BY MRS. E. M. O!. METED. Gaily through the garden snow I watched my darling come and go; Behind him trailed a silver thread, That tracked the path of a tioy sled,

Round and found in many a maze,
That charmed his curious, backward gaze,
And woke a laugh so sweet and wild,
T said in in heart, "Dear, thoughtless child,
The roses he loved in summer time Are dead and forgotten beneath the rime." And, musing, I turned to my household cares.
Till I heard light feet on the garden stairs.
Was a string untied, or a mitten lost?
Was puss in peril by fire or frost?

A weightier errand far he brings, As back to the wall the door he flings; Bearing aloft an emerald prize, Silken grass with its summer dyes.

Mother, see what was under the snow, Close by the hedge where the thorn trees grow;
Keep it for me. Shall I tell you why?
To remember the beautiful swimmer by."

Was it an angel in disguise That looked from the tender, beaming eyes, And drew my heart from its weight of care, Into the sunshine sweet and fair

And my soul swept out in a song of praise, For the love that was crowning all my days!

Original Story. Wriften for the Berrien County Record

"IT MIGHT: HAVE BEEN." BY P. B. BOSTWICK.

[CONCLUDED.] As soon as she could conveniently do so, and without attracting too much attention, Madge threw on a light shawl, and walked out into the spacious grounds that surrounded her father's mansion, to escape the praises. and congratulations of her numerous friends, and to enjoy, unmolested, the beautiful scene without and her own quiet thoughts.

The night was a glorious one. The moon was in the full, and shone with all her wonted splendor; bathing every leaf and flower in a sea of silver. until it seemed like an enchanted scene—the abode of fairies instead of mortal beings. Madge gazed in rap-ture upon the lovely sight, for she was should not, and our young friends lit-

home? If he is not wealthy, his | and mourning. name has grown famous here as well she heard a well-known voice whisper:

She gazed into the shadows around her. Her eyes dilated—her lips parted, and her bosom heaving as if the heart were striving to leave its resting place, and again that name was whispered:

"Madge!" She stepped forward with extended arms, and would have fallen to the ground if she had not been clasped to the bosom of Ralph Manning. The voice of Ralph was broken with emotion as he said:

"We have met again, Madge, but what shall I say?" With her arms clasped around his neck, and earnestly gazing on his her to her room. A messenger was face, as if she could trace through the hastily sent for a physician, who soon darkness the work that time had arrived. wrought, she answered:

"Say that you love me. I am not changed-I am yours still."

"God bless you, my true—my beau-tiful Madge. I did not dream I" had such a beautiful prize," and he gazed long and intently into her lovely face, now beaming with happiness and love. "And I did not know I could possess such a famous and honored prize as Judge Manning," was her answer, her eyes dropping beneath his ardent gaze. "But we must return," she added, after a moment's silence, i"or they will notice our absence."

As Madge entered the parlors leaning on the arm of her distinguished companion, an audible murmur of admiration and wonder greeted them on every side.

Soon it was whispered around the room that the tall, handsome stranger with the Judge's daughter was no less a personage than Judge Manning, of California. Old acquaintances, who had not recognized him before, now crowded around him, until one would have thought that he was holding a special reception. Judge Carleton had long since left the gay scene, as old age, and his strict rule of early retiring would not permit of his remaining up so late. Soon after the entrance of Ralph and his lovely companion, the brilliant assemblage departed for their respective homes one by one until none who, bidding Madge good night, turned their steps toward their hotel The next day he, called upon the Judge, and as soon as his name was announced, he ordered the servant to show him into the library. How different was his reception now to four years ago! As soon as he entered, the Judge grose, and extending both him many questions in regard, to his grief-stricken circle that were gather-brilliant career in California; and their ed around her bedside, silently and high position kernow occupied. Solemnly withdrew, leaving Ralph still holding the now cold and pulse-

"Ralph, if you were not worth one tenth the amount you could have her, for you have proved yourself worthy of being the protector of my Madge; and it will be with feelings of pride when I can say my daughter is the wife of Jûdge Manning.

"But, Ralph," he added, with deep emotion, "I shall be lonely when you have taken her away-my pet, my The old house will seem dreary enough | like one dead but sleepeth. without her, for she carries sunshine wherever she goes."

down his furrowed cheeks, he said: "Take her, Ralph, and may Heaven bless you, my children. Be careful of her, for she is a tender flower. In your keeping, Ralph, I place an old man's last earthly treasure. And oh, guard her well, if it is with your life, or you know not how dear she has been to me-she was my heart's idol," and overcome by emotion the Judge sank into a chair and wept silently. After he had somewhat recovered, Ralph assured him that it was not his intention to return to California; that he had come home to stay. As the only ambition of his life was now realized, he would resign his position and settle quietly down to enjoy the fruit of his labors.

"It relieves a great load from my heart to hear you say that," replied the Judge, and leaving them to enjoy their new found happiness, he retired to his private room.

It was at last settled that the wedding should take place in September, and with fond anticipations of the future, they looked forward with eager expectancy to the happy event.

If we, frail mortals could draw the Future, and read its pages, what miserable beings we would be. But it has been wisely ordained that we

It was the day before the one fixed as in his far Western home. It has for the wedding, that Ralph and Madge been now over four long years, and still he tarries. Perhaps another has won his love. But no, T cannot be in silence, each apparently occupied lieve it. He is too true-too noble with their own thoughts, when sudhearted." Was it the music of the denly the horse of Madge's, who was breeze, as it sighed sadly, yet sweet- a short distance in advance, reared, ly among the tall trees around her, and plunging madly, ran a few rods, or did memory cheat her heart, as and before Ralph could check him, so suddenly did he start, he threw his rider violently to the ground, her side striking a sharp rock.

Ralph leaped from his horse, and in agony bent over her insensible form, noting the life-blood streaming from her lips. He called upon her by every endearing name to speak once more to him. At last she slowly opened her eyes, and resting them a moment upon him, faintly murmured:

"Ralph, I am dying-take me home." Imprinting a kiss upon her blood-stained lips, he ran to a house near by, and obtained a carriage. Lifting her tenderly into it, he drove rapidly to the residence of her father. Carefully they lifted her out and bore will not live twenty-four hours." "My God, all is lost. How can I bear it? This is too much-too much," and overcome by grief, Ralph sank into a chair and wept like a child.

Many turned away, moved to tears by his heart-broken grief, for they all knew his history; how hard he had worked to accomplish his end, and upon the very eve of the consummation of his fondest dreams, that which he had so long prayed for, should be snatched from him.

The Judge arrived in the evening. As usual, he called for Madge to play for him, but when he learned she was dying, to describe his violent. grief would be impossible. For a time 'it was feared he would lose his reason.

At four o'clock in the morning she breathed her last, but was conscious up to the last moment. Taking an affectionate farewell of her father and friends, she turned to Ralph, and taking his hand, while a smile of heavenly sweetness lit up her pale but beautiful features, she said: "Do not weep for me, dear Ralph.

BEAUTY WIT AND GOLD: In her bower a maiden dwelt: At her feet three suitors knelt; Each adored the maiden much, Rach essayed her heart to touch; One had wir, and one had gold, And one was cast in beauty's mold; Guess which was it won the prize, Purse, or tongue, or handsome eyes?

First appeared the handsome man, Proudly peeping o'er her fan; Red bis lips, and white his skin; Could such beauty fail to win? Then stepped forth the man of gold, Cash he counted, coin he told, Wealth the burden of his tale: Could such golden projects fail

Hear Carlyle: -"Shiploads are swallowed monthly into the bottomless pool; still does the press toil; innumerable papermakers, compositors, printer's devils, book-binders, and hawkers grown boarse with loud proclaiming, rest; not from their la-bors; and still, in torrents, rushes on the great array of publications, unpausing, to their final home; and still oblivion, like the grave, cries, 'give! give!.'"

Its issues are potent educators.—They are ever ready to repeat their teachings. Unlike the living teacher, they may consulted every where and always, again and again. Their words do not die upon the air, but are embalmed in what the eloquent Choate called "the only immortality." Their school is portable, compact, kept at all hours. The best books are "Tomes on tomes, of fancy and of power. To cheer man's beaviest, warm his holiest hour.' Great public libraries educate widely;

the smallest and poorest of district school collections has its uses betimes. Where is the scholar, the thinker, the "man of a true lover of nature.

"The censors of what they circulate? The pettiest pamphlets educate. The brief essays of the Spectator and its com-peers are a humanizing influence for all time. In the political history of England a pamphlet has been often a bombshell in an enemy's camp The tractates of a hundred years ago sowed the seeds of the American and French Revolutionists. Religious literature is full of records of hearts made glad and souls redeemed by the blessed influence of leaflets and tracts, however coarsely printed or poorly worded. And what is the Bible itself but a collection of pamphlets? But see its educating power through all the historic centuries! Pictures are educators. The humblest print upon the cottage wall is influential upon every dweller there. Moral lessons in the home and school-room are not better taught, than thus. This may be the education that softens and refines, tha makes humanity beautiful; it may be that which makes "bully boys." Who shall say how many thoughtful, tender men and women have been made by the "Voyage been ruined by "nude art?" The hopeful worker in educational fields sees no brighter sign of times than the popularizing of fine art through chromo-lithography and other pictorial productions of the Press. A part of the Press education is very bad. It calls for the best efforts of all good citizens to counteract it. Some of it is boldly open to the public eye; much, and the worst of it, is withdrawn from our sight. The Dime Novels, the Ledgers, and the like, are bad enough. They seldom instruct for good.—They often incurably disease and sometimes wreck a life. But far worse, in every saloon, barber-shop, in many a store and office, in piles at news depots and railway stands, even in semi-respectable families, lie the Day's Doings, the Sporting Times the Police Gazette, with all their pictorial nastiness and villainous text. This is the most formidable educating influence of our time. The demorals zation they work upon youth of every age and sex is utterly heartless and hopeless .-They poison the life-streams at their foun-tain heads, and destroy their purity and and beauty forever. But there is a deep beyond this low deep, reeking with foul-ness and festering with corruption. The vilest issues of the Press are hidden, but none the less mischievous. The post-office, despite the laws, can tell a frightful story of their hidd-n disseminations. Only in one place are its toul secrets brought to light. Women cannot be employed in the Dead-letter Office at Washington, because of the gross and shameless obscenity which every moment's work brings to view of the letter openers. Another Ghost Story.

Tunnel on the Hempfield Railroad Haunted by a Murdered Man. Haunted houses having become too common, the Wheeling Intelligencer occupies over a column in telling a story of a haunted tunnel near the city on the Hempfield road. Alter laying the groundwork of the story by reciting a number of murders amazing production that three thousand that have been committed in the tunnel, years would witness. Consider what lives the Intelligencer proceeds to relate the experience of four men who passed through the tunnel on Thursday evening, about 6 o'clock, as follows: "The darkness of the cavern had set into an appalling storm, but still they held their way. Soon groans and supplications for mercy fell upon their startled ears. The usual cavernous echo was doubly apparent, as the tone of the voice was unnatural sepulchral—the men stood transfixed with horror and fright, the atmosphere was close and stifling. All at once, issuing from the solid rock which forms the ceiling, directly over the spot where the murderer slaughtered his victim, a ghastly form appeared. All around. as we have said, was impenetrable darkness. but the spectacle itself was as clearly visible as in the noon-day. It descended feet first until it reached a place about equidistant from the floor and ceiling of the tunnel, where it stopped and remained a few seconds. Although covered with the slime and earth of the grave the features of the ghostly spectre were distinctly visi-ble, clad in the habiliments of the tomb. Its appearance was horrible in the extreme. With one arm extended, and the bloody fingers of the hand hanging half severed from their stems, with the lorefinger of the other hand it pointed to a gaping wound in his temple. The wound seemed fresh, but the drops of blood seemed clotted, and stood out in bold relief on the face of the of the lips, a voice, apparently issuing from the throat of the ghost, exclaimed in a tone so unnatural as to be totally indescribable, "let the dead rest!" The horror stricken witnesses of this appalling spectacle rushed from the scene. At the mouth of the tunnel they met other parties, whose credulity was not sufficient to believe the story of the witnesses. They, therefore, obtained a lantern and returned to the spot where the apparition was first seen. They were not long waiting when the spirit, in the same place repeated the words he had before used, in, if possible, a more horrifying tone, and glided rapidly through the air toward the western mouth of the tunnel. The individuals thus made sure of the authenticity of the apparition, ill-starred wretch. Without a movement were deprived of the power of speech for some hours, and even after the intervention of days the fearful recollections are so vivid as to render them almost afraid of speaking on the subject. "The persons who witnessed this appalling spectacle in the tunnel being men of respectful and truthful charactert, their statements created a widespread and profound sensation in the eastern part of the city where they reside. This was intensified by facts which were disclosed yesterday morning by a gentleman who lives a couple of miles east of the city, and which are related as follows: He was coming into the city afoot, by way of the railroad, late in the evening and was approaching the tunnel on the east, and had noticed a couple of persons walking about a hundred yards ahead. He was a short distance this side of the school house, walking on the track and looking down to guard his steps, when he suddenly felt a strange shiver and sensation of horror, and looking up saw a man standing a few yards ahead directly over the stone culvert (where Ulrich's body was hidden.) His arms were held up over his head as if guarding against apprehended blows, and the blood was streaming down his face and neck. There was an awful stony glare in the eyes, which rooted the beholder to the ground. His first thought was that it was one of the men who had been walking ahead of him who had been assaulted by the other; but before he had time to carry out the thought he glanced past the horrid spectacle, and saw the two men just about to pass into the tunnel. At that instant the man, spectre, or whatever it was vanished, and was nowhere to be seen. Utterly confounded the frightened and horrorstricken beholder stood gazing at the vacant air, trying to comprehend what he had seen. In a moment or two he had recovered sufficiently to think connectedly. He looked carefully around. Nothing whatever was to be seen, though it was still light enough to see objects with perfect distinctness. He says he thought at one moment of running forward and telling the men who were ahead, and asking them if they had seen anything, but he reflected that of course the apparition was not there when they passed, and remem-bered that he hal been looking forward over the very spot where it stood in the alternations between looking ahead and down at the track. Besides he felt sure he would be ridiculed and called a fool for his fright. He found it impossible however, to go forward over the spot, and turn-

In the matter of the estate of Amos Washburn, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Mary Washburn, praying among other things that administration of said estate may be granted to Otis Stern.

Thereupon it is ordered that Tuesday, the 12th day of October next, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the village of Berrien, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Berrien County Record, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Berrien, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ELECTIONS IN OHIO AND PENN-SYLVANIA.

Ohio, on Tuesday, is reported from 8,000 to 10,000. Thus Pendletonianism, repudiation, has received a quietus. Geary's majority, in Pennsylvania is estimated at 5,000. This will not suit the Democracy, or fulfil Democratic prophecy.

THE JUDGESHIP. Hon. Judge Upson having declined the appointment to hold Court in this Second Judicial Circuit till the Spring Election, Gov. Baldwin has ordered an Election to take place on Tuesday the 9th of Nov. In the selection of a man to fill this responsible position, the eyes of the convention should be only upon a man of the strictest integrity—one who will without fear or favor render just and equitable decisions in all cases brought before him. It is too often the case that nominations are secured by wire pulling, underhanded workings, or something else, than an outspoken preference of the people. In order to avoid anything of this kind, let the Judicial Convention be called at once, as any delay will certainly be interpreted as designed for some special object. And again we must warn all parties concerned, who may aspire to this responsible office, that the voice of the BERRIEN COUNTY RECORD will be heard in behalf of the interests of the people of this Judicial Circuit; and if any undue means are used to secure nominations, an exposition shall follow. Let aspirants, therefore pursue an upright and honorable course; let them tell the people and the Convention, like men, that they will serve to the best of their ability, if nominated and elected. Let this be done in time, so that delegates from towns may have an opportunity to learn the feelings of the people in their several localities. We shall, next week, give all the parties, who may aspire to this position, or their friends, who may desire them to fill the place, the opportunity of bringing their names before the public. We shall then, in our next issue, publish all names that may be presented to us, as candidates for the Judgeship of the Second Judicial Circuit. The people will then have ample time to determine and express their preference. The merits of the several candidates can be discussed. as the people have a right to do, and thus be better prepared to make a

Mr. Boutwell and His Critics.

A great many critics in the journals and out are denouncing Mr. Boutwell's plan for reducing the public debt. Mr. A. T. Stewart snuffs at it; the Democratic papers, of course, are not satisfied with it: the free trade Republicans find fault with it, because Mr. Boutwell, being a protectionist, has no business in the Treasury, any way. Why don't he stop buying bonds and redeem the greenbacks? they ask. Why don't he stop paying the debt which bears interest, and buy the dishonored notes now over due? In one sense, however, some of the bonded debt itself is overdue; that is, the five years have expired, in which the Government declared that it would pay them if it wanted to. Moreover the greenbacks are not worth very much less than the bonds. One dollar's worth of our bonded debt, a fivetwenty, for example, is worth only 92 cents in gold, and one dollar's worth of our unpaid notes or greenbacks is worth 77 cents in gold; so that both forms of the debt are to a greater or less extent dishonored; while we certainly are saving interest by purchasing the five-twenties.

which we would dot save by cancelling the greenbacks. But even if the discrepancy between the two kinds of debt were greater than it is, the impossibility of Mr. Boutwell's adopting any other policy seems utterly to have escaped the attention of his critics. One would suppose that he was the autocrat we were threatened with in the person of General Grant, and had absolute power over the public debt to do with it as it seems best in his sight. If Mr. Boutwell has no other plea or excuse for his policy, he can find it in the fact that the law orders him to buy bonds, and forbids him to cancel greenbacks. He is expressly commanded to put aside each year a certain percentage of the bonds as a sinking fund, and explessly enjoined against contracting the currency. Of course, there will be differences of opinion in regard to the wisdom of such a policy, but these irritable assaults upon him for his conduct, and constant appeals to him to do something different, when the laws have so hedged him in that he cannot are childish and petulant. How unmanly and narrow is Mr. Stewart, for example, to publicly criticise Mr. Boutwell, without once intimating that he himself would either be compelled to adopt Mr. Boutwell's plan or to disobey the laws. Some have wondered why Mr. Stewart out of the abundance of his wisdom did not suggest the method which he would have take the place of the policy he denounced. The reason seems obvious enough. Any other plan would have to be based upon disobedience of law; and we suppose that Mr. Stewart is not quite ready to recommend this as a starting point. — Detroit Post. Counterfeit Greenbacks.

THE BUCHANAN FAIR.—Fhe Fair at Buchanan, last week, is claimed to be quite a success. Nearly 800 entries were made, and the attendance of visitors was quite large. We are glad, at all times, to chronicle a success in everything undertaken in the county.—Niles Republican, 7th.

NEW JOB TYPE.—The RECORD office has recently added to its extensive Job Department, over thirty new fonts of type, together with a variety of cuts and other material, which renders the BERRIEN COUNTY RECORD office the most complete Jobbing office in Western Michigan. Those wanting work from a small label to a mammoth poster, will do well and save money by patronizing the RECORD office.

GET THEM .- The most convenient ittle arrangement we have seen lately, is Mr. E. F. Allen's Carpet Hook, for fastening down carpets. J. R. BERRY, Pastor. Having leased the new and commodious Hotel (the Reading House,) Niles, Mich., for a term of years, I shall be pleased to see any of my old friends, and as many new ones as may see fit to call on me in my new quarters, where they will be dealt with on the same terms as while in the Bond House.

There are new and commodious barns and sheds attached with a good Ostler in attendance. The Telegraph, Express and Stage Offices have also been removed to this house, and there will be no pains spared to make guests feel at home. Special attention will be paid to pleasure parties. 29m3. H. K. Starr, Proprietor.

THE NEW STAMPS .- General Terrill, the Third Assistant Postmaster General, in order to remove the dissatisfaction expressed against the present postage stamps, proposes to change them, and with this view, he has directed the Bank Note Company which furnishes them to prepare the new designs for the new issues. The heads of Washington, Jackson, Franklin, Lincoln and Jefferson, are to be restored, in place of present designs, to be represented as profile busts, each to represent the various denominations. The stamps are to be larger than those now in use, and oblong. Instead of 150 being printed on a sheet there will be only 100. The former color-red-will also be restored. A month or two may elapse

Record. - Buchanan Manufacturing. There is no one thing that so much should feel deeper interest than in the prosperity and building up manufactures in their midst. And there The government is enforcing this law are many things also to be eonsidered in the eastern States, and some here by the manufacturer in selecting locations for business. The peculiar advantage of being near material is not to be lightly esteemed. In this Dr. Barth & Co., the most successful physicians and surgeons now living, of lumber or timber is concerned, Buchanan presents peculiar advantages. This point, doubtless, possesses many superior advantages for the establishment of an extensive Agricultural Implement factory in connection with a wagon and carriage establishment. We know of no better point for a business of this kind, as material is cheap. The man or company that engages in the manufacture of all kinds of Agricultural implements in Buchanan on a scale extensive enough to supply a large demand, will certainly find a profitable business. There is money in this business, and it only needs capital and perseverance to establish a good success in this direction.

While speaking of the subject of manufactures it might be well to mention one or two other branches of industry that could be successfully carried on in Buchanan. A woolen factory and a paper mill can be profitably engaged in Berrien County; and we know of no point where greater advantages center than at this place. Let those contemplating the investment of means in manufacturing, or who may be looking for a place to establish business, investigate well the advantages offered by Buchanan.

COMMENDABLE.—The M. E. Church for some weeks past has closed for repairs. On Monday we visited the Church to see how affairs progressed, when to our surprise we found that improvements had been thorough. The woodwork in the interior has all been. neatly grained and varnished, the ceiling whitewashed, and the walls papered, which adds a hundred per cent. to the beauty and pleasantness of appearances. Blinds have also been put upon all the windows, and the lot has been graded, a stone wall being built on the north side, next the street from the grade of the street to the grade of the lot, some three or four feet high. This wall adds no small amount to the appearance of the premises. It would be a pleasure to our church edifices. The work of service will again be resumed.

LECTURE AND EXHIBITION .- Dr. J. Hollister will give one of his lectures illustrating Bible scenes and the land of Palestine on Tuesday evening next, at the Christian Church. One half the proceeds of the entertainment is devoted to the Sunday Schools, by the Doctor. The exhibition is said by those who have seen it to be very entertaining and instructive. It is hoped there will be a full attendance. And the exhibition is undoubtedly worth all it costs and will pay for the attendance. Remember half goes to the Sunday School cause in our midst.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.-The hair is the crowning glory of woman. There are few modern defects which cannot be remedied by the proper disposition of the tresses. But when the hair begins to fall out, or turn gray, in young people, or with those in the prime of life, there is cause for real regret. When this is the case, Hall's Vegetable Sicillian Hair Renewer will be found to be a first-class remedy, far superior, as a sound medical medium, to any thing else before the public. It actually restores gray hair to its original color, and in the great majority of cases, causes it to grow again when it is becoming thin. It is not like many popular preparations, a mere wash, but a scien-tific discovery, indorsed and used by physicians of character. Address R. P. Hall & Co., Nashna, N. In dyspepsia, liver complaint, and constipation, the diseased organs are preternaturally sensitive and tender. Do not use them roughly. An alterative, like Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient, that tones, corrects and purifies the system without unduly exciting or irritating either the stomach, the liver, or the bowels, is the true specific in such cases. Reason teaches this, and experience confirms it.

O, beauty, trailing sadness! De pair, hope's loftiest birth! With tears and aspirations Have ye bedewed the earth. The opening buds of April Untimely frost may chill;

The soul of sweet October Faints out in mystery still.

What buriest thou, gay childhood? Swift youth, what fled with thee? Laugh'st at our losses, Sorrow, As in some godlike glee? Away, away, forever Our vessels seem to sail; The Eternal Breath o'ertakes them;

Home speeds them every gale.

The filmy gold and purple
Swathed not the hill we trod:
Twas hard and common climbing,
The bramble and the clod.
The bitterness we tasted

Was Truth's most wholesome leaven: The friends that left us lonely Are opening doors in Heaven.

And now the deeper midnight Uncovered larger stars; And grafts of glory burgeon From earthly blights and scars. And now the mists are lifting—
The tides are rushing in—
Tis sunrise on the mountains!

Taking Offence.

Lo! life is yet to win!

There is immense wisdom in the old proverb: "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty." It has been said, "if you wish to punish an enemy make him hate somebody." To punish ourselves for others faults is superlative folly. A courtier told Constantine that the mob had broken the head off his statue with stones. The emperor lifted his hands to his head, saying, "It is very surprising but I don't feel hurt in the least."

We should remember that the world i wide; that there are a thousand millions of different human wills, opinions, ambitions, tastes and loves; that each person has a different history, constitution, culture, character from all the rest, that human life is the work, the play, the censeless action and reaction upon each other of these different living atoms.

We should go forth into life with the smallest expectations, but with the largest patience; with a keen relish for, and appreciation of everything beautiful, great and good, but with a temper so genial that the friction of the world cannot wear upon your sensib lities, and equanimity so settled that no passing breath nor accidental disturbance shall agitate or ruffle it, and with a charity broad enaugh to neutralize what is bitter in it, determined not to be offended where no offense is meant, not even then, unless the offense is worth noticing.

Nothing short of malicious injury or flattery should offend us. He who can wilfully injure another is an object of pity, and it is a question whether there is enough of a flaterer for a whole-souled man to be

Let Us Help One Another.

This little sentence should be written on every heart—stamped on every memory. It should be the golden rule practised, not only in every household, but throughout the world. By helping one another we not only remove thorns from the pathway, and auxiety from the mind. but we feel a sense of pleasure in our own hearts, knowing we are doing a duty to a fellow-creature. A helping hand, or an encouraging word, is no loss to us yet it is a benefit to others. Who has not felt the power of this little sentence? Who has not needed the encouragement and aid of a kind friend? How soothing, when per-plexed with some task that is mysterious and burdensome, to feel a gentle hand on the shoulder, and to hear a kind voice whispering: "Do not be discouraged—I see your trouble—let me help you." What strength is inspired—what hope created—what sweet gratitude is felt, and the great difficulty is dissolved as dew beneath the sunshine. Yes, let us help one another, by endeavoring to strengthen and encourage the weak, and lifting the burden of care from the weary and oppressed, that life may glide smoothly on, and the fount of bitterness yield sweet waters; and He whose willing hand is ever ready to aid us, will reward our humble endeavors, and every good deed will be as "bread cast upon the waters," if not to us to those we love. Then let us all help one another.

The Last Time. There is ever something solemnizing in the thought that it is the last time. The last gleam of the day—the last word before parting—the last look of life—all these acquire an importance and an interest vastly beyond any which they would possess in and of themselves. The sun shone bright before he approached his sitting; the farewell word spoken was some ordinary one, of no real weight; the parting look was one which we would willingly otherwise have forgotten. But no noonday splendor was so cherished in memory, as that slanting beam that disappeared in a spark of gold over the westhills; no one tone in all our converse dwelt on the ear so long and so clear, as that one word "good-bye;" no look has been so often recalled, as that smile of recogni tion of the pallid face from whence life was taking its flight.

The Old-Fashioned Mother. The old-fashioned mother!—one in all the world, the law of whose life was love: one who was the divinity of our inlancy, and the sacred presence in the shrine of our first earthly idolatry; one whose heart is far below the frosts that gather so thickly on her brow; one to whom we never grow old, but in the plumed troop, or the grave council, are children still; one who welcomed us going, and never forgets us never. And when in closet, some drawer, some corner, she finds a garment, or a toy that was once ours, how does she weep, as she thinks we may be suffering or sad. Does the battle of life drive the wanderer to the old homestead. Her hand is upon his shoulder; her dim and faded eyes are kindled with something "of the light of other days," as she gazes upon his worn and troubled face. "Be of stout heart, my son ! No harm can reach you here." But sometimes that arm-chair is set back against the wall, the chair is vacant, or another's, and they seek the dear old occupant in the graveyard. Grant you never have I Pray God I never may.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has ricen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the moskeffectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all arm sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antilote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought inspection under numbers of cause where the discounter the discounter to the discounter of the discounter the discounter the discounter of the discounter the discounter that the consumption is thought in the discounter that the consumption is thought in the discounter that the consumption is thought and the discounter that the consumption is thought and the discounter that the consumption is thought and the discounter that the consumption is the consumption in the discounter that the consumption is the consumption in the consumption is the consumption in the co Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the discass occured extited, have been completely cared, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat; that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Peatoral in simil and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure, For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zine, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the lifstory of Aguic medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE GGREE daily.

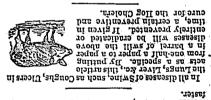

For Liver to healthy activity.

For Dilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

DOTY'S WASHING MACHINE,

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED-AND THE NEW

Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Coc-wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes. Those who have used them give testimony as follows:

"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the sid of Doty, we feel that we are masters of the position."—Rev. L. Scott, Bishop M. E. Church. "It is worth one dollar a week in any family.—N. I. Tribune. "In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual thanksgiving on Mondays for the invention."—Rev. Theodere L. Cuyler. "Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the af-ections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. 2 Observer:

"Theartily commend it to economists of time, money and contentment."—Rev. Dr. Bellows.

"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure 'you' our Machine,' a.ter a year's use, is thought more of to day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—So:on Robinson.

"Your Washing Machine has been in. daily use, in our laundry, and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a greater amount of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much, as the old fashioned wash-board. By using it, one laundress is dispensed with."—Wm. M. F. Ronnd, Superiutendent of Infant Department of St. Catharine's Narsery, N. Y. City.

"After a constant use of the Universal Clothes Wringer for more than four years in our family, I am authorized by the 'powers that be' to give it the most unqualified praise, and to pronounce it an indispensable part of the machinery of housekeeping. Our servants have always been willing to use it, and always have liked it.—Henry Ward Beecher.

PRICES.—A Fair Offer. Send the retail price, Washer, $14, Extra Wringer $0, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to places where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

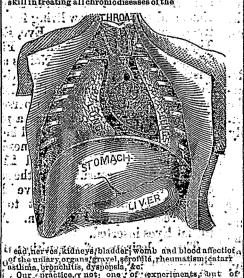

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Canvassers with exclusive right of sale make inoney fast selling them.

Those we injure may die or go beyond our influence. There are words and deeds which we cannot recollect without remorse, as we pray that other hands may efface our wrong doing, let us remember that some may be so praying on behalf of one whom we can succor either in mind or body. How happy we should be to hear that God had permitted a good man to destroy our work! So, let us be up and doing that in turn, with God's blessing.
