THE DRESS, NOT THE LADY.

BY MARY A. DENNISON.

Nellie Blossom—a pretty name, is not?-sat in her dressing-room laughing as hard as she could laugh. What it could be for I am sure nobody could tell, for she was alone, neither reading, nor singing, or talking to herself. She had been occupied in combing her beautiful hair, and this was the situation in which she sat. A brush in one hand, a great mass of silk curls in the other, her head thrown back, her voice ringing out in a suc- a deep brown veil to shade her face, cession of good, hearty "ha ha's."
"What is the matter, Nellie?" asked her mother, standing smiling at the door. "O, I was thinking of something so funny!" cried Nell, springing to her feet and applying the brush; "never mind, mother, I've got a plan in my head, and if I decide upon putting it in execution, I'll tell you what it is.' At breakfast pretty Nellie was all

"Shall you go out shopping to-day?" asked her mother, glancing casually towards her daughter.
On this, Nellio began to laugh again; then restraining herself on catching her father's eye, she answered. "I haven't quite made up my mind-perhaps I may." "Ah! contriving already how to make way with that fifty dollars Uncle Joe sent you yesterday! Well, Nell, make good use of it; there's many a poor man would feel like a prince these hard times with fifty dollars in his hand."

laughing eyes growing more quiet in their expression.

"Who did you see last night, Nelly?" asked Mrs. Blossom, Tounging over her tea after the paterfamilias had gone out. "Henry Lloyd and Charles Sheldon, as usual;" replied Nelly, archly.

"Were they both attentive?" "As two shadows," replied Nelly. "Henry never looked more noble in

"Last time it was Charles," said: Mrs. Blossom.

Nelly blushed. "I know," she said; "I find it difficult to choose between them, I confess. "Henry is the handsomest and richest of the firm," said her mother, looking out, as mothers will do, for the main chance. "I don't know about Henry's being the handsomest," replied Nelly; "there is something very superior about Charles Sheldon's face, but he is so very retiring! one has to give him so much margin! To be sure, Henry is more dashing, might be called more elegant, and has certainly a more brilliant eye and color. Perhaps he dresses in rather better taste; but although he pleases me more in company, there is something in Charles Sheldon's quiet way and deep eye that sometimes seems more attractive." "Both appear to have sterling qualities," said Mrs. Blossom. "Yes, they appear to have; but I'm going to test them to day." "What do you mean, Nelly?"

"O! that's what I was laughing at upstairs this morning," replied Nelly, in a merry way. "You see, I've such a capital plan! and I'm the very one to carry it out, I think. I shall spend my fifty dollars on poor Mill's fami-

But what object have you in this quite foolish scheme?" asked her

: Agnes was pretty and smart also. She was very ignorant, but having been dressing-maid in several good families, she had picked up a little smattering of useful information. As for the rest, she was full as handsome, and nearly as graceful, when she chose to be, as many a lady of fashion:

She entered into the scheme with

"And what shall you wear?" asked Agnes, surveying herself in a long

"O, dear, dear!" cried the girl, laughing; "why, people won't know business and economizing somewhat. Agnes acted the great lady to perfection. She shook out her silks, tossed her head a little, as if with the feeling that everything about her was entirely beneath her notice, yet she could condescend, perhaps, to buy something, and sailing along the store, her humble companion behind her, she paused at a place where four clerks stood with their eight hands all ranged along together, ready to jump

Nelly stood quietly back, her face "I'll try to sir," replied Nelly, her a sign to the clerks, he was left alone with the new customer.

."I want to see some moire antique,' said Agnes, with the air of one who has plenty of money.

"Certainly, madam," replied the polite clerk, immediately taking out mmense cases of the splendid silks, and spreading them before her. "How much do them come to a yard?" asked Agnes, cunningly showng her gold. The young man informed her, with a great deal of deference, turning over and displaying a great number of the goods. "Those don't exactly please me; they ain't costly enough," said Agnes,

"We have very pretty embroidered silks at almost any price," said Lloyd, delighted that he had fallen in with a customer who seemed to have no care how much things cost; and with great trouble he took down other

The indignant blood rushed to her

"Isn't she a customer?" asked Sheldon, in the same tone. "No, servant, I expect; carry home bundles," said Lloyd, still in that suppressed voice. But Sheldon did not seem to be satisfied; he came forward, saying, in a gentlemanly tone:

silks, velvets, shawls and laces strewed it from one end to the other. "What did that girl buy of you?" asked Lloyd, directing a clerk to put up the goods, a full hour's work.

"Nothing to speak of—only fifty dollars," returned Sheldon. "Fifty dollars! Why, I didn't think she was worth fifty cents!" ex-

Lloyd threw back his head and laughed-so did his coat sleeve. "I thought you were sure for a hundred dollars at least," said Sheldon.

"So did I." "I was afraid my customer over-heard what I said." "O, no!" replied the other; she would have left the store; but I am

Miscellaneous.

From the Citizen, LITTLE HANDS AND FEET.

Sitting in the dreamy firelight Where it flashes warm and red, Listening to the children playing In the nursery overhead; I am building dreamland castles, Filled with visions vague and sweet, Mingling to the merry clamor Of the little hands and feet.

Childish voices rippling over Some stray gem of nursery rhyme— Clapping hands fill out the music, And my beating heart keeps time; Silvery showers of happy laughter, Mellow murmurs, low and sweet, And the rush and clatter, after, Of the restless little feet.

It is music full of gladness, But it brings sad thoughts as well, And it hints of that vague Future That we all would fain foretell: For a child is quick in growing, And the years are bright and fleeet, And the fortune's past our knowing Of these little hands and feet. There are beds of beauteous roses

But they cover treacherous sands,

At the touch of human hands. There are rugged, thorny pathways That will wound the weary feet; There is many a glittering bauble.

That will prove a stinging cheat. O little feet! enjoy your dancing; There is wearier-work in Life—
O little hands! beat out the music; There is coming sterner strife. It is better that this childhood

These years will not seem long. Diseases of the Stomach, or Dyspepsia, what is it? BY DR. V. CLARENCE PRICE.

When you pause amid Life's battles

The thousands of individuals who labor under the complaint bearing this name, have no-other opinion of it than that it is a disease of the stomach. They have been so informed and because they have been so distressed with flatulence, acidity, a sinking faintness, and a sensation at the pit of the stomach, which they cannot fully describe, they think it certainly a disease of the stomach, and more especially if it be attended with nausea or vomiting. opinion may be formed on any subject from statements made by others, yet an acquaintance with the true facts in the case may induce a change of such opinions. What are the facts regarding this complaint? Is, it really the stomach which has become diseased, or does it arise from some other source? Let us investigate it calmly, and upon reasonable grounds. Where is the stomach situated? Its form somewhat resembles an alembic or retort, the largest part being on the left side, between the left lobe of the liver and side, then passing under the liver, terminates in the small intestines near the center of the body, which in medical anguage is called the pylorus. The location of the stomach, therefore, precludes the possibility of the unpleasant sensation, as faintness, flatulence, acidity, &c., being a disease of the stomach, as some suppose. The parts where these sensations were experienced is the location of the small intestines, and why such affections should be felt in the small intestines we shall undertake to explain.

Sourcess or Acidity.—The principal constituents of the gastric juice which is formed by the mucous or lining membrane of the stomach, is nuriatic acid; this muriatic acid dissolves into small particles the food taken into the stomach, after which the food passes from the stomach through the pylorus into the small intestines, where it meets with the hile, formed from the liver. When the bile is of a healthy character it contains a large quantity of alkaline compounds, the alkali predominating in such quantities as to be found in an uncombined state. This alkali unites with the muriatic acid of the gastric juice, and neutralizes it, forming with it salts of muriatic of soda, ammonia, and potash, which are somewhat purgative. When the liver becomes diseased, it cannot produce healthy bile. The bile may be thick or viscid, producing costiveness, gall-stones, &c. At other times it is thin and of an acrid character, so much so, that were it possible to place it upon your hand, it would form a sore. The acrid character of the bile accounts for the faintness and sinking feelings, experienced just below the pit of the stomach. The acidity is occasioned by the bile having lost it alkaline properties, by which the acidity of the gastric juice cannot become neutralized. Sometimes of warmth about her heart that had this thin and acrid bile exists in such quantities as to regurgitate from the small, intestines into the stomach, and vomiting follows: and if ritable excite inflamation, the patient will have frequent attacks of violent pains, sense of twisting or griping, or cholera morbus. Flatu-lence is occasioned by the decomposition of the bile, by which carbonic acid gas is disengaged. Dyspepsia, so called, is, therefore, ex-clusively a disease of the liver, and though relief may in some instance be afforded to the distress which many experience, by the usual tinge and evinces its presence sometimes by dark, yellowish spots upon the face and neck. When the bile is thin and acrid, and the blood loaded with, it, such irritation and inflammation often arises, as to produce canker, erysipelas, humors and not unfrequently fevers, as bilious fever, ague and fever. &c.; the patient feels weak and debilitated. This inflammation often progresses (if neglected) until the spleen becomes affected and a pain is felt in the side. The heart becomes weak, and pain and palplations are often felt in, that region. The Liver itself often becomes so weak, that by the least exertion, as going up steins or rising a hill, the blood is thrown into the Liver with such force as to cause it to enlarge, and the patient experiences difficulty in breathing until the blood has had time to pass from the liver. This state of disease frequently progresses to ulceration of the Liver itself, and other parts of the system, which from any cause may have become weak, and the circulation of the blood impeded, giving time, for the deposition of diseased matter. Headache, dizziness, momentary loss of sight—pain in the side, sinking, all gone sensations, waterbrash, heartburn, sour stomach, belching up of mind, duliness, no disposition to stir around, food does not digest well, aching between the shoulders or under the shoulders, pains in the arms; legs, knees, &c., sickness at the stomach, vomiting; bad taste in the mouth in the morning, but flashes, succeeded by cold chills or shivering, weakness in the kidneys and spine, great debility on efertion, no inclination to work, or goifrom home; nervousness, wakefulness at night, or unpleasant dreams, palpitation or distress about the heart, numbness, wandering and shooting pains with great liability to take cold, are the prevailing symptoms that are produced by a diseased liver.

For many years I have been actively and exclusively engaged in preparing medicines, and prescribing for diseases of long standing, usually temped, "chronic," and I have treated many hun dustration.

During Mr.-C.'s late European tour he-chanced to meet an English Lord, and quite naturally the conversation turned upon American affairs. Why, said the Englishman, don't your people blame France as well as England; Napoleon tried very hard to prevail upon us to recognize, the Dayis government?, O'l replied Mr. Chandler, the Americans don't mind what people say, it is only what they do that we care anything about.

But if England had done as France desired the confederacy would have been successful.

Not a bit of it. Supposing the South had been recognized, how many men would have been sent to aid her? Aus. Probably a hundred thousand.

My dear-sir, we lost more men than that at the single battle of the Wilderness, and the ranks were filled up in less than a week, and from the facts and ligures in the case you can readily see that France and England combined would have delayed Gen. Grant just four days.

Mr. Englishman considered that a view of the subject in quite a different light from anything he had heard before among his neighbors. thing he had heard before among his neighbors and acquaintances. It was remarked by a prominent democratic editor and politician, and Mr. Dickey, success-mined upon a measure, no matter what, they were always successful in the Senate. The first Congressional District composed of Hillsdale, Lenawee, Monroe and Wayne counties, is represented by Judge Fernando C. Beaman, of Adrian, who is now serving his fifth term, having been longer a member of the House than any other of the present delegation or of Thaddeus Stevens, assented, that when Chandler, Cameron, and I think Morton, deter-

Mr. Beaman is fifty-six years of age, a full faced, thick set man, weighing about 180 pounds; has dark hair slightly sprinkled with gray, and a full beard always worn without a moustache; his head is broad and very high in vieinity of the moral organs; he is extremely positive and firm in his opinions, and very com-bative withal, which often leads one to suppose him much harsher than he really is. Apparently cold and reserved on first acquaintance a deeper knowledge shows him to be a warm hearted, generous man. Mr. Beaman has one of the finest legal minds in the House, with strong reverence for law and precedents; bu so very different from many lawyers, his ruling legal maxim is, "Fiat justitia, ruat coelum."

Mr. B. is always in attendance, seldom missing a vote; yet I doubt if during his entire Congressional experience he ever sat still in his seat fifteen consecutive minutes. When not engaged comparing opinions with this mem-her from the South or that one from the North, or some other from the far West, he has "beat" of about twenty feet, just at the left of the Speaker's desk, where, with a peculiar fold of the arms, he paces back and forth like a sentinel watching the ground.

The Second District—Allegan, Berrien. Branch, Cass., Kalamazooo, St. Joseph and Van Buren counties, sends Hon. W. L. Stough ton, of Sturgis. Mr. Stonghton is 43 years of age, of medium highth, small head and narrow forchead; his hair, beard and monstache are raven black; his eyes dark and deep set. On first observance the face conveys an unpleasant feeling of doubt. There is something about it that strikes one as unsympathetic and cold, if not selfish yet this expression of countenance may have been caused by sorrow and suffering.

Opinions differ so widely that it is difficult to form an exact conclusion concerning this gen-tleman's character. It is safe to say, however that he is less popular, in and out than either of his colleagues, but I do not wish to convey an idea that this is due to any unfriendliness on his part, or disregard of popular opinion; for it is generally conceded that he has tried hard to gather all the strength he could. Some men, especially politicians, are particularly gifted with a faculty for making enemics

An example—but disclaiming any personal allusions—is the anecdote of a certain gentleman who desired to be Supervisor.

Possessed with this laudable ambition he Possessed with this laudable ambition he promised all his democratic friends if they would nominate and elect him their taxes should be diminished one-half. It so happened that year, there was a new Court House to build, and a new Alms House, &c., &c., so that instead of taxes being one-half less, they were fully one-half more. Now although Mr.—might have been sincere and houset in his intentions when been sincere and honest in his intentions when he made the promises, he had great difficulty in convincing even his own friends that he had not been deliberately lying. This is only Gen. Stoughton's first term and as yet he has made no public record to speak of, if the speech, which the House granted him permission to publish in the Globe the same as if delivered in that body, be excepted, and as this was composed so largely of compilations from the annual reports it is unsatisfactory to form a full estimate of his ability as a statesman from that decument.

At the decoration ceremonies at Alexandria, on the 30th of May last, Gen. Stoughton was invited to deliver an oration, and his address upon that occasion reflects great credit upon im, and compares very favorably with that of Gen. Logan at Arlington. It is regretted that journals are attacking this gentleman with such abusive terms as "Monkey," "Titman of Congress," etc., for while no argument against him, only weakens the cause.

If it is not desired to re-elect him, the reasons can be stated frankly, candidly and strong-ly, without resort to the discreditable business throwing dirty mud. If there has been lack of success in Gen. Stoughton's career, the opinion is well founded that one great cause has been inability to judge men correctly, of-ten mistaking his friends for his enemies and acting accordingly.

The Third District—Calhoun, Eaton, Ingham, Jackson and Washtenaw Counties—is represented by Hon. Austin Blair, of Jackson. A man of whom Michigan is justly proud; whose noble deeds while Governor, when history of the war of rebellion shall become mythology, will still shine bright in legend and drama.

Gov. Blair is now serving his second term.

Not large, in an avoirdupois way, every bone, muscle and sinew is arranged to give the great-est possible execution. His head is of average size; forehead high and largely developed, at the point where phrenologists locate the per-ceptive faculties. His face is thin and sharp, and, by its expression, indicates a nervous, ex-citable, impulsive temperment, and one ex-cessively sensitive to any reflections upon his honor as a gentleman or a man. As a lawyer, his strength is greatest in "the advocate." As a speaker, he stands at the head of the delegation from his State; always on the alert; fer-tile in resources; quick at repartee; clear and analytical in argument; he shows to splendid advantage in a running debate.

During the present session, Mr. Blair has watched carefully the tariff and tax bills, and has made several lengthy speeches with marked effect. Yesterday on motion to strike off the income tax, he denied that the people de-

THE PRESS AND THE STEREME

The press is supposed to reflect the opinions of the people, and generally speaking this is true. The case, however, of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Railroad Aid law forms an exception to the general rule. Undoubtedly the majority of the press of the State will condemn the decision of the Supreme Court, while the majority of the people will approve the decision. Why is this? The reason is apparent. Newspapers are all located in the cities, towns and villages of the State, and it is thought that no town, or city, or village, can prosper without a railroad. And when one road is secured, the property holders in the villages feel just as anxious to obtain a second road in order to increase the prosperity of the village. Newspaper publishers partake of this same spirit, as their personal interests are that the village may be built up. This idea, however, does not so much extend to the country, and hence our assertion, that in this railroad question the majority of the State press cannot be taken as an index to the sentiment of the majority of the people of the State. This conclusion, we think, must appear evident to every reasoning person throughout the entire State. This decision, of the highest triction, soon or late, will cause the bunal in our State, is severely critiverthrow of any party, we care not cised by many of our exchanges, ow great its influence may be. while others commend it as eminently wise and just. The former class, however, seems in the majority, and will, doubtless, have a great influence in securing a call for an extra session of the Legislature. But if the Governor should convene the Legislature, and by the requisite two-thirds majority a constitutional amendment should be adopted authorizing taxation for railroad aid, we believe when submitted It is, however, doubtful whether, in the face of the Supreme Court decision, and the evident feelings of the people, a two-thirds majority could be secured in each House for the passage of such an amendment. That an amendment would be endorsed, looking to the legalizing of those bonds already in the hands of innocent third parties—such bonds as were so held previous to the late decision of the Supreme Court—is quite probable. But, if such a provision should be coupled with an amendment to authorize railroad aid taxation in the future, we would anticipate its utter defeat.

Under all the circumstances in the premises, we see no great need of haste, and we trust that there will be no extra session of the Legislature called by Gov. Baldwin. Let time work a little, and let the people consider the matter coolly, before being rushed into a decision at the ballot how. Let the decision of the Sunreme Court have time to operate, and see whether it will prove so disastrous to the interests of the State as some predict. We do not believe it will, and there are hosts of others who look at it in the same light. We, however, believe that the decision will prove a great blessing to the State at large, though it may, and doubtless will, affect some localities injuriously. Again we trust Governor Baldwin.will make haste slowly in the matter of calling an extra session of the Legislature.

A PRETTY GOOD HIT.

The Detroit Post gets off a pretty good hit on the Advertiser and Tribune about Prof. Kent's review of the Supreme Court decision, concurred in by C. I. Walker, Ashley Pond and E. W. Meddaugh. The Post says:

"The Free Press ridicules the silly boast of the Detroit Advertiser that a recent communication from a Detroit lawyer on the railroad law decision of the Supreme Court has as much weight as the decision itself. We ourselves had thought of puncturing that little idiocy of the Advertiser; but out of consideration for the gentleman who wrote the review and the others who concurred in it, we refrained. We do not believe that they were, in any way, responsible for so preposterous an assertion. One might as well say that forty politicians' speeches have as much weight as the Constitution of the United States, because forty politicians constructed that instrument. These gentlemen have all too much good sense not to be mortified by thus being made into a brevet supreme bench, and invested with the power and dignity of a high and mighty moot-court. Imagine these quiet, respectable, modest citizens trotted around in this fashion, clothed with goose down for ermine, and "playing" judge,-"Chief Justice" Kent and "associates concurring." (Detroit Lawyers vs. Mich. Sup. Court, S Adv. and Trib.) They have no ambi tion to be made asses of in that way. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the Ad-

that the existence of a rail-road here has awakened now interest in our town, both among its citizens and the outside world. Differences of opinion of course existed as to the best method of bringing about this desirable consummation, but now that we have it we believe all rejoice together. The recent decision of the Supreme Court has placed its projectors in a most unfortunate position before themselves and the public. Those parties have been so confident and overbearing in their dictations, they have used such unscrupulous to honesty and qualifications on the means to secure their ends, as the importing of non-taxpayers by the hundred to vote the tax on part of their public servants. This to those who are obliged to pay, they have done, and the people will no longer curse unworthy politicians, and the press for supporting them. been so intolerant and abusive toward those who desired to reason with them, oven to rotten egging those who were speaking in the public interest, that they must feel their present. plight to be most humiliating indeed. They now come before the public asking sympathy, we say plainly that they have no right to claim it, although under the circumstances it may be our duty to extend it. There is no moral obligation or any other obligation resting on any one to aid them in the disaster except that sort of obligation which makes us run to the rescue of a drowning man. It is certain at least. that no obligation rests upon those who voted against the tax, while only that sort of obligation we have alluded to above rests upon those The sentiment of the General Assembly who did so. A rail-road company, although the managers of a public advantage, as a stage coach or a livery stable, is a strictly private corporation, working mainly for its own advantage. It is not in the benevolent business the rail-road commends itself to us in like manner. No doubt, our cotemporary, the Herald will give us the moral obligation view, and will show us what very wicked people we shall be if we repudiate, &c., &c., but we say in advance such talk is pure gammon. Repudiation is out of the question. The law says it is unlawful to pay, so that no one-will repudiate anything in refusing to do so. But putting this subscription on the proper ground, the ground of helping our fellow men out of a very had scrape, and of securing to our town a continuation of the advantages it has reaped from the rail-road we hope every one will do all he can to raise the Thirty Thousand Dollars. The amount is very small for the town and the offer of the bondholders is very fair. It is proposed to return the bonds of the town when this subscription is secured, and the amounts subscribed are not to be paid until the rail-road reaches Holland. We hope and expect that all the townships between St. Joseph and Holland will make up the necessary amounts and that the road will be completed to Holland within a year. Public spirit on the part of the citizens and pluck on the part of the projectors will enable us to surmount all difficulties growing out of the circumstances in which the very just decision of the Supreme Court has placed is. Pass around the hat and let every one endeavor to do something that our rail-road men may be relieved and this public advantage may be consummated.

Papers Outside of the State on the Supreme Court Decision. "This is but the affirmation of the same decision made in Iowa, and in other States. The courts everywhere are inclining to the opinion that the construction of railways is not a public object for which municipalities may levy taxes, and that unless there be an authority in the State to levy a general tax for such an object, no county can be authorized to do so. It requires, therefore, an express constitutional warrant to authorize the collection of any tax for such

There will be some very loud complaints against this decision as to its effects upon the bonds already issued, as well as those voted but not issued; but the rule of law to the people they would reject it. laid down by the Supreme Court, is that he who purchases the bonds of public corporation takes his own risk as to their validity and legality. The people of Michigan, who have been rescued by this judicial decision from this debt of $7,500,000, which for half a century would hang as a mortgage upon their property, will, before long, admire the wisdom and the firmness of the court which has thus interposed the constitution to save them from interminable and consuming taxation."-Chicago Tribune. "The effect of the decision will be the killing of a dozen, more or less, of projects which had no foundation in necessity, and which would have imposed a serious burden upon the taxpayers of that State with out returning to them compensating benefits. The ease with which railroads could be built under such a law brought to the surface hundreds of speculators in railroads, and their projects were, as a rule, for their own benefit solely. Probably one-half of the railroads in Michigan projected under that law would never have paid the stockholders a cent, in the way of dividends, or benefited the State to half the amount expended in their construction.

It is very evident that the people, in their constitutional conventions, should settle practical questions of this sort that public enterprises essential to the progress and prosperity of the people may go forward without danger of being wrecked on some legal snag which they may encounter in their course. Many of the legal opinions and precedents now productive of embar-rassment were laid down under different conditions of society. The world has outgrown many of them, and we need that they should be set aside before they are productive of farther injury."-Toledo

"There is no doubt that the principle of the decision just made is sound in law, nor that it is salutary in policy. Michigan is not the only State which has suffered by the mania for building railroads. Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, California, and New York have each adopted the plan of town aid, and will each be affected by the principle which has just been determined by the Michigan decision. In this State there are millions of dollars of bonds which have been issued by towns in aid of railroads and which are as illegal as those just discredited in Michigan."—New York Times.

"Until of late, courts seem to have been disposed to strain the law on the side of railroad companies, and some of their decisions have gone to the verge of legalizing confiscation. By what right a State can authorize the citizens of a town or village to take a vote by which a majority can mortgage the property of the minority without their consent, and give away the mortgage or its proceeds to a mere private enterprise, we have never seen satisfactoriy explained. In Wisconsin, the Supreme Court has held that money could not be raised by taxation to be given away to any private purpose. To evade this, it is proposed that the company shall pay for the bonds received in its stock. But where the State is itself prohibited from embark ing in any public improvement, how can it authorize its counties, towns, etc, to do what it cannot do itself? The point has not, that we are aware of, been decided in Wisconsin; but the action of the Supreme Court of Michigan seems to foreshadow what may follow in other States, when courts have the same issue plainly presented."— Chicago Republican. "The decision is a death-blow to a large amount of Michigan railway bonds. It is estimated that over $7,000,000 of such bonds have been issued, by different counties, cities and towns, about a million and a half have passed into the hands of bona fide holders. Toward such holders the decision works injustice, and some way ought to be devised for their relief. But as regards the $6,000,000 of bonds that have been issued, but not yet delivered, and as regards the additional millions that would be issued, were not the process brought to a round stop, the decision is one that rescues the people of Michigan from the ruinous consequences of the most suicidal poli cy that the speculative spirit over devised."

Insanity and Lawlessness. There are two theories up in which men who murder their rivals in love are ac quitted of guilt. The first and the most popular just now is, that the murderer is neane. In others words, that it is not a rational deed: that no man in his senses would think of remedying what he conceives to be his injuries in that way; that if he saw things in their true relations, he would perceive that that is not the proper which has been disturbed. If he were a sane man, he would either confess that the woman was unworthy of him and his affections, or that he was unworthy of her

To the extent that such a the here is no more of a judicial standard than between two Feejee chiefs, trying to brain each other with their clubs for the possession of a woman. If this theory be the true one, it necessarily leads to some conclusions which people will not be so ready to accept. If these relations lie outside of codes and courts, if the only tribunal is that set up by the man with the pistol in his 'hand, necessarily the accused has the right to appeal to the same. If the pistol is the judge as well as the executioner, then by every legitimate and fair consideration, the accused person may claim his rights under the same jurisdiction. If the law ignores him, he owed no duties to the law. If he shoots first, he has committed no offence against the law, because there is no law. By the very conditions assumed in behalf of the husband, the paramour is relieved from responsibility to any one but the husband. If he discharges that responsibility at the same time with his pistol, he has fully answered his arraignment. This is said on the assumption that the judge, that is the husband, is fully qualified for that position. The most elementary and the essential judicial qualification is purity. A corrupt udge is a paradox. He ceases to be a adge when he commences to be corrupt. A husband who murders his rival must himself be entirely innocent of licentious crime, else is his judgment a mockery and his sentence a fearful farce. It is evident, that with all these disagreeable difficulties surrounding the second theory, the first is most generally resorted to. Men instinctively believe that it is better for society, on the whole that it is a much safer solution of the problem, to say that a man is not in his senses when he shoots a successful rival, than to say that he is lawless, and that only by chance should he be the homicide instead of the victim.

If, therefore, no sane, sensible man will yenge his "honor" by killing him who he ninks has stained it, those who resort to that method ought not to be at large. They are dangerous to the peace and welfare of society. They belong to the class of demented with homicidal tendencies. Detroit Post.

Orthography-No. 1. Orthography is the science or art of spelling by letters. More strictly, it is the art of properly representing words in writing and printing. The term itself means "correct writing." These definitions should be carefully noted. If rightly used, they would reform the methods of instruction in this branch, which have come down from the dark ages, and are still too common in our schools.

The uses of spelling have been overrated. It is mainly an accomplishment, rarely attained in perfection. and chiefly useful in giving reputation to its possessor, or rather abating from the reputation of one who is deficient in it—this only to a limited extent, however, principally among those who see his account-books, correspondence, or contributions to the press. It is possible for a man to be singularly well developed in his mental faculties, thoroughly disciplined and sufficiently of certain lands granted to the Southern Pa- informed for the business of life, fitted for eminent usefulness and happiness, and yet be a very poor speller. Indeed, the writer must confess, after many years of wide correspondence with liberally-educated men-authors, State, County, and City Superintendents of Public Instruction, professors in colleges and normal schools, men of exact scholarship in many departments of learning-that he has seldom found one perfect in his orthography. One of the most distinguished citizens of this State, at an earlier day, invariably wrote "rale-rode." Anecdotes of the eccentric orthography of celebrities are numberless. It would require gigantic powers of memory or perception, and the labor of a lifetime, to master the 114,000 words claimed as belonging to the English language: For practical use, however, this is quite unnecessary. The most learned men use but a few thousand words in their writing; the common people only a few hundred. But these are spelt, for the most part, in an irregular and unreasonable way. Two sounds are sometimes represented by six letters, as in though. Two letters may represent three sounds, as in ox. Ough is pronounced in ten dif-ferent ways in English words, and the sound of long a is said to have twentyfour letters and combinations of letters to represent it. The language is full of such absurdities. In comparatively few cases do the sounds that compose a spoken word correctly suggest the letters that represent them in the written. It is not wonderful, then, that we find few exact spellers-the less so when the current unphilosophical and almost worthless methods of instruction come into the account. The ordinary study and practice of orthography have little value as means of mental discipline. No faculty but memory is developed, to any large extent, by oral spelling; and the kind of memory thus exercised is the least valuable. The guess-work in which most of our teachers, unhappily, encourage their pupils-the hap-hazzard fitting of letters to sounds-brings more important faculties into play but this does not compensate for the injury done. I shall have occasion to refer to this again. Spelling by writing is more valuable, exercising not only memory, but perception, comparison, and (in a limited way) imagination. This is the only proper method of instruction for all grades, until, at least, the methods in some other branches are reformed. When these are so changed as to train the pupil to an amendment appropriating $80,000 for the | swift, exact perception of forms, with unerring recollection and prompt reproduction of them, we shall have pupils who spell rightly without effort, even without special instruction in orthography. The sight of a word will engrave it, in every detail of its form, upon the mind forever. They will view it, when incorrectly spelled, as experienced proof-readers say they do. as a marred or imperfect picture, that they may restore to perfection by the insertion of a missing letter or the substitution of a correct for a wrong one. When called upon to write the ing $40,000 for the survey of the Isthmus of word, they will see it clearly "in the Darien, so that it may be expended under di- mind's eye," and represent it with onrection of the War or Navy Department. HURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1870. DUTY OF THE PEOPLE AND THE

It is a fact undeniable that a party Ig in power attracts to its organition a corrupt office-seeking element, ich only seeks the party for spoil, d not on account of any principles doctrine advocated by such party. his is not the case with all who leave e folds of one party and seek fel-wship with another. It was not so th multitudes who fled from the sinkg Democratic party, when that parforsook the government of our thers. While the ranks of the Reiblican party were swelled beyond recedent by accessions of hosts of bod and true Democrats, it also relived an element of corruption. mong its accessions were those whose fe was devoted to office-seeking. This lement, together with a kindred elelent which exists in all parties, whethdominant or not, has well nigh deroved the Republican influence with he people in many localities. This lement, if allowed to control party

That the Republican party has withh it this wire-pulling, corrupt, officeeeking element to an alarming exent there is no use of denying. The acts being admitted, next comes the emedy. This lies primarily with the eople. They are the sovereign powr in political organizations and govrnments. If they will but assert heir rights and discharge their duties ill will be well; but if they neglect hese, then nothing but certain disaser awaits the Republican party. We know this is plain talk, but nevertheess true. In order, then, for the Republican party to retain its hold upon the affections of the people, it must rise, as one man, and set a face of flint against all corruption in office. Let political ricksters and office-seeking demagogues be discarded as unworthy the rountenance of a great national party. In order that this may be accomplished, let the people demand of the Republican press, all over the country, the constant advocacy of these principles, and if they will not speak for the good of the people, the country, and the honor of the party, let the people refuse their support and patronage. We understand the duty of the press to be, to advocate the local and general good. When a paper departs from this path it is no longer worthy the support of the party. When a paper will allow by threats or promises, to be made the tool of any political trickster or ring, then it becomes the organ of a corrupt cause, and hence is wholly unworthy the support of a free people. Next, let the people look out among themselves, and seek for honest, good and true men to become their servants in office. Let them countenance the nomination of no others. Give the man, that would serve the people, to understand that he is expected to rise above common political trickery in order to secure their support—that he must be a man in every sense of the word. Let him understand that their honor, the honor of the party, and the honor of the nation is to be committed to his care, and woe be unto that man who dares to betray it. To accomplish this, let the good and true men in the party, every one, be in attendance at the Township caucuses, at the primary political meetings, and then select only such men to represent them in convention as will faithfully look to the securing of honest and true men for their public servants in office. If this course is taken, all unworthy officers, office-seekers and political demagogues will soon be laid on the shelf, and the Republican party deepen and widen its hold on the affections of the people. Set these things at defiance, and only political

We are glad to notice that many of our brethren of the press begin to discern these things, and we trust they may grow stronger and stronger, till only the public good shall stand uppermost in every Republican heart. Let the people of Berrien County de-mand this of the County press. Let them look for faithful men to serve them in office. Let the Republicans of the Second Congressional District look about and choose a man of undoubted integrity and ability to serve them as Representative in Congress, a man beyond the pale of suspicion, who has not spent his life in seeking for office. In this connection we are glad to notice that the name of Capt. Burrows, of Kalamazoo, is meeting with much favor. A better choice. we do not believe, can be made in the entire district—a choice to which the people would respond a heartier amen. Let the Republicans of the State, at large, look for men to whose hands they can trust the interests of a great commonwealth. Let this be done without special reference to locality, but with special and careful reference disaster will be the inevitable result.

We are generally losers in the end, we stop to refute all the back-bitings and gossipings we may hear by the way. They are annoying, it is true, but not dangerous, so long as we do not expostulate and scold. Our characters are formed and sustained by ourselves, by our own actions and purposes, and not others. Always bear this in mind, that "calumniators may usually be trusted to time and the slow but steady justice of public opinion."

Philadelphia, in reference to organic union with the Southern Presbyterian Church, seems to be unanimous in its favor.

On Monday evening a meeting was held at Preston's Hall by the citizens of St. Joseph, on the subject of Railroad Aid. A proposition was submitted by Hon. A. THE NILES REPUBLICAN AND THE SUPREME COURT DECISION .- The Republican says of the Supreme Court

Many thinking men have all along held serious doubts of the constitutionality of the law authorizing these bonds, and the test case just decided has confirmed the soundness of their judgment. It is natural that the people, so eager for the roads they hoped would bring them greatly increased prosperity, should regret the decision. We expect, therefore, to hear some fault-finding, some impatient and unjust criticism. But we are satisfied that after time has been given for calm reflection the integrity as well as the soundness of the Court will be unquestioned. The decision will at least give us pause, and we shall have time to consider whether really the benefits we hoped to receive were worth the high price we were sure to pay. It may be that the second thought of the people will answer this question in will. We should, at least, accord due honor to a Court whose judgement and independence have led them to render a decision, in so important a case, in direct opposition to the general action and widely expressed wishes of the people who elect them to

The Buchanan Cornet Band returns their sincere thanks to the citizens of Buchanan and vicinity, for their liberal patronage on the evening of the festival, and especially to the ladies who labored so faithfully to make it a success. FOURTH OF JULY. The question of having a grand old celebration the coming Fourth is being agitated somewhat among our citizens, and it is now time that some definite arrangements were being made, as it is only a little more than three weeks before it will be here. This time-honored anniversary has been slighted for the past few years by the people of Bu-chanan and vicinity. This will never do. There is but one view to be taken of Fourth of July demonstrabe a lecture at New Buffalo, on the same night, at McOarten's Hall, by Mrs. Jacobs, on the "Pleasures and Beauties of City Life." At the close, the juveniles will sing "The Death of Bunker Hill," accompanied by the plano. Tickets, 50 cents, including the walk on the veto, to view the harbor.

Yours, &c.,

John Stranger,

(Brother of Stranger.) tiens all over the country. Let us' make amends for our seeming negligence in celebrating this day of all other days in such a manner as shall inspire anew, and wake up the sleeping patriotism of Berrien County, and that will be a pride and glory to our citizens. THE NILES DEMOCRAT AND THE SUPREME COURT DECISION .- The following is from the Niles Democrat on the late decision of the Supreme Court:

cratic press of the State the Railroad Aid Law, which came up before the Supreme Court for a second hearing, on Tuesday of last week, has been decided unconstitutional, Cooley, Christiancy and Campbell agreeing, Graves dissenting. This decision, unless remedied in some way, will work dire calamity to some portions of the State. As far as Niles is concerned, however, her people do not feel as bad as they might under different circumstances. The course pursued by the court in deciding in accordance with their convictions, regard. less of the outside pressure which was. brought to bear on them, has inspired anew with confidence those who had lost the faith in Judicial, as well as all other departments of the government."

"The Oldest and the Newest Empire China and the United States," is the ti tle of a new work now in press, of 700 pages, by Wm. Speer, D. D. The work will be issued from the well-known publishing house of Jones, Junkin & Co., Chicago, Ill. The growing interests in our country, relative to the Chinese, in consequence of large numbers emmigrating to our shores, makes this work peculiarly timely. No man, perhaps, in any country, is better qualified to give a readable and reliable work on the subject, than is Rev. Mr. Speer. He was a Missionary among the Chinese, in their own country, from 1846 to 1852, and for the last eighteen yeurs has been engaged in preaching among that people in Galifornia. Of his qualification for the work, Harper's Magazine says: "We believe that there are not five men, European or American, who are as thoroughly acquainted as Dr. Speer with the Chinese in their own country. We think there is no other man so fully conversant with the Chinese in California. From the advanced pages of this new book already received, we are confident that its interesting character will secure for it an extended sale. The work will be sold only by subscription, and the Publishers desire Agents for every County, City and Township in the United States.

County Correspondence,

June 4th, 1870. EDITOR RECORD :-- As you have no regular correspondent from this place, permit me to note a few items. The weather is very dry, and crops have suffered from the drought, and potato bugs are very numerous, which adds to the disadvantage.-Improvements are rapidly going forward. Mr. C. M. Bayard is building a fine store, 22x50, which will be completed by the 4th of July. Mr. C. Spencer is refitting and repainting his dwelling. Many other buildings are being erected, which adds materially to our quiet place .- We have had nothing to excite our minds and disturb our peace for a long time past until Sunday, May 29th, when the late "Four Apostles" (for so they called themselves) of B---, came here on their journey to Brown's pier, on a fishing excursion. Thinking that a good supply of whisky was all that was needed, they found that that alone would not sustain life, therefore procured six dozen eggs and pursued their ourney, but when they arrived at New Troy they did not know eggs from apples, and eat them shells and all. When they reached the pier they cast achor, and let down their net, but with a fisherman's luck. Z. became discouraged, whereupon he exclaimed, "The Apostle Peter walked upon the water, and so can I." He then sprang into the lake and made for Chicago. But his whisky being stronger than his faith, he began to sink, and called out, "Save me, or I perish!" The other so-called apostle stretched out his hand and took him in, saying, "Wherein didst ye doubt, oh ye of little faith?" Concluding that whisky and water did not work well together, and fishing had "played out," they set out for home. Z. having more mud than fish, was obliged, upon arriving at New Troy, to hire some oue to wash his feet and boots. Poor Z's hat perchanced to get so badly demoralized that it would not shade his head, and, as his hair was so red, and the sun so hot, he imagined that he was in an awful state of existence. Thinking something wet would quench the fire, stopped at Hill's Corners, took some beer, and set out for home, B-. Weesaw is a very quiet place, except when disturbed

More anon. Respectfully yours,

From Bridgeman's. June 3, 1870. EDITOR RECORD :- Being at Painterville yesterday morning, at an early hour, I was surprised to find my old friend "Jo. Baker," of Three Oaks, who appeared very glad to see me. "Jo." appeared tired, and, "played," as he called it. He said he had just come from "Stranger's" as he would have liked his company to Stephensville, as he (Jo.) was going to deliver a temperance lecture that evening; but as "Stranger" had e-ten too many walnuts at Jer-usha's wedding, he felt sick and was not able to go. So I told "Jo." I would go along, as I was greatly in favor of temperance. Arriving was greatly in favor of temperance. Arriving at Stephensville at 10:22 a. m., "Jo." said we had better go and see Bill. So I followed him out of the Depot, down Mechanic Street, thence up Main Street until we came to a daguerrean gallery on wheels. After looking at some of the pictures, we went in a flour and feed store to see Bill, whom I found to be W. K. Sawyer, of Three Oaks. He was very busy, as he had to ship three car loads of bolts that day. Mr. Sawyer advised "Jo." to come there day. Mr. Sawyer advised "Jo." to come there and locate, as there was a good chance for any good business man, and lots could be bought cheaper now than a month hence. He then showed us a corner lot 50x100 feet that was sold last week for $100. There is now a fine grocery store, that will be finished next week. Mr. Sawyer informed us that that large building next to his was a boarding house, and that he expected ton or twelve boarders next week Feeling thirsty, I enquired for a spring. "Jo." said there was a good spring at the edge of the woods, and on following the path that led to the spring, we discovered a large crowd of men on the corner, expecting, of course, they had come to attend the lecture. But Mr. Sawyer said they were going to move that shanty; acrossed the road for a saloon, and that the proprietor had furnished some cider. Some said it made them sick, while others declared hour, we came back and found the crowd was gone and the shanty still remained. But on looking around, we found they had got tired of standing, so they laid down the first place ther came to. As matters appeared very un-settled, "Jo." was advised to postpone the lecture, until things became more zettled. Just at this time, the train came along and left some programmes of the pic-nic at Chikaming, at the Chief's; also that the Stars, of New Buffalo and the first nine of St. Joseph are to play s social game of ball, and that the Troy and Chikaming Township Sabbath Schools are to unite and hold a ple-nic at the same place. A general invitation to all. The St. Joseph Band is to play for the occasion.—There will be a lecture at New Buffalo, on the same night,

From Berrien Township.

EDITOR RECORD :- One day last week, as a party of men were engaged in repairing the highway in the Township of Berrien, the bank gave way, and a large stone fell upon Mr. George Sidle and crushed him in such a manner that, notwithstanding all was done for him that medical skill could devise, (Dr. Pierce attended him) he died from the effects of the bruises on Tuesday last. He was a young man, aged about twenty-five, and much esteemed by all who knew him. The circumstances attending this case are pecu liarly sad and calculated to call forth the deepest sympathies of the human heart. About five years ago, his father died, leaving the sole care of an aged mother, two sisters and one small brother in his hands. With a stout heart he assumed the task, and right well did he perform it. too. But, now, in a moment, he is strick-en down and their hearts are left desolate and sad. George is, I believe, the eighth child that his stricken mother has followed to the grave.

restoring the blood to a neutral condition. No person can take those Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$160 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Goud. Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Ramittant and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such diseases are caused by vitiated blood, which is gererally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs. Cleanse the Vitiated Blood wherever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or S. res; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and alugish in the voins: cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

In Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, these Bitters have no equal. For full directions read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

God led me to his gallery.

His next was a Summer scene,
The bees were at work in the clover, And the forest deep and green, And a snare of golden sunlight

Hung o'er it like a dream. God led me to his gallery, His next in the series Fall; A hectic flush was penciled In brightness over all,

And a purple, dreamy vapor Curtained the mountains talk I stood within his gallery, It was a time of night;

And Winter closed the series, In a statue, still and white, While the star lamps all were burning With a reverential light. Spring, Summer, and rare Autumn

Were wonderful to see, But the grand, white status, Winter, Was glorious to me, All radiant from the fingers That carved eternity.

The Charms of Life.

There are a thousand things in this world-to afflict and sadden; but, oh, how many there are beautiful and good! The worrd teems with beauty-with objects that gladden the eye and warm the heart. We might be happy if we would. There are ill; which we cannot escape—the approach of disease and death, of misfortune, sundering of earthly ties, and the canker-worm of grief—but a vast majority of the evils that beset us might be avoided. The curse of intemperance, interwoven as it is with the ligaments of society, is one that never strikes but to destroy.

There is not one bright page upon the record of its progress, nothing to shield it from the heartless execuation of the human race. It should not exist-it must not. Do away with all this; let wars come to an end, and let friendship, charity, love, purity and kindness mark the intercourse between man and man. We are too selfish, as if the world were made for us alone.—How much happier should we be were we to labor more earnestly to promote other's good! God has blessed us with a home which is not all dark. There is sunshine everywhere—in the sky, upon the earth; there would be in most hearts if we would look around us. The storms die away, and the bright sun shines out. Summer drops her tinted curtain upon the earth, which is very beantiful, even when autumn breathes her changing breath upon it. God reigns in Heaven. Murmur not at a world so beautiful and who can live happier than we.

A Sure Refuge.

It is not exemption from poverty, but what makes a poor, a contented man; nor exemption from pain, but what turns a bed of thorns into one of roses; nor peace with others, so much as with one's self, with our conscience-man's truest friend or direst foe; peace with god, in fact, through the blood of his Son Jesus Christ. It is what we want. Possessed of that, I am hid in God's pavilion, under the spread and shadow of his wings. Possessed of that, I bar out the troubles of the world, and hear but the roar of the storm. Possessed of that, I have a refuge where they cannot, at least need not, enter; to which I retreat, as the sea birds, when the sky grows black and the wind blows high, leave the waves and wing their screaming flight to the clefts and crevices of the rock -or as some say the eagle does, when, to escape the turmoil of the tempest, she soars aloft, till, from the skies of calm serenity and unclouded sunshine, she looks down on the storm below.—Dr. Guthrie.

What Constitutes Hell.

Dr. Norman Macleod is credited in one of our exchanges with the following: Let the fairest star be selected, like a beauteous island in the vast and shoreless sea of the azure heavens, as the future home of the criminals from the earth, and let them possess whatever they most love, and that is possible for God to bestow; let them be endowed with undying bodies, and with minds which shall ever retain their intellectual powers; let no Savior ever press his claims upon them, no God reveal himself to them, no saint ever live among them, no prayer ever be heard within their borders; but let society exist there forever, smitten only by the leprosy of hatred to God, and with utter selfishness as its all-prevading and eternal purpose—then, as sure as the law of righteousness exists, in which rests the throne of God and the government of the universe, a society so constituted must work out for itself a hell of solitary and bitter suffering, to which there is no limit except the capacity of a finite nature! Alas! the spirit that is without love to its God or its neighbor, is already possessed by a power which must at least create for its own self-torment a worm that will never die, and a fire that can never more be quenched!

____

The Tragedy of Life. Life is a monstrous disappointment, and death the only portal to peace.—There is not a day that passes in which some poor, harassed or frenzied creature does not rush madly upon death; in which the good are not persecuted and the weak trampled upon. Behind windows you look heedlessly at tragedies red as any history or fiction ever painted, are being played, and faces you admire mask with smiles an inward torture worse than the agony of the rack. Who, even in this audience, has realized the tulfillment of his early hope? Whose life has not its mortifications, its bitter concealments, its studied evasions, its poignant humiliations, its wild uneasiness, its wrestlings and defeat? But we do not represent life. We represent the fairest portions and the highest level of it. Be neath us is the great mass of humanity, and they writhe, and moan, and weep they toil, and starve, and curse, and fight and die. The world goes roaring on as heedless of those who fall as the gale in autumn is heedless of the leaves it strips from the tree, or the branches it wrenches away.—Rev. W. H. Murry.

Silent Influence.

It is the bubbling stream which flows gently, the little rivulet which runs along day and night by the farm-house that is useful, rather than the swollen flood or winding cataract. Niagara excites our B. BLAKE, Proprietor. wonder, and we stand amazed at the power Magara is enough for the world, while the same world requires thousands and tens of thousands of silvery fountains and gently flowing rivulets, that water every farm and meadow and every garden, and that shall flow on every day and every night with their gentle, quiet beauty. So with the acts of our lives. It is not by great deeds like those of the martyrs, that good is to be done. It is by the daily and quiet vir-tues of life—the Christian temper, the like those of the martyrs, that good is to be done. It is by the daily and quiet virtues of life—the Christian temper, the meek forbearance, the spirit of forgiveness in the husband, the wife, the father, the mather, the brother, the sister, the friend, the mather, the brother, the sister, the friend, the list to be done.

MRS. ALLEN'S

Hair Restorer & Zylobalsamum Are so uniformly grateful and beneficial, that they are with justice called the natural strengtheners of the human hair. They are two entirely separate and distinct preparations, not to be used together at one time.

Mrs. Allen's Hair Restorer Never fails to satisfy the most refined and cultivated. A guarantee goes with every bottle, that it will quickly restore gray or white hair to its original youthful beauty, gloss and color; after its use a few times the hair will grow thicker and stronger. It will stop its falling and induce a healthy and luxuriant growth. It is an exquisite hair dressing, agreeable, harmless and healthy. Entirely different from most other preparations for the hair, its comgiving life and vigor to the Roots.

Mrs. Allen's Zylobalsamum This exquisite preparation is free from any sediment, and is a toilet treasure. The urgent want of a simple Hair Dressing, for the youth of both sexes, first induced the manufacture of the Zylobalsamum, and the sale of it is perfectly immense, not only in this country, but in Europe.

EXTRACTS FROM A FEW LETTERS. "Your Zylobalsamum is used by every member, young and old, of our family, and we consider it invaluable. Should any gray hairs appear, we shall try your Hair Restorer, which we hear very highly spoken of."

"Father and mother use your Hair Restorer, and are delighted with it. It soon restored their gray lookato their youthful color, but daughters and son still find in the Zylobalsamum all their hair requires."

and son suit and in the Dylobalanting at their hair requires."

From the Principal of one of our large Female Seminaries: "Your Zylobalantin has been used for many years by myself and family, and is the favorite among our young ladies." Sold by all Druggists. Wholesale Depot, B. R. VAN DUZER & 00., 35 Barolay St.
