Dr. Brothers tells it like it is

"Cable News Network has given me a wonderful platform," says psychologist Dr. Joyce Brothers who examines all facets of human behavior in her five weekly 90-second essays on the Turner Broadcasting System. Her essays cover a wide variety of topics from how to choose your friends to the popularity of country music. "What I do for Cable News Network, is never heard anywhere else," Dr. Brothers says "I have researchers all over the world who enable me to report on developments long before they get into medical literature. It is an enormous responsibility and I am very proud of it. "What I am doing in my reporting, is simply talking as clearly as I can about very complicated things," Dr. Brothers says "I speak straightforwardly so that people can understand I never talk down to anyone. I report as if I were talking to a friend."

Dr. Joyce Brothers

Dr. Brothers says she also wants to talk about "new things that we did not know about ourselves, new things that affect our lives." These topics range from why Americans suddenly seem more patriotic to new research on the effect of antihistamines on colds. She says she also wants to relate psychology to the news to discover "why countries or leaders act as they do"
