Ministers Split Over Chicken
The well-known ministerial prediction for chicken resulted in a grave rift in the Buchanan Ministerial Association, at the Labor Day picnic at Hill Top Farm, according to reliable reports received by the Record from an informed source (if you can apply that term to Lee Coonfere).

The two factions were divided on the issue of chicken vs. beef. One wanted chicken, the other was inclined to be about chicken. So Norman Klump, occupying the strategic position of chief, chairman of the dinner committee and a pro-beef, decided the matter by giving them beef and letting them beef. It is reliably (but not too reliably) reported that Rev. Baker, leader of the pro-chicken faction, absented himself from the picnic over the issue.

REV. Gladys Dick was also absent but at last reports the cause was undetermined. Mr. Klump was also 1 1/2 hours late, having misjudged the age of the beef. However superiority of a beef diet was demonstrated when the pro-beef faction represented by Hahn and Klump, turned in a victory at barnyard golf over the chicken faction represented by Coonfere and Brunelle. The chicken duo made a brilliant start, demonstrating superior technique and game finesse, but blew up from lack of endurance.

It was with much unwillingness of spirit that ye editor set himself Wednesday afternoon to replace the "m's" missing in the local social items because of the fact that our social reporter came down extra heavy on her typewriter and broke the "m" off'n it. We have been looking for her to knock the "m" out of it for quite some time, hardly the "m". But what is the use of supplying a missing m in an item like this: "The Bingo Club at hall onday night. The next meeting will be held etc." That's perfect without correcting.

The task was too long for press day and we leave the reader to supply the m's in the following: is ary urphy, who has just recovered from the umps, otered onday to unising, ich.

Two Others Are Killed in Crash

Two Brothers of Kennedy, Charles and Fred, Live Here

Funeral services were held at the Swem Funeral Home at 9 a. m. Tuesday for Worth Leo Kennedy, Jr., 19, former Glendora boy, who was the third to die as the result of an automobile collision at the intersection of the Cleveland avenue and Bridgman-Berrien Springs road south of Baroda Thursday evening. Father Julius Bona was in charge and burial was made in the Glendora cemetery.

Young Kennedy has two brothers, Charles and Fred, living in Buchanan. His father, Worth Kennedy, Sr., and family formerly lived at Glendora but are now in Walkerton, Ind., which was the home of the boy. Other survivors are the mother, Marie Kennedy, and two younger brothers at home in Walkerton.

The other dead were Laddie Krajovic, 18, Lake township and John Kralak, 15, Baroda, a passenger in Krajovic's car. Clarence Pletcher, 19, New Troy.

State Trooper Tom Gillespie and Deputy Sheriff Edward Kuera reported that Kennedy was driving south on Cleveland avenue at 7 p. m. at a high rate of speed in a heavy sedan owned by Pletcher.

Laddie Krajovic was driving a light sedan east on the Berrien Springs-Bridgman road.

The cars collided at the intersection with such force that the engine of Krajovic's car was tossed more than 50 feet into a field at the side of the road.

Officers reported that the heavy sedan driven by Kennedy moved some distance after the crash, and that it was almost impossible to tell from the wreckage the make and model of the car driven by Krajovic.

Eye-Witness Describes Crash
George Schmidt, a farmer residing near the scene of the accident, and who was at the filling station, at the intersection at the time of the crash, gave an eye witness account of the crash today.

"It was the worst accident I have ever seen," Schmidt said. The young boys in Krajovic's car were driving east from Bridgman and stopped for Cleveland avenue (a through highway). They probably didn't see the big car (one driven by Kennedy) coming from the north at a speed of 80 miles an hour. They pulled out into Cleveland avenue and were struck broadside by the big car, which picked them up and tossed their light car down the road. Both cars were wrecked."

Krajovic was killed almost instantly and Kralak, Kennedy and Pletcher were rushed to the St. Joseph Sanitarium in ambulances. Kralak sustained two fractured legs and a skull fracture. He died shortly before 7 a. m. Friday.

Injuries Listed
Kennedy suffered from severe lacerations, two broken legs, and a fractured jaw. He died at 12:48 Saturday.

Pletcher is reported to be suffering from internal injuries and severe bruises about his body. Hospital attaches stated that his condition is satisfactory.

Tales of An Old Town

An Attempt to Re-produce a Cross Section of The American Scene, As Witnessed Here Through the Past Century

An Accounts of The Dayton Dance Club and of the General Store of Curtis Lamb

"Thinking over those days and then coming back to the present is almost like moving from one world to another," said Frank Lamb, in talking over the old Dayton days of 60 and 70 years ago.

Lamb's first distinct memories of the old town were perhaps connected with the Dayton dance hall, in the days when his father, Curtis Lamb, was farming the Babcock farm in Wesaw township, north of Galien, but was a member of the Dayton Dancing Club, a locally famous social institution of that time. A number of the Dayton and nearby communities had organized a dancing club, with a membership fee of $5 per year. Among the membership were Curtis Lamb, Doc DeArmond, Joe Proud, John Young and Eph Sanders. They and their families could dance free, but outsiders had to pay $1 per ticket. This was a high price but it kept the cheap element pretty well out.

The dance hall was over a store, and had in addition a side room where the children amused themselves. Every two weeks during the winter—sometimes once a week—Lamb would load his family in a bobbed box, filled with straw, and cover the children with quilts and the entire family would go to the dance, which usually lasted all night. In the side room there was also a long table, and each night at midnight there would be an hour off for supper. Those that took a lunch with them would spread it on this table.

Others would patronize the supper served by Mrs. Cady and Mrs. Frank Needham. Late at night the kids would become sleepy and usually were taken to the home of friends. The Lamb children were taken to the DeArmond home and laid on the bed until morning. It was usual for the Lamb family to arrive home at dawn, eat breakfast and go to work, working all day. There was no loafing around next day after an all-night dance.

For years the music was furnished by an orchestra composed of Bill Powers and Jap Murphy with violins and Sid Moore with the clarinet. Second fiddle usually called the dances, that duty falling usually on Jap Murphy. The dances consisted of the old-fashioned squares, waltzes, schottishes, and polkas. A crowd was usually present from Buchanan, another from Galien, the latter coming up via the Michigan Central evening "accommodation" train. Galien was then famous for its "rough element" which formed one of the problems of the dances, but the $1 ticket charge kept many of them away. The dances were one of the famous social institutions of southern Berrien county.

When Frank Lamb was about 20 years old his father owned his own farm, and he rented it to Frank and moved to Dayton, buying a general store from Egbert & Johnson. They had bought it from Eph Sanders, and John Young. This store, as Curtis Lamb conducted it, was a general store, including stocks of groceries, drygoods and drugs, and for a time the postoffice.

The groceries consisted of bulk products almost entirely. Sugar was bought by the barrel, consisting of various shades of brown sugar, in three grades of medium light, brown and dark brown. If the customer bought a dollar's worth of brown sugar it was weighed out on the old scales which Lamb still has at his home at Moccasin and Third streets, Buchanan. It was quite a trick to wrap up that much sugar. Later some granulated sugar was sold and that was still more of a trick to wrap, since there were no sacks. A piece of heavy brown wrapping paper would be laid on the hopper of the scales and the sugar poured in it and weighed. The paper would be slid to the counter and then came the trick of wrapping without spilling it all over.

Very little flour was sold and no baked goods, with the exception of soda crackers, which came in barrels and were a very common staple. Perhaps there might be a few ginger snaps sold. There was no fruit at all with the exception of dried apples and peaches, dried by local farm wives and sold to the store. There were barrels of New Orleans molasses. The only meat sold was barreled side pork, heavily salted, and dried beef.

The dry goods consisted of a few bolts of calico, and perhaps a few other bolts of feminine dress goods, bolts of sheeting and bed ticking. The drugs consisted of bulk staples, with quinine as leading seller, since there was still much fever and ague in the district. Several kinds of liquor, including whiskey, were also part of the drug stock, and were sold only in the bottle, to be consumed off the premises for medicinal and other purposes.

Mrs. Lamb operated the store most of the time, with Cass DeArmond as clerk. Curtis Lamb was usually busy outside as a grain buyer or a contract wood sawyer. He bought a horsepower wood sawing outfit and for years sawed two-foot wood in the Needham and Wilson woodyard for the Michigan Central railway engines. In front of the long wooden counters in the Lamb store were long benches, which were often fully occupied in the evenings by the crackerbarrel crowd, who gathered for social chats. These consisted chiefly of the older element, including many Germans, who had grown, cured and dried their own tobacco which they smoked in clay or corn cob pipes. Both the tobacco and the pipes had considerable power and as the evenings wore on the politics became heated, the smoke grew very dense and the resultant fumes required strong constitutions.

Dayton was a humming town then, the grist mill bringing farmers for miles in all directions. The grist mill, operated by Jack Glover and also by Bainton Brothers while Lamb was there, was the leading business institution. There was no mill at New Carlisle or Galien. Lamb and other grain buyers also drew wheat trade over a wide area, until Dayton had the name of being the main wheat shipping station on the Michigan Central. All of the rich Terre Coupe farm district contributed, most of the Portage Prairie section. Bertrand township in those years used to be the leading township in Michigan in wheat production. Then the farmers of the Bend of the River hauled their wheat to Dayton, over a road which crossed the river at the River street bridge and wound through the present site of Buchanan. The present River street and Terre Coupe road streets of Buchanan are relics of this old wheat hauling road, the intervening link having been eliminated when the north and west parts of the town were laid out in streets.

There were three saloons in Dayton, operated by Gil Burdick, John Gogle and Billy Hardy. Then there was the Wilson & Needham sawmill, which included a handle factory, the whole establishment employing from 15 to 20 men. The other institutions will be reviewed in later stories.

Correction
The chapter on Dayton history last week contained an error in the location of the Dayton I. O. O. F. hall. This error arose from the fact that the only time the writer ever visited the Dayton Odd Fellows was at a dinner which they held a number of years ago on the afternoon of the Odd Fellow picnic there. That dinner was held in the upper story of the school, and the writer then gained the impression that they used it as a hall.

Chungking, China,—Most Bombed City in World

This photo of a 5 1/2-hour bombing of Chungking, China, by Japanese planes, was released by United China Relief, New York, now conducting a $5,000,000 campaign for relief work among the Chinese. Dennis McEvoy, one of the best-informed newspaper men in Chungking, says: "Chungking looks as if a huge hammer from the heavens had struck, wildly, blindly, with crushing effect. But the sounds of hammering could be heard almost immediately after the all-clear signal. If the Japanese can dish it out the Chinese can take it."

Plan Conference for Young Adults At Camp Warren

Will Promote Christian Program in Church, Home and Community

On September 19-21, Camp Warren, for the first time in its history, will hold a conference for young married couples. This conference, under the auspices of the Michigan Council of Churches and Christian Education, and the Berrien County Sunday School Association, will include young married people under the age of 40 from all of the southwestern counties of Michigan. Its purpose will be to provide an opportunity for young married couples to plan an effective Christian program in home, church, and community.

While this project is a new experiment in Berrien County, it promises to be an important step toward an extensive county program of adult education. This conference called the "Southwestern Planning Conference," will be under the very capable direction of Dr. Ross Snyder, assistant professor of Religious Education in the Chicago Theological Seminary. Dr. Snyder's leadership should prove to be very practical and stimulating to teachers, leaders, and parents. He came to the Seminary from the field of practical experience as director of Religious Education in the First Congregational Church of Winetka, Illinois. His approach will be particularly valuable to teachers in stimulating their thinking with regard to the problems of the Church School. He will lead in the conference groups on the topic, "Teaching in the Church School."

Rev. Gerald Maggart, minister of the First Congregational Church in St. Joseph, Michigan, will assist Dr. Snyder in the conference as leader of the breakfast matins services and also of the planning group discussing the topic, "A Faith For Today." Mr. Maggart is a graduate of the Chicago Theological Seminary and has gained popularity as a leader and worker in conferences and youth programs in a wide area surrounding his parish field.

An interesting feature of the program is that the young married couples' conference will be led by two young married couples. Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Maggart will also act as conference group leaders on the respective topics, "How To Answer Children's Questions," and "Building A Church Program For Young Married Couples." Mrs. J. Burt Bowman, wife of the Executive Secretary of the Michigan Council, will exhibit helpful source materials on subjects relevant to the purpose of the conference. Mrs. L. V. Barker.

Seven Injured In Accident On Range Line Road

H. J. Postlewaite and Merlin Ludwig Cars Crash

The most serious local traffic accident of the Labor Day weekend was a collision between cars driven by Homer J. Postlewaite of Hammond, Ind., and Merlin Ludwig of Route 2, Berrien Springs, on the Range Line Road two miles north of Buchanan.

Ludwig was driving south on the Range Line Road when Postlewaite, approaching from the south, started to turn into the driveway of his farm occupied by Chris Stark, tenant. Postlewaite apparently misjudged the speed and the nearness of the Ludwig car. The latter struck the Postlewaite car broadside and both cars were demolished. All occupants of both cars suffered some injuries, and were taken to the Pawating hospital, Niles, for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Postlewaite incurred painful cuts and bruises, but were released Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig incurred painful head lacerations but were also released. The two sons, Merlin, Jr., 8, and Max, 7, had painful but minor hurts. The two little girls, Arlene, 5, and Viola, 1, were more seriously hurt. Viola, age 1, had severe head injuries, which were not considered dangerous. Arlene, age 5, had severe head contusions and her condition was at first considered grave. However, later reports from the hospital indicate that she has improved.

The farm tenant, Chris Stark, witnessed the accident.

Enrollment 52 In Senior Class Lowest in Years

Enrollment and Defense Employment Get Part of Credit

Enrollment in the Buchanan schools on Tuesday, the opening day, totaled 1028 in all grades, with an enrollment of only 52 in the senior class.

Four Reach Shore As Boat Goes Down in St. Joseph River Two Miles North Of Buchanan

John Henry Mudra, 45, veteran of World War No. 1, and an employee of the Chicago Surface Lines with a residence at 2233 West 50th Place, Chicago, was the victim of an accident resulting from an overloaded motor boat on the St. Joseph river two miles north of Buchanan Sunday afternoon.

Mudra was one of a number of Chicago guests at the summer home of Henry Duffek, Chicago, located on the east bank of the river about a mile and a half north of the Indiana & Michigan hydro plant. His wife and two children had remained at the Duffek home while Mudra with Vernon Penney, Sr., and son, Vernon, Jr., of 3331 West 62nd street, Chicago, Jerry Slavik of 6031 Fairfield Avenue, Chicago, and Ann Zrna, Chicago, all went for a ride in a small boat fitted with an outboard motor. Mudra was seated in the prow of the boat, and Vernon Penney, Sr., seated in the stern, operated the craft. It was believed that very likely Penney speeded up the boat suddenly and that Mudra's weight, about 225 pounds, in the front of the boat caused it to nose into the water. However, Coroner William Pifer of Niles confined his report to the adequate reason, "overloaded boat."

The craft was about 200 feet off shore in the middle of the stream when the accident occurred, in about 20 feet of water. The boy, Vernon Penney, Jr., age 4, wore a life preserver which saved him. His father, Slavik, and Miss Zrna were able to swim ashore. Mudra went down at the scene of the accident.

The sheriff's department was notified, and deputy sheriffs Robert Rinker and Arthur Schultz went to rescue the body. Some time was spent in gathering dragging equipment, but after it was assembled by Jerry Kline, a neighbor, found the body in about 20 minutes, at about 7:30 p. m. It was turned over to Lowell Swem and was taken to Chicago during the early morning hours Monday.

The victim's wife, Rose Mudra, and his daughter, Florence, and son, Henry, went to Chicago during the night. Mudra was born in Chicago April 15, 1896. He was a member of a Chicago American Legion post.

William Moore Is Victim of Hold-Up

William Moore, an employee of S. S. H. Hill of the Allied Construction company and engaged in work building curbs and gutters in Buchanan, was the victim of a hold-up at the corner of Fifth and Portage about 11:30 p. m. Friday, immediately after he had left the carnival which was in session there. The bandit was unmasked but the darkness at the scene of the hold-up prevented the victim from getting any description. The robbery netted the sticker-upper $15. Buchanan police were on the scene in a few minutes but found no one in the vicinity that might have been responsible. It was believed that the robber mixed in the carnival crowd.

FOR BIGGER AND BETTER WASTE BASKETS
 Quite some flurry has been kicked up recently in the wake of an article by Carl Rudlow in the Detroit News to the effect that the "public relations" service of the various departments of the state of Michigan is costing the taxpayers $250,000 per year.

This "public relations" service consists of the news releases sent to the state press, purporting to give the news of the various departments but as a matter of fact devoted chiefly to boosting the political stock of the department heads. The money goes to the salaries of the press agents, postage and incidentals. The output of the publicity mills is sent to the state press to be printed, if the said state press is simple enough to do it. Of course there is occasionally a story worth printing for the actual news it contains.

Says the Charlotte Republican-Tribune:
 "For the information of these Public Relations propagandists the R.-T. has this rule.—If the name of the tax supported office holder (with the exception of farm news from Michigan State College) appears in either of the first two opening paragraphs, the story is thrown in the waste basket where a high percent of all this material finally lands. We figure if this paid political writer can omit the name of his chief in these two opening paragraphs that he may really have something of interest somewhere in the balance of the yarn. The R.-T. uses less Lansing political propaganda copy than most papers of its size."

LETTER OF CREDIT Jerome Weidman Author Weidman captured poignant, witty, and human glimpses of the world poised for war on his trip around the world in 1939. With these bits of observations and incidents he weaves a very readable book of note.

Among the memorable people in this book are the sixty-eight year old Baltimore woman in Bombay who hated her forty-six year old daughter, and the little old Australian couple who had lived in Malaya for forty years and never bought a stick of furniture, not even a curtain because "Kuala Lumpur isn't really our home you know."

Perhaps the wittiest remark made in the book is made by the young Indian returning to India who knew why God never permitted the sun to set on the British Empire. Mr. Weidman also discovered the Australian fishing fleet which has nothing to do with fish, but uses hair nets to land its catch.

Hunting season remains several weeks away, but Michigan farmers are setting up organizations like those in operation in 122 farm communities in 1940.

Neighborhoods grouped in game management cooperation follow the pattern set originally several years ago in the unique Williamson, Mich., plan, comments R. G. Hill in charge of farm game extension work at Michigan State College.

New groups desiring information on this type of hunting management should hold community meetings in the near future, according to Hill. If additional information is required, individuals familiar with the cooperatives are available for meetings through arrangement with county agricultural agents or by contacting the Michigan State Department of Conservation.

Similarly, if assistance in obtaining posting material is desired, applications should be filed with the State Department of Conservation not later than Sept. 20.

The game management cooperatives last year ranged in size from 640 to 5,000 acres. Advantages include better control of trespass, better control over bag limits, protection of property and resultant advantages to hunters because of the control over volume of hunters on a given property at one time, and the availability of a large area over which to hunt.

Surplus Marketing Administration, announced in Milwaukee today.

Thousands of teachers, parent-teacher associations and other school lunch sponsors are now laying plans for resumption of school lunch programs. Allocations of these foods already have been made to state welfare agencies for distribution in Michigan and the 11 other states in the midwestern region.

Other items on the list of available foods include grapefruit segments, grapefruit juice, prunes, honey, corn meal, and wheat products consisting of cereals and both white and graham flours.

The regional director said it is likely a variety of fresh fruits also will be available again this year, particularly citrus fruits and apples.

The school lunch program, which last year helped see that five million undernourished and needy children in the United States were better fed, is one of the chief outlets for surplus foods purchased by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in its efforts to broaden domestic markets and bolster farm prices.

Last year during the peak month of March, the school lunch program was operating in 2,492 schools of Michigan. A total of 124,816 undernourished children received benefits of the program in these schools.

It is predominately a rural program. Seventy-seven per cent of the participating schools and 63 per cent of the children served live in rural areas. In comparison with the 5,000,000 children who participated during the peak month last year, the present national objective of the program, Mr. Rowlands explained, is to reach all of the 9,000,000 children shown to be undernourished in a recent national survey, nine million youngsters who are living below the danger line of health.

Local sponsorship is the key-stone requirement for any school lunch project. The federal government provides certain basic foods, and the community carries on from there furnishing the leadership to organize and direct the program. The sponsoring group sees to it that food is clean, well cooked and that sanitary equipment and premises are provided. It supplies such supplemental foods as are necessary to turn out an appetizing well-rounded meal each noon. The whole community helps.

Works Projects Administration and National Youth Administration help may be secured in many cases. Home demonstration agents of the Michigan State College extension service advise and help get school lunch programs started. The Surplus Marketing Administration has a special school lunch representative in each state to assist schools and sponsoring groups.

Sponsorship usually comes from school officials, teachers, parent-teacher associations, patriotic organizations, lodges, women's clubs and any other groups interested in improving health and general welfare conditions among children of their communities.

Mrs. J. Cathro, of South Africa Is Guest Here

Daughter Former Church Christ Minister Tells of Conditions There

A breeze from far places of the world breathed through Buchanan during the past week, no other than Mrs. James Cathro, the daughter of a one-time Buchanan minister, but now the wife of a Scotch business man in Cape Town, South Africa.

Mrs. Cathro visited over a week with her aunt, Miss Lily Abell. She left Wednesday morning in company with Miss Mary E. Reynolds, enroute to Chicago where she was to be the latter's guest and also the guest speaker at the Women's University Club last night. She spoke on present-day events and conditions in South Africa. She is the daughter of the late Rev. Burnet Allen, who preached at the local Church of Christ when a lad of 19, about 40 years ago. While here he fell in love with and later wedded Ida Abell, sister of Lily Abell. Mrs. Cathro was born in Louisville, Ky., her girlhood name being Cyria Allen. She met the man she married while he was visiting in "the states". Later she accompanied him to New Zealand, to South Africa, to England, and then back to South Africa. Naturally she understands the English viewpoint. She has retained her American citizenship.

She sailed from Cape Town on the American steamship President Monroe, three weeks after the survivors from the Robin Moor had been landed there, and her trip was without incident. South Africa was and is torn by internal dissensions over the empire's war policy, although a majority of 89 to 67 in the parliament uphold the policy of participation sponsored by the national hero, General Schmutts. It was perhaps only the prestige of General Schmutts that kept South Africa in line. The previous prime minister, in office at the time of the declaration of war in 1939, had announced previously that in the event of war South Africa would remain neutral. The day after the declaration he called the parliament together and attempted to secure support for his view. General Schmutts led the opposition and defeated him, the reversal automatically retiring Schmutts from office.

However the first stand made was that South Africa would fight only within and in defense of its own borders. But when the Italians entered the picture changed, since the Italian designs were considered a menace to South Africa and the borders within which South Africa might participate were enlarged to the whole of Africa. This is why South African troops have been engaged in the fight against both Italian and German troops in North Africa and were the first to enter Addis Ababa, Abyssinia.

The opposition party is comprised principally of the descendants of the Dutch who emigrated to South Africa several hundred years ago. Their policies are determined not so much by friendship to Germany as by opposition to any policy taken by Great Britain. They are called "Afrikaners" and their speech, Dutch dialect, is called "Afrikaans". When the area of conflict was widened to the whole of Africa, it was necessary to make concessions to the Afrikaners. Consequently the army is now divided into two parts, to which two different oaths are administered, one to defend only the borders and the other to defend British holdings anywhere in Africa. Those sworn to defend all Africa wear red tabs on their shoulders, and the two classifications can be immediately distinguished by this mark. An ugly undertone has been injected into the internal situation by Nazi agents who have been working to spread discontent among the 7,000,000 blacks against the 2,000,000 whites in South Africa. This infact probably helps to unify the British element and the Dutch or Afrikaner element. The British element need Dutch votes to hold their present dominant position in their parliament, since 60% of the population is of Dutch descent. Most of this support is secured through the following of General Schmutts, who is the hero of the Dutch as well as of English and was one of the Dutch leaders in the fight against England during the Boer war.

Although Mrs. Cathro, as an American, is rather in the position of a bleacher spectator of the struggle but her ties through marriage render her a very interested spectator. She has been a close student of the scene and is a vivid, interesting talker. While in America she is making a study of American conditions and attitudes. She goes from Chicago to Aberdeen, Washington, where she will visit her mother, Mrs. Burnet Allen.

Conservation Dept. Counts on Setting Lowest Fire Record

With five months of the seven-month forest fire season safely past and total acreage burned still under the 10,000-acre mark, conservation department fire fighting crews consider themselves still in the running for a new record.

Least loss since reliable records have been kept was in 1937, a wet year, when 16,701 of the more than 17,500,000 acres guarded were burned over. The forest fire hazard persists, with varying intensity until there is snow on the ground.

The V-shaped section of Detroit bounded by Eight-Mile Road on the north and The Grand Trunk railroad on east and west, will be served by Michigan Bell's new Twinbrook Central Office.

"Letting out the seams" for a growing Detroit

WITH defense plants springing up, more people at work and business booming, Detroit rapidly is outgrowing its telephone facilities in certain central offices.

The number of telephones served by five central offices in north Detroit, for example, is increasing three times as fast as the average of recent years.

To relieve that pressure, Michigan Bell is rushing completion of a new central office building—Twinbrook—and installation of equipment at a cost of more than $1,450,000.

Western Electric's huge manufacturing and installation facilities make possible the swift expansion of telephone service in Michigan, and help us speed the $11,000,000 program required to meet telephone demands of camps and defense projects alone. To meet all the increased telephone needs throughout the state, we are spending more than $26,000,000 this year!

The telephone has a little part in almost every National Defense effort. And a little part in every effort adds up to pretty big figures.

TO FATHERS AND MOTHERS
Dear Parents
You are trying to give me an education, for my future success. But how can I learn if I don't see clearly?
Of every five children one needs glasses. Some parents say, "Nonsense!"—and their child stays behind in school, suffers headaches, squints, or is moody, cross.
Give me my chance. Have my eyes examined. If I need better eyesight, will you re-fuse to give it?
Lovingly,
YOUR CHILD
