A BUCHANAN

J. P. Who Makes The Fine Fit The Victim's Purse—Constable Arrested

It has been truthfully said that the justice of the peace is sometimes a peculiarity, and if someone does not watch him he will exceed his jurisdiction. It took a constable, a sheriff, a prosecuting attorney and a club to convince a Wyoming justice of the peace that he had no right to send a man to the penitentiary for life. Another justice in Utah sentenced a criminal to be hung on the following Friday between 12 and 1 o'clock of said day, but he couldn't enforce the sentence.

The other day a Buchanan justice of the peace, who appears to use a sliding scale in imposing fines, "soaked" a man $18, but the man stated that he had only six dollars and that he would see the justice in perdition before he would pay any more. The man was remanded back to jail, but was summoned back to the office of the justice a little later, and the fine was made to fit his purse, hence he parted with his six "saboles," which the J. P. pocketed and then adjourned court. This justice is the limit. He reminds us of a Badger justice who bound a young man over to appear and answer at the next term of the circuit court for the crime of chastity, and the evidence was entirely circumstantial, too.

At Buchanan the other day, the official foundations of the town were convulsed when the marshal arrested a constable, whom drink made temporarily unnaturally exhilarated, and which temporary exhilaration he advertised to a gaping, wondering world, with his hardshell hat hanging coquettishly on one ear, in a way that said to the eagle-eyed public: "I am chockful." And as aforesaid, the marshal considered it his duty to make a horrible example of his fellow lamb of the law, with the result that he "pinched" him and let him sit in a cell for an hour in unavailing regret and red-nosed remorse. But, as a Buchanan man said today, the constable got off without a fine, whereas a poor, old decrepid fellow was arrested in that town recently, was fined $15 and costs. Yes, it is a queer brand of justice they grind out at Buchanan.—Niles Star.

LOVELL IN CLASH WITH THE CLERK

Dispute Over Points in Law May Grow Warm—Lovell Thinks Any Petition Good Anywhere

County Clerk Miners and the Hon. N. V. Lovell are extremely likely to have a friendly but warm-clash before the present campaign is over.

Mr. Lovell was at the court house and secured blank petitions which he will circulate throughout the county. He casually asked the county clerk if it was really necessary to obtain a different blank for every precinct in the county and was assured that it was Mr. Lovell stated that he did not intend to circulate 32 blanks and that he would make one blank do for the whole county, he insisted that he had read the law carefully and that it was not necessary to use separate petitions for each precinct. "All that is necessary," said Mr. Lovell "is to get properly registered republican voters to sign and follow their signatures with the name of their precinct."

Here Mr. Miners objected, this manner of receiving names will make it almost impossible for him to check up the signatures to their respective precincts, while by following the other method the different precinct petitions can be taken separately and easily checked up. Mr. Lovell came back with the statement that this latter plan would mean far more work for him and that he did not believe that he could be compelled to do it. This ended the argument and whether Mr. Lovell will do as he promised or not remains to be seen. The printed petitions, furnished by the county, lead to the belief that the county clerk has taken the correct stand for all petitions read, "We, the undersigned, qualified electors of the,"—and then follows in small print the words, (insert No. of Precinct, Ward and City or Township) This seems to remove all doubt as to the question of whether signatures can be mixed from different parts of the county or not. All candidates with petitions out are having the signature from each precinct made out separately.

Members of the board of supervisors have worked their way into the controversy. Wednesday morning before the convening of the board there was a lively discussion of the point in the corridors. The democrats generally were inclined to take the side of Miners because they insist that as it was the intention of the framers of the law to make it complicated beyond all understanding it must have been intended that every candidate for county office was to circulate a separate petition in every voting precinct in which the candidate expects to get signatures. Jim Babcock was particularly vehement in his denunciation of the law. In his opinion there is no redeeming feature in the measure. Mr. Babcock has never been a very enthusiastic advocate of primary reform, but when he saw that it was bound to come he began to favor a compulsory and direct nomination for all offices, with the possible exception of city offices.

One of the enthusiastic supporters of Mr. Lovell's contention that it is unnecessary to put petitions in every voting precinct said that he thought the clerk's interpretation was merely one of convenience in the inspecting and counting of the names on the petitions. With petitions from every precinct it will be easy for the county clerk and his assistant to determine the eligibility of each signer. With the names on the petitions mixed among half a dozen wards or townships it will be more difficult to make the inspection.

Anyone wishing to purchase a first class rag carpet, would do well to call at Richards & Emersons, and examine one made by the Ladies of the Advent Christian church.

TALKS BUSINESS

Board of Supervisors Listen to County Treasurer Schultz

The Board of Supervisors convened again Tuesday morning in full strength and went to work immediately. County Treasurer Schultz addressed the committee on the necessity of having an adding machine in his office. The treasurer has had a machine in his office for some time on trial and it has given complete satisfaction. It has made it possible to issue the regular work of the office in half the usual time and at the same time in a faultless and accurate manner. The machine which Mr. Schultz favors, copies the figures on a slip of paper and totals them all with the pulling of a lever. A committee of three were appointed to look the matter over carefully and report to the board on Thursday. Supervisors Pool, Stemm and Babcock were selected and they will probably report favorably upon the project as it certainly at being that no office of this kind should be without.

The promoters of the Abbott voting machine were also present at the court house and had one of their machines set up in the corridor. The supervisors have all been instructed in the mysteries of "machine" voting and although some of them may have been acquainted with these methods before, the Abbott differs materially from any other machine now on the markets and is guaranteed to be simpler and positively accurate. The promoters are introducing it for the purpose of making the supervisors familiar with this up-to-date method of casting a ballot and influencing the members of the county board to place them in their precincts. Some of the bills which the board will have to deal with were allowed Tuesday morning and a few referred to the committee.

UNCOVER CHILD MURDER

Heavy Blow on Back of Head Caused Death—Leg Cut Off

Detroit, June 26—What is believed to be one of the most cold blooded child murders yet perpetrated in Detroit was unearthed on Hamilton boulevard, Highland park, by the discovery of the mangled form of an infant about eight months old, protruding from a sand heap in a brush thicket.

The discovery was made by E. C. Hovey, Glendale avenue, Highland park, who with the assistance of Alex Groesbeck and James May, two men who were passing on horseback, removed the body from the place where it was hidden.

After the post mortem County Physician Forbes said: "There are evidences that the right leg was cut party off and the left limb shows many cuts and bruises that would not appear if they had been inflicted after death. The wound on the back of the head could not have been caused very well except by a heavy blow, and this taken together with the other marks and cuts on the body make me think the baby was murdered."

The body had been mutilated to such an extent that the sex could not be determined. The sheriff's office and city police department are at work on the case.

How to buy good Clothes

You know your own business, of course, but do you know anything about the clothing you wear? You buy machinery or wagons or live stock, only after a thorough investigation of their merits, yet you buy clothing mainly on its looks behind a fine plate glass window, or because you have been in the habit of buying it at a certain store.

Do you know what is inside of the clothing? Do you know whether the fabric is all-wool? Do you know whether it has been tailored by hand or machine?

Suppose you begin a little investigation. Come in at any time to The Biggest and Best Clothing Store in South Bend, and we will tell you why we allow nothing but dependable fabrics to be used in our clothing, and show you how we test fabrics to prove them all-wool. Why we permit nothing but hand tailored work in the important parts of the clothing, we will even rip open a coat and show you what hand tailor work means.

Officers from the jail are hot in pursuit of four persons—three prisoners from the jail at Pontiac on Tuesday, and a small boy who kindly turned these prisoners loose. While Chief Deputy Tom Wiley was in charge of the jail a small boy, whose identity is unknown, was playing about the halls and corridors of the place. Herman Andrews, a boy; Bennie Fairbanks, a boy; and Fraud Miller, a young man, were in the detention cell on the second floor. They sent the gamin in the corridors out to buy tobacco. When he came back he shot the bolt that held the prisoners in and they walked out and disappeared.

Mike St. George, a farmer living near Dundee, was struck Monday and instantly killed by an east-bound Lake Shore train while driving over a crossing in a buggy. A broken whisky bottle was found in his coat after the tragedy. St. George was on his way home from town at the time and on hearing the approach of the train reined in his horse. He evidently changed his mind, however and decided not to wait, for he commenced lashing the horse. The engine was upon him before he realized the fatal blunder he had made. The horse was killed. Besides his widow the man is survived by several children.

Answering a call at her door early Tuesday Mrs. Myra Haines, keeper of a boarding house at 38 East Pike street, Pontiac, was knocked down and then slashed five times with some sharp instrument, cuts being made all over her body. She is not seriously hurt, though suffering from the shock. Her 14-year-old son had heard the noise, and came running down stairs. He caught up a chair and beat the assailant over the head with it. The man then ran. Mrs. Haines was formerly Mrs. William Cole. She was divorced about a year ago, and then married Haines. Haines was visiting his sick mother

With her clothes aflame from a pan of coals on the porch of her home, Tuesday, set there to drive away mosquitoes, Miss Armilla Whitman, aged 21, daughter of Lorenzo Whitman, a farmer living three miles west of Perry, attempted to save herself by leaping into a tank of water. She was unsuccessful, but her agonizing screams alarmed other members of the family, who extinguished the blaze. The girl, however, was burned from head to foot and it is believed cannot recover.

Miss Mary Weisenmeier, aged 24 of Monroe city, recently a nurse at St. Vincent's hospital in Toledo, was injured in a peculiar manner in that city, Tuesday. She had escorted a patient to the car when an explosion, presumably a torpedo, was struck by the wheels of a car. A bit of flying iron struck Miss Weisenmeier, cutting her throat and penetrating downward toward the lungs. Her condition is serious. Miss Weisenmeier is the support of an invalid father. She studied evenings to be a nurse, while clerking in stores in Detroit in another part of the city. William Cole is supposed to be in Alberta, but the police are making inquiries about him. Mrs. Haines insists she is not able to tell who her mysterious assailant is.

Mrs. John Scott, a feeble old lady, was attacked by a cat in a field adjoining her home near Ionia, Sunday afternoon. One of her arms was severely lacerated, but the wounds are not considered serious. Mrs. Scott approached the cat, which had been a pet in her house for six years, without the slightest suspicion. As she reached down to stroke its fur the animal flew into a rage and clawed her arm with teeth and claws. It was several moments before the old lady's screams brought help. Rescuers had literally to tear the cat from her arm.

"The Alcayde"

At the Grand Opera House, Chicago, the new comic opera success, "The Alcayde," continues to crowd Mr. Hamlin's playhouse at every performance with enthusiastic audiences who shower their plaudits on the excellent Company engaged in its presentation. "The Alcayde" shows a refreshing return to the days of genuine comic opera, more so than any work produced in Chicago in many a day.

The beauty of many of its melodies will help a great deal towards making the future reputation of its gifted composer, who, accepting the possibilities allowed by the Spanish-Moorish settings in which land the author

We have been informed that Highway Commissioner Nelson expects to place a watering trough at the foot of Moccasin hill. Mr. Nelson is commended in this act, for it is certainly a humane one. Rev. Frank C. Watters, pastor of the M. E. Church, will preach on the subject, "The Ideal Soldier," Sunday morning. All of the old soldiers are most earnestly and cordially invited to attend this service. All others are welcome. The evening service will also be an interesting one. It will be a unique service; a surprise is in store for those who attend.

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, itching of the skin, eruptions or blotches, ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general depression of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old fogey" treatment—beware of mineral poisons—beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, no matter how long it has been in the system. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and eliminates all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the patient feels prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life. CURES GUARANTEED OR NO PAY. 25 Years in Detroit. 250,000 Cured.

POTATO BLIGHT.

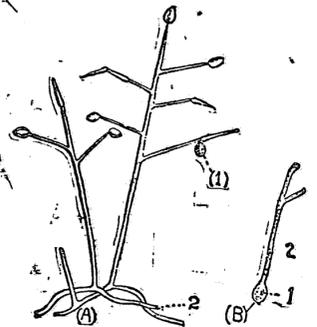

A Troublesome Disease Which Thrives in Damp Weather—How to Treat It.

Of all diseases which affect the potato none can be more dreaded than the blight; late blight, as it is sometimes called. It is not caused by wet weather as is the widespread opinion, but, as we have noted, by a parasitic fungus (a plant). The idea that the blight is caused by wet weather arises from the fact that it generally occurs only in wet seasons. The truth of the matter is, the spores (seeds) of the fungus only develop more quickly at such a time, thus giving rise to the disease.

Seldom we see it occurring in a dry season. In July and August, if the season is wet and conditions are favorable, the spores of the fungus will germinate and produce the disease with surprising rapidity. Many times whole patches are destroyed in a few days.

The first appearance of the disease is noted by the leaves turning a brown color; first in spots, but eventually it spreads like a wave over the whole leaf, giving it the appearance of having been bitten by the frost. Later the leaves and stems become blackened, and give off a characteristic odor when wet.

On examining closely the lower surface of an affected leaf we find that it presents a whitish, mildew appearance. Now if we should examine some of this whitish material carefully with a compound microscope we should find it to be made up of a large number of minute, branching, tree-like forms (see diagram). These are the spore bearing organs or branches of the fungus, which bear upon them minute seed-like bodies called spores.

These spores, or conidia, as they are termed, when ripe fall off; many fall upon the ground, a few perhaps fall upon the surface of other leaves. Now when one of these spores falls upon a leaf if conditions of heat and moisture are right it will germinate and, like a seed, send out a root-like protuberance known as the mycelium.

After germination the mycelium grows and enters the interior of the potato leaf through one of the minute breathing pores (stoma); once inside the leaf it makes an extended growth which kills the tender leaf tissue. After a time this mycelium sends up branches again which bear spores. Thus the life cycle is completed.

Oftentimes we notice that when this blight attacks a patch of potatoes the tubers will rot. The question at once arises whence the cause of this rotting? You will remember that when the spores became mature they fell off; some few fell on other leaves, while many fell to the ground.

When one of these spores falls to the ground near the base of the plant if it happens to fall upon a tuber which is exposed, it will germinate, and send its mycelium into the tuber, where it continues to grow, causing the tuber to rot. According to Masseé the tuber may become infected by the mycelium of the spore growing down diseased stems of the plant. In either case the mycelium may live over winter within the potato, and, if this potato be planted the next year, the disease will be present; or if affected potatoes are placed in a cellar and sweating takes place the mycelium will grow and re-infect other tubers.

There is no direct means of killing this fungus since the root, or mycelium, remains within the leaf out of reach of all poisons. Even if we could apply the poison to the mycelium anything which would kill it would also kill the tender leaf tissue. We can only apply preventive means.

Spraying with Bordeaux mixture has been found effective in that it kills the spores of the fungus which fall upon it. In applying the mixture the first application should be made on the first appearance of the disease, after which it should be applied at intervals varying from ten days to two weeks. Bordeaux also has beneficial effects on plants other than those arising from the mere protection against fungus. The copper it contains has a stimulating effect on the growth of the plant.

To prevent spores from being washed into the hills and thus infecting the tubers, "hilling up" is advised in that it allows, first, water to drain away from hill; second, potatoes are covered more deeply.

THE CALIFORNIA PATIO.

Enclosed Court of the Mexican Style of Dwelling Is a "Snug Harbor."

The patio is of several kinds as seen in America. One is completely surrounded by the house, as the splendid patio of the Hotel Coronado, at Coronado Beach, Cal., probably one of the largest in the world, where a great variety of palms and tropical plants are seen. Then there is the half patio, says American Homes and Gardens, where the house is built around a court on three sides, the rear side being left open. Again the patio may be a court open on two sides, several of which can be seen in Pasadena. In one the patio was an after consideration, and has been extended to the south, the north and east walls of the house forming the closed portion, while the others were constructed of Moorish arches. The pavement of this patio is tiling; a low rail runs around it, and there is a small fountain in the center and a garden all around it, in which are placed plants noted for their beauty and climbing habits; one a bougainvillea that covers the east wall with a blaze of color, so that in looking through the Moresque corridor from without they are outlined against this color scheme. Splendid roses trail over the top of the patio or its sides, the top being left open. In this snug harbor the owner sits every day in winter embowered literally among choice flowers, a fine lawn reaching away on every side from the mission house, forming the frame of the picture.

HIS OFFICIAL OPINION.

The Captain Thought the Soup Was Good Enough for Tea or Coffee.

Rear Admiral Longecker, who recently retired, was talking one day at League Island navy yard about discontent among soldiers and sailors, relates the Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Men are often discontented without reason," he said, "but oftener they have good ground for their grumbling, and it is because their officers are stupid or lazy that conditions do not improve."

"I remember once visiting a pompous, handsome, stupid army officer."

"During my visit a private approached the officer with a full cup and saucer in his hand."

"Well, Binks, my man?" said the officer in a condescending tone.

"Captain," said the private, saluting, "I'll ask ye to taste this here. I won't make no complaint. I'll just ask ye to taste this slop, and if ye don't say, by—"

"That will do, Binks," the captain interrupted, in his dignified way, for Binks was getting angry, and he took the cup from the man, bent forward stiffly and swallowed a couple of mouthfuls of the liquid.

"Then he looked at the private, calmly."

"This is not bad," he said. "I can't taste anything wrong with this, Binks. By the way, what is it? Tea or coffee?"

Sacredness of the Mantilla.

Many attempts are being made in London and in Paris, says a London report, to adapt the Spanish mantilla to our use. To the Spanish women the mantilla stands for all that is national and characteristic, and so intimate a part of herself is the mantilla deemed that it is even held sacred by law, and cannot be seized for debt.

Prejudice.

"When I accuse a man of being prejudiced," said Uncle Eben, "I generally find, on thinkin' it over, dat I's merely complainin' 'cause he ain't prejudiced de same way I am."—Washington Star.

No Trouble.

Mr. Stopleat—I would go, but your dear eyes hold me.
Miss Tersleep—Well, I'll go to sleep presently, and then you can run along.—Cleveland Leader.

PATCH UP OLD SCHOONERS

Artisans Repair with Great Skill Chicago's Timeworn Lake Craft.

Hearts of oak in the Chicago schooner fleet are breaking. Beam and stanchion, rail and brace, the picturesque lumber carrier of other days, is going down before the attacks of time. Wind and wave are winning victories which send the stout ships of the old-time fleet with greater and greater frequency to the shipyard, and boats which once boasted of records made in runs from Chicago to Michigan lumber ports and back are yearly surrendering to the fire of competition and seeking their last port in humanity, says the Chicago Daily News.

There still remain active, however, 50 of the thousands of boats which once crowded Chicago harbor and furnished business for a hundred tugs. Their masters, grown gray in fighting battles with gales and ice noses, still cling to the ships they love. Affectionately do some of their owners regard the old-time craft, and many tricks of shipcraft are resorted to that some of the boats may be kept in service.

Water and dirt, heat and cold, combine their forces in attacks on the old ships. Here and there weaknesses develop. Pieces of oak falter and crack and dry rot does deadly work. Then comes a call for an artisan with the skill of a violinmaker. Oak chips fly and hammers ring until the weak pieces are taken out and replaced by new timbers. Patch on patch the work goes on until the ship's enemies reach a vital spot, when, worn and torn, she is docked, stripped of her canvas, and left a skeleton.

ORIGIN OF "TWENTY-THREE"

Hero of Dickens' Story Who Died on the Guillotine Was in Line on That Number.

Dickens lovers have no trouble these days in proving that all of our supposed up-to-date Americanisms are merely stolen expressions from their favorite author. They have indeed found that Dickens used many phrases and expressions that have been taken up to-day as universal by-words, and the latest acquisition of the enthusiasts of this sort is told in the statement that Dickens originated the expression "twenty-three," which in the vernacular of the present is used to express "all in," "chase yourself," "skiddoo," "the end," and many other things.

It will be remarked by anybody, says the Kansas City Star, that in the last chapter of "The Tale of Two Cities" Dickens describes the procession of human-leaden tumblers to the guillotine. In one of them is Sidney Carton, the hero. In a garden overlooking the hideous machine is a group of old women knitting. As the heads fall in the basket one after another the women knit stealthily and count them out loud. The paragraph describing the last moments of Sidney Carton reads thus:

"The murmuring of many voices, the upturning of many faces, the pressing on of many footsteps in the outskirts of the crowd, so that it swells forward in a mass, like one great heave of water, all flashes away. Twenty-three!"
There you have it—You can take it for what it is worth.

RITE'S ODDLY AMERICANIZED

Chinese in This Country Substitute Greenbacks for Brass in Burial Ceremony.

Unconverted Chinese who have lived in America long enough to be touched by the modernizing influence of the new west, have given a peculiar twist to their already peculiar burial service. It was according to this modernized rite, reports the Philadelphia Record, that many crisp United States dollar bills were buried, together with food, in the coffin of Chin Yeng, whose funeral took place on a recent Sunday in this city. The original Chinese ceremony calls for much burning of incense in the room where the body lies in state and at the burial that food and "cash," be interred with the corpse. The "cash," or Chinese money is to pay the guide who shows the departed soul across the Confucian Styx, and the food prevents him from fainting along the way from hunger. But the American-Chinese is no longer particular that Chinese money accompanies the spirit. He reasons that American dollars are as good, and certainly more easily obtained here and that the wanderer can surely find a bank of exchange in the land of spirits where he can convert the sound money of one of the most prosperous nations on earth into any currency the other world requires.

Sunlight for All the Leaves.

The telegraph plant of India has a method all its own for catching the sunshine. Each of its leaves is composed of three leaflets. The larger terminal one erects itself during the day and turns sharply down at night, while the other two smaller leaflets move constantly, day and night, describing complete circles with a peculiar jerking motion like the second hand of a watch. Occasionally they rest for a period and then go on again, thus bringing every part of every leaf to the full action of the sunlight.—Telegraph Age.
