"PAST IS PROLOGUE"

A Thought on the "Old Year"
 By Ruth Taylor
 "What is Past is Prologue" is carved in the ending stone of that great marble building which houses the Archives of the United States.
 "Past is Prologue" The dictators whose insane lust for power laid waste one continent and whose mad dreams reached across oceans to engulf us, should have paused at these words and considered their meaning—before the onslaught of our aroused armies swept them into oblivion.
 "Past is Prologue" What is our past but a struggle for freedom for all oppressed and disheartened people—religious freedom, political freedom, economic freedom? The founding fathers, beloved of every patriotic orator, incorporated this urge for freedom in the classic phrases of the preamble to the Constitution and in the Bill of Rights, which is the Magna Charta of our freedom.
 "Past is Prologue" The past is useful in determining what the future shall be. With the past this nation possesses we could not have turned aside from the cries for help from the victims of the new oppression, those helpless people whose only fault was that they were the ways of peace, and that they had possessions the gangster overlords of Europe and Asia coveted. With our past record we could not have turned aside like the Pharisae from the wounded traveler. For us—with our heritage of action for freedom—binding up the injured as did the Good Samaritan was not enough. The fight was ours. The task was plain. We had to help drive the robbers from the Jericho Road.
 "Past is Prologue" But the past is fulfilled only as the desire for a better future which it had inaugurated into our hearts and minds, leads us to the pursuit of the future—and we must make the future better.
 "Past is Prologue" To keep the promise of the past we must stand firm now and fight to preserve the right. We must not compromise with evil. We must put into practice the truth by which we hold sovereignty over this nation.
 "That all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights—life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The task is great, but the past has trained us for the needs of the present. We CAN and WILL do all that is demanded of us in the new year ahead.

them. Jap clothes, shoes, books, knives, bayonet and rifle. I sure would like to get my rifle home to Dad but I have my doubts whether I can or not. It's a 31 caliber. I also have a few souvenirs from New Zealand in my sea bag that I'll send too, as soon as it arrives.

We received letters from you today saying that Allen had joined the Navy. I don't know why you let him do such a thing before he finished school. All I can say is that he will be sorry.

I'm feeling great and am really proud of what the Marines are doing in the South Pacific and that isn't anyone who can say that they've seen things any worse than I have. We are hoping that our next task won't be as hard as Tarawa, but wherever it is or how hard the nuts is to crack you can be sure the Marines won't fail if we have to kill every Jap from here to Tokyo.

We are now in a resting camp, (rest ha!) Don't take that word too seriously. It is deceiving. We won't ever get any rest in the Marines until we meet our Maker or get home.

You can send us anything you want, it will always get to us. Candy or anything through the mail. You can pass the word around because we are always glad to get whatever comes. Ha ha!

Mother, I'm glad you had a nice vacation. The vacation I'm taking now will last me a life time. The traveling I'm doing I mean, not a vacation.

Well, that's about all I have time for now so goodbye and do write soon. Love, your son, "Rusty"

P S Tell Gene and everyone hello for me. I'll tell you the places I've been so far in this war, Australia, New Zealand, New Caledonia, New Hebrides, Gilbert Islands and the place where I am now. I'm in a semi-tropical climate.

HOLLYWOOD

Adolph Menjou, Martha Scott Co-Stars

"Hi Diddle Diddle," which will be shown at the Hollywood theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan 13-15, sets a hot-tipped pace as one of the most hilarious, sparkling comedies ever to be flashed on the screen. Peppered with smart dialogue, gay song and dance and a loop-the-loop romance. Andrew Stone's new hit finds star performers Adolph Menjou, Martha Scott, Pop Negri, June Havoc, Dennis O'Keefe and Billie Burke involved in a series of side-splitting situations that can happen to anybody and just never do. It's fun all the way and to top it off, Len Schlesinger, the famous creator of short cartoon films, has added some unusual animated sequences—which are delightful and good for a score of laughs.

Lugosi Returns As Evil Vampire Bela Lugosi returns with super-horror as the Vampire, a beautiful girl as his prey! The Vampire dictates what she does! How can she escape this demon of the night? It's all in a scream in every scene. He's a terror on every spine. It's eerie—terrifying—chilling—as the lust to live brings the Vampire to life—to kill!

That's "The Return of the Vampire," Columbia's paralyzing horror film playing at the Hollywood Theatre, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 13-14-15.

Wallace Berry Keeps On Risking His Neck for Thrills It's all in a day's work. Wallace Berry, filmdom's diamond-in-the-rough, is blown half way across the movie set, sections of buildings collapse a foot away from him, and simulated air bombs explode the earth everywhere. A Marine tank races through, close enough to the star to give him a haircut. Berry is risking his neck for the umpty umph time/for thrills to the screen. In this particular instance it's M-G-M's "Salute to the Marines," heroic movie story of the leathernecks in the Philippines, coming Sunday and Monday Jan 16-17 to the Hollywood theatre.

The "Scot" consists of eight cars, two coaches, a coach lounge, a first-class diner, a third-class diner, a kitchen, a sleeper with 12 berths and a club car.

The deed stipulated that the train be turned over to Maj. Gen. Edmund B Gregory, quartermaster general of the army. It will be stationed at Jeffersonville, Ind., for use of officers of the quartermaster depot there.

A. Yes, if by so doing essential production can be increased.

Q. Why exclude establishments with fewer than eight employees? A. Because there would be little real gain in either production or released workers.

Q. Will an employer who had on his payroll fewer than eight persons when the order became effective but who increases the number within a few weeks later be required to go on the 48-hour week? A. If otherwise eligible, yes.

Q. May an employer who is not required to do so voluntarily adopt a 48-hour weekly work schedule? A. Yes, and should do so if such action increases essential production and does not release workers who cannot be placed in other suitable employment.

Q. What effect will the longer week have on those plants where schedules of 45 or more hours are already in effect? A. None, if "longer week" remains the 48-hour week.

Q. What about establishments in which the work is largely of a part-time nature? A. The WMC regulations do not apply to individuals who on account of other employment, household responsibilities, or physical limitations, are not available for full-time work.

Q. Will the longer work week be required when it conflicts with any federal, state or local laws or regulations limiting the hours of work? A. No.

Q. Can the work week be extended without the payment of more wages? A. The executive order states—"Nothing in this order shall be construed as superseding any individual or collective bargaining agreement with respect to rates of pay for hours worked in excess of late agreed or customary work week."

Q. Will the lengthened week have the effect of abrogating agreements signed by employers and labor unions? A. It will supersede any such agreement insofar as total work hours per week are concerned.

Q. If an employer is convinced the workers he plans to release cannot readily obtain other suitable employment, what should he do? A. Take up the matter with the WMC.

Q. What is the penalty for failure to extend the work week? A. The executive order specifically states "All departments and agencies of the federal government shall take such action under authority vested in them by law as the chairman determines to be necessary to effectuate the purposes of this order and promote compliance with its provisions."

Q. Will the manpower representative establish a checking system to determine the degree to which an employer is complying with the longer work order? A. WMC expects the order to be largely self-policing, but will exercise such checks as may be required to determine conditions.

Q. Where should complaints regarding non-compliance be filed? A. With the WMC area director.

Q. How will the 48-hour work week be made applicable to companies having more than one operating establishment, like, for example, chain stores? A. Its application will be by each individual plant or separate operating units.

Q. Will the 48-hour week be applicable to a company or activity like trucking if part of the operations are outside the confines of a designated area? A. The general principle is that application will be limited to operations within the area. However, where operations extend outside the confines of a designated area, the wartime work week is applicable to the central office from which the particular employee operates will govern unless the WMC regional or area director approves an exception as authorized by regulations.

Gives Green Color Commercial chlorophyll is usually extracted from alfalfa and is used for imparting a green color to soups, oils, fats, foods, liquors, and medicinal preparations.

Easy to Cook It's easy to cook carrots, because the color stays bright without any special care on your part, and the vitamin A value remains intact at ordinary cooking temperatures. Cook carrots in as little water as possible and serve this liquid with the cooked carrots.

Released by Western Newspaper Union. NUTRITION HINTS

It must be gratifying to our research workers in nutrition to see how, in hundreds, if not thousands, of factories engaged in making armaments and war utensils, the quantity and quality of the foods sold at the canteens is under the supervision of trained dietitians.

One of the first points noticed in the menus is the emphasis placed on meats. The workers are encouraged to eat meat not only at the evening meal but at their noon meal or lunch. That plenty of bread and potatoes should be eaten to give energy is also advised, but the meat is especially needed to repair worn tissues and cells caused by strenuous war work.

Fruits, green and yellow vegetables, and plenty of milk, are advised to make sure of obtaining the necessary minerals and vitamins.

In an address before the Second Pennsylvania Health Institute, Harrisburg, Dr Frank G Bondreau, New York, stated that education in nutrition of the industrial worker can be made effective by following these suggestions:

1. A trained dietitian can be made available to the employees and their families.

2. Information on nutrition can be placed in the plant's publications.

3. Pay envelope slips, listing items of food of good nutritional or nourishing value which are in season or on the market at reasonable prices, can be used.

4. Posters emphasizing the importance of good nutrition can be placed about the plant.

5. Pamphlets on nutrition, provided by such agencies as the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, can be distributed.

6. The maintenance of a canteen system, where foods of high nutritional value are served "in an attractive fashion" so that the employees learn to appreciate how nice they taste as well as how nourishing they are, is one of the best ways of attracting their attention and careful consideration.

Loss of Efficiency Thru Lack of Food

Wives and mothers have known for many years that if they want to talk about a new dress, some painting or decorating for the house, or anything else in which the opinion and help of husband or father is needed, the matter should not be discussed while he is hungry. It was no news to them, therefore, when some research workers a couple of years ago showed that hunger so affected the nervous system that the individual would not be his or her real self and would do or say things which he would not remember shortly after the eating of a meal.

That plenty of the proper foods would increase the size, health and life span of small animals was shown about five years ago. Research workers on nutrition kept a colony of albino rats on a standard ration of food for about 27 generations. The rats thrived, had large families, and lived the usual life span. However, by adding certain foods containing minerals and vitamins to this standard ration, the rats improved in size, in the bearing of young, and in their life span.

Dr James S Mc Lester, Birmingham, Ala., chairman of the council on foods and nutrition of the American Medical Association, states in the association journal that, despite the abundance of all kinds of food, there are many individuals who do not eat enough or their body products do not handle properly various foodstuffs, with the result that they are not what they should be physically, mentally and emotionally. These individuals have no outstanding symptoms such as bleeding gums found with scurvy, neuritis, pains of ber-beri, or the skin eruption of pellagra.

"After watching these patients, one is impressed by the truth of the statement that no greater catastrophe comes to man than the loss of efficiency, the lack of initiative, and the mental depression that comes from failure to obtain proper nutrition."

We must continue to eat plenty of meat, eggs, fish, bread and potatoes—foundation foods, and then make sure of eating some every day of the protective foods, that are dairy products, fruits and green vegetables.

No Cuts A baseball batter's paradise, free of curve balls, is Quito, Ecuador, which is 9,500 feet above sea level. Because of the rarefied atmosphere, only straight pitches come across the plate.

Write to the Servicemen
Every day in the newspaper you see a letter making a plea for letters. This serviceman is not asking for money or valuables, he just wants you to share some of your thoughts and memories. It doesn't take much time to tell what happened in school or home in a light amusing way. It's just the idea of taking time out of their lives to fight and shed blood for you and me. So the way I look at it, you and I can find time to share our life to make a rough military life easier. Write and write today to some serviceman you know.

than in the preceding semester. Education in this period of war time is more essential in the advancement of mankind than ever before. When we mobilize our mental power it will bring us nearer to victory. When everyone cooperates by doing what they can, they are helping themselves as they develop into better citizens. As they obtain their education they should try to aid the teacher, the community and the fighting front.
A young nation such as ours with people of better education than others has the ability to plan the future. So let us take advantage of our freedom of education so that we may share the fruits of peace.

Trio in Teheran Guarantees Victory

Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia, President Franklin D. Roosevelt of the United States, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England, as they appeared during their conference in Teheran, Iran, where they committed their peoples to full co-operation during the war and after it. Their declaration read in part: "The common understanding which we have reached guarantees that victory will be ours. And as to the peace we are sure that our concord will make it an enduring peace. We recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the peoples of the world and banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations. We came here with hope and determination. We leave here friends in fact, in spirit, and in purpose."

THAT'S RIGHT, Mrs. Higgins. No points, no coupons—no rationing of electricity. Not that it's any less important than food, or fuel, or shoes. In fact, electric power has rightly been called the life-blood of war production. But our government does ask all of us to use electricity wisely. Even though there's no shortage in sight, the making of electricity requires manpower, fuel, transportation and critical materials—things on which war has first call today. So, be as careful with electricity as you are with your coupons. Use all you need—but need all you use.
