

Geo. Wyman & Co.

We consider it a great pleasure to be able all the year round to sell you dependable merchandise for less than anyone else, and have the goods to deliver that are advertised. When we advertise shirts and drawers for men, women and children worth 25c each for 15c each, you can depend on what we say; we have the goods and you can depend on their being worth 25c, see! In other words we are honest with ourselves as well as being honest with you. We think honesty is the best policy in everything. We have found that it will win in the long run.

Dress Goods.

We offer 24-inch Black Taffeta Silk 50c yard; 27-inch, 69c; 36-inch Black Taffeta, 85c a yard.
One lot of Wool Dress Goods, all kinds and widths, worth up to $1.00, to close at 42½c a yard.

Some people carry a rabbit's foot in their pocket to give them good luck. Other people carry a horse chestnut in their pocket to keep them from getting bald-headed. We would suggest that you inaugurate a thought department in each household, with a chairman, secretary and treasurer; when you do that you will buy more goods, at Wyman's, for our goods are first-class and we stand behind them, besides, we sell them for less than anyone else. Our aim is not to see how much we can get for goods, but how cheap we can sell them.

Come and see us.

DELIBERATE MURDER

Coroner's Jury so Finds and Hold Hinckle Responsible for Crime

HIS WIFE IS AGAINST HIM

Hinckle's Self-Defense and Accidental Claims Not Verified by Witness.

The Tuttle inquest today knocks all the props from under the "self-defense" and "accidental discharge" theories that Murderer Hinckle attempted to set up for himself yesterday after his arrest and while confined in the city jail.

All the evidence is dead against Hinckle, even his wife making the most damaging statements under oath. Hinckle was a bad man. Before Tuttle arrived on the scene to meet his death, Hinckle had even threatened to kill Mrs. Hinckle.

The coroner's jury lost no time in arriving at a verdict holding that Tuttle was murdered and placing the crime directly upon Hinckle.

Mr. Hinckle testified that her reason for getting up at so early an hour in the morning and walking nearly 3 miles alone at dead of night from Tuttle's to her own home was that she was concerned about "her things" Hinckle, she had heard, had made threats to chop everything into pieces and she wanted to get her things away before they were destroyed.

The inquest over the death of William Tuttle, who was killed early Monday morning by a gun-shot wound fired from a gun in the hands of Albert Hinckle, was held Tuesday in Chas. White's office before Coroner Platt and the jury.

There was a large attendance, many neighbors and relatives of the parties concerned in the tragedy being present. Among them was Mrs. Tuttle, with her youngest child, a boy of three months.

The inquisition was conducted by Prosecutor White and Coroner Platt, and the testimony was taken down in short hand by Miss Badger.

Charles Fox, who had accompanied Tuttle to the Hinckle home, and was present when the shooting occurred was the first witness.

Fox related that Tuttle had come to his room in Tuttle's house, and had told him that "mother," meaning Mrs. Hinckle, had left the house, and had gone to her husband's, and that Fox must go with him to Hinckle's house. Fox did so, first asking the time which Tuttle said was three o'clock. The shooting Fox said must have taken place between 3:30 and 4 in the morning.

Fox stated that Tuttle was not at all excited, but was very anxious to find out whether Mrs. Hinckle was at her own home. Tuttle did not seem to fear Hinckle, Fox said.

Concerning the shooting Fox stated that the gun was fired at Tuttle while the man was standing just outside the threshold of the front door. The witness contradicted Hinckle's statement to the newspapers that Tuttle had taken hold of the gun, saying that Tuttle was not close enough to Hinckle to take the weapon in his hand.

The next witness was Mrs. Hinckle wife of the suspected man. On being given the oath by Coroner Platt, she swore to tell the truth, and added, "Bless the Lord, it's all true!" Her testimony was prejudicial to Hinckle and will count a good deal against him. She spoke of the trouble they had had in the family, and seemed to cooperate Tuttle's accusations against Hinckle.

Thursday, the witness said, she had gone over to Tuttle's house, while her husband was in Buchanan. The latter returned about two in the afternoon and was "on an intoxication." He ordered her to return to his house, and accordingly she entered his buggy.

The witness said that Hinckle then whipped up the horse he was driving and ran the animal towards his home at break-neck speed. She became frightened at the pace, as the road led through a wood full of underbrush, and asked Hinckle to slow up. The man would not do so, and she jumped from the buggy, hurting her back in the act.

Hinckle then stopped the horse and ordered her to enter the buggy again saying, "If you don't get in I'll put you in." Seeing that she would not obey, he told her to get in and that he would let her drive. She did so and went with him to her home.

Arriving home Hinckle ordered her to get dinner, and she did so. After the meal he said he was going to Buchanan again, and she asked him to cut some wood for her. He refused to do it, and left, driving off in the direction of Buchanan.

At five o'clock she went to Tuttle's again where she stayed until early in the morning, she thinks until two o'clock. Then she got up and went to her home again rapping on the door and being admitted to the house.

She and Hinckle sat up and talked according to the witness, and Hinckle threatened her life in a round about way, she said. He told her if she had not returned he would have killed her and Tuttle.

About half an hour after her arrival she heard Tuttle and Fox at the door. Hinckle went to the door, and Tuttle said, "I don't want to harm you, but I want to see mother."

Hinckle ordered him to leave, but Tuttle said he wanted to see Mrs. Hinckle about her medicine. Mrs. Hinckle said she would send Charlie after it in the morning.

Then Hinckle went into the buttry and returned with his gun. When Tuttle saw him approach with the weapon Mrs. Hinckle yelled, "Don't shoot," but Hinckle raised the gun to his shoulder and fired.

Hinckle was standing between a stove in the hall and door, and was some distance from Tuttle. According to the witness Tuttle did not touch the weapon at all.

When he was shot the witness says she ran to him; and grabbed him by the shoulders but he fell, and did not live a minute.

Hinckle then turned on his heel and went into the kitchen, putting the gun back in the buttry.

Atty. Chas. Davey came over from South a Bend Wednesday to see Hinckle at the jail with reference to his defense, claiming to have been invited into the case by Hinckle's friends.

But Hinkley had previously consulted with Judge VanRiper and the latter has been formally retained to defend Hinckle, which gives assurance that he will have a fair trial and able defense.

The only other witnesses sworn were Fred Tichenor, who was first on the ground; Dr. Tyler, who made an examination of the body; and Paul Skalla, who prepared the body for burial.

The jury was out but five minutes and agreed upon a verdict that "the said Albert Hinckle, then and there, with malice aforethought killed and murdered the said Wm. Tuttle."

Hinckle was taken before Justice Beaver in the afternoon. He was arraigned on the charge of murder, but demanded an examination, which was fixed for Wednesday, Dec. 7.

Hinckle was turned over to the sheriff today and will be confined in the county jail, pending his examination and trial on the charge of murder.—Niles Star.

his polished finesse and exquisite art dramatic force as an interpreter of as a stage lover. He imparts just a delicate touch of character comedy well week of the limited engagement to the role; just a hint of the French accent and the French shrug of this debonaire and light hearted Chevalier who was exiled by the jealous King Louis XIV from the court at Versailles and who became such a favorite at the palace of Whitehall in the middle of the seventeenth century. His famous love romance with "the beautiful Hamilton," is unfolded in the four acts of this sparkling romantic comedy in Clyde Fitch's most brilliant and characteristically piquant style. The play scintillates with epigram and repartee; while the various types of frail court coquettes, scheming courtiers and gay cavaliers are all depicted with that versatile deftness for which this playwright is noted. Mr. Skinner has mounted the piece in a sumptuous fashion which reproduces the true background of splendor and luxury of the reign of the Stuart Restoration and makes the various stage pictures a veritable new revelation of beauty in colorful costumes and scenic effects. The cast is one of the very best ever seen in support of this delightful romantic actor, Arthur Forrest impersonating the affable and pleasure loving monarch with all the suavity and elegance that might be expected of that sovereign. As the jealous Lady Castlemaine Jennie Eustace portrays one of the most interesting characters depicted by Mr. Fitch, the part ranging through the gamut of smiles and tears. As two malicious court flirts, Helen Ware and Marion Abbott have an almost sensational quarrel scene, which ends in a triumphant comedy climax. Love making and intrigue afford Mr. Skinner himself abundant opportunity to display his graces as a romantic lover and also his, more intensely

A loafer on the street, whose wife was probably at home getting out a neighbor's washing to make money enough to buy the baby a pair of shoes, asked us the other day if we ever saw a bald headed woman. No, we never did, and we never saw a woman waltzing around the town with an old pipe in her teeth, lounging around the stove in the barber shop and other places of business, making remarks about every woman in town, butting into every conversation no matter what the subject; telling the people how the secretary of the treasury should run the national finances. Neither have we ever seen a woman go fishing with a bottle in her pocket, sit in a boat or on the river bank all day and go home drunk at night. Nor have we ever seen a woman yank off her coat and say she could lick any man in town. God bless us, the woman are not built that way.

PASSED AWAY

At Her Home in Cincinnati, Ohio, Tuesday Morning at 10:30 O'clock.

Mrs. Thomas Kissinger has returned from Newport, Ky., where she was called on account of the death of her mother, Mrs. D. Williams, whom it will be remembered, spent the winter of 1900 with her daughter, Mrs. Kissinger, then of this place. Mrs. Williams made many friends while here, who will be sorry to hear of her death.

The following is taken from the Sunday Enquirer of Cincinnati, Ohio: Mrs. Dessema Williams, widow of the late Daniel Williams, deceased, died at her home, at Seventh and York streets, Tuesday morning at 10:30, November 7, 1905. Six children remain to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate mother. Deceased united with the church of England at the age of 13, but after coming to America, there being no church of that denomination where she resided, she united with the M.

E. church, of which she has remained a devout member up until death called her to her reward. Deceased has been a widow for over 12 years, her companion having passed from this life September 20, 1898.

Deceased was an earnest worker in the church, a most kind and charitable neighbor and friend. During her earlier life, when her health was better, she lived to aid the sick and afflicted, and with the cares of her large family she could always find time to attend divine services. She will be missed by a host of friends as well as her family.

$25,000 For a Story

Think of it! Twenty-five thousand dollars for one story! The highest price that has been similarly paid in America to any author. And this for just the exclusive right to print the story in this one publication—no right to publish it in book form being included.

Consider the quality of merit, the intensity of interest this story must possess to command this extraordinary price. The "White Company" has ever been accepted as the greatest work of any author, and by far superior to his own "Sherlock Holmes" tales—but "Sir Nigel," says Conan Doyle himself, surpasses them all.

Conan Doyle receives this fabulous sum for his "Sir Nigel," which begins in the Sunday Magazine part of next SUNDAY'S RECORD-HERALD. Do not fail to buy THE RECORD-HERALD for next Sunday, December 3, as this great romance by the world's greatest writer of romantic fiction will be the sensation in the literary world for months to come.

Very Suggestive.

The mother was expecting guests for the evening, and at 8 o'clock the youngest son was told that it was bedtime. The little fellow persisted in sitting up for the occasion, pleading fear of the darkness. His mother assured him their was nothing to fear, saying he would not be alone, as the angels would be in the room to guard him. Finally the youngster reluctantly went to bed. An hour later a little figure appeared in the dining room doorway, to the amusement of the entire company, saying: "Mamma!" "Well, dear?" his mother said. "May I speak, mamma?" "Certainly dear. What do you want?"

"Mamma, are the angels in my room now?" "Yes, dear." "Are they in my bed, too?" "Oh, yes, yes, dear," answered the mother impatiently. "Well, then, mamma, the angels are biting me."

This Had Happened in San Francisco Instead of Buchanan More Than One Reader Might Doubt It

The average man is a doubter. This is not surprising the public have been humbugged so frequently they are skeptical. Proof like the following will stand investigation. It cannot be disputed.

Mrs. M. Griffin, of West Front street, Buchanan says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at W. N. Brodrick's drug store and I think them an excellent remedy for backache and kidney complaint. I was troubled for some time with a dull aching feeling in the small of my back often quite severe, more especially if I overexerted myself or took a slight cold. I used a great many remedies, of which some were worth less and others relieved me for a time. This I cheerfully say about Doan's Kidney Pills. I received more permanent relief from them than from any other remedy I ever took."

A St. Joe mother was trying to get her little boy to go to bed. "Run along, Johnny," she said, "and get into your bed. The little chickens have all gone to bed."

"Yes, mother, I know," said the little tot with quivering lip. "but the old hen went to bed with 'em."

YELLOW WALKING FEVER.

Victims of the Disease Who Unwittingly Infect Others as They Go About.

"In the south they have had this fall yellow fever," said a lady who, according to the New York Herald, is an exile from Mobile because of the sickness. "But one of the sources of the disease is of a peculiar character. It is distributed by persons who have what is called the 'walking fever.' They go about their business or affairs while the fever is latent in them, but still of a malignant character. A victim in whom the disease is established, and who is put to bed, by reason of coming in contact with but few persons, rarely becomes a focal point of its spread. But the victim who still moves about distributes the malignant taint to many. The curious thing about these sufferers is that they keep on going about till they simply fall down and quickly die. They have a headache and stiff joints, but their temperature is little above normal, and they attribute their sickness to other than the serious causes which give rise to it.

"In a previous invasion of yellow fever in the south I remained until too late to leave my home. The quarantine was imposed and its terms were executed with cruel fidelity. A gentleman living in my street, a merchant, gave his whole time and attention to health work. Our street is on high ground and is kept in the best possible sanitary condition. The gentleman came home daily and one evening fell fainting in the street. That night he died. Not a house in the row, some 30 of them, was spared by the dread visitant. We were able to trace from him the progress of the malady that twice decimated the residents of the street within 12 days.

"A woman friend of mine in New Orleans had the walking fever during the current outbreak of the disease. She communicated it to her family, and now all of them, eight in number, are dead."

HOW PERSEVERANCE WON.

Salesman Who Proved Himself to Be the Limit of Pertinacity.

"I was in the office of an American consul in a German city not long ago," said Wilfred M. Hale, relates the Washington Post. "While I was there a wine agent came in who wanted to sell the consul some 'sehr schoene' Rhine wine. The consul didn't want to buy, and, becoming irritated by the fellow's persistence, finally ordered him out of the place.

"In five minutes the agent was back, and blandly asked the consul if he didn't want some very excellent sherry. By this time Uncle Sam's representative was at white heat, and he kicked the wine man through the door and half way down the stairs. To our amazement, only a little while elapsed before the irrepressible drummer again appeared, and with a broad grin, asked to submit some rare old brandy.

"By the Stars and Stripes," quoth the consul, "wouldn't this outjar an earthquake? Isn't one kicking a day enough for you, fellow?"

"Ordinarily, yes; but your honor exerted yourself so much the other time that I thought a little good brandy would come in nicely to brace up on. He got an order."

GRAND OLD SPANISH RELIC

Mission Building That Presents a Striking Picture to the Traveler.

Of all the missions in California, the Santa Barbara mission occupies the most commanding position, writes Page Fellowes, in Four-Track News. Standing on an elevation 300 feet above the sea, the white facade and long corridor may be seen from far out on the ocean, forming a striking object to sailor or tourist. Back of the mission the mountains rise to a climax of grandeur; on the other side rolls the fertile country with lovely little houses, half buried in flowers, shrubs and trees; and beyond the city gleams the peaceful sea dotted with gliding ships.

After entering the mission visitors are received by Brother Huygolone, the noted cicerone. He is a most interesting man, very cordial to strangers, pleased to show them about, and prepared to answer all questions regarding the mission except those about the "Mysterious Garden." His account of the early mission days is most vivid.

Coughing Saves Your Life.

A cough is the response to a danger signal which says that something is irritating the delicate mucous membrane which lines the air passages leading to the lungs. This cause of irritation may vary, but in the common cough of winter it is some offending matter, which nature seeks to clear off and expel by means of the compelling cough, lest it should block the bronchial tubes, and cause suffocation. The sensitive nerves that belong to these vital tubes act as sentinels, and send a message for succor to the brain, which at once responds to the call by dispatching orders to the chest muscles. These then contract violently with one accord, and force out the air in a cough, which carries with it the cause of irritation.—Stray Stories.

"Did you secure your title of 'colonel' in the army?" asked the formidably frank person.

"Certainly not," replied Col. Stilwell.

"It is the expression of genuine esteem by my friends and neighbors; not a mere formality of red tape."—Washington Star.

International Banana Food Company Forging to the Front

Henry H. Porter, president of the International Banana Food company with head quarters at 1103 Stock Exchange building, Chicago has been transacting business in Niles the past week.

Most all the citizens of Buchanan either know Mr Porter personally, or by reputation, as he was secretary of the Mutual City and Village Fire Insurance company for 16 years, with offices at Dowagiac, and for the past 11 years has been an equal partner in the firm of Lee & Porter, axle manufacturers at Buchanan.

Mr. Porter for the past year has given nearly all his time to the banana food business, which has kept him in the Chicago office. He has associated with him on his board, some of the best men in the country. A. F. Spawm of Philadelphia is one of the vice presidents, and their professor of chemistry, and is well-known in both hemispheres. He was the discoverer and originator of the banana coffee.

The Record has been advertising this coffee for some time, and the advertisements, if read, will certainly interest anyone who is desirous of drinking a pure food beverage. To those who are seeking a good investment, they cannot do better than to invest in the stock of this company, as stock has advanced to 100 per cent during the last four months.
