a fair question to ask a man with a cork leg and a bullet in his back, which will stay there until the worms gnaw it out? However, I do carry on this place, in some sort of a way. You never saw a one-legged farmer before? Very likely—it takes my pension to make both ends meet. But I love the loneliness of these wild woods, only relieved occasionally by some queer visitor like you, sir. Won't you come in, sir? Tie your horse to the fence. Ile's a sad looking ani mal, and, to tell the truth, so are you, sir. Both of you have seen better perhaps, than my share of the shad-

If God had pleased just then to have aimed a thousand thunderbolts at me, and shivered me to atoms, I would have thanked him, as I shall thank him now when he sends his messenger. My poor little brother, whom I loved so much was dead! I put his blanket under his head, and spread my handker-chief over his face, and I was just trying to think what to do next, when another ball, aimed at me, struck the ground. I turned like lightning and heart is more than I can bear.' saw the smoke of the discharge saw it just curling away from the foliage of an elm tree standing in an open field, not a hundred yards away, and I knew, the moment I saw it, that the man could hardly escape me, for Ihad learned to shoot. There was a vance of the bush which was supposed to be our cover. Snatching up my rifle I reached it in a dozen bounds, but just in time to receive a third discharge from the tree. The ball struck. my left arm and made a flesh wound: in it. It was very unlucky; it made me feel less sure of vengeance; it bothered me about loading. I crouched down to bind it up with lint as well as I could. It was not very bad. The man in the tree saw that I was wounded, he laughed derisively; he was

I could not see him; he could not see much of me; I made no reply to his remark, but leveled my rifle, using the summit of the hillock for a rest, and hoped that fate would give me a speedy chance to take his life. I waited twenty minutes half an hour, not a sound from the tree; he was wary. I pulled the trigger. A few leaves flew mothing more. Now was the time of my danger. How could I load without exposing myself? It was difficult, but by taking my time, by great care and caution, I had the ball rammed home, something inside that told me I should have his life, I should have been discouraged. As it was, I waited paweeks previous, in throwing out detached sentinels so far in advance of the supports. But my opponent was patient, too, he was more patient than Weary, at last, with so much waiting, I suddenly threw up my foot above the hillock, to draw his fire; he fired

-it was nothing but a fancy-that I heard an exclamation of pain; I loaded in safety and again threw up my foot, and again he could not resist the temptation, he fired and missed again. "How I watched the tree to see, by the motions he made in loading, his position! and how careful he was! with all my watching I could only detect one little uncertain movement of the branches, but that was enough. I fired, and the music of the groan that followed the shot made me tremble all over with joy. He was hurt badly, I knew, for he made the branches shake with the motions of pain, and when I fired again, he dropped from the middle of the tree to one of the lower branches, and the lower part of his body came in sight, though his face was still concealed. He was in citizen's dress. "'You needn't shoot again,' said he, 'I am hit on the breast and stomach and shall soon be cold mutton.' "These words were spoken slowly, with much effort, while I was loading my piece. This made no impression upon me, I wanted to see him as stiff as my poor little Tommy. I could not afford to take his word that he was mortally wounded. "I leveled my rifle again and was about to draw the trigger, when the bushwhacker suddenly dropped to the ground; with a great effort he held the rifle he had used in the air, with the butt end up. It was a singular piece, with the stock almost covered with fantastic devices of sheet brass. How well I knew it! How well I knew now the man who held it!

"Brother,' he said, 'don't shoot days, perhaps. So have I. More, again. A brother's blood is already than of ability or courage, I accepted on your soul, and on mine. It is sad business. God is my witness that I did not know you until the last shot was fired and you rose up.'

"I knew he spoke the truth. Wild ungovernable and a traitor, I know my brother Charles would not kill his little brother in cold blood. I don't know exactly how I felt when I heard my brother's words. I knew I changed instantly and permanently. There was a sudden darkening, inside and outside and all around, there was an in so little time, that no time could "He started as though he was shot wipe out-and then a wish that I could weep, without the power. But he was still time to see the death-quiver on his my brother, and if he had killed my youngest brother I had killed him, and there was extreme misery all around. He was bleeding profusely and suffer-

Perhaps there is mercy for us all; perhaps if we had been always taught so, these things would not have been as they are. Our parents never taught us so. They always spoke of predestination—of the elect; of hell for the many; of heaven for the few favorites. The Lord knows better-better-"

He stopped speaking; he turned paler; he was dying fast. But perhaps he was right; perhaps the Lord did know better what was best than he or the doctors of divinity. At all events I was glad to hear him say so. All at once the idea came upon me that there were a hundred corpses in front of me instead of two, and that I was trying to play a game of checkers with them. How I struggled to move them hither and thither, and how utterly abortive and painful all my efforts were! Suddenly the corpses began to dance and my head began to dance, and there came a confused idea that l > [Frow the Findley (O.) Courier.] Romantic.

Fifteen Years a Captive with the Indi-aus—A Wanderer Meets His Wife at the Grave of Her Second Husband, Some fifteen years ago there lived in the northern part of Portage township a young married couple by the name of William and Annie Clarkinson. They owned a little farm, and made enough to keep them comfortably in the world, and were apparently happy. William was handsome and well educated, having graduated with honor at an Eastern University. He did not like the honest but humble occupation of farming. Wealth accumulated too slowly by following the plow; he wanted to make money by the thousands of dollars. So the farm was sold. Mrs. Clarkinson went to live with her parents, and William started for the Golden State of California, with the expectation of "picking up" a couple of million dollars in a couple

For a few months Mrs. Clarkinson occasionally heard from her husband, either directly or through some of the neighbors who had friends with the same train with which her husband was going. Then there was a long interval during which no word came. After a time there were rumors that the train had been attacked by Indians, and every one killed. This was at last too truthfully verified by one poor fellow, who was found by another party a few days after with just life enough left to tell how the train had been atttacked one dark night, and before any could recover from the surprise, all were killed and scalped, and the Indians rode triumphant-

For three years Mrs. Clarkinson mourned for her dead husband. After the lapse of that time she married again, and moved to Wood county. For nearly twelve years she was as happy as a kind and affectionate husband and two beautiful children could make a woman. At the band, and again she was a sorrowing, weeping widow.

She follows weeping to the grave—she hears the sad solemn words: "Dust to dust and ashes to ashes"-the earth falls with a dull, dreary thud upon the coffin, as the sexton slowly covers up all that remains of him whose spirit has gone before to the other world. The widow raises the veil and looks around. As she does she meets a pair of eyes fixed intently upon her. She starts—memory rushes back fifteen years and brings up the picture of her first husband. There can be no mistake—'tis he! The recognition is mutual. There is a scene—the widow and wife faints-the bronzed stranger explains his relation to the woman, and all repair to the home of her, who ten minutes ago was a widow, but now is again a wife.

There Mr. William Clarkinson tells how he was not killed by the Indians at the time of that sudden onslaught on the plains, but was taken prisoner by the Blackfeet and carried far away among their mountain fastnesses, and during all those long years had been forced to slave for his cruel captors. He had finally escaped, and during his flight through mountain gulches he discovered a rich gold deposit. How he had written back to his old friends, but could get no answer. He then went back and worked the gold mine which he had discovered. He grew rich, friends, whatever he might do to retain and longed to again visit the home of his youth and happiness. He had got off the cars at Pittsburgh and taken the stage to Bowling Green—had hired a buggy there and was driving to his old home when he overtook the funeral-a strange impulse induced him to tollow—the widow's person seemed strangely familiar, and when she drew aside her veil he recognized her as the wife he had bidden adieu to fifteen years before, and whom he had thought to

The population question is becoming a serious one. There are no babies at Saratoga or Newport, at Long Branch or Rye Beach, or at Nahant. And the darlings are not left at home. either; they are not denosited with their grandmothers; they are not put out to nurse. The fact is—the melancholy and shocking fact—that there are no babies belonging to these mothers. It has been settled that it is unfashionable to have babies; and, of course, fashionable people obey the mill immediatel mandate and disobey the commandment given to all men through Adam. No more babies behind brown stone fronts! The main business of population seems to be turning over to the shanties.—N. Y. Post.

thank us for a process which is said to be successful in bringing up again the nap of spotted or flattened velvet. For this purpose a chafing dish or warming pan is to be used, containing a quantity of well-ignited live coals, over which is to be placed a sheet of copper, thick enough to have a certain degree of solidity. When the metal is quite warm, a napkin folded several times and immersed in boiling water is to be placed upon it, the coals still continuing to increase the temperature. The wrong side of the velvet is now to be laid upon the moist smoking cloth, and very soon a thick, and a soft brush is then to be passed lightly back and forth over the velvet, which is to be removed after a few minutes, and allowed to dry flat upon a table. I say enthusiasts, because the rank and file of the great Methodist body are not in harmony with the ultra views held by Inskip and his coadjutators with reference to the old Wes-

The theory of entire holiness, a life without sin, is a good thing in the abstract; but when it becomes a matter of every day profession, when we are invited to look at holy lives around by the hundred we grow skeptical. As an outsider I incline to the belief that the campmeeting is a good thing as a picnic, but as a hot bed for forcing religious growth in hot weather, it is not

Second District. The several counties composing the Second Congressional District are requested to send delegates to a Convention to be held at Union Hall, in the village of White Pigeon, on Wednesday, the 7th of September, 1870, at 11 o'clock a.m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress, to be supported by the electors of said District at the approaching reported elections. general election.

The several counties are entitled to send two delegates for each Representative and Senator in the State Legislature. D. B. Perinton, W. G. Woodworth, SILAS HUBBARD, A. B. COPLEY. T. O. WARD.

WHAT IS BEST? The question that is now in almost every Republican's mouth, is "What is best?" "What will secure the purity and the best interests of the Republican party. Gen. Stoughton's defeat, if nominated, or his election?" This question is not only being discussed in Berrien County, but also in other Counties in the District, and is solved by many, that the party two years hence will be stronger by repudiating and defeating Gen. Stoughton, if he should be nominated, than by friends insist on placing him on the ticket we do hope, if the General has one spark of the good of the Republican party at heart, that he will withdraw his name from before the Con-his own party to defeat his election. It is our candid opinion that the General, if nominated, will be defeated, as well as causing defeat to several members of the Legislature in the There are men in the district who can command the entire vote of the Republican party. As we contemplate this matter, we cannot for a moment believe, that the men elected as delegates to the White Pigeon Convention are men lost to the interests of the party, and that they will sacrifice the party before they will the personal interest of Mr. Stoughton. Will not these men en the hands of the Republican party, choose rather the integrity of the Re- and give strength and encouragement publican party, to the interest of any to the Democracy. TOWNSHIP CAUCUSES. Again we uge upon the Republicans of Berrien County to attend the Township caucuses. Let not these primary meetings go by default. It is at these meetings that your public servants are virtually made. It is here where the office seeking "rings" and "cliques" may be effectually broken. Here the voice of every true Republican may be heard and felt, by chosing men of candor and integrity to represent you at the County Convention. Choose men who will not sell you out for a petty personal consideration. If you do this, then will good and true men be selected to fill our public places of

It sometimes happens that men take advantages of the carelessness or indifference of the substantial Republicans of their Township, and a few of the wire pullers get together, make their own selection of delegates, and thus speak anything but the sentiment of the party in their locality. It has been known that even one man would go to a place for a caucus, make out a list of delegates, and his own crea list of delegates, and his own credentials, and thus at a convention but that, he declined to be a candidate. speak for the whole party of his township. And this, too, where his vote might be in antagonism to threefourths of the members of his party, in his own township. We hope the true men in every township will awake to the importance of the Township Caucuses. Come out, come out, and preserve the purity of the Republican party. Show the rings and cliques which are formed to run the County nominations, that their day of rule is over. That the time has come when the true men will assert their power in the party. THE SENATORIAL CONTEST.

The second s Second se

The Senatorial question is beginning to agitate somewhat the public mind. Among the names mentioned we find those of Hon. J. M. Howard, the present incumbent, of Detroit; Hon. Austin Blair, Representative from the 3d District, of Jackson; Hon. Wm. A. Howard, of Grand Rapids; and Hon. Thomas W. Ferry, of Grand Haven, Representative from the 4th District. Against the continuation of the present incumbent, Hon. J. M. Howard, we only have that of location. It does appear that Detroit and the eastern part of the State, enough. As to the Hon, Austin Blair we must say that his qualifications are undoubtedly of a superior grade, and that in point of talent he is eminently fitted for the position. Yet he would not be our choice, as we deem him a little too much of a "policy" man; and then, too, we cannot forget his position on the franking privilege, which adds much to the expense of the government, together with his action on the apportionment bill. Straws show which way the wind blows, and these two acts of Mr. Blair, to our mind, indicate that some other man would be our choice. We, however, like the manly course of Mr. Blair, in defending his action on the franking matter, it being so unlike Gen. Stoughton's

Every man has the undoubted right to seek such location as he may think will be most favorable to any laudable undertaking he may have in view. We see no harm in an honorable desire, on the part of men qualified, for the U.S. Senatorship, or any other office of trust or honor. Of Hon. Thomas W. Ferry we are, in candor compelled to say, that with some degree of care we have watched his public career, and find his attention to the interests of his constituents and the good of the government, to be incessant. Not one of the Michigan delegation has been more devoted to the interests of the people; and on all questions, where the interest of the people conflicted with that of mononolies, Mr. Ferry has always been on the right side. THE WAR.

The latest news from the Franco-Prussian struggle indicate the advantages and success are still on the side of the Prussians. The dispatches published in another place show that heavy fighting has been going on between the Prussians, under Steinmetz, and the French, under McMahon. It seems that McMahon has been endeavoring to form a junction with Bazaine's forces in and about Metz. This heattempted by marching around to the north, near the Belgian frontier. In the regions of Montmedy his forces were attacked by the Prussians under Steinmetz, who were behas had the whole representation of tween McMahon and Bazaine. Here the State in the U.S. Senate long is where the battle seems to have been raging at the time of the last dispatches. While Steinmetz was on the south and east of McMahon, between him and Bazaine, with sufficient forces around Metz to prevent Bazaine's escape to aid McMahon, the Prussians under the Crown Prince and Frederick Charles were reported marching on Paris. This position placed them southwest of McMahon, and now the dispatches indicate that these forces have suddenly turned north, and are now flanking McMahon's army. This seems to place the French under Mc-Mahon in a very critical position, and looks as if it must result in the crushing of his entire army, or driving them into Belgium, which would be equally fatal to France. It is now intimated that the hasty move of the Prussians on Paris was only a feint to enable them to get in the rear of Mc-

Mahon, and then turn and crush his

The truth is here stated in a very mild form, much more so than the fact will prove to be, if the General is forced upon the Republicans of the District. We trust these things will be earnestly weighed, before the party is sacrificed at the shrine of personal aggrandizement: The result of the County Conventions in this Congressional District shows that Mr. Stoughton can secure a re-nomination, in spite of the strong and bitter opposi-tion to him throughout the district. This result is to be lamented. His renomination at this time, against the strong and earnest protest of half or more than half of the Republicans of the district-

There is no denying the fact that Mr. Stoughton's nomination will weaken the party. The strong and unprecedented opposition to him throughout the district proves it strong enough. Are his friends to judge of the extent to which the party may endure such a weakening process Are they to gauge the amount of blood which the strong patient may lose without absolute death? Will Mr. Stoughton's friends barter away the certainty of a victory, with some other and more popular candidate, for the probability of a disgraceful defeat with him at their head? Such a defeat is not impossible, even in this strong Republican district, and the opposition have every tool to work with, and will work with all the energy of men who have found a new hope. Our party is not held together by any such strong bonds as united it when the great idea that gave it birth was a live and strongly contested issue. Other questions are now arising on which new divisions of sentiment will arise, and men are asking more concerning the qualifica-tions of the men whom they send to do their business. Breadstuffs. New York, Aug. 28.—The feeling in the produce market is that breadstuffs will continue to improve. The demand from Europe for the French and German armies promises to be active. This, if taken in connection with the falling off in the estimated receipts at the lake ports, would argue better prices. The breadstuff market will be very materially affected by the length of the war, and everything now points to a long war. The exasperation of the belligerents is deepening, and, in France, it is unanimous and at fever heat: As soon as the impending battles have been fought, and the French lose Paris, or the Germans are driven from Paris, the French will have a settlement with Napoleon. The fall of his dynasty is certain to be followed by a report, for the seating of an Orleans Prince on the throne by for eign bayonets cannot create a permanent government. A French republic means a republic in Spain, the expulsion of the Pope, revolutionary troubles in Italy, and eventually in Germany. All these convulsions will involve time, and, perhaps, render the continent a wast battle-field, in all the people will participate Meanwhile, while production ceases and waste goes on, the United States and Russia will have to feed Central and Western Europe. It is upon this theory that most of the leading New York operators in breadstuffs base their calculations of high prices this fall and winter.

Rhine, it will be easily seen that he feels it necessary to risk a bloody battle at the foot of our towers. There is not one German in all Prussia, and Bavaria, Wurtemberg, or Baden, who would not scorn and curse the King should he not make a supreme effort to come here and dictate a peace in Paris. How could he return to Germany, in the midst of the desolation of families, the misery and depopulation of city and country? Should he not win a bloody success, his defeat would be complete. Berlin, Aug. 29.—Official despatches have been received at the Ministry of War to the city, that a great battle was fought in the neighborhood of Stenay, northwest of Montmedy, which is said to have terminated in a victory for the Prussians. LATER.—The following is the official report of the battle at Stenay, yesterday: That part of the Crown Prince's army which has been moving northwesterly from Vauzirnes to assail McMahon's flank upon the Aisne, attacked McMahon upon this line. A portion of the army of Prince Frederick Charles co-operated with the Crown Prince's Division in assaulting the French. It is rumored that McMahon was unable to combat the furious assaults upon his lines, and that he was defeated. LONDON, Aug. 29.—It is reported here that a great battle has taken place between McMahon and the Crown Prince, in which McMahon was defeated. London, Aug. 29.—By a despatch from our special correspondent at Montmedy, we have news of a great and bloody battle, begun on the evening of Sunday, in the immediate neighborhood of Mousson. The battle is yet undecided. The fighting is now going on between Charleville and the Ardennes. NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Private advices from Paris, via London, leave some doubt whether the Crown Prince is marching on Paris. Record

In our last week's issue we made mention that an old and respectable family of Berrien Township and Inxuriated for the past five or six years in a gennine ghost, of the regular spiritualistic type of per-ceptible knockers. Since giving publicity ery Township in the County send a to the matter, a large number of persons full corps of delegates. visitant, and in no case have they gone away disappointed-his ghostship always putting in his appearance in good time by knocks, dull, peculiar, but at the same time very perceptible thuds, which leave no doubt on the visitors' minds, that he, it, or whatever the singular thing may be, is on hand lively.

The character and surroundings of the country preclude the possibility of any collusion on their part. The knockings have been kept up with the same persistent regularity in the absence of any or all of them, except the old gentleman; and his whitened locks, frosted by the snows of sixty or more winters, are sufficient guarantee that he has no hand in it, whatever The knockings occur at irregular intervals. Sometimes the family will have quiet the most profound, for one or two months, when the sounds will return with redoubled force. A neculiarity of these sounds is that they have no fixed place.

When by careful attention the listener seems to have fixed their location, on going to the spot they seem to come from an entirely different place. The old gentle-man, annoyed by the pertinacity during the long hours of the night, has repeated ly followed and attempted to locate and discover them, and has as often been disappointed by finding them move to different parts of the house, as he neared the place they before seemed to proceed from, in the sitting room, and they were plainly up stairs, and they seem to be as plainly in the kitchen, Winter and summer, al the same, it comes, but never during the day, observing ghostly decorum in this respect rigidly; but all night long he roams the house untrammelled.

The family are seriously annoyed, and though most emphatic disbelievers in Spiritualistic demonstrations are perfectly willing that any gentleman of that persussion should come and have all the beneht to be derived from their tireless, yet tiresome customer. It has been suggested that it is the familiar of some defunct Indian warrior keeping watch and ward over his portion of British gold, so liberally distributed at one period of our history; and who, tiring of his charge, desire some one of the family to relieve him of it. This belief, we understand, is strongly held by a native of West Virginia, long a resident here, and who has made an examination under the building, with a view, no doubt, of selecting the best place to dig. Such notions, we believe, are rather com mon among that class of people, but sound very absurd at this late day. Should such prove to be the case, however, his of the Tremont House, stoppeth not | ghostship will have no difficulty whatever

Mr. EDITOR:-Nothing particular has transpired here, the past week, to notice," except that the Three Oaks Base Ball Club had a friendly game of base ball with the Wolverines and escorted to their grounds, where every thing was soon arranged for business. An umpire was chosen, when the game commenced. I will simply say that the Three Oaks Club out-played the Wolverines five to one. The Three Oaks boys done some splendid batting. The Wolverines played a good game, and were good grit; although some were badly punished in the hands and arms, they never whimpered, but played the game through to the end. Many of the citizens, both ladies and gentlemen, were present. A small boy, but a good reine club, playing on 3d base, when the pall had nearly reached him; pushed the neavy Three Oaks man about four feet, rom the base caught the ball, and then pried out, "How is that, umpire?". Sunday Reading.

"THANK GOD FOR SUNDAY!" BY L. J. CIST.

Now God be thanked! that he has given-Blest boon to saint and sinner ! A day of rest—one day in seven, Where toil is not the winner; Rest for the tired and jaded brain, The wearied hand, Oh Sunday, That they might gather strength again

The merchant, in his counting room, The clerk o'er desk and ledger, The artisan, at forge or loom, The ditcher and the hedger The laborer who must toil and slave

For toil renewed on Monday.

From early dawn of Monday Until the week sinks in its grave, All cry: "Thank God for Sunday!" The day that lifts the weighty chain

Which all the week hath bound us; That respite gives to heart and brain, From thousand cares around us; That in the tollsome march of life Thus bids us take, for one day, Rest from the battle and the strife: Oh! God be thanked for Sunday!

If thus by all one day of rest . Be hailed, as respite solely, How to the Christian, doubly blest, Must be the Sabbath holy; As, in faith's light, he lifts his eyes To that bright world where, one day,

He longs to spend, beyond the skies, One blest, eternal Sunday!

Expectation in God. The less we expect from this world the better for us. The less we expect from our fellow-men, whether of spiritual help or of inspiring example, the smaller will be our disappointment. He that leans on his own strength leans on a broken reed. We are always going to be something stronger, purer, and holier. Somewhere in the future there always hangs in the air a golden ideal of a higher life that we are going to reach; but as we move on the dream of better things moves on before us also. It is like the child's running over behind the hill to catch the rainbow. When he gets over the hill-top the rainbow is as far off as ever. Thus does our day dream of a higher Christian life keep floating away from us; and we are left to realize what frail unreasonable creatures we are when we rest our frail expectations of growth and victory over evil in ourselves. "My soul wait thou only upon God! My expectation is only from him." God never deceives us and never disappoints us. I do not say that God never allows us to be disappointed in our darling plans of life, in our children, or in our most cherished projects. What I mean is that we are never disappointed in God. When we study the Almighty, whether in his glorious Word or in Nature, we find our utmost expectations overtopped by the stupendous and magnificent reality. Read such a book as "Ecce Colum," and see if you are disapp inted in your Creator. When, too, we obey God, we always find our reward, either sooner or later-just as surely as light comes with sunrise. When we trust God, he never deceives us. When we pray to him aright—that is, with faith, with perseverance, with submissiveness, and with a single eye to God's will-he answers us. He always returns the best makes no mistakes in his dealings with suppliants. He is a sovereign but not a

Every man should be sober sometimes. I once knew one so unfortunate as to be sober all the time, and yet an honest man. We have known men that never smiled, or seldom, whose faces were rigid as an iron mask, and yet they were kind, simple, and reliable. But such are exceptional cases. Uniform sobriety is presumptively very much against a man. He who gives no play to the gentler feelings has some-thing the matter with him that should be looked into before one trusts him far. Mirth itself is not always honest. But it tends to openness, to sincerity, to sweetness. Mirth has better stuff in it to make a man of than sobriety has. It, too, is used some-times for a mask for hypocrisy; but not half so often as sobriety is. Only consider how many men, quite empty and worth-less, inwardly neither rich nor forceful, are kept agoing by the mere trick of gravity. When some men come to you it is like sunrise. Everything seems to take new life and shines. Other men bring night with them. The chill shadow of their sowith them. The chill shadow of their so-briety falls upon every innocent gayety, and your feelings, like birds at evening, stop singing and go to their roost. Away with these fellows who go owling through life—all the while passing for birds of paradise. He that cannot laugh and be gay should look well to himself. He should tast and pray until his face breaks forth tast and pray until his face breaks forth into light.—Beecher.

A Gem.

The following little paragraph contains a whole volume of truth and suggestion, and if acted upon, would prevent much un-happiness in this world, and prove a most effectual remedy for much that now exists. It is the easiest thing in the world if you think so. Happiness is only another name for love, for where love exists in a house. hold there happiness must also exist, even though it has poverty for a close companion.-Where love exists not, even though it be in a palace, happiness can never come. He was a cold and selfish being who originated the saying that! "when poverty comes in at the door, love flies out at the window," and his assertion proves conclusively that he had no knowledge of love; for, unquestionably, the reverse of the axiom quoted is nearer the truth. When poverty comes in at the door, love, true love, is more than ever inclined to tarry and do battle with the enemy. Let those who imagine themselves miserable before they find fault with their surroundings search in their own hearts for the true cause. A few kind words, or a little forbearance, will often open the way to a flood of sunshine in a house darkened by the clouds of discord and unamiability.

Walk with God.

I must walk with God. In some way or other, whatever be my character or profession, I must acquire the holy habit of connecting everything that passes in my house and affairs with God.—If sickness. or health visit my family, my eyes must see and my heart must acknowledge the hand of God therein. Whether my affairs: move on smoothly or ruggedly, God must be acknowledged in them. If I go out of, my house or come into it, I must go out and come in as under the eye of God. If I am occupied in business all the day long. I must still have the glory of God in view. If I have any affair to transact with anothmust pray that God would be with us in that affair, lest we should blunder, and injure and ruin each other.

Here is about the pithiest sermon ever preached; "Our ingress in life is na-ked and bare; our progress through life is trouble and care; our egress out of it we know not where but doing well, here we we shall do well there.

A cotemporary says, "It is a curious fact that though the rain keeps, thousands away from church on Sundays, it does not deter a single man from attending to his business on week days."

MRS. ALLEN'S

Hair Restorer & Zylobalsamum Are so uniformly grateful and beneficial, that they are with justice called the natural strengtheners of the human hair. They are two entirely separate and distinct preparations, not to be used together at one time.

Mrs. Allen's Mair Ecstorer Never fails to satisfy the most refined and cultivated. Aguarantee goes with every bottle, that it will quickly restore gray or white hair to its original youthful beauty, gloss and color; after its use a few times the hair will grow thicker and stronger. It will stop its falling and induce a healthy and luxuriant growth. It is an exquisite hair dressing, agrecable, harmless and healthy. Entirely different from most other preparations for the hair, its composition and ingredients are nourishing, giving life and vigor to the Roots.

Mrs. Allen's Zylobalsamum This exquisite preparation is free from any sediment, and is a toilet treasure. The urgent want of a simple Hair Dressing, for the youth of both sexes, first induced the manufacture of the Zylobalsamum, and the sale of it is perfectly immense, not only in this country, but in Europe.

EXTRACTS FROM A FEW LETTERS. "Your Zylobalsamum is used by every member, young and old, of our family, and we consider it invaluable. Should any gray hairs appear, we shall try your Hair. Restorer, which we hear very highly spoken of."
"Father and mother use your Hair Restorer, and are delighted with it. It soon restored their gray locks to their youthful color, but daughters and son still find in the Zylobalsamum all their hair requires."

and son still find in the zylooalsamum an their requires."

From the Principal of one of our large Femals Seminaries: "Your Zylobalsamum has been used for many years by myself and family, and is the favorite among our young ladies."

Sweet Quining Versus Bitter.

For the following REASONS Sweet Quining should replace the old form or Bitter Quining.

Seveet Quinine is WARRANTED mylicinally identical in effect with Bitter Quaine. Sweet Indiane has NONE of the interse and Sweet Quinine is made from P ruvian Bargonly, the source of Bitter Quinine. In Swift Quinine the bitterness is perfectly concealed, but may be instantly developed if desired. Sweet fininine will not sicken, as very bitte substances often do. Sweet Quinine is readily taken, and with-ou the least hesitation, by old and young.

Sweet Quintue entirely obviates that me conjugrable dislike which children have to B ter Quinine, Sweet Quinine requires no elaborate pre-paration to take, is ready for instar, use.

Sweet Aninine, in its agreeability and pro-ppt efficacy, disabuses the public mild of much prejudice against Quinine, and aids the efforts of the intelligent cian in its administration. Quinine costs no more than the Sweet

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever my before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never falls through any fault or neglectof its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither callomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar conting preserves them ever fresh and nakes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills ripidly cure;—

For Byspepsia or Unsitigestion, Kistlessness, Languaer and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Thermal stimulations, Fourt, Frappitation of the effect of a drastic purge.

For Pysentery or Bliaritand its various symptoms, Billious Fleanaches, Sock Headaches, For Pysentery or Bliaritand. For the proposed action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dropsy and Propsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the vantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Fills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus. DR. J.O. Sally's flistake.

"Sally, don't I like you?". "La! Jim. I reckon so."

Don't you think I'd tear the eyes out of any honest tom-cat that dares to look at you for a second?"

"But don't you know it, Sally?

"I 'spect you would." "Well, the fact of it is, Sally, I-" "Oh, now don't, Jim! you're too

As he was poor and past labor, and well known about the town, no further notice was taken of his peculations than to keep a sharp look out when he was around. A dealer had a quantity of fish landed on the wharf at an hour too late to get them into his store, and as he was about covering them with an old sail-cloth, he espied old B., apparently reconnoitering. Selecting a couple of fish he said: "Here, B., I must leave these fish out here to-night, and I will give you these two if you promise me that you will not steal any." "That's a fair offer, Mr. A., but—well—I don't know," with a glance at the offered fish and then at the pile, "I think I can do better!"

An Irishman, who had been absent some time on a fishing excursion, met one of his friends, who inquired of him what luck he had. Och," he said, "we had a most illegant time intirely." "Who were of your party?" asked his friend. 'There were five of us," was his answer. "There was meself, one; the two Scrogginses, two; Terry Toole, three; Jim Kasin, four. There were five of us. There was Terry Toole, one; meself, two; the two Scrogginses, three; and Jim Kasin, four. There was Jim Kasin, one; Terry Toole, two; meself, three; and the two Scrogginses, four. It's very strange that I can't remember who the fifth man was! There was meself, one; Jim Kasin, two; the two Scrogginses, three; and Terry Toole, four; and may the divil fly away wid me if I can remember who the fifth man was!"

A School mistress had among her scholars one incorrigible little miss, upon whom "moral suasion" seemed to have no effect. One day, out of all patience with some misdemeanor on the part of the child, she called her up to the desk and expostulated with her on the impropriety of her conduct, setting forth the enormity of her offences, etc. The young girl paid little or no attention at first, but at length she seemed to realize her guilt more fully, and watching her teacher closely, seemed to drink in every word she said. The lady began to have hope; her instructions were evidently making an impression. At length she made a slight pause for breath when up spoke the child, with the utmost gravity: "Why Miss Jones your upper jaw don't move a bit!"

A PRINTER'S ANATHEMA.—An exchange says: It appears from accounts that Rev. Dr. Pearne, whilom editor of the Knoxville Whig, was no more popular with the printers than with the Stokes Radicals. One of his printhe stokes hadicals. One of his printers once, after cursing the Doctor to the full extent of his ability, wound up with this withering professional anathema: "I wish he was in h—l, with his back broke, setting diamond italics at ten cents a thousand!"

RYER ASK GUESTIONS IN A HUR-RY.—"Tom, a word with you." "Be quick, then; I'm in a hurry." "What did you give your sick horse, t'other, day?" "A pint of turpentine." John hurries home and administers the same hurries home and administers the same dose to a favorite charger, which, strange to say, drops off defunct in half an hour. His opinion of Tom's veterinary ability is somewhat staggered. He meets him the next day. "Well, Tom." "Well, John, what is it?" "I gave my horse a pint of turpentine and it killed him, dead as Julius Casar." "So it did mine." lius Cæsar." . "So it did mine!"
