SAW MILL IS BURNED

Spencer & Barnes Company
Suffer $1,500 Loss

The sawmill in connection with the large furniture manufacturing plant of Spencer & Barnes company was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday morning at about 1 o'clock. The loss is $1,500, insured for $1,000.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The building stood close to the railroad tracks and may have been started by a spark from a passing train or in a hundred other different ways. After 6 o'clock Tuesday night the mill was soaked down with water by the engineer at the plant, and was so thoroughly soaked that the head sawer, Mr. Pennell, made complaint about drowning out the mill.

It is not known whether the mill will be rebuilt or not. The supply of logs has grown very scarce in this vicinity and only one twentieth of the lumber used in the furniture plant was made from native logs. Eight men employed in the sawmill will be thrown out of work.

Four or five years ago a similar fire destroyed the sawmill which stood on the same site.

Spencer & Barnes speak in the highest way of the work of the fire department and they will probably express their thanks in a substantial manner in a few days.

An Old Resident Dies

She was married April 1, 1851, to Jeremiah B. Roe, One daughter, Mrs. E. M. Herr, of South Bend and one brother, Cassius Caldwell, of German township survive her. The deceased had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for many years.

Buchanan Record San Francisco Relief Fund.

NOTICE

The Relief Fund for the earthquake and fire sufferers of San Francisco, and other cities and towns in California is growing hourly all over the country, as the enormity of the need becomes apparent to the sympathetic heart of the nation.

Millions of people are desiring to swell this fund with their contributions, large and small, but do not know how to get their money in the proper hands. To afford a ready channel for those not in touch with other organized relief bureaus the BUCHANAN RECORD hereby takes the initiative step in this vicinity by starting a fund, which will be forwarded to Governor Fred M. Warner, who in turn will send the contributions from Michigan, to the scene of suffering.

Those in this vicinity, who wish to contribute, can do so by leaving their name either at the RECORD office or the First National Bank. A list of those subscribing, will be published in the RECORD from time to time. Let the citizens of Buchanan respond generously to the appeal of suffering San Francisco, and help to uphold the good name of Michigan.

There will be no committee to solicit you, but you are requested to give voluntarily such amount as you feel that you can give. It is imperative that this work be done at once, SO DO NOT PUT IT OFF, if you wish to help the good cause. DO IT NOW.

A very pleasant surprise was perpetrated upon Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Johnston, last evening, the occasion being their 28th wedding anniversary. The couple had been invited out to dinner and when they returned they found that about thirty of their friends had taken possession of the house, giving them a grand and glorious surprise on their return. Dainty refreshments were served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Johnston were presented with a beautiful rocker by Mrs. C. L. Bristol in behalf of their friends. Mrs. Bristol made a very witty presentation speech, also of her intimate acquaintance with the couple during her life. The evening was enjoyably spent in social conversation. Many congratulations were extended to this happy couple who have lived together through the experiences of twenty-three years.—Battle Creek Moon.

MADE FORTUNATE ESCAPE

Crackers and Milk Considered a Luxury —People Huddle in Streets With Scant Clothing

The following letter is from Lloyd Butts, who has been in San Francisco, Cal., since last September, and in the same gives a vivid description of the horror and suffering at the time of the terrible disaster:

San Francisco, Cal.
April 19, 1906.

Dear Mother:
I am out in the country, just outside the city. The city lies in a mass of ruins and is still burning more than ever. It is the most awful thing anyone could imagine. Great buildings have been shaken down and streets have sunk in places. There is no estimate of the number of lives lost, but there must have been thousands. Last night everyone had given up all hopes of saving the city. People took what they could carry and hurried out of reach of the fire. Within ten minutes after the earthquake, the whole city was afire. I can shake hands with myself that I escaped unhurt. I was just in time. The first thought I had was to get well away from the wall of the building. When I went to get my clothes afterward, my bed was covered with bricks, and I got the best I had and ran away. In less than an hour, the whole block was in ashes, and the same was the case for blocks around. The fire department was helpless, on account of the water pipes being broken by the shock.

I can't see how the people can get sufficient food. Money is no good. You cannot buy anything. We had crackers and milk for breakfast. That was better than most people had. Tonight I saw women and children under trees. Some were covered with thin blankets, while others had no wraps, not even hats on their heads.

The dead and injured were lying on sidewalks and no one could help them. Families living in flats got their goods out into the streets, but before they could get wagons to haul them away, the fire licked them up.

I am glad I have no one to look after but myself. It is the families who will suffer most. It will be next to impossible for them to get anything to eat.

I do not know when I can get any mail. You will hear from me soon.
Lloyd.

A contribution to the relief fund is better than moralizing about Belshazzar.

It has been said that nature fights on your side in California, but not without tantrums.

San Francisco has lost its show places, but the tide of commerce that has rolled through it will continue to roll and increase.

Galveston is among the first to telegraph assistance to San Francisco. The Texas city knows that a calamity is not as blighting as it may seem at first.

One thing not yet determined in San Francisco is the kind of building least damaged by earthquake and fire. It is an important point to guide future action in city structures.

W. H. Crocker, who has lost several millions by earthquake and fire says: "Within five years you will see a finer and better San Francisco than ever—the most beautiful city in the world." That is the kind of talk that wins.

It is coming the time when lovers of baseball are getting anxious for a real enthusiastic ball game, and up to the present time, no steps have been taken for the organization of a ball team, so as to afford this longed for pleasure. It is time some action was taken toward this organization. Last year the lovers of this sport, witnesses many exciting games, and they are very anxious to witness as many more this season. Wake up boys and get busy.

Is your Name Written There?

As the enormity of the suffering in California becomes more apparent, the people of the whole civilized world are sending substantial aid to relieve those, who in a few short hours were cast from affluence into poverty and suffering.

The roll of honor is hourly growing larger, and the name of Buchanan, and many of its citizens will be written there on.

Within the past week arrangements have been made by the Record for the starting of a relief fund, and we announce in this issue the completion of those plans. We have arranged with Governor Warner for the handling of the money raised here, and with Chas. F. Pears for handling the fund locally. While the Record has been at work making these arrangements, others have been holding up their hands and crying, "for shame."

In case of such emergencies the world wants those who are doers and not calamity howlers. Are you one of the doers. See to it that your name is written on the roll of honor.

The Universalist church refuses to accept the resignation of Rev. Louisa Haight.

The Egalite club of young ladies will give a dance at the Armory, May 15.

The steamer J. C. Suit of the G. & M. line is receiving new boiler flues and other repairs.

Mayor Morrow has appointed a committee of 20 to receive subscriptions for the Frisco sufferers.

Bert Berger has resigned his position at Bell's drug store, and began his duties as city clerk.

Thirty carloads of material for the new street railway have arrived over the Big Four in the last three days.

The Niles district W. H. M. S. will meet at the Methodist church next Tuesday and Wednesday.

It is expected that the first street car will arrive at St. Joseph from Niles the last of this week.

Through the advice and efforts of Dr. Fred Belknap, a Building and Loan association is now assured to this city.

Miss Louise Bailey, former city librarian has secured a fine position in the library in the fine Art building at Chicago. Mrs. Emma Cole, who has been the assistant, succeeds Miss Bailey here.

It has just become known that Fred Armstrong one of our football stars was married Feb. 27 by Father Mulcahey to Miss Anna Schairer, daughter of John Schairer of the bottling works.

Last Sunday an offering was made at the Presbyterian church for the San Francisco sufferers of $14 and at the Methodist church of $32. $10 being from the Sunday School.

A lodge of Knights of Columbus, a strictly Catholic order, was organized last Sunday with 60 charter members and named the Inter-City council as its membership represents both the cities. About 400 knights from other points were present.

In common with school children all over the country our scholars have become interested in flower gardening and 2300 packages of seeds have been bought or ordered. The Ossoli club offers dollar prizes for the best general results in each ward.

Chas. E. Wightman has resigned his position as city engineer to accept a better place at South Haven, and Mayor Morrow has appointed W. Worth Bean Jr., to fill the vacancy.

The Sunday evening service at the Methodist church was very interesting and largely attended. Dr. Edgumbe of the college gave a scientific address on the formation of the earth and the causes of the earthquakes. Editor J. N. Reed, who has lately been in San Francisco, described the city as it was before the disaster and W. B. Goodenough spoke on the lessons to be learned from the terrible event.

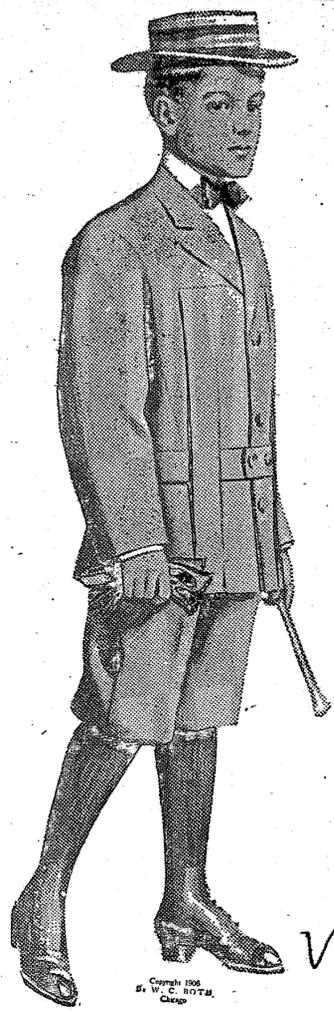

Next month the Israelites will begin to build a structure of cement blocks 72x72 ft for office and residence purposes to cost $10,000. Next fall they will begin a temple with immense seating capacity. They believe the end of the world is to come in 1916, when Benjamin and Mary at the head of the 144,000 will take charge of affairs temporarily. They expect soon to receive about 100 converts from different parts of the world.

So far as heard from the friends of Benton Harbor people, who were in San Francisco or adjacent, at the city of the disaster have reported their safety. The baggage of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kidd, who have been spending the winter in California, was burned, but they themselves were 30 miles away and though badly shaken were not injured. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Shaver were unhurt and have returned home.

THAT BOY OF YOURS

He is hard on his clothes—That goes without saying—You have often wished that you could have a suit made out of sheet iron or something of the sort that he could not wear out so quickly.

Adlers don't handle iron suits for boy, but we do claim to have boys suits that will stand all the hard wear your boy can give them.

That is what they are specially made for—The wearing quality of a boys suit is not every thing to be considered, however, there is no reason why a boys suit should not fit him as well or be as stylishly made as a man's suit. We are offering to the parents of boys living in Buchanan the same opportunity they would have to secure the most stylish and strictly up to date patterns in suits for boys they would have if they lived in Chicago or New York, and Adlers is the only store in South Bend where you can get this kind of Boys clothing. $3.00 to $8.00.

Remember we pay your round trip fare on any purchase of $10.00 or over.

The Man on the Box

"I'll wager a dollar that Nan isn't doing that screaming. The Warburton's never cry out when they are frightened. Hang it!" suddenly, "this street doesn't look familiar. I ought to have reached Scott Circle by this time. Ah, here's a broader street," going lickety-clip into Vermont.

A glass went jingling to the pavement.

"Oho! Nancy will be jumping out the next thing. This will never do." He began to draw in.

Hark! His trained trooper's ear heard other hoofs beating on the iron-like surface of the pavement. Worriedly he turned his head. Five blocks away there flashed under one of the arc-lights, only to disappear in the shadow again, two mounted policemen.

"By George! it looks as if the girls were going to have their fun too!" He laughed, but there was a nervous catch in his voice. He hadn't counted on any policeman taking part in the comedy.

"Where the devil is Scott Circle, anyhow?"—fretfully. He tugged at the reins. "Best draw up at the next corner. I'll be hanged if I know where I am."

He braced himself, saved the reins, and presently the frightened and somewhat wearied horses slowed down to a trot. This he finally brought to a walk. One more pull, and they came to a stand. It would be hard to say which breathed the heaviest, the man or the horses. Warburton leaped from the box, opened the door and waited. He recognized the necessity of finishing the play before the mounted police arrived on the scene.

There was a commotion inside the carriage, then a woman in a crimson cloak stepped (no, jumped!) out. Mr. Robert threw his arms around her and kissed her cheek.

"You vile . . . wretch!" Warburton sprang back, his hands applied to his stinging face.

"You drunken wretch, how dare you!"

"Nan, it's only I—" he stammered. "Nan!" exclaimed the young woman, as her companion joined her. The light from the corner disclosed the speaker's wrathful features, deep-set eyes, palpitating nostrils, eyes and fine terrible glances. "Nan, do you think, ruffian, that you are trying serving maids?"

"GOOD LORD!"

"Good Lord!" Warburton stepped back speechless, benumbed, terror-struck, speechless, benumbed, terror-struck. The woman he was gazing at was anybody in the world but his sister Nancy!

CHAPTER VII.

A POLICE AFFAIR.

"Officers, arrest this fellow!" commanded the young woman. Her gesture was Didoesque in its wrath.

"That we will, ma'am!" cried one of the policemen, flinging himself from his horse. "So it's you, me gay buck? Thirty days fer you, an' mebbe more. I didn't like yer looks from th' start. You're working some kind of a trick. What complaint, ma'am?"

"Drunkenness and abduction,"—rubbing the burning spot on her cheek.

"That'll be rather serious. Ye'll have to appear against him in th' mornin', ma'am."

"I certainly shall do so." She promptly gave her name, address and telephone number.

"Bill, you drive th' ladies home an' I'll see this bucko to th' station. Here, you!"—to Warburton, who was still dumb with astonishment at the extraordinary denouement to his innocent joke. "Git on that horse, an' lively, or, or, I'll rap ye with th' club."

"It's all a mistake, officer—"

"Close yer face and git on that horse. Ye can tell th' judge all that in th' mornin'. I ain't got no time t' listen. Bill, report just as soon as ye see th' ladies home. Now, off with ye. Th' ladies'll be wanting somethin' t' quiet their nerves. Git on that horse, me frisky groom; hustle!" Warburton mechanically climbed into the saddle. It never occurred to him to parley, to say that he couldn't ride a horse. The inventive cells of his usually fertile brain lay passive. "Now," went on the officer, mounting his own nag, "will ye go quietly? If ye don't I'll plug ye in th' leg with a chunk o' lead. I won't stan' no nonsense."

"What are ye going to do with me?" asked Warburton, with a desperate effort to collect his energies.

"Look ye up; mebbe throw a pail of water on that overheated cocoanut of yours."

"But if you'll only let me explain to you! It's all a joke; I got the wrong carriage—"

"Marines, marines! D' ye think I was born yestiddy? Ye wanted th' ladies' sparklers, or I'm a doughhead." The police are the same all over the world; the original idea sticks to them, and truth in voice or presence is but a sign of deeper cunning and villainy. "Anyhow, ye can't turn around Washington like ye do in England, me cockney. Ye can't drive more'n a hundred miles an hour on these pavements."

"But, I tell you—" Warburton, realizing where his escapade was about to lead him, grew desperate. The ignominy of it! He would be the laughing-stock of the town on the morrow. The papers would team with it. "You'll find that you are making a great mistake. If you will only take me to— Scott Circle—"

"Where ye have a pal with a gun, eh? Git ahead!" and the two made off toward the west.

Once or twice the officer found himself admiring the easy seat of his prisoner; and if the horse had been anything but a trained animal, he would have worried some regarding the ultimate arrival at the third precinct.

Half a dozen times Warburton was of a mind to make a bolt for it, but he did not dare trust the horse or his knowledge of the streets. He had already two counts against him, disorderly conduct and abduction, and he had no desire to add uselessly, a third, that of resisting an officer, which seems the greatest possible crime a man can commit and escape hanging.

Oh, for a mettlesome nag! There would be no police-station for him, then. Police-station! Heavens, what should he do? His brother, his sister; their dismay, their shame; not counting that he himself would be laughed at from one end of the continent to the other. What an ass he had made of himself! He wondered how much money it would take to clear himself and at the same moment recollected that he hadn't a cent in his clothes. A sweat of terror moistened his brow.

"What are ye up to, anyway?" asked the policeman. "What kind of booze have ye been samplin'?"

"I've nothing to say."

"Ye speak clear enough. So much th' worse, if ye ain't drunk. Was ye crazy t' ride like that? Ye might have killed th' women an' had a bill of manslaughter brought against ye."

"I have nothing to say; it is all a mistake. I got the wrong number and the wrong carriage."

"Th' devil ye did. An' where was ye goin' to drive th' other carriage at that thunderin' rate? It won't wash. His honor'll be stone-deaf when ye tell him that. You're drunk or have been."

"Not to-night."

"Well, I'd give me night off t' know what ye were up to. Don't ye know nothin' about ordinances an' laws? An' I wouldn't mind havin' ye tell me why ye threw yer arms around th' lady an' kissed her."—shrewdly.

Warburton started in his saddle. He had forgotten all about that part of the episode. His blood warmed suddenly and his cheeks burned. He had kissed her, kissed her soundly, too, the most radiantly beautiful woman in the world. Why, come to think of it, it was easily worth a night in jail. Yes, by George, he had kissed her, kissed that blooming cheek, and but for this policeman, would have forgotten! Whatever happened to him, she wouldn't forget in a hurry. He laughed. The policeman gazed at him in pained surprise.

"Well, ye seem t' take it good and hearty."

"If you could only see the humor in it, my friend, you'd laugh, too."

"Oh, I would, hey? All I got t' say is that yer nerve gits me. An' ye stand a pretty good show of bein' rounded up for more'n 30 days, too. Well, ye've had yer joke; mebbe ye have th' price t' pay th' fiddler. Turn here."

The rest of the ride was in silence, Warburton gazing callously ahead and the officer watching him with a wary eye to observe any suggestive movement. He couldn't make out this chap. There was something wrong, some deep-dyed villainy—of this he hadn't the slightest doubt. It was them high-toned swells that was the craftiest an' most daring. Handsome is that handsome does. A quarter of an hour later they arrived at the third precinct, where our jehu was registered for the night under the name of James Osborne. He was hustled into a small cell and left to himself.

He had kissed her! Glory of glories! He had pressed her to his very heart, besides. After all, they couldn't do anything serious to him. They could not prove the charge of abduction. He stretched himself on the cot, smiled, arranged his legs comfortably, wondered what she was thinking of at this moment, and fell asleep. It was a sign of a good constitution and a decently white conscience. And thus they found him in the morning. They touched his arm, and he awoke with a smile, the truest indication of a man's amiability. At first he was puzzled as he looked blinking from his jailers to his surroundings and then back at his jailers. Then it all returned to him, and he laughed. Now the law, as represented and upheld by petty officers, possesses a dignity that is instantly ruffled by the sound of laughter from a prisoner; and Mr. Robert was roughly told to shut up, and that he'd soon laugh on the other side of his mouth.

"All right officers, all right; only make allowances for a man who sees the funny side of things." Warburton stood up and shook himself, and picked up his white hat. They eyed him intelligently. In the morning light the young fellow didn't appear to be such a rascal. It was plainly evident that he had not been drunk the preceding night; for his eyes were not shot with red veins nor did his lips lack their usual healthy moisture. The officer who had taken him in charge, being a shrewd and trained observer, noted the white hands, soft and well-kept. He shook his head.

"Look here, me lad, you're no groom, not by several years. Now, what th' devil was ye up to, anyway?"

"I'm not saying a word, sir," smiled Warburton. "All I want to know is, am I to have any breakfast? I shouldn't mind some peaches and cream or grapes to start with, and a small steak and coffee."

"Ye wouldn't mind, hey?" mimicked the officer. "What d'ye think this place is, th' Metropolitan club? Ye'll have yer bacon an' coffee, an' be glad t' git it. They'll feed ye in the mess-room. Come along."

Warburton took his time over the coffee and bacon. He wanted to think out a reasonable defense without unmasking himself. He was thinking how he could get word to me, too, The "duffer" might prove a friend in need.

"Now where?" asked Warburton, wiping his mouth.

"Th' court. It'll go hard with ye if ye're handed over t' th' grand jury on th' charge of abduction. Ye'd better make a clean breast of it. I'll speak a word for yer behavior."

"Aren't you a little curious?"

"It's a part of me business,"—gruffly. "I'll have my say to the judge," said Warburton.

"That's yer own affair. Come."

Once outside, Warburton lost color and a large part of his nonchalance; for an open patrol stood at the curb.

"Have I got to ride in that?"—disgustedly.

"As true as life; an' if ye make any disturbance, so much th' worse."

Warburton climbed in, his face red with shame and anger. He tied his handkerchief around his chin and tilted his hat far down over his eyes.

"Fraud of meetin' some of yer swell friends, hey? Ten t' one, yer a swell an' was runnin' away with th' wrong woman. Mind. I have an eye on ye."

The patrol rumbled over the asphalt on the way down-town. Warburton buried his face in his hands. Several times they passed a cigar-store, and his mouth watered for a good cigar, the taste of a clear Havana.

He entered the police-court, not lacking in curiosity. It was his first experience with this arm of the civil law. He wasn't sure that he liked it. It wasn't an inviting place with its bare benches and its motley, tawdry throng. He was plumped into a seat between some ladies of irregular habits, and the stale odor of intoxicants, mingling with cheap perfume, took away the edge of his curiosity.

"Hello, pretty boy; jag?" asked one of these faded beauties, in an undertone. She nudged him with her elbow.

"No sweetheart," he replied, smiling in spite of himself.

"Ah gowan! Been pinching some one's wad?"

"Nope!"

"What are you here for, then?"

"Having a good time without anybody's consent. If you will listen, you will soon hear all about it."

"Silence there, on the bench!" bawled the clerk, whacking the desk.

"Say, Marie," whispered the woman to her nearest neighbor. "Here's a boy been selling his master's harness and got pinched."

"But look at the sweet things coming in, will you! Ain't they swell, though?" whispered Marie, nodding a skinnny, feather toward the door.

Warburton glanced indifferently in the direction indicated, and received a shock. Two women—and both wore very heavy black veils. The smaller of the two inclined her body, and he was sure that her scrutiny 'was for him. He saw her say something into the ear of the companion, and repeat it to one of the court lawyers. The lawyer approached the desk, and in his turn whispered a few words into the judge's ear. The magistrate nodded. Warburton was conscious of a blush of shame. This was a nice position for any respectable woman to see him in!

"James Osborne!" called the clerk.

An officer beckoned to James, and he made his way to the prisoner's box. His honor looked him over coldly.

THE NEW VISIBLE

FOX

At Last a Perfect Visible Typewriter

The One Typewriter That Correctly Solves the Objections That Have Always Heretofore Been Made Against "Front Strike" Machines.

Visible writing has always been considered as desirable by practically all typewriter manufacturers, but the difficulties to be overcome in construction in order to secure durability have discouraged the very large adoption of these machines. The invention of the method of assembling the type bars as it is done in the Fox Visible has, however, made possible the use of a wide pivotal bearing in the type hanger, thus insuring the most perfect alignment at all times and a durability that is equal to that claimed for any "basket type" machine. In building this new model, we have all the advantage of the knowledge that we have gained in building and placing the regular Fox models on the market and we are able to avoid all those experiments found in new machines which are so expensive to the purchaser.

Here is a Short Description.

THE TYPE HANGER—The hanger has a pivot bearing 7-16 of an inch wide. This allows the use of a heavy type bar, providing an adjustable pivot bearing which takes up wear as it occurs, thereby giving a permanent alignment that is impossible to secure with a narrow bearing without adjustment, and avoiding the trouble caused where "forced alignment" is necessary. This is the feature that has heretofore been considered as being impossible to secure in a visible writing typewriter. It is found only in the Fox and places the Fox Visible in a class by itself.

TWO COLOR RIBBON—The ribbon movement on this machine is simply perfection. It reverses and oscillates automatically, requiring no attention from the operator from the time it is put on until worn out. When a two color ribbon is used, by simply touching a button on the keyboard the second color is secured instantly without raising the hand or even looking.

THE INTERCHANGEABLE CARRIAGE—The carriage is so constructed that it can be quickly removed and a carriage of different length substituted. One machine can be purchased with different sizes of carriages, thereby effecting a great saving over the ordinary method of buying a long carriage machine complete. The carriage is ball bearing and runs with a tension of only 1 lb.

PERFECT VISIBLE WRITING—The entire line is visible all the time.

THE KEY TENSION—The force required on the part of the operator to print a letter is only 2 1/4 ounces. This is from 25 to 50 per cent. less than any other. It is a vital thing both from the operator's standpoint of less fatigue and the owner's of greater durability.

THE LINE LOCK—When the carriage reaches the end of a line, the keys lock and nothing more can be written until the release button is used or the carriage returned to begin a new line.

ALUMINUM KEY LEVERS—Key levers are made of aluminum. It is more expensive than steel or wood, but it is very much more desirable.

TABULATOR—The Fox ten stop decimal tabulator is attached when ordered, at slight additional expense. It is the only decimal tabulator in use on a visible typewriter.

Every feature on this machine has been tried out and demonstrated as successful on the Regular Models of the Fox. Unprejudiced experts have without hesitation pronounced the machine a marvel.

Ask your nearest typewriter dealer to show you this machine. If he cannot we will make it easy for you.

The regular models of the Fox are still the most perfect machines of their kind and their manufacture will be continued as before.

Opera House, Chicago

The most screamingly funny play that has been enjoyed by Chicago playgoers in many a season is Leo Ditrichstein's delightful laughter play, "Before and After," which is about to enter upon the farewell week of its limited engagement at the Grand Opera House in that city, where it is repeating its brilliant New York hit and keeping its large audiences in roars of merriment nightly. Mr. Ditrichstein gave playgoers two great laughing hits in his previous signal successes of "All on Account of Eliza" and "Are you a Mason?" but this latest masterpiece of footlight fun eclipses even those triumphs of his in genuine worth and in irresistible comical appeal. The ludicrous complications which result from the invention of certain joy-producing Sunny Jim powders keeps the fun bubbling from start to finish and the third act, a very unusual thing, indeed, is every bit as interesting and full of unexpected surprises as the first. It is a clean-cut, thoroughly enjoyable and witty entertainment interpereted by a galaxy of the best farceurs and comediennes on the stage of today. Fritz Williams as the nervous Dr. Page, who is so exhilarated by the marvelous Elixir of Happiness that he gets himself into all sorts of innocently intended but dangerous scrapes, and Geo. C. Boniface Jr., as the breezy ex husband of a comic opera prima donna, in search of a long lost daughter, have never been seen to better advantage; while Leo Ditrichstein himself achieves a finished and artistic characterization of the festive French Colonel, who mixes pleasure with revenge in a curious fashion. Katherine Florence, Georgie Lawrence and Jean Newcombe adorn the various scenes with their beauty and grace and fashionably gownned attractiveness, as well as add to the gaiety by their clever impersonations. As for Kenyon Bishop, she scores one of the signal hits of the entire piece by her side splittingly humorous portrayal of the comic opera prima donna who has had such an eventful career and "done everything from 'The Hbly City' to the 'split'."

The postmaster general has issued a notice that all rural mail carriers have the right of way in all country roads and that all other carriages must surrender the right of way to the rural carriers. This order was issued as the result of numerous complaints on the part of carriers, who were not able to deliver their mail in the specified time because carriages and conveyances they met refused to give them the right of way and often made it necessary for them to drive slower or to wait until the road was clear before they could proceed. A fine will be charged to all who in anyway interfere with the speedy delivery of the rural mail and as a carrier is also fined and sometimes deposited for late delivery, he will no doubt see to it that any person responsible for his delay will bear the punishment instead of himself.

Two Famous Pioneer Trees.
Two of the most famous pioneer trees in the west have a well merited place in history. These were the Lone Jack tree and the Lone Elm. The first is in western Missouri and the second in eastern Kansas. A good pioneer horseman might have covered the distance between them in a day. At the Lone Jack tree a great battle was fought during the civil war. At the Lone Elm caravans over the Santa Fe trail halted for the night and here were united two branches of the famous old trail.—Kansas City Star.

The railroad tax payment contest is finally ended and payments of the full amount of taxes withheld by the railroads during the past several years are now being paid into the state treasury, accompanied by twelve per cent interest. The problem of wisely expending the millions, which the state's victory will distribute to school offices in every township and school district is all that now remains, and that problem is of the kind usually accepted with cheerful philosophy.

Every day through the spring and summer and autumn, and almost every day in winter, a boat leaves one of the East river piers bound for the deep-sea fishing-bands, writes Bertha H. Smith, in Four-Track News. Every passenger on board is of that true democracy, the democracy of the rod and reel. Not death itself is more of a common leveler than the fishing-rod, and who crosses the gang-plank of this fishing steamboat leaves class distinction behind.
The professional man feeling business for a day, the clerk with a holiday on his hands, the mechanic thrown into idleness by a strike, the invalid who finds the city irksome and longs for a sniff of the sea, old men, young boys and all ages and stages of mankind between, may be seen in the stream of people that dribbles along the pier while the sun is yet dodging behind the Brooklyn housetops. The man who would go deep-sea fishing must be up betimes, for it is a good three hours' run to the fishing-banks.

It stops all losses and drains and quickly restores the patient to what nature intended—a healthy and happy man with physical, mental and nerve powers complete.

For over 25 years Drs. K. & K. have treated with the greatest success all diseases of men and women. If you have any secret disease that is a worry and a menace to your health consult our established physicians who do not have to experiment on you.

RYAN BIDS HASTY ADIEU

Convict Now Supposed to be Hiding in Swamp, Which is Surrounded by Armed Guards

Jackson, Mich., April 24.—After sawing through a three-foot wall and letting himself down to the court yard with a 20-foot rope, appropriated from the prison, George Ryan, serving a life sentence for the murder of Frank Schumacher, escaped from Jackson prison on Tuesday at 2:45 p. m.

Ryan had been engaged in washing windows in the east cell block, and during the absence of the keeper, climbed to the top of the cell block with the aid of electric wires, and with a chisel pried off boards which covered a hole made by escaping convicts some time ago, climbed through to the attic, then sawed his way through a three foot wooden wall, and with the aid of a stout rope and grappling hook, lowered himself to the prison yard and started for the street.

He was discovered while running through the yard by Warden Armstrong, who gave chase; but lost him within three blocks of the prison.

A posse was immediately formed and a systematic search of the city was made, but no trace of the convict was discovered. Later word was received that a man answering Ryan's description was seen entering a huckleberry swamp. Owing to the darkness it was impossible to search but the swamp was surrounded, and it is thought by the prison officials that the man's escape will be impossible.

Warden Armstrong is unable to account for Ryan's having the saw and rope, nor is he able to explain how it happens the convict's absence was not noticed by the guard during the length of time it necessarily took him to make his escape.

Ryan was convicted in September, 1904, for the murder of Frank Schumacher, of Jackson, and has been a model prisoner.

Cleveland's International Theatre.

The feature in theatrical circles last week was the announcement of a radical change in prices at the International Theatre, which, since W. S. Cleveland returned as manager, has gained the reputation of being the highest class vaudeville theatre in Chicago. The reduction went into effect last Monday when the regular spring and summer season was inaugurated at this popular theatre. The management has announced that hereafter at all week-day matinees, reserved seats will be sold throughout the entire house at one price, 10 cents, while for the Sunday, holiday and evening performances the prices will range from ten cents to thirty cents. The same high standard will be maintained in the acts presented in W. S. Cleveland's original greater vaudeville, This is really a declaration of war on the Vaudeville Trust. Another star bill has been prepared for the week beginning April 30. Louie Dacre, a singer of world wide reputation will come fresh from an entire winter's engagement in London and will bring with her the latest English song successes. "Col" Billy Link, the minstrel, accompanied by Willette Chartres, will be seen in a highly amusing sketch in which are introduced "The Colonel's" famous "hobo-can soldiers." Evans Lloyd and Carolyn Church will present their latest sketch entitled "The man Across the Way." The furiously funny Elinore Sisters, who have set all Chicago laughing with their original comedy concerts, have been engaged for another week and will offer several new specialties and songs. Other clever performers to be seen on the same bill are Swan and Westbrook, novelty entertainers; Malcolm and Chevett, European comedy duo; De Shields and Meh-ring, singers and dancers, Brown and Wilmot, marvelous instrumentalists and a number of others.

Heretofore the Pere Marquett R. R. Co. was unable to secure rates via the G & M. boat line, but now they are able to do so, which will be welcomed news to Buchanan citizens. The rate from here to Chicago via that route will be $1.86. The boat service will open up for daily traffic Sunday, April 22.

Miss Edith Fochtman, a trained nurse at Lockwood hospital, Petoskey, lost her life Monday evening in a horrible manner. While preparing for an operation requiring an alcohol bath, an explosion occurred which wrecked the operating room and burned and scalded Miss Fochtman so terribly that she died in a few hours, conscious to the last. She was the daughter of Henry Fochtman, one of Petoskey's wealthiest citizens, and had taken up the work of a trained nurse through love of humanity. She was well known and loved by all the younger society persons, among whom she had grown up from childhood.

The farm residence of Fred Fisher of Alba, was burned to the ground and the 9-months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Fisher was consumed by the flames. Mr. Fisher left the house for this place, about two miles distant, but could not have been out of sight when the flames appeared above the roof. Mrs. Fisher had taken three children with her to the neighbors on an errand, soon after her husband left, leaving the 9-months-old baby alone. Neighbors rushed to the scene, but could not reach the child, which was left in the kitchen. It is thought the fire started from the kitchen stove.

Mrs. Sarah Hart, wife of John Hart, a laborer, of Alpena, was burned to death Monday night under suspicious circumstances. The husband says her dress caught fire from a stove. He says she lived until morning, but he did not call a doctor because he thought she was not badly burned, although she was delirious. The couple were heard quarreling during the night. It is alleged that both had been drinking, as on previous occasions, and the lamp was upset. Mrs. Hart was 49 years old and leaves four children.

While plowing on the farm of Frank L. Dodge, in the northern part of the city of Lansing Tuesday afternoon, a farm hand plowed up a human skull. Investigation revealed the presence of an entire skeleton, presumably of a young woman, as it was evidently about five feet in height and the feet in perfect condition. A pair of shoes, in a fair state of preservation, was found with the body which, it is presumed, was buried at least forty years ago. The field in which the bones were found had been plowed repeatedly. The identity of the skeleton cannot be established, but it is thought to be that of an Indian girl.

Dame Fortune smiled on Daniel Berry, a local trainmaster of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, Tuesday. Nine times out of ten a man would have lost his life under the same circumstances. Berry escaped with a broken leg. He was trying to board a fast moving train, at Kalamazoo, the speed of which he had not calculated properly. He was thrown directly under the train and by some miracle that he cannot explain, was hurled to the side of the track.

MAKES WORK EASIER

Buchanan People Are Pleased to Learn How it is Done

It's pretty hard to attend to duties, with a constantly aching back; with annoying urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills make work easier. They cure backache. They cure every kidney ill.

H. S. Powell, blacksmith, of 308 Railroad street, Dowagiac, Mich., says: "I cannot praise Doan's Kidney Pills enough. They have been a great friend to me. Like the majority of men who follow my calling, I have been annoyed for eight years with kidney complaint. There was a dull pain in my back almost all of the time, more particularly if I did a hard day's work, and some mornings I was so lame and stiff I could hardly straighten up. The kidney secretions were irregular at times highly colored, and in spite of all the remedies I used I did not get relief, until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. They certainly went to the right spot. From the first dose I commenced to improve. After completing the treatment not a symptom of the trouble remained."

Plenty more proofs like this from Buchanan people. Call at W. N. Brodrick's drug store and ask what his customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.
