HIDDEN ENEMY.

He stalketh abroad with his hydra head,

He nerves the arm of relentless hate, In the beggar's moan, at the palace gate, And curses the poor man's home. He barters the wealth of a spotless name

For the wine-cup's subtle glow, And scathes the pinions of deathless fame, Till they drop with their burden of grief and shame 'Mid the dregs of sin and woe.

And there cometh ever a sorrowing wail
In the path of his blighting tread,
And childhood's cheeks grow, wan and pale,
And its heart is faint and its lootsteps fail,
For he grudgeth the poor man's bread. 'Grudgeth the poor their bread,
And fills the drunkard's bowl.
With want and shame, remorse and dread,
With a nerveless hand and a failing head,
And a curse on his deathless soul.

And beauty and manhood, love and mirth Still turn to the laughing wine;
But the blighted hopes and darkened hearth,
And tears of the sorrowing ones of earth,
Lie deep in the gleam and shine.

Original Story.

Written for the Berrien County Record. GUY HOWARD'S REWARD.

BY P. B. BOSTWICK.

[CONTINUED.] "Do you like school teachers, Mr. Howard?" asked Vio, after nearly every topic of interest had been exhausted, while a mischievous twinkle lighted her roguish eyes. "School teachers!" he ejaculated,

"no; I have a perfect horror of them. My earliest recollections of the time I gloried in short dresses are vividly associated with a certain maiden lady who endeavored to make my young ideas shoot by freely administering a tough hickory switch. And the hair that broke the camel's back was the the Countesses de Castigilone. Their time she sent me out to cut a good, stout whip, for the purpose, she said, but Vio's is of the heart. She suddenly stopped, bit her lips, and blushing violently, commenced playing, with the napkin ring.

"Very favorable opinion of your-self," added her mother, smiling at Vio's attempts to appear at her ease. Guy Howard, had traveled considerable; had visited nearly all the principal places of note in Europe, in the capacity of private secretary to his uncle, who had been sent several times on some secret foreign mission by the government, and at the time of his death, was in its employ at St. Petersburgh.

Guy had seen beauty in its most glorious forms. The daughters of Spain, with that stately step and flashing glance which gives, even to the meanest of them the semblance of a princess of romance—the high-browed dame and the tender-eyed peasant girl of Italy—the fair-haired belles of Northern Europe, whose dazzling complexions and cold man-ners remind one of their own wild legend of the snow woman-even the romantic loveliness of the houri's of Eastern life had left their image upon his memory and their similitude upon his pictures. But how cold, how tame, how lifeless are all such recollections now! Thus he spoke to his aunt one day, not many weeks after the party, who had been reproving him for neglecting to fulfil the invitations that poured upon him daily, by scheming mammas who had marriageable daughters, and considered Guy a good "catch," as he might eventually fall heir to his aunt's handsome fortune, i. e. if she concluded to die within any reasonable length of time. "So you consider all the royal beauties of Europe nothing when compared with that vixen across the way, to whom you are so very devoted of late?" said Mrs. Arnold, in a displeased tone. "What you can see so veryattractive and fascinating in her is beyond my comprehension.

"I do not contend she is as lovely

To prove my assertion I have only to refer you to the lives of the celebrated beauties I have mentioned, and what is their record? Did they not, by their dazzling beauty and fascinating and empires, that they might possess power and force? What cared they for the lives that were sacrificed and erine de Medicis, or of Queen Elizabeth, of England, and in our day, that of Queen Isabella, of Spain, and tell Do you entertain that opinion of me, if you can, a beautiful woman possesses a heart; and a host of others I might mention could I recall "And they are all associated in their names. "The sentiments I have expressed are my firm and deliberate convictions, and will remain so until you can prove anything to the contrary. Until then, let us waive the subject. Could the reader have seen Guy Howard at that moment, with eyes sparkling, cheeks all aglow, his every motion indicating the deep interest he felt in the subject under discussion, others came up and commenced gaily | and heard the eloquent words as they rolled from his lips, he would have played nearly everything she knew; for him, she asked: "Is there anything else?"

Guy soon discovered that Vio's

"Yes; there is one song. I have never heard you sing yet, and I think it is a charming piece— Little Maggie May.' "

"Really, I had fotten all about it: A friend gave it to me a few days ago. It is a beautiful song."

"Did you know, Vio," he softly whispered, while turning the leaves for her, "that whenever I hear that song it reminds me of you?"
"How so?" she answered, carelessly running her fairy fingers, (so Guy thought), up and down the ivory keys, whose clear whiteness could not rival her pretty, rose-tinted fingers. "Haven't you got 'rougish jet black eyes,' and don't you 'sing all the day,' sometimes?" "Mr. Howard," if you don't stop talking such nonsense I will surely get angry," trying her best to look displeased, while a soft blush suffused her cheeks. The playful smile, the look of mingled pleasure and injury, and the touching eloquence and grace of her whole expression and attitude, were a study worthy of Praxiteles; tiful as Venosas, or as handsome as and Guy, entranced and almost breathless with admiration, dare not speak for fear of losing the sweet picture. Slyly glancing through the long lashes that swept her cheek, she encountered his ardent gaze bent upon her, and said in a tone that was meant to imply she was highly offended:

The Lion in his Old Age.

When a young lion reaches the age of two years, he is able to pull down a horse or an ox; and so he continues to grow and increase in strength till he reaches his eighth year, when his talons, teeth and mane are perfect, and he grows no more. For twenty years after he arrives at maturity, his talons and fangs show no sign of decay, but after that he grows feeble, his teeth fail him, and he grows cubbish. He is no longer a match for the tremendous buffalo, he prowls around the cattle, crawls, and snatches a lamb or a kid, just as he did when he set out with his parents nearly thirty years before. A woman or a child at night shares the same fate. His strength and sight now decline more and more till the mighty lion grows lean and mangy, and crawls about from place to place, eating any offal he can pick up, and despising not even so small an animal as the field mouse, and he starves and dies, or is fallen on and slaughtered by a few cowardly hyenas, or is discovered, unable to move, beneath a tree, and knocked on the head by some wandering Kastir.

Sudden Deaths.

Our old men and women wonder why there are so many more of these now, than when they were young. We often hear the inquiry, "How do you account for so many dying suddenly?" The answer may be found, in the way people live. Excessive eating, drinking, exercise, grief, joy, fear, anxiety, all have been known to cause death. Therefore. one way avoid sudden death, is to live temperately, eat slowly, never become over excited, exercise moderately, use no spirit as a beverage, chew or smoke no opium or tobacco, and avoid taking cold, and sudden changes of clothing; and the number of sudden deaths would diminish

DRIED APPLE PIES. I loathe! abhor! detest! despise! Abominate dried apple pies: I like good bread, I like good meat, Or anything that's fit to eat;
Or anything that's fit to eat;
But of all poor grub beheath the skies,
The poorest is dried apple pies.
Give me toothache or sore eyes.
In preference to such kind of pies.

The farmers take the nurliest fruit.
Tis wormy, bitter, and hard to boot;
They leave the hulls to make us cough, And don't take half, the peeling off, Then on a dirty cord they're strung, And from some chamber window hung; And then they serve a roost for flies Until they're ready to make pies. Tread on my corns, or tell me lies, But don't pass me dried-apple pies.

A French Romance.

One of those little romances of which the French are so fond, has lately taken place in Paris, and is thus described : M. Robert, an immensely wealthy and highly accomplished gentleman, well known, not only for his valuable collections of paintings and medieval relics, but for his skill as a designer and painter; hearing that one of his tenants, a M. B., whom. he had never seen, kept one of the most extensive manufactories of fancy boxes and ornamental objects in France, called on him with a view to make his acquainince.

Entering the counting room, he found good-natured, eccentric gentleman of mid dle age, who greeted him thus:

"I suppose you have seen my advertisement, and have come to apply for that sitment, and have come to apply for that situation as designer?"

For a joke, M. Robert replied that he had. M. B. supplied him with paints and brushes, and requested him to produce a design for a casket. M. Robert soon found that what M. B. really wanted was an extent who would estimate cover out him. an artist who would strictly carry out his own ideas, and that these were pure, and formed on an extensive knowledge of art. He soon produced a sketch which suited his employer to a dot. M. Robert very gravely engaged him self, exacted good wages, and insisted on having several new articles of furniture placed in the room which was assigned to him. But when he was introduced to the work-room and 150 girls, many of them young and beautiful, busily employ ed, and was informed that he would be re quired to supply them with designs and show the young ladies how they were to be carried out, the young artist began to feel as if he should need to be carried out

"Working for a living," he said to himself, "is not entirely devoid of attraction." Being an accomplished artist, he pleased his employer, and delighted in seeing his designs in steel, silver-enamel, or wood. He took a pleasure hitherto unknown in seeing his work in shop windows, in the boudoirs of his friends. This work-shop life was carefully concealed, nor did his employer suspect who he was. But he soon found a more fascinating object in the daughter of M. B., who took part in the duties of the manufactory. She was remarkable for her accomplishments and beauty, and M. Robert soon found, that as regarding taste and culture in all matters which especially interested him, he had tell you a few minutes ago, Mr. Hownever met with one like her. Step by step, the pair tell in love, and he so ingra-tiated himself with the father that, after due deliberation, he consented to their un-

> "And I suppose," added M. Robert, gravely, "that I, too, must settle something on my wife. Well-I will." This caused a peal of laughter, which was redoubled when the artist added: "And I will settle this piece of property, and house and all, with the building adjoining on her." But what was their amazement when he drew forth the title deeds, and said: "You seem to forget that I am your landlord. Isn't my name Robert?" The young lady did not faint, but papa nearly died of astonishment and joy. There was a magnificent wedding, but the bridegroom has not given up business.

Babies in Church. The editor of the Pittsburg Chronicle, a bachelor, for aught we know, thus discourses on the impropriety of taking little babies to church: "Babies are fine things, in their place. We like them at home in the nursery, the only proper place for that class of juveniles coming under the denomination of babies. But, in church, babies are nuisances. Now crowing, now crying, constantly keeping up some noise or other, they disturb the attention of the audience, and disturb the nerves of the speaker. Gingerbread will sometimes keep them quiet. but not often. Babies never sleep in church—not they. They are as wide-awake as weasels, but by no means as still. Some fond mothers take their babies to church for the purpose of showing them. This is a bad policy. Nobody, except the doting parents, ever sees any beauty in babies at church. We never saw a baby yet, however smart at home, that did credit to itself in a public assembly. It would be sure to do something to make everybody hate it before the Burglar-Proof Safes and Oxygen Gas. The recent manufacture of oxygen gas on a commercial scale and the facility with which it can be compressed into cylinders, and transported from one place to another, has suggested its use for a purpose little anticipated by the world at large. We find Henry St. Claire Deville employing oxygen to fuse the most refactory metals; we see it-used for light; and now it is regularly prescribed by physicians, and will before long be sold by every apothecary. There is another application of it that has little been thought of, and which renders it impossible to construct a burglar-proof safe. The thief in the night can place himself in front of the safe with his two cylinders of compressed hydrogen, and with an exy-hydrogen blow-pipe, can, in a few seconds, burn holes of any size in the hardest metal that was ever invented. He need not try to pick the lock, as a manhole, pierced through the door by the heat of his blow pipe, will answer his purpose quite as well. The light of the burning metal would be a source of annoyance to the burglar, but the noise could hardly be heard through the walls. It is evident, that the only safety is in keeping the burglar out, for if he once gets in with his fire-drill, a few minutes is all that he requires to work his way into the strongest safe that was ever constructed. The interposition of solid stone between the sheets of metal might occasion some embarrassment and delay, but there remains the lock with its metal covering, which can be easily burnt off so as to expose its He declares there is more amusement in mechanism, or enable the burglar to slide the bolts, or blow off the door with gun-

In many a housekeeper's bureau drawers, lie old black lace veils, edgings and head dress, faded and rusty, yet not worn cut. By a simple process they can be quickly restored to their pristine beauty. Strain off some black tea from its leaves (having made it too strong to drink,) let it cool until milk warm, pour over the lace, and let it stand several hours, then squeeze it very gently, dipping it frequently into the tea, until it shows that the dirt has been extracted. While the lace lies in the tea, boil a little more with a piece of gum arabic, the size of a small "marble;" when cool to the hand, dip the face mit for a moment; then clap it in the hands until nearly dry, carefully pulling out the edges. Pin it over a pillow on which you have spread a newspaper. Let it dry for several hours or even days. Take the pins out, leaving the lace on the paper, remove from the pillow, cover with another paper, and iron with a coolish flatiron: The lace, if not worn out previously, will look as good as new.

NOT A PARTY MEASURE. From present indications it appears that certain rail-road interests will leave no stone unturned to accomplish their desires. In order to succeed in securing the adoption of a Constitutional Amendment, by the Legislature, to be submitted to the people, it is said these interests are already urging that it is a Republican Legislature, composed of the same persons that passed the Railroad law, and that no one will dare go back on his record. This argument is simply absurd, and it will be so regarded by the people. Yet that this effort, as well as all others, will be put forth to accomplish the object designed, we have no doubt. Every member of the Legislature, that carefully reads the decision of the Supreme Court, cannot fail to see that, if a rail-road aid clause should, through their votes, be inserted in the Constitution, it would be nothing more than legalizing public robbery, and that, too, of the worst kind-taking from the poor, by taxation, and giving it to the rich. It will be no excuse, on the part of a member of the Legislature, that the amendment, if adopted, before becoming a part of the Constitution, must be submitted to the people. It will not do thus to attempt to shirk responsibility. Each member, before going to Lansing, may understand fully the wishes of the majority of his constituents, and hence is bound to carry out that wish, without any reference to a former vote at the time of the passage of the present unconstitutional law. There is no desire on the part of the people, in this section at least, to have this exciting railroad amendment question enter into the political contest this fall. The best thing that could be done. under the circumstances, as the question is not a political one, would be for the voters of every Township in the State, by means of due notice, to get together before the assembling of the Legislature, and by vote or otherwise, express themselves for or against the talked of Railroad aid amendments. This election to be held without distinction of party. If this was done the minds of the whole people could be learned, and the members of the Legislature left without excuse for any action counter to the will of the people. It seems also that a course of this kind would be desirable as well as acceptable to members of the Legislature, thus relieving them of all censure in the premises. FAVORABLE INDICATIONS.

It indicates favorable results to see the Republican press awakening to the importance of sustaining only true men, honest men, for officers of public trust and honor. If this course is persistently carried out, then the people have nothing to fear. But it must be borne in mind that the remedy is in the hands of the people themselves. They must demand that all unworthy officers or candidates therefor be ignored. Let them begin in time, and not wait till it is too late, as is often the case. The primary meetings are the places to attend, and see that they are not packed to go for certain candidates, whether these candidates are worthy or not. Every voter has a duty to perform that no other man can do for him. He forms a part and parcel of the sovereign power of the government, and he cannot throw that responsibil ity off. By failing to fully apprecite this fact, and act accordingly, has been the cause often of unworthy men being placed in official position. Let all the people realize that they have omething to do, that they dare not tand idly by and be guiltless. It is to us, then, a favorable indieation to notice that a number of the Republican papers of the State are peaking the sentiment of reform, and dvocating with a will the ridding of he party of the political tricksters, cho would sink any party they may e allowed to control. The Detroit Idvertiser and Tribune, in commentng upon State politics, and of the osition assumed by the RECORD, and hose papers calling on the people to ike hold of politics, and keep unorthy men out of office, says: "The Hastings Banner strongly urges ie rank and file of the Republican party turn out to its primary meetings and ep corrupt men off from its tickets and nominate only good and capable men. he Buchanan RECORD has a long article, uch of which is to the same purport. admits that the party "has within it a ire-pulling, corrupt, office-seeking eleent to an alarming extent," but insists at they can be made to take back seats the people only resolutely insist upon The Record, in this connection, says: The Republican party, to retain its hold on the affections of the people, must rise, as e man, and set a face of flint against all corption in office. Let political tricksters and ice-seeking demagogues be discarded. #

We understand the duty of the ess to be, to advocate the local and general od. When a paper departs from this path is no longer worthy the support of the party.
hen a paper will allow itself, by threats or pmises, to be made the tool of any political ckster or ring, then it becomes the organ of corrupt cause, and hence is wholly unworthy support of a free people. Because the Tribune would not consent be the "tool of a political ring," war s been made upon it in time past, and kept up to-day, but whether that has en a healthy process for those concerned, the past answer and the future confirm necessary. Constituents, we imagine, will not again attempt to return to Congress an expelled or exmember who resigns to prevent expulsion. It is reported that scarcely a member spoke to Whittemore during the two hours he was in the Hall, and, when the vote was declared, he left without a word from any one.

CABINET CHANGES. Attorney General Hoar has tendered his resignation to the President, which has been accepted. Amos T. Ackerman, of Georgia, has been appointed as his successor. Of him a Washington special to the Chicago

"Amos T. Ackerman was originally from Portsmouth, N. H. He went to Georgia when he was 21 years of age, read law with Judge Barren, of age, read law with Judge Berman, the most noted counsellor of that State, and lives at Elberton, the county seat of Elbert County, some seventy miles up the river from Augusta. He is about 47 or 48 years of age, and has long been regarded one of the ablest lawyers, as he is one of the most modest and unassuming gentlemen, in Georgia. Before the war he was a Whig, and a thoroughly national man. He opposed secession in the most decided manner, and was held in surveillance by the rebels for his hostility. After the Conscription act went into rigid operation, he avoided going into the army by taking a nominal position on the staff of Robert Toombs. This brought him under politi-cal disabilities, which were removed, this winter, by Congress. He holds the posi-tion of United States District Attorney for Georgia, to which he was appointed by the President, on the recommendation of Joshua Hill, warmly endorsed by Mr. Hoar. If Mr. Bradley had been rejected, the Attorney General would have urged his appointment to the Supreme Bench, and the President would probably have nominated him for the vacancy. He was at the head of the Grant electoral ticket in his State during the last canvass, and is spoken of by all who knew him as a man of the highest integrity. He was a member of the convention that formed the present Constitution of Georgia, and distinguished himself therein for his advocacy of the claims of the colored men to hold office. Ex-Governor Brown and Governor Bullock opposed him, and it was their influence that led to the defeat of Ackerman's effort to get a clause into the constitution putting the question at issue beyond all controversy. If his advice to the colored men in that convention had been followed, all the late troubles in that State would have been avoided. He opposed Bullock's elevation to the Provisional Governorship, and is not now among his friends. His course since he was made District Attorney has been such as to win for him high praise from the President and Attorney General's office. He

All the dwelling houses in the district, all the families, name of every inhabitant, age, sex, color, occupation, or profession of each male person over fifteen years, value of real estate owned, place of birth of each inhabitant, marriages within the preceding year, number of persons who have attended school, persons over twenty years of age who can read and write, the deaf and dumb, blind, insane, idiotic and paupers.

2. Number of acres of land improved and unimproved, with the name of the owner, agent or manager, live stock on hand of the different kinds, produce of the farm of every kind during the year preceding 1st of June, 1870. 3. Products of industry of every kind, with the name of the manufacturer producing articles in each year of the value of five hundred dollars, name and kind of business, capital invested raw material used, with statement of the quantities, kinds and values, kinds of motive power and machinery, average number of hands employed, wages paid, etc.

4. Aggregate valuation of real and personal estate, aggregate of taxes assessed, colleges, academies, schools, school-houses, etc., public libraries, periodicals, newspapers, how often published, number of circulation. Has the season produced average crops? What are short? To what extent and the average crop per year. and cause of death. A BURGLAR GOT HIS JUST DESERTS.

The following, from the Chicago Tribune, illustrates the proper treatment to bestow on burglars. It would be a good idea for every person to be prepared to give those night prowlers just such a reception as Knisley gave the burglar in Chicago. A few such receptions will do a hundred fold more to rid the country of these pests, than a thousand police or courts of law. We hope our citizens will prepare themselves to deal properly with burglars and thieves. No man has a ed cannon for a soldiers' monument at Poughises of another after night, and if found there, it shows that he is on some unlawful business, and should be looked after accordingly. The of the law relative to the free transmission of bath-room window and saw a man on the portico. The thief first tried one window, then another, then the front door, but could not open either of them. He finally got back to the bath-room window and opened one of the blinds. While in the act of cutting out a pane of glass, Mr. Knisely took as good aim as he could and fired. Following the shot he heard a low moan and nothing more. Shortly after daylight he reported the facts at the Twelfth Street Police Station, and an officer was sent with him to look for the cracksman. They found blood on the portico and on the ground, and traced it to a fence about seventy-five feet from the portico. They jumped over the fonce, and, about fifteen feet from it, found the burglar, dead. The Coroner was summoned, and, in the atternoon, held an in quest. The ball entered the man's left shoulder and passed through the left lung, and he bled to death. Several detectives were sent for in order to identify him, but none of them knew him. A londed pistol, several cartridges, three knives, a pair of "nippers," a pocket book containing $4.30, and a slip of paper, on which was written "B. C. Yates," were found in the pockets of his clothing. The first joint of his right thumb is missing. The jury re-turned a verdiet that Mr. Knisely was justified in shooting the man, and exhonerated him from all blame."

State Republican Convention. At a late meeting of the Republican State Central Committee it was decided to call the next State Republican Convenand will give general satisfaction. The regular call of the State Committee will soon be made. If Congress should pass the pending apportionment bill giving to this State three additional members in the next Congress, in advance of the completion of the census, it may devolve upon the coming State Convention to nominate the new members "at large" until the new-apportionment could be made by the next Legislature. Otherwise the State would be deprived for several months of her full representation in Congress.

It seems important that County Republican Committees should adopt a uniform system in the election of delegates from the several towns to the county conventions. The basis ought to be either that of population or the Republican vote of 1868, and the last method seems to be the fairer one for all Republicans to be justly represented in such conventions.—Lansing Republican.

The New Apportionment. The House apportionment bill as amended by the Senate, fixes the number of members of the House at 800 instead of 275, as provided by the House bill, after the 8d of March next. The ratio of representation, which it is thought will be about 183,000, will be computed by the Secretary of the Interior upon a preliminary report on population by the Superintendent of the Census, to be made by the 20th of next September. The Representatives of new States are to be admitted in addition to the number of 300 agreed upon. This year, the bill provides that the additional members of Congress each general ticket. The gain of the Northwest under the new apportionment will be remarkable and greatly augment the power of this section in the National councils. The following table is probably pretty nearly correct: Present Uunder the representation. Illinois.....14 Ohio.....19 Indiana.....11 Michigan..... 6 Wisconsin...... 6 Minnesota.... 2 Missouri..... 9

According to the above, Michigan will gain four members, although the first impression was that she would gain but three. What with our usual election for State officers, members of a Legislature who will elect a U.S. Senator to succeed Hon. J. M. Howard, our Congressmen in the six existing districts, and four Congressmen at large to be nominated by the State Convention, and a vote upon four, possibly five amendments to the State constitution, we will

a good, round Republican majority of thirty thousand. True to his early belief. she has developed inexhaustable resources. Which, as he said, in an address before the "Michigan Society," if Michigan was walled in, or completely cut off from all communication with the outside world, the people could still live on, hardly mindful of the change-nature having granted such a diversity of soil and climate, so great variety of products, and so many avenues of industry. From the time of his first election, Mr.

F. has been one of the hardest and most indefatigable workers, using for his constituents the indomitable energy that so distinguished him in private life. The appropriations he has secured for river and harbor improvements, all the way from Holland to Mackinaw, is astonishing. It has grown into a saying, "If a thing can be gotten, Ferry can get it." One reason for this success, is his readiness to always cheerfully help other Representatives, especially from his own State, when it can be done without prejudice to his constitu-

It will be remembered; that last senson the House adjourned some time before the Senate, and nearly all harried away from the heat and dust of Washington. Before leaving, Mr. Beaman and other members supposed they had the promise that a certain disabled soldier should be appointed to an Indian Agency, but by some unexpected turn of the appointment wheel, another name was sent to the Senate. Considerably chagrined, the disappointed applicant called on Mr. Ferry, who, after learning the circumstances, said to him, "Come again, to-morrow, and we will see what can be done." The next day, with the soldier, he went to the Secretary of War, and then to the President, and the very same day, the other name was withdrawn, and Mr. M.'s sent in and confirm-

June 20, 1870. MR. EDITOR RECORD :- I am at a oss what title to give our town. When on my way to New Troy, a few days since, I met a man who inquired the way to Charlotteville, another wishes to know when the cars arrive at Bridgman. And when one asks me my Postoffice address. I tell him Laketon.

you can make the heading to this artikel, "From Laketon, alias Bridgman, alias 'Sharlotvil." When Mrs. Mehitabel V. Sykes took up the pen, Omba and myself considered it uncourteous to intrudé, but as she remains silent I will make the venture. To continue silent would be better than to fill your columns with such nonsensical trash as has lately appeared over the signatures of "Stranger" and "Jo. Baker," which could be of no public interest, and their local "hits" understood by but few. So you will excuse me if I attempt to write something "hefty." There is an appearance of business activity about our town which is in advance of former times. Considerable is done in shipping lumber and other forest products. The saw mills in the neighborhood are in full operation. The old mill here is now in possession of Foster & Buckland, who are adding something to in other towns.

STRANGER. Yours truly, From Niles. June 21, 1870. EDITOR RECORD: -One day last veek a man entered a certain saloon on Main street where a free lunch is usually set out during the evening. "Have some soup?" asked the proprietor. "Wal, I dun know. Haven't not appetite. Guess I will try a leetle." A large soup plate of bean soup was given him. He ate that, and then turning to a plate of onions cut up in vinegar, and sticking his fork into it remarked: "Them inions are jest bully, Capt.!" and without further remark finished it. A plate of lettuce, a plate of cold meat, and a dish of crackers shared the same fate. He went out and in about fifteen minutes returned and asked if the proprietor had anything else for a lunch. "Yes, I have some boiled eggs and pickled tongue." "Give us some," he replied, seating himself at one of the tables. A plate of pickled tongue and a half dozen hard boiled eggs were placed before him. "Is them all the eggs yer's got?" "No."

"Wal, jest give us all yer's got." A dozen more were added. In a short time he got on the outside of all this, then turning around asked for a can of oysters. "We don't keep them now." "I'm sorry. If I only had a can of isters it would give me a good lunch!" Reader, this is a bonafide truth, although you may think it a pretty tough yarn in the eating line. We forgot to add that he drank six or eight glasses of lager beer while eating all this truck. Just imagine a man not over five feet in height, and not very stout built, "stowing away" such an enormous lot of provision, and then declaring it was only a lunchhe wasn't in the least hungry! Monday evening the celebrated Berger family gave a concert at Peak Hall. To say that they drew an overwhelming house is a sufficient evidence of their popularity. This week closes the summer term of the various schools in this city.

The exercises of the Graduating Class of the High School will come off on Friday next, a synopsis of which we will give next week. Diseases of the head, throat, lungs,

To change the subject, Wheat and oats are considerably damaged by the drought, in this vicinity, unless the rain, which has been splashing, dashing down for the past ten days, repairs the damage, which it which it probably will to some extent.

> "mixed," and to suit all parties, and I am, Respectfully, L. C. I. make the matter surely understood, Well, Mr. Editor, I am still a stranger in these parts, and will digress a bit and take another track for a short time, but will bring around on the old track in time to make connection. I find in looking over your paper that the Wolverine people are trying to find me out; but Jo, Baker thinks he has done it certain. It has been generally understood that Jo was a good loyal chap, but from the reading of his letters I would naturally conclude that he was one of the Camp Douglas Chicago conspirators, but I hope the public won't be so deceived in the man. Every once in a while some of those Wolverine, Beach in a while some of those Wolverine, Beach nut or Butternut chaps think they have found me, but they are sadly mistaken. The article in your paper of last week from Jo. Baker, shows that he does not know more than old Solomon did when he was on earth. I would just say to Jo., before he starts out on his next tour to find the Stranger, that he had better call on Peter Craig, the wise man and prophet, and get instructions how to judge of strangers. It appears from Jo. Baker's own saying, that he associated himself at some point with a miserable, lousy cuss, who had the seven-year itch, and took him for the Stranger. He also traveled with him, ate and slept with him, and Jo. still thought he had found the Stranger, and stuck to him, and followed him through all kinds of hog nests. Jo. and his companion, in passing through the woods somewhere, came across a couple on their way to the Wolverme office to get "spliced," having in a bag one bushel and one peck of walnuts to pay Wolverine for performing the coremony. Jo. cheats Wolverine out of these walnuts by telling those two that he could do it as well. After cracking and eating the nuts, the Stranger (as Jo. supposed) started out and Jo. followed him, and by dark Jo. found himself in Camp Douglas, with a thousand and one rebel prisoners, with just as many lice and bugs as could be piled on to him. By this time Jo. had lost his lousy chap that he took for the stranger, and concluded that he had made a mistake. In the morning Jo. found his friend had deserted him, but left with him a million and a half of friends that will stick as close to him as a brother. Well, in this condition Jo. got back to that smashing town, Three Oaks. He said his story was to be continued. I hope that if Jo. writes any more for the paper, that he will put a nub on it, so we can tell what he is driving at. Well, couraged, since the late rains, be-cause of the increased prospect for trying to dispose of the multitude that UNION SCHOOL.—The present term appeared in this journal a fortnight better crops. Wheat is said to be in the cracks of his shop. I tell you, filling well, and, in yield, will greatly excel the expectations of a few weeks ago. The yield throughout Berrien County will, undoubtedly, be rather over than under two-thirds, if not fully three-fourths, of a full crop. Corn is now growing finely, and, if a favorable season hereafter shall follow, the yield in this section must be large, as a greater breadth is planted than has been for several years past. The oats, too, which a fortnight ago, promised a complete failure, now looks favorable for nearly a full crop. With these prospects before the farmer, he has reasons to be encouraged, and the people generally may look for better times for the year to come, than has existed the past twelve months. So may it be. machines recommended as being "just the thing," yet, after a brief period of trial, they, one after another, have been lain aside as worthless. This, case with Doty's Washing Machine, these machines in our family for some six months, and are fully pursuaded of their utility. The expense is not very great, being only fourteen dol-lars. the business of this town. They have purchased the unoccupied part of Traver's building, and are fitting it up for a store: Brown & Medaris already have a good store in the same building. Charley Smith's grocery and provision store (no whisky) is in full blast. (Whisky next door.) Medaris is also turning out large quantities of oak lumber for car building at Michigan City, and for pavements in Chicago. His mill is in the sand hills, from which he has made a good road to the station, one and a half miles, and gives employment to several teams. Mr. S. Sawyer is also still here, making and shipping coopers' materials. A stave factory is nearly completed, situated near the rail-road station, which will add an important item of business, and make market for timber hitherto of but little value. Dr. Berringer took up his abode here several weeks since, and for his benefit we must hope that the general good health which now prevails may not be unin-terrupted. Two dwelling houses have been built, and improvements and additions to others. We notice the very neat front porch which Whitten & Cook have added to Mr. Webster's house. H. W. Whipple's house, on Troy ridge was burned several days stock must be sold withago. The contents were mostly saved. Cause of fire unknown, but it is sup-posed that the settling of the foundation caused a crack in the chimney through which sparks issued. Crops are looking well. Those fields of wheat which were put in according to good farming practice, are as good as

Which are such annoying blemishes to many young persons, yie'd to the use of a few bottles of this wonderful medicine. From one to eight bottles come Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Ring Worms. Boils, Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, Scrotula Sores, Ulcers and "Cunker" in the Mouth and Stomach. It is a pure medicinal extract of nativercots and plants combining in harmony Nature's most severiegn curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick. It is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are languid, eleepless, have narrous apprehensions or fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of nucleises, will find convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated and derivance, thave frequent Headachs, mouth tastes badly in the morning, irregular appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Bittoneness," In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only a part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Plerce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the 'liver strengthened and healthy. For the cure of Habitual Conseigation of the Bowels it is a never failing romedy, and those who have used it for this purpose are loud in its praise. FANCY DRINK.

Made of Poor Run, Whisky, Proof Spirits, And Re-russ Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine, made from the native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alchoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFYER and LIFE GIV-ING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Reporator and Invisorator ING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No percent can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.

§ 100 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Billious, Remittant and Intermitunt Fevers, Discases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such diseases are caused by vitisted blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs. Cleanse the Vitinted Blood wherever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and stuggish in the veins: cleanse it when it is fool, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

FIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

In Billious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, these Bitters have no equal. For full directions read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

From the Muscatine [Iowa] Journal. "Gates Ajar." d Dying Man Sees Millions of Spirit and Recognises Departed Extends in Heaven.

Major Charles E. Fulton, a prominent and highly esteemed citizen of Ottumwa recently Mayor of the city, died on the 2sth of March, under circumstances of a peculiar character. We have read the statement given below with profound interest. We know Mr. Fulton, having met him in business circles, and knowing as we do that he possessed a sound, prac-tical mind, we give full credence to his dy-ing words. He was not a man to be de-luded by any hallucination, or to be carried away in his dying hour by religious fancies. The following account was written by a friend who was with him in his last moments, and was originally printed in the Ottumwa Courier:

About three weeks before his death, he had given up hopes of his recovery, and conversed freely and fully upon the approaching event, evincing no fear or dread of death, and only desiring life for the sake of his family, and repeatedly saying that the faith that had been his through life was sufficient for the hour of death. During the last days of his life he arranged his business, and left kind words of affection and advice to his family and friends with as great composure as in health he had transacted the ordinary duties of life.

In the early part of Sabbath last, and as early as 3 o'clock of March 2S, he recognized the icy arms of death as they began to be folded about him, and at 4 o'clock of March 28, had his children brought and bade them a last farewell, then summoning his failing strength he uttered a pray-

At about 6:30 o'clock he sank visibly into the arms of death, all thinking they had heard the last whisper from his lips. After lying thus for some ten minutes, he aroused with the exclamation faintly uttered: 'Not unto us, oh! Father, but un-to Thee, be all the Glory." Pausing a moment he exclaimed, "Five millions. His wife, leaning over him said, "Newton. what does he mean?" Newton replied "Spirits," he whispered. MRS. ALLEN'S

Hair Restorer & Zylobalsamum Are so uniformly grateful and beneficial, that they are with justice called the natural strengtheners of the human hair. They are two entirely separate and distinct preparations, not to be used together at one time.

Mrs. Allen's Hair Restorer Never fails to satisfy the most refined and cultivated. A guarantee goes with every bottle, that it will quickly restore gray or white hair to its original youthful beauty, gloss and color; after its use a few times the hair will grow this learness. It will stop its thicker and stronger. It will stop its falling and induce a healthy and luxuriant growth. It is an exquisite hair dressing, agreeable, harmless and healthy. Entirely different from most other preparations for the hair, its composition and ingredients are nourishing, giving life and vigor to the Roots.

Mrs. Allen' Zylobalsamum This exquisite preparation is free from any sediment, and is a toilet treasure. The urgent want of a simple Hair Dressing, for the youth of both sexes, first induced the manufacture of the Zylobalsamum, and the sale of it is perfectly immense, not only in this country, but in Europe.

EXTRACTS FROM A FEW LETTERS. EXTRACTS FROM A FEW LETTERS.

"Your Zylobalsamum is used by every member, young and old, of our family, and we consider it invaluable. Should any gray hairs appear, we shall try your Hair Restorer, which we hear very highly spoken of."

"Father and mother use your Hair Restorer, and are delighted with it. It soon restored their gray looks to their youthful color, but daughters and son still find in the Zylobalsamum all their hair requires."

From the Principal of one of our large Female Seminaries: "Your Zylobalsamum has been used for many years by myself and family, and is the favorite among our young ladie."

The reputation this excellent médicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, mainy of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system special of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the imags or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarksanvilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Dining in France.

Some little knowledge of the French language is useful to one traveling abroad, if he does not want to dine as did the Englishman, who knew nothing of French or hotel customs, and was too proud to let his ignorance be known. Seating himself in a restaurant, he pointed to the first article on the bill of fare, and the polite waiter brought him a fragrant plate of beefsoup. When it was dispatched he pointed to the second line. The waiter brought him a vegetable soup. "Rather more soup than I want," he thought; "but it is the Paris fashion." He duly pointed to the third line, and plate of tapioca broth was, brought him. Again to the fourth, and was furnished with a bowl of preparation of arrow-root. He tried the fifth line, and was supplied with some gruel kept for invalids. He determined to get as far from the soup as possible. He pointed, in despair, to the last article on the bill of fare. The waiter politely handed him a bunch of toothpicks! This was too much; the Englishman paid his bill and left.

Too Much for Him .-- A young man who actually desired wealth was visited by his Satanic majesty, who tempted him to dispose of his soul for eternity, if he could be supplied on earth with all the money he could use. The bargain was concluded; the devil was to supply the money, and was at last to have the soul, unless the young man could spend more money than the devil could furnish. Years passed away; the man married, was extravagant in his living, built palaces, speculated wildly, lost and gave away fortunes, and yet his coffers were always full. He turned politician, and bribed his way to honor and fame, without reducing his pile of gold. He became a fillibuster, and fitted out ships and armies, but his banker honored all his drafts. He went to the city to live, and paid the usual rates of interest on all the money he could borrow; but though the devil made faces when he came to pay the bills, yet they were all paid. One expedient after another failed. The devil counted the time only two years that he must wait for the soul: and he mocked the efforts of the despairing man. One more trial was resolved upon ed a newspaper! The devil growled at the bill at the end of the first quarter, was savage in six months, melancholy in nine, and broke, dead broke at the end of the year. So the newspaper went down, but the soul was saved.

A bickering pair of Quakers were lately heard in high controversy, the husband exclaiming: "I am determined to have one quiet week with thee!" But how wilt thou be able to get it," said the taunting spouse, in that sort of reiteration which married ladies so provokingly indulge in. "I will keep thee a week after thou art dead," was the Quaker's rejoinder.

"Mike, if you meet Pat, tell him to make haste." "Sure an' I will," said Mike; "but what shall I tell him if I don't mate him?" "Why, ye spalpeen, don't say anything to him," said the irate Pat. "Then, if ye say so, bedad I won't mention it to him, if he don't come along," which appeared perfectly satisfactory to both

John Wseley, the founder of Methodism, when one day riding through the country, was saluted by a fellow who was lying in a ditch: "Hello, Father Wesley, I'm glad to see you. How are you?" "I don't know you." said Mr. W., manifesting some curiosity, and reining up his horse. "Who are you?" "Why, you are the very man that converted me." "I recken Tam," said the illustrious di-vine, putting spurs to his horse, "as one thing is evident—the Lord had nothing to do with it."

A Sculptor, who was engaged to carve a monument and select an epitaph for a deceased manufacturer of fire-works, seeing the inscription on the tombstone of a celebrated musician—"He has gone to the place where only his own harmony can be exceeded"—and thinking it was a very neat thing, he adapted it to his purpose by changing one word, and carved on the monument, "He has gone to that place where only his own fire-works can be exceeded."

Three brothers bearing a remarkable resemblance to each other, recently went into a barber shop, and on the same day, to be shaved; one going in the morning, the other at noon, and the third at night. When the last one appeared, the barber, who was a German, dropped his razor in astonishment, and exclaimed: "Vell, dat man has got the fastest beard I ever saw; I shaves him dis mornin', and shaves him at dinner times, and he comes back now with his beard as

After using what she wished she gave the remainder to her son—a bright little fellow—with instructions to return them to the neighbor.
