Eddie Albert is the host of "Wilderness Man," airing Tuesday, May 4 on PBS (Air dates may vary, check local listings)

The most recent of the "California Dreams" series, "Wilderness Man" is a half-hour documentary about John Muir, a Scottish immigrant, who devoted his life to preserving America's native beauty

Muir who was a friend of Teddy Roosevelt, became an environmental lobbyist and helped change the focus on development in California's Yosemite National Park "Wilderness Man" was filmed on location in the Sierras along the Muir trail Albert reads from Muir's early accounts of the area and his passion to preserve it

The following week Lorne Greene will narrate "The Valley," featuring interviews with Cesar Chavez and the ranchers, laborers and farmers of the Salinas Valley area, also known as John Steinbeck country. "The Valley" ties in the Steinbeck theme with film clips from "The Grapes of Wrath"

The "California Dreams" series, which has explored the history and development of the Golden State, was made possible by a grant from the First Interstate Bank of California Foundation
