Bucks Give a Scare to Strong Albion

By Ed Morrissey

Buchanan fell shy of a regional crown with a 61-59 loss to the second ranked Albion team last Thursday. Albion, now 22-1 for the season, advances to quarter final competition for the state trophy.

Buchanan had to play catch-up ball throughout the first three quarters and a Mike McGuirt bucket at 5:22 in the second frame gave the Bucks their only lead during the time span at 20-19. The Bucks were down 11-0 before they got rolling.

Going into the fourth, Buchanan trailed 44-41, but Mike Busby's bucket at the start tightened the lead to one. At 6:24 Ken Garrett got the Bucks ahead at 47-46 and both teams traded the lead once more. A five point rally by Albion gave them a 58-53 lead with less than two and a half minutes left. The Bucks put on another comeback but fell short as the final seconds of the game were played on the Bucks defensive side of the court.

Garrett led the Bucks with 17 points and Walt Vanderbush and McGuirt had 14 apiece. Buchanan closes the season at 19-6 with Holiday, Conference, and District trophies. Seniors seeing their last action in Buchanan colors were Mark Jackson, Mike McGuirt, Cliff Carson, John Brown, Dan Kreager and Tom Smith, the other nine team members on the roster will return next season.

Sports Dinner

Everyone is invited to the pot luck dinner to honor the varsity athletes who participated in winter sports. It will be at the high school at 7 p.m. in the Buchanan High School cafeteria on Wednesday, March 19. Those who wish to attend are asked to bring a casserole or a dessert and their own table service. Beverages will be provided.

We're Puzzled

The Buchanan Township Board and their supervisor occasionally puzzle us. This latest affair with their fire department is one of those times.

Buchanan Township has been looking for a better way to receive fire calls. The city of Buchanan, already having a good arrangement with Bertrand Township, has offered to monitor Buchanan Township's calls. That would seem to be a good gesture in establishing better relationships between the city and the township.

Instead, the supervisor is shopping around for other arrangements. He's been talking to Niles Township, and this will undoubtedly cost money, because Niles Township wouldn't be expected to do it for nothing.

This goes way back. Ivan Price has carried a hostility to Buchanan and its fire department. His original feelings may have been entirely justified, but the incident which touched it off is ancient history.

The Buchanan fire department works well with the township departments and has often been there to help when needed. There's no apparent animosity among the firemen of any of the departments. On several recent occasions, the city firemen have assisted and have done a good job.

There's been discussion about this for several months. We have the city manager's enthusiastic word that Buchanan would be happy to cooperate with Buchanan Township. We have word from Bertrand that they've been happy with the answering service provided to them.

So what's the problem? Has anybody investigated what the best arrangement would be for the fire department?

City Eager To Get Sidewalks In

The city commission is still anxious to get the sidewalk completed around the new middle school Monday night they set July 1 as the date by which they are to be completed. Estimates from Mollberg Construction were from 80 cents to $1.10 per square foot and $3.20 to $4.40 per lineal foot, depending on the individual conditions for the sidewalk. Raymon Sexton asked that his property be exempted because there presently isn't any need for sidewalks. The commission will take his request under advisement. Someone asked what about the sidewalk on Front Street, near the florist, and another wondered why Clark didn't have them on the south side of River Street. They were told that the city will eventually get everyone to have sidewalks where there is foot traffic.

The commission adopted an ordinance to regulate cross-connection with the city water supply in compliance with rules issued by the Department of Health.

The ordinance to prohibit bonfires and outdoor trash fires within the city limits passed on first reading with some suggested changes.

Traffic Control orders have been in effect 90 days to restrict parking on Chippewa, N. Cayuga and Fourth Street in the area of the middle school, and it was voted to keep them in force until there was an opportunity to study what will be needed permanently.

Action was approved to issue a restraining order to prohibit further fill of the swamp area on Post Road by certain property owners. This has been affecting the drainage and the city's retention basin.

The regional state police have been able to get a special price on bullet proof vests, and it was voted to get one for each member of the Buchanan department at about $60 each.

It was announced that another fireworks display on the 4th of July is planned at Memorial and Centennial Fields, and the commission agreed to cooperate with this project. It was indicated that money for this would be raised by the sale of T-shirts for the Bi-Centennial.

He received the DeKalb Outstanding Senior Award in 1973 and is presently attending Michigan State University School of Agriculture Technology majoring in landscape management. During his placement program he is employed at Humzinger Nursery at Niles.

John Moulder Appeals Decision Work on Brookwood's Clubhouse Progresses

John Moulder, the teacher on tenure who was dismissed from the Buchanan schools, is still fighting the decisions which have been handed down. The State Tenure Commission denied his appeal on all six counts of irregularities charged during the original hearing before the Buchanan Board of Education. After that decision from the Tenure Commission, Moulder had fifteen days to file another appeal, which he has done.

An authority on the case indicated that, if the latest appeal were denied, Moulder could take his case to circuit court. It was predicted that the whole matter could take another three years before final settlement.

In the meantime, Moulder fired off a letter to his adversary, Dr. Walter Vanderbush, in which he made certain charges and named certain individuals connected with the case.

The case now doesn't hinge on the original charges of incompetence brought against Moulder, but on procedural matters in connection with the original hearing in Buchanan. They are based on six technicalities and include such items as to whether it was appropriate for the board-appointed attorney to act as moderator during the hearing. It would appear now that the Michigan Education Association intends to stay with the case and fight it on the technical grounds in spite of the lack of support from the local B.E.A.

A new golf clubhouse and pro shop, adaptive use of an old barn on Rynearson Road, is nearing completion. This facility coupled with the new nine holes constructed last year will make available one of the finest 18 hole championship courses in the area this spring. The owner is Douglas Bobo.

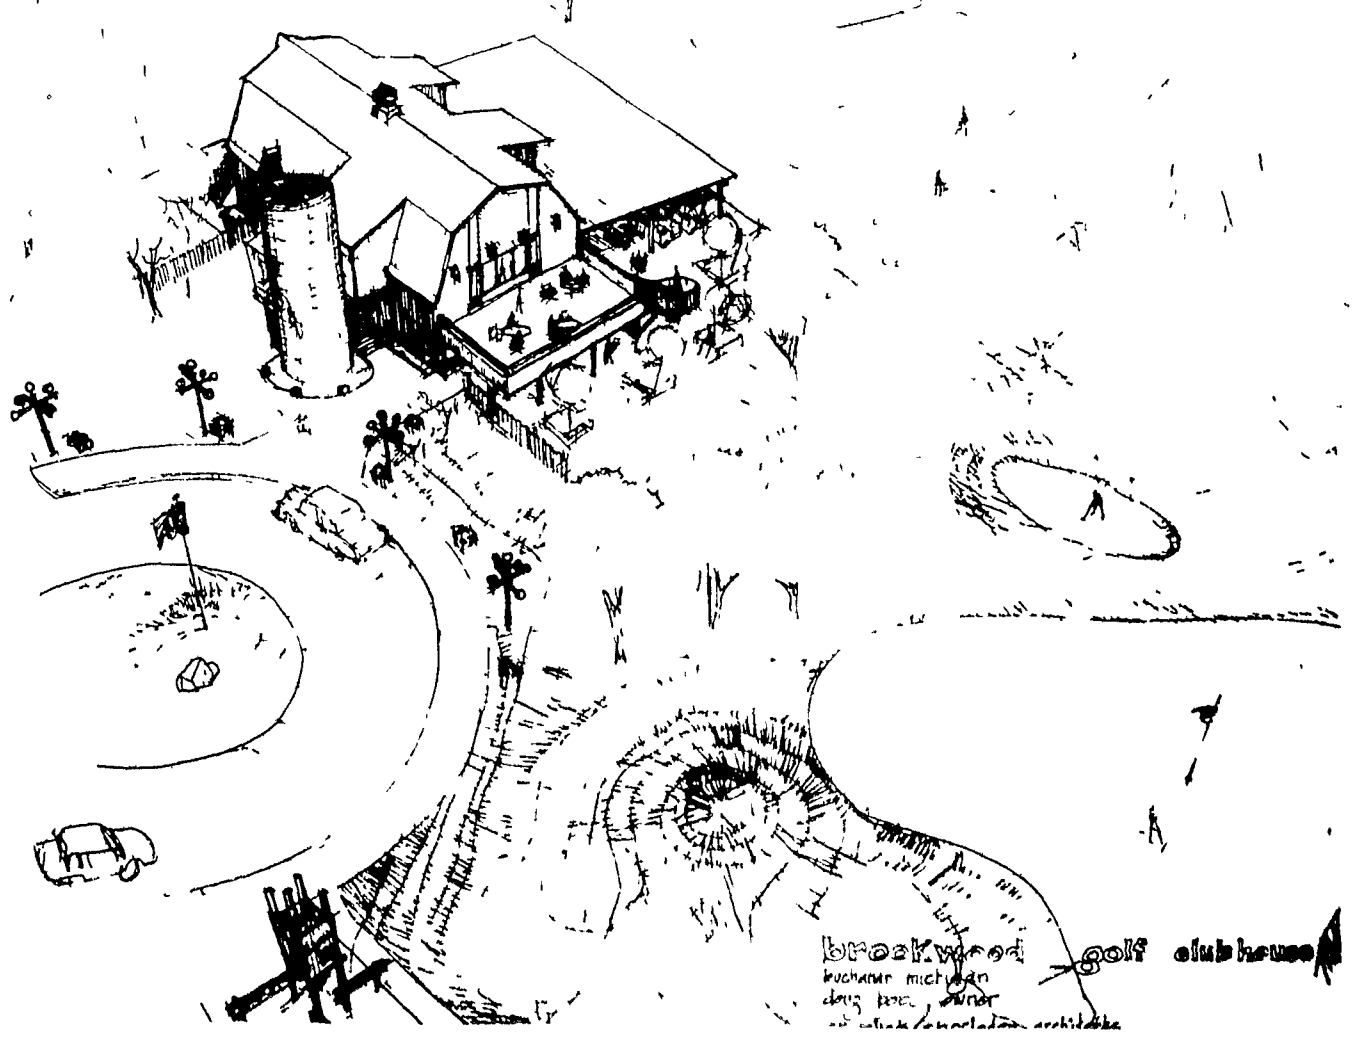

The architects, Crumlish-Sporleder & Associates of South Bend, note the adaptive design "combines the character of an old Midwest barn with convenient new lounge, locker room, and pro shop facilities." Approximately 5,000 square feet of space in the old barn are imaginatively developed. The old cow barn on the lower level provides locker rooms and pro shop entry control and sales spaces. The old silo, at the new entry, now also provides an intriguing circular stairway of stacked rough sawn heavy oak timbers, for access to the upper loft level. Here the old barn loft is used much as it was with exposed rafters and truss beams the major visual feature. The loft has hanging wood chandeliers and houses the clubhouse lounge with a new mezzanine level developed over the central bar space. A service platform with an outdoor bar-b-que is at the north and to the south - part of the old lean-to pole shed - is redeveloped to provide a generous terrace balcony. This area overlooks the first tee - a new green of the 6,540 yard par 72 course. Another part of the old lean-to pole shed was also adapted on the east side of the barn to provide for electric cart storage, a sheltered terrace area with direct access to the first tee, and a covered walk alley for access to the tenth tee.

The plans are to have the old barn clubhouse open this Spring with all eighteen holes including the newly constructed nine available for play. The old clubhouse on the Niles-Buchanan Road is presently open and being used as the interim facility.

Brookwood was opened in 1965 by Joe Hess and Harry Kennedy Bobo purchased it in 1972 with construction on the second nine holes started the following year. Hess serves as greens superintendent. Bobo brings a natural interest in sports to Brookwood, having played offensive end with the Michigan State University Spartans for three years and was a member of the 1952 national championship team.

Builder on the project is Palmer Construction, Inc., Mishawaka with the mechanical contractor, Orpurt, Inc., of Buchanan, and electrical work by Chuck's Electric of Elkhart, and interior design by the architects, Crumlish-Sporleder and Associates of South Bend working with Mrs. Douglas Bobo.

Sketch view of Brookwood's new clubhouse. The upper level will be the loft clubhouse and terrace with the pro shop on the lower level.

Laurel Nelson

Laurel Nelson, a junior at Buchanan High School, has been named as delegate to Girls State this year. Sponsored by the Buchanan American Legion Auxiliary, Laurie will attend Girls State from June 14 to June 22 on the campus of Olivet College. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice A. Nelson of 316 West Chicago Street, she is active in a wide range of school and extra curricular activities.

Chosen as alternate is Shelly Leiter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Leiter.

For the past three years Laurie has been a member of Symphony Band, Marching Band, Pep Band and of the Drama Club for which she serves as president this year. She is taking part this year in forensics, was in debate her freshman year and is presently on the Student Representative Assembly.

Her sophomore year she was active in "Beyond Our Control", the JA television program. Laurie had a part in the Niles Music Club production of "Hansel and Gretel" two years ago, in the BHS Drama Club's production of "Sound of Music" and is currently rehearsing as Yente, the matchmaker, in "Fiddler On The Roof".

She is a member of the Chancel Choir and Youth Choir of First United Methodist Church and of the UMYF.

Laurie plans to attend college after graduation next year, although she has not yet decided where, and would like to major in theatre and possibly minor in music.

Girls State, designed as a practical experience in the problems of self-government as operated in Michigan, has a threefold purpose: to emphasize the importance of government in modern life, to stimulate a deep and lasting interest in government and to enlarge understanding of governmental process. It is the hope that delegates leave Girls State with a mature appreciation of some of the basic strengths and weaknesses of the American system of government.

Delegates are selected on the basis of interest, character and potential abilities rather than on a single achievement.

Lenten Meditations

from Buchanan Pastors

William A. Crane, Pastor
Buchanan Church of God

As I gazed out the window of my study a few days ago, an amazing thing came to mind It was about 3:30 in the morning and everything was still and fresh and clean New snow was falling as a cover over the soiled snow. Then I reflected back to that one Friday many years ago, when at about 3:30 in the afternoon, God made it possible that our souls might be made clean as fresh fallen snow. that sin could be covered (forgiven) because of one Man -- Jesus Christ -- giving His life for ours
God said through the Prophet Isaiah, looking forward to that one day:

"Come now, let us reason together, though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as the snow."
This, truly, is what the Lenten Season, Holy Week, Good Friday and specifically EASTER, is all about What a miracle is performed everytime an individual recalls to his heart the Virgin Born entrance to earth, the Staimless Life, the Perfect Sacrifice and the resurrection of the Lord Jesus Christ That Miracle? A NEW life -- a clean life -- through HIM! May we ponder on these words:
If it were not for my sins, He would not have to die
If I had only told the truth, Instead of a lie
If my life had stayed in the image of God
Then the Calvary Road He would not have had to trod
But, they were my sins that put Him on the tree,
And He took them willingly, and died there for me

Buchanan Jaycees are hard at work each night getting ready for this Saturday night's big event "Fantasy and Folklore - The First 200 Years" in which a new Miss Buchanan will be selected from among 19 lovely contestants. The contest has developed a reputation over the years, under Jaycee sponsorship, for providing a fine evening of entertainment.

A few general admission tickets are still available at the high school office and the Stationery Center. The public is urged to get tickets quickly since it is probable there will only be a very few available at the door that night.

Dick Rossow will be master of ceremonies Saturday and Mrs. Joe Johnson will be at the organ. Musical selections are to be presented by the contestants and also by the middle school chorus under the direction of Kathryn Fagras.

Observe World Association Day

All the troops in the Ox-Li Girl Scout Unit of Buchanan and Galien joined together Sunday afternoon for an observance of World Association Day on Girl Scout Sunday at Galien School. This special day is when all Girl Scouts and Girl Guides the world over set aside time to think of one another.

The afternoon opened with the flag ceremony and the presenting of World Association pins and an explanation of their significance to all girls who had not received them last year. Several songs were also sung as part of the program.

Each troop had chosen a country and made a sweet representative of it, served on tables decorated in keeping with the chosen country. As the girls and their mothers went from table to table sampling the various goods, they paid 1 or 2 cents for each into that troop's bank and the entire amount raised goes into the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. The sum raised this year was the highest ever with a record crowd attending.

A wide assortment of countries was represented with several of the groups choosing Holland. Brownie Troop 83 made Dutch cream wafers and decorated their table with pictures of Holland, some dolls and little Dutch shoes. Junior troop 196 made Dutch sour cream cookies and used wooden shoes, Dutch dolls and windmills for table atmosphere. Also using Holland was Junior Troop 355 who made some Dutch cookies and were fortunate in having authentic Dutch costumes for a little boy and girl to display, loaned by one of the members who formerly lived in Holland, Michigan.

Two troops used Hawaii with Brownie Troop 28 making pineapple cookies and using shells, necklaces and grass skirts to adorn their display. Junior Troop 240 also chose Hawaii and their typical sweet combined banana and orange slices on toothpicks.

Greece was the choice of Brownie Troop 287 with Kouloria, a crisp cookie, made as their treat. Maps and pictures depicting the scenes and customs of Greece were used for their table.

The girls in Cadette Troop 389 chose the Scandinavian countries for their exhibit and made elephant ears for their sweet. Danish bread was baked by Cadette Troop 505 which used dolls from Denmark and a bell collection for decorations.

Brownie Troop 104 made French puffs and used a number of items from France mounted on poster board for their exhibit. Canada was the choice of Brownie Troop 155 which had authentic individually wrapped pieces of candy offered on a table covered with a map of Canada and several exhibits including a farm scene.

The Brownies of Troop 194 made Mexican wedding cakes and used a Mexican dancing doll and some wooden spoons and other utensils from Mexico.

Japan was the chosen country of Brownie Troop 209 and Japanese dolls, fans and kimonos set the theme for their treat made of chow mein noodles and melted chocolate chips.

A sort of shortbread called Scotch butter wafers were made by the girls of Junior Troop 68 who used two small dolls from Scotland to create a proper air for their display.

An unusual approach was taken by the Brownies of Troop 216 who used nine different countries in a display of paper dolls dressed in the uniform of each land. Their cookies were of three varieties - Mexican chocolate, Swedish cookies and sugar cookies for the U.S.A.

We The Living

By Ayn Rand

This is one of Ayn Rand's first books, but it has been republished. The author says its autobiographical. If it is, it explains much about this amazing woman.

It's a novel dealing with the early post-revolutionary Soviet Union. Everything was confiscated, and people who were accustomed to the nicer things have nothing. They have to seek out ways to sell their trinkets and old furs to get something to eat.

The heroine is attempting to become an engineer (which Rand did). She lives with a son of a counter-revolutionary and for the sake of expediency keeps company with a young communist. She witnesses the destruction of her family and sees first hand the awful truth that even the idealistic communism is in the hands of humans who cheat for selfish reasons. The struggle to get ahead brings out the animal in men and the desire for survival is intense.

Fans of this author are a regular club. There is good reason why she is so admired by so many. If much of what happened to her heroine happened to her, it is easy to see why she preaches against this kind of system.

Where Did We Goof ?

By D.E. Nichols

Editor's note. The following has been submitted to a national publication. Opinions, either favorable or adverse, will be appreciated.

The young marrieds of the fifties thought they were doing well by their new offspring. Their babies were well fed and well cared for and reared in a good atmosphere. When those children were old enough, they were taken to Sunday school, in fulfillment of the promises made at baptism or dedication to provide a religious education. Then it was campfire girls or cub scouts. Mothers spent hours being den mothers, and the young fathers dutifully watched their sons perform in little league.

Now those offspring are adults. What in the name of heaven happened to so many of them? Where did their parents go wrong? Or did they? Who's to blame for the many unhappy, restless, humorless, discontented young adults of today, people with no goal, no purpose, no future?

Some say that television has to be part of the trouble. Depending on the Mickey Mouse Club, the children of the fifties read little and had less opportunity to dream and to imagine for themselves. The only printed word attractive to many of them was "Mad", a magazine badly written, poorly illustrated, with a bitter, cynical type of humor. As the children grew up, they were exposed to every type of experience via the television tube taken to the real Ringling Brothers Circus, they were bored to death, because they had seen all those acts before, with a better view and in more comfort. When man took his first step on the moon, their elders were thrilled, but the young people were awed.

Educators must take a great share of the blame. The younger teachers, on the fringe of this generation, tried to relate to it, but their post-war education was lacking in depth. In college they had been oversold such literature as "Catcher in the Rye". Having themselves read little before that, and having no real exposure to outstanding classics, they proceeded to serve up a mediocre, half-baked, shallow education to their students. Anxious to adopt new teaching methods which had not been thoroughly tested, they leaped into new ways to teach reading and penmanship. They took on the new math, which in many places is now being rejected. They practiced and experimented so much that many of the products they turned out were never able to do simple office filing because they had never learned the alphabet.

Then, under pressure from parents and students, educators began to relax standards. It was considered no longer necessary to give loads of homework. Old disciplinary rules went by the boards, and dress codes were even abandoned. The result was that many young people were never able to compete for the better jobs after graduation and those who went to college found themselves to be unprepared.

Churches and some of their pastors must share the blame. When the children were sent to Sunday school or church, they were placed in an environment which had failed to keep up with the times. How could they be excited over the parting of the Red Sea when they had already seen Charlton Heston do it on television? When those children reached their teens, amateur laymen, attempting to hold the interest of their classes, tried to conduct discussions on drug abuse or sex without having adequate training or knowledge of their subjects. Then some of the ministers themselves, in order to keep communications open and to try to keep the young people as part of their church, began making drastic concessions. They no longer insisted that pre-marital sex or teenage drinking or the use of marijuana was necessarily wrong. In a more relaxed, informal era, some of their clergy, expressing their opinions freely on social and political issues and attempting to act as anyone else in their congregations, suffered from over-exposure, and their often too-human frailties were shown for all to see.

Society itself was at fault. Nobody had to sacrifice. Young people grew up with no wants and no needs. This became an age of mediocrity. In an era where anybody felt inclined to run stark naked through a public building, few cultural contributions of a positive nature were being made. A film which would have been considered a stag movie ten years earlier, won the Academy Award. The young people turned to old horror movies for their thrills.

The press was no help. Newspapers and magazines glamorized and publicized incidents of bad taste and popularized much of what parents, teachers and the clergy were attempting to fight. In their efforts to make news, the press often condoned inaccuracy and contributed to the already large credibility gap.

But parents did do wrong too. They allowed television to be a baby sitter and little league to pre-empt their responsibilities as parents. At every age level, they organized their children in full collusion with the schools, they encouraged athletic competition at a too early age, and they even delighted in arranging social get-togethers among boys and girls before they were old enough to care about such activities. Parents too began to make concessions on moral behavior. The old custom of having an adult in attendance when the children entertained at home was abandoned. As more mothers began to seek employment outside their homes, they failed to be around when their children needed them most. Since they failed to understand their own offspring; they took the easier course of permuting more and more examples of behavior and conduct which had been prohibited to them.

Knowing not how to cope with new situations, parents allowed the teachers or clergy to handle them. When they became aware that their children were unable to write, spell, add or read properly, they failed to protest to the educators. When the children openly defied the stricter principles which they had been taught, fathers and mothers neither sought nor got any help from the clergy.

Parents, teachers and society in general in effect gave up. They provided young drivers with automobiles and motorcycles and were careless in enforcing the rules which should have accompanied them. They lowered the age for teenage drinking and turned their backs on much of the flagrant disregard for the laws governing drug use. As the already high rate of venereal disease increased, they did little to prevent the main cause. All this came to a climax when the young people reached college age or attempted to get their first jobs. They'd settle for less than their capabilities, seeking instead the great American dream for more leisure time. They quickly learned the advantages and ease of unemployment compensation and food stamps. Taught that way by their parents, they thrived on the whole principle of more money for less work. At college, unmarried males and females started living together with the full knowledge of their parents and professors. Often the parents were subsidizing this arrangement. Then small radical groups of students began to exert their protest into violence and destruction, and the educators gave in to ridiculous demands in order to save their property.

Then the couples got married. Some ministers and parents easily condoned the fact that many were too young or ill-prepared. They gave in to off-beat weddings, complete with guitars and bare feet. The newlyweds, having experienced everything some years before, found little new excitement in their lives together. At the first sign of tension or trouble, the couples separated at an alarming rate. No-fault divorce made it easy. Nobody tried too hard to work out problems, and the older generations were not in a position to help.

The result of all this has been horrendous. A generation has developed which is plagued by its own boredom and with a lack of a sense of purpose. They read little, shun the church in droves and care little for the traditional values which were dear to former generations. Their music is awful. They delight in the "casual" dress and appearance. They feel put upon when their employer requests that they wear a bra or something besides a T shirt or that they trim their hair. Their language is not only foul and formerly considered bad taste in mixed society, but their vocabularies are grossly inadequate, forcing them to rely on meaningless phrases, of which "you know" is the most over-worked.

Nobody has had more information about the harmful effects of cigarette smoking than has the younger generation, yet they smoke as much or more than did their elders. Nobody's been able to convince them that the use of marijuana might be harmful because experts still don't agree. In our worry about increased use of drugs, the problem of alcohol consumption was ignored, and that's still the most serious problem. Young people don't even want to hear that their music may cause loss of hearing. The children born in the fifties and sixties tend to reject much of what they've been taught and are quick to rebel against traditional values. But in many ways a great many of them are a cop-out because they still expect financial help and its accompanying luxuries from their elders. Many take the other extreme and want no help, but only complete independence.

A decade ago radicals tried to unite them in general protest, but the Jerry Rubins failed to excite them. George McGovern, banking on the new vote of the 18-year old, toured the college campus and even let his hair grow, but only a small minority of the younger generation rallied to his support.

This generation presently has little going for it. It is living in a vacuum of mediocrity. In the fields of music or literature no George Gershwin or Ernest Hemmingway have emerged. The Broadway of Rogers and Hammerstein was replaced by the mediocre "Hair". It is an era of bad taste. It is the age of the big nothing. In the sports field there are few personalities to truly admire. Instead we have the Cassius Clay or Joe Namath types. In politics a vice president resigns and a president resigns, and the younger generation wonders rightly whom they can trust. They're too young to remember Ike or John Kennedy, and Kennedy's brother has suffered from problems of credibility. Among the present group of avowed presidential candidates, there is nobody with the true ability to excite anybody.

So what's going to happen? If this world faces a severe depression, is the present generation of young adults going to be able to cope with it? Will there ever be a return to some of the values cherished by past generations?

We have a theory. We believe that the grandchildren of those people who started out so valiantly in the fifties and the children of those post-war babies will develop a blue ribbon generation. They will reject all that is false or foolish from both their grandparents and parents and will accept the best from both. Racial hangups will be something which has already been taken care of for them, and they will have grown up to realize the complete futility of war. To survive and to compete, they will have to produce. Nobody's going to help them financially. They won't be exposed to the wasteful plenty of the fifties and sixties. They will be strengthened by adversity and tempered by the realities of life and, by necessity, will have learned wisdom from the mistakes of their elders. They will look back and contemplate that, in many ways, their parents were strange and their grandfathers peculiar. But in the long run, they'll be faced with new challenges which never occurred to anyone else before.

Miss Galien of 1975, Denise Lockwood, appears with her court following her coronation last Saturday. On the left is first runner-up Kathy DeForest and on the right second runner-up Vanessa Viganosky. The event had to be postponed from Friday night on rather short notice last week when the Gaels produced a conflict by appearing successfully that night in the regional finals.

Gaels Win Regional

The Gaels went to Sturgis and came home with the Class D regional crown. On Friday night they beat Gobles 61 to 48. To get to the finals they had beaten Camden-Frontier 70 to 64.

Their next game is Thursday at Marshall when they will meet Detroit East Catholic, one of the strongest teams in the state.

In the regional finals, Gobles was ahead 16 to 12 after the first quarter, but Galien roared back and had a 26 to 20 lead at half-time, on the strength of seven points in a row.

Galien was dominant on the boards, and their scoring was even. Don Kooy got 15, Craig Schau 13, Tim Snyder 11, and Dale Luther 10.

Swen Smith Comments

Richard Swen LeRoy Smith

How often do you express a doubt? How often do you have doubts about your abilities or doubts about other people? It is healthy and wise to have doubts at times about certain things, but when doubts become chronic and cloud simple reasoning, then doubting has deteriorated to a sickness of skepticism.

We see men of poise and serenity, we see them with all the trappings of faith and dignity, and we doubt whether these men ever have a doubt about anything. They seem so sure of themselves. But they too have doubts at times.

To doubt is only human. This was true from the days of the Psalmists to and through the days of Thomas and is true today. When we find ourselves gripped with uncertainty, we are bound to have doubts. But promiscuous doubting should not be.

Doubts torment us only because we have too little faith. This is the true way it applies to people, science, religion or anything else. Obviously, then, the best way to reduce doubts is to increase faith. Sounds simple? It is.

Against Brandywine the girls lost the first 3 to 15, won the second 15-10 with 5 from Karen Bobo and 3 from Chris Swank, and then lost the last 12-15 with Mary Kay Welsh making 4 and Swank 3.

Bucks Whip Otsego

By Ed Morrissey

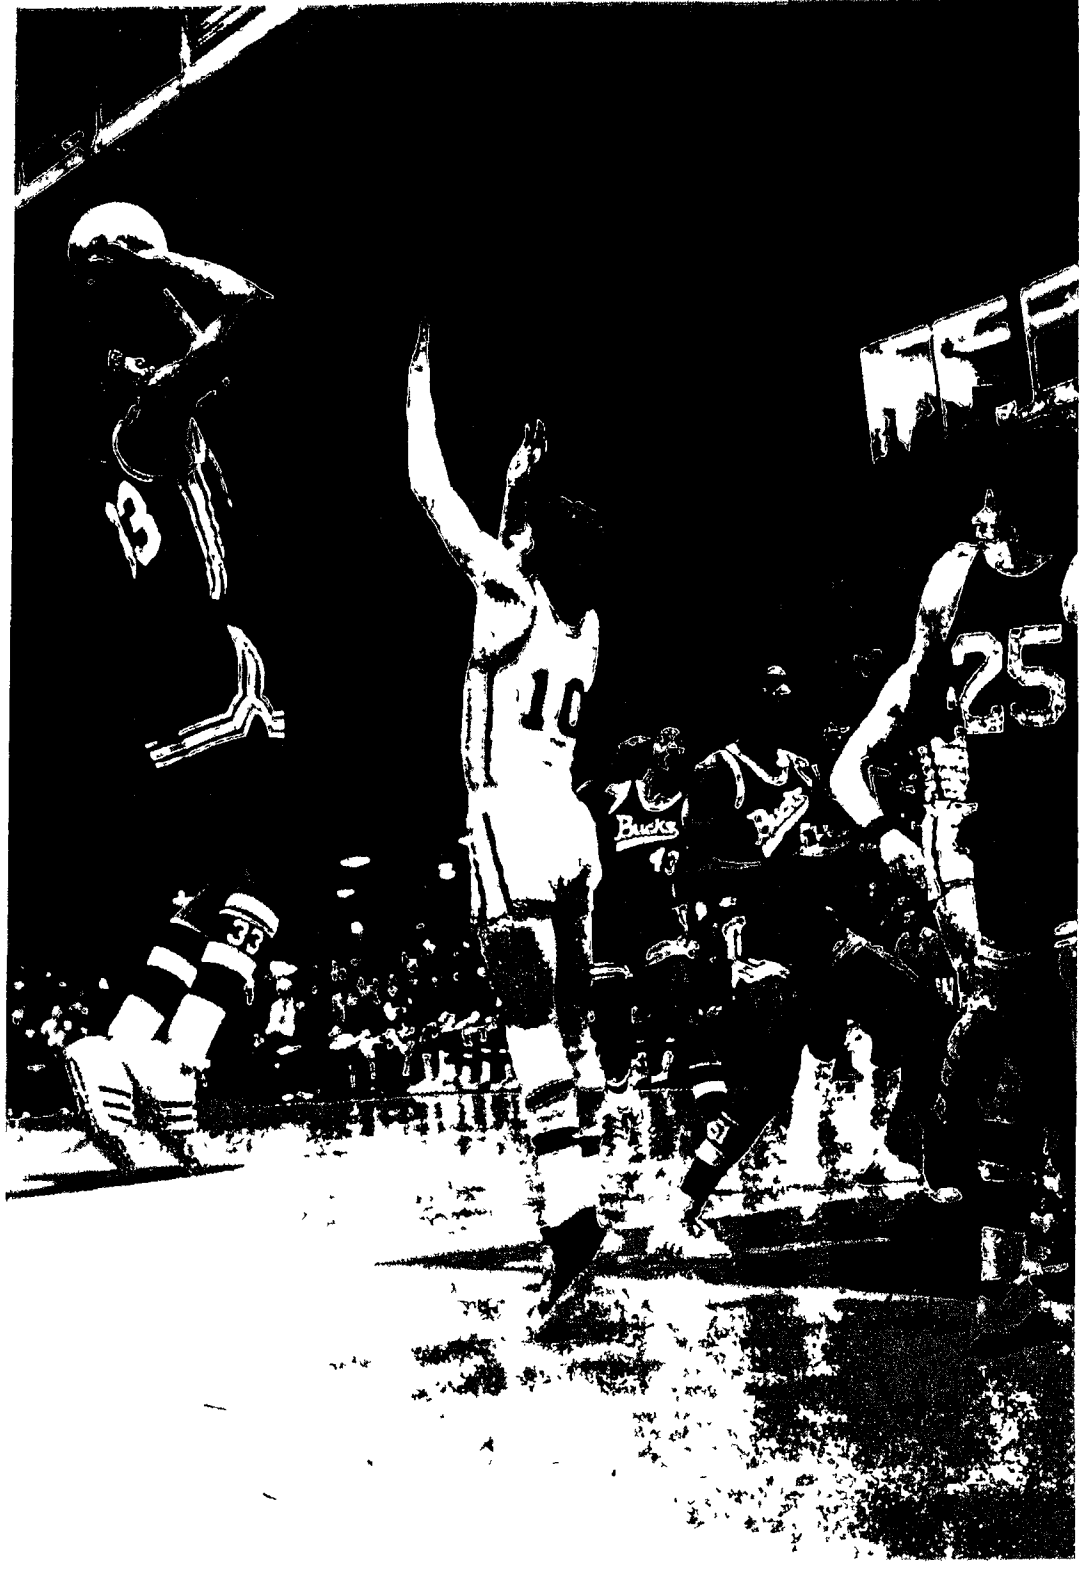

Buchanan advanced to the Regional Finals with a 58-47 victory over Otsego last Tuesday, the Blossomland Champs will face Albion in the Regional crown bid.

Buchanan was held scoreless during the first five and a half minutes before Mike McGurt broke the ice to make it 10-2. Mike Busby added five in the quarter ending with Otsego in the advantage 12-9.

Mark Jackson tied things at 15 with a 17-foot jumper and Ken Garrett added eight points to give the Bucks a 27-21 halftime lead. Buchanan was able to preserve the point favor throughout the second half to bring home the win.

Jackson took point honors with 18, while Garrett collected 9, McGurt 8, and Wait Vanderbush and Willie Brown each had 6 for the starters. Busby, the sixth man on the team, gathered 11 for the night.

What's Going Up?

Bread, milk, sugar prices up Margarine, up 57 per cent. Baby food, up 29 per cent. And so goes the list of price hikes, put out by the Labor Department and further emphasized recently by the Michigan Council of Alcohol Problems (MICAP).

In addition, the Council points to price hikes of 15 per cent on beer during the past year — 3 per cent on whiskey

What's it all leading up to? A Council proposal to boost taxes on beer, whiskey and cigarettes as a way of helping balance Michigan's budget

"Who would complain seriously about paying a penny more for a bottle of beer, a penny more for a shot of whiskey and a nickel more for a pack of cigarettes?" asks a Council bulletin containing the proposal

It's figured that such increases, recommended for a one year trial period at first, would bring in some $100 million to state coffers

Michigan needs an estimated $200 million in additional revenue a year to make up for loss of the sales tax on food and prescription drugs

Options currently under consideration to make up that money include cutting the state's budget, boosting the state income tax or increasing the sales tax rate

House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, also has mentioned the prospect of deficit spending, now outlawed by Michigan's constitution. Foes of that idea contend it might easily lead to a permanent deficit, with the state never quite catching up with its bills

Campaign Reform Alive
Voters may yet have a chance to express their feelings about how much political candidates should spend on election campaigns

Campaign reform proposals, which didn't get too far in the Legislature last year, still are being talked about in Lansing

But if there's no "dramatic action" on those ideas soon, Michigan Common Cause plans some action of its own. The group says it will begin a petition drive to put campaign reform items on the 1976 ballot. IF lawmakers fail to act decisively within a few weeks

The fellow who directed the successful campaign to put repeal of the state food and drug taxes on last year's ballot, Douglas Ross, is in charge of the Common Cause effort

"The only way we would allow the Legislature to pre-empt the initiative drive would be if they move all four of these bills (proposed by Common Cause) as an individual package," Ross says

Those proposed bills would — Limit the amounts that candidates for state office could spend and that individuals and organizations could contribute in campaigns

—Require disclosure of personal financial interests by candidates and public officials —Require registration and detailed reporting of expenditures by lobbyists

—Set up a political ethics commission to enforce related laws

What About Lawns?
The fertilizer crisis of last growing season prompts a Democratic state lawmaker to see ways of averting a similar situation this year

Rep David Bomor of Mount Clemens wants to ban the sale of commercial fertilizer for uses other than in the production of food for human consumption, food for consumption by domesticated animals, and in production of fiber of cellulose for human use

"In view of the millions of people who are starving in various parts of the world, it seems inhumane that we in Michigan, and around the country, use billions of tons of fertilizer for home lawns when the supply is becoming less available and more expensive," he says

"Lawns can be maintained without the use of fertilizer. Farm lands cannot continue to be productive without fertilization"

Brrrrrr
'Twas a bad January for snowmobilers and ice fishermen in southern lower Michigan, according to the Department of Natural Resources

The DNR blames poor January ice and snow conditions at least in part for a decrease in use of Michigan's 80 state parks and recreation areas. Use for January 1975 was down some 7 per cent from January 1974

On the other hand, winter camping appeared to be on the increase. The Department says "relatively small figures" show that issuance of camp permits went up nearly 40 per cent this January over last.

Time To Prune

Young Fruit Trees

Winter may not be your idea of a great time for working outdoors, but horticulturists at Michigan State University say late February or early March is the best time to prune young fruit trees. If you wait much later, spring growth may already have begun, the experts caution

A sharp pruning knife, strong hand shears and a fine-toothed pruning saw for branches more than half an inch thick are the essential tools. To remove a branch or shoot, make a parallel cut as close to the parent branch as you can — be careful not to tear or bruise the bark

Start your pruning by removing all broken, dead or diseased branches. Sometimes with older fruit trees, this may be all the pruning that's necessary. Younger trees are lightly pruned to help them develop a strong framework to support fruit in later years. Avoid drastic pruning — it will dwarf the trees and delay fruit bearing

Shape and strengthen young fruit trees by removing branches that meet the trunk in narrow angles. Leave branches that join the trunk at wide angles and are well spaced both up and down and around the trunk. These should be at least 8-10 inches apart. None should be directly opposite or directly below another

Remove weak, drooping branches and any that are growing straight up through the tree. If two branches cross, leave the best one if a branch is needed there. Remove branches growing through the tree

This is known as the modified leader method and will give you a tree with a central trunk several feet long, and a central leader (vertical branch) to which are attached several main side branches. Apple, sweet and tart cherry, pear and European plum trees may be pruned this way

Another method, known as the open center method, is used on peach trees and Japanese plums. All vertical shoots are removed and the main lateral branches are concentrated along a fairly short space on the trunk

My Fern Has Measles!

Those little brown spots on your fern don't mean your plant is afflicted with some strange malady, says Jesse Saylor, Michigan State University horticulturist. The spots are spores, which are the fern's way of reproducing itself

If your fern is looking pale and droopy, however, chances are it isn't getting just the right combination of soil, light and moisture

"Ferns can grow in all kinds of habitats," Saylor says, "but each species has specific cultural requirements that must be met. Most ferns that people try to grow in their homes need more moisture in the air than the home climate provides"

Ferns seem to be making a comeback as popular houseplants, Saylor observes. Maiden-hair fern, Boston fern, Sword fern, bird's-nest fern, Spider fern and Japanese holly fern are among the best to grow in the home, he adds

They require a humus soil, direct sunlight in winter and indirect light in summer. They prefer warm temperatures with high humidity and must be protected against extreme chilling. The soil should be kept moist but not soaking wet, Saylor advises

Firewood May Hide

Insect Pests

Nothing is cozier than an evening in front of the fireplace with family and friends

"You may have a horde of houseguests you weren't counting on, though, if you store more than one or two days' supply of firewood inside the home," says Don Cress, Extension entomologist at Michigan State University

Wood borers, ants, wood roaches and a host of other insects can be carried into the house on fireplace wood, he points out. The warmth inside your home will bring them out of their hiding places

The best way to avoid this problem is to store firewood outside the house, Cress advises. Stack it where it will stay reasonably dry and carry in only what you will use right away

CARPET?

Ask
Senator
GRIFFIN

By cutting through red tape, members of Congress can often lend a hand to those with problems involving the federal government. Through the columns of this newspaper, Senator Griffin answers questions of general interest. He will respond personally to all communications addressed to: Senator Robert P. Griffin, Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Do Government agencies have people who are supposed to help consumers with their problems and complaints? I think that would be a big help, and it would surely make Government seem more responsive to people's problems.

—F. C., Warren

Many Federal agencies now have consumer affairs offices to handle consumers' calls and complaints. Unfortunately, many consumers are not aware that such assistance is available. Recently Virginia Knauer, the President's Special Assistant for Consumer Affairs, released a list of officials in twenty different Federal agencies who have been designated especially to assist consumers. You can get a free copy of this list by writing to Mrs. Knauer at the Office of Consumer Affairs, Washington, D.C. 20201. Or you can call the Federal Information Center in Detroit at (313) 226-7016.

I think the 55 mph speed limit was one of Washington's better ideas. But I just wonder how many people are really obeying it.

—K. F., Big Rapids

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reports that 51% of the drivers of passenger cars in the United States are now traveling within the 55 mph limit—that's more than double the number that obeyed it last year. So, the track record is improving—a bit.

Is it worth it? Well, as long as we have an energy problem in this country, it's worth it. If everyone drove within the limit, we'd save about 200,000 barrels of gas each day.

Even more important, the speed limit has been saving something else—American lives. In 1974, the Nation registered the lowest highway death toll in 11 years.

THE SPINAL COLUMN

In these modern days, especially, it is not possible, or at least not practicable, for people to spend the winter months, like nature, in a state of relaxation. But it is not necessary as many do, to emerge from winter with lowered vitality.

Keeping well in winter as in any other season is merely a matter of maintaining the body in a high state of physical fitness.

A healthy body is the best fortification against the dangers of greater indoor living. Dress properly, spend as much time as possible in the fresh air, and remember that prevention is always better than cure. Regular chiropractic adjustments will help you maintain a robust disease-resisting physical condition.

Yours for better health, naturally,

Last year alone, we taught 2,589,203 Americans not to drown - in the seven different swim courses we offer all across the country. (Incidentally, most of the teaching - as with almost everything American Red Cross does - is done by dedicated volunteers.) A good many of the youngsters not only are learning to keep themselves safe. Thousands upon thousands of them are learning to become lifesavers. And the life they save - may be your own.

RLDS Hosts Youth Weekend

A Minute With Mary

By Mary Snow
Extension Home Economist

"Are You Ready" was the theme for the "Happening" weekend at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Buchanan. Young folks attended from Fort Wayne, South Bend, Washburn, Fremont, Indiana, Grand Rapids, Coldwater, Dowagiac, Sturgis and Galien, Michigan

Serving on the committees were: social time, Jim Renbarger, registration, Judy Cooper, publicity, Carla Armstrong, Mariann Chappell, food and housing, Tracy Renbarger

Saturday afternoon Mrs Gary Gamble directed a scripture quiz and in the evening Mrs. Tanner Blevins arranged the mixer. Afterward swimming and gym activities were enjoyed at the Y M C A in Niles. Youth leader is Mrs Melvin Stoner

Sunday morning guest ministers Elder David Wiley from Kalamazoo, Elder John Utz from Sturgis and Priest Steve Porter from Washburn conducted the 10 and 11 o'clock services. The theme, "Are you Ready for Christ's Coming?" and kindred subjects tended to stimulate the group's thinking. Time is running out! Are you ready?

Adding Humidity To Your Air
Floors creak. Tiles come loose. Wooden drawers stick. And house plants droop and die. The culprit? Humidity - or more precisely, the lack of humidity - during the winter months.

And without enough humidity in the house, shocking things may happen due to static electricity build-up.

The solution? Add humidity to the air. But be careful. Too much humidity causes wood to warp, carpets and draperies to develop mold, and moisture to condense inside walls and ceilings.

The most effective way to add humidity to the entire home is with a furnace mounted humidifier. It can easily be connected into an existing forced air heating system.

Power humidifiers are the most efficient furnace mounted system. Moisture is distributed quickly and evenly.

A less expensive type has evaporator plates set in a water tray located in the hot air stream. However the plates tend to collect lime deposits and must be cleaned frequently.

Portable water wheel humidifiers may function adequately for the one room apartment. But portables are not powerful enough to humidify a large area.

Just how much is enough to add? Don't guess. Purchase a humidity gauge from your local hardware store.

By simply reading the gauge, you will quickly know the amount of water vapor in the air compared to the total amount of moisture the air can hold at a specific temperature. This is the relative humidity.

A relative humidity of 30 to 40 percent is very comfortable for most homes.

How To Apply

For A Job

As spring approaches, a great many young people will make the rounds looking for a job. Few will find them, but for many of those who don't, we have a few suggestions.

1. When applying for a job, have some idea what the company does and try to figure some way you personally could fit into the operation. Don't give the impression that you are merely seeking work, any work, and that you are bored with your inactivity, or are merely in need of money.

2. Dress properly for your interview. Remember that the one who is interviewing you may be from another generation. Wear a shirt and tie or at least a clean shirt if you're male, and don't try to get by with a T-shirt and jeans if you're female. Be well groomed.

3. Look your interviewer in the eye. If he extends his hand, shake it firmly. Pay attention to what he is saying. Respond intelligently to his questions.

4. Don't feel you have to smoke during the interview or to chew gum.

5. Don't bring a friend with you, whether of the same or opposite sex. Have him wait outside. The interviewer will want to talk to the applicant in private.

In this period when there will be great competition for every job, only those who are the most alert and appear to be the most interested will have a chance. Too often, people will go door to door looking for any job. They should have some idea on where their particular abilities might fit into a prospective employer's plans.
