Tuesday evening the commencement exercises of the graduating class were held in Rough's Opera House. The house was so well filled that late comers were compelled to stand.

The stage of the opera house was very handsomely decorated, it being enclosed with blue bunting with an occasional stripe of gold. The bunting over head was of white and when the lights were turned on above, the light shown through giving it a perfect golden color. Across the back of the drapery in letters of gold appeared "Class of '05," while above the center of the stage was a shield in blue and gold with "B. H. S. '05."

The class colors were carried out all the way though, the programs being printed with gold ink on pale blue paper. Ferns and wild daisies completed the decorations. Each member of the class delivered their number in a manner that deserves commendation. They held the closest attention of the audience.

The class prophecy and the gifts by the Gifforian created considerable amusement. Mr. A. A. Worthington presented the diplomas to the graduates with a few well chosen words. The music furnished by T. Mack Walker's orchestra also the singing by the Chorus were exceptionally good and much appreciated. Following is the program.

After the commencement exercises the alumni gave a banquet to the graduates in the Maccabee and Woodmen halls. Supt. W. L. Mercer was toastmaster. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. P. A. Grafton, president of the Alumni, and was responded to by Guy Huff, president of the class of '05. Mrs. H. O. Perrott rendered a fine soprano solo. Rev. E. Frye, of St. Joseph, a member of the class of 1894 responded to the toast "Lead Kindly Light."

Miss Beulah Jenks rendered a piano solo, after which Miss Theoda Treat responded to, "What is so Rare as a Day in June. Louis Runner gave a Trombone solo, and Miss Mabel Currier answered the toast, "Auld Lange Syne."

In closing all joined in singing "Auld Lange Syne." T. Mack Walker's orchestra also played during the banquet.

ADDRESS TO GRADUATES

Baccalaureate Sermon Preached By Rev. Halmhuber

SUNDAY EVENING JUNE 16

Continuation Of Address Given in The Last Issue

In all the universe we find nothing done by halves. Every part has its counterpart, the eye receives light, the ear sound, the brain charges the nerves and they the muscles. Every positive has its negative; we need only to think of the orders of male and female, darkness and light, cold and heat, action and reaction. Likewise every want finds its means for satisfaction, thirst finds water; hunger, food; loneliness, friends; exposure, shelter; doubt, faith; ignorance, knowledge; poverty, riches.

The creator has put up in this universe incalculable forces, and inestimable riches to supply the wants of earth's creatures, most of all man. But these forces and treasures must be found and applied by the creatures that need them. Earth's forces must be harnessed and its fields of treasures developed. This immediately calls for an army of scientists, engineers, miners, carpenters, cooks, and an endless variety of occupations. The human soul, also comes in for its share of attention and calls for teachers and preachers. In his infinite wisdom, the Creator endows each person with a disposition and talents tempered and adjusted to fill one place in these want columns. The person who gets into the wrong calling is in all life a misfit, a three cornered peg in a round hole. All criminals are persons who have either missed their calling or have proven untrue to it.

Would we be successful in life, it is therefore absolutely essential that we know ourself, and realizing our peculiar fitness for a certain line of work, pursue it with all our powers. Here education is of inestimable value, for it draws out and develops our faculties, showing our strong and weak adaptations.

Grant was a remarkable illustration of this. With books he was very dull. When at West Point he had no fondness for the soldiers profession. He was careless in dress and etiquette, and treated shambattles with indifference. He graduated twenty first in a class of thirty-nine. Not a very promising record for the man who was to be one of the foremost generals of modern times. In 1854, he resigned a captains commission a became a farmer. In this venture, he was unsuccessful and in 1860 applied for a position with his father and brother who were in the leather business in Galena, Ill. Here his success was not brilliant. When the Civil war broke out, Grant was one of the first to enlist. A strong hand, a level head, a fearless heart, a man of quick decisive action was needed to lead the armies of the union and plan her campaigns. That one was found in the man who graduated twenty first in his class, who had failed at farming, and who had been only an indifferent soldier. Through all the years a great man had been waiting for a great occasion, and now it was at hand. Grant had at last found his place and proving a tremendous success, became the idol of the American people.

III. Another element in Christ's career was perseverance to the end. Every calling has its discouraging features, even the tramps. The greater the trust the greater the trials. There is a sense in which the life of the successful man is like that of Hannibal, it is a struggle with-perilous difficulty. All great deeds are accomplished in the face of opposition. If a man would possess a fortune, it must be accumulated by labor and thrift. If he would reach higher attainment in art or learning it must be acquired by long and patient application. World wide esteem and honor cometh their possessor by the slow process of living an honored life. All distinguished achievements of whatsoever kind must be sought, and as one has said, "agonized for." It is often necessary for us to march over frozen mountains, through blinding storms and trackless ways to our success in the sunny valleys beyond. Thus the life of the great Carthaginian general may be an inspiration to all who like him will have a purpose in life and follow it to the end.

Perhaps no man ever had greater opposition than Christ. Read the story of his life and see how, not only enemies but friends sought to lead him astray by forcing upon him the temporal throne of David. But nothing could swerve him. He had a great purpose in life, he was exerting every energy of body and soul to make it win, and he knew that Heaven stood by him. Sometimes things go wrong with us, friends forsake and fortunes fail. In such times nothing is more strengthening and gives such grim determination as the consciousness that heaven supports with the words, be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.

It is because of a lack of perseverance that so many fail and because of its possession that most people win. One had better master a single profession than tinker at all. Having found your profession persevere in it. It may make you sweat but all hardships will be forgotten in the hour of triumph. Timour, the conqueror, being hard bested took shelter in the ruins of an old house and there saw a white ant trying to climb the wall with a kernel of corn thrice its size. Seventy times did the animal try before it succeeded. The warrior was stung to like perseverance, renewed his engagements and carried off the prize.

Who here know not of John Wannamaker? Who is this man? When the Civil war broke out he sought to enlist but was refused because of his lungs. The day Fort Sumpter was fired upon, he in company with Mr. Brown, who later became his brother-in-law, opened a small clothing store in New York city. Though the business was insignificant at first, energy and unceasing attention to details caused it to grow with such rapidity that it was soon admitted to be the largest retail clothing business in America. Other ventures followed until finally Mr. Wannamaker conceived the idea of a great general store. In 1876 the establishment at 13th Market St. N. Y. city, was opened. This marked a new epoch in business methods, which has since been largely copied in the great cities of the United States, Mr. Wannamaker's perseverance won.

President Garfield in a Washington address spoke these words, "Thirty years ago a boy was struggling through the snows of Chenango Valley, trying to hire himself to a blacksmith. He succeeded and learned his trade, but did more. He took it into his head that he could make a better hammer than any other man had made. He devoted himself to the task for over a quarter of a century. He studied the chemistry of metals, the strength of materials, the philosophy of form. He studied failures. Each broken hammer taught him a lesson. There was no part of the process that he did not master. He taxed his wit to invent machines to perfect and cheapen his processes. No improvement in working steel or iron escaped his notice. What may not twenty-five years of effort accomplish when concentrated on a single object? He earned success, and now when his name is stamped on a steel hammer, it is his note, his bond, his integrity embodied in steel. The spirit of the man is in each hammer, and the work, like the man is unrivaled. Mr. Maydole is now acknowledged to have made the best hammer in the world. Even the sons of Thor across the sea admit it. It is no small achievement to do one thing better than any other man in the world has done it." But it meant 25 years of perseverance.

Sir Chas. Napier, when in India, encountered an army of thirty-five thousand Belooches with two thousand men of whom only four hundred were Europeans. He charged them in the center, up a high bank, and for three hours the battle was undecided. At last the Belooches turned and fled. It is this sort of pluck, tenacity, and determined perseverance that wins the soldiers' battles, and indeed every battle. It is the one neck nearer that wins the race and shows the blood, the one pull more of the oar that shows the be-fitness of the fellow, as Oxford men say; it is the one march more that wins the campaign, the five minutes more persistent courage that wins the fight. Though your force be less than another's, you equal and out-master your opponent if you continue it longer and concentrate it more.

IV. The fourth essential of a successful life is its triumph.

Christ's life ended in seeming failure. He was captured by his enemies, condemned and crucified. But death was his greatest triumph. His life work was done, man was redeemed, the way to God was open. Though crucified by men he was honored and glorified by God. Today, after nearly twenty centuries have elapsed, he has been enthroned in the hearts and lives of millions of people, he has brought us a high degree of civilization and is being daily more recognized, honored and glorified.

What then is success? In school, success is to get one's lessons and improve bodily, intellectually and morally under the process of education. In professional life, success is to hold our position, win the case, save our patient, build up our business and support ourselves and those dependent on us by the honest wages of honest toil. In the best sense success is happiness in well doing and well being, with no thought of mammon or power. When men go to battle, victory is success and defeat is failure. When a vessel starts for Liverpool success is to reach that port, with baggage, passenger and crew uninjured. To enter any other port is failure, though the vessel may have crossed the ocean. When a man starts out in life with a high calling and a noble purpose in his heart to do good and be good, his life is a failure if it descend to a miserable scramble for money and office getting. Yes, though he win money and get the office, it is a failure if, at the same time he sacrifice his calling and quench his noble purpose.

But to the conclusion. You are now to engage in life's active work or complete some higher school of learning, to be ever better qualified for life. There are undoubtedly rocks ahead and they will be rugged. The only thing to do is to keep on climbing. There is room on top.

The hardships of the climb will dwindle into little specks as you stand at the apex, above the clouds success, breathing the atmosphere of satisfaction.

It is told of a certain Macedonian king, that in the thick of the fight he retired to a neighboring city on the excuse of sacrificing to Hercules. His adversary, Emilius, likewise implored the help of the gods, but at the same time plunged into the fray, sword in hand, and won the laurels of victory. Take God with you into life's fray. He will give you courage and stay your soul.

Hit of the Summer Season

"It Happened in Nordland" after three weeks at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, proves to be the distinct hit of that city's summer season. The beautiful music, refined fun and unprecedented wealth of scenery and costumes, with the 100 or more attractive chorus-girls have drawn to the theater as many people as it will hold each evening, and the run promises to exceed in popularity those of the "Wizard of Oz" and "Babes in Toyland." Mr. Barrett Eastman in the Journal refers to it as "A Hashed dream of sensuous beauty, interrupted frequently with comicalities and nonsense such as only dreams provide—it is incredible that anything can be more splendid and beautiful than "It Happened in Nordland."

There are two matinees each week at the Grand—that of Wednesday being at popular prices.

"Summer Vacations"

In planning for your Summer Vacation do not overlook the Nineteenth Annual Niagara Falls Excursion, to be run by the I. I. & I. Ry., on Wednesday, August, 9th, 1905. Through trains without change from all I. I. & I. Ry., stations; leave after dinner on that date, and arrive at the Falls for breakfast on Thursday morning.

Cheap fares by lake to Thousand Islands, Alexandria Bay, down the St. Lawrence River, and other nearby resorts. You can get more of a ride, see more and have more real pleasure for less money than in any other known direction.

An Interesting Contest

The RECORD naming of W. D. House's automobile as announced through the columns of this paper has caused a great amount of interest in the machine. The contest closed last night and we give our readers a list of the names handed in.

Harry Weaver is the lucky prize winner, the name he suggested being selected by Mr. House as the name to be given the machine. The name Mr. Weaver gave in, being Auto-Urban.

Following are the other names suggested:

The Arlington	Wolverine
The Meron	The Fly-away
Buchanan House Car	Cosmopolitan
The Tourist	Flash-light
Movius Domus	Tillie Herr
Meteor	U-may-go

The Goblins	The Tramp
Klondike King or K. K.	Big Boy
Leander	Big Four
Monitor	Monarch
Whit-eller	Yonkon
The Peerless No. 1	Pro-Reddita
Housemobile

Mr. House received several names besides the ones given above, but as they were not on the regular coupon, printed in the RECORD he could not consider them. The machine is all painted and as soon as the name can be painted on it, will be ready to go into commission.

The band concert last Wednesday evening was well attended and very much enjoyed by the crowd. Niles sent over a good sized delegation, there being eighteen in one wagon alone.

There is some talk among the business men of having a Firemen's and Band tournament this summer. If a little effort is put forth we can have a first class tournament. Let's do a little hustling.

Mr. C. G. Whitney has disposed of his interest in the Michigan Motor & Machine Co. and has resigned his position as secretary of the company. Mr. Whitney does not state just what line he will take up, but says that probably he will move to Detroit.

The Ladies Circle of the G. A. R. and the Ladies Aid Society of the Larger Hope church will hold a picnic at the home of Mrs. Geo. W. Rough, next Wednesday. All are requested to meet at the post office at 9 o'clock, where rigs will be provided to take the party to Mrs. Rough's.

Supt. Mercer has received notice from the University of Michigan that our high school has been placed on the approval list for a term of three years. This is as long a term as is allowed any school and speaks well for the high standard and work done here.

Hemstreet—that's all.

Elaborate arrangements are being made for the musicale to be given next Tuesday evening by Miss Lula Bush, at Rough's opera house. The best musical talent in town has been secured to take part on the program, as will also the Buchanan band. The price of admission will be 15 and 20 cents. Reserved seats 25 cents at Skeet's. A rare treat is promised all lovers of good music.

C. H. Godfrey, of Benton Harbor, Wednesday morning sent his check for $25 to Chief of the Fire Department Ed Montains in acknowledgement of the excellent services rendered by the department last Monday morning when the Godfrey Canning factory burned. The department worked hard to save as much of the property as possible, and Mr. Godfrey wished in a substantial way to show his appreciation of the heroic efforts made.

Dying of Famine

is, in its torments, like dying of consumption. The progress of consumption, from the beginning to the very end, is a long torture, both to victim and friends. "When I had consumption in its first stage," writes Wm. Myers of Cearfoss, Md., "after trying different medicines and a good doctor, in vain I at last took Dr. King's New Discovery, which quickly and perfectly cured me." Prompt relief and sure cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, etc. Positively prevents pneumonia. Guaranteed at any drug store, price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

No Secret About It

It is no secret, that for cuts, burns, ulcers, fever sores, sore eyes, boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "It didn't take long to cure a bad sore I had, and it is all O. K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Tex, 25c at any drug store.

NO CIRCUS PARADE

Barnum & Bailey Have Concluded To Abandon The Street Procession.

The management of the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth have announced that they will this season abandon the parade and relegate it to the "things passe" of the circus. The tremendous expense that is incurred by the transportation of so giant an enterprise in carrying the immense paraphernalia of the show itself has handicapped this wonderful show to such an extent that it has been fully decided to withdraw the old-time, "always late" parade, and place all efforts, energies and time in the sole entertainment for the people by giving them the marvelous acts of the present age, the greatest and most wonderful that money and brains can procure. In these advanced days of circism, programs as offered by the Barnum & Bailey Show, the stupendous acts presented are of such magnitude and remarkable mechanism that the time taken to place them for the exhibitions is of such value, the hurrying out of the parade would in every way interfere with the arrangements that are necessary for these unapproachable feature offerings. This new innovation by the big show will be the presentation of the most sensational, startling and stupendous free acts obtainable in the world—acts with international reputations—to entertain the people on the circus grounds before the show opens for the matinee; and these extraordinary exhibitions of unequalled excellence are to be given absolutely free, and thus it is the new idea, "No Parade" yet something entertaining and in keeping with the greatness of the Barnum & Bailey Show which is to exhibit at South Bend on June 30.

Huge Task

It was a huge task, to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Ia., but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone, I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache, and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver, stomach, guaranteed by all druggists; price 50c.

could cry "It is finished," my work. The purpose of life expressed was accomplished. His was success and triumph. When Caesar returned from his Gallic wars he described his whole campaign in three words, "Veni, Vidi, Vici." I came, I saw, I conquered. And so I trust that with you, when we have completed the active campaign of this life and are seated in the old arm chair or perhaps have joined the innumerable throng, can say not only, "I came into this life, nor I saw what eye could see, but in my sphere of action I conquered and left a rich heritage to the world."

Forty years ago a mother and six children stood by the grave side of the husband and father. He had been poor and his efforts barely sufficed to keep the family comfortable, but now the poor woman was left alone to provide for her children to educate them and do what she could for their start in life. In the dark and saddened home she laid before the older ones the difficulties with which they were surrounded and told them they must make every effort to aid themselves and her in the support of the family. Brave sons and heroic daughters gained such employment as they could. Their earnings were saved and expended with jealous care. One after another they acquired a good education, were fitted for the work of life, and won honorable places for themselves. Two years ago they all met on Thanksgiving day to celebrate the eightieth birthday of their aged mother. Two preachers, one preacher's wife, a lawyer, a physician's wife and a farmer, with their families, sat at meat in the old homestead. In the course of the conversation which drifted back to the early days of want, deprivation and struggle, one of the sons asked the mother if her life, with all its sorrows had been worth living. The old mother, looking around on the throng said, "Yes, John, well worth living. There were hard days and great deprivation but I have almost forgotten them in these last days of comfort and luxury. You have all been so good and so helpful to me that I seem to have lived a very happy life. Yes, John, I am content, my life has been worth living."

Here was indeed a successful life, a grand life full of sublimest courage self-denial, faith and devotion. What if it were lived in obscurity, amid pinching poverty and grim want? The mother is happier in seeing those manly sons and womanly daughters than Napoleon at his greatness in the contemplation of conquered Italy, Ansterlitz and Jena. The King of Kings will crown that lovely New England mother while Napoleon will be despised and forgotten at St. Helena. The life of the widow was better, braver and more admirable than that of the man who wrecked the heart of Josephine. The life of the First Emperor was a wretched failure, that of the aged mother a great success.

Genuine excellency is in no wise measured by one's popularity. It is better to be unknown than dishonored. It is better to win honorable success in a small field of endeavor than to have one's name on every lip but sullied with disgraceful action. It is better to be the most unknown farmer in the most secluded part of Michigan and carry the consciousness of a life devoted to legitimate pursuits, than to have all the fame of Caligula or Nero with their unblushing wickedness and unutterable tyranny. They were powerful rulers and the greatest of all ancient states trembled when they spoke, their praises were uttered by a million willing subjects, but they were not successful men. The world has long since condemned them to the category of gigantic failure. They did not fully succeed in their outrageous purposes of meanness and wickedness. Their names are a blot upon the pages of history and their deeds too black for human language to portray. The immense popularity which they once enjoyed as a nothing compared to the infamy in which their names are now engulfed.

The highest ambition of some people seems to be to add a long string of titles to their names. These are all right if a man is worthy of them and gets them from a good institution, but sometimes I am reminded of the British officer who says, one day he saw a volunteer soldier out for drill who had an extraordinary number of medals pinned on his coat. "He evidently felt flattered at my notice," declares the officer, "and I said to him, You seem to have seen considerable service. In what war have you been engaged?" He replied, "Bless you! I have never been in a war. My father and I were awarded those medals at agricultural shows for a special breed of pigs for which we are famous."

Deal with realities. Use common sense. Lay off all shams. Wear all the medals you please but be sure that they are honorable.

If a man can feel at the bar of his own integrity that he has used his powers to the best possible purpose, that he has won in the conflict by the use of honest methods and honest toil there is no greater happiness for him on this side of the grave. But on the other hand he cannot say, "I have done my best," no golden treasure, no widespread fame, no hours of ease or home of luxury can make that life successful.

To this class of eleven I would yet say that I like your motto, "Climb though the rocks be rugged," I hope you will imbibe its spirit and follow its suggestion. But I cannot refrain from telling you of a little incident of the recent British expedition into Tibet, your motto suggests it. One day while on the march through the high mountains an indignant soldier, after hours of laborious climbing up the steep, never ending path, was heard to say to his comrade: Look here Bill, I've had enough of this. I was told as 'ow Tibet was a blooming tableland."

"So it is," replied his pal, "Can't you see, ye're climbing up one of the legs of 'hit."

I wish you success.
"What shall I do to gain eternal life?"
Discharge aright the simple dues with which each day is life?
Yea, with thy might.
The perfect scheme of action thou devise
Life will be fled,
While he who ever acts as conscience cries,
Shall live though dead."

Amen.

An Oxford woman who was unable to attend her church supper the other evening sent a dish of salad, and after the salad had been eaten sent word that she had placed the ten cents for her supper, had she attended in the salad dish. The money didn't turn up and everyone who partook of the salad is afraid he swallowed the coin and is looking forward to a case of appendicitis.

An Addison woman who had never heard of blood oranges took a dozen of the golden fruit home from the grocer's and found on cutting them open that every last one of them was blood red inside, instead of the yellow she was familiar with. Whereupon she dumped the whole dozen to the hogs. Then she went to the grocer and complained and now the whole town is laughing at her.

A tight-fisted grocer in an up-state town called on the editor of his local paper the other day and wanted him to raise a holler because agents for city grocery houses were going through the country taking orders for goods. The editor let him run on for awhile and then suggested that if he advertised in his local paper he might prevent the city men from cutting into his business.

Mayor Morrell, of Charlotte, has devised a fine scheme to keep the need for economy in city affairs constantly before the eyes of the councilmen. He has had blackboards placed around the walls of the council chamber and on these is set forth at all times the exact financial standing of the city and of each fund.

It is a little earlier in the year than our forefathers issued theirs, but be that as it may, the Inlay City Times man has issued his declaration of independence. Hereafter, he vows no fish stories "go" in his paper without they are sworn to, backed up by eye witnesses who will make affidavit that they were sober at the time.

A new "bug house" is being built at Harbor Beach. The poor taxpayer however, need not be alarmed, this one is only for the extermination before shipment of bugs and worms in the seed peas which are grown in great quantities in that section.
