TREASURER

Died Tuesday Evening at Grand Rapids, in the Arms of His Wife

WILL BE DEEPLY MOURNED

By a Loving Wife, Two Children, and the Entire County

In the arms of his wife and surrounded by his associates of the West Michigan State fair association, Alvah Sherwood, superintendent of the horse department of the fair died at the U. B. A. hospital at 9:40 o'clock Tuesday night. Less than a week before Mr. Sherwood was injured while leading a horse in the cavalcade of the fair, and from the injuries that he received in the accident he died. Not since the time of the accident had there been much hope for his recovery.

E. K. Warren, of Three Oaks, one of Mr. Sherwood's closest personal friends, was at the bedside of the dying man and he took charge of the arrangements for the funeral.

It was a pathetic scene that was enacted in the chamber of death. Mr. Sherwood, always a staunch Christian, a man in every sense of the word, the victim of an accident in the big exposition in which he was interested so deeply, breathed his last in calmness and with an abiding faith in the future.

William H. Anderson, president of the West Michigan fair, said: "Alvah Sherwood was as good a man in every way as one would wish to meet. He was always a gentleman in all that the word implies and I feel the loss personally. I know that my sentiments will be echoed by all those connected with the West Michigan fair association."

Lester J. Rindge, vice president of the fair association, said: "Mr. Sherwood was one of nature's noblemen. He was a man all through, and one who was respected by everyone, not only as a business man, but as a friend. He was a man whom we as well as the community in which he lived exceedingly regret to lose."

The people of Berrien county were shocked to hear the death of Mr. Sherwood. The encouraging reports from the sick room on Monday had given hope that the injured man would recover and the news came as a shock. Everywhere is heard expression of praise for the life of the dead man and regret at his untimely death.

The county offices closed yesterday and Judge Coolidge, Sheriff Tennant, County Clerk Miners, Register Dodd, Prosecuting Attorney White, Court Stenographer Atkinson, Deputy Treasurer Schultz, Probate Register Roland E. Barr and T. L. Wilkinson will go to the funeral at Three Oaks. Word has been sent to Probate Judge Ellsworth, who is attending a state meeting at Flint, and it is expected that he will run across the state to attend the funeral.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the Congregational church in Three Oaks, the church where the deceased had been a leading member for years and where he was assistant to Superintendent E. K. Warren in the Sunday school. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Diehl, pastor of the Three Oaks church, assisted by Rev. H. S. Roblee, under whose preaching Mr. Sherwood worshipped after moving to St. Joseph.

The remains were shipped direct from Grand Rapids to Three Oaks today. The family consists of a wife and two children. Mrs. Sherwood was with her husband at the time of his death, while the two children, Mary, a daughter of 18, and Emery, aged 14, were in St. Joseph. They left Wednesday morning for the grief-stricken home in Three Oaks. Death was rather unexpected and the children were not sent for.

To prepare for the worst and to arrange that the business of the county should not be affected in any way in case of his death, last Monday Mr. Sherwood appointed Carl J. Schultz his deputy and authorized him to take full charge of the office of county treasurer.

The board of supervisors will appoint a successor to Mr. Sherwood, as they appointed a successor to Mr. Gard. Mr. Schultz was a candidate before the board for the appointment at that time and was a close contestant for the place with William W. McCracken. Although no candidates have announced themselves, it is believed that the friends of Mr. Schultz will urge his candidacy for the place. He comes from New Buffalo, the adjoining township of the late Mr. Sherwood, and he is conversant with the affairs of the office. Other candidates are looked for. It is said that Will H. Weber, who made an ideal treasurer in Benton Harbor and who was a candidate before the convention which nominated Mr. Sherwood, will be a candidate for the appointment. E. N. Matrau, the Bainbridge candidate for treasurer before the last republican convention, will probably enter the race. Mr. Matrau was one of the leading candidates for the nomination, and made a very strong showing.

SEPTEMBER, 29, 1905.

It would seem that fear as to the ability of the United States to hold its own in the markets of the world under existing tariff laws must be derived from some source other than recent experience in that direction. The recently completed footing for the past year's trade show that for the first time in our history the one-and-one-half-billion dollar limit has been passed. This enormous total represents the sales of American products to other countries, and not only distances the best records of the foremost of our competitors but far surpasses all former records of our own country.

In a recent compilation showing the increased cost of living in the United States throughout the past year as compared with some former years, it is noted that farm products form the principle items of increase. Chickens, butter, eggs and cheese, show the marked advance, and that seems to be an increase in value and price in a direction thought most desirable by those who regard the farmer's well-doing as the basis of all prosperity. The statement which accompanies the compilation referred to, and which is vouched for by the United States bureau of labor, that all wages have advanced and the hours of labor at the same time somewhat shortened, seems to make it only fair that the products of the farm should have an increased value.

Order of Secretary.

The funeral services of the late Miss Fleta McFallon were held at her home on Front street, Wednesday morning, and was largely attended by a circle of friends and relatives. The floral tributes were numerous and elaborate. The services were conducted by the Rev. Douglass, of the Methodist church. Several very touching selections were rendered by Mrs. W. L. Mercer, Miss Stella Phelps and Messrs John W. and Joseph P. Beistle. Mrs. Emma Knight presided at the organ. Interment in Oak Ridge cemetery. No obituary.

Not a cider mill in southwestern Michigan is in operation this fall. This is the statement made by the senior member of the firm of George Dennis & Sons, of Kalamazoo, Mich., who last year manufactured 68,000 gallons of cider and this year will not start up their mill because of the great shortage in the apple crop. He says that he has been unable to secure even the poorest grade of apples. He says he doesn't think the apple crop in this district will be ten per cent of last year's crop. Cold weather last spring, he says, killed the blossoms. Local growers assert that the price of vinegar is advancing on account of the shortage in the cider and the poor prospects.

The weather of the past week has been generally favorable for fall harvest work, and seeding and germination of winter wheat and rye. Moderately heavy rains at the beginning of the week retarded bean harvest and slightly damaged some of the crop, but put the soil in splendid condition for seed germination. The latter part of the week was warm and bright and all field work progressed rapidly.

The bulk of the corn crop is well cared, well matured and mostly in shock. Buckwheat has been mostly secured in good condition. Bean harvest is nearing completion in all sections and the crop, as a whole, is a good one and has been secured with very little damage. Potato blight has increased and the crop which is now being dug shows considerable rot in the tubers. Sugar beets continue to do well and are in generally a promising condition.

Wheat and rye seeding are generally well advanced in all counties of the lower peninsula and germination is reported as excellent. Pasturage is good in all counties, unusually so for this season of the year. Apples are scarce.

The New Musical Extravaganza

Julian Mitchell's production of "Alice and the Eight Princesses," the new musical extravaganza for which Victor Herbert supplied the music and Glen MacDonough the book, continues to immense business at the Grand Opera house each night and the Wednesday and Saturday matinees. This delightful musical play with its beautiful music, abundance of pretty girls, elaborate and magnificent stage settings, handsome costumes, witty and bright book, is now in the second of its limited-four weeks' stay.

The public has been led to expect much at the hands of that wizard of stagecraft, Julian Mitchell, and with each succeeding production his work is watched with a more critical eye. In "Alice and the Eight Princesses" he has not only succeeded in surpassing in elegance and detail his past great successes, "The Wizard of Oz," "Babe in Toyland," and "It Happened in Nordland," but he has created a standard that he himself will find it a difficult task to outrival in future productions, as it is safe to say that in "Alice and the Eight Princesses" Julian Mitchell has provided a spectacle that far overshadows anything of its kind ever seen on a Chicago stage. Not only does the new musical play provide enjoyment for the older ones, but the little folks will find much merriment in watching and following the antics of The March Hare, The White Rabbit, The Dormouse found in the "Alice in Wonderland" book, and the trick horse, which are feature of this production. Sam Chip and Eva Davenport have made positive successes, as also have Bessie Wynn, Lotta Faust, Bessie Clayton, Smith and Cook, D. L. Don, and the many others that furnish fun and beauty to this really production.

Hard Case For Officers

Obstacles Insurmountable in Tidey Case, Although the Officers Have Worked to a Disadvantage

Vague rumors are heard in the highways and by-ways in and about Sodus and Eau Claire, the homes of Bert Tidey and Wm. Griffin, the lads accused and held at Elkhart awaiting trial for the murder of Robert Noddruff, August 24. Some sort of vengeance is sworn at the officers who are working the case and the eye witnesses who gave startling evidence at the preliminary hearing a week ago at Elkhart.

The officials of northern Indiana who have the case in charge are the best judges of the merits of the case as it stands, and they are frank in stating that the case is one of the most perplexing and tangled; that they have had to go farther and work harder to secure evidence in this case than in any they have ever before had to deal with.

Chief of Police Silvers, of Elkhart, states that they knew absolutely nothing at the time of the finding of the body in the hydraulic race at Elkhart. Since then they have been able to collect some information that will in all likelihood tend to prove very damaging to the defendants. The fact that there is a disposition to cover certain things of vital importance and tell false stories about the officers and giving others the impression that any statement will be enlarged two-fold, has made the work slow and hard. One witness even asked that his evidence be taken down so that it could not be misconstrued later, stating at the time that he knew the disposition of the friends of the accused.

With all the difficulties the officers had they were reluctant to make any arrests until they had consulted counsel from both states. The fact that so many took the step they did in this important case is another reason why the authorities counted the case of more than ordinary interest. After consulting the attorneys some time passed before making the arrests. A great deal of work was done and the testimony submitted to the prosecutor of the 34th judicial district of Indiana, who issued the warrants.

The Berrien county sheriff was apprised of the absence of the boy the morning following his disappearance at Elkhart and Deputy Sheriff Ferry of Pipestone went to Elkhart on the case. His work called him to Elkhart because it was there that Robert was separated from his comrade in the train after the hot box car had been set out. Ferry notified the local authorities of the strange disappearance, and owing to the fact that the boy was perfectly sober and of a kind disposition, much concern was manifested by the officers and the people who knew the lost boy. Search was made in all the hospitals and every place in Elkhart, and foul play was suspected from the start. The river was patrolled and a watchful eye was kept on the dam and wheels. Soon after Ferry departed for home on the following Monday the body of Robert Noddruff was found in the river, some ten or fifteen rods from the tracks where the train was switched and where he was last seen alive with three young men, one of whom was identified as Bert Tidey, following him toward the door of the coach.

The feeling about Eau Claire is at high pitch and has been in an uproar ever since the finding of the body. Noddruff's friends and acquaintances around Dowagiac and Keeler Center are frantic and even threats of violence are made at the accused if he ever comes in their way.

The accused have tried to cover their tracks ever since the finding of the body. Many remarks were made by Tidey to the effect that he had had a fight, but when the discovery of the body was made public he had trouble with another person than Noddruff altogether. His demeanor changed at once. He was known as a boxer and was urged to take boxing lessons, but said he was through boxing and scrapping. He tried to throw off suspicion by singing when confronted by the officer. He would talk but little about the case, remarking that it was all a bluff about his being implicated in the affair. All that he did say was noted by the officer and will come out at the trial. More sworn statements have been taken in this case than in most cases of the kind. Usually the evidence is forthcoming with little inconvenience but the unusual tact taken by the accused in this case has so irritated the officials that legal advice has been sought in the matter. The officials of Indiana have worked as hard as those of Michigan.

Robert Noddruff was an excellent swimmer; had he fallen from the train by his own carelessness he would surely have made some struggle to help himself or made some outcry for help. It is the contention of the prosecution in this case that Robert received a death blow before leaving the platform of the coach where he was positively identified, and in company of the accused men, Tidey being identified beyond the shadow of a doubt.
