Buchanan Builders Assoc. Plan Open House in Unit July 26-27-28

Sale Total Twice 1st Half Of 1950

6 Months' Net Earnings Over $3,000,000, Compared With $1,900,000 First Half Of 1950

According to the semi-annual report of the operations of the Clark Equipment company, just issued under the name of President George Spatta, the volume of production shipped to dealers and customers during the six months ending June 30, 1951, both in tonnage and dollars, exceeded any previous six months period in the history of the company.

Sales totaled more than 60 million dollars as against approximately 30 million dollars for the first half of 1950, an increase of 100%.

Final net earnings amounted to $3,000,000 compared to $1,900,000 in the first half of 1950.

Net earnings were calculated on a 62% tax basis, which is the maximum under the present tax laws, and the Federal taxes on income accrued for the first half of this year amounted to $4,900,000 as compared to $1,200,000 for the first half of last year.

The net earnings for the six months amount to 5c per dollar of sales, and $3.50 per share on the 661,000 shares of common stock outstanding.

In previous reports to the shareholders, reference was made to the high level of our unfilled orders and the 10 million dollar bank credit we concluded with our banks to finance this increased volume of business. The expansion contemplated in two of our plants is now under way, and barring any serious material difficulties, should be completed by the end of this year.

"Sales for the balance of 'the year should continue at a high level, and the management is making every effort to secure the necessary flow of vital raw materials to achieve the projected volume of output," states President Spatta.

Buchanan Police Nab South Bend Juvenile Thief

A 15-year-old South Bend boy, in transit in a car he had stolen from a neighbor at 10 p.m. Friday, was taken in tow three hours later by Buchanan police.

The Buchanan patrolmen, Clyde Weaver and George Albrecht, saw the lad waiting at the Front and Portage light, attracted by the 1950 license on his car. When he took off east on Front they gave chase, running him to the curb at the Clark service department building. The boy at once confessed that he had stolen the car from the garage of a neighbor.

He said he had been hired to do some work in the garage and noticed the car, which was not being used, and without a battery he secured a battery and placed it in the car. Friday night he took a Scout pup tent to the yard, telling his family he would sleep in it. About 10 p.m. he went to the neighbor's garage, took out the car and left.

The police took him to the juvenile detention home at Berrien Center and notified the South Bend juvenile authorities to get him from that place.

Two Television Towers Erected On I. Price Farm

Towers To Relay Chicago TV Programs To WLAU, In Grand Rapids

Twin steel towers or pillars, each 280 feet high have been installed on a hill at the north end of the Ivan Price farm about five miles west of Buchanan as units in a series of television relay towers between Chicago and Grand Rapids.

The relay towers are being erected by Station WLAU (television) of Grand Rapids. The new series loops around the southern end of Lake Michigan keeping well inland from the lake in order to avoid the fading and other interference from passage over water. The Chicago programs are at present being shot straight across the lake to a tower near Stevensville and relayed from there to Grand Rapids.

The new series consists of twin steel pillars at such heights that a direct eye-vision line between any two towers will clear all obstacles underneath by not less than 150 feet. This tends to cut down reflection, deflection and other troubles in the transmission of programs. The steel installations are 35 miles apart. There are three more such in the wide-southern-loop-of-the-relay system between Chicago and Buchanan. The next one to the north is near Bangor, Mich.

The Grand Rapids station leased an acre of ground from the Price farm for a term of five years, subject to release if application is made within 4 1/2 years. The installing engineer stated that it is believed that the present difficulties may be eliminated more efficiently in other ways within five years if the progress of television is not retarded during that time.

The two towers are set about 12 feet apart, each set in a 4x4 foot base of concrete. They are tied together by steel pieces every 20 feet and in addition guy wires angle from the pillars to the ground at intervals of about 60 feet. Work is in progress this week on a 10x12 foot concrete building at the base of the towers for a two-way radio and private telephone.

The installation will be of no aid to local television reception, the signals being beamed only from tower to tower.

The Story of Buchanan

WHY NOT A BETTER MEMORIAL FOR ISAAC McCOY AND HIS MISSION?

This chapter written under rather adverse circumstances is more hurried journalism than history and is merely thrown in for good measure for the benefit of those who have shown special interest in the foregoing chapters on the Carey Mission.

It was stated previously that the marker on the former site of the mission a short distance west of Niles on the Niles-Buchanan road has been endangered by grading and leveling operations that have left it perched on an inadequate soil basis. The marker itself seems now too adequate. It is inscribed as follows:

CAREY MISSION 1823-1828

But the founder, Isaac McCoy, was indeed far more worthy of memorializing than this mission. At approximately the same time that he organized the mission, known officially as the "Carey Mission Station," he organized the "Thomas Mission Station" on the present site of Grand Rapids. He is credited by the historians of Grand Rapids as having been one of the founders of that city.

He established the first farm settlement in the lower St. Joseph Valley, also the first Protestant congregation which also vies with the Baptist church of Pontiac for the title of being the first church of that denomination in Michigan.

During the last decade of Indian settlement in southern Michigan he was the organizer and thinker who induced the government of the United States to arrange a large-scale and orderly transfer west of the Mississippi of the tribesmen who were in process of being overwhelmed by white settlement. He did not originate the idea—that probably belongs to the fertile brain of Thomas Jefferson, originator of many ideas. But it was McCoy who realized the moment when such transfer was inevitable and induced President Monroe and John C. Calhoun, Secretary of War in charge of Indian affairs to actually organize and put in effect the idea.

There is only one memorial to the name of McCoy, the name of the creek along which he loved to fish for trout in 1823. McCoy had as a caller at the Carey Mission Major Stephen Harriman Long, a distinguished explorer of the West. Major Long was then on his way to explore and chart the sources of the Mississippi river. He had previously explored the middle Rocky mountain section a few years earlier and was first to chart a gigantic peak, which has since borne his name—Long's Peak, Colorado. Long certainly did not out-rank McCoy in his frontier services, yet he has a monument over 11,000 feet high, while McCoy's name is not even mentioned on the marker at the site of the mission he created.

It would be too much to ask that a snow-capped peak three miles high and covering perhaps 300 square miles of ground be raised to commemorate him, although such a monument would doubtless cover many things that were as well hidden. The idea really has its merits, so it seems to this writer, who grew up almost in the shadow of Major Long's peak in northern Colorado.

Who that ever lived under it could forget that mighty monument? Especially if he were familiar with the winding chasm down its face known to the thousands of farmers on the plains eastward as the "Cow Path." In the spring the entire peak would be white with snow which gradually melted away until only a serpentine trail of white wound down the mountain's face in the "Cow Path." The melting snows from that and other peaks fed the irrigation ditches that made the prairie green in summer. But when the snow melted until the "Cow Path" on Long's Peak turned brown that was the signal of short water, and the plains began to smolder with drought.

This, of course, is off the subject. We can't build a peak between here and Niles. However in the late and unlamented 1930's it would have been a wonderful WPA project.

Other men of distinction came to the Carey mission. Among them was Leonard Slater, who came from Detroit on horseback with his young wife in 1826, to teach

Assoc. Formed To Assist Those Who Want Homes

Plan Central Clearing House To Solve The Problems Of All Steps In Home Creation

All who are interested for personal reasons in the availability of good, reasonably-priced homes in Buchanan, and also the many more who are interested because they know that more houses is Buchanan's Number One Need, are invited to attend an "open house" to be held during the weekend of July 26-27-28 in a recently completed residence unit built through the agency of the Buchanan Builders' Association at 439 Cecil avenue.

On another page of this issue is an advertisement featuring some main details of construction and terms on which such homes may be secured. A spokesman of the newly-organized association states that its purpose is to arrange details of a complete home-building service, covering the whole sequence from the purchase of the site, through the actual construction and the arrangement of terms to meet the paying ability of the average buyer. Some restrictions now exist by virtue of federal regulations. It is hoped, however, that such regulations may be relaxed in the near future.

The spokesman said that the chief aim of the association is a flexible building program by which the details of any particular situation may be arranged, where the buyer is able to meet the down-payment requirements in some way, and is also able to meet the qualifications of stability of employment and responsible paying habits.

Such potential purchaser might already own a building site which would serve as part of the down payment, or he might be able to furnish a part of the equipment which would constitute a part of a down payment, provided that it met required specifications. Or the potential buyer might appreciate a channel in which he could create a fund that would eventually cover the down payment.

There is a very real need, stated the association spokesman, for such a central agency in Buchanan, through which the various problems of home creation, from the buying of the site to the arrangements of an intelligible financial set-up which would both determine definitely the total cost and the channel of payment might be handled. The lack of such central agency is the largest single factor contributing to the lag of home-building in Buchanan.

The Buchanan Builders' Association has been organized with the idea of supplying this needed factor, which will be able to answer every question raised by anyone who wants to build a home. Facilities for home-building, including locations, materials and all of the building and technical skills required are abundant in Buchanan. The Buchanan Builders' Association has been organized to offer such a clearing house. A survey of builders confirmed this need.

Temporary headquarters are now being maintained at 102 West Front street and inquiries are being directed there. Phil Sexton is now acting as agent of the association in handling applications for construction of homes.

E.U.B. Women's Unit Hears Report From State Convention

Mrs. Harry Surph entertained members of the Women's Society of World Service of the First Evangelical U. B. church last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Harry Hartline presented a report on the merging convention of the societies of the Evangelical and United Brethren churches of Michigan, held in Sebawang, June 22 to 25.

She revealed that the 110 societies represented at the convention contributed $2,794 to the 1951 project fund for new missionary residences in Japan.

Mrs. Clifford Peters presided during the business session, when plans were made for the society to hold a picnic luncheon on Aug. 8 at Riverside campgrounds and to attend session of the Riverside assembly that day. Reading course certificates for the 1950-51 year were presented to 10 members.

Mrs. L. A. Decker led the devotional services using the subject "Missions In The News". She was assisted by Mrs. Howard Otwell. Mrs. Surph and Mrs. Eura Florey sang duet numbers.

Anyone Sucker-Enough To Swallow This?

Here is a fish story that no one would believe were it not for the known veracity of four good and true witnesses who stand ready to swear by all that is holy to the facts stated substantially as follows:

Walt Glendinning, manager of the local National Food store had the day off Monday, so he says, and took off for some fishing, at Pike Lake, accompanied by three veteran anglers, Van Young, Don Smith and Gordon Smith. No store manager could afford to risk his reputation by stretching a fish story. Or could he? Well, here's the story.

Gordon had just hauled a fishless fishhook baited with an angle worm out of the water preparatory to making a longer cast. The worm was dangling three feet or more out of the water, so they say, when a big sucker suddenly made a wild leap clear of the water after the worm. He missed the worm, but cut a beautiful aerial arc of from 8 to 10 feet, clearing the side of the boat and landing plump in the bottom of it, where Gordon caught him by simply landing on him with both feet.

The fish was not present to testify when the story was told this reporter. However the boys swear that his mouth was unmarked by the hook, though his head was bashed in by one of Gordon's No. 12's.

The Ramp Is Fixed And The Runups Is Over

After this scriener had been waiting for a year for a clear day or two to write something delicately suitable about that jumping-off place in the sidewalk on the east side of Day's avenue in between the Watson Jewelry and the Carbon building, along comes the Street department boys and level it off.

Had we had time there should have been a word something significant, yet fit to print, regarding the several prominent citizens who have had their seats rumpled unexpectedly as they romped down the Days sidewalk ramp and hit on their rumps, occasionally raising quite a rumpus. Where could one go for that?

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bucher of Jackson, with their children, Jerry, Diane, Marie, and Tommy, stopped off on their way home from a trip to Iowa and visited with Mrs. Bucher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olin Summerrill, for a few days. Diane remained for a longer visit and a chance to swim at Clear Lake Woods.

Danny Riley Comes To Aid of Police

Danny, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Riley, 113 South Detroit, broke into the ranks of the infant driving phenomenon last Friday evening when he not only backed the family chariot across the street, but stopped the flight of a speeder while the police were getting under way to clock him.

Mrs. H. V. had driven home about 7 p.m., stopping the car in the driveway, getting out and going into the house. Master Riley clambered into the driver's seat, and pulled the gear shift out of reverse. The car rolled back across the street just as a speeding driver came hurtling north along Detroit, with the Buchanan police car just turning off Chicago onto Detroit to clock him. The driver had to slow down for Danny, preventing the police from catching his misdeed.

Please Don't Get Shifty About This Wheat

Whether or not he came into possession of the aforesaid grain by open and above board processes of agriculture or more likely by process of foreclosure, attender, corpulent delicto or other legal hocus pocus, this writer (who never told a lie though he has relayed a large number of other people's lies) heard from more or less reliable authority that the first load of 1951 wheat to cut the dirt on the Co-op scales this season was the property of no other than Atty. Bill Lessenberg.

Bill probably never actually raised the wheat, but an intimation based on more or less fact has it that he actually owned the land, and furnished the seed and the fertilizer—and don't let's have any of those kind of jokes about the source and nature of the fertilizer. Anyway Bill got the money for the wheat, whatever that proves.

To Play Kosciusko Friday In Memorial Field, Game Starting 8:45

The Fabiano Softball team, Buchanan's entry in the Northern Indiana Tri-State League, moved into a tie for first place with the Studebaker team as the result of a 5-2 victory over the Mentone (Ind.) nine Friday evening.

The team will enter the Kosciusko (Mishawaka) game here next Friday night with a standing of 7 wins to 2 losses, and a percentage standing of .777. They will go to LaGrange Saturday night for a game with that team.

Ike Bierwagon and John Buheker were the batters for Fabianos, and Fore and Tippin for Mentone. The score by innings was:

Fabianos	000	000	030
Mentone	001	110	011

Fabianos also won two non-league games in the past week Saturday evening they downed the Dixon Beverage team of Benton Harbor by a score of 15 to 3. Fabianos registered 16 hits to 5 for the Beverage boys. Bert Bierwagon and Jim Bleasdale were the batters for Buchanan, and Dick Pienger and Melke for their opponents. Ike Bierwagon, playing in the outfield, smashed out two home runs. The score by innings was:

On Saturday evening they took the measure of Copp's Music Store of South-Bend 6 to 2. Ike Bierwagon and John Buheker went the road for Fabianos and Dobbs and Heresig formed the battery for Copp's. Fabianos collected seven

Y.C. Challenges Hawks 9 Tonight In Softball Game

Y.C. Moves Into Second Place In City League By 2 Wins From Hubbards' 13-5 And 17-10

The blue chips will be laid on the line tonight (Thursday) as the two top Buchanan City league nines go at each other tooth and nail. The big game pits the Hawks, perched on the top rung, against the Youth Council, a team that has finally started to rally after dropping their first two contests this year.

These Council lads moved into second place last week by whipping the Hubbard squad twice, 13-5 and 17-10. Manager Melvin Ravish of the Y.C. probably will send Gordon Smith to the hill against the Hawk's Pat Maxson or newcomer Jack Mitchell.

Elsewhere on the softball front the Farm Bureau finally broke into the victory column last week as they whipped Clark's 17-11 and 14-2. The setbacks shoved the shop into the cellar, a position the Bureau had occupied since the start of the year.

Farm Bureau Unit Wants Higher Fines On Truck Overloads

Members of the Northwest Buchanan Farm Bureau met Sunday evening in the home of Leroy Phillips following a picnic supper. It was decided to outfit the August meeting. The group will resume activities with a meeting Sept. 12 at the home of Elmer Clark.

The program included a discussion on "Are Overload Fines Effective?" led by Mrs. Clark. The conclusion was reached that the fines are not effective, as they should be heavier and the trucker made to unload excess weight before proceeding and that the fines collected should be used for maintenance and building of roads instead of the library fund.

Total $14,248.81 Christmas Seals Bought In Berrien

A final total of $14,248.81 worth of tuberculosis Christmas Seals was purchased by Berrien county citizens last year, according to the annual report of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

Packed with tuberculosis prevention information, the account warns that such programs as mass chest x-raying cannot whip tuberculosis unless "people know and observe good health practices."

Showing better ways to attack and defeat the disease, tuberculosis Christmas seals are pictured on the job from the school rooms to the state legislative chambers.

Finding those infected, promoting tuberculosis hospital beds, helping the sick back to normal lives and year-round research are counted among programs Buchanan citizens support through tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

Norman Wetzel Is Rotated Home From Service In Korea

Norman Wetzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wetzel of the Hill school district northeast of Glendora, is one of a rotation consignment of Korean war veterans who were disembarked on the Pacific coast yesterday morning.

They went through Yellowstone park, leaving by the south gate just ahead of a 22-inch snow that marooned all subsequent traffic. They had intended to return home through Kansas, but because of the flood there they went through the Black Hills of South Dakota. There they saw the "highest spot" on the trip, the start of the conversion of a great mountain into a memorial to the famous Indian warrior chief, Crazy Horse. They saw the sculptor at work and brought back a beautiful statuette of the model for the finished memorial.

Color Fosters Cleanliness

An Australian automobile firm, experimenting in methods of improving working conditions for their employees, painted walls and machinery a restful green, the ceiling in white. Switches, pipes and aisles were coated in blue, red, yellow and aluminum. As a result, the employees now keep this section so clean that many of them can now wear office job clothing to work. As a double-check on their experiment, the firm left one corner of the plant and its machinery unpainted. Here, the workers still wear overalls and need constant urging to keep their work areas clean.

Western Union Can.
Now Send Over 3,000
Words In A Minute

The fastest communications method in the world—High Speed Fax—has been unveiled by the Western Union Telegraph company.

A message can now be sent at the rate of more than 3,000 words a minute, contrasted with the 300 words a minute transmitted on conventional systems.

Photographs, printed and written matter are placed in a cylinder of the sending unit of the mechanism. Thirty seconds later clear, readable copies come out of the receiving unit.

A feature of the new method, which has been undergoing daily tests for a year between New York and Washington over-micro-wave radio beam, is the simplicity of operation, no preparation of the copy is necessary, as is the case in other recently-introduced methods.

Emphasizing the capacity of the new system, a 90-page magazine can be finished by facsimile to any distant point in an hour.

Camp Blackhawk Stages Order Of Arrow Ceremony

Four Troops From Aurora, Ill. Area To Take Part In Ceremonial

Camp Blackhawk, summer camping headquarters of the Boy Scouts of the Aurora (Ill.) area, will be the scene of an interesting scouting event this Friday evening, July 20, when the Illinois troops attending will stage the "Calling Out of the Order of the Arrow" ceremony.

At this ceremony one Scoutmaster and three Scouts will receive the Order of the Arrow, a national council affiliation accorded only to a select few in the ranks of Advanced Campers.

Participating in the ceremony will be the four troops from Aurora, Yorkville, Plano and Sandwich, Ill., which have been occupying the camp during the second period from July 11 to July 20. This group leaves Friday night, and after a two-day interim Saturday and Sunday, another group takes over for a ten-day period, starting Monday.

The Blackhawk camp is located on the west side of the St. Joseph river, about three miles north of Buchanan. Features this summer are a new rifle range, a new archery range, and bait-casting instruction. In recent years the camp has become one of the best-staffed and equipped in the Middle West. During the present session a staff of 30 has had in charge 90 Boy Scouts, an average of one staff member for every three Scouts.

Where formerly the camp ran buses carrying the boys to Clear Lake for swimming, the camp now has a swimming pool fed from two wells, 60x80 feet in dimension, and from two to eleven feet in depth. The camp has a fleet of ten canoes, eight rowboats and one sailboat on the river.

Kenneth Perin, Scoutmaster of the Yorkville troop, was a caller at the Record office Saturday.

GMC Booklet On Truck Care Given Away By Dealers

Pontiac, Mich., July 18—A booklet, "GMC's Tips To Truckers in The Emergency," is being distributed to truck owners by GMC dealers to help them prevent breakdowns and costly delays in their operations. It was announced today by J. E. Johnson, general truck sales manager for the GMC Truck & Coach Division.

The booklet lends valuable advice on preventive maintenance for trucks, a system originated by GMC Truck in 1928, adapted by the armed services during World War II, and since promoted widely on the theory that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," Johnson said.

GMC's "Tips To Truckers" makes homespun parallels in urging proper care of equipment, such as asking, "What does 'clutch pedal free travel' mean? Did you ever tie the dog up in the back yard thinking he was safely tied, only to find that the free travel allowed by the rope was great enough to let him get into and dig up the garden?"

The amount of free travel permitted in the clutch assembly may have similar consequences. Insufficient free travel will burn up a clutch, while too much free travel will not permit a complete disengagement and results in clashing gears. For these reasons a periodic check of the clutch will save costly replacements.

Many other tips are listed to convince truckers that periodic inspections and maintenance of their equipment means many dollars saved.

Prefer Long Hours, And Saturdays Off

Saturdays apparently have become more sacrosanct than the 8-hour day among production workers, at least in machine-tool shops.

Monarch Machine Tool Co. at Sidney, O., striving along with other firms in the industry to speed up production to meet a rising tide of orders, tried operating its plant six days a week. But workers opposed it, preferring to keep their usual two-day week-end inviolate. So the company, in deference to employee's wishes, lengthened its work day from the usual eight hours to 9 1/2 hours for five days a week.—The Wall Street Journal

Receipts From Cancer Drives Have Many Uses

Money—Gifts Not Whole Story, As Vast Amount Of Time And Ability Are Also Given

It is quite natural that people who give to such organizations as the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation sometimes ask how the money is used.

Something over $20,000 was given by the people of Berrien county to this foundation in the financial canvass conducted last spring, in which the Buchanan community took the lead in contributions per capita. The total fund raised was sent to the Michigan headquarters at Grand Rapids, and 50% was then returned to the counties of origin, including Berrien county.

When the money was returned it was placed in the treasury of the Berrien county chapter, to be disbursed during the year. The main expenditures come under three heads: (1) Salary and expense to maintain the office services of the Berrien county cancer nurse, (2) Cost of materials used in dressings and provision and maintenance of loan closets, to be loaned to families who are caring for a cancer patient in their homes, (3) Conduct of educational programs, including doctor's clinics, where cancer specialists speak before the members of the Berrien County Medical Association.

In addition to the expenditure of the money raised in canvasses, it must be remembered that a great amount of unpaid time is donated, particularly by women's volunteer organizations throughout the county, who meet to make cancer dressings from the materials provided by the county fund. Many people have also donated free transportation for cancer patients who remain in the homes but must make regular visits to hospitals for treatment. There is also the great amount of time contributed without charge by those who head the community fund drives, and by the workers under them.

The doctors of the county, of course, give their time in attending the clinics, and in some cases noted specialists donate their time in coming some distance to address the clinics, receiving only expense money for the trips.

It has been possible for the county association to buy expensive special equipment for the treatment of cancer in hospitals. When any excess remains above the routine demands it is permitted to accumulate for a special fund from which aid may be given to cancer patients who must have expensive treatment which the families are not in a position to pay for.

In view of all these channels of expenditure it becomes apparent that, whatever the total received in the cancer drives, the money can be used in the endless battle against the plague of cancer.

Rev. W. Martin Writes Of Civil War In Thailand

Bhuchanants At Advent Mission In Asia Tell Of Experiences

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ross, 204 S. Oak street, have received a letter from their daughter and husband, Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Martin, who are connected with a Seventh Day Advent mission and hospital at Bangkok, Thailand, telling of the recent civil disturbances, including the revolt of the navy during the week-end before July 4th.

Wayne Martin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin living on Red Bud Trail north of Buchanan. Mrs. Wayne Martin is the former Ettole Ross of Buchanan.

The letter tells of their experience in attempting to cross the city from their home to the Adventist hospital just before fighting began, and during the duration of the revolt. We repeat it in part.

Civil War at Bangkok Friday, June 28—I returned home from the office about 4:30 p.m. the afternoon and everything was quiet and peaceful. The water pressure was very low so that it was impossible to take a shower upstairs. About the same time the electricity went off. We prepared to eat supper and go over to the hospital where I was to speak to the nurses. We noticed that the evening paper did not come and we attributed this to the fact that the electricity had been off and maybe it was impossible to print the scheduled edition. At 6:30 we lighted the lanterns and took one with us in the car, expecting to leave it at the Chinese church so that Pastor Kang would have some light for his meetings.

As we approached the first tail-coat intersection and my foot from our house, and on the same road that we live on, we noticed that there was a long line of cars waiting to cross the tracks—and that none of them were moving in either direction. Ettole and Judy were along and made various remarks. As we stopped a Siamese driver in another car beside us said in his broken English, "Cannot go—bang—bang." We passed some other cars and came face to face with the soldiers guarding the crossing. They recognized our white faces and immediately gave us permission to go on. But the traffic was jammed, and cars coming toward us were not allowed to pass the barrier until they got out of their cars and walked up to the place where the soldiers had more authority, and gave them permission to pass.

We proceeded without interruption until we came to the last intersection before we reached the hospital. Again we came to a barricade and there was no way of talking our way past it. In fact we weren't sure that we wanted to pass. They were not even allowing people to walk down this street because it was within areas that were close to the soldiers barracks, parliament building, etc. A car from the American Embassy had preceded us to this point and wanted to go out to the airport at Don Mueang located about 18 miles outside of town. This man could not speak Siamese, I talked to the soldier for him, and he received directions how to go around the blockade. As we were ready to turn around and leave, another car drove up, and this one was from the Norwegian Embassy. The man was trying to take two of his women workers to their homes. I also gave him the directions but don't know if he was able to reach the place or not, because it was right beside one of the large army installations and was sure to be well guarded.

As we turned around to go back home, we had gone hardly a fourth of a mile before we were stopped by soldiers. One of the older ones, a man perhaps 40 years old, told us that we couldn't go any further, because the road was blockaded at the next intersection. I explained that they had just allowed us to come through and I was sure they would allow us to return. After looking at my name card, we were told to go on. By this time it was completely dark and had begun a light rain. We had no difficulty at the same intersection, which was being guarded by, among other things, a large armored gun carrier. It was the size of a large tank, but had tires instead of tracks.

It took nearly an hour to drive the last mile and a half. Traffic moved very slowly and we were checked about five times in the space of half a mile. The usual procedure was for us to turn on the dome light beside the car. Then they would look at our faces, look at the back seat and tell us to go on.

It was eight o'clock by the time we arrived home and the electricity had come on again, but it was so dim that the servant did not realize that there were lights again. Less than half an hour later the shooting began, and we were glad that we were home.

The papers reported that hundreds of people were stranded and had to find places to stay wherever they could, because the roads were completely blocked and they couldn't get home. While we were telling the servant what had happened, she could hear the neighbor's radio, and just then they made an announcement that the premier had been captured and another man set up in his place.

The shooting and shelling continued throughout the night. We didn't sleep real soundly, not because of the shooting, but because we ate too much sticky rice and durian before we went to bed. In the morning we exchanged notes with the neighbors across the canal from us. The man there is a U. S. army officer and is a security control officer for the American Embassy. I am not sure just what his duties are, but he had been down to see an American general and had more information about what was happening. That together with what we heard on the radio gave us a little picture of what was happening.

It seems that quite a large portion of the navy turned traitor to the premier, Luang Phibun. On Friday afternoon there had been a special ceremony in which the American Charge d'Affaires had just made a speech giving over to the country of Thailand a large dredge boat as a gift from America. A large group of officials were gathered together and were on deck this dredge at the time. When the ceremony was finished a couple of navy men walked up and placed the premier under arrest. At the same time navy men took their places and asked the crowd to disperse. The dredge was at the royal landing on the river opposite one of the palaces here in Bangkok. The premier was taken by launch to the flagship of the fleet of Thailand, which is a gunboat and was anchored nearby.

The army was quickly mobilized and when the navy refused to clear the way for the premier, fighting began. It centered around three main points. One is around this battleship Ayuthia, where the premier is held captive. Another is the navy headquarters located on the river in the town of Thonburi which is opposite Bangkok but on the other side of the river. The other place is the navy radio station which is about a mile and a half from our home.

Saturday, June 30—About breakfast time this morning we saw people going past our house, heading away from town. One couple had two small suitcases, a roll of bedding and a few other articles, and were followed by their two small children. A cooler went past with a large basket on either side of the bamboo pole. These baskets, ordinarily used to carry fruit, were filled with clothing, bedding, etc. Many others went past, some carrying a little roll of clothing on their heads. Some of them will have no place to go when they get out of town but they have probably had to leave their homes because it is no longer safe to stay. Many others would like to get out but every means of departure has been blocked.

Things are practically normal again now, and the people who were confined to their houses for a day and two nights, now through the streets in unusually large numbers. The shops are all open and well filled with customers. The price of foodstuffs which skyrocketed during the time of the fighting, have now returned to normal. There is left only the work of repairing the damage done to property, the paying of huge bills that the fighting has caused, the healing of the wounds of those who were injured, and the problem of trying to forget the loss of loved ones who died.

Eye Strain The human eye, for all its complexity and sensitivity, is an organ of almost incredible stamina. For instance, during a day of reading the eye muscles move the eyes about 100,000 times. Try moving, say, your thumb that many times, and you'll realize the job that your eyes have.

Reader Asks For Plant Sources Of Multiflora Rose

U. S. Soils Offices, M. S. C. and Mich. Conservation Dept. Sell Plants

The Record received a letter from a Berrien Springs resident this week asking where multiflora rose plants might be secured. The interest of the correspondent had been stirred by a picture in last week's issue of a multiflora rose fence on a Michigan farm.

Most of the multiflora rose plantings in this section have been made through the U. S. Soil Conservation offices. In this section the service is represented by Leo Jones, Soil Conservationist, 122 Days Avenue, Buchanan, and James McKittick, 101 Michigan Street, Room 249, Benton Harbor, Mich. Mr. Jones represents the Galien River Soil Conservation District and Mr. McKittick the St. Joseph Valley Soil Conservation District. Interested farmers may write to the office which happens to be in their district.

The United States Soil Service maintains nurseries at Zanesville, Ohio, and Winoona, Minn., from which they distribute the multiflora rose plants at very reasonable prices through their district representatives.

Also the Michigan State Conservation Department and Michigan State College, East Lansing, both promise to have available next spring multiflora rose plantings for distribution at cost. A private nursery handling them is the Ellsberry Nursery at Ellsberry, Mo. A successful planting may be seen on the Clarence Wirth farm between Galien and New Troy.

Roses make very efficient stock fences and are also valuable for wild game cover.

The Hour-Glass

The hour-glass, whose sands have told time for centuries, has come in for a change. It's the same hour-glass, same sand running from one compartment to the other and measuring the minutes, but German craftsmen have added something new. You can measure three, four or five minutes with this gadget, depending on the angle at which it's set. But what makes this timer unique is that when the lower compartment is full of sand, it swings against a trigger than in turn rings a small bell in the base.

It takes about three weeks to dry grapes into raisins, according to the weather.

Berrien Youth Fair Is Slated Aug. 15 To 19

Dates Are Advanced To Avoid Conflict With Opening Of School

There will be no price boosts at the Berrien County Youth Fair this year, according to announcement by John Pfeil, fair association president.

While many fairs in Michigan are increasing their charges this season, all fees at the Youth Fair will remain the same as last year, Pfeil stated.

The fair this year will be held Aug 15 to 19, a full month earlier than in previous years. Dates of the fair were advanced, Pfeil said, because of some conflict with school openings in past years.

This year's exhibition will be the sixth annual fair and will be staged on the fair grounds north of Berrien Springs on US-31.

Each year the fair has made marked gains in attendance, exhibits and exhibitors, and Pfeil said the 1951 fair should not be an exception. He predicted an increase of as much as 20% in the number of young exhibitors who will display their work this year.

Because of the earlier dates, he said, participation by young people from the towns of the county is expected to show the largest gain. More than 800 Scouts are expected to take part in a model encampment on the grounds.

Top entertainment features scheduled are professional vaudeville shows the first four evenings and two horse shows on the last

Johne's Disease Affecting Cows In Forty-One States

A baffling disease of cattle which often creeps into a herd without noticeable symptoms is now causing losses to farmers in 41 states, the American Foundation for Animal Health reported here today.

The Foundation's report said the condition, known as Johne's disease, is regarded as one of the most difficult of all infections to eradicate from cattle herds. Slow to develop, it is very hard to detect in its early stages.

"The disease is caused by a tiny germ which attacks the intestinal tract. Affected animals develop scours and gradually lose weight for several months. The coat may become rough. Milk production slows up and eventually may stop. The infected animal may continue to lose weight until it becomes so thin and weak it dies," the bulletin said.

Symptoms are most likely to show up in animals from two to six years old. Such animals may have harbored the germ since calfhood and thus long incubation period makes the disease difficult to stamp out once it shows up in a herd.

"Control depends on an accurate diagnosis, as there is danger of confusing the disease with tuberculosis," say Foundation authorities. "Clinical tests enable the veterinarian to spot the factors which should then be removed from the herd and sold for slaughter. The premises should also be disinfected and young calves kept away from contaminated quarters if this dangerous infection is to be prevented from spreading."

Steel mills and foundries need scrap metal badly, especially heavy cast iron such as old tractors, mowers, etc. It will pay you to do one of three things, now, with every old farm machine. 1. Fix it up and use it. 2. Sell it to a neighbor who needs it worse than you do. 3. Sell it to a commercial scrap dealer who will break it up and classify the metal for shipment to a waiting mill or foundry.

Scrap collection has become a man-size job... with mill requirements totaling 75,000 tons each day to give the nation finished steel we all need. It can't be done without farm scrap.

HERE pictured is an automobile that may well be the fulfillment of any man's dream of a fine motorcar.
For you've a right to expect, when you pay a fine-car price, that your money will buy more distinction, more comfort, more performance than are to be found in vehicles of lesser worth.

No other car has a ride more serenely smooth on curve or straightaway, highway or byway.
And no other car, at ROADMASTER's price or above, has Dynaflow, and the supreme command of every traffic condition which it provides.

panionship of a brawny traveler instantly responsive to your every wish.
And there's one thing more, which only ROADMASTER can give you in such generous measure. That is the pride of a wise investment, based on the fact that this car stands alone in price per pound, among fine cars similarly equipped.
