

Louis Poplar Is Recovering From Severe Gas Burns

Service Station Owner Badly Burned Servicing Car At Station

Louis Poplar, proprietor of the Phillips 66 Service Station on North Portage, is reported to be making very satisfactory recovery at Parkview hospital from severe burns incurred while servicing a car on July 3.

Poplar was holding the hose while running gasoline into a car tank when the gasoline burst into flame at the pipe nozzle. The cause of the accident is not known. Station attendants Don Gray and Lloyd Mikesell heard him shouting and looking out they saw him rolling on the grass plot near the pumps with his clothing on fire. They rushed to help him, and with the aid of Clark Equipment company employees who were going home at the end of the 8-4 shift they extinguished the fire in his clothing and at the end of the car. The gasoline was burning at the end of the hose and down in the car tank.

Poplar incurred second and third degree burns over his entire abdomen, up to his chest and on the upper part of his legs. He was not burned about the chest or head. The area of the burns covered slightly more than a third of his body, which area is considered critical. "Second degree burns" are those blistering the skin, and "third degree burns" are those that burn deeper than the skin into the tissues. "First degree burns" are those which only redden the skin.

His very unusual comeback from burns of that nature is the best of news to his many friends here.

Pfc. Albert Hurley Gets Commendation In Mindanao Fight

With The 24th Infantry (Victory) Division On Mindanao, July 12—The patrol of Private First Class Albert W. Hurley, son of Albert Hurley, Sr., of Route 1, Buchanan, captured a Jap naval warehouse and killed its guards in a one-minute skirmish.

The Division's famous 21st Infantry Regiment had broken the five final defense line in twenty-five days of bloody battle to secure the only Japanese escape route north of Davao.

Hurley's patrol drove deep into the thick jungle to contact the Japs. As the men cut their way through almost impassable hemp groves, they suddenly came upon a large tin-covered building. Unsuspecting Nips stood guard at the entrance, rifles ready for action.

Hurley wormed his way closer. A quick survey showed that there were three guards. One Jap turned, the patrol fired in unison. The Nips staggered and fell. The patrol waited for more.

"I expected Japs to flow out of that building after those shots rang out," said Hurley. "We covered one of our men as he approached the shed and peered into the entrance. He waved us forward. The Nips had everything from saki to machine guns stored there. A souvenir hunters paradise."

How Knight Started Another "Race Against Death" With Cargo Serum

Race To Save Botulism Victims Ends When Plane Engine Dies

Without doubt it's this battered hulk of what was once a typewriter is being again pounded into submission, macy planes are in flight in many parts of the world bearing the wounded from the front to emergency hospitals, or from emergency to base hospitals, or carrying cargoes of plasma, or penicillin or some other "miracle drug" to save the lives of wounded men.

Wherever it's happening it's great stuff, and it has been one of the wonders of World War II—but as a happening it's much too common to be front page. Which is a pride to saying that one of the first life-saving flights with drugs on record was made by Jack Knight on Jan. 17, 1920, over a year before his night mail flight. Then nearly any kind of airplane news was front page, but an airplane flying against time and death to save lives was banner headlines. So on that day the Chicago Daily News carried a big black steamer "A. R. MAIL."

And as usual in those days when there was hard flying to be done, Knight was the pilot. A family of six in New York City had contracted the fatal poison, botulism, from eating tainted olives. The parents and two sons had already died, the two daughters and a youth visiting the family were hovering between life and death.

Meanwhile a Professor Robert Graham of the chemical department of the University of Illinois at Urbana, Ill., had perfected a new antitoxin serum which had been used successfully in a case of poison from botulism contracted by a Detroit family from eating tainted olives. Dr. John Riegmann, medical examiner of the Bronx, wired to Urbana, telling the University authorities that a package of Graham's antitoxin must be in New York City within 24 hours as the last hope for the three young people. There were no trains then making any schedule from Urbana to New York City in that time. It was suggested that it be sent by airplane.

The United Air Lines had to make arrangements in a hurry. They had to have the best pilot available. That was Knight. The Chicago Daily News carried the tale of Knight in his flying logs and with a package of the precious antitoxin serum in his hand, ready to start. The caption was "Start of Mail Flyer's Sensational Race With Death."

The planes which the company was then using for the mail flights were almost as dangerous as a dose of botulism. They were some of the "flaming coffins" of World War I, altered for commercial use.

Many a pilot had been burned in the wreckage of these Martin bombers. Apparently they had one reserve plane at Chicago, and it was not in running order.

The package of serum was carried from Urbana to Chicago by Illinois Central train and rushed by messenger north on Michigan boulevard from the Illinois Central station on 10th and Michigan to the hangar then on the Grant Park lake front opposite Monroe street. Said the Chicago Daily News:

"From the start it looked as though fate were against the venture. The $40,000 brand-new Martin bomber, a bi-plane with two 400-horsepower Liberty motors capable of developing 120 miles an hour, began to act up. It was apparent that water which had leaked into the jet, had at least temporarily put the left motor out of commission.

"From three o'clock on the pilots and the army of mechanics were after the unruly engine hammer and tongs. At 7:30 when the serum which is expected to save the lives in Fordham hospital, New York, arrived, the engine was still balking. More mechanics were rushed to the rescue.

"From the Illinois Central station the package had been rushed to the Monroe street hangar by Herald and Examiner representatives, in an automobile escorted by motorcycle policemen clearing the boulevard. At the hangar the package was delivered to the mail authorities."

"We cannot get away yet but we expect to have the engine in shape within an hour or so," announced Leon S. Allen of the Chicago branch of the air mail service. And Pilot Knight, realizing that even if the plane were started it would probably go haywire again en route, was quoted as follows:

"In order that no time be lost I have asked Cleveland to be all ready to give me whatever supplies are needed and whatever mechanical services may be. I also explained that this is a wonderful opportunity to demonstrate the usefulness of air mail service. I expect to be in New York City before dark, but if necessary we could do some night flying if they would set some fares for us.

"I am not afraid to do night flying. When I was instructor with the 122nd Aero Squadron at Ellington Field, Texas, we got plenty of practice."

At 11 a. m. Knight thought that he was ready, but an oil leakage showed up. The mechanics worked on until 1 p. m., when he finally took off. To save time he flew straight across Lake Michigan to Gary, which was then considered dangerous practice. It was dangerous, for hardly was he across the 40-mile stretch when engine trouble developed again. He had to land in a field five miles southwest of Gary.

He wired to the Herald Examiner: "For God's sake, send me another plane so I can go on to New York." Another aviator who had just arrived from Cleveland with the mail volunteered to fly back to Gary and turn his plane over to Knight. But the superintendent explained to him that the "check-erboard" field at Maywood had just been put into commission as the Chicago landing field for the air mail and that all of the supplies had not arrived. It would take at least an hour, he said, to supply the plane with gas and water for the return trip and it would then be so near dark he would not permit Pilot Knight to endanger his life by starting in the dark. So the attempt was called off.

"The three poison victims lived, or died was not reported in these clippings. The public lost interest when the engine died."

Memorial Service Is Held At Niles For Richard Shipperly

A memorial service was held in the Niles Methodist Church for S/Sgt. Richard Shipperly at 2:30 p. m. Sunday afternoon with Rev. L. George Beacock officiating.

Charles Hess Writes On G.I. Job In Germany

Tells Of Reactions Of German Public Toward Their Conquerors

Cpl. Charles E. Hess, who served in a field artillery unit during the European campaign, writes the following letter of his impressions of the German people.

May 16, 1945

Dear Mr. Hawes: The war is over in Europe, no doubt many people at home are wondering how soon their sons and friends are going to return to the States. We soldiers are wondering too, and of course the sooner the better. However, there are some that will have to stay here until it is certain Germany won't renew her acts of aggression and also many of us will have to help smash the Japs and end this war with them.

While it is being decided what will be done with us we are taking advantage of the time by learning trades made available through the Army's educational program for soldiers that want to broaden their career after the war. I thing this is a very worthwhile step to help veterans get a start. I am participating in this program and hope some good may come from it.

Besides this, a recreational and athletic program is set up to help ease our minds from the thoughts of war and to get away from daily army routines that usually prevail in camps in the States. It may be movies, USO troupe shows, sight-seeing tours or anything of the sort. I've just recently been on a tour through western Germany looking at damages done by our bombs and I can truly say if all of Germany is wrecked like the ones I saw, she has rebounding to do for the next 50 years.

I was in Essen, which housed several large steel works before the war, but now the entire city is a mass of ruins. I didn't see a single house that was in one piece. I have wondered what the city people live in because I didn't see any of them living in houses. Of course I don't feel sorry for them as I did the English or French. They just have a taste of their own medicine.

It is rather amusing to watch the Germans as they ride through the streets. One can almost read what's on their minds as you see their faces. Some of them show defeat and willingness to do whatever you want them to do. Others stare at you and wonder if we really know what we're fighting for. They have to be told more than once what we desire of them, and look at you with an expression that seems to say, "Well, now that you're here, what do you think is the best for us to do?" There are still a few young people that show cockiness in their expressions and of course are hard to make understand, and the last type are just ordinary. They act like nothing happened and go on about their business. Not very many Germans stayed at Americans' homes through their towns and you can understand why. It's a large contrast from the welcome we received in France and Belgium. The reason is that we don't desire to be waved at and the Germans know that we come as conquerors and not as liberators of their land.

As to their dress, they have quite good clothes and it is certain that they are wearing their best now. A lot of women wear silk stockings from what I witnessed on the tour.

The countryside are very pretty in the Rhineland. The roads are lined with tall, straight trees and the meadows are greener than any I've seen in Europe. The soil is rich and will produce good crops. The people that live in the country are a little more fortunate than those that live in cities because they have their houses and their crops. Labor is just as scarce as anywhere else. I saw two young boys of perhaps thirteen or fourteen plowing with a team of horses.

I crossed the Rhine on the army engineer's pontoon bridges. All the German bridges have either been blown up by themselves or have been destroyed by our bombs.

It is certain now that we have accomplished the task of defeating the Nazi army. The next big job will be to teach Germany our ideals and to educate her not to start another European war. We won't go home until the job is finished.

Sincerely,
Charles

Pfc. John Heerschof Severely Wounded In Okinawa Combat

Mrs. Stella Mosier Heerschof received a letter Saturday from her husband, Pfc. John Heerschof, who was severely wounded in action when a mortar shell exploded near him on Okinawa.

He wrote that he had been taken from Okinawa to a hospital in the Marianas Islands and then flown from there to a base hospital at Honolulu. He is there confined to a bed with his legs suspended in the air. His wounds included a compound fracture of the left leg, and shrapnel wounds in the right leg, back, shoulders and head. His wounds were such that he is not expected to return to combat duty.

Cpl. R. McConaghy Is Commended For Conduct In Battle

With The 81st Infantry Division Somewhere In The Pacific—Cpl. Robert E. McConaghy, Buchanan, has been commended by Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mueller, commanding general, 81st Infantry "Wildcat" Division, for "courageous performance of duty" during military operations against the Japs on Angaur and Pelelu Islands.

"In your capacity as a company aid man, you participated with your company in all of its actions on Angaur and Pelelu Islands. Repeatedly, during daylight and darkness, and with disregard for your personal safety, you moved under enemy mortar fire to render first aid to the wounded and to move them to positions of safety. Your fearlessness under fire and your technical skill in rendering first aid treatment added greatly in saving lives of men of your company."

Corporal McConaghy is a member of the 81st Infantry Division, which last fall wrested the Palau and other Western Caroline Islands from the Japs.

The soldier's father, William McConaghy, resides on Route 1, Buchanan.

Makes Friends With Freak Black Raccoon

Wally Dunbar, who lives in the Buchanan district, has become quite friendly in the last few weeks with a black raccoon, very rare in wild life. The raccoon, first seen last March, comes into the Dunbar yard nearly every day about dusk.

This raccoon, unlike those usually seen, is black instead of gray and most of the rings on the bushy tail have been obliterated—and its face looks like a white mask. It is very large and husky and Mr. Dunbar, who is a student of nature, thinks that the raccoon has at some time escaped from a breeder's pen. It is unusual for these mammals to be friendly to people, but this one shows no fear of humans at all. It is afraid of dogs though and when it comes into the yard Mr. Dunbar has to shut his dog up.

Pro Vote On July 23 Will Not Add Taxes

Advocates Question Possible Reduction In Wages After War

Buchanan school district taxpayers will not be stuck with more taxes if they pass the two proposals for the issue of $45,000 in bonds and the change in the status of the fund in process of creation by the special five mill tax voted last fall, and they might save some money, according to members of the local school board who stated that the publicity in the Record last week rather emphasized the objections and glossed over the merits of the proposals to be voted on July 23.

By their own action, endorsed by a five-to-one vote at the special election on October 13, 1944, the district imposed a special tax of five mills to continue five years for the purpose of creating a special building fund. The property owners are now paying this tax and will continue to pay for the remainder of the five year term. Passage of the two proposals which will be presented at the special polls on July 23 will not necessarily commit them to any more tax burden.

The issues will rather concern themselves with whether the voters would rather have their building now than later, and on whether such earlier construction would really entail any considerable risks in quality and choice of materials and in cost of both materials and work. Those of the board who wish to make sure that the merits of the proposals receive due consideration ask whether anyone can be sure that a cost of materials will be any lower within any reasonable time following the end of the war. They state that the presumption actually is that the rate of wages is not likely to be lowered and there is consequently no reason for delay on that score.

The Buchanan school board has had under consideration for the past year the apparent necessity for addition to the present school plant by some means.

The evidence they point out that the average membership in Buchanan schools has increased from 645 in 1922 (the date of the erection of the present high school building) to 1120 in 1945. They state that an examination of school records will show conclusively that this growth has not been especially connected with temporary overcrowding due to influx of war workers, but has been gradual throughout the 23 years with the largest percentage of growth in two peace-time periods, from 1924 to 1928 and from 1934 to 1936—the actual increase from 1940 to 1945, including both the lend-lease and the actual war-work periods was from 1043.7 to 1220, one of the relatively slower periods of growth. They further state that the 78-year-old Dewey avenue building is obsolete in construction and arrangement and must eventually be replaced.

Bulletin! Chief Mitchell Recatches Fish That Got Away

Something happened to Chief Mitchell while fishing last Sunday that never happened to him before, which is saying something when you remember that he lost a $75 pair of false teeth in Lake Michigan when he was fishing in a whopper some years back.

Mitchell was fishing in Clear Lake and hadn't had a bite for hours. Suddenly the sinker (or was it the sinker?) on one line gave a jump and sank. And a split second later a bite registered on the other line.

Always equal to the emergency, Mitch grabbed a pole in each hand and swung his fishy prizes out of the water. Two beautiful bass soared upward, but directly above him, dropping into the boat. They weighed exactly three and one-half pounds each—totaling seven pounds of fish. After that he caught three more ranging from one to two pounds each.

By a rare coincidence Mitchell had been fishing in the same spot the previous Sunday and had caught five beauties. Another fisherman rowed up near and yelled "How ya doing, Ed?"

"Fine," answered Ed, and held up the gunny sack holding his five prizes. As he swung it up, the rotten bottom of the sack went out and the fish escaped in the lake. As near as he could tell, Ed said, the fish he caught last Sunday were the same ones he lost the Sunday before.

Carl Koenigschoff Makes Picker-Upper To Load Baled Hay

The saying that "laziness is the mother of invention" may not apply to the case of Carl Koenigschoff, who has in operation a home-made "picker-upper" for loading baled hay on a trailer, but at least the device to save energy that followed an operation had something to do with it.

From parts salvaged from an old side delivery rake and manure spreader Koenigschoff made a device which hoists baled hay from the ground in the field into a chute which channels it into a trailer by motor power. The trailer and picker-upper are drawn through the field behind a tractor. He received the inspiration from a bulletin published by the University of Wisconsin. The device saves the labor of two men during its rapid operation.

Thieves Take 300 Chickens At J. Abele Farm

Police Report Use Of Gas In Chicken Thefts

The most spectacular of the series of poultry thefts, which have been rampant here and elsewhere later was reported Wednesday morning from the John Abele home near Wagner Lake, where three hundred chickens were stolen there previous evening.

The haul consisted of 100 Barred Rocks, 100 White Rocks, and 100 Rhode Island Reds. The theft was reported to the Buchanan police, who called in the county sheriff's office and the state police.

Police state that a gas has been used in some cases reported to kill the chickens without causing any uproar. The poultry house is shut tight and the gas injected through a small opening which kills the birds without a squawk. They are then dressed immediately and the meat is not injured. This sort of theft is practiced by large operators and not by petty larceny thieves trying to save ration points.

169 Children Aided By Court During June

The monthly report of Judge Malcolm Hatfield reveals that during June, 169 children's cases were considered by the court. Five crippled and 14 afflicted youngsters were conveyed to Ann Arbor and Grand Rapids for treatment. Three adoptive declarations were filed, while six boarding home and adoptive home investigations were made.

Throughout June, the state requested the court to investigate the home of six youngsters who have been placed on parole from various institutions.

The officers of the court also called upon fifty-two probationers, investigated 26 parents who were neglecting their children, returned three run-aways to other states, took signed petitions against 31 delinquents. Investigated 14 complaints without having delinquency petitions signed and heard six youthful traffic violation cases. Of the delinquent complaints received against juveniles during June, seven were girls and 45 were boys. Twelve parents, 27 crippled children were conveyed to state hospitals at Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, and Kalamazoo for treatment.

In the Probate division of the Court Miss Heinzlman and her deputy Miss Heintzelman closed 40 deceased and 13 guardianship estates throughout June. Unfortunately they were required to open 37 new deceased estates and 7 guardianship estates. Mrs. Lena Jung and Miss Rose Piraino throughout the month committed 7 insane, three feeble-minded and epileptic patients to state hospitals. Miss Loraine Juffermans assisted in computing new inheritance taxes in the amount of $15,344.20. Inheritance taxes paid in by Berrien county estates amounted to $14,775.32. Miss Frances Becker, who graduated from the Benton Harbor high school in June is serving as a receptionist and typist in the court during the time Judge Hatfield is confined to the St. Joseph sanitarium, where he recently underwent a serious operation for an abscessed section of his lower colon. Judge Hatfield will not be able to leave his bed for another four weeks as his recovery depends upon the healing over of the infected intestine.

Best Grain Crop In Years Reported Here

Heavy Raspberry Harvest Is Now At Peak; But Dry Weather Threatens

Grain harvest started in the Buchanan district during the past week, with indications that the small grain yields may be above average and the crop one of the best in recent years.

The harvest has been mainly confined to barley so far. However wheat cutting is due to begin in the next week in the more advanced fields. While there has been some rust reported, it is not believed that general yields will be much affected, according to Robert Koenigschoff, manager of the Buchanan Co-ops, Inc. The local price for new wheat is being started at $1.52 per bushel. The prospects for oat yields are particularly good.

The rains which have been more than plentiful during the May and June have slackened off. During the first ten days of July only 22 inches of rainfall were recorded. The normal for the month is 2.50 inches. Fairly high and steady winds several days hastened the drying process. However farmers report that there is still much moisture in the subsoil. Early potatoes already need rain, and their yield will be diminished to an extent unless rain comes soon. The raspberry yield, which is still heavy, will be cut unless there is rain soon.

The first grain threshing reported here was by Ollie York, who has been threshing his own barley crop with his own threshing outfit. A number of combines were seen in barley fields on Portage Prairie Tuesday.

Pfc. Robert and Margaret Banke are the parents of a baby girl which arrived July 2.

That "Glorious Fourth" passed by last week well, well, well, and not even a firecracker was heard here. As for the writer's opinion, let's go back to those days of a lot of noise and a few accidents as a reminder of that day. Rumors have been in the air recently and they seem to be true, that the Methodist church here may be locked up in the near future unless the attendance becomes more encouraging. The District Superintendent was here recently to look over the situation. Another attempt may be made to keep the church open. All in all, it's surely bad news for Dayton. The postmaster reports that 60% of the car stamps that he sold last year have been sold so far this year. Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Otwell have arrived home after a two week's stay in Chicago.

Cauliflower baked in a casserole, with a cream sauce on top, sprinkled with bread crumbs, gives a new appearance and appeal to the leftover vegetable.

Women's Suffrage
When the question of the franchise for women came up at the Constitutional convention in 1787, it was referred to the individual colonies. Thomas Jefferson opposed it. Charles Brockden Brown and Thomas Paine agitated for women's rights. The organized feminist movement, an outgrowth of women's activity in antislavery agitation, may be dated from the Women's Rights convention at Seneca Falls, N. Y., in 1848.

Address Your Mail Correctly - The Navy Will Make Delivery

Washington, D. C.—The Navy is vitally interested in seeing that mail is delivered to all the boys in the service. That which is properly and legibly addressed is quickly dispatched to its destination.

Mail addressed to amphibious craft seems to give the most trouble. But if the sender addresses it properly, the Navy will get it through in the first place, there are at least ten different types of craft—LSD (Landing Ship, Dock), LST (Landing Ship, Vehicle), LCI (Landing Craft, Infantry), LSM (Landing Ship, Medium), LCT (Landing Craft, Tank), LCS (Landing Craft, Support), and LCI (L) (Landing Craft, Infantry)—for more personnel.

Each type may have hundreds of different units numbering from 1 to 600. LCI No. 442 may be operating in the Pacific, whereas LCT No. 442 may be in the Mediterranean. The letters "T" and "I" are often interchanged or are written so similarly that they are unreadable. If the "T" was mistaken for a "T", the letters would go far out of the way and the delay would easily be several weeks.

Some are still under the impression that the Navy has one vessel called LST and they address their mail to the USS LST, Fleet Post Office, San Francisco. This is just like addressing mail to Main Street, U.S.A.

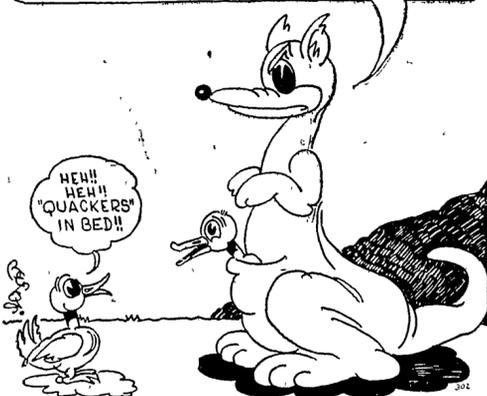

In addressing Navy and Coast Guard personnel aboard ships, print, don't write, his full name, rank or rate, print the name of his ship, i.e., LST (Landing Ship, Tank) No. 442 (four four two); write out both designation and number. The last part of the address is either Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, or New York City.

Undelivered letters due to incomplete, incorrect, or illegible addresses amount to more than 5,000 a day at the Fleet Post Office, San Francisco. While the letters are undelivered a lot of lonely men are waiting and wondering why their mail isn't coming through.

Unusual Salads For an unusual salad, combine orange sections, banana slices and prunes stuffed with cottage cheese.

No fruit grower or general farm operator in southwestern Michigan need go without hired help this summer with both migrant labor and farm youth volunteers applying for work, according to County Agent L. A. Zillman.

A year ago this time placements at the Farm Labor office across from the market entrance to the Benton Harbor mart amounted to more than 100 a day, and growers were short of fruit pickers and general workers. Today there is a waiting list of workers.

Freezes the spring took much of the indicated fruit harvest, and a large number of migrant workers from the south came to the local area to assist. Some have returned to their homes on not finding work.

But if growers need the services of migrants or Victory Farm Volunteers they may notify the Farm Labor office where Don Hamilton is manager, according to Mr. Zillman.

Youth, many of them experienced or partially trained farm hands are applying every day in Michigan for work as Victory Farm Volunteers. All of the workers being placed this year are at least 14 years of age and are anxious to take farm jobs. Many are husky 16 and 17 year olds.

Farmers all over the state find their youth workers satisfactory and in many cases commend them highly. The worth of FVVs was proved in St. Clair county where a farmer, physically unable to do his own work and unable to find a regular hired man, obtained the services of a 15-year old boy. When an older man was available, the farmer kept the youth on a preference because he "liked the boy and the boy was a good worker."

In Genesee county a farm-trained youth, upon his arrival at a farm on which he was placed was experienced enough to take the tractor out of the hands of the farmer's wife who was then free to go back to her own chores.

Southwestern Michigan sour cherry growers have reason to be alarmed by the amount of yellowing and defoliation found on many of their trees during the past week. A survey indicates hardly an orchard is free of it.

According to Ted Stebbins, Berrien county fruit specialist, this is caused by a virus disease known as cherry yellows. Some growers have known of its presence for many years, though only a few seasons ago it was found to be a virus instead of leaf spot, copper injury, or drought trouble.

Fallen leaves vary from all green to all yellow but the most characteristic symptom is partly yellow leaf with green veins and midrib. Badly affected trees have lost more than half their leaves in the past week. Affected trees do not recover, nor are they killed directly by the disease.

Repeated loss of leaves does cause a progressive reduction in yield due to failure of such trees to form fruit spurs. These bare spaces on the branches, without fruit spurs or leaves, give the trees a willow-like appearance, and the amount of small fruit is largely lost to on healthy trees.

Prof. E. J. Rasmussen, of Michigan State college, has been working on the disease for several seasons, says Stebbins, and to date annex where the true convention spirit ruled, and dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The conference leaders who assisted in the convention and the union officers for the Berrien-Cass Union were introduced to the assembled guests. Lester Kelly, president of the Union, presided at all the convention sessions and made the introductions.

The Rev. Chester Postma, who is pastor of the Reformed Church in Deatur, closed the convention with his message "Pressing Forward". He emphasized the importance of pressing forward after the enthusiasm and gave a very fitting close for the activities of the day.

The committee in charge of the convention program was Miss Minnie Bittner, chairman, the Rev. F. M. Barden, Lena Van Genderon, Clive Portuga, Lyndon Becker and Lester Kelly.

Losses Vitamins. If the morning sun hits the spot where the delivery man leaves your milk, find a new spot in the shade or provide an insulated receptacle, since a bottle of milk left in the sun just one hour loses up to 40 per cent of its vitamin B2 or riboflavin content.

Maybe You Can't Enlist . . .
BUT YOUR INSTRUMENT CAN

Every musical instrument is needed today to hasten victory—to comfort, encourage, to inspire—on the home front and on the fighting front.

If your instrument is in active use—okay! But if you have one—or know of one—that is merely collecting dust, why not let it help fight for victory?

Either DONATE it to our soldiers and sailors (We'll be glad to handle the entire matter for you)

Or SELL it to us for cash. We'll put it in playing condition and back into active service.

Our Representative Will Be in Your City to Buy Used Instruments on Wednesday, July 18

"WE'LL BE DOING A LOT MORE OF THIS AFTER THE WAR"

THERE has been some rural telephone construction during these war years, but nothing compared to what we had hoped for.

Long before the war, Michigan Bell began an extensive program of rural service expansion and improvement. Then, in 1940, we adopted a rural construction plan recommended by the Michigan Rural Communications Committee, a group of agricultural leaders. It included a liberal free line-construction allowance, and small monthly payments where construction costs were necessary.

Under the rural construction program, there was a sizable increase in the number of rural telephones.

Then came war, and telephone factories went to work for the armed forces. Nearly all new wire, cable, instruments and other equipment "have gone to war."

After final Victory, Michigan Bell expects to launch a 5-year $120,000,000 program of expansion and improvement, a goodly portion of which will be used to resume our rural work.

Today, 2 of every 3 of our rural telephones are dial operated. We intend to increase that number. Telephone service will be made available to more rural subscribers through the use of important new devices and methods. We want to reduce the number of families per rural line. We are studying special features to make telephone service more valuable.

Thus Michigan Bell will proceed with its plan to furnish the best possible service to the largest possible number of people at the lowest possible cost.

Electrically broiled steaks are "tops"

FOR centuries people have known that flame destroys the texture and flavor of meat. For generations great chefs have roasted and broiled with charcoal to secure searing heat without flame. Today's science produced the modern electric range that conveniently and automatically provides delicious "charcoal-broiled" meats with just the turn of a switch. Electricity supplies rigidly controlled even heat upon which you can always depend to give perfection in cooking.

Just now the rub is that steaks and electric ranges are hard to get. "If we had a steak we could broil it electrically—if we had a range." Never mind, it won't be long now until wartime restrictions are lifted and then you too can have "charcoal-broiled" meats in your home electrically.

Since 1930, the average cost of electricity to our household customers has been cut in half.

Certainly! ELECTRICITY IS CHEAP
But it must be conserved for War
