Chicago's Favorite.

The holiday engagement of Otis Skinner at the Grand Opera House was signalized by two immense audiences on Christmas Day (Monday last) and there is every indication that "The Harvester" will play to one of the record runs of even that highly prosperous theatre. There can be little surprise at this as Mr. Skinner has long been a decided favorite in Chicago, where he began his independent steller career a full decade ago, and where he has almost invariably made his first production of new plays. In this latest and greatest success of his he is given exceptional opportunity to display the thorough scope of his artistic talent, the role of the gipsy wanderer-an absolutely novel footlight creation, different from any characterization that has yet been offered of the Roman typeaffording him a notable gamut from light-hearted comedy and debonair humor to poetic fantasy and the deeper emotional feeling. The third climax in particular—in which the careless rogue of a gipsy suddenly awakens to the responsibility of his life and takes to his arms his sonevokes nightly ovations of applause. It represents one of the highest achievements in the art of acting that has ever been accomplished by this admirable enactor of romatic roles, and is in its skillfully sustained sequence of psychological transitions a notable example of versatility and finesse. The entire production, with its beautiful stage pictures, its sylvan charm, its unique French-Canadian setting, its idealized presentation of a poetic vagabond's life in contrast to the quaint realism of the present type about him, and its humanly appealing dramatic story of a love romance begun with the desertion of an over-confiding sweetheart, constitutes a delightful evening's entertainment, full of theatrical novelty and poetic inspiration. The New Year's Day matinee will be given at the Grand upon Monday afternoon in order to accommodate out-of-town theatre-goers especially.

Items of Information for the Guidance of Seekers After Health and Beauty. The woman who asks about caring for her hair will have gained some knowledge if she remembers a few don'ts. Don't break your hair, nor irritate the scalp by using too many, or too heavy, hairpins. Don't use an iron on your hair any oftener than is necessary. Don't use too fine a comb upon your hair; it breaks it, snarls it, and is absolutely hair; it dries it, coarsens it, and makes it split, says the Boston Post.

Cultivate air-hunger. We should learn to be as hungry for fresh air as we are naturally thirsty for pure water. The old-fashioned ideas concerning stuffy living or bedrooms are now. forbe revived.

A clear skin is one of the essentials of good health and beauty, and nothing conduces more to this end than frequent baths and brisk rubbings. They will do much to keep the skin soft and the whole body vigòrous.

Are you always careful how the weight about heavy clothes.

Either morning or night is the best time for a cold water bath, or even a tepid one, but a hot water bath should be taken just before retiring, inasmuch as it is relaxing. Never bathe just before or after a hearty meal. Bathe after, instead of before, exercising, and bathe regularly every day.

Alum and myrrh are both good for the gums.

Sugar is the most effective of all fatproducing agents.

Elder-flower water is cooling to the face, besides being a gentle skin tonic. Wrinkles come from the relaxation of the facial muscles. Massage is the quickest and surest means of restoring the muscles to their normal condition.

The bristles of a toothbrush should not be too stiff; one in which the bristles are far apart is best, as such may be thoroughly cleaned.

The first step in physical culture is deep breathing.

BEES ON THE FARM.

But a Small Portion of the Farmers Are Engaged in the Raising of Honey.

In proportion to the population, the number of persons who keep bees is very small, says the Philadelphia Record, yet there is no branch of farming (for it should be connected with farming) more profitable at certain seasons than the keeping of bees. A good, strong colony in the midst of the busy season will collect and store four or five pounds or more fatal to it. Don't use soda upon your | of honey daily, the amount of work done by the bees depending upon the forage, and the strength of the colony. As soon as a colony become weak and incapable of defense it will be attacked by the stronger ones and robbed. Hence, in order to keep each hive up to its fullest capacity, the beekeeper must provide tunately, out of date, and should never | plenty of comb foundation, in order to lessen the work to be performed, and sow such crops as will afford honey later in the season, when the flowers have finished blossoming.

The swarming process is nothing more than the departure of the old queen and her working bees, in order to abandon the hive to the younger queen and of your clothing is distributed? Have bees. By being on the alert, and hiving as much of it as possible suspended from | the swarms as they alight, the number the shoulders. Much energy needed for of colonies may be largely increased, other purposes is expended in carrying but the weak colonies seldom swarm. Moths usually attack the weak colonies, and only the stronger colonies are able to pass safely through the winter. The common bees may be gradually replaced with the Italian or Cyprian varieties, by removing the old queen and substituting a, new fertilized queen of either kind preferred. If she is carefully guarded in a small cage for a few days the bees soon recognize her, and in the course of a few months the old bees will all be dead and the new ones will be of the desired kind. The queen is compelled to lay numbers of eggs daily in order to supply the great loss constantly occurring by the destruction from birds, storms and other difficulties. They should be left plenty of honey for a winter supply, and the hives should be well protected from storms. What the beekeeper should aim to do is to sow such crops as will enable the bees to lay in a large supply of honey, and he can well afford to do so if he has a number of hives. At this season the bees find plenty to do in working on the flowers, but later the crop of buckwheat affords ample forage while it is in blossom. Enterprising beekeepers combine beekeeping and poultry raising, finding that a small piece of ground may in that manner return large profits. How to manage bees well cannot be explained in a single article. All who are interested Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Bay City, should first make themselves familiar with the details before beginning by consulting authorities on the subject. That beekeeping is a profitable occupation, however, has been demonstrated satisfactorily to all engaged.

Charity Party

The Happy-Go-Lucky Club will give a charity party Wednesday evening Jan. 41905, at the Pears-East-hall. The first part of the evening will be spent in games and music. Dancing from 10:30 until 12 o'clock, music furnished by the Buchanan orchestra. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

Tickets will be sold by each member of the club, As this is a very worthy object to raise money for the indigent poor of this village, we deem it the duty of every one able to do so, to buy as many tickets as they feel able. Should any one be overlooked, do not hesitate to apply at the door.

Everybody should turn out and make this a financial success as there is considerable suffering among our worthy poor, who will thus be relieved.

To Keep Fall Fruits.

BULKY FOOD FOR POULTRY

Hens Should Be Confined to Concentrated Rations.

A leading poultryman who met with success states that he made it a rule to feed his hens the same as he did his cows-that is, he fed grain, hay, One sees beautiful fur coats of all kinds ensilage, cooked roots, and added to with embroidered chamois vests and one the rations of the hens ground meat and bone, good, clean bone-meal also broidered chamois facings. Strange being given to the cows. There is no reason why poultry should be fed almost exclusively with concentrated to match the costume, and one of the food. Such practice is not economical, is not the best mode, and is sometimes where is made of Persian lamb trimmed injurious. If horses and cows were kept on corn or ground grain to the exclusion of that which is bulky, they would soon fail to give satisfaction to their owners, and this is so well known to farmers that none of them attempt to keep stock without supplying them grass in summer and hay in winter. The hens will eat grass, and they will also eat hay in winter, provided it is cropped for them, and especially if it is steeped in water and softened. They prefer coarse food to grain exclusively, and they lay oftener Arrive with such food, and keep in health. The hens on farms where food is given but three or four times a week can derive all they wish by consuming the herbage of the fields. Some farmers sow rye in the fall and oats in the spring for the hens, and find that it pays them to do so. The gizzard works in its grinding capacity to its best advantage when the hens are provided with a variety of food, and better digestion is thereby secured. It is cheaper to use bulky food with grain than to confine the hens to concentrated materials, and they will produce more eggs by such treatment.-

A Flint farmer is experiencing some hard luck brought about by peculiar circumstances. He recently had a large number of sheep injured by dogs. In removing the flock from one part of his farm to another it passed from one township to another. Many of the sheep died in the latter place and the township officers in both townships refuse to adjust the loss; one set because the animals were not injured within the area their jurisdiction and the others on the ground that the sheep did not die in their township.

Few acts stand out more heroic than that of Capt. James Jackson, who won everlasting fame in the winry seas of Lake Superior. The own ers of the freighter W. F. Sauber sent her out from Duluth with one last load of iron ore, with Capt. W. E. Morris in command. It was late in November, and winter was setting in with a number of fierce gales from the north. Off Whitefish Point the Sauber was caught in one of these storms. All one night she weathered the gale, but with morning there came a blinding sleet with the fierce wind and intense cold, that froze the spray as soon as it touched the ship. All that forenoon one might have supposed it was night, with the sun a pale moon above. During those hours the "little ice devils" began to weigh the Sauber down. The crew attempted to clear away the ice as it froze, and lighten the ship, but no human being could live in the storm. Upon the lakes, just as upon the sea, there are many strange things that happen. On that day there were just two vessels on Lake Surperior, and fate decreed that they should meet off Whitefish Point. While the men on the Sauber were preparing for death the steamer Yale was tearing her way through the gale toward the Soo; and passing within an eighth of a mile of the Sauber, Captain Jackson sighted the sinking ship. Then occurred that act which won for him a gold medal, and a heavy purse contributed to by half of the seamen of the lakes. Although at the time Captain Jackson was having a hard time in keeping his own vessel above water, he immediately brought his vessel to. For hours the boat continued to toss in the trough of the sea, which was too heavy for small boats to attempt a rescue in. Night came, and the vessels drifted within a stone's throw of one another. The Yale was still comparatively free of ice, but the heavily laden oreboat was sinking inch by inch. With the coming of morning, when the Yale might have been safely in port, it was found that she, too, was gradually settling, and that the Sauber would not live an hour longer. Captain Jackson at once called for those men who were willing to risk their lives in an attempt at rescue, and went out himself in the first boat. If bravery was ever rewarded, it was then. Every

John F. Rutter was compelled by his sister, Mrs. Hattie Monroe, of Bronson, to prove his identity in the probate court in Kalamazoo, Friday, before he was allowed to come into possession of $400 left by his mother eighteen years ago. When Rutter was 3 years old, and soon after his mother's death, he was taken by his father to Martin Ferry, O., and a year ater to an orphans' home at Richmond, Ind. He stayed there until he was 14 years old, and was then bound out to a farmer at Martin Ferry. When he became of age he came to Kalamazoo to look up his relatives. He had not seen his sister since he was taken away from the city, and she was not sure of his identity and so Rutter was compelled to send to Martin Ferry for papers to prove it, The proof he made was satisfactory to the court, and he was allowed to take the money.

Edward Donahue, the alleged murderer of Aminte Northrop, of Benton Harbor on October 5, was arrested at the home of his brother, John Donahue, at Camalis about nine miles from Syracuse, Saturday, after a stiff fight with the officers, during which it was necessary to beat him into submission. Sheriff Shipman, of Kalamazoo county, has been on the lookout for some trace of the man since the crime was committed and during a recent visit to Detroit, the sheriff learned that Donahue had relatives near Syracuse. He gave Miss Anna Donahue, a niece of the fugitive, money with which to go to the home of his relatives in New York state and pretend to befriend him in order to learn just where he was. This plan succeeded so well that the capture was easily probable that this will be divided between the young woman and the
