By Don Holmes

This weekend will mark the culmination of many months' preparation by the Old Fashioned Labor Day committee to bring its 5th Annual Celebration to the community. It doesn't seem possible that it was over 5 1/2 years ago that Bob Backus, Bob Welsh and I met at the Buchanan Moose Lodge and made the decision to begin formulating plans for the first celebration. Well, as they say, time flies when you're having fun.

I'm sure that in one of the stories it is stated that this year's celebration will be bigger and better and it is probably true. However, sometime in the near future the committee may have to decide if it wants the celebration to get bigger. Bigger, of course, is not always better and bigger can mean problems. I would imagine that the committee will address this issue next year.

When you are enjoying yourselves this weekend please remember that the celebration's greatest source of revenue is from the sale of raffle tickets. The prizes this year are: A Hawaiian vacation for two, $700 worth of groceries or a lady's diamond ring and eight $50 gift certificates. These are great prizes so you will want to buy plenty of tickets to help support this great celebration.

This will be a tough weekend for us because of the holiday. We have to print the Lake County Chronicle, our other newspaper, on Saturday plus our fall sports supplement. And, of course, we will be taking pictures all weekend. It will be a mighty long weekend.

Incidentally, our Labor Day supplement is included with this week's Record and it is our biggest and we think our best yet.

I thought that the second part of last week's Tricky Trivia Question would stump our readers but several of you knew that Bill Karpinski's six year record was 44 wins, 4 ties and 4 losses. Not too shabby, was it?

In 1965, Bill's last Buchanan team had a perfect 9-0 record, captured its 4th consecutive Blossomland Conference and was picked the number one class B football team in Michigan by the Detroit Free Press. For the season the Bucks scored 230 points while giving up only 27 to their opponents. Fantastic!

Bill Eichler is the lucky one whose entry was drawn and he is our winner. Congratulations, Bill. Enjoy your dinner at The Bluff.

I'm sure that many of our readers are familiar with the saying "When it rains, it pours." Today, Tuesday, as we try to get the Record ready for the press, not one, but two of our machines have broken down. I guess you could say that it is pouring here today.

Right now we are concerned about getting the paper out at all, let alone on time but we'll make it somehow. We have borrowed typesetting equipment which has a different type face and we're sure that you will notice the difference.

Reflexions

by Bobbie

It's time to use some of the many notes from my file box. Generally speaking, I have never been a collector of unnecessary material things. But I do collect notes. Whenever I think of something I want to know more about, I jot it down and file it under Miscellaneous — To Be Pursued. Also I clip out quotes, copy jokes and am always discovering heretofore unknown (to me) facts and figures.

As I indicated in my topic sentence, my note collection is about to be shared. There will be no particular order to this, so don't look for any. As the French say, this is a potpourri, or as the Spaniards say, an olla podrida (literally translated, a rotten pot!) We can also call this column today an "incongruous mixture."

I have no idea from whence these quotes come. "One is not completely himself when he is making a decision." "Maybe we don't remember everything when we graduate, but we remember where to find it."

New York City is now the world's largest urban area, followed by Mexico City. This is population-wise, of course. And the American Kennel Club's records indicate poodles are America's most popular dog, followed by Doberman's. (Cocker spaniels have dropped to fourth, just below German shepherds.)

Just exactly what does "one inch of rain" really mean? Despite the fact you know you "caught" more than two inches (depth) of water in that old tub sitting out in the backyard during the last big rainstorm, the local weatherman tells us we had something like 16 of an inch. Here is how rainfall really is measured. Picture an acre of ground (this is hard for most of us city folk, but to make it easier, picture 43, 560 square feet.) Got that? Now picture the raindrops falling over that acre with uniform coating. A rainfall of one inch over this area would mean 27,143 gallons of water. (Did I leave out something? It still isn't too clear, is it?)

Judge Chester A. Byrns of Berrien County was quoted as saying "Today's youth soon graduate from the bottle to the telephone as major sustenance." An epitaph on a gravesite in a Rudoso, N.M. cemetery reads: "Here lies Johnny Yeast; Pardon me for not rising." Another one in Soranton, on an old maid's stone, says: "No hits, no runs, no heirs." A short one in a Georgia cemetery simply says: "I told you I was sick."

What I wonder is why it took our manufacturers so long getting around to mass-producing ballpoint pens if it's true they were invented by John Loud in 1888. It wasn't till the 1940s they were successfully produced commercially.

Since most of this column has been such heavy stuff, I feel I must finish in a light-hearted vein. Some soft-drink companies have removed sugar and caffeine from their product. Now they are about to remove the sodium. Then they will be down to just plain colored water. And I can make that at home. At the present rate I figure the bottle or can ultimately will cost far more than the product.

One of the silliest things I've read recently, "Stored apples should not touch each other." How many apples are we talking about? And just how does one manage that if he owns an apple storehouse?

Off the Record

By Dave Brown

Forget candy sales and car washes. That's kids' stuff. High school fund-raising has now entered the adult world. The way to make big money is to offer what people are really interested in — not candy bars or clean cars — big money.

The Galien Athletic Boosters have come across an idea that is probably new to the State of Michigan but is guaranteed to get a lot of attention. The booster club members are selling raffle tickets to meet their pledge to help support the school's athletic programs.

The plan is pretty simple. Local supporters pay $60 for a ticket and each month have a chance to win $600 from one drawing or $100 from another, or both.

Of course raffles are not new. Groups have been sponsoring them, both legally and illegally, for years. But recent changes in Michigan gambling laws have made raffles for non-profit organizations more common, and this is probably the first time school activities in the state have been supported that way, at least on such a large scale.

"It has been done before in other states," said raffle chairman Bruce Lukkarila. "As far as we know, this is the first time it's been done in Michigan, at least for a school."

The boosters have already sold half of the 300 available tickets and Lukkarila feels confident that the other 150 tickets will be purchased. If the plan is successful, the boosters will probably make the raffle an annual event, since Lukkarila sees the boosters as an important part of the Galien athletic program in the future. "With continuing pressure on school boards to come up with enough money, athletics is always one of the first things to fall under the hatchet," he said.

High school sports — a real gamble

Of course there is a question about the ethics of using gambling — even legalized gambling — to support student activities. To many people, gambling is still considered a dangerous vice that should be discouraged, especially among young people, and certainly not relied upon for fund — giving the young people the impression gambling is a good way to make money if all else fails.

But those people haven't been heard from by the Galien Athletic Boosters. Lukkarila said he has not received any criticism. "Everyone I have talked to thought it was an innovative approach," he said.

Perhaps people are looking at the idea with a positive attitude. The Galien students are seeing that with a lot of dedication and innovation, obstacles can be overcome. Six months ago those students were told athletics would be dropped at the school. Then a local group stepped in and promised, although it didn't know how at the time, to raise enough money to keep the sports teams going. The group made up its mind to do a difficult job and found a way to do it. And that's a good example for any young person.

Senate Report

By Sen. Harry Gast

In the last somewhat emotional days of budget passage in the Capitol, just about every interest group imaginable made its voice heard. One of those groups, about 100 welfare recipients who had driven in from around the state, chanted "No Workfare" outside the Senate Chamber.

The term "workfare" has earned a nasty reputation with many welfare recipients who see it as forced labor. I suppose. But in spite of those vocal members, I have to assume, still believing in people as I do, that most want to work. We as Americans still want to earn a living.

One of my biggest goals in the upcoming session is to use my Republican caucus chairmanship and influence on the Senate Appropriations Committee to help implement an employment and training program for welfare recipients in Michigan. Rather than spend our limited state dollars to provide a pittance in grant level increases, and keep people on the public dole, I would rather invest that money in a plan to help our welfare recipients back into the job market. There is no better service we can provide them — or the economy of this state — States that have adopted some forms of welfare employment are reporting enormous success. Participants are pointing out benefits that even the sponsors hadn't thought of: an opportunity to develop job references; a chance to demonstrate their value to a potential employer and perform public services in return for benefits; a chance to maintain and improve their current job skills; to remain productive and to build their self-esteem and improve employability.

Who can argue with that? I certainly can't. Supporters of employment for recipients of public assistance are not trying to punish anyone. We want to help.

And no one plans to force people who can't work — like senior citizens, the disabled or those with special difficulties — into government service. The idea is to provide the able-bodied with employment and valuable job training. Some complain that government-provided employment for welfare recipients is just "make-work" — to force recipients to "put in their time."

I disagree. Although there is always a danger that if the program is not adequately administered, it could sink to the depths of "make-work," a strong program can improve the quality of life for all Michigan residents, by providing manpower for services we cannot now afford.

Let me cite a few examples from states that have started community work experience programs: In New York, a Hispanic recipient teaches sewing classes in Spanish, in a local community center. In West Virginia, an unemployed electrician, carpenter and upholsterer work together to restore a community theater. Formerly unemployed people serve as classroom assistants in a university health sciences center in Oklahoma. And in New York, unemployed people with some data processing experience assist students on a computer in a local school. These individuals — by their own account — came out of the program with training, work experience, references and self-esteem. Can that be called "punishment?"

Preliminary data shows these programs to be successful. In Oklahoma, 28 out of over 100 completing their assignments on "workfare" found jobs. New York experienced 12 out of 100 grant reductions per month from people involved in the government employment program. These so-called "workfare" projects are being well received by welfare clients. And they're becoming more respected by legislators and bureaucrats who originally fought the idea.

The road to employment for able-bodied welfare recipients is going to be extremely rocky and filled with controversy this fall. Democrats, who currently hold a majority in the Legislature, are generally opposed to the idea. However, as they continue to hear from

Our view

Cheap move

You don't get something for nothing, the wise saying goes. But Buchanan city officials feel they can come pretty close by moving to a new city hall. And they might be right.

City Manager Clyde Remmo last week unveiled a preliminary proposal to move city administrative offices to a building on the Clark Equipment Co. axle property. The property has been promised to the city by Clark to use however city officials decide. Most of the property has been given to businesses who plan to begin manufacturing work there within a year.

But the former personnel management building that faces Redbud Trail near Third Street was not involved in any business deals. It will eventually be the property of the City of Buchanan, leaving officials with two obvious choices — keep it or sell it.

Of course it would be ridiculous to keep it just for the sake of keeping it. But local leaders seem to think that while they haven't really outgrown the current building, they're close to doing that. Any growth at all in city government, or even any significant change, could lead to problems in the current building.

And there are many advantages to the move. The price is right. Since the city will own the building, the only costs will be in moving and slight remodeling. The city estimates those remodeling costs (changing a few walls) at only $300 if city crews do the work. Of course that figure probably isn't the correct one to use when talking about the true costs of the move. For example, the switching of the phone lines could be slightly expensive, and other adjustments to the building may be needed once the offices have been moved. But it is probably safe to say that the move could be made for $1,000 or less.

A less crowded work area could lead to a higher productivity among city-workers. Officials said that by giving each employee a separate work area, as the new building would, there would be less chance for casual socializing during business hours.

The new building would provide a larger ground-level commission chamber. That may be very important to some local residents. In the current city hall the commission room is up steep stairs, virtually inaccessible to the handicapped who wish to attend public meetings. The larger chamber would also come in handy during those occasional meetings in which more than a couple dozen visitors show up. At present, any more than that have to listen from the hallway.

There is plenty of parking at the Clark building. The only parking spaces near the current building are along the street and only about a dozen or so are close to the city hall. Visitors many times have to walk a block or more to city offices.

The current city hall could be used for other city and non-city purposes. The police department could use some expansion room, perhaps even to a point of allowing overnight prisoners. Currently prisoners are taken to the county jail for overnight stays, often costing the city money in overtime wages for police transport. Other uses could certainly be found for the building, including renting it for office space.

There are, of course, some disadvantages to the move. The city currently collects about $700 annually in property taxes from the building's owner. If it were sold, that annual fee would continue to come in if the city keeps it. It loses the $700 each year. Of course $700 is not too significant in the city's budget and could be offset by revenue from alternative uses of the current building.

The new building could possibly be sold for a high value or traded for the promise of new local jobs, just like the other Clark buildings. We would hope that city officials haven't flatly turned down any prospects for the building and we would expect they would weigh the value to the city as a whole of private ownership (with jobs) compared to city ownership.

The building is also located away from the downtown area. It is now convenient for residents to take care of city business and do their shopping in one trip. If the site is moved, they'll have another stop to make. And while that may not seem significant, it may be to some residents, especially senior citizens who rely on Dial-A-Ride for transportation downtown. The building, however, is not too far away from the downtown area, and most people would not find the walk too difficult. Perhaps a Dial-A-Ride pick-up could be set up there.

The issue is definitely not resolved, but city officials seem to look on the move as a positive step. We agree. Once the question has been debated and the potential problems have been addressed, the temptation to "get something for (almost) nothing" will be too much to pass up.

Straight Talk

By Albert D. Hattis
Albert D. Hattis is an associate professor of business at Southwest State University, Minnesota.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "If you know that you won't catch hell for your vote, then you can vote as you know you should!"

That's what one congressman said to me when I asked why the federal budget deficit keeps rising, in spite of the new system Congress instituted to control spending and minimize deficits. Each year, under this new system, Congress passes a budget resolution indicating what is to be spent and what is to be collected in revenues. This resolution is supposed to be a controlling guide for all legislation that will be enacted in the session that costs or raises money.

Simply stated, every special interest group in the United States knows how to get a letter campaign instituted for their special legislation. Congress responds to this pressure by appropriating money and building up deficits that threaten our economy. The new system supposedly eliminates the problem by consolidating all expenditures and revenues into one resolution, and that makes it hard for the special interests to win.

Phil Gramm, a member of the House of Representatives from Texas, just happens to be an economics professor from Texas A&M. He stands for economic stability. He has ethics. He says what he believes, and he votes that way, too. In fact, when he won re-election as a Democrat and then changed political parties, he resigned and ran for that same House seat, again. He didn't have to do that, but he wanted the voters to get another chance to express themselves.

Phil fights to get the national budget balanced because he believes that government must provide a stable environment for free enterprise and freedom to survive. He spelled out for me the three functions he feels belong to government: (1) Providing internal and external security; (2) Enforcing the laws; and (3) Supplying a stable economic environment and structure.

To achieve this economic stability, Phil Gramm fights for a balanced budget. He knows that without a balanced budget, there is no stability and inflation is a sure thing. But his fight is not easy. There is no surplus money in the federal treasury and the debt exceeds one trillion dollars, so that every new program or expansion of old programs means a bigger deficit or higher taxes.

According to Gramm, entitlement spending, the money for social security, welfare, pensions and the like, has increased 460 percent in the last 10 years. Our congressmen keep adding what people are entitled to receive, but they don't always provide the money to pay these bills as they come due.

To show the problem confronting the typical congressman, Phil Gramm said that he supported a delay in a cost of living wage adjustment for federal employees. These employees were organized, and when they discovered he was opposing the wage adjustment, they got 900 federal employees from his congressional district to write and let him know that if he didn't support this wage adjustment, he would be isolated in a sea of federal employees and marked for extinction next time he comes up for re-election. Not one of the citizens who would benefit from a balanced federal budget wrote to praise Gramm.

Remember when

TALES of an OLD TOWN

By W. C. Hawes

An attempt to reproduce a cross section of the American scene as witnessed here through the past century

(Editor's Note This is the 67th installment of a series written by former editor Walter C. Hawes. It began in the April 20, 1939 edition of the Berrien County Record and ran for approximately 5 years.)

CHAPTER 67

Being an Account of the Old Roller Skating Rink in the "Beehive"

It's quite the thing these days to get a thrill out of going to the Chicago Coliseum and seeing one of those fast ice hockey games, but there's some boys still around town who can tell you of the days when they used to burn up the hard maple floor in the old "Bee Hive" building in roller skate "polo" back in the eighties, to the tune of blackened eyes, bruised shins and even a broken bone once in a while.

Probably one of the briskest centers of community sports which this town has ever seen was this old Bee Hive, torn down five years ago to make way for Carl Remington's machine shop.

The old Bee Hive was built in the fall of 1884 by Charles Bishop and Darwin Fisk, who came here from Union City, Ind., and erected the structure — not on the site of the Remington's machine shop but where the home of Mrs. Lou Fydel now stands. Later it was moved further south to its last site.

When Bishop and Fisk came the sport of roller skating was enjoying one of its periodic rages. Rinks were blooming like the meadow flowers in spring in St. Joe, Benton Harbor, Niles, Dowagiac and other towns and the old narrow gauge and the Michigan Central had been getting some good business from Buchanan's young people, going then as they are going now by cars, to enjoy the sport where there were facilities to enjoy it. Buchanan was a good town then as now, and it looked a good bet for a rink. One of these itinerant rinks under canvas had been doing a good business on the present Fydel corner, and the business was to be had.

So Bishop and Fisk put up a wooden structure there, 40x110 feet in dimension, with a gallery around it. The pine floor was planed smooth and then a hard maple floor was laid on top of it. Then it was conditioned by having a pony drag a big fine-grained grind stone over it to polish it. You folks born in the gasoline age know what a pony is? A pony is to a horse what a sport-model coupe is to a car. Then the first winter they went to town. At first the rink was open every night then three nights a week and Saturday afternoon Saturday, the young folks from the country used to come in in wagons or buggies if they had 'em, and give the rink a play. Once in a while they would take off the rollers and stage a dance. The managers put cheese boxes over the lights and shrouded them in colored tissue paper, getting a moonlight effect. Sometimes they would cut a red half moon and then there would be a new moon effect. Sport Romance Everything. Some times they lost their feet. Some times they lost their hearts.

Did the roller skates hurt the floor? The old timers say not. The managers rented skates with boxwood rollers. They permitted only those skates on the floor. What the admission was the boys don't remember, but there was a reduction if you furnished your own skates.

The sport had gotten hot in the previous winter of 1883-84 and for a short time there had been a rink in the third floor of the building now occupied by the Allen Hardware. This was known as Kinyon's hall, the building being owned by a Mr. Kinyon, who had a store where Allen now is.

The firm of Matchett & Wilson had operated a rink, but for some reason it had been short lived. The Bee Hive rink did better.

Late in the winter of 1884-85 a rink polo team was organized. They called it "polo," but it was about the same game as ice hockey. Ed Willard, still a resident here, was the captain. Charles Pears, Charles Dumbolton and Donald Stevens, the latter now in Bremen, Ind., were among the players. We hope to get another story on this from Ed Willard who may be able to name all the players. First they played with a seven-man team but later with five-man teams. That winter Messrs. Willard, Pears et al defeated all comers save Niles, with whom they split a pair of games. They claimed the championship of something or other. By that time rinks were sprouting in all the little towns. Berrien Springs, Stevensville, even Dayton had a rink. The Buchanan boys lost a game on the rink in Murray's hall, Niles, and then won one from Niles, played on a neutral floor at Cassopolis. Charles Pears was saving the other day that the Cassopolis game was played on New Year's Eve.

Then they had a number of fancy acrobatic skaters give exhibitions. Fan L. Fitts, a ladies champion, was brought to the rink. She was the only lady ever to do a "heel spin" on roller skates on the Bee Hive rink. Of course it was not called the Bee Hive then. That was a name applied late in the life of the building. Ives & Wright, the Michigan champion acrobatic team, put on a show. The management paid as high as $75 a night to these showmen and the town and country people packed the galleries and the wooden benches on the main floor.

Sometimes they would put all the benches in the middle of the rink and lay out a race course — so many laps to the mile, around the rink.

Harry (Skeet) Rough was the local speed champ. They brought the Indiana champ here one night and Skeet showed him a clean pair of roller skates. Great sport and great days. Nearly every one young enough to walk without a cane skated.

The young people who patronized the rink formed a dancing club and gave balls there. Claude Matthews was elected president of the club and gave it the fanciful title of "Skip O' the Moon," referring perhaps to the moon effect of the lights. Charles High was the secretary and Lew Oppenheim was cashier. The two latter were sons of former well known merchants.

But the sport waxed and then waned as it has on other occasions in Buchanan. Charles Pears took over the rink and operated it for two or three years. Then the building was used for business purposes by the firm of Pears & East. Later the sport was revived there, but we will tell about that next week.

Letters to the Editor

Good government

Editor,

On Aug. 24, a letter to the editor appeared in the Record ("Board Bickering"), writer's name withheld.

As a concerned citizen and taxpayer I must take issue with that writer's remarks.

The writer charges that "some of our school board members are supporting staff members of the school with bickering and degrading tactics which are insulting." The anonymous writer makes reference to the Bill McBeth matter relative to the $30 a day temporary pay increase.

This writer cannot agree that because the school board deliberated and debated the matter for an hour that the board was bickering. Members of the school board had an honest difference of opinion so they democratically debated the matter. It appears this is good government in action. This writer fails to see where Mr. McBeth was degraded or insulted by any of the board's actions.

The anonymous writer states "whether $30 per day is too much or too little, this is not the real issue here." Obviously the writer has no respect for the taxpayers' dollars. If the $30 was coming out of the writer's pocket rather than the taxpayers' I wonder if it would be a real issue.

As this writer sees the $30 per day increase, if Mr. McBeth in taking on the additional duties is going to be required to work additional hours over and above his regular working hours, then he should be compensated accordingly. On the other hand, if Mr. McBeth can take on the job of acting principal as well as carry out his present responsibility of assistant principal and athletic director without working additional (overtime) hours, then something is drastically wrong.

In closing remarks, the anonymous writer stated "perhaps what should happen is to ask Mr. Rossow, Mr. Stekman and Mr. Merrill to step out of the room while the community deliberates for an hour on their worth as school board members." This statement by the anonymous writer is a deliberate attempt to degrade and insult these three members of the school board. The writer wants to "build one's integrity and show support for Bill McBeth" yet he does not show the same respect and the same support for the elected school board members.

If the hypothetical situation should occur as described by the anonymous writer, regardless of the time the community might deliberate Mr. Rossow, Mr. Stekman and Mr. Merrill would certainly receive above passing grades as school board members. The fact that they are there is self-evidence of their worthiness.

In closing, this writer acknowledges he knows very little about Mr. McBeth and nothing contained in this letter is intended to criticize or degrade Mr. McBeth in any manner. It appears, however, that Mr. McBeth has a good friend or relative in the anonymous writer who wrote the letter ("Board Bickering") which appeared in the Berrien County Record Aug. 24.

House Report

By Carl F. Gnodtke
Forty-Third District

Prior to the Legislature's summer recess, the House and Senate set aside $43 million for a joint workfare-energy assistance package for recipients of general assistance (GA) and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (ADC), but details of the program were left for the fall session which begins Sept. 13.

Republican leaders in the House and Senate, in an effort to expedite the workfare portion of the package, unveiled last week an extensive program that would require all able-bodied, employable recipients of GA and ADC to participate in the Michigan Opportunity Skills in Training Act (MOST).

The bill initiates programs leading to permanent employment for those currently receiving aid. Depending on individual situations, recipients may be placed in one or more of the following programs: remedial education, GED programs, vocational and on-the-job training, job clubs, and community work experience.

Under the proposal, $39 million in yet unallocated Department of Social Services funds would be used for financing, with $4 million of that aimed for additional Department of Social Services staff and administrative expenses. The other $35 million would be divided accordingly: $18 million to counties by population; another $10 million divided among counties with high unemployment; and $7 million in performance incentives for counties which run the program cost-effectively.

The MOST plan contains several components designed to accommodate the diverse needs of public assistance clients. For those who have a strong work history, but have been unemployed due to the state's recession, the program would offer retraining, combined with community work experience. For those with education but little or no work experience, MOST would offer community employment as well as job search counseling. Basic remedial education or GED study will be provided for those with minimal education. In addition, women with children under the age of six would not be required to participate in the MOST program.

Compliments to horse show

Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to extend my compliments for the Berrien County Horse Show. Unfortunately, this year, I was unable to attend. I saw unfortunately because I was looking forward to seeing Solar Genny One, along with the usual events.

I'm glad Tommy Shaw decided to engineer Solar Genny I's stay. My sincerest regards and many thanks to Mr. Shaw for helping out with alternative energy.

Voters take over

Editor,

The people in the Buchanan School District should be so proud to know that they probably are paying the highest salaries to the two top jobs in the school system of any school of our enrollment.

If this means our students will be getting a better education, all of our students should be top doctors, lawyers, engineers, chemists — all top executives in the business world.

I still can't comprehend the irresponsibility of the school board spending our tax dollars. Figuring at the rate, as published in the South Bend Tribune, our acting principal will be at the rate of $160.00 per day. This means $800.00 per week, along with the fringe benefits that are considerable. There is no person that can produce enough of anything to warrant that kind of pay in a school of our size.

It looks like it is about time for the voters to take over and make some changes in our school board as we as taxpayers are going down the tube. I have had very positive response to these letters but people still seem to be apathetic and are willing to go down the path of least resistance until it is too late to salvage themselves.

Respectfully,
Paul Spaulding

The work of driving piles for the new river bridge is progressing with commendable speed despite quite an accident this morning. They were moving the pile-driver over the temporary bridge they had built for that purpose, when the staging gave way and the pile-driver and two of the men were landed in the river. They were somewhat injured in their fall, although it is thought not seriously.

The erection at the street corners of sign boards bearing the names of the streets would be a great convenience in this place, and might be done at small expense.

Statistics from three threshing machines, of work done thus far in the township, show the following: Wheat threshed, 1,536 acres, yielding 22,352 bushels, averaging 14+ bushels. Of oats they threshed 6,269 bushels from 200 acres, making an average of 31½ bushels per acre.

The Common Council, at its meeting last Friday evening, decided to build the arch over the creek at Day's Avenue, of Joliet stone. The arch will be eighteen feet wide at the water, 180 feet long, and will cost not far from $3,000. Once built in this way it is expected to stand as long as the creek runs down stream. The Council also voted to extend the collection of village taxes for 1883 from August 24 to September 24.

Bethel Apostolic

Christians labor to approve

Rev. Alfred Deeds of Bethel Apostolic Tabernacle spoke last Sunday morning on the assurance of immortality for the children of God. He read from II Cor 5:1 which states "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." In the apostle's writing to the church at Corinth he was assuring them that they had a hope of immortality to come and that they were to labor to approve themselves with Christ.

Pastor Deeds explained the earnest of the Spirit (Verse 5) as the down payment of the glory that is to come to the children of God. He said that it is God giving Christians just enough of his glory here to let them know what is waiting for them in eternity to come. As one songwriter put it "a foretaste of glory divine."

He taught the congregation that there are reasons why God has touched their lives with his blessing and has given them this "earnest" of their inheritance (Eph 1:14). Human reasoning more often than not gets Christians in trouble, but his Spirit is given to Christians to guide them in the right way (Jn 14:26, 16:13 and Psa. 23:3). Human reasoning needs to bow humbly before God and say "not my will, but thine be done."

Furthermore, he told the congregation that God has forgiven Christians their past and that it doesn't matter so much anymore where they all came from or what slime pit they were pulled out of to finally come to the Lord, but it does matter to God what direction Christians are headed since they committed their lives unto him.

The great apostle's concern for those at Corinth showed when he prayed "we beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain." (II Cor. 6:1) He knew that man could fall from grace and be lost forever when judgment day came. Thus, he warned of judgment to come saying, "all must appear before the judgment seat of Christ that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." (II Cor 5:10)

Pastor Deeds taught that the true Christian is always confident in the Lord (II Cor 5:6). This is because Christians walk by faith and not by sight according to Paul (Verse 7). Pastor Deeds told the congregation to never be ashamed to call upon God and plead their cause before him because he is always willing to help in times of trouble and otherwise. In closing he said, "No matter where you are; at home, on the road, at church or even at work you can feel the blessings and presence of God. One of these days what we enjoy spasmodically we will be able to enjoy forever."

Freshman Writes Home

That first letter from college to the folks back home is often a masterpiece in controlled emotion. The excitement of new adventure in a strange environment is paramount. But it cannot hide a hint of nostalgia for fond faces and familiar places. The firm resolve to fulfil high hopes is not without a trace of apprehension or anxiety.

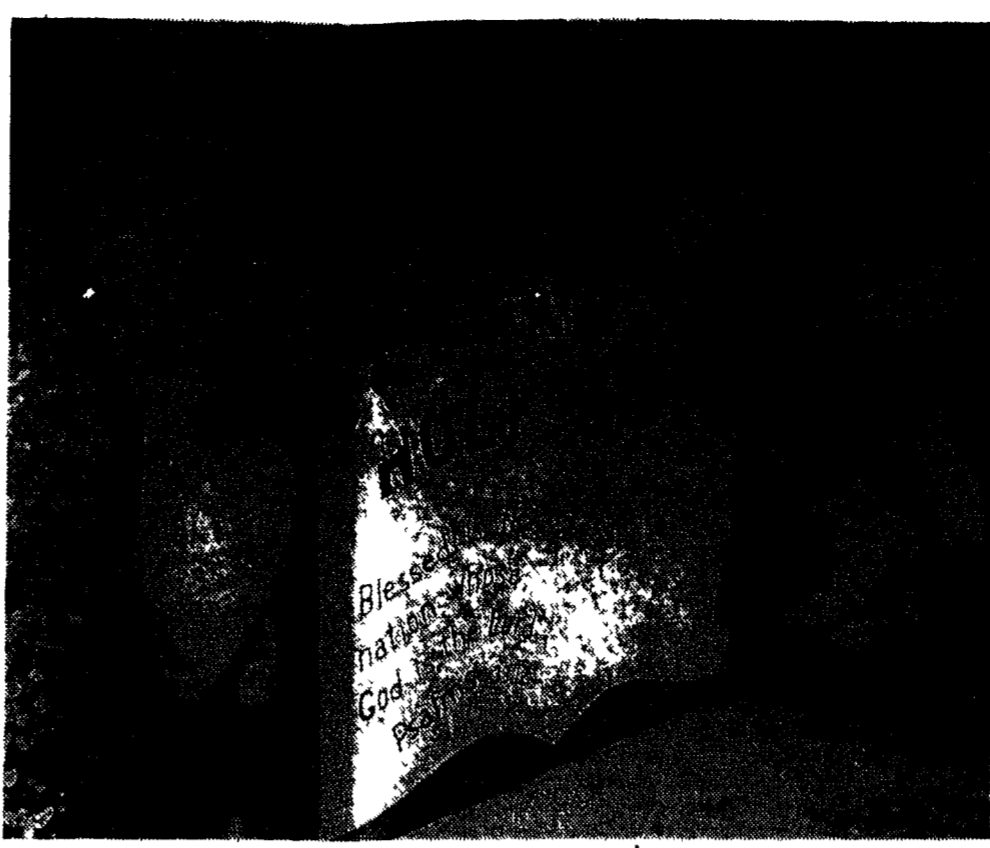

That is because the freshman as never before is on his own.

Being on our own can be the threshold of our greatest spiritual discovery—the realization of God's power and love inspiring us and strengthening us in the face of life's challenges.

What we gave the freshman back home—the faith, fervor and fortitude religious training and example cultivated in his soul—these become prime resources when he is on his own.

First United Methodist

Christians should reach out

Esther Watts received a standing ovation Sunday at First United Methodist Church after sharing her talent in song with the congregation.

The children's sermonette was given by Kathy Swem. She told the children that school was about to begin and things might be different for them as they begin. They might be in a different school or class than last year or perhaps this might be their first school year, etc. and at times things might be a little scary. She told them that one thing was certain that God was with them and would take care of them wherever they were and whatever they were doing.

Rev. Ward D. Pierce's sermon, "Head Table," was ushered in by the Scripture reading by John Hesser — Psalm 112 and Luke 14:1, 7-14. Rev. Pierce began by telling the story of Jesus' visit to a rich Pharisee's home to dine. All present were watching Jesus closely to see how he handled himself. They came to embarrass him. After all, he was the son of a poor carpenter. How did he dare challenge the hierarchy and dine with the wealthy? What kind of manners could he possibly have? Jesus told them the following parable: "When someone invites you to a wedding feast, do not take the place of honor, for a person more distinguished than you may have been invited and the host who invited you will come and say to you, 'Give this man your seat.' Then, humiliated, you will have to take the least important place. But when you are invited, take the lowest place, so that when your host comes he will say, 'Friend, move up to a better place.' Then you will be honored in the presence of all your fellow guests. For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted."

Rev. Pierce believes there is only one huge table in heaven — when Christians are in heaven.

they will be so joyous that they will not care where they sit. No matter where we sit will be the head table.

Half of the population in Buchanan is unchurched, continued Rev. Pierce, but none of the churches are reaching out to them. Christians are only saying to them — "Our church does this, our church does that." We provide this or that? Christians are only exchanging members but are not reaching out to the unchurched.

The church is growing. Sunday School is holding its own programs as doing well, etc. Why? Because God's people are continuing to work at it. It takes all of them working together. Christians must share their God-given talents to grow. They must not be content to leave things as they are but keep working at it to keep growing, concluded Rev. Pierce.

Sunday School is at 9 a.m., followed by morning worship at 10. Evening worship begins at 7.

First Presbyterian

Church needs to convert trust

Rev. Don Nepstad, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, suggested in his sermon on Sunday that the church needs to be converted from its trust in nuclear deterrence as a hopeful strategy for preventing nuclear holocaust.

Citing the lesson from Luke 13 where Jesus disavowed any indication that the government is the worst enemy, the pastor pointed out that Jesus focused instead on the religious community. Rev. Nepstad's thesis is that church people too easily accept the premise that America must be number one and too faithfully disavow the power of the Spirit to use the massive force of Christian people to change national policy. An awakened and outraged Christian populace might be the very instrument of God's spirit to halt the rush to nuclear destruction which is the logical end of the arms race.

A lively discussion, led by Don Trull, followed the sermon.

Building and Grounds Chairman Dick Swem told the congregation of the tasks that need finishing before the church building is ready for the fall schedule of Sunday School. Extensive remodeling and repairing has been done over the summer and is now nearing completion. Work nights will be Tuesday and Thursday evenings to finish the task.

The Annual Ice Cream Social will be Saturday, Sept. 3, as part of the Buchanan Labor Day Festival. The annual Arts and Craft show will be on the church lawn and sandwiches will be served in Fellowship Hall. Ice cream and cake will be served from 11 to 5. Julia Gordon, chairperson of the Social Events committee is in charge of arrangements with assistance by the Senior High Youth Fellowship.

Clear Lake

By Mrs. Anna Frampton 695-2417

As summer lifts her skirt and steps softly into fall, some of us are still suffering from sun burns, a backache from hoeing the garden and overweight from all those ice cream desserts. The children are getting the boredom and just can't wait to get back to school books and friends. I'm sure dad will be glad to see his favorite chair unoccupied by little people and mom will be able to experiment with a favorite recipe without the phone ringing off the hook or someone yelling "save me the bowl."

But for a few days we'll all enjoy the freedom of summer. The lake's summer visitors are taking advantage of their last few days before closing their cottages and going home. Some of the late vacationers will be up on weekends until the weather gets bad.

How ever special the summer is, the season that follows will be just as special. Fall is an exciting time also, with ball games and the holidays. For some folks it's leaves to rake but to others it's a walk in the woods listening to the crunch of the leaves underfoot. To children fall means piles of leaves to play in, seeing old friends, new books and new school clothes (if mom and dad can afford it!).

To an older person fall may only mean another year, because without being aware of it, fall is the end of the beauty of summer, and as we grow older, we hate to think of endings.

For me, fall is a blessing as well as being my favorite time of year. When I see the colors of all the trees and fields, sometimes it makes me feel sad. But it's a busy time, getting kids into school, canning and getting things ready for another winter. It helps to take away many melancholy thoughts.

Where did it go? That gentle rain that fell upon my window pane?

I turned around and found too soon, the summer sun so warm at noon, was gone. Instead,

Alas, the breeze had turned to cold and fall had slipped into her colored dress and changed the trees from green to gold.

But who am I to curse the trees for spreading their unsightly leaves?

Instead I give thanks for all the shade that I enjoyed, and children played beneath their limbs when they were full and green.

What better blanket could I ask for all my bulks, than one put there by nature's hand.

The pancake breakfast was a great success. We praise those who worked so hard and thank those who came.

Jerry O'Neil's family were visitors this weekend at the lake.

Mrs. Leslie Hostler's daughter, Doris, is spending the week at their cottage. Mrs. Hostler has enjoyed 50 years at Clear Lake.

Mrs. Ed Kerner is doing fine at Riverwood. It's good to see Mrs. Kerner up and around.

Mrs. Betty Saffel is visiting her lake cottage this week after recovering from surgery this summer. We missed you, Betty.

A happy weekend to everyone and I'll be looking forward to hearing from you soon.

SMC extension courses announced

The Southwestern Michigan College Niles Area Extension offers area residents the opportunity to work on their Associate Degree close to home. The extension continues to grow and, according to SMC officials, will be offering 35 classes in 28 subject areas during the fall semester which begins Sept. 8.

Most courses are conveniently scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, although some are during the day. Tuition for all extension classes is $26.00 per credit hour regardless of residency.

Course offerings for this fall include: Principles of Accounting I and II, Financial Accounting I, Cost Accounting, Introduction to Business, Marketing, Principles of Management, Business Law I and II, Business Communications, Small Business Management, Logic and Flowcharting, Principles of Economics II, Human Development and Learning, Freshman English I, II and III, The Legal Assistant and The Law Office, Law in the United States, Criminal Litigation, Elementary Algebra, Introduction to Materials Management, American Government, General Psychology, principles of Sociology and Fundamentals of Speech.

Offered at Niles High School are Freshman English I, Basic Science and College Arithmetic. These classes are scheduled primarily for students who wish preparatory work prior to entering selected college programs. Also offered by the Niles Area Extension are a number of physical education courses including swimming, racquetball and fitness. Wednesday, Aug. 31, at 7 p.m., SMC officials will be on hand to answer questions for all new and returning students seeking information about financial aid, college programs, admissions, books and more. Career counseling will be available and students wishing to register for classes at any extension or on campus may do so that evening. In addition to these regular course offerings, the Niles Area Extension offers an enrichment program of short courses including: Quality Circles: Concepts and Practices, Real Estate Principles, Microcomputer Assembly and Trouble Shooting, Introduction to the Microcomputer, Introduction to Programming in BASIC, Orientation to Word Processing and Word Processing Skills. These courses will run for eight to twelve weeks and carry one to three credit hours. Short course offerings require the same registration fee assessed those enrolling in regular semester length courses. Further information regarding both semester length and short courses at the Niles Area Extension may be obtained by calling the SMC Continuing Education Office at 663-8780, extension 281.

Band to perform final summer concert

The Buchanan Community Band's final concert of the 1983 summer season will be presented at 6:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 2, as a part of Buchanan's Old Fashioned Labor Day celebration in downtown Buchanan.

The band's program will feature a presentation of Michigan school fight songs, and will include "The Victors," of the University of Michigan, "Fight Song," of Michigan State University, and "Go U," of Buchanan High School. The band arrangements, as they will be presented, will include the complete versions, which include the verse, usually omitted in on-field presentations and often not as familiar to most listeners as the chorus.

Other selections on the program will include "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," made popular by Roberta Flack, the Shaker hymn "Simple Gifts" in a band arrangement by James Ployhar, Joseph "Papa" Haydn's "March for the Prince of Wales"; a contemporary overture, "Tanglewood," and Sousa's popular march "The Thunderer." The Buchanan Community Band is conducted by Robert Ambrose.

This concert marks the conclusion of the sixth season under the sponsorship of the Buchanan Fine Arts Council, with the support and cooperation of the City of Buchanan and the Buchanan Community Schools.

Straight Talk

Mr. Gramm was not opposed to proper cost of living adjustments for federal employees. He just could not see voting for something unless someone showed him where the money would come from to pay for this benefit, and no one had any answers. He points out that for 30 years special interest organization pressure has pushed up costs and contributed to rising deficits. Each program seems worthy. The problem is that no money is available to pay for any of these programs from surpluses, and no one suggests any cuts in other programs or increases in taxes.

In his battling, Gramm feels that only once has he been fully successful in fighting for savings, and the smears he took for this are still visible. He fought the "rails to trails" amendment to a bill, $20,000,000 to convert deserted railroad right of way to paths for bikers and hikers. It wasn't a bad idea. There just wasn't any available money.

If Phil Gramm has one point to make, it's that the public, you and I, have got to understand the issues when it comes to spending money. We create inflation when we make demands on a government which has no spare money. The deficits and borrowing create the problems. When someone comes up with a spending program, he should also produce a taxing program, and publicize each equally, to determine whether the people are willing to support the program.

My impression of Phil Gramm was certainly not the one I received watching edited TV interviews and reading selected quotes in newspapers and magazines. I think that Congressman Phil Gramm makes a lot of sense.

That's Straight Talk!

Meet the team date set

The Buchanan football program will hold its annual Meet the Team on Tuesday, Sept. 6, at 7 p.m. at Memorial Field. The program will include an introduction of all cheerleaders followed by a short demonstration and an introduction of all coaches and each football team.

People are reminded to bring their cameras because after the remarks and introductions by the coaches, each team will set up for pictures. This is an excellent opportunity to get both team and individual pictures. After the picture session, there will be a short social gathering in the high school cafeteria.

Buchanan opens its season at home Friday night, Sept. 9 against Allegan with freshmen and junior varsity opening the night before at Allegan in a double header with the first game starting at 5

Stockwell finishes 7th in exhibition race

Zell Stockwell, Buchanan, was one of 14 people asked to run in a one-mile race around Arlington Race Track in Chicago to publicize the upcoming marathon race there.

The 14 were among 46 people who have run in all of the Chicago marathons since 1976.

Stockwell, 48, was the second-oldest person in the race. A 55-year-old man also competed. The rest of the racers were between the ages of 31 and 38.

The racers were placed in the horses starting blocks at the race track and were ranked with odds. Stockwell was handicapped with 20 1 odds and was picked to finish 13th, just ahead of the 55-year-old

But Stockwell surprised the odds-makers and finished seventh in the pack. He said running was difficult in the track's three-and-a-half inches of wet sand.

House Report

If qualified recipients refuse to participate in the MOST program they would initially lose their benefits for three months.

It is time the Michigan Legislature took a hard look at what the $4 billion social services budget can do for our human resources. We have worked for years to try and get a humane and workable welfare program through the Legislature, and perhaps the MOST program is our best chance to break the cruel and vicious cycle of the welfare trap so many Michigan families find themselves in.

Chamber plans golf outing

The Buchanan Area Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the third annual golf outing on Wednesday, Sept. 14 at 1 p.m. at Brookwood Golf Course.

Chamber members and their guests may make up their own foursome or one can be arranged for them. The price for the golf game and dinner is $25 per person, for golf only is $16 per person and for dinner only is $10 per person.

The events featured will include a low net with first, second, and third place cash prizes, the closest to the pin on hole numbers eight and 15, with men's first shot and women's second shot; and the closest to the pin on numbers three and 12, with men's second shot and women's third shot.

Cocktails will be at 6 p.m. at the cash bar and dinner will be at 7. Participants may sign up at the chamber office or at Brookwood. The deadline is Monday, Sept. 12.

Microwaves keep up with busy American lifestyle

Cooking with microwaves has become an everyday part of the American lifestyle. More Americans are cooking with microwaves today than ever before. A recent study revealed that over 29 percent of American homes now have a microwave oven.

Microwaving saves time

Microwaving saves up to 75 percent of the cooking time with some foods. "If you're a woman employed outside the home," says Amy Hamilton, Consumer Affairs expert for Anchor Hocking Corporation, "cooking with microwaves gives you the time you need to prepare a well balanced meal for your family."

Microwave cookware

"The right kind of cookware is a must for getting the most out of microwave cooking," continues Amy Hamilton. "Anchor Hocking supplies all of your microwave cookware needs."

Quality glass ovenware is available in a variety of shapes and sizes. Plastic Microwave® brand products are lightweight and break resistant. Micro-ceramic® is made out of ceramic materials.

All three lines perform well in the microwave oven.

Microwave cooking tips

- Stir foods when possible to redistribute cool portions to the edges.
- Microwaves cannot pass through metal. Always use Anchor Hocking glass ovenware, Microwave® or Micro-ceram® for cooking in the microwave oven

- Turn over dense pieces of food such as meat or whole baked potatoes.
- Always use minimum amount of recommended time.
- Add cooking time when quantity of food has been increased.
- Arrange items in a ring shape. Thicker foods should always be near the outside edge of the dish.
- To avoid dehydration, do not use salt on the outside surface of foods.

QUICK CHICKEN DINNER

- 2 chicken legs
- 1/2 cup crushed corn flakes or potato chips
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- 1/4 teaspoon celery salt
- 3/4 cup frozen peas and onions

Combine corn flakes, garlic powder, paprika and celery salt.

Rinse chicken and roll in crumbs.

Place chicken legs in one section of the Microwave® Versatility Pan divided cover.

Fill other section of the divided cover with peas and onions.

Cover with wax paper or paper towel.

Microwave on HIGH (100%) power for 6 to 7 minutes or until chicken is done. For conventional oven: Bake at 350°F, uncovered for 40 to 45 minutes or until chicken is done.

Local award winners announced

KALAMAZOO — More than 185 high school graduates have accepted Academic Achievers Awards to attend Western Michigan University this fall, according to an announcement by the WMU Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships.

Each one-year award is valued at $500, or $250 for each semester of the 1983-84 academic year. It is awarded to students whose grade-point averages in high school are 3.5 or better on a scale of 4.0 (all As) and who have been admitted to Western but who have not been awarded other WMU scholarships.

"The Academic Achievers Award is intended to recognize and reward incoming freshmen at Western whose records in high school are outstanding," said Dr. Edward W. Harkenrider, director of student financial aid and scholarships. "The award is one way of saying 'congratulations on a job well done.'"

Among the 186 students who have accepted WMU Academic Achievers Awards for 1983-84 are Sharon Begun, Laurie Sumerix and David Schuck, all Buchanan.

Proper crossing tops school safety rules

Michigan youngsters can continue to get high marks in traffic safety by crossing streets properly and keeping out of school bus danger zones, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Traffic deaths among school-age children from September to June of the 1982-83 school year fell to 54, a third below the 80 deaths a year earlier. Injuries to pedestrians and bicyclists ages 5 to 19 decreased six percent to 5,091 in 1982 compared to the year before.

"Crossing streets at intersections rather than at mid-block is the most important safety measure children can take while walking to school," stated Robert Cullen, Auto Club's safety and traffic engineering manager. "Ninety-five percent of the school-related traffic accidents happen when children attempt to jaywalk or cross streets improperly." That advice is the highlight of this year's "School's Open—Drive Carefully" campaign, an annual Auto Club traffic safety program.

To help emphasize the importance of extra caution by motorists during the school year, Gov. James Blanchard has declared Sept. 2-8 Michigan

Traffic Safety Week. "More children die in traffic accidents than from any other cause," states the declaration. Michigan motorists can drastically reduce this human toll by driving carefully, wearing safety belts, observing posted speed limits and refraining from mixing alcohol and driving.

Airman Martell graduates

Airman Jacquelyn Martell, daughter of Thomas and Joan Moore of 65B Olive Branch, Gahen, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force course for computer operators at Keesler Air Force Base, Miss.

Graduates of the course learned how to operate and maintain electronic data processing equipment and earned credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Martell is scheduled to serve at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas.

She is a 1981 graduate of Gahen High School.

'Wheelchair Clinic' planned

The Easter Seal Society of Berrien County will be conducting a "Wheelchair Clinic" on Saturday, Sept. 10 at the Margaret B. Upton Center at 2015 Lakeview, St. Joseph.

The purpose of this clinic is to clean, adjust and make minor repairs to wheelchairs that are being used by individuals in the county. The clinic is being co-sponsored by Everest and Jennings Company and Van's Pharmacy.

Boy Scouts from Troop 622 will be on hand to assist with the cleaning, adjusting and repairing of the wheelchairs. There will be no charge for the cleaning or for any minor repairs; however, the cost of any parts or major repairs will be the responsibility of the chair owner.

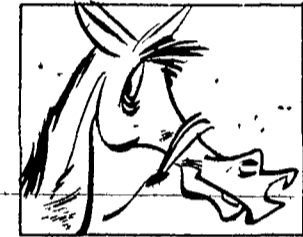

The clinic will run from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. with refreshments being served. Please call the Easter Seal Society at 983-9881 for an appointment or if you have any questions.

Concerto award won

TWIN LAKE, Mich. — Three Buchanan High School students, Vicky Harrington, Roschenne Wishart and Kristie Detgen, recently attended the fourth summer session of Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp.

Miss Detgen finished first in the session's concerto competition, earning a scholarship for next year's camp and an opportunity to play a solo with the faculty orchestra during a session next year.

Miss Detgen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corbin Detgen, plays French horn. Miss Harrington plays clarinet and Miss Wishart plays trumpet.

Horses were first tamed in Asia some 10,000 years ago, historians say.

Home vegetable pest control requires proper precautions

EAST LANSING — Gardeners who wear little more than shorts, a T-shirt and tennis shoes when applying insecticides run the risk of getting as much of the spray on themselves as on the insects they're trying to eliminate.

This can be dangerous, said Fred H. Tschirley, Michigan State University professor of botany and plant pathology. Depending upon their toxicity and the duration of exposure to them, these insecticides can affect humans as they affect insects.

Many commonly used insecticides kill by attacking the bug's central nervous system. This impairs its respiratory and metabolic functions, eventually leading to death. The toxic chemicals in insecticides can have the same effect on humans.

Organophosphate and organocarbamate insecticides are the most common in use today. Overexposure to them is potentially lethal.

Symptoms of organophosphate poisoning can develop during exposure to the insecticide or within 12 hours of contact with the chemical. Headache, dizziness, weakness, muscle twitching, tremors, nausea, abdominal cramps, diarrhea and sweating are common symptoms.

Acute organocarbamate poisoning symptoms include diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, profuse sweating, salivation and blurred vision.

A human can become contaminated with an insecticide by absorbing it through the skin (the palms, neck, forehead, groin and feet are particularly sensitive), by inhaling the fumes and by ingesting the chemical through the mouth.

Anyone using insecticides should wear clothing that covers the entire body. T-shirts, shorts and tennis or leather shoes are out — long pants, a long-sleeved shirt (heavy denim coveralls provide the best protection), a broad-brimmed hat, rubber gloves and rubber boots are in.

Before using the insecticide, carefully read the instructions for the recommended use and personal protection.

After applying the insecticide, wash the sprayer in warm, soapy water and thoroughly flush it on well-drained ground where children and pets will not be exposed to the residues.

Rubber boots and rubber gloves should be cleaned in the same manner as the sprayer. All clothing should be washed separately from other household articles to prevent contamination by insecticide residue.

After all equipment has been properly cleaned and clothing set aside for washing, the next step is to take a thorough shower using lots of warm water and soap.

Generally, the insecticides that the homeowner can readily purchase in a garden center or hardware store are not extremely dangerous. Nevertheless, homeowners should apply and handle pesticides in strict accordance with container label instructions.

Homeowners should also be aware of the significance of label warnings.

The terms on the insecticide label specify the relative acute toxicity of a product, Tschirley said. The words DANGER — POISON, accompanied by a skull and crossbones, means that the substance is highly toxic. Just a taste can kill. WARNING on a label is used for insecticides that could kill a human who swallowed a teaspoon of the chemical. The word DANGER on a label indicates that the chemical may not be extremely dangerous to humans but may be toxic to fish, birds or honeybees or may have some potential for environmental damage. CAUTION is used for low toxicity insecticides — an ounce to a pint of the chemical would be needed to kill a human.

Regardless of the type of insecticide used, homeowners should dispose of empty containers properly.

Containers of liquid formulations Triple rinse the container immediately after emptying, pouring the contents into the sprayer. Puncture the top and bottom of the container to prevent reuse. Dispose of it in a licensed sanitary landfill.

Containers of dry formulations. Completely empty contents into the sprayer. Open both ends of the container to help remove contents. Put the container in a licensed sanitary landfill.

Containers of aerosol formulations. Relieve pressure as much as possible. Do not puncture the container. Deposit the container in a licensed sanitary landfill. Details for the safe use and handling of pesticides are listed in MSU Cooperative Extension Service bulletin E-1546, "Take Cover! Protect Yourself From the Dangers of Dermal Exposure with Clothing." It is available through the local county MSU Cooperative Extension Service office.

Teachers learn Power Writing

DOWAGIAC — Elementary and secondary students throughout Berrien and Cass counties will return to their classrooms this fall and discover that their studies of the three R's (reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic) will have a new emphasis on writing. Youngsters in grades one through 12 will write with vigor and clarity in all subject areas as they learn and employ the easily mastered techniques of Power Writing.

The enthusiasm and success of thirty-seven classroom teachers who learned and practiced Power Writing during an intensive thirty hour training workshop held on the campus of Southwestern Michigan College during the week of Aug. 8-12, guarantees that writing will become the central focus in many classrooms this fall.

Power Writing assigns the value of 1st Power to main ideas, topic sentences and topic paragraphs, second Power to major details that explain main ideas; and third Power to minor details that elaborate upon or clarify major details. If a writer needs to expand a thought, fourth Power explains third Power, fifth Power amplifies fourth Power and so on, to whatever length or Power the writer needs.

The teachers participating in the workshop represent Bridgman, Benton Harbor, Galien, Coloma, Berrien Springs, Buchanan, Watervliet, Edwardsburg, Cassopolis and Dowagiac school districts.

"If a man could have half his wishes he would double his troubles," Ben Franklin

GARDEN GAME

Here are rules for Garden Game

1. Bring fruits or vegetables to The Berrien County Record office between 1 p.m. Wednesday and 5 p.m. Friday. We'll take a picture of you and your potential winner.
2. Entries will be judged by size using only the edible portion of the plant.
3. We reserve the right to limit entries to fruits and vegetables commonly grown in this area. No far-bringing in a Manchurian gooseberry.
4. The gardener or a member of the gardener's family should bring to the entry.
5. All entries must be home grown and not produced for profit.
6. At the end of the growing season, winners in each category will receive a free hamburger and frosty mug of root beer from Buck's A & W Drive In.

Volunteers in action

In cooperation with the Southwestern Michigan Voluntary Action Center, the Berrien County Record will publish opportunities for volunteers. Prospective volunteers may call 684-5884 or stop in at the Niles VAC office at 317 Broadway for further information. Prospective volunteers in the St. Joseph-Benton Harbor area may call the St. Joseph center located at 705 Lake Blvd. That number is 983-0912. All responses to the following request for volunteers should be handled through a VAC office.

Hospice at Home provides a life-affirming climate, allows persons with a terminal illness to live with personal dignity, maintain their integrity, and prepare for death in their own way and in relative comfort with family and friends. Professional and lay volunteers are being recruited and interviewed now for fall training classes. There is a great need for volunteers who are available during daytime and evening hours and for volunteers who live in outlying areas such as Three Oaks, Hartford, Coloma-Watervliet area, and in Niles. As always, volunteer R.N.'s and home health aides are particularly needed. A one-year commitment is required of all volunteers. Please contact VAC for further information.

Big Brothers Big Sisters of Niles-Buchanan is seeking volunteers to provide clerical support in the agency office at least one half-day per week beginning as soon as possible. Help is particularly needed on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Some typing is necessary. For more information please contact the VAC office.

The Berrien County Department of Social Services is seeking the donation of an apartment-sized gas stove (30 in.) for use by one of its clients. To make arrangements for pick-up, please contact the VAC office.

Transportation volunteers are sorely needed by many of the agencies in the area. Mileage costs will be reimbursed in some cases. If you have your own reliable transportation and a valid operator's license and would like to help, please call VAC.

Pawating Hospital is seeking volunteers to fill positions in a number of areas. Help is needed in the coffee shop, the gift shop, surgical waiting room, T.V. rental office and others. If interested in more information, please call the VAC office.

The Berrien County Department of Social Services is seeking volunteers to serve as children's foster care aides. Volunteers work with children in temporary foster care and must have their own transportation as one of the duties includes supervising visits between the parents and the children. D.S.S. has a serious need for volunteer support in this area.

LMC announces orientation and registration dates

Lake Michigan College, South Campus, 111 Spruce Street, Niles, will conduct an orientation and registration on Thursday, Sept. 1, for all students interested in enrolling for the fall semester, according to Dr. Margaret A. Crishal, Dean.

The orientation program will begin at 11 a.m. followed by academic advising and registration. Preceding the orientation program the basic proficiency tests will be administered in English, basic mathematics and reading at 9 a.m. The results of the tests are used for the purpose of academic advising, continued Dean Crishal. The tests are required for all new full-time students (12 hours or more) and encouraged for all others. Orientation and registration will be repeated beginning at 6 p.m. on Sept. 1.

Information shared at the orientation will include academic policies and interpretation of the admissions, financial aid and veterans policies, accreditation and transferability of credits, grading policies, degree and graduation requirements and college costs. Ample opportunities will be made available to answer specific questions from potential students.

Registration will also be conducted on Sept. 2 and 6 from 8:30 a.m. until 8 p.m. Late registration dates are Sept. 7 to Sept. 16 during regular office hours, 8:30 a.m. through 4:30 p.m. and again from 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Classes offered, both day and evening include Psychology, Economics, Society and the Mass Media, Introduction to Business, Art Appreciation, World Regional Geography, Painting I & II, Studio Problems in Painting, Contemporary Fiction, American History, Small Business Management, Sociology, English Composition 101 and 102, Non Western World Far East, Poetry, Fundamentals of Speech Business Law, Basic Math, Fundamentals of English, Introduction to Criminal Justice, Introduction to Computer Literacy, Techniques of Criminal Investigation, Principles of Accounting I, Computer Programming (basic), Biological Science, National Government, Case Studies in Rehabilitation and Introduction to Philosophy.

According to Dean Crishal, LMC South Campus offers three degrees. These are: Associate in Arts, Associate in Business Administration and Associate in General Studies.

Tuition for in-district students is $23 per semester.

hour. Registration and enrollment information can be obtained by calling the South Campus at 684-5850.

Food dehydration tips

EAST LANSING — Drying fruits and vegetables can be a good alternative to canning and freezing, something home-owners might want to consider as the harvest begins to peak.

Though many fruits and vegetables can be dried, those with a low water content dry best. Apples, peaches, pears and strawberries dry very well, as do mushrooms, green peppers, carrots and onions.

"Fruit can be easily rehydrated by soaking in water; vegetables can be rehydrated by cooking in boiling water or a pot of soup," says Penny Ross, Michigan State University Cooperative Extensive Service nutrition specialist.

The easiest way to dry food is in an electric dehydrator. These cost from $50 to $400, depending their capacity. Ross recommends purchasing a food dryer for large quantity food drying.

It is sometimes possible to dry foods in an oven, but it is time consuming, costly and difficult because ovens are not designed for that use. Air circulation is important to food drying, so the oven door must be propped open and a small fan placed so that it blows into the oven. The temperature for drying food should be between 140 and 160 degrees F. When ovens do not have temperature settings that low, oven drying is impossible.

Ross recommends that persons interested in food drying should buy a book about the practice before investing in a food dryer.

"This will help you determine what size dryer to buy, based on the amount of food you would like to dry," Ross says. "A good book will outline food preparation techniques and pre-drying-treatment methods, list approximate drying times for various foods and provide suggestions for use and storage."

Most vegetables take from four to five hours to dry and most fruits take 10 hours or more. Herbs dry well in considerably less time. Some foods require blanching or other treatments before dehydrating.

Dried foods should be placed in plastic, airtight bags and then stored in tin cans with lids. They should be used within six months.

Diet helps prevent breast cancer

EAST LANSING — Several of the key factors leading to the development of breast cancer are easily within women's control, according to Michigan State University researcher Clifford Welsh.

Welsh, who is studying the disease under three grants from the National Institutes of Health, said that his research with animals indicates that a lowfat, Vitamin A enriched diet is a particularly important part of a regimen to prevent and treat breast cancers.

Noting that one of 10 American women will contract breast cancer, Welsh is particularly enthusiastic about the use of such a nontoxic, noninvasive technique. His enthusiasm is supported by the nation's 10 cancer centers, which recently implemented dietary regulation as part of their treatment based in part on Welsh's research.

Welsh and research associate Jane DeHoog were able to entirely prevent breast cancers from forming in rats with a combination of dietary control, suppression of certain hormones, and stimulation of the body's immune (defense) system.

He sees reduction of fat in the diet as a key component to the regimen, since fats stimulate breast cancer development in every animal model tested. Though its mechanism in the cause of cancer is unknown, it is suspected that the presence of fats stimulate cancer cell division. Vitamin A, on the other hand, seems to inhibit such cell division in many animal studies.

Noting that as many as 25 percent of American women may be mildly deficient in Vitamin A, Welsh encourages an adequate intake but warns against excessive doses, which may be extremely harmful. "In short," said Welsh, "women who lower their intake of all fats, avoid obesity, consume adequate Vitamin A, and who maintain a positive attitude should substantially lower their risk for breast cancer."

SMC-FSC courses offered

DOWAGIAC — Officials at Southwestern Michigan College and Ferris State College have announced three course offerings for the 1983 fall semester.

These courses are part of the cooperative program initiated in 1980 between the two colleges leading to a bachelor's degree in business.

Courses offered for the fall semester include: Statistical Inference, (STT 323), Labor Economics and Labor Relations, (ECN 331); and Collective Bargaining, (MGT 875).

All three courses will be taught on the SMC campus and each carries four hours of Ferris State credit.

Statistical Inference begins at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 13 for 13 weeks. Labor Economics and Labor Relations begins at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 14 for 13 weeks. Collective Bargaining begins at 7 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 8 for 13 weeks.

The SMC-Ferris State program brings third and fourth year college classes to the SMC campus for the convenience of area residents.

The cooperative arrangement enables SMC graduates, SMC students or persons residing in SMC's service area to work toward their Bachelor of Science degrees in business without leaving the area.

Information materials regarding the SMC-Ferris program are available upon request from the SMC's Student Services Office or the Continuing Education Office. Registration is now in progress at Ferris and SMC. For further information call either 782-5113, or 683-5780.

Local students take part in WMU testing

KALAMAZOO — Children of Western Michigan University alumni have been offered the opportunity for help in selecting a career through efforts of the Office of Alumni Relations and Testing and Evaluation Services at WMU.
Students who participated in the testing program this year are Steve P. Kays, Rt. 1, Bridgman; Kimberly Fenn, Rt. 1, Buchanan; and Michelle Rowe, Brookside Dr., Buchanan.
Russell A. Strong, director of alumni relations, said that for the first time this year, Western's own unique Career Guidance Inventory was administered to about 200 children of alumni from 13 Southwest Michigan counties who are high school juniors and seniors.
Gerard T. Novak, associate director of testing and evaluation services, said the inventory, which also is used with Western students, consists of four parts. The first is a diagnostic achievement test to determine a student's skills in mechanics, mathematics, science and English. The second is a personality assessment that matches a student's personality with occupations.

Novak said the third part is a value assessment that determines what a student wants out of a job. The final portion is interest assessment, showing a student's willingness to do what is needed in an occupation and if he is interested in doing what is needed to succeed.
The Career Guidance Inventory was originated at WMU and it now is used by several other colleges in Southwest Michigan. The test has been administered since 1972 and is taken by about 1,600 students a year, Novak said.

Don't know what happened to last week's column, but here we go again. After a long and very special summer, it seems like I should be singing Gene Autry's song, "I'm Back in the Saddle Again."
Saw many horses while traveling the Netherlands and England, but they were of a much different type than our saddle horses. They had a lot of the Thelwell type ponies, all ridden hunt style and from there they went to the European eventing type horse. Proper attire was taken for granted.
It was amazing to note the horses (and people too) were not bothered with flies with a

Sept. 'wellness' classes offered

NILES — Pawating Hospital will offer September "Wellness" classes on nutrition and weight control, C.P.R. certification and recertification, diabetes, blood pressure screening, fresh start (stop smoking clinic), stress management and time management.

The nutrition and weight control classes are scheduled for Sept. 7 and 14, and Oct. 12, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, or Sept. 19 and 26, and Oct. 24, from 1-3 p.m., or Sept. 6 and 13, and Oct. 11, from 6:30-8:30 p.m. All three sessions in one time block should be attended. Weekly weigh-ins are part of the program. The fee is $30, or $10 for persons over 60.

Free blood pressure screening will be held on Monday, Sept. 12, 9 a.m.-12 noon and 1-5 p.m.

Stress management class begins on Sept. 15, 22 and 29 and Oct. 6, from 7-9 p.m. The fee is $20, or $5 for persons over 60.

Time management is scheduled for Sept. 20 and 27, 7-9 p.m. The fee is $15, or $5 for persons over 60.

Certification for C.P.R. will be held on Mondays, Sept. 19 and 26, 6-10 p.m. The classes will include one- and two-person C.P.R., rescue breathing, saving a choking victim and infant resuscitation. Participants must attend both weeks for certification. The charge is $5, which includes the American Heart Association C.P.R. manual.

Recertification for C.P.R. will be held on Thursday, Sept. 15, 8-12 a.m., 12-4 p.m., or 6-10 p.m. Attendance is required at one time block only. Recertification in C.P.R. skills should be maintained for this class. There is a $1 fee for this class. There is an additional $2 fee for those who would like the AHA manual.

Free diabetic classes are offered weekly, Tuesday through Friday, 2-3 p.m. Discussions include diet, foot care and medications. No fee is required and participants may attend all four days.

"Fresh Start" stop-smoking clinic, will be held on Sept. 7, 12, 14, 19 and 21, 7-8 p.m. Group discussions are an important part of the program.

All classes will be held at Pawating Hospital, and pre-registration is required. For additional information and to register, persons may telephone the hospital at 683-5510, Ext. 203.

Classes added at SMC

DOWAGIAC — Increased enrollment and a heavy demand for certain classes has resulted in the addition of a number of courses scheduled for the 1983 Fall semester at SMC.

According to an announcement made by Dr. William Spencer, SMC vice president for instruction, 10 new sections in academic areas and three new physical education classes have been added to the fall schedule.

Added classes, which do not appear in the fall schedule, include: Introduction to Business (BUSI 101), 9:10-10:10 M. W. F.; Principles of Data Processing (DAPR 101) 3:00-5:00 Tuesday, 1:50-5:00 Thursday; Freshman English I, 6:30-9:30 Thursday at Niles Area Extension, Freshman English I, 11:30-12:30 M. W. F. College Arithmetic (MATH 100), 6:30-9:30 Monday at Niles Area Extension; Elementary Algebra (MATH 101), 11:30-

12:30 M. W. F.; Basic Science (PHSC 100), 6:30-9:30 Wednesday at Niles Area Extension and General Psychology (PSYC 101), 10:20-11:20, M. W. F.; Fundamentals of Speech (SPEE 101), 7:00-10:00 in Edwardsburg and 1:50-2:50 M. W. F. on campus.

Three new physical education classes have been added. They are: Aerobics (PHED 101), 9:10-10:10 Tuesday and Thursday; Sports Officiating (PHED 201), 12:40-1:40 Tuesday and Thursday, and Total Fitness (PHED 101) 7:00-9:00 Tuesday at the Niles Area Extension.

Registration for the fall semester, which begins Sept. 8, is now in progress. To better accommodate students planning to register for the coming semester, the Student Service Office will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and Friday from 8 to 5 August 29 through Sept. 15.
