BUCHANAN BEAUTIES TO PARADE STAGE TONIGHT

Now Here's the Proposition

There's Pups and then There's Pups. Bi Haws. Oh, when I was a little boy I used to have a pup...

Whenever he could find a bone he'd go and dig a hole, and plant his bone and snugly fill it over.

These town trustees who spend their time in planting sewer pipe remind me often of that self-same pup.

They hold a paw waw round it and they chew on it awhile, those very pup-like village councilmen.

What is perhaps the finest object of art ever on display in Buchanan is being shown this week at the home of Miriam Siraganian on Devey Avenue, in the form of a beautiful Persian rug, aged over 100 years, and telling in pictorial form the Persian version of the Cinderella legend.

The rug is 11x16 feet in dimension, and is composed of in the neighborhood of 16,000,000 handmade knots, estimated on the basis of the number of running knots to the inch. It is believed to have been the life work of a single unknown Persian artist, who gave his life to his masterpiece and then passed into the oblivion that enshrouds all of the artist rug makers. This rug is known to have been in this country for four years, and is similar to pieces hanging in Detroit, New York and Boston, rug collections. It is priced at $25,000.

William A. Fox, Former Resident, Is Buried Here

William A. Fox passed away in his home, 7410 Kimbark Avenue, Chicago, Ill., Saturday evening, April 6th, 1929, at the age of 60 years, 7 months and 5 days.

He was born in Buchanan in 1868. For the past thirty-five years he has resided in Chicago where he conducted a men's furnishing store. He was the son of Perry Fox, pioneer hardware dealer here.

Mr. Fox was affiliated with the Grand Crossing Lodge No. 776, F. and A. M., of Chicago. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruby Fox; two sons, Robert D. and J. Ardin Fox; one daughter, Miss Janice Fox, all of Chicago; also cousins, Mrs. Ida Emerson, Mrs. Alice Tourje, Buchanan, and a number of other relatives. A son, John Perry, preceded his father in death, March 23, 1926, at the age of 26 years.

Funeral services were held in Chicago Monday afternoon, and the body was brought to Buchanan Tuesday afternoon on the 12:35 train and taken to Oak Ridge cemetery, where interment was made in the family lot, under the auspices of the Buchanan Lodge No. 65.

The new garage building now under construction by Jesse Lauer and Charles Babcock for the local Graham-Paige agency is to be completed by May 1, according to present plans, the brick and cement walls having been completed today by W. J. Miller. The building is to be a two-story structure with two four room flats in the second story.

POOR JOINTS ARE CAUSE OF SEWER LEAKS

Tile Pumped Bare of Water First Time Tuesday. INSPECTION HELD

Engineers Present Decide the Work is Faulty. Now at last it can be told.

The Fortage street sewer leaks because there are holes between the joints large enough to throw away proverbial dog through, due to faulty installation.

This much was arrived at Tuesday morning in the first actual examination made since its installation last summer. After a dye test had failed to locate the leaks, Contractor Reed sank a shaft protected by pilings to the level of the pipe 14 feet under ground, and installed two pumps. The flow of water in the hole was checked by sandbags and the hole pumped dry, so that the tile was exposed for the first time.

In this manner only two tiles were uncovered, but in each case it was found that the joints were not well connected. In one the Prestite cement had not been well pressed in, and in the other there was a quarter inch interval on the sides between the two half shafts placed on top and bottom to make the junction.

Parties present stated that with this evidence before him, Mr. Reed was unwilling to acknowledge that the difficulties were due to faulty installation. The tile was laid under water.

However, a statement to the effect that the joints uncovered were defective was signed by Engineer Moore of the office of former city engineer Linderick of Kalamazoo, who had been retained in an advisory capacity by Reed. City Engineer J. B. Toyne and Trustee Matt Kelling represented the city of Buchanan.

The next move is up to Contractor Reed, according to administration heads, but the move must be fairly prompt.

GRAYS BECOME OFFICIAL TEAM FOR BUCHANAN

BLUES REQUISIT IN PACE, SO FRED MEAD SAYS

Our blue birds are gray birds now. The Buchanan Blues, Southwestern Michigan leaders in the great national pastime of pounding the covers off, are no more.

Or if they are any more, they will be under the sponsorship of some other manager than Fred Mead, who says that as far as he is concerned, they simply ain't.

Mead stated that he was willing to turn the field and the available talent over to the Buchanan Grays, who have already donned uniforms three times this spring in practice. The Grays have begun early with nearly all their old line up intact and a number of new candidates in addition. The nucleus of old stars who reported for practice Wednesday and Sunday were: pitchers, Mitchell, Morse, Marrs; first, Bud Proud; second, Pfingst; short, Kain; third, Chain; left field, Roti; center field, Shreves; right field, Ferguson.

The Grays are again under the management of William (Bill) Baker, who is now negotiating for games, in hopes of staging the seasonal curtain raiser Sunday, April 20.

H. W. Riley, R. Wegner, Phil Dilley, Gilbert Turner, Bert Rohl, George Russell, Myra Andlauer, Ethel Beistle, and Margaret Moser attended the Public Relation banquet and meeting of the Twir Branch at Mishawaka Monday evening. About 200 were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Jefferson of Oak Park, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dalrymple of South Bend, were Sunday callers at the home of Mrs. M. W. Fowler.

EGGERT, HEAD CO. SCHOOLS, PASSES AWAY

Principal and Superintendent of Buchanan Schools for Fourteen Years. WAS WIDELY POPULAR

Local Friends go to Funeral H. C. Stark is Pall Bearer. Buchanan was called on during the present week to mourn the loss of Benjamin F. Eggert, former high school principal and superintendent of schools for periods aggregating 14 years, and the leading figure in education in Berrien county.

While Eggert has spent the past six years in St. Joseph since his election as county commissioner of schools in 1923, Buchanan has claimed him as a citizen, since he was elected to the post from this place, and had served here longer than any place else. Eggert was elected as principal of the local high school in 1907, acting in that capacity for three years, when he went to Three Oaks as superintendent. After three years there, he returned to Buchanan as superintendent of schools, remaining here 11 years, until his election to the post of county school commissioner in 1923. He was widely popular here, and effected many improvements, including the erection of the present senior and junior high school building.

As a head of the school system of the county, Eggert made an exceptional record, lifting the rural school system to a higher plane of efficiency and winning the loyal affection of teachers, pupils and patrons alike. Carrying the election by a two to one vote over two opponents in 1923, his popularity has been such that he had no opposition in succeeding elections.

Among the accomplishments of the six year period he has been in office are the following: establishment of health work among the school children which attracted state wide attention and which was awarded the bronze trophy offered by the Lions Club of Lansing for the best work of that kind in the state; appropriation for dental work in county schools; aid in organization of Parent-Teachers associations over the county, of which he is said to have attended over 100 meetings at his own expense, initiation of annual county spelling bee; establishment of a system of group meetings covering the entire county which brought each individual teacher in touch with other teachers at least twice yearly in addition to the institute; standardization of 17 schools.

Eggert died at 2 a. m. Sunday at his home at Glendon, near the little town where he had begun his educational career in 1898. He had been ill for the past year, and submitted to an operation last summer.

He was born June 17, 1873, in St. Joseph township, Berrien county. He was largely a self educated man, having qualified as a teacher by study at home and while keeping a small country grocery at Glendon. He finished two years of high school at St. Joseph, and passed the county examination for a third grade certificate, but could get no school. He worked in a St. Joseph dry goods store that summer, and then secured a country school in 1892. From 1893 to 1896 he taught the Stewart school near the home where he died. During 1895-6 he kept a small grocery at Glendon, living in the rear of the store building. He bought a farm west of Baroda in 1896, owning it until 1903. In the meantime he taught the Ruggles, Hinchman and Baroda schools, serving as principal of the latter school.

In addition to many of his old friends and neighbors here, the following deputation represented the Buchanan schools at the funeral Tuesday: Harold C. Stark, (pall bearer), Miss Gertrude Simmons, Miss Lillie Apell, and J. A. White (school board).

Six school superintendents acted as pall bearers. They were: E. P. Clarke, St. Joseph; Theodore Close, Three Oaks; D. E. Patterson, New Buffalo; Harold Stark, Buchanan; Earl Watkins, Millburg; and L. L. Close, Coloma.

B.H.S. WILL COMPETE FOR TRACK HONOR

Thirteen Events Fast Field Runners To Don Spikes and Shorts. The annual inter-class Buchanan High School track meet will be held at Athletic Park Friday afternoon, April 26, at 1 o'clock. Each of the four classes will be permitted to enter two men each of thirteen events, making eight contestants in each event. Each man may be entered in only three events besides being a member of the four-man 880-yard relay team for his class. All entries must be made by Tuesday, April 23.

The thirteen events to be pulled off are: Pole vault, 220-yard low hurdles, 15-pound shot put, mile run, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, discuss throw, running broad jump, high jump, javelin throw, 850-yard 4-man relay, (each man running 220 yds.

Former inter-class field meets have been very successful, resulting in uncovering considerable promising talent in the high school. They also placed the local athletes in position and put them into condition to compete in district meets.

Prespects are good for cleaning up in district and regional meets in the mile, with little Rothruchs, last year's sensation back, and going stronger than ever; in the quarter or half with Easton, lanky strider who set the pace for some of the best in his maiden efforts last year, bigger and stronger than ever this year; in the sprints with Pierce, all-round athlete, backed up by promising younger material such as Red Aronson, Pfingst and others; in the hurdles, with Efinger in fine condition and getting better form daily; in high jumps with Pierce going good. If Dunbar gets into condition from his injury in football, he will make it lively for the opposition in the 400-yard dash and in the javelin throw. Glenn Savoldi, finishing his senior year, may have something to say in the sprints up to the 440. The younger classmen have yet to be tried out, but they look promising and will undoubtedly strengthen the team that may be chosen to represent the whole school in dual and district meets.

Smallpox Scare Subsides; No New Cases Developed

The smallpox scare which assumed some proportions here ten days ago, has subsided, no new cases having been reported since the quarantine of two suspects. In the neighborhood of 200 men who were working in the same factory department have been vaccinated. City Health Officer Strayer reports three new cases of measles at the home of Perry Green and Steven Martin on Elizabeth street and of Tom Rose on Victory street. Ione Swain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Swain, is quarantined for a minimum of four weeks for scarlet fever at her home on Alexander street.

MAD CANINE RUNS AMUCK NEAR GALIEN

Cattle and Dogs on Six Farms Are Bitten. BULLET ENDS LIFE

Vet. Treats Stock; Sends Head of Dog to State. Cattle and dogs on six farms northwest of Galien were bitten on Tuesday afternoon by a small bull dog believed to have been affected by rabies.

The dog was finally killed by William Harfert, after it had bitten the dog and several of the herd of sixteen cows. Harfert had been informed of the coming of the dog by neighbors. It was first seen at the Mike Steffling farm, where it bit several head of cattle. Thence it went to the Mike Schimming farm and bit the dog, Thence it roved across lots to the Mando Potter and John Donald farms, where it bit the farm dogs.

At the Del Shank farm it bit the dog and several cattle. His travels were terminated at the farm of Harfert, who shot it after it bit several head of stock and the dog. The dog did not bite any people, not even threatening several who were near it before it was killed.

Harfert drove immediately to St. Joseph and reported the case to Sheriff Bryant, who dispatched Dr. Miller, Twin City veterinarian, to the farm where the stock had been bitten. Both cattle and dogs that had been bitten were treated with anti-rabies serum. Miller removed the head from the dog and sent it to the University of Michigan to determine whether or not the animal had rabies.

ELMER THANING EXPIRES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

SICKNESS IS RESULT OF AN INJURY RECEIVED IN U. S. SERVICE. Funeral rites were held Monday over the remains of Elmer A. Thanning, 29, well known resident of Buchanan and a veteran of the World war.

Thanning died Saturday afternoon at the Epworth hospital, South Bend, as the result of an abdominal tumor and peritonitis anemia, the former believed to have resulted from an injury sustained while serving in the navy.

He was born in Fall River, Mass., May 29, 1900, coming to Buchanan with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thanning in 1911. He served four years in the U. S. navy, including the World war period, and received his discharge in 1919. Since that time he made his home in Buchanan. He was for a time in business here, and for the past several years had worked as lineman for the Ionia & Michigan Electric Company. In addition to his parents, he is survived by three brothers, Carl, Walter and Alva, all of Buchanan. He was a member of Buchanan lodge No. 68 F. & A. M., also of the Niles chapter of the same lodge.

The funeral was held from the family home at 201 Days avenue, under Masonic auspices, with Rev. Harry Staver preaching the funeral sermon. Burial was made in Oak Ridge cemetery.

Now Leasing Block of 4,000 Acres Near Buchanan. ROYALTY OF EIGHTH

Carl Birkett of St. Joseph, Represents the Company. Galien is scheduled for the first active exploration for oil in this section, according to late developments there. An oil firm represented by Carl W. Birkett, of St. Joseph, and J. V. Dalton, experienced oil man from the Southwest, being in that section today leasing farms for immediate drilling.

Dalton and Birkett were in the Galien section yesterday, and stated that they had an oil rig enroute from Kentucky which would be in the field early in May. They had leased a total of 15 farms last night. While they did not state the definite boundaries of the territory they wished to acquire, they stated that they planned to lease a block of 3,000 or 4,000 acres lying immediately around Galien.

They are offering a standard Oklahoma lease providing for a royalty of 32 1-2 per cent of all oil found. Dalton is reported to have drilled in Kentucky, Oklahoma and California. He has inspected the Galien section and states that in his opinion its geology indicates the presence of oil, which opinion concurs with the reports of the state geologist.

Dalton states that he has experience in oil exploration in Kentucky, Oklahoma and California. It is reported in Galien that representatives of a Pennsylvania company have also been scouting for leases north of Galien recently.

M. L. Sands Returns From Kentucky

M. L. Sands, who has just returned from Louisville, is telling about the fragrance and beauty of cherry and peach blossoms, the thrill of the early morning calls of the robin and Kentucky cardinal in the blue grass state.

Mr. Sands left Buchanan over a month ago on the advice of his physician, Dr. E. T. Waldo, and went to Louisville to enter the Erie-Bandeen hospital in order to undergo the treatment offered there for diabetes with which he had been ill two years. He was under Dr. Bandeen's treatment for four weeks and after the first week his blood sugar was normal and remained so thereafter. At the same time he was having three meals a day and at present is on a good maintenance diet and is able to eat everything that an athlete in training is permitted to eat.

"I had the flu the first few days I was in Louisville," said Mr. Sands, "but after that I was active every day seeing the sights of Louisville. I liked Louisville and am sorry I did not get to see more of the state, especially the blue grass section. I had to be in the hospital for treatment and meals and I did not get time to make extended trips. However, I hope to return to Kentucky on a motor trip and then see all that I missed."

Now that Mr. Sands is home again he plans to be as active as ever in his market meeting his friends and customers and this summer he will help his father stock the new farm that he recently purchased.

It is usually said that young men's thoughts turn to love in the Spring—but not so with the Junior boys—their are seriously turned to making MONEY.

As the Junior plays did not make as big returns for the class as was expected, a drive is on to raise sufficient funds to put on the annual Junior-Senior reception in the most successful manner.

In order to raise this money the boys and girls of the class have divided into two groups, each raising money in every possible way to swell the fund.

Not only the boys are at work, the girls also have many plans to raise money.

Saturday of this week and next, there will be a bake sale at Runners' hardware. The food is promised to be delicious and it is hoped that the housewives of the city will take a rest Saturday and buy their baked goods at Runners, in this way helping themselves as well as the class in their drive.

Nor are the boys to be out-done! Within the next two weeks a basketball game will be scheduled between Juniors and Seniors with varsity men participating.

Are they in earnest over this? The girls are collecting old papers to sell to the junk man. Isn't that real ingenuity? We think so.

The choosing of vocations while in high school has long been a source of argument.

There are two great objections against an early vocational choice. The first is that there is danger of a mistake, the second is that an early vocational choice may lead to over specialization tending to destroy a balanced education.

A Michigan Repealer

The Michigan legislature has eliminated dry law violations and other "minor" felonies from the class of crimes punishable with life imprisonment in the case of the four-time offender. Gov. Green has announced that he will commute the life sentences of persons convicted under the old act. It is a great victory for sane public sentiment, which manifested itself emphatically throughout the country at the time when a Michigan mother was sent to prison for life for a fourth minor violation of the prohibition law.

The fanatics, of course, held out for the life sentence for a fourth, half-pint offense. Being fanatics, of course, they have no sense of proportion. To them the possession of a half-pint looks as bad as murder. The reason they are so plainly losing ground is that they do not realize that, to have a chance of being enforced, a law must have the backing of overwhelming public sentiment. This backing the life sentence law in its original form did not have—quite the reverse—and so it has been repealed and the minor offenders punished under it will be let out of prison to the satisfaction of well balanced and just-minded people everywhere. The spirit of liberty and justice is far from dead in this country and unlimited force cannot be made an effective substitute for public sentiment.

Hoosier Court's Slow Speed.

One case has been on the docket of the supreme court of Indiana for nine years, waiting the time when all parties might be ready for argument and decision. The man in the case was convicted of being a "fence" for stolen automobiles. The trial was found correct and the conviction affirmed by the court of appeals. Then it was taken to the supreme court. It was put to sleep by the use of permissible tricks of the law to delay the hearing. Almost all the known tricks have been played and the case is still asleep in the court, the man is free.

It is no credit to the supreme court of Indiana that such trickery can be played with a case in the court. In the record one will find nothing indicative of the dignified courage and sense of fair play the public feels the high courts possess. If the court had these qualities and had given them right play the case would have been decided and disposed of years ago. Having permitted the delay, no matter for what reason, the court is responsible.

It is such records and results as those shown in Indiana that cause thinking people openly to criticize the courts and lose part of their faith in them. It is a pretty difficult task to have unbounded confidence and pride in a court that permits such shameful delays. Indiana needs new judges on its supreme bench.

The Game and the Candle.

While raiding a home in Aurora, Ill., a few days ago, prohibition agents knocked the man of the house unconscious with the butt of a gun and shot and killed his wife as she bent over her husband. One of them, in turn, was shot in the leg by the 12 year old son of the householders in a belated effort to defend his mother. It was all over a gallon of home-made wine which the small boy said had been made for him as a tonic. Indignation ran so high against the prohibition agents among citizens of Aurora, that there appears to have been serious danger of a resort to mob rule. The agent who fired the shot that killed the woman said:

"I wish there was no such thing as prohibition. I'm through with it and if I am ever ordered out on such jobs as that one I will resign rather than go. Prohibition is a curse to officers of the law, citizens and everyone else. You see what it led to in this case. Try to enforce the law and see what happens."

"Try to enforce the law and see what happens." In other words, how can a law be enforced while a majority or at least a tremendous minority of the people refuse to regard it as a crime to do the forbidden thing? President Hoover is going to try to enforce the law and that is right, as long as it is on the books. An officer sworn to uphold the law can take no other position. But we hope he will be able to find open-minded and morally courageous men willing to serve on his prohibition investigation commission, men who will probe into the prevailing conditions and say what they honestly think.

A mother shot down in her own home for possessing a gallon of home-made wine! International complications over the sinking of a British rum runner with a clear right to destroy her under international law! A Jones law prescribing penalties so severe that eminent lawyers band together to defeat its purpose! The Bill of Rights on the scrap heap! Federal appropriations of $50,000,000 a year, already, for enforcement, and defiance of the law everywhere. A congressman smuggling in liquor! Official hypocrisy and corruption, rampant and all the prisons crowded! Is the game worth the candle, after all? That is what thoughtful drays everywhere are asking themselves. If it is, it is worth a lot, for prohibition is demanding a heavy price in money, morals, life, liberty and good will.

Well, we must be patient. Possibly President Hoover may accomplish something toward swinging public sentiment to the side of respect for the law but the hope is far more in his moral suasion than in any force he may apply. Do you suppose there is more or less respect for prohibition in Aurora because that mother was shot dead in her home for possessing a gallon of home-made wine?

Florida Oranges.

When a kind friend sends you a box of oranges you realize how superior the Florida orange is to the California product, even when the latter is consumed in the very place where it grew. These Florida oranges which kind friends send you are far better than those you buy in the market here, good as those often are. We suppose it is because they do not have to be handled commercially, by wholesaler and retailer, and hence may be left on the trees longer. They are all that oranges should be, the ne plus ultra and le dernier cri.

The only point of superiority which the California orange has, as compared with the Florida orange, is that it is easier to eat unless you know all the ropes. It peels readily, and the tegument covering the segments is relatively tender. But there is a way out of this difficulty presented in the Florida orange. Peel a belt about an inch and a half wide around the equator of the orange, being careful not to puncture the cutis, or inner skin. Cut the orange in two at the equatorial line and remove the seeds. Take a hemisphere kindly but firmly in hand and insert the upper teeth at the point indicated by instinct and remove and swallow all the available juice and whatever of the pulp that naturally comes along. Repeat the delightful process all the way around the hemisphere, then do likewise to the other hemisphere and then start on another orange. There is no ad astra per aspera in this method, as there is in other methods of eating Florida oranges. It is as easy as rolling off a log and as pleasant as youth with all its blossoms crowned. Boys, this is the life!

President Hoover's Telephone.

President Hoover has a telephone on his desk, just like any other business executive. There is some significance in that, for his predecessors in the telephone era protected themselves against the use of the instrument by not having one handy. The whole atmosphere of the White House offices now, men who have been there say, is the atmosphere of up-to-date, alert business efficiency. President Hoover is trying to run the country on strict business principles. Come to think of it, it is hard to imagine him without a telephone on his desk. The wonder is that he got along without one for three weeks.

Tom Johnson once said that the good executive is the one who decided quickly and is sometimes right. President Hoover already has given abundant evidence of his ability to decide quickly, and right too. He has isolated the government's oil reserves, he has announced a policy of publicity for income tax refunds, he has turned the $300,000 a year Mayflower over to the navy and he has told the southern Republican organizations where to head in. Thus far he has shown swiftness and sureness in making decisions. He is a good executive and needs a telephone on his desk.

The President's Fishing Camps

Two good fishing places, not distant from the national capital, have been located and to one of these places President Hoover will journey for a rest when wearied with the burden of official duties. He moved quickly to find suitable places that he might make use of them in safeguarding his health. It was wise and proper for him to do so. There will be many times during the term when he will need the peace and quiet of these places for a few days' rest.

One place is on the Rapidan in the Shenandoah National Park, the water is clear and cool, there are shady places and pools where fish congregate, an ideal place for trout. The fish there are large and numerous, fishing is offered in an ideal setting, the sport that might be offered to kings waits the coming of the president. The other place is in Maryland, conditions are good, the distance is not great, the trout are there and the pools offer their challenge to the man who seeks fish.

Recently the president mentioned the joy of the hours when out on smooth waters, or in the woods, along the river, where the noise of man's activities does not reach, where he could rest tired nerves and have his strength restored. There is physical weariness in fishing long continued but there is far greater joy, nerves worn in official studies are given a vacation and physical weariness is cured quickly by a night of restful sleep in a quiet place in the woods. Visits to the fishing places will protect health, and that is of large importance to the president and the nation.

It is announced upon the completion of a comprehensive survey that the business girl spends from 8 to 25 per cent of her income on clothes but we often wonder, as we glance at the fur coats of this moderate-priced neighborhood, if installments are included in the estimate.

If it were not for our rather disappointing experience with the war to end war we should come out for legislation to end legislation.

FOUR AWARDED 1928 VAIL MEDAL

MICHIGAN TELEPHONE PEOPLE ARE CITED FOR NOTEWORTHY ACTS OF SERVICE

Award of the Theodore N. Vail medal of bronze for 1928 has been made to four Michigan telephone people, two men and two women, three of them employees of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, and one, an employee of the Benzie Consolidated Telephone Company, it is announced by the committee of award.

Those receiving the award are: Mrs. Mary Smith, chief operator, Thompsonville, Mich., whose work at the switchboard is credited with having saved the town from destruction by fire; Mrs. Irva MacIntyre, operating agent, Hopkins, Mich., whose initiative in handling an unusual call saved the life of an aged woman; Louis B. Flood, construction foreman, Battle Creek, who saved the life of a workman who had come into contact with a high voltage wire at Monroe; James Fisher, lineman, Ann Arbor, whose prompt action at the time of an automobile collision on the highway near Novi prevented a badly injured man from bleeding to death.

Award of the Theodore N. Vail medal was made possible by the establishment in 1920 of the Theodore N. Vail Memorial fund in memory of the man who made universal telephone service possible after the invention of the telephone by Alexander Graham Bell, and whose every public act was directed toward giving the American people the finest communication system possible. The medal is awarded telephone employees who perform unusual, outstanding and especially noteworthy acts of public service, whether in the performance of their regular duties or otherwise, but held to be in emulation of the high ideals of public service that characterized Mr. Vail.

Thirty-nine such awards have been made to Michigan telephone people since the establishment of the Vail Memorial fund, 35 of them to employees of the Michigan Bell company and four to employees of connecting companies.

The result that, although the blaze was a disastrous one, Mrs. Smith's action undoubtedly saved the village from being destroyed. The act for which Mrs. MacIntyre was awarded the medal also presents an instance of the employment of initiative and quick thinking in an emergency. Answering a signal at her switchboard, early the morning of May 19, Mrs. MacIntyre received no response, but heard labored breathing that caused her to believe someone was seriously ill or injured. She knew the subscriber was an aged woman who lived alone. Mrs. MacIntyre therefore called the woman's daughter, advising her to go to her mother's home, and then summoned the services of a physician, who found that the patient was suffering from a severe heart attack. He stated that Mrs. MacIntyre's prompt action undoubtedly had resulted in saving the woman's life.

First Aid Saves Lives
While Louis B. Flood was working on the construction of a telephone line near Monroe, July 25, he saw a workman on a dredge in the Raisin river attempt to lift three unprotected high tension wires over the top of a piledriver, by means of a broom. One of the wires struck the man, hurling him 30 feet to the deck of the dredge. Mr. Flood waded and swam through marsh and river, from the distant shore, and rendered first aid, also instructing members of the telephone crew to summon an ambulance. Added by another telephone man, he applied artificial respiration with the result that in about 30 minutes there were signs of returning life. The patient regained consciousness three days later, ultimately recovering. The attending physician declared that Mr. Flood's prompt action, and the first aid knowledge he had acquired in telephone company classes, undoubtedly had saved the man's life.

James Fisher was employed on telephone work along the highway near Novi, February 28, when two automobiles collided, four occupants of one car being injured. Mr. Fisher sent a man for a doctor and attended the driver of the car, who was seriously wounded about the head, applying compresses and bandages to check the flow of blood. He also administered first aid to the others, hurt and had them removed to a farmhouse, from where they were taken to a hospital. The attending physician commended Mr. Fisher and declared that his prompt action had left little to be done for the injured people. Mr. Fisher made use of a knowledge of first aid acquired in telephone company classes.

Letters of commendation for prompt action in emergencies, during 1928, were sent by G. M. Welch, vice president and general manager of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, to five others: Charles L. Tucker, Detroit, who rescued a choking child from a swing in which she had become entangled; Glenn Taylor, Monroe, who helped Flood revive the man injured by a sloop and fall; J. Morsman, Cassiowick, who rendered first aid to a man who had suffered from electric shock; Kenneth Wingrove, Ypsilanti, for efforts to revive a man killed by oxide gas poisoning, and Leon Karker, Jackson, for attempting to resuscitate a drowned boy.

Find Cathedral Ruins in Greenland Colony

Within a hundred miles of Cape Farwell, at Julianehaab, in Greenland, lie the remains of the greatest Scandinavian cathedral except that of old Trondheim in Norway. Doctor Nordana of Copenhagen has been spending some time making excavations there, and he found the foundations of the cathedral. They are nearly a hundred feet long. In one of the chapels of the cathedral the body of a bishop has been found in full canonicals, with a ring on the finger and a crook made of walrus tusks. He probably lived about 1200 A. D.

Passenger Total On Aerial Routes Grows 400 Per Cent

Air transport companies in the United States operated 294 planes in 1928 over 10,472,024 miles and created new records in passengers, according to a report made public by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. The figures showed an increase of 420 per cent in passenger carrying and 100 per cent in mileage over 1927.

The report said 23 new passenger lines operated over an aggregate of 6,451 miles of routes, while mail routes new or extended, numbered 16, increasing the regular mail routes by 5,928 miles. Nine express lines, with a total of 2,151 miles went into service during the year.

The airmail volume was trebled showing a total of 3,632,059 pounds for 1928, compared with 1,222,843 pounds for 1927, the statement said. Twenty-two companies operated 33 air mail routes under contract with the government.

Redwoods Grow in New Zealand

California redwoods grow readily in New Zealand, and a number of trees in that country have attained a fair size.

Another feature of the year, noted in the report, was the growth of reputable flying schools and likewise a decrease in "wildcat" schools.

Bugs Dodge Crocote Plant

The crocote bush of the Colorado desert is one of the few plants upon which no insects nor animals will feed.

Hay Fever Cure

Strings of jade beads are worn by members of the Chinese colony in Seattle to ward off attacks of hay fever and summer influenza. The most potent beads, it is said, must be imported from the stocks of an ancient josshouse in the old town section of Peking.

The Old Timers' Corner

Old Timer Tells of Days Spent in old School Bldg.

I have been thinking a lot about the "old school house" as we know it, and the things that have taken place there. It is situated at Moccasin avenue and Second street or what used to be "West and Second." It was the one that followed an older school house over on Main street at the top of the hill as you go north. I don't remember that school house, at all, but they tell me that is where the very first one was located, except one that James Wagner has told us about that was located down toward the river on River street or what ever it is called now. (You change the names of your streets so fast, over there, that I can't keep posted on all of them.) Well, anyway, I was thinking more especially about the "old school house" as we knew it.

The first impression I have of it was when "California" Johnson had a sort of private school there for the children who were "unruly" or for some reason were not sent to the Public School. I don't know why I was sent there, unless they thought I was "dull" or something, but anyway that is where I started.

Mr. Johnson was tall, had whiskers and was very stern. Those are the things that I remember mostly, and I know also that he had a "black-snake" whip, that he called "Tom Trusty" that he used to "tune up" the boys with, and a regulation "riding whip" for the girls that he called "Susie Trusty." Yes, I will confess that I had a small amount of experience with "T. T." but once or twice was ENOUGH for me. I was more discreet, after that. He had his school on the first floor of the building, and I know that we had "recess" time in the middle of the session, like they had in the country schools. I don't know why they didn't have some of the grades of the Public school down there, for the big new high school building was then completed and I guess that all the grades were housed in that one building. Anyway I went to Mr. Johnson for a year or two and then I started to go to the public school in about the 3rd or 4th grade.

The old school house, afterward, was occupied by the lower grades of the public school and Mrs. Welch had charge of one of the rooms. I don't remember which one, but I knew her and she was a fine woman. I never went to school to her, though.

The school yard down there at the old school house was very unromantic, consisting of about a quarter of a city block, the school building which was of red brick with white stone window sills, and key stones, and I remember when it was a kid that I used to wonder how they ever got those nice white stones in place among the bricks.

There was a row of very old maple trees around the edge of the school yard and the coal shed, (or "wood shed" we called it then), was at the very northwest corner of the lot, and the pump was right near it. The part of the school yard to the east ran down hill, toward a high board fence that enclosed the school property on the east and north. It was almost fatal for any one to climb over the fence, when Mr. Johnson was the "boss" around there. That is why I had a taste of "T. T." once, for I lost a ball, which was made of string and covered with leather, and which I had made myself, at home, well, I lost it over in the next yard and went over after it, and of course some "tattle-tale" had to "squeal" on me and I "got mine" for that.

Another time I lost a penny through the crack in the side walk which went up to the front steps of the school house, and in my hurry to get back my "fortune" I tore off a board and Johnson caught me at it before I had time to hammer the board back in place with a stone, and that was the second acquaintance I had with old "T. T."

So many people that I know, tell me of things that happened to them when they were three or four years old, and that they know what went on around there, etc., and can tell me all about it. Well, I must have been dumb or something for I can't remember everything. Just a few of the "high spots," as it were. I know that I had to go right past "the old cemetery" going and coming from school, and that I walked very carefully and none too slowly, when passing that place, for it was all grown up with trees and shrubbery and had an old broken down fence around it, and I had been told that ghosts walked around there as soon as it grew dark and while I wasn't sure, I wanted to be on the safe side, and so gave that cemetery a wide berth when I passed that way.

A few summers ago I walked through what is now Kathryn Park, and it sure is a great improvement from the old corner of neglected graves that was the "old cemetery," but I almost had the same feeling as when a kid, as I walked thru it. It seems to me that one spot was sort of "holy" or un-holy, for I was none too brave about it, as a kid. As years rolled away and I knew that "dead ones" don't walk around etc., still that feeling persists and I just would rather walk past Kathryn Park and say "how nice it looks" than to go thru it. Foolish? Maybe, but you know that men are only "boys grown taller" and the feelings of youth, "are long, long feelings." I noted in the Record a short time ago about that fire that still destroyed the part that is still used of what was our old high school building. Poor old thing. It was the pride of the entire township, when I was a kid. Whenever we had relatives in town for the day, we always made it a point that they should drive up and see the high school building. The new one that is in use now is wonderful, of course, but like many more "old timers" I like to see the old spots as they used to be when we were kids. Guess I am "funny" about such things for in another instance I see the same thing expressed. The old school building that housed the Dental Department of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor has been torn down and a wonderfully modern new building has taken its place, and on several occasions I have had the chance to go and "inspect" the new building, etc., but I just don't want to. I like to remember the old ways, the old buildings that I went to school in. Its board floors and funny little windows and board walks, etc. They were all right for us and I like to remember them as they were. I am not "modern." No, I guess I am not. I am in many other ways but I like "old times, old wine and old friends" best.

And that just reminds me that it has recently turned "spring" and I am reminded of a little poem that we had in our Appleton's 2nd reader. It runs like this:

The lilacs are in blossom, the cherry flowers are white, I hear a sound below me, a twitter of delight.

It is my friend, the Swallow, as sure as I'm alive.

"I'm very glad to see you, pray when did you arrive?"

"I'm very glad to get here, I only came today."

I was this very morning a hundred miles away."

"And will you build this Summer among the flowers and leaves?"

"No, I have taken lodging beneath the stable eaves."

You'll hear each night and morning, my twitter in the sky.

This is my busy day, dear, and so I must say Good-bye."

OLD TIMER.

OLD TIMER WRITES OF AGE OF FLAMING YOUTH

Rightly speaking, the age of flaming youth is that age when the youth begins to awaken to the joy of living and to the "fact" that the rest of the world is "old fashioned" and it is high time for him or her to redeem the family to that extent that is possible, by entering upon a line of "hitting the high spots," and jarring loose from the older routine ways of living and doing things. It is not a matter of today, at all. They wanted to do the same thing when we were "flaming" but we were reared in a different atmosphere and surroundings and so we didn't make as much fuss about it as they do today. When I tell some of the younger set of how we calculated that to attend a "Stereoscopic Lecture," to drive there with our special driving horse, all dolled up and with the harness buckles all polished and the horse reined up so that his neck was arched and the wear piling along, hitched to the nobby road-cart or rubber-tired "buggy," driving up to the door and letting our "lady" out over the wheel, and helping her to get out without having to show so much of her ankle, then while she waited in the "anti-room" we would find a good strong post where we would tie the horse and blanket him, if need be, and after fixing our tie and picking off any small particles of dust etc., from the arm of your coat, you would walk with majestic stride to the front door of the hall or school house, and lifting your hat with a gracious bow, would escort the young lady, to your seats. The lady wore long full skirts and a very tight fitting waist, ala-corset, and could not breathe freely, but she got used to that, in time and would smile and say "yes, dear," just as they do now.

After the excitement of the pictures and the lecture was over, to which we had paid very little attention, perhaps, having had our minds upon the process of going home with the lady and leaving her at the front gate etc., so the time in the "show" was more or less of a bore. Then after the lecture was over and the lady had put on her picture hat, and had it securely pinned in place, we conducted her graciously to the front door again, where she waited chatting with the other girls and older women, until the "boy friend" drove up with his prancing steed, and after some business of getting the horse to stand still, he helped the lady into the vehicle, and they were "off" with a flying start. The reason for this flying start was usually that the old nag knew that it was going to get home and was ready and anxious to be on his way. Anyway, that was one side of the flaming youth proposition.

Then there was another "breed" of youth, that is better known to the moderns. They were the ones, especially among the boys, that found that by taking a few little "nips" before going to the dance or party, that they were considered "tough" and that certain of the girls liked to have them say and do fresh things that they would otherwise have hesitated to do or say. So they would get some cloves or cinnamon-bark, and chew them to "disguise their" breath, and of course every one knew why they used it and could easily smell the odor of bum beer or cider or even whiskey, but the flaming youth thought he was putting one over, and with his wits keyed up to a higher pitch, by the stimulant, he attended the dance and squeezed the girls a little too tight and talked of things that no "nice" girl liked to countenance, and thought he was having the time of his life and that he was giving the older ones an "up lift" and doing things that they never thought of doing. Poor fools. It is the same today and it was the same when our fathers and mothers were at that flaming youth age. There has been no change in people, it is only the modes of life that have changed. It would have been as much as a girl's reputation was worth to be seen in dresses so short that her ankles were in view of the people. For young children it was allowable, but when a girl becomes of the "young lady" age, she had to don a tight-fitting corset and wear dresses down to the ground. The dressing of her hair was an art, and gave her a nightly hour or so of work before going to bed.

Not so good. But I do not give credit to the youngsters of the "flaming youth" age for the change for the better in the modes of dress, etc., for they were only dressed up according to the dictates of their parents, and they in turn were governed by the whims of "fashion" which in turn were made by full grown people that had long since passed the flaming youth of life and were making a living in the manner of work that made for more reasonable things in the manner or dress. Of course the young people are the ones that wear the loud and shouting extremes in fashion, but they don't create them. Certainly not. Some enterprising person of mature age, sees that a change in the modes is ripe for them to make some money on, and they proceed to make the suggestion and start the change. Bees do not sting all the time to dress with more comfort and so the types of dress, etc., have always been changed from time to time, and the flaming youth picks them up readily, and with or without the consent of his or her parents they strut forth and give the populace a shock, at first, and then they get used to it and "everybody's doing it" in no time at all.

Another thing that gets my goat" in this flaming youth business, is the fact that the modern youngster makes no bones at all of talking about "sex things" as though they were of common talk.

When we were "flaming" we knew all these things, but were too well bred to mention them out loud. We knew those things, were taught them by our parents and we absorbed them from contacts with life and living, and we studied them from text books, also, but they were not made topics for general conversation, and I am just old-fashioned enough to think that it is uncultured and unrefined for youngsters to talk such stuff in general conversation. I have children from the age of ten to fifteen, come here for professional work that talk to me as though I were "one of them" and they tell me all sorts of things that are of a line that is and should be very personal and also to be indulged in by those that should know and not everyone in general. So if that is the "flaming youth's" idea of being "keen" and "hot" and a few more of their expressions, then I would much prefer the older fashion of knowing some things that we don't talk about. It just reminds me of the old vaudeville "gag," where the two performers say: "Let's be frank and earnest." The other says all right, I'll be frank and you be earnest."

A short time ago a young lady of the modern type called here for some work, and she had to smoke a couple of cigarettes before sitting in the "chair" and then as soon as she was thru, she had another one or two, and found that she was out of cigarettes, so she asked me if I had an extra "pack" lying around.

Such things as these make me more content when I sign myself OLD TIMER.

Give these energetic seeds a chance in your garden

ENERGETIC seeds take no more digging, or raking, or caring for in a garden, than seeds that are not so full of the spirit to live. But think of the difference at harvest time! The energetic seeds withstand disease better — grow better and stronger — produce more vigorously and more abundantly.

The Ferry's Seeds that you can buy today at the "store around the corner" are surprisingly energetic. What is more, they are fresh. What is most important, they are pure-bred! These Ferry's Seeds came from plants that measured up to the Ferry standard in size, color, flavor, productivity — plants that have handed their inheritance on.

They are pedigreed seeds!—in the strict sense you mean when you say a race-horse is pedigreed. Their parents, grandparents, great grandparents — all were of fine true stock, without an inferior strain.

Doesn't this mean something to your garden? Send for the Ferry's Seed Annual to plan what you want. Remember that Ferry makes thousands of tests a year to determine the truthness of every seed you now can spill into your hand from a bright Ferry packet. Garden facts in the Annual make it far more than a catalog. Address: D. M. Ferry & Co., Dept. H., Detroit, Michigan.

Give your garden its best possible start with Ferry's Purebred Seeds.

two STURDY RICH MOTOR OILS

Polarine-Iso-Vis

WHICH do you favor? Both are good motor oils—rich and sturdy. Both meet the new motoring conditions of engines running hotter because of higher compression and faster driving.

Polarine has a record of twenty years of outstanding service. Many thousands of motorists demand it wherever they go. If you want a smooth running motor—use Polarine—drain and refill your crankcase every five hundred miles.

Iso-Vis is newer. No other oil like it. It has a constant viscosity. It will not break down—it will not thin out—it lubricates faithfully and well all frictional surfaces. It wears and wears and wears!

Many Iso-Vis enthusiasts drive for a thousand miles or more without changing oil. Iso-Vis is as efficient on the last mile as on the first.

The Standard Oil Company [Indiana] recommends both. Which do you favor?

Fire Destroys $2,000,000 Worth of Cars

Fire swept through the tents in which the automobile show was being held in Los Angeles recently destroying $2,000,000 worth of cars. This remarkable picture shows one of the museums rushing from a burning tent. In the foreground is the ruins of the famous Miller racing car. This car was valued at $10,000.

One-Sixth of Auto Expense Goes to Roads

American motorists annually are paying only about one and a half cents per mile of travel for street and road improvements. During 1928, the motor car registration was roughly 24,000,000. These cars averaged in the neighborhood of 6,000 miles of travel. A conservative estimate of operating expenses places the 1928 automobile travel costs, which include gasoline, oil, depreciation, taxes, upkeep and so on at $12,000,000,000. Of this sum two billions, or one-sixth, was expended for all road and street improvements.

Industrial economists and highway authorities point out that with both pleasure and commercial traffic increasing by leaps and bounds, the annual highway expenditure must be increased. Conservative figures show that the United States, with 73 per cent of the world's automobiles, spends altogether for new cars, repairs, fuel, truck drivers' and chauffeurs' salaries, insurance and other items, no less than $14,000,000,000 yearly.

The investment to date in dealers' establishments and storage and servicing garages, gasoline filling stations, and the money invested in cars purchased prior to 1928, total about $25,000,000,000. In 1928 more than 4,000,000 people were engaged in one way or another in producing materials and in manufacturing 4,600,000 passenger cars, trucks and buses, worth in excess of $5,500,000.

The tremendous motor industry, which is responsible in large measure for current prosperity, is dependent upon the highway. Investing in highway improvements is urged not only for comfort, convenience and economy for the car user, but it is also held to be an insurance against the return of those days when shirts with 20 removable bosoms were a godsend.

BUYERS CUT PRICES LOW GRADE WOOL

GROWERS WILL TAKE LOSS UNLESS CAREFUL WITH THEIR FLEECES.

East Lansing, April 10—A good market for wool during the past two years and considerable competition among wool buyers has enabled Michigan farmers to obtain top prices for a grade of fleece on which a considerable price cut will be made if market conditions reduce the demand for wool, according to a statement by members of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State college.

The possible loss from price reductions can be avoided if a few precautions are taken before the sheep are sheared and proper care is used in tying up the fleece after shearing.

The fleeces, before shearing, should be tagged and care used to remove all soiled portions of the fleece. Shearing should be done on a clean floor or canvas and the sheep should be dry when they are sheared.

Second cuts made in the fleece while shearing reduce the length of staple and make the wool less valuable to the manufacturer. Fleeces should be tied loosely with the flesh side out. No dark wool should be included in the fleece.

Un glazed hemp twines and sisal twines are very objectionable when used for tying fleeces. Fibers from these twines can not be removed from the fleece while it is being prepared for the wools. These animals have increased their range during the past twenty years. They have spread over the entire upper peninsula; Ohio reports their presence and southern Michigan now knows the yodling howl of these small wolves, which have been reported from Midland and Rosecommon counties and other lower peninsula localities further north.

Western Coyote Invades Michigan

Lansing, Apr. 10—This week the conservation department received at its Lansing headquarters, two coyote pelts taken at North Bradley, Midland county, by state trapper, Orla A. Hayner.

Trapper Hayner says of the female animal, "Trapped March 22, this animal was carrying nine unborn young." Of the other animal he says, "Trapped on March 15. I have reasons to believe that this is the animal that killed around 150 sheep in Geneva township last year."

The coyote or prairie wolf believes in broadening its horizon, to judge from the manner in which these animals have increased their range during the past twenty years. They have spread over the entire upper peninsula; Ohio reports their presence and southern Michigan now knows the yodling howl of these small wolves, which have been reported from Midland and Rosecommon counties and other lower peninsula localities further north. Much doubt exists as to the route taken by these animals in reaching the central localities mentioned. Some coyotes are known to cross on the ice at the Straits, but whether these individuals would penetrate as far south as Midland, or whether the coyotes found there came up from the south remains a matter of conjecture.

Because of the predatory habits of the coyotes and the menace which they represent to desirable forms of wild life and domestic stock, the predatory animal trappers of the conservation department was to continue warfare against their tribe.

PENALTY EXACTED ON LAMB SHIPMENT

BUYERS OFFER PRIZES WHEN PRICE CUTS FAIL TO IMPROVE QUALITY.

East Lansing, April 10—Penalties, which in some Michigan cases have reached $250 a carload, assessed by livestock buyers against the shippers of poor quality lambs have failed to keep these lambs off the markets and the buyers are now offering prizes to counties in which the largest percentage of flock owners adopt practices which will improve the market value of their lambs.

Undocked lambs and ram lambs are most discriminated against in the terminal markets. Wether lambs, and undocked animals suffer a price cut of from 15 cents to one dollar a hundredweight.

If the poor quality lambs are fat, the price differential is less than when the lambs are thin and have to be sold as feeders.

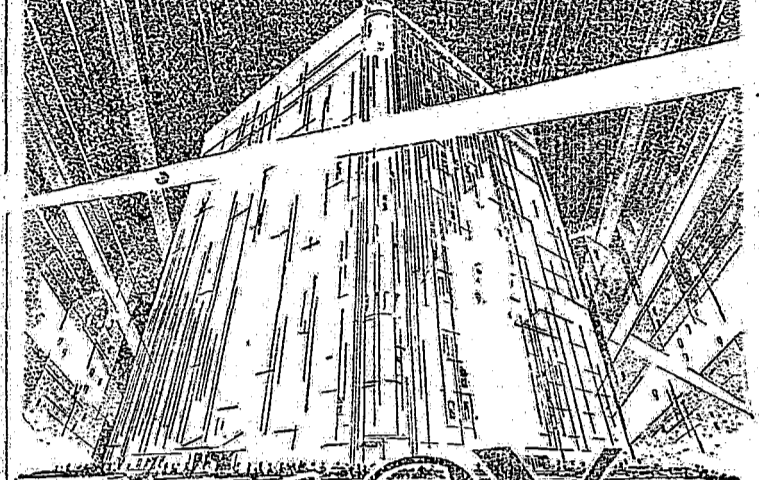

Sheep owners in 20 Michigan counties, most of which are in the northeastern portion of the state, have entered the quality improvement contest. The winning county will be determined by finding the percentage of sheep owners who have adopted better practices and also what proportion of all the owners use these practices.

Specialists from the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College will assist in conducting the contest. Meetings are being held in several of the counties to urge farmers to ship only the best quality lambs.

We have been cheered mightily by an economist's declaration that no good business man is ever entirely out of debt.

If the meek ever really inherit the earth they will probably employ high-powered salesmen to sell it back to us.
