Indications that another of Buchanan's "Foreign Legion" still retains an interest in the doings of the old home town and a loyalty to its institutions are afforded by a check received by the Record from O. Report Malaria At Clear Lake Is Erroneous. Reports to the effect that malaria has appeared at the C. H. Fuller resort on Clear Lake have been emphatically denied by the proprietor, who has authorized the publication of a warning elsewhere in this issue to the effect that anyone found responsible for furthering such report will be prosecuted. Fuller stated that motorists en route to his resort had been stopped on the way and warned that malaria was prevalent there. He states that the report is untrue, and that the conditions at Clear Lake, far from being productive of malaria, have been examined and reported to be satisfactory by the state board of health.

News From Galien and Vicinity

GALIEN DEFEATS 3 OAKS GREENS 15 TO 9 SUNDAY

TO PLAY MISHAWAKA INDEPENDENTS AT GALIEN NEXT SUNDAY.

The Galien Grays were re-vengeful on an S-O whitewashing at the hands of the Three Oaks Greens two weeks before when they took the measure of that aggregation in a 15-9 slugging bee Sunday afternoon. On the previous occasion the Galien nine lacked its regular pitcher and several other players. The regular slab man, Whitey, was back in harness Sunday, and although he was touched for 11 hits, he managed to strike out ten men. The Galien batsmen garnered 15 hits from the offerings of Krone. The star batter of the day was Ernest Baseman Grannis of Three Oaks, who connected with three hits, one a home run, one a triple and the third a two-bagger. Krone cracked out another long drive which the spectacular catch on the part of the Galien center field prevented from being a home run. The Galien nine will meet one of the strongest of the Northern Indiana nines, the Mishawaka Independents, on the Galien diamond next Sunday.

AMERICAN HOUSEWIFE GREATEST MURDERER

She's a slayer!

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—The gentle hands of the American cook are charged by Dr. John Harvey Kellogg with being the country's greatest death agency. She destroys several times more lives than murderers, automobiles and a dozen other of the great killing agencies, the health authority asserts. Research in the nutrition laboratories of the Battle Creek Sanitarium was described by his head as revealing that the most dominant features of today's mortality tables are due to dietary errors. "Experience has shown how our patients are much improved with the addition to their diet of the so-called protective foods, which contain an abundance of vitamins, minerals and residue," he said. "Cases of chronic circulatory disease, chronic arthritis, chronic gastro-intestinal disease and migraine have been cured by a change to this diet, giving up one consisting chiefly of bread, butter, meats, potatoes and sweet desserts, all but butter being vitamin-poor. "We have reproduced degenerative disorders, affecting especially the heart, blood vessels and kidneys, multitudes of times in our laboratory animals by changes of diets. Then we have restored them to health by making the same nutritional changes that we bring about in the case of human sufferers."

The orchestra is well known, broadcasting nightly from the Aragon Ball Room at Chicago, a show place of the big city. The management advises reservations as there is bound to be a capacity free wheeling

Studebaker's epochal contribution to motoring—the sensation of 1930!

FREE Wheeling is the second milestone in automobile development. The first was the electric starter in 1912.

Free Wheeling with positive control, pioneered by Studebaker in 1930—is an exclusive Studebaker feature available only in the new President and Commander Eights.

Due to Free Wheeling with positive control—

You shift from high to second, back and forth, at 40—50 miles an hour, and never touch the clutch.

You need use the clutch only to start or back up.

The braking power of your engine is available as readily as in conventional cars.

For the first time in a motor car you get the full benefit of momentum automatically. When your car has gone 10,000 miles your engine has "worked" only 8,000 miles.

You save 12 per cent on gasoline, 20 per cent on oil—even more in heavy traffic.

Strains on engine, transmission and axle are lessened. Tires wear longer.

There is nothing new to learn—Free Wheeling with positive control is simplicity itself. You drive just as you do in a conventional car.

Harvey Sheswood Writes Interestingly Of Auto Trip South

Harvey Sheswood, former Buchanan boy, and now instructor in English in the Kalamazoo Central High School, is now on an extensive automobile tour taking him into Mexico and thence by steamer to Cuba with a party of Kalamazoo teachers. He writes interestingly of the places he has visited to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sheswood.

San Antonio, Tex., July 14 Dear Mother and Father,

Unlike my letters to you on previous auto camping tours, these will doubtless be far between, although the distance traversed will not be less.

By the time we return, we shall have been thru and around the only area we have not before covered in the whole U. S., namely, the Old South, as commonly called in American history. As you know, we have been north, east and west and most of this by auto, therefore not superficially. Our purpose is as much professional as pleasure, and we are visiting universities, museums and seeing each city quite thoroughly. Of course the scenic beauty is not so great as the west and therefore history will be a more primary object with geography and geology secondary. Our route from here will take us to Houston, Corpus Christi, Old Mexico, thence to New Orleans, through Mississippi, Alabama, Florida to Cuba, which we expect to tour quite thoroughly in the car without the trailer. From Cuba we shall go up the east coast thru the great Smokies, Asheville, etc., to Washington and Philadelphia hitting all the states in that order. The trailer is an everlasting source of interest to all towns and cities we go thru. The people crowd around it for inspection. It is most satisfactory for sleeping purposes and contains two of the best full sized Simmons beds for four people and we have the tent for the other two. The ice box, water tank, electric lights, cupboards in the kitchen, etc., are all in the trailer. The best feature is the location of the five large dust proof glass windows in the "covered wagon", which are screened against insects and waterproofed with roller shades. It can readily be realized that the gas stove would heat it in five minutes in winter and cook the food in a jiffy at the same time. Altogether this is a vast improvement over traveling with tents only as it weighs only a thousand pounds empty and we have made on an average of 40 to 50 miles each day for six days, altho the Missouri and Oklahoma and even Texas roads are not particularly good.

I'll sketch the high points of the trip so far. We left Buchanan on July 1, camped at Monroeville, Ill., on the island camp on the Kankakee River. At Canton, Ill., where the Rasmussen's folks live, we spent three days and thoroughly inspected strip coal mining. July 3 we saw the Lincoln tomb at Springfield and camped at Stanton, Ill. Sunday we hit St. Louis, fortunately, for we saw it in a most unobstructed way. At Columbia the University of Missouri offered a splendid comparison with the twenty-three greatest American universities which we had seen.

wish I might compile my impressions of these principal universities, each presenting a personality in itself. That evening we camped on the banks of the Missouri river at historic Booneville, reminding us of the terrific storm we experienced in 1925 at Council Bluffs, Ia., on the river. Kansas City made the best impression on me, aside from this city of San Antonio. I mean of course on this trip.

Joseph, Mo., or vicinity, a corner of Kansas, and Galena possessed zinc, iron and lead mines by the hundreds where I secured about a dozen splendid specimens of different minerals. Here we began to strike the plains where they were bailing prairie grass. It was good to see the plains again, altho I had a greater longing to see the Rockies again since nothing in the East impressed me so except the low Rockies.

July 9th, we were in Tulsa and it seemed more desirable as a place to live through here except Kansas City and this. The Methodist church there is such a great and beautiful structure (see front thru it) that it made me think, in spite of difference, of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in N. Y. C. Religion seems to be gaining some degree of rationality, when a great edifice like that is intentionally left with its tower unfinished as a symbol.

The Arkansas river was dry in the vicinity of Cushing, Okla. Outside of Long Beach, Calif., I have seen no area so rich in oil wells as Cushing. The Scottish Rite Temple at Guthrie was so huge that we could scarcely believe the state could afford such, let alone two more. Deep red soil was just beginning to appear in this region.

One of the surprises of the trip has been the enormous amount of corn, hay, melons, tomatoes and cotton that Missouri, Oklahoma, and Texas raise in spite of the dry weather. Someone told us that the Oklahoma capitol lacked a dome because the politicians got the money. It is beautiful, however, and a visitor should not miss the two great World War subjects painted on the walls of the fourth floor. At Norman, the University of Oklahoma issues a challenge to the other great institutions of the country, in architecture and courtesy at least. I know nothing of the rest.

July 10 I had a memorable swim in the mountain stream in the Arbutus Mountains, which are of granite rock of the pre-Cambrian age—horizontal rocks looking like so many tombstones in the Boston cemeteries I've seen—only miles of them. They are of the same age of the Appalachian range, having been covered by the sea and now that the top has worn away, these mountains have come into view with their interesting geologic forms.

We camped at Gainesville, Tex., near the Red River, which is red and large. We can learn much of courtesy from these folks down here. July 11 we saw Dallas and Ft. Worth as well as Austin with its very central of impressive size and also its Confederate museum. The University of Texas was another surprise in its large number of imposing buildings of Eland Stanford architecture. The library contains the noted Wren collection and the courtesy of the assistant enabled me to get an especially complete tour of the finest Mexican collection in the U. S. by a Mexican special librarian, who showed me books of the vintage of the 1400's, 1500's and 1600's. The state gave considerable land to the University in 1880, which have since proved to be such valuable oil lands that they'll have almost unlimited means and to say they're just beginning to grow is true. We ate to the hilt in San Antonio two days and have seen it even more thoroughly than the other cities. I think it the most beautiful of its kind outside of California. The time to see any of these cities in the hot climate is in the evening and last evening we saw Fort Sam Houston and other residential districts, which remind us of Hollywood or what you will.

The San Fernando Cathedral is the oldest in Texas and while it is not so interesting as the Santa Fe mission, which we saw on our 8,400 mile auto camping tour of 15 western states in 1925, it is more beautiful than any of the Spanish I've seen, dating back to 1600's. The kindly old Spanish priest (educated in Barcelona, Spain) showed me the ancient records of the church from its foundation. The historic Alamo I shall see today, but the Buckhorn saloon holds merit of history also. It is now a huge curio shop instead of a huge bar, but the walls are still covered completely with more deer and buffalo heads than I've seen before.

Buckenridge Park here is the most beautiful of the parks I've seen all over the country except the Busch gardens in Los Angeles and it also possesses the greatest zoo I've seen aside from the Bronx in N. Y. C. For its Indian collection the museum here rivals Denver's and Iowa's. As usual I have taken a number of choice snapshots with a possibility of enlarging a few to add to my collection. When one reads of the 40 deaths from heat in the Middle West and learns that in spite of the heat here there are no deaths, there is some virtue in Texas humidity. You may hear from us in Mexico and again there may be no time to write.

Lovingly,
Harvey.

LAST OF HISTORIC GROUP.

John D. Rockefeller at 91 has outlived all friends he had in his boyhood days. There is left today hardly a remnant of the group of strong men with whom he was associated when he established the Standard Oil refinery in 1865. The same is true of the men in the powerful organization he developed in the early days of the Standard Oil Co. after it was formed in 1870. Of that group that made oil history and established a new industrial life in the country the elder Rockefeller is like the last leaf upon the tree. Even at his unusual age the years are kindly in their treatment, his health is exceptional, his bodily vigor has been a continual surprise to his medical friends, he finds it possible to get much of happiness out of life, and he is perfectly able to supply wise direction in large business affairs when occasional needs develop.

He represents a generation that is gone, he was familiar with life in an era that has passed. Martin Van Buren was president when he was born. John Trier was president when the Rockefeller family located in Ohio. During all the years that have followed he has watched the tide of life move along and has had an important part in many of the largest business developments in the country.

He won his position as the richest man in the world; in the days of his business triumphs he was the oil king, and has the power to establish himself in that position again if that were necessary. For years his thoughts have turned to other things, he has given to the public for education and training sums aggregating $250,000,000, according to records compiled in 1915, and has pushed that fabulous sum very much higher in the years since that record was made. Probably his greatest triumph, however, was over self. When broken health made it impossible for him to live the life he had chosen, he laid aside burdens and powers, found it possible to revise his ideas and customs and secure in happiness in doing things he was able to do. He could not do as he pleased, so he was pleased to do what he could, a victory few men ever won more certainly than he.

As one looks around nowadays and sees what it takes to entertain the family and keep it from dying of sheer boredom, it is hard to believe that no more than a couple decades ago the entire family could sit around the fireside all evening poring over the new mail order catalog.

The U. S. treasury department reports that each man, woman and child has $37.30 in cash, and we wish it would be just a little more specific and say which one of them has the $37 part of ours.

After all there's nothing so amazing about that 11 year old boy writing a book, as one gets the impression that quite a number are being written by even less mature minds.

The assertion made by a doctor that insanity can be cured is no surprise to anyone who has observed a young man about a year after he married the girl he was crazy about.

Modern youth may poke fun at the old timers who used to hold their girls' hands, but at that it was a pretty safe precaution against getting slapped.

Likely it is true that profanity is on the increase among women, because more of them are driving cars and playing golf than ever before.

To the famous two certainties, death and taxes, should be added another, an advance in gasoline prices during the summer touring season.

Apparently King Carol has decided to settle down with his wife and memories.

The Old Timer's Corner

J. G. Holmes Tells of Old Time Bakertown Characters

Editor Record,
 I see in the Record that Clyde Marble and family were in Cedar Rapids to visit relatives. The relatives they visited are the family of Wilbur Robinson. He was a son of George Robinson, who came from Buchanan in an early time, and farmed. His mother was the second wife of John Buckles, who lived on the farm next west of Bakertown graveyard, along the north side of Dayton road. She was either grandmother or stepmother of Harry Bims. Clyde's father was Enos Marble and Enos' mother my youngest sister.

One of the old time quaint characters of that vicinity was the old French "baaskeet" maker, St. John who lived alone in a little shack on a triangular lot on the west side of the road just south of the "high bridge." The peculiar part of the work was in the preparation of the material. He made one half, one, one and half and two bushel baskets for farm use, good strong woven splints, made from the black ash tree. After shaving off the bark, he split out the splints by beating the log with the head of an axe. The timber of that kind of ash is formed of alternate layers of hard wood and very spongy mass, which was crushed by the blow of the axe. These splints were then taken on to a "shave horse" and smoothed, and cut into shape, and woven into the basket, and the product would do service in farm work, with all of its rough handling, longer than a dozen of the machine made baskets we get in these times. St. John drove about the country selling his work and there were very few farms without one or more of St. John's baskets.

Among the early settlers in that same neighborhood were Elijah Egbert and Sebastian Overacker, both in 1835. Mr. Egbert located his buildings on the west side of the marsh directly north of Pike Lake and the property is still in the hands of his heirs. Mr. Overacker located on what was later the town line road on the corner north from where is now the "high bridge." He lived there until about 1850, and sold out to David Best, who came from Harris Prairie, east of Niles. He erected a log shop on the road corner and did blacksmithing. The next place west was the home of Watson Roe, who had a four story log house, all four stories on the ground, and very low between joints.

Those were times when it was not against either the social or military law to raise large families. In that neighborhood was William McIntire with seven, Mr. Roe, seven, Mr. Best, twelve, William Burrus, thirteen, and Daniel Holmes, fourteen. I was the youngest of nine, and there was one family near Dayton where there was a miscue in the bookkeeping. The husband said there were twenty three but the wife claimed there were only nineteen. At any rate it was a happy household.

Mr. C. A. Koontz is busily engaged in the completion of his new steam carriage, Gazelle, to have ready for exhibition next Wednesday. He is building a small size Corliss engine to propel the carriage, which when completed will be the wonder of the age.

Speaking of names, there was a name given to a lad who used to live in Dayton that was so long it made his stoop-shouldered. It was James Andrew Martin Edwin Solon. The idea was to make his initials interesting reading.

The village council has bought the knoll of ground lying between the St. Joseph Valley road, and the gravel bed heretofore owned by the village, and extending from the Niles road to the South Bend road, from Mr. Dumbolton, paying $150 for the same. This is one of the finest gravel beds to be found in this part of the country, and the village has made a good move in securing it.

STREET BUILDING TAKES UP SLACK UNEMPLOYMENT

BUILDING PAVEMENTS STIMULATES HOME IMPROVEMENTS.
 During the last decade more attention has been given the construction of modern rural roads than has been given the building of modern streets. Since most people live in cities and since most motoring is done in cities it is high time for cities to start programs of the replacement of street surfaces, designed for yesterday's light travel, with modern heavy duty pavements.

ments. Many cities have discovered that street paving programs greatly reduce unemployment with a consequent brightening of general business. Indianapolis is now engaged on a hard surfacing program twice as large as that of any previous year. Birmingham is also providing work through an expanded program. Superior and Milwaukee, Wis., both have discovered unemployment materially relieved through extensive pavement work.

It is a maxim among roadbuilders that wherever pavements of modern design have been installed, the entire neighborhood becomes conscious of other needed improvements. It is an easy matter for home owners to neglect sidewalks, driveways, street lighting systems, garages and so on. When the street is paved or repaved any shabbiness becomes more apparent than ever and soon homes are dressed up and all to the profit and pride of the owner.

Such activity means bigger payrolls and bigger payrolls mean widespread spending and business.

City Population Trending Toward Apartment House

Ninety-six per cent of the population of Manhattan Island in New York and 80 per cent of the population of Chicago live in apartments, according to a study of the trend toward cities which has just been released by Halsey, Stuart & Company. Contracts for apartment construction advanced, according to estimates covering the entire United States, from approximately $464,496,000 in 1921 to about $1,189,258,000 in 1929.

Burglars Don't Seek the Limelight

Darkness is their stock in trade. They work by stealth — unheard and unseen — their movements cloaked in secrecy. It's honest folks that seek the light. They are the only ones who can risk it. It's the same way in business. The manufacturer or the merchant who is not sure of his goods does not dare to advertise. Advertising would hasten the end of his business career—put him to a test he could not meet.

The man who advertises, deliberately invites your inspection. He tells you about his product or his merchandise and then lets it stand on its own merits. You can depend on him. He knows his product is good.

That's one reason why it pays to read the advertisements you find in the columns of this paper. It is thru advertising that you are able to keep in touch with the good things that progressive business men are spending their money to introduce and to keep before you.

Advertisements are interesting, instructive and profitable. They throw a powerful light on the very things that concern you most. Read them!

CHICAGO PLANES AIR OLYMPIAD AUG. 23-SEPT. 1

VETERANS WILL COMPETE VS. BEGINNERS IN NATIONAL EVENT.

The past joins hands with the present this year at the tenth anniversary of the "Olympiad of the Air"—the National Air Races, which are to be held here August 23 to September 1.

Veteran pilots who can still remember way back when a flying machine was a dangerous thing to handle meet with yearlings whose wings are freshly won. Men who flew "pusher" planes at a height of 500 feet at a speed of 50 miles an hour, will meet youngsters to whom airplane signifies but one thing—a smooth, sleek craft, air-worthy, capable of great speed and distance.

Officials of the meet, however, are mainly of the old school—men who have been flying since man first ventured into the air. Among these old timers is R. W. Schroeder, former army major and present chairman of the contest committee of this year's races. A native of Chicago "Shorty" Schroeder has been a pilot since 1912 and in the intervening years has done much to advance the sciences of aeronautics.

Reed Landis one of the ranking American aces of the World war, who had downed nine enemy airplanes and one balloon when the Armistice was signed, directs the advertising for this year's race. Another veteran of the skies is Clifford W. Henderson, general manager of the air races for the fourth time. When the war started, he applied for admission to the air corps, but was assigned as an ambulance driver. By a turn of fate, he secured transfer to the air service, just a few days before the Armistice was signed.

As general manager of the air races at Los Angeles in 1928, he engineered the first financially successful air race in the history of this event, and duplicated the event at Cleveland last year.

Maxwell Corpenning, executive director and secretary of the National Air Race corporation, learned to fly in 1925 after he had earned some measure of fame as a horseman and polo player. A graduate of West Point, he returned to the academy to serve as head of the equitation department. After his resignation from the army, he became first commander of the famous "Early Birds" troop of the Illinois National Guard.

Other aerial pioneers, besides the race officials will be at the meet when on August 27—designated as "Early Birds Day"—famous men and women fliers whose names are linked with the birth of the airplane, will again take to the air to prove to the crowd assembled at the field that they are still alive in spite of many precarious flights in wobbly "pushers."

Walter Brookink, first student of the Wright brothers and Frank Coffey, the second pupil of the inventors, are planning to fly in newly-built replicas of their early craft machines, so that they will know in which they won their reputations. McCurdy, Willard, Afters and Col. C. D. Chandler, the first American pilot to use a machine gun on an airplane, will represent the "Early Birds" at the meet, as will Ruth Law, Katherine and Marjorie Stinson and Mrs. Floyd Smith, women fliers. Two famous foreign aircraft designers, Igor Sikorsky and Anthony Fokker, who by their early activities are qualified members of the "early Birds", will take part in the exercises.

The "Early Birds", whose membership list includes about 200 fliers who solved the puzzle prior to December 16, 1916, will hold their annual meeting during the period of the races—a meeting which will stress the growth of aviation.

MICHIGAN GETS $60,000 YEARLY FROM PAUPERS

ESCHEATED ESTATES YIELD $53,755 TO PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR.

Finding that several hundred of the "indigent" patients in state hospitals have property and bank accounts, the state collected $60,323 from them during the last 12 months which would otherwise not have been received. Ralph E. Hughes, assistant attorney general, who is public administrator, revealed recently.

In a report to Gov. F. W. Green, Hughes said that besides the money collected from the insane who were believed to be paupers, his department during the fiscal year turned over $53,755 to the treasury from escheated estates.

Both sources gave the state $114,987 in one year in comparison to an average of about $5,000 a year under previous administrations, Hughes reported.

Escheated estates are the estates of persons who die without apparent heirs. They are held for five years and if no heirs appear, they are liquidated and the money is turned into the primary school fund for distribution to the school districts.

The state hospitals give free care to the insane who are without funds. If, however, the patients themselves or their near relatives are independent, the state makes a per diem charge ranging from 87 to 96 cents.

It is Hughes' job to investigate the "free" patients in an effort to locate hidden assets. His most im-

Home Sweet Hotel

DAVID C. HUGHES

CHICAGO—Home sweet home will be a hotel to one-quarter of the population of the United States fifty years hence and the vision of a little white cottage among the honeysuckles will have been etched from the minds of all but honeycombers.

Such, at least, is the picture drawn of the history of the future by David C. Hughes, veteran hotel man and newly appointed manager of The Eastgate, Chicago, which is known to thousands of patrons throughout the country as "the hotel with a heart."

"The number of permanent guests stopping at the 26,000 hotels in the nation is steadily increasing," Mr. Hughes pointed out. "Unquestionably the big reason for this lies in the fact that hotel owners are stressing hospitality and service more than ever before in history. Right today more than 1,000,000 Americans have their permanent abodes in hotels."

And, Mr. Hughes believes, the hotel of the future—towering far into the sky and stretching for blocks along the street level, with its roof landing field for airplanes, its theatres and shops, its great garages and restaurants, gymnasiums and ballrooms—will be home to fifty times 1,000,000 persons.

Coloma Blues Lose Game to Watervliet Nine

The Crystal Palace Blues of Coloma moved into the lead over the Watervliet Nines in the north-Berrien title elimination series, when they broke through Harold Daisy's delivery in the sixth inning to score seven runs and clinch the contest, which ended with an 8-4 score.

Opposing, Coloma was Rudy Weber. The Watervliet nine seemed to be off their stride in hitting.

It is expected that the winner of the series between the two teams will play the House of David for the north-county title.
