THE VALUE OF LIBRARIES

It's interesting that recent studies have shown most Americans find that a library in their community is a real asset, even if they seldom use it themselves. Realtors often point out the local library as a selling point for a community. Of course as a librarian I feel the same, and each day I see how the library makes a positive impact on someone's life.

So often when patrons need assistance they begin by saying, "I'm sorry to bother you, but." Believe me, it is never a bother! Don't stop asking! The staff and I look forward to those interactions. It gives us a chance to highlight what we have to offer both in print as well as electronic resources or to get the word out on a class or program that might be of interest to the person with the question. Working directly with our patrons is the most satisfying part of what we do. I'm sure we have supplied information, entertainment or just a willing ear to someone for whom that was a transformative experience without our even being aware.

We come to you now to help us document the impact the library has had on the lives of individuals in the community. Have you found a job as a result of a resume workshop or access to a computer to submit applications and resumes? Has your child used library resources to support their school performance? Maybe you have used the library for online classes or test proctoring. Or perhaps home delivery service has made it possible to continue to see films or read your favorite authors even when you couldn't leave the house.

All these stories are important to us. First they let us know what is working and what services matter most to the community. Secondly they are an important resource when we approach large donors as we are currently for our building fund or when we submit grant requests. Your stories have much more impact than just statistics; they bring a real human face to the value of our community library. Our aim is to collect these stories in print, video and a poster campaign much like the "Geek the Library" campaign we mounted a few years ago. We hope to use these stories in the library, on social media and in presentations to garner support. So as we move to a new year please consider sharing your story with us.

Feel free to stop in or contact the library director, Kate Scheid, anytime to share your library story: phone 269-695-1911, or email k.scheid@buchananlibrary.com.

MeLCat Turns 10!

Michigan's Interlibrary Loan service, MeLCat (which stands for Michigan e-Library Catalog) turns 10 years old this month! Since January 2005, MeLCat has:

- Grown from 12 libraries to over 400
- Filled over 7 million requests for Michigan residents
- Built a database with over 47 million items
- And facilitated close to 60,000 visiting patron loans!

This past year, our patrons have checked out 1,389 items from other Michigan libraries, and our library has loaned out 780 items!

Want to request something our library is missing? MeLCat is easy to use; all you need is your library card! Go to mel.org/melcat and request up to 5 items at a time. The items will be sent to our library for you to check out. If you need help requesting items, please call or ask at the front desk.
