A BOY'S SONG.

Oh! the Future is my Kingdom!

Win it only in the fight,

And their final crown of glory
Is—the triumph of the right.

From my kingdom of the future

I will rest the glittering gain— I will win by toil and patience—

Win by strife in spite of pain.
It shall give me wealth and honor,
It shall give me joy and light,
And my final crown of glory
Shall be—triumph to the right.

What though I should fall in battle?
Still the good cause pover dies,
And a nobler future waits me;
High and glorious in the skies.

They've no room for loss or failure;
They've no rear of death and night,
Whose final crown of glory
Is—the triumph of the right.

throwing herself on her knees. "Wal, I will hear ye if you'll get up and stop cryin', but you must talk amazin' fast, and skip all hard words," returned Ephriam, somewhat sooth-

But you must listen attentivelyit may save bloodshed," urged Grace. Wal, wal, I will, if you'll only whittle it off in large shavings," replied Ephriam.

"Then," began Grace, "let me inform you that my cousin has gone to Memphis, leaving no one to guard their prisoner except my uncle and his deaf old servant, Jumbo, both of whom,—thinking me in bed, and their victim secure, are sound asleep, the former over his bottle in the diningroom, and the latter on a blanket in the passage near the locked door of the room in which Col. Harland is confined. Now Ephriam, if you will but effect his escape without harm to my uncle, I will reward you hand-

"I'll do it!" replied Ephriam, determinedly; "only don't mention nothin' about personal rewards-it would dim the luster of the one I hope to git in here," and he smote his broad breast with a force sufficient to make one of our modern dandies gasp for breath.

"Whatever you do, let it be done quickly," urged Grace.
"Which room is their prisoner in?" inquired Ephriam, apparently in a deep study.

Grace having informed him, he immediately provided himself with a carving knife and a screw driver, then throwing his gun over his shoulder, silently left the cabin, followed by Grace.

CHAPTER III. Go hence: good night: and here stands all your state; Either be gone before the watch he set, Or by the break of day disguis'd from hence: Sojourn in Mantus; I'll find out your men. And he shall signify from time to time Every good hope to you, that chances here: Give me thy hand; 'tis late; farewell; good night. Shakspeare.

THE RELEASE. Not a word was exchanged between Grace and Ephriam; but silently and steadily they wended their way through the rain and mud, to the residence of her uncle. Arriving at their destination, Grace bade Ephriam go round to the kitchen door, and remain there until she again summoned him. Entering the front door she proceeded cautiously to the room in which she had left her uncle asleep. To her unspeakable joy she found him still in that blissful state, entirely unconscious of what was passing around him. She then went into the diningroom, and carefully opening the door into the passage, found the negro, Jumbo, sleeping as sound as need be Returning to Ephriam, she said: "Now, Ephriam, if you will work fast and silently we can liberate our prisoner without danger, as uncle and Jumbo are both sound asleep."

"Sartinly! I'll have him out of that ere place quicker than you can say Jack Robinson. But I'd like tew tickle the cowardly sarpent's heart that locked him in here, with this ere penknife," he exclaimed, flourishing the huge carving knife he carried, over his head.

With the aid of the screw-driver Ephriam soon had the lock of the door off: Quietly opening it, Grace entered and awoke the sleeping Colonel, who, unconscious of all danger, was enjoying the sleep that exhausted nature demanded. We would here state that Colonel Harland, at the time of his rescue by Ephriam, was out on a reconnoitre, and the storm overtaking him, his frail bark was driven out of its original course, and, as the reader already knows, came near losing his life. The same of "Come," said Grace, to the astonished Colonel, "my uncle has sent to Memphis for guards to arrest you as their prisoner, and I have come to liberate you. "Indeed!" he exclaimed, now fully aroused; "I thought I was in the hands of friends, but it seems to be otherwise.

tures, which were still handsome, but care and exposure had left their imprints. "Taps" had been beat and all was silence, save the measured tread of the sentry in front of a large tent. Near by, from a small flag-staff stuck in the ground, floated a division flag, denoting it to be the headquarters of some division commander. In the figure referred to, the reader will at once recognize Colonel, now. Major General Harland. For meritorious conduct; and galantry displayed on the battlefield, he had risen step by step to the enviable position he now occupied. It had been now over two long years since he had parted from Grace Arlington, and during the interval he had not heard a word from her or her uncle, Major Arlington. He was soon aroused by an approaching foot-step, and the clank of a sword. Looking up, an orderly stepped forward, and respectfully touching his cap, placed a letter in his hand. Hastily glancing at the superscription, he tore open the envelope, and glancing at the signature discovered, to his unspeakable astonishment, as well as gratification, that it was from Grace, and ran as follows:

DEAR EDWARD:-This is the first opportunity I have had of communicating with you since we last met. My Uncle is not expected to live but a short time, and wishes to see you, if possible, before he dies, to ask your forgiveness for the unwarrantable insult he gave you when a guest at his house.

· I have heard through the papers of your promotion and bravery on the field of battle, and my heart and prayers were always with you. May God bless and protect you. Ever yours,

GRACE ARLINGTON. Edward Harland held the delicate missive in his fingers and gazed long and intently into the dying embers. His mind rapidly reviewed the scenes he had passed through, from Alpha to Omega; from the time he was first introduced to her at a party in Boston, to their betrothal at her Uncle's, and his subsequent rescue from her treacherous Uncle. During all the time that had elapsed since their last meeting, in camp and in field, her image had ever been engraved upon his heart; and the solemn vows that they had exchanged, inspired him to carve a name in history of his country that she would be proud to bear.

The next day he repaired to the head-quarters of the corps, and asked the General commanding for a leave of absence of two weeks, if conven-

It was readily granted, and when the General handed him the pass, he remarked: "General, it is quite time you had a little recreation; you look tired and care-worn. I hope your trip will do you good." With many thanks for his kind wishes, Edward Harland returned to his camp and made preparations for his immediate departure. Taking Grant's famous military railroad, he proceeded to City Point, and from thence by steamer to Washington. In four days from the time he started, he reached Memphis, where he found our old friend Ephraim, waiting for him at the depot with a carriage. To describe his welcome at the old mansion by Grace, would be 'impossible. Suffice it to say, those who have experienced the same "welcomes," can express their feelings far better thanwe. He received a cordial reception at the hands of the Major, who, indeed, was in a critical condition. Summoning him to his bed-side, and grasping both his hands, the dying man asked in a feeble voice:

"My dear sir, can you forgive an old man who is about to answer to the call of the Death Angel, the deep wrong I done you two years ago?" "As I hope to be forgiven, most willingly do I forgive you," answered General Harland, with deep emotion. "Then I die in peace," said the Major, and falling back upon his pillow, closed his eyes, and remained apparently lifeless for a few moments. Again arousing himself, he said he wished one more thing to be done, and that was the marriage of his niece to Edward Harland.

A servant was called and ordered to go for the minister that had been in daily attendance upon him. Joining their hands together, and in the presence of death, the young couple exchanged the solemn yows to love and cherish each other until death do them part; and as the words "I herby pronounce you, man and wife," fell from the minister's lips, the spirit of Major Arlington took its departure. neighbors assembled at his funeral, for he was widely known and highly respected, notwithstanding his eccentric notions, in regard to personal honor

Among his private papers a will was found giving one-third of his vast wealth to his beloved niece Grace Arlington, provided she "married Maj. Gen. Edward Harland, of the United States Army, and the remainder to

A Remarkable School-Mistress. Dr. N. T. True; School Superintendent of Oxford county, Maine, has made a special report concerning a school-mistress in that State, and her work. Her name is Vesta Howard, and she teaches in the town of Bethol. She is fifty-five years old, and has taught seventy terms of private and public school. Yet, says Dr.

True, she is far in advance of most young teachers, instead of being antiquated. The following are extracts from the account of the school: "She commenced her afternoon session by saying that she did not think it best to set the children immediately to work upon their studies, because they had been at their play and were not in the best condition for close application. She therefore took a second Progressive Reader, and read a story as badly as she could, and let them correct her faults. She then read it correctly, as one would talk, and all eyes were fixed upon her. She then called a register of scholars by numbers, who answered by their names and ages. Among them was a Winfield Scott, Gen. Fremont and other prominent names; and as they were announced she had a word to say about their history, without scarcely stor ping her register. She then made them all take their books out of their seats together, without noise. No slates were to hit the desks, or books to be shuffled. She selects a captain for each of the smaller classes, who steps out and calls the class out by numbers. Books are all held alike.

This makes them executive scholars. "In reading, small children repeat the same word till they can command it in the sentence, and then read it in concert. In spelling they all fold their arms, with the book under the left arm. Sometimes she spells the words and they pronounce them. This was a fine exercise. She made them pronounce correctly, cow, how, now, bow, row. They made a graceful bow in leaving for their seats. Each class has a definite time for studying their lesson, and the teacher calls their attention to it at the moment. "They came out to read with folded arms, read with strong emphasis, and naturally. She makes them look at her lips, and she pronounces words round and full. and makes them do the same after her. While hearing the class reading, if a class is studying geography, she will suddenly call their attention to some point in the lesson, and then go right on with the reading. She will call upon a scholar by sur-prise to rise and tell something about the lesson she is studying. This was done with great promptness. This kept them

"She questions them on what they have read. In spelling, they give familiar definitions in their own language, and are re quired to pronounce each letter fully and forcibly.

The Greatest Comb Mart in the World. It is reported that more combs are made at Milan, in Italy, than any other town. That city uses, in this important industry, four thousand horns per week, or two hundred and eight thousand per annum. These horns are mostly obtained in Italy, but a portion are obtained from South America: The remnant, tips, shavings, scrapings, etc., are used by the tanners, and in the manufacture of manure. The manure obtained from the horn waste is particularly adapted to the cultivation of olives, and oranges, and is consequently always in good demand. The manufac-ture of combs is also extensively carried on at Naples, Florence, Leghorn and Orezzo; at Naples they are made principally of the hoofs of bullocks and horses. The manufacture of combs from tortoise shells is also carried on to some extent. Ivory and bones are chieffy used at Florence, Leghorn and Orezzo, Horn is not the only material used at Milan, large quantities of bones being also consumed.

He Died as the Fool Dieth.

Joseph Wagner, a young man living at Charlestown, West Virginia, died a few lays ago, under singular circumstances. He professed to have the power of charming snakes, and having captured a rattlesnake, he was giving some friends an exhibition of his power. After fondling the snake for a time in his arms. he threw it on the ground and switched it until it writhed with rage. He then took the reptile up in ling arms again, and saying, are you mad? Kiss me and make up, he put its head in his mouth. The snake bit his tongue; and he died in about an hour afterwards. In fifteen minutes after being bitten; his skin assumed the spotted color of the snake.

· A Manly Temper.

Horace Bushnell, in one of his essays, gives the following forcible description of the man who has learned to comprehend and control his own weaknesses and variations of mind. And what true man has not done so? He says: "Now a wise man is one who understands himself well enough to make due allowances for such insane moods and vagaries, never concluding that a thing is thus and thus because just now it bears that look; waiting often to see what a sleep or walk, or a cool revision, or perhaps a considerable turn of repentance will do. He does not slash upon a man or a subject from the point of a just now rising temper. He maintains a noble candor, by waiting some times for a gentler spirit and a better sense of truth. He is never intolerant of other men's judgments, because he is a little distrustful of his own. He restrains the dislikes of prejudice, because he has a prejudice against his dislikes. His resentments are softened by his condemnations of himself. His depressions do not crush him, because he has some times seen the sun, and believes it may appear again. He revises his opinions readily, because he has a right, he thinks, to better opinions if he can find them. He holds fast to sound opinions, lest his moodiness in change should take all truth away. And if his insane thinking appears to be top-pling him down the gulf of skepticism, he recovers himself by just raising the question, whether a more sane way of thinking might not think differently? A man who is duly aware of his own distempered faculty, makes a life how different from one who acts as if he were infallible, and had nothing to do but just to let himself be pronounced."

A Monster Bass Drum. The largest bass drum in the world made under the directions of the veteran drummer, Nathum J. Baldwin arrived in Boston last week. The heads measure nearly eight feet each in diameter, and are made from the hides of two mammoth oxen which have been exhibited through the country during several years past. On each end is the motto-"Let us have Peace." The drum is about three feet through from head to head, and the rim is painted red, white and blue. It was ordered especially for the forthcoming Na-tional Peace Jubilee. Mr. Baldwin pronounces it perfect in all its parts, and the manufacturers state that it is the largest drum in the world, and no larger one can be made unles the hides of elephants are used for the heads.

College Reputation.

College reputations are sometimes curiously reversed in after life. Some one has collected these statistics from West Point

"Jeff. Davis graduated 23d in his class (Jeff has made some stir in the world since then); Gen. Jo. Johnson, 13th; Gen. O. M. Mitchell, 13th; Gen. Meade, 19th; Gen. T. D. Sherman, 18th; Gen. Pemberton, 27th; Gen. Jo. Hooker, 29th; Gen. Canby, 30th; Gen. George H. Thomas, 12th; Gen. Doubleday, 24th; Gen. Long-street, 54th; Gen. Early, 18th; Gen. U. S. Grant, 21st; Gen. Burnside, 18th; Gen. Philip Sheridan, suspended in 1852 and graduated in 1853, the 34th; Prof. A. D. Bache, 1st; Prof. Mahan, 1st; Gen. Sibley, 1st; Gen. Lee, 2d; Gen. Ewell, 3d; Gen. Martindale, 3d; Gen. Halleck, 3d; Gen. W. T. Sherman, 6th; Gen. Beauregard, 2d; Gen. Gilmore, 1st; Gen. George B. McClellan, 2d; Gen. Howard, 2d. In the light of subsequent history, this is a most interesting list to contemplate."

Remedy for Melancholy.

Sydney Smith said: "Never give way to melanchely: resist it steadily, for the habit will encroach. I once gave a lady two and twenty recipes against melancholy. One was a bright fire; another was to remember all the pleasant things said to her; another to keep a box of sugar-plums on the chimney-piece and a kettle simmering on the hob. I thought this mere trifling at the moment, but discovered in after life how true it is that these little pleasures often banish melancholy better than higher and more exalted objects; and no means ought to be thought too trifling which cun oppose it in ourselves or in others."

Desponding Mothers.

"I have done nothing to-day but keep things straight in the house," you say, wearily, at the close of it. Do you call that nothing? Nothing that your children are healthy and happy, and secured from evil influence? Nothing that neatness, and thrift, and wholesome food follow the touch of your finger-tips? Nothing that beauty in place of ugliness meets the eye of the cheerful little ones, in the plants at your windows, in the picture on the wall? Nothing that home to them means home, and will always do so to the end of life what vicissitudes soever that may involve? Oh, careworn mother, is all this nothing? Is it nothing that over against your sometimes discouragements shall be written, "She hath done what she could?"

Pencil Writing.

Pencil writing may be fixed almost indelibly as ink by passing the moistened tongue over it. Even breathing slowly over the lines, after writing, renders them much less liable to crasure than when not subjected to that process. A trial of the experiment will readily satisfy any person of the utility of the idea.

It is strictly and philosophically in nature and in reason that there is no such thing as chance or accident; it being evident that these words do not signify anything really existing, anything that is truly an agent or the cause of an event, but they signify, merely, men's ignorance of the real and immediate cause.

STATE CAPITOL.

Some time since we paid a flying visit to our State Capital, and there we saw the same old Capitol building at 2 o'clock r. M. of years gone by. It looked like some old dilapidated superstructure, belonging to the dark ages of the past, and having no connection whatever with the go-aheaditiveness and energy of the present. And when we considered the reputation of Michigan for progress and education, for agriculture and improvements, we felt an inward feeling of shame that our great Commonwealth could afford no better nor tasty superstructure for its State Capitol.

If our entire State citizenship could visit Lausing, it would not be long era the old frame, barn-looking building would give way to something more permanent, and in accordance with the progress of the age. There is, we opine, no Michigan citizen but would consider the Capitol building a disgrace to the State, if they could but see it, and would at once demand something in its stead worthy of our great Commonwealth.

With almost a million of dollars in our State Treasury we can see no good reason why we may not, as well as other States, have public buildings worthy an enterprising people. If there is any one necessary public im- Harper; Lieut. Wm. Stevens; Adjt. John provement demanded it is that of a Pennington. decent State Capitol building. We trust every editor throughout the State, who may visit Lansing, will pay particular attention to this subject. Let no one be so jealous of Lansing as to be willing to oppose a neened imbenefitted.

INCOME TAX.

On the subject of the increase of exemption in the Income Tax the Lansing Republican has the following: "The question of the most importance in this discussion is the proper sum that should be exempt from taxation. The honest man, who earns five hundred dollars over the thousand exempt by law must pay twenty-live dollars to government, although this total of lifteen hundred dollars may be less than his necessary yearly expenses. At first the exemption was $600, which was increased to $1,000. This exemption should be $2,000. Tables published a year or two since, proved that one half of the whole number of incomes returned were less than $1,500 and nearly two thirds less than ; $1,700. As a rule among men who return their incomes, expenses are from $1,-500 to $2,000 per annum. They also own in most cases their own homes. The actual rent thus saved does not come out of their incomes as it does from those who rent houses. The exemption should be increased to $2,000, and there is no good reason then, if a fair allowance is made for rent of houses owned also to be deducted, why the present income tax could not be better paid on incomes in excess of $2,000, than from any other source. The burden upon these who return amounts over $1,000, and less than $2,000, is in ductive of real hardship. The increase of the exemption as proposed would relieve three-fourths of the number who now pay income taxes, and would place the burden where it belongs, upon the capitalists and money makers of the country. It would be especially grateful to a large class of men, who work year after year upon salaries of less than $2,000, but pay higher income taxes than large holders of real estate, although their little homes, with a quarter or half acre of land is all the property they own in the world. This class of men, who have borne the heat and burden of the day, are entitled to rehef. They have been taxed in every way during the war, have paid for years from one-quarter to one-third of their earnings to relieve the town or city where they reside from the draft, or have gone to war, leaving a good business, to come back minus an arm or leg, unfitted for their old occupation, and compelled to support their families by taking positions as book-keepers or clerks upon small salaries.

Our members of Congress must not ignore the demands of these, the best class of citizens in the country. They pay cash for everything they eat, drink or wear, except water, and it would be an act of gross injustice if the exemption from income tax shall not be placed at double the present amount.

Res It is not strange that the Ohio Democracy, having nominated in sheer desperation the dubious Pendleton, should now be howling for a general Act of Oblivion. Mr. Pendleton, when the very existance of the Republic was at stake, protested vehemently, and with all his signal ability, against coertion. His sup-porters think it hard that this peculiarity of his past political life should now be revived, and they charge the Ohio Republicans with the resuscitation, untimely and ungenerous, of "Dead Issues." It would take a double convex extra gas microscope to discover the force of this petty cavil. Has Mr. Pendleton ever changed his opinions? Has he ever done penance for his errors? And if he is of the same mind now as in the early part of the present decade, is he, while so many old matters are unsettled, fit to be trusted? That is the question!—N. Y. Tribunc.

The New York World asserts that steps will probably soon be taken by the successful party in Tennessee to remodel the State constitution; and declares that a majority of the successful party-meaning the Democrats-"is in favor of making the status of the negro coincident with that held by him in Kentucky;" that is, to disfranchise the negro. This scheme will not work. The fifteenth amendment will cut it off. Beside, no great body of people, once enfranchised, has ever been disfranchised without a bloody struggle. Political rights can be safely given; but they cannot be safely taken away. An attempt to do so would breed a civil war. But the Democrats of Tennessee will bear Reunion of the 12th Mich. Infantry. Infinitry took place according to arrange ment at Buchanan, on Wednesday, the 25th inst.

The attendance of the soldiers of the regiment was not so large as was expected. The general turnout of the citizens was good. The soldiers and citizens repaired to the grounds of the Park Association, led by the Buchanan Cornet Band, EXERCISES.

The Rennion Association was called to order by Gen. Dwight May, President of he had, by the soldier toys and citizens, the Association. Payer was offered by Eld, D. A. Wagner.

The business of the Association was then proceeded with, and a committee on time and place of holding the next Remaion appointed, consisting of Capts, Bians, Bradly Munger, Walton and Gaugler. NEXT REUNION.

The Committee reported Lawton, Vatt Buren County, as the place, and the 25th of August 1870, as the time, for holding the next Reunion. The report, after some discussion, was received and adopted. COMMITTED OF ARRANGEMENTS.

A Committee of Arrangements for the next Annual Rennion, was appointed, consisting of Lieut. Wm. Manger, Capt. G. D. Johnson, Lieut. Jas. H. Hall, Frank Kelley, and Wm. VanHise. After a piece of music by the Buchanan

Cornet Band. LETTERS FROM ABSENT MEMBERS Were read by Cap. John Graham, Corresponding Secretary. Letters were read from the following persons, expressing regrets et inability to attend the Rennion, and expressive of the warmest sympathy for their comrades; From Gen. N. Kimball; Sergt. R. C. Kedzie; Maj. S. E. Graves; Capt. Isaac M. Cravath; Capt. Joseph

Some of these letters were spiced with the relation of incidents of their camp life, which caused a hearty laugh from mem bers of the regiment, who understood the peculiar drives intended.

REMARKS OF GEN. MAY. At our previous Reunions it was said provement, lest that city should be the weather was too cold, but now it is too hot. The heat will no doubt account for the absence of so many. Our old Commander has for the first time failed to be at our Reunion. I feel that something serious is the cause. I saw our old Chaplain, Eldred, a few days ago, and he said he would be with us if it was possible. I expected to have seen him. Some of you thought at our last Reunion that I was wild for suggesting that some of the friends from St. Jo. might come and bring along some peaches. We do not see them here. If I had known it I could have brought some peaches from Kalamazoo.

. It has long been known that we are not a talking regiment, therefore you will not expect any speeches from us. The committee have invited your townsman Cant. E. M. Plimpton to address you, and he has consented. I do not know but Lawton may be the best place for holding the next Reunion, but it seems a little out of the region in which the regiment was raised. Of the 2,200 fiames connected with the 12th Mich., some 2,000 were from Berrien County. Lawton is a grow, ing place—it is not finished yet, and there will be no doubt of our cordial reception One Company of raised in Lawton.

The General then introduced CAPT. E. M. PLIMPTON, Who proceeded to to address the soldiers and citizens. He said:

Mr. President, Fellow-Soldiers, and Citizens:

I little dreamed that I should be called upon to speak to you on this occasion. I rame here expecting to hear from the Rev. Mr. Eldred, your former Chaplain, and one of the most popular preachers in the State, and from the General, who has just address-

It has been a pleasure to meet with you, and it shall ever be my pleasure to meet with the soldiers here or elsewhere. I love to meet and greet those noble fellows who went forth to demonstrate the grand principle of self-government—the self-evident truths that men are endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness No nation has made such rapid progress the last seven years as the United States, while demonstrating the great principles of self government.

The number of soldiers here to-day are far less than had been expected. This results from various causes. Of one thing, however, you may rest assured—and mark it, too—the time is not far distant when the soldiers, who fought in putting down the rebellion, will be placed upon the stand at all celebrations, as those who fought in the revolution and the war of 1812 have been. No nobler work was ever engaged in, by any set of men, than the efforts of our soldiers in vindicating the laws and constitution, and perpetuating to posterity the grand principles of self-government—the principles of the Declaration for which our forelathers fought, in the gloomy days of the revolution.

I love to meet with the soldiers and say

God bless you, and I hope this Reunion will not be the last one of the 12th Mich. I trust these reunions will be kept up They are of deep significance. Think not because your numbers are few, that the reunions are meaningless. They are impor-tant. They say to these children, and show to the entire American people that the right hand of fellowship is extended to all soldiers. They are means of ce-menting more firmly the great principles of self-government in our hearts, and the hearts of our children. You will not say this Reunion was a failure. No, not when men are here from a long distance, and men too, whom to-day would have been in Omaha or Boston, if it had not been for the love they bear their late comrades in

The significance of these reunions will grow deeper, wider and higher every year. I am proud that I had the honor of belonging to a Michigan regiment—the glorious old 4th Cavalry. With its members we hope to have a pleasant reunion, in Detroit, on the 27th. Let these reunious continue At them you can shake hands, and swear by the heavens above to ever stand by the Constitution and laws. of our glorious re-

Thanking you, fellow soldiers, for the token of regard in calling upon me to address you, and hidding you God-speed in the cause of right, I now bid you farewell. THE BUCHANAN CORNET BAND then gave another choice musical selection.

The institution of the gallows will yet hang itself if you give it rope enough, and this is precisely what the blundering hangmen are literally and figuratively bringing about. Scarcely a week passes but we record official butcheries at the hands of unskillful sheriffs and their deputies. Add the disgust of this barbarity to the cant and whine of the pious fellow who has found that it greatly profiteth a man to kill his fellow and save his own soul, finish the scene with some of the disgraceful quarrels, squabbles, and struggles that occur on the gallows, and the public will soon be converted without much aid from the "sentimentalists" and "the mawkish friends of the murderer." The latest exhibition of this pitifully savage spectacle occurred at Strondsburg.

Pennsylvania, on Wednesday. A pious man named Orme, who knew the was a sinner," but was equally confident that God had pardoned all his sins," who could "meet his faith without a lear;" who declared that he was innocent of shooting Thomas Brodhead in September, 1868 and who "freely forgave all as God would lorgive him;" was strangled in an outrageous and terrible manner. After a morning of prayer and religious advice he was led to the scaffold. He made a speech, protesting his innocence, and accusing the ury and other judicial officers of unfairness. An ex-Sheriff on the scaffold disliked some of his statements, and disputed them. Thereupon ensued a warm and animated discussion between the Sheriff and the man with the rope around his neck. After this he was again put into the charge of his "spiritual advisers" for a time, with some undefined, and, as it proved unfounded hope of a pardon. None came, so the candidate for heaven mounted the gallows again. The rope was adjusted; the trap fell; the rope broke, and the man was thrown violently upon the floor of the jail. He was marched up the steps the third time; a new rope was put around his neck; and the prisoner sententiously but mathematically remarked: "This is death twice over." This time the .rope was new and stiff, and did not break-neither did the man's neck. He was not even strangled, so bunglingly had the knot been adjusted. He was twenty-five minutes dying. His convulsions were fearful and violent. One of his hands became loose; he put it to his neck and tried to relieve himself from the pressure; he grasped the posts of the gallows; he clung with his

-THE CROPS. In this county the wheat is harvested, and is more than a middling crop. . Oats are mostly gathered also, and will yield heavily. Hay is a fine crop, though some of it has been inured in gathering. Corn- on light soil, where it could be cultivated in wet weather is doing finely, and if we do not have early frosts will give us a good crop. On wet or clay soils, it will be almost a failure.

The Quarterly Conference will be held on Saturday, at 35 o'clock P. M. Let every member be present. J. R. BERRY, Pastor.

There are several men in this city and county, who would find away down in the north-east corner of their pockets, several dollars of our money, f they should make a careful examination. An early investigation is desirable.—Saginaw Republican: "Misery loves company;" we congratulate you and hope you will succeed in an "investigation."—Jonesville Independent. May we not also come into this happy family," and look on while the pockets are being "investigated?" -Ticumsch Herald. We have seen some "old sinners" around, (we won't name them now,) who looked mighty shy when they saw the newspaper man. We conclude their conscience smote them, as they realized that three or four dollars in their pockets belonged to the printer. Wish they would "shell out." We do—indeed we do.

County Fair.

The County Fair under the auspices of the Berrien County Agricultural, Mechanical and Industrial Associ September, is at hand, and increases ation will be held on the grounds of the Buchanan Park Association, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 7th, 8th and 9th.

The Posters and Premium Lists will be out in due time. No pains nor expenses will be spared by the Association to make the coming Fair the best and most attractive of any thing of the kind over held in Berrien Coun-

The citizens of the County will, no doubt, take a lively interest in this Fair, and be on hands with their choicest productions, whether Agricultural, Mechanical, Stockical or otherwise. The time for the Fair has been so arranged that it will not conflict with the busy seeding time offarmers, and will come sufficiently early to secure a good show of fruits. Let every farmer, mechanic and manufacturer begin now to make his arrangements to attend the Fair, with some article of manufacture or produce to compete for the premiums. By doing so, much interest will be added to the occasion, agriculture, manufacture and stockraising be stimulated to greater perfection and better quality.

DECIDEDLY SMALL - Last year, as all the people know, the BERRIEN COUNTY RECORD office did the printing for the Agricultural Society's Fair. The Society, through its officers, expressed themselves highly pleased with the work, it being far superior to anything ever before done in the county. This year that society determined to hold its Fair at Wiles, and of course the printing was to be done there. To this we had not the least objection. On inquiry it was found that the printing offices in Niles could not do the work, in good shape; and officers of the Society say, the Niles printing offices would not let the RECORD office do the work, but it must be sent to Detroit. Now, when we get so jealous and hard pushed, that we will send work to Chicago or Detroit, rather than let our County cotemporaries do it, we will quit publishing. The thing is too little! And above all, it is contemptible in the officers of a Society that claim to work for the interest of the County, and that receives County aid, to send work, or allow it to go out of the county, when it can be done as well at home. Is this encouraging home industry? Is it not a lie on the face

BOY INJURED BY THE CARS. Wed "THE BERRIEN COUNTY RECORD," a nesday afternoon a boy named Smidt; large County weekly paper, comes to aged about 12 years, in attempting to us with an "X" marked on the marjump from the caboose of a freight gin. Of course we will exchange with train going west, became tangled in so creditably an executed sheet. The the brake and was dragged along the paper is a good one, but we were nevtrack. The head of one of the spikes er over partial to the name of the

We are partial are entertained of saving the limb. to our village and the inhabitants and enterprise thereof, but ashamed of the risk boys run in jumping off and on name. No good thing is called to rethe cars. Parents cannot be too strict | membrance by the name, Buchanan. We do most heartily consider that the name of our village is a disgrace to its citizens; and often have hung our heads, when traveling on the cars, at the remarks of passengers, as "Buchanan" was sung out by the Conductor. "Wonder," says one, "if it's old Jim Buckanon." "Guess it's a few miles South of Buchanan. This building is a decided improvement on the old dilapidated superstructure, its perdecessor, which stood on the "corporation of the organization of the stood on the "corporation of the stood on the stood on the stood of the stood of the stood of the stood on the stood of the stood of the stood of the stood on the stood of the st ner" so many years. We are glad to note these improvements in our neighboring Districts; and with exceeding out of there as quick as the Lord would let me, if I lived there, if it is like the old traitor, for whom it is named."

> says a fourth. Now it is a sad misfortune that the name of as prosperous a village as this-a place where there is as much energy and enterprise among the people, and above all one of the strongest Republican towns in the State, should be cursed with so disgraceful a name. We do most sincerely trust that due steps will be taken sometime to have the village name changed to something respectable. This will be in accordance with the expressed wish of many of our citizens.

HATS .- If our readers want a hat of the latest style, they want to just go to G. W. Noble's, where they can always be accommodated.

SOMETHING NEW .- Messrs. Geo. A. Howe and John Hirons of this village have completed a castor, on the principle of the ball and socket, which we believe is destined to supercede everything that has yet been invented in that line. The parties have applied for a prtent.

THANKS .- To Mr. J. C. Quint for a measure of fine sweet apples, and to Mr. Chas. Roe for a pail of nice blackberries. These favors are duly appreciated by the Editor and his bet-

LINE OF MARCH. The Convention will here observe that all the schools of adjacent settlements shall concentrate, on the 3d of September, at the village of New Troy, at & o'clock A. M., from whence they, with the schools of the latter place, will at once proceed to Wells' Corners, where they will be met by the Niles Mechanics' Band and the several delegations from the North and South. They will then, preceded by the band, proceed at once to Hill's Corners, where other delegations will join them from the North and South at 9 1-2 o'clock, whence, in a regular line, the several delegations will immediately proceed to the ground of the Picnic. It being understood, in the meantime, that the Marshal on the Eastern boundary of the district, who is also the Marshal of the Association, (Mr. Sherwood having resigned,) arrange trick as he shall deem most just.

The presiding officer will be Rev. A. K. Clark, President of the Association. The Orator of the Day will be Rev. -

After dinner, the Committee on Finance.
will meet to adjust the claims of the Association, and transact such other business as may properly come before it. At thesame time, also, will be the meeting of the Marshals, Presidents and Vice Presidents of the several schools, presenting to the Secretary, who shall be present and recognized as Chairman of that Committee, a written report of the several schools represented by the convention, the number of officers and teachers, number of volumes in the libraries, and number of periodicals taken by the several schools, as well as the church organizations of which these schools are auxiliaries. This last report your Committee regard as indispensable Let no Superintendent be without it. A flimsy excuse won't do; you are engaged in too noble a work; neither will a verbal report. Your Secretary will be too busy on that day to do writing which now be longs to you to perform. And not only does your committee require it, and the church you represent, but other Associa-

The Blues.

Have faith in God, is probably the best shape in which a receipt for "the Blues" can be put. Methods of application vary however, and this correspondent believes great help is found in keeping ones eyes open and on the lookout for good things in others:

This constant gazing upon one's self is the cause of nine-tenths of so many oth-erwise, good people. I say 'otherwise' for unless one has lost a friend, or has failed in business, or is sick, or in love, it is wicked to have the blues, and even then in the last three cases it is the most foolish thing to do. Keep your eyes open for the good things of the world, and your minds will have less room for the bad.
When you find a good thing seize upon it. Gleat over it as so much gained. Tis well to be enthusiastic.—Says an excellent writer: "I hold it a good sign when a man is filled with admiration for anything, the tendency is to elevate him." A keen sense of the ludicrous is an excelent tonic. I ask no better treat than an hours' ride in a railway car, and the privilege of watching the play of human nature around me. It never fails to amuse and instruct

Justice and Mercy are of God, for they are the Beauty of Holiness, and Holiness is God Himin his Beatitude and Beauty.-

Thoughts of God.

It is good to think of God. Thoughts of him bring him nigh to you and you nigh unto him. We are conscious of a mysterious and delightful communion in these spiritual meditations. Thought is an exercise of the mind; and we cannot be spiritually-minded without spiritual thoughts. We grow into grossness and hardness as we put God away from our thoughts. We unlit ourselves for Bible reading, private and public worship, for preaching and Learing, by ceasing to think of God. The highest religious enjoyment, the most satisfying spiritual attainments, and the greatest fitness for specific and general Christian duty, are to be reached only through an habitual contemplation of heaven and heavenly things.

Thankfulness.

If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I might look for them with my eyes, and reach for them with my clumsy fingers, and be unable to detect them; but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and it would draw to itself the most invisible particles, by the mere power of attraction. The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no mercies; but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, and, as the magnet finds the iron, so it will find, in every hour, some heavenly blessings, only the iron in Gol's sand is gold.—O. W. Holmes.

Character.

Character is not shaped by trifles, any more than marble is sculptured by puffs of air. Only by hard struggles, and stern conflicts with temptation, and resolute self-mastery, does the divine principle assert its supremacy and carve its immortal lovliness into every faculty and mood of mind. The sharpness of our trials, and the hardness of our lot, shows what sterling stuff we are made of, and how long we are to last.

Wasted Time.

Lost wealth may be restored by industry; the wreck of health regained by temperance; forgotten knowledge restored by study; alienated friendship smoothed into forgetfulness; even forfeited reputation won by penitence and virtue; but whoever again looked upon his vanished hours, recalled his slighted years, stamped them with wisdom, or effaced from heaven's record the fearful blot of wasted

True Love is Eternal.

What God takes from us is always gain to lose. He gives back to us our friends more deeply, more tenderly, more sacredly, after they have been taken from us by Death. When they become wholly His they become more intimately ours. The intimacy before death pertains more to the flesh and its senses; after death it pertains more to the spirit and its inmost affections. It is as though God gave them to us out of his own bosom, with the holiness and fragrance of the Divine Nature added to them. By death they become too chaste, too heavenly, for our light moods and our common hours; they visit us in our holiest moments. They act upon us therefore as motives to prayer, watchfulness and retirement of spirit. They greatly befriend our best interests.

Religious Notes.

A Christian pound weighs sixteen ounces, and is at least, evenly balanced. A Christian yard is thirty-six inches, and is not shortened by the handling of the stick. A Christian ton is 2,000 pounds, and is not roughly judged but conscientiously weighed. A Christian bushel contains 232 cubic inches, and is filled brimfull. A Christian day's work is ten hours and is diligently and faithfully engaged in the employer's business. À Christain bargain or sale is one in which there is neither cheating for profit nor lying for gain.

No. 5.—Adver. LAST

Let the afflicted read, and learn that a perfect and radical cure is warranted and guaranteed to all who are afflicted. DR. RAPHAEL describes the disease without any information from the patient. He explains its cause, and guarantees its cure; and what is better still, he will honestly and frankly tell you whether you can be cured or not, which will save your health and life from wrong treatment. He cures private and secret diseases, without the use of mercury, hindrance from business, or fear of discovery or exposure. His botanic remedies restore manhood and vigor, and make the barren fruitful, and enable the single to get married, with the assurance of having a contented wife and healthy children.

LADIES,

whose delicate health make it necessary for them not to have children, use his Preventive. It not only prevents an increase of family, but it will promote and preserve the health, because his PREVENTIVE against having children is innocent, safe and sure. It does not interfere with diet or occupation. It operates without sickness or exposure. If Ladies who have suffered from misplaced confidence, consult him before they get married, he will restore their bloom, freshness and vigor of youth, and enable them to enter married life with confidence of health and happiness.

ET consultation hours from 10 A.M. to 5 P.M., at No. 213 EAST NIADISON STREET, up stairs. Consultation fee Two Dourans. Interviews confidential.

Persons at a distance may communicate confidentially by letter, if they enclose Two Dollars for a consultation fee. Send Twenty-five Cents for his book entitled, "Guide to Health and Long Life, Winning the Affections of the Opposite Sex, and Important Hints to Business Men." Address all letters as follows:

During the time of the freshet on the Wabash, where the flat country on both sides of the river was inundated by the rising water, it became necessary for those in the way to "escape to the mountains"—the mounds that were probably made by the Indians for that purpose. A party of fugitives, on their way to a place of safety, overtook a man in a covered wagon, with a span of horses, standing still in the road, the water nearly up to the hubs of his wheels and fast rising. He was sitting with a small book in one hand and a whip in the other, reading a line aloud and then laying on the whip. They stopped a moment to listen, attracted by the man's curious conduct, and were surprised to hear him read: "The wicked shall be turned into hell!" (cut)—; giving a frightful emphasis to the word. "Whoso believeth not shall be damned !" (cut.) "How can you escape the damnation of hell?"-(cut) and many more of the same character, yelling the emphasized words at the top of his lungs. Wondering at his conduct, the fugitives asked what he meant. "Why," said he, "I am a minister, and restrained from swearing, but those horses were bought in a region where they were accustomed to hear such language, and I am endeavoring to come as near as possible, conscientiously, in order to induce them to move, but I'm—" Here he consulted his book, leaving his hearers to imagine what he sought, to give emphasis to his hopelessness of making them stir a peg.

The peculiar conformation of the foot of a freedman seems to be satisfactorily accounted for by a Belle Plain, Iowa, correspondent, who says: A little negro passing our drug store was accosted with, "I say Bub, what makes your feet so long behind?
