent to answer him. One evening last winter was devoted to the liscussion of sectarianism. The president of he club invited a Catholic priest, an Episcopalian and a Presbyterian minister, a Unitaof marriage. rian and, unless my memory misleads me, an agnostic. All were listened to attentively, and each had his harvest of applause. Thanks to the vivacity of their minds, the Americans have a special talent for making he most arid subjects interesting. All these lebates are enlivened with humorous renarks, anecdotes, flashes of wit and clever epartees. Needless to say that they are conducted with the utmost courtesy. The most trenchant weapons employed at these tournanents are sarcasm and banter, and the Americans are adept in the use of both, In America, such is the respect for the ppinions of others, that the wildest, most incongruous ideas did not raise a murmur.

The audience would smile and seem to say: 'What a droll idea!" and if the droll idea was expressed wittily the orator was apnlauded. I saw nothing more striking during my tay in America, nothing which appeared to memore hopeful for the future of the country, than the sight of these crowds of four or five hundred people, men old and young, young girls and matrons, all in fashionable evening dress, met together to learn something, and audience demanded the return of half their entrance money on the ground that the programme had not been carried out in its entirety, since the president and his wife had not made their appearance as the spectators had been led to expect.

The circus manager was obliged to reimburse, says the paper from which I extract the account.

Never lay aside an American newspaper without looking over the advertisements. Ten to one you will be rewarded for your patience.

There are traveling doctors in America who go from town to town to heal the sick at reduced prices.

Here is the advertisement of one of these gentlemen. It is headed with his portrait, and appears in the papers of the towns he operates upon:

"Dr. R. has already remained in Mlonger than he first intended, but at the request of numerous individuals and friends he will extend his stay one week longer. Patients in other towns have been disappointed by his long stay in M----: but they have his assurance that this visit will not be extended beyond the time stated above."

This stereotyped advertisement has a flavor of the drum and cymbals of the mcuntebank. Walk up, ladies and gentlemen, walk up and show your tongues and have your pulses felt. Further down, this same medical gentleman falls into the style of the chimney sweep, enxious to enlarge his connection: "Ho thanks his many friends and patrons for the kindness and patronage bestowed upon him, and trusts, by pursuance of the same honorable business and professional methods and efforts, to invite, he thought of hiring a concert to fully merit a continuance of same." In the smoking room of the Germanic one "But, no," said he to himself, "an oratorio day an American, who sat near me, said, adwould be much more impressive in a sacred dressing me:

"I believe you are going to America to lecture, sir?" "Yes," I replied, "I am."

"Who is booming your show, may I ask?" he said in the most natural way in the world.

I must have stared at him like a rustic, being utterly at a loss to understand what he meant.

Upon getting this Americanism explained I Thus, I saw in one of the most widely read had the satisfaction of finding that my inter-American newspapers the announcement of locutor's question simply meant in English: a company recently founded, with a capital "Who is your impresario?" never pays in America. The natives would only enjoy it. Take the matter laughingly, This is the advice the Americans gave me, and I recommend it to you, if ever you are similarly placed. I was having a siesta one day in one of the comfortable arm chairs of a drawing room car, when the conductor came along and, giving me a formidable thump, cried out in the most savage tone: "Your ticket!"

I made haste to oblige him and to offer apologies. "I trust I have not kept you waiting," said I. He went away quite crestfallen Another day, I was in a New York local train. These trains have not drawing room cars with smoking room attached. Neither first, second nor third class; all the carriages are alike. I addressed the conductor, asking him where I should find the smoking compartment. In reply he murmured a few unintelligible words between his teeth. In my humblest, sweetest accents, I said:

"Excuse me, I did not hear." He shouted at me at the top of his voice: "Be-hind-the-lo-co-mo-tive! do you hear this time?"

My first impulse was to knock him down. But I bethought myself of the advice that had been given me, and answered with a smile: "Yes, I heard. I beg a thousand pardons. You are really too polite."

A popular American actress was dining one evening in the dining car of a train going from Boston to New York. Being alone, she ate slowly, and deliberately dawdled over the meal to kill time. The waiter, displeased at the audacity of such conduct, stood about within hearing, and began making the rudest remarks on her proceedings.

When she had quite finished her dinner, and he came to remove the dishes, the actress wrote a few words upon one of her cards, and, handing it to him with a sweet smile, she said: "Here is my card; if you hand it in at the Opera house to-morrow evening you will be provided with a stall. I regret exceedingly that it is not in my power to offer you a box -it is such a treat to meet with a polite railway servant!" The names of the stations are hidden. Do not hope that the conductor will clear up the mystery. The train had just stopped a few leagues from Richmond one day.

"What station is this?" asked a traveler, addressing the conductor.

This individual simply shrugged his shoulders and turned his back. I happened to be close to him.

"What inquisitive people there are, to be sure!" I said to him. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

The greatest "boomer" in America is the great, the only, the unique Barnum. The personality of this king of showmen is not particularly interesting, except for being typically American, and one that could not Mr. Phineas T. Barnum, pursued by fate, is every five years the victim of a conflagration. His fires happen with terrible regularity. Whilst I was in America his tigers and elephants were burned out of house and home. Scarcely had the flames been extinguished when there were paragraphs in the papers to say that Mr. Barnum's agent was buying fresh animals for the "biggest show on earth," and all over the walls of America's cities were to be seen flaring posters representing Phineas Barnum rising from the flames like a modern phoenix. Appended was a long literary essay which began:

opened. Mr. Barnum holds in small esteem the man who lets slip a chance of making money. He would think it quite natural to offer $2,000 a week to Gen. Boulanger to show himself in his museum, and would think it very unnatural that the general should refuse such a handsome offer. The rumor has it that the enterprising Phineas wrote to M.

Pasteur some time since to try and engage him. He guaranteed, it is said, $50,000 to the illustrious savant if he would inoculate before the American public twice a day. It is to receive from the company a check as a sort of court plaster to patch up his lacerated feelings. I would not advise you to put a cent into the concern.
