So indistructible by wear or decay is the African teak wood that vessels it have lasted nearly one hundred years, to be then broken up only on account of their antique mould or defective sailing qualities. The Alaskan Glacier.

The scenery greatly impressed Miss Field in Alaska. She said: A glacier is a wonderful torrent that seems to have been frozen when about to plunge into the sea. Wonderfully picturesque is the innes glacier, three miles wide and three hundred feet high at its mouth. Think of Niagara Falls frozen stiff, and thirty-six feet added to its height, and you have a slight idea of the terminous of the innes glacier. Picture a back-ground of mountain lifteeen thousand feet high, all snow clad, and then imagine a gorgeous sun lighting up the snow crystals with rainbow color. The face of that glacier takes on the line of aquamarine the hue of every bit of floating ice, big and little, that surrounds the steamer that makes navigation serious. This dazzling serpent moves at the rate of nine hundred and sixty-nine feet a day, and as it falls, the ear is startled by the submarine thunder. The berg goes down deep into the sea, and woe to the boat that is in the way when it

How to Break up Baby's Cold. When I find baby has taken cold, not so feverish and sick as to require packing, which one dreads to do because of the increased danger resulting from any exposure afterward, but a smart cold in its first stages, with red eyes and running nose and stuffed head, I take the little one in my lap several times through the day, and again at bedtime, and, removing boots and stockings, rub the feet-soles, tops and ankles-with sweet oil or goose oil, and then heat them long and well before an open fire till the skin will absorb no more oil. Then I bathe and rub the little bare back from neck to hips, especially along the spine, with oil also; shielding baby's back from cold drafts, and letting the warm rays of fire light and heat it just right, channg and thoroughly heating till the skin will absorb no more oil.

Wrapped in flannel and tucked away in her warm nest for the night, baby often wakes in the morning with but If there is hoarsness in connection with other symptoms of an oncoming cold, for a simple remedy I like to give baby boiled molasses with a bit of butter or sweet oil or goose oil in it, or a few teaspoonfuls of onion syrup made of sliced onion and brown sugar, which helps soothe the throat and clear the bowels, carrying away, perhaps, the aggravating source of the cold.

Fall of Black Snow.

At Aitken, Minn., on April 2, at 4:45 o'clock, it became so dark that lights were necessary in business houses, and the air was filled with snow that was as black and dirty as though it had been trampled into the earth. Six ounces of snow and one-fourth ounce of dirt and sand were found in the bottom of a dish. The dirt is very fine, something like emery, and contains particles that have a metalic luster. This dirty snow fell to the depth of half an inch. The atmosphere at the time presented a peculiar greenish ing at the time from the north-west. though there seemed to be considera-

Of jugglers there are no end in Ja-Swell Japanese always have them at any large entertainment. One old man who could give Heller points, goes around in a single cotton gown with two baskets full of properties over his shoulders, and, putting them down anywhere, performs his tricks, with the expectant audience encircling him. A hat full of coppers rewards him sufficiently and he goes on to eat fire, spit out eggs, needles, lanterns and smoking lipes at the next place, At a recent Japanese dim er a foreign guest determined to have no optical delusions about what the jugglers did. He never let his glasses be distracted, and was not once off his guard. Noticing this, the old juggler played to him entirely. An immense porceno man is more highly esteemed to-day lain vase was brought in and set in the middle of the room, and the juggler, crawling up, let himself down slowly. The sceptic then sat for a half hour without taking his eyes from Don't forget to lift your hat when the vase that he had first been conoffering a seat or other attention to vinced was sound and firm and stood on no trap door. After this prolonged watch the rest of the company assailed him with laughter and jeers, and pointed to his side, where the old juggler was seated fanning himself, and had been seated for some minutes. The skept'e was dumfounded, and wanted the trick repeated, but the whele company protested that he had had a fair chance to catch the wizzard and had failed.

The Elephant in the Moon.

In the early days of the telescope many absurd mistakes were made in the use of the new instrument, and many "discoveries" announced which have been confirmed by the studies of astronomers who have lived since. In the sixteenth century an English observer, Sir Peter Neal, who possessed a telescope and was very conceited about it, gave out that he had discovered an elephant in the moon. The discovery made quite a sensation, and Sir Peter had the satisfaction of hearing his elephant in the moon talked on the other side. One day some gentleman who had some knowledge of the use of telescopes, and was incredu-lous about the elephant, obtained the high favor of looking through Sir Peter's instrument, Presently he came to Sir Peter, holding a fly between his finger and thumb. "Well, what is it?" said Sir Peter. "Nothing, sir. but your elephant in the moon," was the answer. The fly had crept into the telescope n such a way as to suggest an elephant to the amateur astronomer, who Lager Beer.

Lager beer, from its name, implies a beer that has been kept for a certain period. A year or six months, at least, is the time given by authorities as that which should elapse before such beer is tapped. The German Austrian governments impose both fine and imprisment for any infraction of this rule. because of the deleterious effect of such drink before such lager or keeping shall have expired. There is not any such law here, and, as everybody knows who has had the time and in clination to investigate the subject, many of our brewers have badly curtailed this time of keeping and constantly seek for expedients and processes for cutting it down still more, so eager is the market, so uncritical the consumer. Indeed, the American teer drinker has little regard for his liver and kidneys, or he would have stoutly protested long ago. He takes his beer unsuspectingly, and without inquiry, till a time comes when, the liver being affected, or the kidneys, or both, nature protests, and the beverage once so pleasing to the lips is like so much acid. A chemist recently investigating this matter says:

"Brewers are using materials other than malted barley, such as corn and oats, etc., mixed with barley and hops. by which they accelerate its manufacture, making a sweetish, pleasing, heady beverage, but alcoholic, and peo-ple using this kind of beer in large daily quantities, with the idea that it is innocuous, has brought on a marked increase of renal complaints."

This statement was shown to a medical inspector of the Board of Health of this city. He could not say if these particular ingredients were used, but the general charge, he said, was undoubtedly true, neither colored as hearted squire. He would not listen to | to the intent of the brewers nor exaggerated as to the effect on the health of the consumer. The Health Depart-ment, he said, had not sufficient force to look into this matter just now, so full were its hands with the routine of sort of indulgence which they think they must have, at whatever cost to others. They are never content unless some one is condoling with them, and the more sympathetic pain they can induce their friends and neighbors to feel the better satisfied they are. So sweet a morsel do they find this to be that they treasure every ailment so as to recount it; they dwell upon their disappointments, their trials, and their woes, cherishing the memory of them to pour them into the ears of every willing listener, and to compel him to feel some of the suffering which they so diffusely portray as their own. Of course this process leads insensibly to great exaggeration; and certainly nothing could injure the cause of true sympathy more than such fraudulent nd mean attempts to obtain it.

WHEREAS, Christian I. Reiner and Catharine Reiner, his wife, made and executed a certain mortgage on the 11th day of February, A. D. 1888, to George H. Trenaman, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Berrien County, Michigan, m Liber 42 of Mortgages, on page 95, on the 5th day of Murch, A. D. 1888, which mortgage was, on the 6th day of December, A. D. 1888, duly assigned by said Trenaman to Charles Beckman, which assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Berrien County, Michigan, in Liber 44 of Mortgages, on page 204, on the 10th day of December, A. D. 1888. Said mortgage was given to secure the payment of two hundred dollars, evidenced by two promisory notes of one hundred dollars cach, bearing even date with said mortgage, with interest at the rate of seven per cent payable annually; one note due on or before the first day of May, A. D. 1888, the other note due on or before the first day of August, A. D. 1888, and by the terms and conditions of said mortgage and notes the said sum of two hundred dollars and interest had become due and payable; and whereas, default having been made in the payment thereof, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred dollars ($200) and no proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover said amount or any part thereof. Therefore, pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given, that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described therein sold at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Berrien Springs, Berrien County, Michigan, on MORTGAGE SALE.

Will seem to come into my mind. And I make up the words as I go; church? Do you think it means I am low? My blessed old husband has left me. I know he is sate, well and happy,

What I would do if I was there. Of course He can do it much better; But He knows, and He surely won't mind The worry about her old husband Of the old woman left here behind, So I pray, and a pray for the old man, And I'm sure I shall till I die,

My old father was never a churchman, But a Scotch Presbyterian saint; Still his white head is shining in heaven. I don't care who says that it ain't; To one of our blessed Lord's mansions That old man was certain to go, And now do you think I am high church?

Too much for a body like me, I'll wait till I join my old husband, And then wo shall see what we'll see. Don't ask me again, if you please, sir; For it really worries me so. And I don't care whether I'm high church And I don't care whether I'm low.

Philip could not think of climbing the hill at noon, and arranged to dine in the village, but he was to come to her at night. It was a hard month to Abby-hard even if Philip had spared her trouble; but he was careless, and most of the dreary nights she watched alone, while he was making merry with his wicked companions. It was on a wild night that the spirit of her precious mother went home, too wild for the neighbors to leave their own firesides; so Abby had to face the Death Angel alone. she went to the window to see if Philip was coming, but could see nothing without but intense darkness; so she dragged herself back to help the dear one die-to shudder, and weep, and pray over the suffering that he could not ease By-and-by the labored breathing became more natural, and as the loving daughter wiped the death-damp from the chill forehead, the dving mother lifted her blind eyes and said, Abby, let patience have its perfect work." The next moment she had entered into rest, and poor Abby was of weeping—one minute of passionate prayer—and then she made her mother ready for the graye. At last she went and opened the door and looked out upon the night and storm.

"It is such a cruel night for her to go out alone," she cried. She waited a moment longer, thinking of the cruel night and cruel world. But she was done with tears; she was glad that the dear one was through with it all, and she wished that she could take her baby and join the cherished lost on the other side. She was there first, and when Philip, the picture of despair, strode in, she received him with a smile and a kiss of welcome. Postmaster General Wanamaker has no use for the saloon in politics or mail service either. Over one hundred saloon-keepers were appointed railway agents under the Vilas-Dickinson administration and they will have to go. The postmaster-general has also ordered that no post-office shall be kept in a saloon or in any room leading into a saloon. Mr. Wanamaker thinks that the mail service can be improved by improving it.—Detroit Tribune.

A fresh beef bill now before the legislature, if passed will require small towns and large ones to keep on hand an expensive officer, whose duty shall be to inspect cattle that are to be slaughtered for food purposes. The bill is doubtless the result of the diseased beef scare that came from Texas through Chicago stock yards last year. It may be all proper if applied to large cities that are liable to get diseased Texas cattle, but we have an idea that small towns using only the fat cattle of the surrounding community, have no particular use for the bill.

Gov. Luce received a high compliment from an unexpected source in this place on the first day of April. Representative Aleshire was asked about the proposed amendment relative to Judicial districts, and gave as his opinion that it was safe to vote for the amendment, as the legislature would not have passed it had it not been all right, and it might especially be depended upon that it was all right before the Governor would sign it, as he was sure to read everything very carefully, before he would sign it. He even reads the 200 page bills changing the charters of some north-woods villages before signing them. Our Representative has evidently become better acquainted with Gov. Luce than he was during the campaign of last Fall.

The lower house of the legislature has passed the bill prohibiting the manufacture and sale of cigarettes and cigarette paper by a nearly unanimous vote, only three members voting against it. The following is the bill: Sec. 1. The people of the state of Michigan enact, that any person or persons who shall engage in the manufacture of cigarettes in this state, or any person who shall directly or indirectly by himself, his clerk, agent or servant, or any agent or traveling salesman, who shall sell or offer for sale, furnish, give or deliver cigarettes composed in whole or part of tobacco, or any substitute shaped in the form of the cigarette, with or without a wrapper, containing narcotic elements, or rice paper in books or blocks, the usual wrapper of cigarettes, or any paper designed or intended for the wrapper of cigarettes, shall be deemed guilty of a misde-

Sec. 2. Any person or persons yiolating any of the provisions of section 1 of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution, or by imprisonment in the county jail not less than ten days nor more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

The Damon liquor tax bill, which is designed to be enforced in counties where the forth coming local option law will not be in force, was reported to the legislature on Thursday last by Representative Watson, chairman of the liquor traffic committee of the House. By this bill it will cost $1000 for manufacturing spirituous liquors and selling the product, $200 for manufacturing malt liquor and selling the product, $800 for selling spirituous liquors at wholesale and not at retail, $500 for selling malt, brewed, etc. liquors at wholesale and not at retail, $600 for selling all kinds of liquor at retail, $1200 for selling all kinds of liquor at wholesale and retail. The bonds to be fixed by town or village boards or common councils are placed at from $4000 to $6000 instead of $3000 to $6000 as at present. This law also changes the drug clause of the old law in that it requires a druggist to secure a permit to sell liquor, paying a fee of $10 therefor, and requiring him to keep a record of all sales of liquor and file it with the township, village or city clerk monthly, so that it may be open to public inspection, and on failure to do this the permit is to be revoked. Those best informed think the bill will pass. Our Representative, Mr. Aleshire, is a member of the liquor traffic committee, but is reported as having taken no part in the construction of the bill, leaving that to the Republican members of the committee. Knowing his strong temperance proclivities we believe he will vote for it. If he does not it will be because the party lash will be heavily applied.

An important decision was rendered in the U.S. District Court at Detroit last week by Judge Brown. Asa W. Straight, the inventor of a burner for a gasoline stove, upon which he had applied for a patent, brought suit for an injunction against Clayton & Lambert, who had improved Straight's burner, claiming that the device "patent appled for" on his burner protected him. Judge Brown held that the device is no protection, as the court cannot grant an injunction, as it cannot assume that the patent will be granted by the commissioner. He further says that the patents have no rights at common law, and the statute makes the life of a patent at seventeen years. To grant such an injunction would be to give the patent more than its statutory life, for, if granted at all it might not be for months after the application was filed. The bill was therefore dismissed for the want of jurisdiction .- S. B. Tribnne.

Truly "God counts by deeds, not years." Three weeks before her death she wrote a short but loving address to her young friends to be read at her funeral, which will never be forgotten by those who heard, and on the morning of April 11, just a few moments before her death, she looked at her weeping loyed ones and smiled, saying, "darling ma ma almost there." "I know no race nor color in the Republican party," says the President to Southern office-seekers. "Each candidate will stand on his merits." This does not mean that a colored man who is as lit for an office as a white man will not get it, but that fitness must decide absolutely, without sentiment coming into play at all.-New York

The Southern political sky is beginning to clear, and there is a prospect that through President Harrison's polcy the solid South will be broken. He surely is pursuing a very wise course in respect to appointments in the South. He will gain the respect of all classes in that section whose respect is worth having, and this will strengthen the party. President Harrison has southern blood in his veins, and the people of the South need not be afraid of him. -Denver Republican.

The wholesome reorganization of the railway mail service is proceeding rapidly. The public may soon expect to notice the improvement so much needed. No branch of the public business was so thoroughly demoralized as this during the Cleveland administration. As it was left by the Republicans, it was a marvel of accurate performance. As they found it again, it was a tangle of inefficiency and inacuracy. Evidently its restoration has been committed to competent hands.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. Every week brings fresh tidings of industrial development in the Southern states, with a persistent regularity that would be monotonous were it not so highly gratifying. It is evident that those states are swiftly growing into a new era, far more prosperous than any former time; and it is also evident that the election of a Republiean President and Congress has materially aided and encouraged this growth, instead of checking it, and bringing down the "roaring flood of sorrows" which Bourbon politicians before election so pathetically predicted.—N. Y.

The progress of the Nation in moral life may be traced in the very topics attention. In early days the rights of states, the creation of banks, the acquisition of territory divided men into hostile camps. Now temperance, purification of elections, and of the public service engross attention. The Nation is not only older, more manly, less aggressive, but is more anxious to defend and uplift its citizens, more zealous to protect its homes and purify its public life, than at any previous period in the century.—N. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That I, William Broceus, Township Drain Commissioner of the Township of Buchanan, County of Berrien, State of Michigan, will, on the 29th day of April, A. D. 1859, at the Wagner School-house, in said township of Buchanan, at nine o'clock in the forenoon of that day, proceed to receive bids for the cleaning of a certain drain known as the "Wagner Lake Drain No. 9." located and established in saud township of Buchanan, and described as follows: Beginning at the east end of Wagner lake in section nineteen of Buchanan township, and runs in an east, north and west course across sections twenty, seventeen and eighteen, to the order of Judy lake, in the northwest quarter (%) of said section eighteen. Said job will be let by sections or divisions. The section at the outlet of the drain will be let first, and the remaining sections in their order up stream, in accordance with the diagram now on file with the other papers pertaining to said drain, and bids will be made and received accordingly. Contracts will be made with the lowest responsible bidder giving adequate security for the performance of the work, in a sum to be fixed by me. The date for the completion of such contract, and the terms of payment therefor, shall be announced at the time and place of letting. Notice is farther hereby given, that at the time and place of said letting the assessment of benefits made by me, will be subject to reciew.

Dated this 13th day of April, A. D. 1889.

MADEIRA,

After negotiating for a year I have secured at great cost, this great Sire to head my herd. He was sired by Vidocq, so long at the head of Dunham's Stud. His dam was half-sister to the Duke of Perche and sired by Favori I, MADEIRA'S sire, and the sire of Dunham's Brilliant, of Kellogg's Narborne, and Dunham's great mare Adelaide, were halfbrothers, all being sired by CoCo 11, the greatest horse ever bred in France. MADEIRA'S dam, and the dams of Brilliant, Narborne and Adelaide, were half-sisters, all having been sired by Favori

In the stud-book and catalogues of leading importers, there is scarcely a page that does not contain Madeira's name as a sire.

ALL WORK WARRANTED. In the importations of Dunham, and Savage & Farnum last year, were nearly fifty of his descendants.

Producteur, sired by him, won First Prize at the great Percheron Show in Chicago in 1886, and was sold for $8,500. Baptiste, another son, the Mies Bros., of Minnesota, paid $3,500 for, and he now weighs 2,200 pounds, and they have refused $6,000 for him. In breeding, MADEURA has no superior. As a stock getter, considering the chance he has had, he has scarcely an equal. Owners of good mares, especially those sired by Lenoir or Duke of Perche, should spare no trouble or expense to secure stock He was foaled in 1874; gray-still dapple -weight, 1,800 pounds in ordinary condition. He has the action, fire and vim of the old time Percheron. He is an old horse, and by delay the chance to breed to nim may be lost.

TERMS .- $20.00 to insure, payable when mare is known to be in foal. For $25.00 I will insure a live colt a month old. THE South Bend dailies give lengthy particulars of the arrest of Wesley Stowe and Mrs. Della Martin in that city on Monday, by Sheriff Sterns of this county, for adultery. It appears the Martins lived between Berrien Springs and St. Joseph, and were married in 1866, and lived happily together until 1886, when Mr. Martin received an injury which partially paralized him, and Stowe was engaged to nurse him, and while doing so put in his best licks in gaining the affections of Mrs. M., in which it seems he was very successful. It ended in an elopement, with considerable of the cash of Mr. Martin to smooth the future happy life of the new family, and assist it in run ning a boarding house in South Bend. but its happiness has turned to such bitterness that wormwood would be sweet beside it, in fact the "woman in the case" says she would gladly change places with a dead person, while Stowe, the old reprobate of more than a half century, seems to take it somewhat easier. Both have families of grown up children. They will recuperate at the hotel de Sterns for a while, and then ed Monday week at the election in they will call upon Judge O'Hara, who will undoubtedly speak a few pleasant words to them and give them free.

THE RECORD is informed by one not far from the throne that the Michigan Central Company will most likely run their track over a line directly west from their bridge across the river, coming down through the gravel hills and valleys near John Pears' place and running up the valley this town lies in, striking their track in the vicinity of Bakertown crossing, and bring their depot grounds down town. An attempt will be made to get back to the old track in the neigborhood of the present depot grounds, but as this can not be done and avoid the heavy grade the other line will likely be adopted. This will shorten the line a mile or more, take out the worst grade in the road, and get the Company's track into the neighborhood of some good gravel.

THE Buchanan Windmill Company has been dissolved by mutual consent, the Koontz brothers withdrawing from the company. The Rough Bros. will continue the business under the same name as heretofore, until the material on hand is worked off and the accounts settled, when the business will be closed. The Rough Bros, are now on the outlook for something to take the place of windmill work in their plant. There is some talk of putting in works for the manufacture of a new folding bed made to assist them in the work.

More Railroad.—Selden Fish, a Chicago lawyer, telegraphed to Mr. J. E. Barnes asking for a meeting of a few our citizens, as he wanted to talk railroad matters. Accordingly, about fifty met in Justice Dick's office to listen to what he had to offer. He said that some one whom he is represent-ing had made the owners of the St. Joseph Valley load a proposition which might probably be accepted, and in which case this party would build a standard gague road from St. Joseph to South Bead, and would ask thus to give them $10,000. He refused to tell who he represented, where they are, when they might be expected to show their hands, or by what sign we may know them. This gives us two seekers after aid of this place to build a road over this route. One asking ten miles of right of way, and will have nothing to do with the narrow gague road. The other is Mr. Fisk. So far as Buchanan is concerned, we would prefer to have the narrow gauge line utilized, if possible to do so, and make a good road, but it is quite generally conceded that we would prefer to furnish the right of way to paying $10,-000. Thus far both prosositions are in a very vague condition. About all we can do for the present is to await developements.

ALL ABOUT THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE CENTENNIAL BALL.

A Scene at the Metropolitan Opera House That Will Live Long in the Memory of Its Witnesses-How the Six Thousand

One of the biggest problems that confronted the managers of the great centennial in New York city was how to provide for the entertainment of 6,000 persons at the reception and ball on April 29, and for that of the president and the 800 other guests at the banquet on April 30, says the New York Sun. The place for the two colossal entertainments was pretty soon decided upon. The Metropolitan Opera house was wisely chosen as answering all the requirements of so rare an occasion as a national centennial celebration. But what would a monster buffet be without competent caterers, and the most princely banquet hall without a princely menu, a con temporaneous Vatel to execute it, and a chief steward with a genius and a will to effect its conveyance to its proper place?

"What could you do with $55,000 for a dinner and a reception?" was the question put to Edward S. Stokes of the Hoffman house,

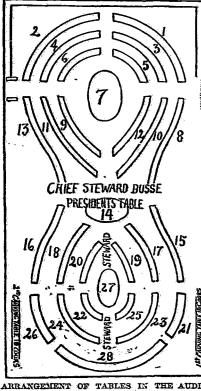

"Marvels!" laconically answered Mr. Stokes. "I am used to marvels any way, and one more or less won't disturb me in the least. My chef, Eugene Laperruque, commands twenty-nine cooks, pastry cooks and ice makers; he reigns supreme in a 100 by 50 kitchen, when ten kinds of soups, innumerable hors d'œuvre, releves, entrees, roasts, sorbets, ices and desserts, coffco and tea, and pies and Vienna rolls are daily manufactured and made ready to suit the most fastidious palates in the land, while my grand steward, Rudolph Busse, is the most efficient marshal that ever led an army of skilled and good looking waiters."

The big task was at once intrusted to Mr. Stokes, and the committee went away glad to have got it all settled so easily. Mr. Stokes summoned his chef and grand steward immediately, and gave them carte blanche to make the ball and banquet magnificent features of the centennial.

The legislature authorized the committee to use such streets or parts of streets as might be deemed by them necessary to carry out their several programmes. In order therefore that those who are intrusted with the mission of supplying with refreshments the 6,000 people who are to take part in the ball on Monday. April 29, the committee have decided to annex temporarily to the Metropolitan Opera house, by means of appropriate wooden structures, the northern sidewalk and part of West Thirty-ninth street and the eastern sidewalk of Seventh avenue. In these annexes—as shown by the accompanydiagram-will be the buffet and the bar. At the latter, which will extend 123 feet on Thirty-ninth street and 75 feet on Seventh venue, the four champagnes which appear on the menu of the banquet will be dispensed. It is expected that from 3,500 to 5,000 corks will be exploded that night, no other wine nor any liquor being served by the caterers. In order to avoid confusion there will be one entrance only to the buffet room and one exit. The buffet proper will be 550 feet long, and will occupy the whole space along Thirtyninth street and Seventh avenue with the exception of a 78.10x45 kitchen and the space -reserved for a private table of twelve covers, at which the president, his party, and Mayor Grant will be seated. All the other guests must stand. In this buffet Chef Laperruque will exhibit his best work. Here, among 150 baskets of the choicest flowers, he will spread, besides warm dishes of the most varied descriptions, 112 "froids" ornamented with 150 brochette historiees, all of his own make and mounted upon 112 socies, worked up in every detail by himself with wonderful artistic skill and pa-tience. Six barrels of plaster were used by him in conjunction with wood prepared by ARRANGEMENT OF TABLES IN THE AUDITO his own hands and from his own designs for these pedestals, which alone have cost him a full month of labor, decorated as they are with delicate wreaths of carved foliage and beautiful roses and other flowers, imitating old Faenza earthenware.

The confectioner's art will be represented by fifty-eight sugar pyramids elaborately worked up by the chef; busts of Washington, cupids, eagles and lions, covered with American flags and solidly planted on socles of various forms, dressed up in bronze, old gold or silver; and 132 high pieces, nougats and candied fruits, not to mention innumerable tymbals, which will be filled on April 29 with delicious things, and are already packed away in huge boxes piled up in the cellars of the Hoffman house.

Here is a list of the delicacies that will be found in the buffet:

Ananas. The banquet on April 30 will begin exactly at 8 o'clock p. m., and will be a magnificent affair, both in point of decorative splendor and display of culinary skill. The stage and auditorium will be connected to make one continuous floor, over which will be disposed twenty-six tables, simulating, as may be seen by the second diagram, six immense horseshoes. Two central tables one for twentyare covers high the congresor with the reserved for the most distinguished guests. The president's table will be No. 14, at the junction of the stage with the orchestra, so that Gen. Harrison will be in full view, not only of the banqueters, but also of the ladies who will occupy the boxes, although they will have to look on at the bunquet with the eyes of a Tantalus. Their ears will be delighted, however, with excellent music, and, later on, with the eloquence of the centennial orators.

Each table will be dressed with the utmost care and skill from the plandrawn by Messrs. Laperruque and Busse, and under their immediate supervision. The hall, brilliantly lecorated and lighted, its atmosphere loaded with the perfume of flowers, its tables arrayed in fine linen, burdened with dazzling silverware, multi-colored flags and fine specimens of culinary architecture, and bright with the luster of the 7,000 crystal wine glasses, will present a never to be forgotten ensemble. There will be 200 waiters well drilled as so many soldiers. They will be under the supreme command of Mr. Busse, who will have sixteen assistant stewards, two for each of the eight series of tables. In the kitchen established in Seventh avenue, Chef Laperruque will have the assistance of fifteen cooks, thirty-two "omnibus" waiters, whose duty is to carry the 12,000 warm plates and es to be used, and thirty girls who will do nothing but wash the chinaware used at

BUSSE LAPERRUOUE. At the carving tables at the end of the auditorium, thirty-six cooks with as many will be the entente between the chief cook in Seventh avenue and the chief steward in the middle of the hall, that on a signal given by the latter, by means of an electric bell, every meat will be carved simultaneously, and every course served at the same time at each of the twenty-eight tables without confusion or delay, thus avoiding the awkward predica-ment of guests beginning only to dine while others are already enjoying their roast. Each section of the six horseshoes and each central table will be provided with hugo silver coffee pots, from which delicious coffee will be drawn and placed nearly at the same minute before every diner. There will be fine champagne, kimmel or chartrease to go with the speech making and a special brand of Ha-ana cigars imported for the occasion. This is the menu of the banquet: Hors-d'œuvre varies. Tortue verte.

Laperruque is a blonde, good looking Frenchman of 51. Busse is a six foot, well ield on which these two generals are to maneuver there will be no antagonism of race or politics. Both have worked as one man, with indomitable will, clear foresight, and calm, business like decision, for the success of the two big culinary features of the Washington centennial.

THE WOMAN'S TICKET.

How It Was Carried by a Large Majority at Cottonwood Falls, Kan. At Cottonwood Falls, Kan., the recent election of a "woman's ticket" was planned originally as a huge joke. The day before election a "citizens' ticket," composed of the names of reputable citizens, was brought out, and no one supposed there would be any opposition; but some persons who were ford of joking made up a ticket of ladies' names, and, not daring to circulate them openly, sent a few through the mails on election morning.

Mrs. Groundwater, Police Judge,
Mrs. Gillett, Councilman. Mrs. Morgan, Mayor. Mrs. Johnson, Councilman.
Mrs. Grisham, Councilman.

COTTONWOOD FALLS WOMEN The bringing forth of ladies' names in this public fashion was at first regarded as entirely unwarranted; in fact, as the ladies had not been nominated seriously, it was regarded as an insult. It occurred to their friends that it would be a far better joke to elect them. Consequently they all went to work with a will. and when the election was over it was found that the jokers' ticket was elected by a large majority.

The mayor-elect, Mrs. Minnie D. Morgan, is the wife of the editor of The Chase County Leader. She is an officer of the Women's Relief corps and an officer in the department of Kansas. Mrs. Morgan was born and educated in Cincinnati, and was at one time a teacher in the public schools. Mrs. M. E. Johnson, council woman, is the wife of Jabin Johnson, twice sheriff of Chase county. Mrs. Johnson has artistic tastes.

Mrs. Barbara Gillett, council woman, is a widow and the mother of Frank E. Gillett, number of grown up sons and daughters. Mrs. Sarah Grisham is the wife of the attorney for the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, who is a prominent politician and a member of the G. A. R. She was graduated at the state normal school and became a teacher. At the time of her election she was in charge of the primary department of the Cottonwood Falls school.

Mrs. Mary F. Groundwater, police judge, is the wife of a farmer. She went from Massachusetts to Kansas. She also has been a teacher. For years she has been very prominent in Sunday school work. She will be just the person to pass wholesome sen-tences on any of the jokers who may be brought up before ner for disturbing the peace after 12 o'clock midnight between Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Porter is a widow, a Pres byterian and highly respected.

Miss Alico Hunt is a teacher in the city schools. She is quite young, and an accom-

DUKE OF NASSAU. Adolph of Nassau has already entered, with the sanction of the chamber of Luxembourg, upon the duties of government in said country. Thus Luxembourg becomes German again, and it is even said by some who claim to know of what they speak that Bismarck intends to unite it with Alsace-Lorraine, making of the three a kingdom, and pro-claiming Duke Adolph king. It might be ex-plained here that the grand duchy of Luxembourg is originally a German state, having from 1815 to 1866 belonged to the German confederation. In 1815 it was ceded by the Vienna congress to the king of the Netherlands in place of Nassau, which had been taken from

As the duke is rather an old man, it is thought that he will probably soon resign in favor of his son William, who was born in 1852, and has hitherto been colonel in the Austrian army.

DEATH OF A NOTED EX-SLAVE. Lewis Hayden, Whose History Was Very Eventful.

Lewis Hayden, who recently died at his home in Boston, was one of the noted colored men and fugitives of the "hard old times" of 1855-60. He was born a slave, lived long as a fugitive and opponent of national law, then for a quarter of a century as a freeman and finally died while in the service of the state of Massachusetts. He was born near Lexing ton, Ky., Dec. 2, 1811, and at the age of 10 was traded for a team of horses. Belonging to very intelligent people, he early acquired a high idea of the value of education and learned to read amid many difficulties. One day, in early manhood, while plowing in the fields he formed the design of running away and reaching Canada; that evening he confided the design to his wife, and thenceforward all their talents were given to plans for escape.
While employed at a hotel Mr. Hayden had cautiously gathered from guests all that he could of the north, and finally he and his wife, in the guise of servants to an eloping young couple, reached and crossed the Ohio. The managers of the "un derground railrapidly whirled them away to Canada, where they had to remain but a few months, no "Fugitive slave law." In 1844 he located in Boston, and his story was so vivid that the Anti-Slavery society placed him on

A mere outline of his achievements would fill a column. He aided William Lloyd Garrison in his newspaper and other works. He was one of the party that rescued William and Mary Crafts (fugitives) from the United States marshals and ran them off to Canada He led the attack on the United States court room when the once famous "Shadrack" was rescued, and another attack in which the well remembered Batchellor, a slave catcher, was killed. For the first he was arrested, and after an able defense by John P. Hale and Richard Dana he was acquitted. In other cases no bill of indictment could be procured, as the anti-slavery feeling was rapidly growing. He was an enthusiastic promoter of John Brown's schemes, and was the first man in Massachusetts to openly advocate the enlistment of colored troops. In conjunction with Garrison, Phillips and others he succeeded in having the separate schools for the colored abolished and colored children freely admitted to the common schools of Massa-

From 1858 until his last sickness, Mr. Hayden served as official messenger in the state department of Massachusetts, devoting most of his spare time to labors for his race. His only son was killed during the war, near New Criezus, and his wife survives him. Personally he was a very pleasant, carnest looking and gentlemanly man, a very dark mulatto and generally taken for a full negro by those not familiar with the finer variations of race Lis standing was so high in Boston that many eminent citizens attended his funeral. and memorial services were held in all the

DEATH OF A GREAT CENTENARIAN. Michael Eugene Chevreul, One of France's

Greatest Scientists. The father of chemistry as a science is dead. Michael Eugene Chevreul, after outliving all his early contemporaries, nearly all his early pupils and even a majority of his later coadjutors, has lately died at the age of 103, lacking four months. One might say that a special providence granted such a life that the man who laid the foundation of the present system of chemistry should live to aid at each step of its development and see it completed. Chemistry is indeed a very new science. Chevreul was born Aug. 31, 1786, and when he began his studies so little was known that alchemy was still in some repute and chemists did not know the composition of air. In fact, Chevreul himself was the first to demonstrate the presence of carbonic acid gas, though Black had suggested it many years before.

There is an odd mixture of the tragic and comic in the history of those early chemists. In 1774 Priestley discovered what he called "diphlogisticated air," that is, air freed from phlogiston, which they supposed to be the element of combustion, and Priestley was considered a "very dangerous man." Lavoisier followed by establishing a system of chemical names, substantially that now in use, and when Chevreul ly that now in use, and when Chevreul t was but 8 years old Lavoisier was sent to the guillotine. Chevreul was barely young enough to CHEVREUL pass unnoticed through the terrors of the French Revthe memory of the eminent theologien and scientist, Dr. Joseph Priestly. The day of the olution, and did not leave his native Augers till 1803, when he was 17 years old. Ho gained recognition very soon in the laborabirth of Dr. Priestly, and the celebration was tory of a manufacturing chemist, and at the age of 20 wrote a valuable treatise on the chemistry of colors. In 1817 he was made chemical director of the famous Gobelin dye works, and retained that place for the rest of his life. One by one he received all the honors of the government and the universities and became the recognized authority for the world on the chemistry of colors. He lived through the most awful period of modern history and the most eventful of all the centuries. He was born in the reign of Louis XVI, whom he remembered well, pursued his childish studies during the Reign of Terror, lived under the Directory, the Consulate, the empire, the first and second Restoration, the Hundred

Days, the reign of Louis Philippe, the second Franklin, who was then in England republic and the second empire and into the ninth year of the third republic. stimulated him to write his "History and Present State of Electricity, with Origi-At 90 he confessed that his faculties were nal Experiments." While he was employed in scientific research he did not neglect his failing, but his friends found him a clear thinker for ten years longer. He came of a remarkably long lived race, his father dying at 92 and his mother at 93; he was very regular in his habits and a life long abstainer from tobacco and intoxicants. His only son died at 80, and his oldest pupil, Dr. Ricord, theological studies. In 1766 he was elected to the Royal society. From 1773 until 1780 he was librarian or literary companion to the Earl of Shelbourne, and it was during these years that he attained such eminence as a scientist. Among his discoveries made durwas 86 when he took part in celebrating the centennial of Chevrenl's tirth. The aged chemist was another striking proof of the ining these years were nitric oxide, oxygen and teresting fact that "science is healthy," as

than orators, poets, writers and musicians.

In 1780 he took up his residence in Birmingham, where he had charge of an independent congregation. In 1790 he enraged the people by his "Familiar Letters to the Inhabitants of Birmingham," and these were soon followed by "Letters to Right Hon. E.

Occasioned by His Reflections on the Revolution in France." He was now the recognized champion of liberal made him the subiect of severe condemnation. This on July 14, 1791, the anniversary of the French revolution, in a riot in JOSEPH PRIESTLY. Birmingham, during which his meeting house and dwelling house were burned and his library and apparatus destroyed, and many manuscripts, the fruits of years of industry, perished in the flames. Priestly escaped to London, and in 1794 sailed for New York.

He went to Northumberland, Pa., where his sons had preceded him. In 1793 he visited Philadelphia and delivered a series of lectures on Unitarianism in the old Universalist church at Fourth and Lombard streets. In declining to found a congregation, he suggested that a church should be started and conducted by laymen. His suggestion was acted upon. A society was formed in 1793, and in 1913 the congregation erected the first Unitarian church edifice in Philadelphia. In 1828 the building was replaced by a better building. About four years ago this second building was replaced by a new and commo dious church on Chestnut street.

The monument at Philadelphia is not the first one crected to the memory of Priestly. His old congregation at Birmingham, England, erected a monument to his memory in their place of worship after his death, and in 1800 a marble statue was placed in the corridor of the museum at Oxford. The centennial of the discovery of oxygen was celebrated on Aug. 1, 1874, by the unveiling of a statue to his memory in Birmingham, an address in Paris and in the United States by a gathering of chemists at his grave in Northumbertand, Pa.

The memorial at Philadelphia is over eight feet high and four feet deep, and it is set in the west wall of the church, slightly below the pulpit line, where it can be plainly seen from all parts of the auditorium. It consists of three tablets, a long one in the center and the smaller ones on each side, cut from solid blocks of Sienna marble, framed in a heavy cornice of Algerian marble. The tablets are separated by Grecian columns three feet in height; also in Algerian marble. Over the end tablets are projecting cornices like the roof of a Greek temple and ornamented at either end with cherubs. The entire length of the main cornice, which is Algerian marble, is carved on superb fretwork.

Marcus A. Reno. Marcus A. Reno, at one time major in the United States army, who died in Washington lately from excessive smoking, was born in Illinois, graduated part, among other O engagements, in the battles of Williamsburg, Gaines' Mills, Malvern Hill, Antietam and the action at Kelly's Ford, Va., March 17, 1863, where he was wounded, and was brevetted major for gallant and meritorious conduct. He was also present at Cold Harbor and Trevillian Station, and at Cedar Creek on Oct. 19, 1864, when he was brevetted lieutenant colonel. From January to July, 1865, as colonel of the Twelfth Pennsylvania cavalry he was in command of a brigade and encountered Mosby's guerrillas at Harmony, Va. On March 13, 1865, he was brevetted colonel in the regular army and brigadier general of volun teers. After serving as assistant instructor of infantry tactics in the United States Military academy and in the freedmen's lureau in New Orleans, he was assigned to duty in the west. On Dec. 26, 1868, he was promoted major of the Seventh cavalry, and in 1876 he was engaged with Gen. George A. Custer in the expedition against the Sioux under Sitting Bull. He was in the action of the Little Big Horn when his brave commander, Custer, with nearly his entire regiment, were slaugh-tered by the savages, and it was charged that only by gross cowardice Reno saved his own life. He failed to bring his portion of the command up to support Custer when the lat-ter was surprised by the wily Sioux. Subsequently, in 1880, Major Reno was dismissed the service, on the finding of a court martial, for conduct unbecoming an officer. More lately he figured in the newspapers in connection with a divorce suit. Since his expulsion from the army he had resided at Harrisburg, Pa., and at Washington.

Interest in the story that treasure was buried many years ago in a hill in Kansas City is being revived there by the proposition of a railroad company to grade the district for a depot. The money was hidden, the story goes, by a Mexican gambler, and several un-successful searches have been made for it, one in 1873 by a Mexican.

Remarkable "Deal" in Coal. A coal dealer in the suburbs of Boston, relates The Budget, was called upon at his office by a poor, hardworking woman, and requested to send a basket of coal to her home. "We do not deliver so small a quantity," was the merchant's reply. "It is our in-variable rule never to deliver less than a quarter of a ton."

"But I cannot pay for so much," was the pitiful confession, "and I have left my little children at home in a fireless room. What am I to do?" "Well," returned the dealer, a kindlier light beaming in his eye, "I can-not depart from my rules as to the quantity." Then, turning to his clerk, he continued: "John, have a quarter of a ton of coal sent to the woman's address as soon as possible." "But I cannot pay for so much,"

she expostulated. "Talready understand that you can't, so I will charge it to the children. Give vourself no more uneasiness about the debt than they will be liable to do. Good morning.
