Unapprehended Persons Break Into Stores in Past Week

Buchanan Voters Approve Sale Athletic Field By 370 To 71

Now Here's the Proposition

Mebbe it's just a coincidence when the nabors turn on their electric toaster every mornin' in tune to shout our favorite commentator, but it don't seem so at the time

When a guy leads off with "to tell you the truth," I allow blame myself for a whopper

Our way to make more crooks in public office is to say all officials are crooked, whether you know it or not.

Compensator
The time is years and years away since it lifted my ceiling—that OPA.

For look what worry and wear and tear Has done to a former head of hair!

Time was when my tangles of chestnut brown Were the envy of half the girls in town

From the brow where a cowlick used to sit, Hung shining curls of the kind called "spini"

For it's strictly true though it may be news You can lose your queue while you stand in queues

And so those tresses have gone the way Of chips and steaks and my last week's pay

I part my hair with the bathroom towel
Some are the tresses that used to wave
And the most of the hairage is where I shave

So I carefully lay 'em one on a side Over the spaces of vacant hide,
And I muse while I polish that carefully done,
The hell on the soap but it saves on the comb

That First Mess of Peas
We don't know whether there's been a rise in peas, but we got a rise out of that "first mess of peas" story last week

Comes out the paper and then comes Allen H. Larson, who says he read the story last Wednesday night, two weeks after he had started peeing peas from his pants

Well, we hate to try to get back that silver-loving-cup we gave Jerome Seabast—he paid for it with a mess of peas. And we haven't seen any evidence from the Larson or Ferns patches.

Watson Jewelry And Evans Store Are Broken Into

Parties Entering Frightened Away Without Theft Of Merchandise

A larceny of some proportions was probably averted at the Watson Jewelry Store Thursday of last week

On that evening Mrs. Walter Thanning, who was moving her beauty parlor fixtures out, returned about 8:30 p. m. to pick up some belongings

It is thought possible that whoever effected entrance came between 8:30 and 9 p. m. and possibly just got in when Hess stopped in front of the store window

BREAK INTO EVANS STORE

Two windows were forced open in the rear of the Evans store on Main street early Saturday morning, a crash of window glass and crockery probably sealing the would-be thieves away before they took anything

When Mrs. Fulks, the proprietor, arrived in the morning she found a high window in the toilet forced open from the top and hanging by its hinges with the glass shattered on the floor

Entorce The Bicycle Regulations

As automotive traffic swells again on the streets and highways, the reasons for enforcement of bicycle traffic laws in the interests of general safety become more and more compelling.

While there has been no serious bicycle accident in Buchanan for a long time, it is not "in the cards" that the luck should last. The city of Detroit averaged 60 bicycle accidents per month during the last two years of the war. But for April and May of 1946 the accidents exceeded 50 per month.

1946 census gave Detroit a population of 1,623,452. Buchanan population was listed at 4,056. This makes Michigan's metropolis a bit over 400 times larger than Buchanan.

Detroit's bicycle accidents total 360 per year for the last two years of the war, now they're running at the rate of over 600 a year. Even allowing for heavier traffic in the big city, the above figures mean that if we escape bike mishaps much longer we'll have to be lucky, for it is not the rule that the law of averages does not catch up with you sooner or later.

The city bicycle regulations were designed to save life and limb. Let's cooperate in their enforcement.

Vacation time is danger time. From Memorial Day through Labor Day, the National Safety Council statistics reveal a sharp increase in accidents, injuries and deaths, among tourists, vacationists and especially children.

In school, children are in little danger. Accidents to them happen largely on the way to and from school. During vacation months, they are on the streets or in playgrounds most of the day, in swimming, riding bicycles, and some of them, unfortunately, are on railroad property, where they are trespassers in the first place and endangering life and limb in the second place.

Parents can do the most effective work in bringing the warning of the Michigan Railroad Police Association and the Michigan Railroads Association to their boys and girls. Railroad property is a poor playground. Loss of arms and legs or death are becoming too frequent, because children play or trespass on railroad property, crawl under standing trains or climb between cars, or hop on or play in railroad cars. Injury and death to passengers and employees also result from throwing stones at passing trains, shooting air rifles at car windows, tampering with switches or placing obstructions on railroad tracks.

The Traffic Safety Association of Detroit, cooperating with the Public Safety Bureau of the Police Department, will hereafter send juveniles who violate traffic laws to a special traffic school in the Juvenile Court Building. To reduce the number of bicycle accidents, the schools will work with the Association and the Police Department in an educational program through leaflets and other literature, bicycle safety classes at precinct stations, bicycle inspection and a closer check on violation.

Parents will be urged to prevent death or injury to their own children by insisting that the laws governing the operation of bicycles are strictly observed.

It is impossible to emphasize too strongly, therefore, at the beginning of another vacation, the warning to boys and girls to observe all traffic and safety rules, whether walking across the street or riding bicycles. And railroad property is definitely "out of bounds" for any boy or girl.

Better Rural Telephone Service

for More People

Is on the Way

MICHIGAN BELL's big 5-year program of extending and improving rural telephone service is gaining momentum daily.

In recent months we have added over 2,000 miles of wire in rural areas... installed telephones for many waiting applicants... and reduced the number of parties per line on more than 1,000 overcrowded lines... and, wherever we could, we have replaced crank-type telephones with more modern equipment.

Our further liberalized rural construction plan* will enable additional thousands of rural folks to get telephone service without payment of any line construction charge.

Altogether, this big program will cost $13,500,000. Our purpose is to assure better rural telephone service at the lowest possible cost to more Michigan people than ever.

* If you live within 1/2 mile of a Michigan Bell telephone line and don't have a telephone, we will extend the line to your place without construction charge. The plan also provides: No line construction charge for two or more applicants if the new line extension to serve them averages no more than 1/2 mile per applicant... Monthly payments of 45 cents (spread over 5 years) for each 1/10 mile in excess of the 1/2 mile allowance, with total cost prorated among those served by the new line.

In STRAN-STEEL The Groove

The "Quonset 24" is definitely "in the groove."

The principle of Stran-Steel construction is simple and easy—you nail the steel covering directly to the framing members by means of a patented nailing groove. This patented nailing groove also permits the installation of inside fixtures.

The "Quonset 24" is an ideal building for many uses. Already many are being used by farmers in southwestern Michigan as implement sheds, fruit packing sheds, loading barns, garages and a score of combined uses.

It is also ideally suited for development as a summer cottage!

- As a simple shelter, you leave the straight side open.
- As a partially closed shelter, you order the "Quonset 24" with one or more sliding panels on the straight side.
- As a roomy building with plenty of door space, you have your choice of any combination of sliding doors and solid panels on the straight side.

24 Feet wide, the "Quonset 24" can be had in any length desired in increments of 12 feet. It is an all-steel building that is quickly and easily constructed. Phone or write us today and one of our salesmen will be pleased to call on you.

Mrs. W. F. Runner Is Guest At Dinner On 90th Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Louis O. Runner, of Chicago, were hosts at a dinner in the Four Flags hotel in Niles Sunday, commemorating the former's mother, Mrs. W. F. Runner, 114 West Dewey avenue, on her 90th birthday. The dining room was beautifully decorated with baskets of flowers and the table at which 28 guests were seated was centered with a birthday cake and bowls of ices.

Mrs. Runner was born in Medina county, Mich., June 18, 1856, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rapp. She attended school in Kalamazoo and when she was 17 years old she became a teacher and taught in the rural schools for nine terms. In 1878 she married William F. Runner, a druggist in Shelby, Mich., and they came to Buchanan in 1886. Mr. Runner operated a drug store here for 21 years. The Runner's and Mrs. Runner's brother, Louis Rapp, Jr., and wife, celebrated their 60th anniversary in 1928. They had been married in a double ceremony in 1878. Mr. Runner died in 1933 and Mrs. Runner is the only one left of the two couples.

Mrs. Runner enjoys good health and is a regular attendant at Sunday school and church services and is active in the Women's Christian Temperance Union. She is the author of a number of poems which have been compiled in a booklet.
Mrs. Runner's gift to the guests at the dinner Sunday was a booklet with her picture on the cover. Also inscribed on the cover is "At Ninety, What?" The booklet carried greetings and bits of ancestral history.
The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Rapp and Mrs. Clara Tomley, Scotts, Dr. and Mrs. Le Grand Clapper and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bartram, Bartlett Creek, Mrs. Edward Mackey and Mr. and Mrs. Duane Hopkins, Lansing, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle E. Rapp and Mr. and Mrs. Burt C. Rainbow Trout Goes 110 Miles In 2 Years

From the mouth of the Whitney "A" diain outlet of the Auques river to the mouth of Saugueen river at Southhampton, Ontario, is just 110 miles straight across Lake Huron, but a tagged rainbow trout that made a leisurely two-year trip of it grew 12.4 inches and 3 pounds 4 ounces along the way.
When this particular trout was tagged March 25, 1944, at Guiley pond—it weighed only 2 1/4 ounces and was 7.6 inches long, according to records of the conservation department's institute for fisheries research. The Canadian who caught it and returned the tag reported it measured 20 inches, weighed 3 pounds 6 1/2 ounces.
Its recapture confirms earlier records of both the roving habits and fast growth of rainbows. Previous recoveries of rainbow trout tagged at Guiley pond have been made at Long Point, Rondeau and Kingsville, all on the Ontario side of Lake Erie, and in St. Clair river.

Trapper Describes Ravages By Coyote And Fox In Mich.

The fox is not so sly as story books claim, according to Harold Boweditch, one of three state trapper-instructors in southern Michigan.

He made this point speaking of the heavy losses suffered by farmers from inroads on poultry and livestock. Much of this damage could be stopped, he said, if farmers would only learn the proper methods for trapping the foraging foxes. Some poultry raisers already have reported losses of 60 and more chickens this year.

Boweditch pointed out that while all animals have certain innate forest instincts which serve them in good stead, they also have their weaknesses. A coyote once turned over his traps, rendering them harmless, but Boweditch caught the animal the following week by another method.

He also told of a coyote in eastern Michigan which caused damage amounting to more than $5,000, mostly to sheep and dogs, before it was caught. But it was caught, he said.

Boweditch urged farmers and poultry raisers to reach him at 226 DeLano Street, Allegan, Mich., if they desire advice as to the best methods of catching predatory animals or if they want him to investigate the situation himself. When persons know a staff is being supported for the sole purpose of stamping out these inroads on farmers, he added, it could be controlled in a relatively short time.

Another mistake farmers make is that they underestimate the number of coyotes in the lower peninsula. In the last year in Livingston, Jackson and Washtenaw counties, 17 coyotes were brought in. And a coyote can do a great deal of damage. He also reported a case of a 150-pound pig being killed. It might have been the work of a bear.

Boweditch, who for the last 7 weeks has been temporary conservation officer in the twin-city area, has returned to Allegan to resume his regular duties. Trapper instructors were originated two years ago after the state legislature discovered that a $20,000 appropriation wouldn't keep the animals in check by the bounty system. In 1944 33,000 fox bounties were claimed and in 1945 24,000 alone were trapped. Figures are not yet complete on the 1945 total but it is complete on the 1945 total.

MSC Furnishings Expert Advises On Judging Rug Values

"Buying a new rug? It'll pay to know if you're getting your money's worth, believes Miss Jessie Marion, home furnishings specialist at Michigan State college.

She advises that you check on the construction of the rug. To do this you'll need to examine the rug, both top and underneath. Very carefully. On the top, notice how high the pile is. The higher the pile the better the rug will wear. But density or compactness of the pile has a direct relation to the rug's wearing quality, too. If you're trying to decide between a loosely woven high-pile rug and one with a short-but dense pile—choose the short pile by all odds. It will give better service because its compactness means it's closely woven.

When shopping for a new rug, examine the back closely. The wear the rug will give depends in part on a firm back. To test the tightness of weave in the filling or back, shift the rug back and forth in your hands. If the back of the rug feels sleazy or thin, or if it seems to lack firmness, and if it shifts readily as you work it in your hands, chances are it is not a high quality rug.

In an Axminster rug you can judge the closeness of the weave by counting the ridges on the back. Four ridges per inch mean the rug is of fair quality, and should be in the lower-price bracket. A rug with seven or more ridges per inch probably will wear more than twice as long and is a wise investment.

German Poet Pleads For Minority Of Germans In Munich Theatre

(The following is taken from a translation of an address delivered in the Munich Play House by a German poet, Ernst Weichert, who was interned in Dachau by the Nazis. The selection was printed in the Christian Science Monitor.)

Let us look back and remember what we felt when the hands of the clock of destiny began to move. Let us account for the beginning so that we may understand the end. No one can say that he was oblivious of the swinging pendulum. There was none whom it did not concern. It concerned the people, all of them, and more than that. It concerned humanity, decency, and religion. It concerned truth, and human rights, and freedom. It concerned the crushed all political forms, all systems of philosophy, all sects, and all religions. It moulded with its hands a new idol and erected it high above the people, and it said: "This is your God, there is none beside him, and who does not worship shall surely die."

And then we saw the new faces as they bent down from their red pulpits preaching the new gospel to all peoples. We saw their fists rise into the air and fall again to crush the heretics. We saw perpetual guards and perpetual coffins. And suddenly we saw a new salute and learned that he was a traitor and a pernicious vermin who used the salute of the fathers or perchance even the name of the old God.

The period of high boots began and we saw shoulder straps and daggers. When the Reichstag burned there was more that went up in flames than just heaps of woodwork and masonry. In those flames perished human rights, the truth, the law. The streets resounded with the screams of those who were beaten and tortured to death. But with the first strand of barbed wire strong around the first camp, the sentence was pronounced over all of the people, over people whose majority well recognized the evil, but who hid in their huts and in their palaces so that they might not hear the screams.

War came as we had expected. It began with lies and violence, with malice and outright brutality, with boasting and rancors. It tore off masks not only from the faces of the leaders but also from those of the willingly led. The people knew it was a criminal war. Nevertheless, millions of them threw themselves into the fight. They did not ask whether it was right, they did not ask whether women and children perished. Loudspeakers shouted that this was a war of the young against the old, of have-nots against haves.

Here we stand now before the deserted house, watching the stars shine above the ruins on earth. Here we stand, more alone than any people that was ever on this earth, branded as never a people before.

Let us remember this, my friends, and let us cry it out to those who have won the victory over our nation. But though we are all guilty, all but the martyrs, it is not so as many of the victors have it. That a whole nation has without hesitation given a hand to murder. In millions of hearts the root of justice never wilted. They suffered agonies of which none knew. But I know that though they dared not open their mouths, which would have meant death, they suffered to the limits of human endurance under the horrors that came to pass. In the dark of night, when no one could see them, they wrung their hands to God and prayed that he give victory to the enemy. In millions of houses and huts they thus prayed for the downfall of the Fatherland and for victory to the foe. Does the world know what such a people must have suffered before they can thus pray?

DDT Is Approved For Spraying Grapes

DDT has just been approved as a grape spray, says Ted Stebbins, Berrien county fruit specialist, provided certain definite conditions are observed.

It can be applied in the first two sprays after bloom, he says, provided the last one is not later than the first week in July, and provided the exact recommended quantity is used and no more.

The recommended quantity is 3 pounds of 25% or 1 1/2 pounds of 50% DDT per 100 gallons. Either of these amounts is equal to three-quarters pound of actual pure DDT in 100 gallons.

This advice, Stebbins points out, came just in time to fit DDT into the first post-bloom spray, where it previously had been suggested by authorities at Michigan State college.

control the grape leafhopper and does a good job on the berry moth, two very serious insect pests on grapes.

The specialist is advising grape growers to scratch DDT out of the spray schedule where it appears later than the two-bloom sprays, then to observe the above rules carefully as to time and quantity.

He says, "The recent controversy is not the result of any unfavorable findings toward the use of DDT on fruits. But the fact remains that publicity has placed far ahead of the research that is necessary in connection with its use."

Every measure of precaution must be taken when human health is involved. The two approved sprays allow ample protection. Growers are advised to observe the rules of only two sprays, so that no trouble will result from excessive residue.

Agent Advises On Freezing Berries For Locker Storage

Although the supply of strawberries is not abundant in Michigan, housewives who are fortunate enough to secure them for freezer locker storage will want to take extra precautions to see that they are frozen properly.

Edna Deo, home demonstration agent of Berrien county suggests the use of the Michigan State college recipe as shown in Extension Bulletin—208—"Preservation of Fruits and Vegetables by Freezing." She suggests homemakers obtain this bulletin from the county extension office, as it provides tested recipes for the freezing of all fruits and vegetables.

In freezing strawberries, select only bright red, firm berries. Avoid green or over-ripe fruit. Sort, wash, hull and drain thoroughly. Handle quickly.

For best results, make a 40% syrup (3 cups sugar to 4 cups of water), bring to a boil, and cool thoroughly. Fill the containers to one-half inch of the top with berries, add syrup, preferably enough to cover fruit, and seal container. A crumpled wad of waxed paper placed under the lid of the container just before closing will help hold the fruit under the surface.

Corn syrup may be substituted for as much as one-fourth of the sugar without essentially changing the flavor.

A Story Of A Pioneer's Start In Horses

Here is the story as told by J. Willet Smith, late of Hornell, N. Y., to Mrs. May Mitchell on the dimechutes in getting horses on Michigan farms 80 and more years ago.

Story Of His Cattle
We moved to our farm two miles south of New Troy on the completion of our log house there, with its big brick fireplace, in the fall of 1859.

We had lived there about four years when, in 1863, we got our first team, a pair of oxen which we had raised. We commenced breaking them in when they were one-year old, and by the time they were four years old they were well broken.

In the meantime we were looking for colts which we bought after selling our oxen for a good price.

to buy seed for, as they had no barn, so he never called for it. I had the job out in hard work digging potatoes at 70 cents a day. I also had a job on hand teaching Mr. Cole how to drink milk and eat paroled oats. I soon had my colts and driving oxen. The next spring the colts never shed their hair. Which was six inches long. Everybody called it a "black sheep." It went until the second spring before it shed a hair. It had then grown to be a sizeable yearling. When it was coming three in 1867 it was a real beauty and I could ride it all around.

In our circuit was a Methodist minister named Sibley. When he saw my colts he said, "I have two yearling colts I will trade you for this one." So father and I went to see his colts. One was a bay, the other a black, and both were quite large for their ages. The minister said he would trade even father said we would not trade them but would see about it later.

was $100. I was playing with the colts when Uncle Billy said: "Who owns that bay colt? I got a match for it." I said: "I own it." He said: "How would you like to trade it for a wagon?" I answered, "Will you give me an even trade?" So I said: "It's a deal." Uncle Billy said: "Which did you and drop it with the colt. Soon mother came out and said, "I guess pa will say something this time."

In the course of an hour dad drove up. First thing he said was "Whose new wagon is that?" I said: "It belongs to a Mr. Chauvin Smith. Do you know him?" He smiled and said: "Yes, I know him." I said: "I traded the bay colt even up for the wagon and this is to pay you for the feed you have given me for the colts." It was only a few weeks later that a man came along and paid me $100 in cash for the blacks. I gave $80 to mother and bought me a suit at $20 at the Estes clothing store in Buchanan.

Stock Ponds For Fishermen Of Southern Mich.

Seven Ponds Furnish Sport For Those Who Cannot Go North

Success and popularity of seven southern Michigan trout ponds holds promise that in them the conservation department has hit upon a happy solution to the old problem of furnishing sport for those trout fishermen who cannot afford trips to northern trout streams. And incidentally the ponds have furnished answers to several other long-standing questions.

On Potage Creek Pond in Washtenaw state recreation area, for instance, 198 anglers fished 491 hours in the first week of the season. They came from Jackson, Ann Arbor, Michigan Center, Detroit, Howell, Ypsilanti, Grass Lake, Mason, Jackson county, Stockbridge Napoleon, Holt, Hudson, Grand Rapids, Monroe, Pleasant Lake, Milford, Rives Junction, and Wayne. 109 of them caught 341 trout. They returned 183, all but 15 of them of legal size. In the second week 98 fishermen fished 216 hours, 38 of them taking 77 trout, of which they returned 21.

Hatfield Reports 191 Children In Court Last Month

The monthly report of Judge Malcolm Hatfield reveals that during the past thirty days 191 children were cared for by the court. When broken down the figures show that the following types of cases passed through the juvenile division of the court: truants, 10; investigation of adopted homes, 14; in adoptions confirmed, 3; boarding home investigations made, 45; parolees investigated, 31; neglected children investigated, 15; traffic violators, 5, run away from other counties, 14; and from Berrien county run away, 2; delinquent hearing, 11. Of the youthful violators, four were girls and the remainder boys. 26 children and 7 parents were conveyed to orthopedic hospitals in Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, and Kalamazoo.

In the probate division a total of 43 deceased and 36 guardianship accounts were checked by Register Cordelia Friehammer. During this period Judge Hatfield and his staff also admitted 93 new deceased and 26 new guardianship estates to probate, committed 9 insane, 5 feebleminded and 2 epileptic persons to state institutions, computed inheritance taxes in the amount of $10,763.47 and took 41 general petitions under administration. Only 14 contested hearings were heard as Judge Hatfield was forced to spend two weeks in the hospital.

Arthur Lange Tries Trashy Cultivation In Orchard At Sodus

Arthur Lange, a fruit grower, three miles southwest of Sodus, cooperating with the St. Joe River Soil Conservation District is practicing trashy cultivation in his orchards and vineyards again this spring for soil and water conservation.

Mr. Lange has used this method of cultivation in his orchards and vineyards for the past several years and says it has prevented his sloping land from sheet erosion during the heavy summer rains.

Food Prices Still Are Edging Upward

Food prices are still increasing moderately. Since February sugar has increased 5%. Fresh fruit and vegetables, including cabbage, lettuce, and onions, are up 1.7%. However, the chief staple of Pop-eye's diet—spinach—has taken a seasonal drop of 14%. Peanut butter and cheese, those Sunday evening supper favorites, have inched up from 1 to 2%. Clothing costs increased 1.7% between February and March and are now (and this figure, really, hurts) 52.6% higher today than in August, 1930. Percentages vary with different sections of the country, of course.

Look! It has the CP Seal!

YOU'LL marvel too, when you see the glamorous automatic gas ranges built to "CP" standards.

All burners including the ovens and broilers light automatically—Simmer-speed, high-low top burner and exactly controlled low temperature and high speed ovens will save precious vitamins and minerals—Easy to clean broilers, wash high if you wish, and a host of other features you asked for are musts in gas ranges built by leading manufacturers to "CP" requirements.

So, for your double protection, look for the "CP" trade mark in addition to the manufacturer's brand name when you select the new gas range you want.

YOUR CERTIFIED BUYING GUIDE

- Gas ranges bearing the "CP" trade mark in addition to their own brand names, are built to rigid standards set by 20 gas range manufacturers aided by 1,200 gas utilities, home economists, and Home-makers.
- To these standards, each manufacturer adds distinctive features developed in his own test kitchens.
- Then for your double protection, these ranges are pre-tested by world-famous laboratories, to make sure they meet the rigid "CP" requirements.
