Poetry. THE GRAVE OF LINCOLN'S MOTH-

ER, A wooden hill-a low sunk grave, Upon the hilltop hoary; The oak tree's branches o'er it wave; Devoid of slab—no record save

And who the humble dead, that here So lonely sleeps? And who, as year rolls after year, In Summer green or Autumn sere-Comes here and weeps?

So long and drear-the forest wild

Unbroken seems—
We well might think some forest child, Grown tired of hunt or war-trail wild, Here lies and dreams! But no; no red man of the West Inhabits here; The clods so oft by wild beasts press'd Now lie upon the mouldered breast

Of one more dear. For Lincoln's mother here is laid-Far from her son.

No long procession; false parade,
Of pride or place was here displayed—

No requiem sung! No Summer friends were crowded round Her humble grave— The Summer breezes bore no sound, Save genuine grief, when this long mound

Its echoes gave. Her husband, and her children dear, The neighbors rude—Dressed in their hardy, homespun gear—
Were all that gathered round her bier,

In this lone wood. High pile the marble above the breast Of chieftain slain; While in the wildwood of the West, In tomb by naught but nature drest, His mother's lain.

Her grave, from Art or homage free, Neglected lies; And pride, and pomp, and vanity, From this lone grave must ever flee, As mockeries.

A nation's grief and gratitude Bedewed his bier; For her who sleeps in solitude, In this lone grave in Western wood, Have ye no tear?

And shall the mother of the brave, And true, and good,
Lie thus neglected in a grave
Unfit for menial, clown, or knave,
In this dread wood!

Oh! nation of the generous brave, Be this our shame; And let this grave beneath the tree, No longer thus neglected be Vithout a name. -Rockport, (Ind.) Journal.

Original Story.

MY FRIEND'S STORY. AN INCIDENT OF FRONTIER LIFE.

BY P. B. BOSTWICK.

The evening had closed in dull and thick, with that stagnant heaviness of the atmosphere which often precedes a storm. There was a moon, but its face was veiled by the leaden clouds; and its light dissipated through the murky air, created that kind of "darkness visible" which gives a drearier aspect to the landscape than when it is wholly obscured.

midst of a desolate, "clearing," which, though completely walled around by both in complexion and countenance, the forest of oaks, from whose depths save that his eve-brows, instead of I had just issued, bore not a trace of shrubbery to relieve the waste of blackened stumps. A well of primitive construction, with the bucket dangling at the end of a long chain attached to a long lever pole, crowned a naked knoll where the stumps had been cleared away. The pole, from which the bark had never been stripped, was nearly covered with that pale green | the great size of the bore, as well as mass which will often collect upon the dry rails of a fence which have not for years been disturbed; and this, with the night wind whistling through the parted staves of the decrepit bucket, proved sufficiently, that the well, if not dried up entirely, was still no longer used. A low shed, built of he held the gun vertically at arm's logs and roofed with bark, was the only other outward appearance of the

The whole picture, it will be acknowledged, was a dreary one.-Comfortless, monotonous-almost heart depressing. A scene of wildness without beauty; of solitude without dignity; a woodland home without one attribute of rural cheerfulness. An abode in the wilderness utterly destitute of forest shelter and security. I dismounted near the cabin, and scarcely touched the door with the end of my whip, when it was flung open from within by some one who instantly retired from the threshold. The but said nothing.

abruptness of the act did. I confess. I thought I had never fallen in with abruptness of the act did, I confess, startle me. Though not easily alarmed, my mood of mind at that moment was such as to prompt some mystic association with the scenes and circumstances already detailed. I am a perfect barometer of the weather, and the approach of a thunder gust always weighs down my spirits with undefinable oppression, in the same degree that a driving snow storm exhilarates them. The low mutterings of the oncoming tempest, which were now beginning to be audible, would, then, be sufficient to account for my present sensibility to gloomy influences. But I might also mention other things which, perhaps, added to the present matter with the anxiety of feeling, if the phrase be drunk, be he?" not too strong a one. It will suffice, however, to state merely that I had not heard the sound of a human voice in the last two days, and that that which now met my ears was harsh and discordant. It was the croaking tone which you may sometimes catch from from the conventicle. "Ithought you'd a been here afore, said this ungracious voice; which upon entering the apartment, I recognized as belonging to its only occupant. She was a stoutly-built woman, of coarse, square features and saturnine complexion. She wore her straight, black hair parted plainly over her Snider's sponsorial dignity-1 did not forehead. One elvish lock had es-here before?" I exclaimed, at last, in reply to her singular salutation. "Why, my good woman, I have lost my way, and only stumbled upon your house by accident—you must take me for some one else."

"I'm no good woman. Don't good woman me;" she replied with a scrutinizing glance which had something, I thought, of almost fierceness in it, as, shading the new lighted candle with one hand, she turned scornfully round and fixed her eyes upon me. "Yes! yes! stranger, you are the man, the very man that was to come at this hour. I dreamed ye-I dreamed yer horse-yer clothes and all, I dreamed 'em,-and now go look after your horse, while I get some supper for ye." Supper was already prepared for me, when I returned from looking after my horse. The coarse bacon and hoe cakes were placed before me without another word being spoken between my hostess and myself. I drew a rude stool to the table, and was in the act of helping myself from the platter— "Stop! I hear them coming!" cried the woman. "Hear them! Who?" said I turning round sharply, as some new, though undefinable suspicion flashed upon me. "Them as will have to share that supper with ye, stranger—if how's be't they let ye eat any of it."

I had no time to weigh further the meaning of her words. For at this instant there was a sharp flash of lightning, the door was dashed sud-denly open, and three armed men strode into the apartment, the storm pelting in behind them as they entered, and a terrific thunder burst followed instantly after the lightning, amid whose glare they crossed the threshold. The pallor of their countenances set off by their long dripping locks, seemed measurably to pass away when that vivid light was withdrawn; but from the moment the door was flung open there was an earthly smell in the room, which, whether coming from the reeking soil, or the garments of these wild foresters, was most perceptible.—Those less familiar than myself with the raw-savored odors which sometimes travel out with the rich ed, have identified with the grave damps which our senses will sometimes take cognizance of in old church-

The aspect of two of these men was sufficiently formidable, though in point of statue and an appearance of burly strength they were inferior to their companion. They were square-shouldered, black-bearded fellows, armed both with hatchet and bowieknife, in addition to the short rifles which they still retained, laid across their knees, as they settled themselves side by side upon a bench and looked coldly around them. The third was a full-cheeked, heavy featured man, The only cabin in sight lay in the of about six and twenty, bearing a strong resemblance to my hostess, both in complexion and countenance, being square and coal black, like hers. were irregularly arched and of a light brown. His mouth also lacked the firmness of expression which dwelt around her thin and shrewdish lips. This man bore with him no weapon, save a huge old Dutch piece, a Tryralean rifle, as it seemed to me, from the enormous length of the barrel and the outlandish and cumbersome ornaments about the stock and breeching. Inconveniently, however, as the length and size of the piece might make it in some hands, it seemed to be nothing in the grip of the sturdy woodsman, for I observed even as he entered that length before him. Still he seemed as soon as possible, for he instantly advanced to the farthest corner of the room where he placed the piece with some care in an upright position against the wall. "Well! What for now?" said the virago, "why do you stand looking at the gun, after you've set it down?you think she'll walk off herself, do

"And what in the name of Satan is his misfortune?" interrupted the mother, now for the first time moved with real concern as well as anger. "That's it—that's it, mother," answered Jake, with something of alertness. "She's drew the very nail on the head; Satan is at the bottom of all of it." "At the bottom of all of what?"

screamed the woman, and, even as she spoke, the ancient piece in the corner, untouched by any one-without the slightest movement of the lock-discharged itself toward the ceiling! "At the bottom of the bar'l of my gun-he speaks for himself," replied

Jake, moodily, while his mother started back, and I sprang to my feet at the sudden report so near me. "Your gun must be foul," I said, resuming my seat, "very foul, to hang fire so long. I suppose it made a flash in the pan when attempting to discharge it just before entering."

Jake looked vacantly at me, shook his head, muttered something about he and his mother being "ruinated," and more audibly said:

"Stranger, you may have more book larnin' than me, but I tell ye onst for all that Satan's got into that gun!" And bang! at that moment went the gun, as if to prove that his words were true. "This is, certainly most extraordinary," I exclaimed, as I arose to examine the gun for myself. "You'd better not touch her," reeated Jake. I looked at Brown, inquiringly. "Fact, stranger, every word of it-

"I told you she'd got Satan still repeated Jake,

I confess it was now only the calmness of those around me which prevented some feeling of superstitious terror being disagreeably awakened in me. The men, however, seemed awe-struck, rather than alarmed; while the woman-a thing not uncommon with resolute minds disposed to believe readily in the supernaturalseemed at once to accept the fearful solution of the mystery which had been proffered to her, and ready to meet it with an unflinching spirit.— Still, puzzled and bewildered as I was, I could not but smile at the manner in which her emotions now manifested themselves.

"Well!" she exclaimed impatiently, "and what a poor shrimp of a man to let Satan get into the piece when vou had her all day in yer own keep-his mother the tongs; and before I could interpose, or, indeed, before I was aware what the courageous woman was about to do, she had grasped the gun with the tongs, near the lock, and bearing it before her with a strong arm, she moved toward the door. "Why don't ye open-"

With the last report. which was almost overpowering, I was convinced that the explosion must have been aided by inflamable gas at the bottom of the well, for the blue flame, as it rose from it, flashed through the only window of the cabin and showed the features of its ignorant inmates, for the first time, distorted with real terror. At last Brown and Docker, upon whom my eye was fixed at the time, looked perfectly agast with fright. Jake's supposition of the ultimate destiny of his famous gun (viz: going to sporting dominions of the great hunter below) could hardly be true, however, inasmuch as a piece of the blackened muzzle was found next morning, driven half through a frag-ment of the well curb, which lay shattered around, broken to splinters by the explosion of the fire damp. The poor young man fairly wept outright when it was shown him by Docker who, with a generosity I could not sufficiently admire at the time, insisted upon replacing the heavy weapon of Jake's affections with his own light Eastern rifle; saying at the same time that he had a Kentucky tool at home which he much preferred to the Pennsylvania yieager. This same Docker, by the way, very civilly offered after breakfast to put me on my road, which from the number of Indian trails, I had wholly lost.

"I say, stranger," the moment we had got out of sight of the house, "you were devilish cool when that well blew up! Tell me the trick of it only, and I'll tell you the trick of the gun, which rayther skeared yer a

I explained the fire damp to him. "Really, now," he exclaimed, "wells is almost unknown in this country, for we either settle down by a spring, or get our water from the branch. But the first well I fall in with, I'll draw up a bottle of that gas as you call it, and have some real funwith the fellers. But look here," said he, stopping and tearing off some dry fungus from an old stump, "when you want to play a chap such a trick as made music for us last night, you've only to put twenty charges in a gun, with such wood as this between each of 'em-an escotch now and then instead of dry powder will be all the better: ram each down well: let the chap carry his gun about for an hour or so, unbeknowing—jist as that sim-ple Jake did—and choose your own time for dropping in a piece of lighted touch wood into the muzzle."

Upon my word, I was not sorry that I was to part company, before night, with this practical joker; who, for aught I know, might seize some tempting opportunity to slip a snake or so into my boots, stuff my saddle with squibs, or play off some little piece of facetiousness like that with which the jocular Captain Gaffe, in Scott's novel of the Pirate, used now and then to indulge in his humor; the said Captain having a funny way of discharging his pistol under the mess table, merely to pepper some one's shins with a half ounce ball.

Stealing a Grave.

The conversation turning one evening npon the propensity to steal (accumulate was the word more often used to express a violation of the eighth commandment), which was much more prevalent in some commands than in others, one of the officers said that the most singular theft he had ever heard of had been committed

"Stealing a grave!" was echoed in as tonishment from all sides. "Impossible!" "Absurd!" "Can't be done!"

"But it was done," insisted the officer; "and I'll tell you how. You know that the —st Regulars, and the —th Oregon Volunteers are brigaded together and camped side by side. Each regiment had a death yesterday, and to-day the regulars made preparations to bury their man. They sent out a party to dig a grave beyoud the guard lines, and in the mean time they were making their corpse ready. The volunteers had theirs all ready over night; and no sooner was the regulars' working party out of sight after the grave was dug, than the volunteers started their escort, marched-quick time. I guess-straight to the grave, buried their man, and covered him up; and when the regulars came round with their funeral, they found that the voiunteers had actually stolen their grave." -Lippincott's Magazine for September.

While he is thus earning and saving it, he must earn two, or three, or perhaps four times as much to pay his current expenses. He is consequently held sternly to the task of industry for a very considerable period. said Jake, his stupid face sicklying over with an unhappy smile. The mystery had now deepened to of industry, in patient, persistent forecast the highest point of interest—that last ing and self-denying effort, breaking up all the tendencies to indulgence and frivolity, and making him an earnest and watchful economist of time. THE OLD BROWN HAND.

BY MRS. D. HARRY PRIME. The hand that pressed my fevered brow Was withered, wasted, brown, and old, Its work was almost over now, As swollen veins and wrinkles told. No longer brushing back my hair,
It gently rested on my wrist;
Its touch seemed sacred as a prayer
Just by the breath of angels kissed.

I knew 'twas thin, and brown, and old, With many a deep and honored seam, Wearing one little band of gold, The only trace of youth's bright dream; And yet o'er every mark of care, In every wrinkle's mystic line, I fancied jewels gleaming there That wore a beauty all divine.

Another hand my fingers pressed—
"Twas like the lily dipped in snow;
Yet still it gave a wild unrest—
A weariness that none should know.
There pearls with costly diamonds gleamed,
And opals showed their changing glow
As moonlight on the ice has beamed,
Or trembled on the stainless snow.

I caught again the old, brown hand, And smoothed it fondly in my own— A woman's though so old and tanned; A women's, brave and fearless grown. Aye, it had labored long and well To dry the tear, to sooth the pain, Its own strong nerve to all would tell
That life has work which brings no shame.

We love the pretty hand that rests In gentle fondness on our own, With nails like rosy calyx pressed Upon a pearly, stainless cone; But sacred is the healthful palm Which smooths the ills that round us band; The many feel its sacred balm,
And holy seems the old brown hand ! -Herald of Health.

-The re-union of the 12th Michigan Infantry at Lawton, last Thursday, was a very pleasant affair. A number of the old veterans were present. The citszens of Lawton prepared a pic-nic dinner, to which ample justice was done by the boys in attendance. GEN. WILLIAM L. STOUGHTON.

THE WAR.

From the present indications the war between France and Prussia is drawing to a close. The Prussian forces are encamped near Paris, where they will probably remain until terms of peace can be adjusted. It is very evident that France as a Republic dees not want war, and now that Napoleon is dethroned. Prussia can honorably be magnanimous as to conditions of peace. The efforts of neutral nations are now being directed towards the bring- | gentlemen for the honor, and after humbly irg about a cessation of hostilities in oruer to seeme peace. This effort, we trust, will be successful, and that the further destruction of life will be surved.

There seems to be but little doubt that Napsleon declared war on Prussia, realizing that the Republican element in France would soon overwhelm him, and destroy the Empire. In the hope that he might be successful, and thus preserve himself, and the Empire for his son, he waged the fearful contest in which so many human beings have lost their lives, and so many homes rendered cheerless. The probability, to our mind, is that a peace will seen be arranged between the beligerents, and then a General Congress of the European nations, to be followed by a general disarmament. If this state of things should be brought about, peace may be expected in the old world for some years to come. Except the example of Republican France should prove a grand success, and thus stimulate rebellion in Germany, Prussia, Russia and the other great powers. The success of one of these powers, as a Republic, but lays the foundation for the overthrow of other crowned heads.

"SORE HEADS." We had hoped that every Republican paper in this Second Congressional District would have consideration enough, and knowledge of human nature enough, not to boast and throw out such contemptible, low, miserable, ungentlemanly epithets against the anti-Stoughton men as the Constantine Mercury does in its announcement of Stoughton's nomination in the last issue. It seems to us that it comes with an ill grace from one of Stoughton's office holders, to call the anti-Stoughton men "sore heads." knows full well that there are just as good and true men in the Republican party, who do not think Gen. Stoughton the right man for Congressman, as any Stoughton office holder dare be. Men too, who never held an office nor never expect to. Men who have no political aspirations. It comes with a very ill grace, from a Stoughton menial to cry "sore heads" to such men. It will be well for Gen. Stoughton and his majority if he will just caution his appointees, and especially those who may be connected with the public press, to be a little mild and courteous to those who opposed his nomination. We have no doubt but the effect of the Mercury's article has been to cause some Republican, who was opposed to Stoughton, and yet had concluded to vote for him, to swear in his wrath that Gen. Stoughton should never have his vote. Any one having the least knowledge of human nature knows full well that such would be the legitimate effect of articles like the following which we copy from the last Constantine Mercury. It almost causes us to say, "If there is no more gentlemanly consideration and courtesy, on the part of Stoughton's appointees and the press under their control, we will cast our mite toward the reduction of his majority:"

"Gen. W. L. Stoughton was yesterday nominated for his second term in Congress. This is a substantial justice to a faithful public servant. The convention was full; the vote, first and last, as will be seen by proceedings elsewhere, was overwhelmingly in his favor. Considering the effort and unscrupulous means resorted to to compass his defeat, the result is a glorious triumph of right, justice and the people over a conspiracy of soreheads. He will be trinmpliantly elected It is to be hoped the result will be a warning to all soreheads not to again attempt to foist their neighborhood quarrels and private dishwashings upon the Republican party of the Second Congressional District."

REFORM NECESSARY.

One of the greatest curses to the nation, and a source of corrupt intriguing among office holders and politicians, is the manner in which officers are appointed to the civil service of Government. The appointing power is often the very lever by which the people are defeated. The Congressman, if recipically in harmony with the administration, virtually holds the appointment of all Federal officers in his District in his own hands. Those offices dependent upon him for their position, he does not fail to use to accomplish his continuation in office. Thus often, by means of packed caucuses and conventions, controlled by his own appointees, the Congressman succeeds in a re-nomination and election, when the voice of the people would never have chosen him. Thus the entire machinery of the civil appointments is made to subserve the personal interest of each Congressman, no matter whether that interest

One of the great reforms, therefore, that the next session of Congress should inaugurate is the civil service reform. This, of course, many Congressmen will be loth to do, as it takes out of their hands the greatest lever they hold to further their own personal ends. If, however, the people and the press keep up a constant demand for the reform it will soon be brought takes it was undemable, and every gentlemen present knew it, that there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a large portion of the Republicans of Berrien who would not support the present knew to the district, and there was a wide-spread disaffection throughout the district, and there was a large portion of the Republicans of Berrien who would not support the present knew to the district, and there was a large portion of the Republicans of Berrien who would not support the present knew to the district that there was a large portion of the Republicans of Berrien who would not support the present knew to the district the district the district the present knew to the district the di for the reform it will soon be brought

The withdrawal of labor from the fields of both countries by the demand for soluters, and the action of the conscription has left agriculture in a deplorable state. The usual winter crops will not be forthcoming, and the deficit in tood must be supplied by Russia and the United States. Of course the tendency of this aemand must be to stiffen prices.

It is conducted fairly, but is positive. The aspect of the city is perfectly tranquil, though not at all gay. No reply is received, but there are fair prospects of an assent. NEW YORK, Sept. 12 -A special to the Evening Telegram, dated London the 12th, says: The siege of Paris may now be said to have fairly commenced. The Prussian forces in detachments form semi-circle around Paris, at a distance of about twenty-five miles. In this position the army has been halted at the firm request of the Russian Minister, in order that King William and Count Bismark may consider a proposition for an armistice emanating from Russia and Austria. Paris remains tranquil, and the inhabitants are firm in the belief that the city can be defended. The roads leading to visions are going in. What the city now contains must prove sufficient for the emer-It is asserted that MacMahon wished to retreat to Paris, but was prevented by Pliakao's order. He will justify himself to the public when recovered from his wounds.

Garibaldi is expected at Paris. Paris, Sept. 12.—The Ministry has just made public the following important intelligence : The Prussians attacked Toul on Saturday, at 5 o'clock in the morning, and persisted until 9 in the evening. They were, i.owever, constantly repulsed, and many of their batteries dismantled. More than 10,000 Prussians were placed hors de combat.

At Montmedy, on Thursday, the garrison splendidly repulsed the Prussian at-

PARIS, Sept. 12.—The Prussians have surrounded Meaux. They have arrived in force at Crecy, twenty-three miles from Paris, and are approaching Voisy-le Grand. LONDON, Sept. 12.—The Prussian army has halted twenty five miles from Paris, at the special request of Bismark, to consider the Russo Austrian proposition for an armistice.

The following dispatch from the King to the Queen is received, dated 10 o'clock Sunday night: "The citadel of Loan exploded after the surrender, just as the Prussians were preparing to enter. Three hundred and fifty were killed, including two hundred Mobile Guards. Many were shockingly mutilated. William, of Mecklenburg, was wounded. There must have been treason." OSTEND, Sept. 12.—The latest intelligence from the Prussian headquarters is that in reply to propositions made through the Austrian Legation, King William declares that he will listen to no proposition except in the Tuilleries, and from the Imperial Government of France. It is reported that Bazaine not only refused capitulation when informed that the Emperor and MacMahon's army were prisoners, and when the Emperor advised the surrender of Metz, but declared in a towering passion that he would not respect Napoleon's wishes and would shoot any French officer advising surrender.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—It is officially an nounced that Thiers will leave this evening for London, Vienna and St. Petersburg on a secret mission. LONDON, Sept. 12.—The New York Tribune's special correspondent, writing from Carlsruhe Sth, says the Strasbourg besieging army is constantly reinforced. Their numbers are nearly 70,000. Sorties by the defenders are desperate but futile. The batteries are rapidly completing, and the heaviest guns placed in the nearest parallels. Eight hundred Germans, who had been expelled from France, reached Carlsruhe on the 9th. They are workingmen, and were compelled to leave all their property behind. They were disgracefully treated while passing through France. Men, women, and children, deprived of food and sleep, were transported in open cattle cars, drenched and insulted, and arrived here dead. PRAGUE, Sept. 12.—A Berlin telegram to the Politique of this city says: A great sensation was created by a despatch of the American Government to its envoy at the Prussian capital, expressing the hope that there will now be a cessation of the war in view of the fact that its aim, the dethronement of Napoleon, had been accomplished. No sooner had the Minister communicated the despatch to Von Thiele and Eulenborg, than it was sent to King William by special courier. NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The World's cable special has some details of the interview between Thiers and Granville, which concluded by the expression from the former that he saw nothing to be looked for from England, and the negotiations undertaken by continental powers with the hope of her co-operation, must probably be suffered to fall through.

It is believed to night that all hopes of peace must be abandoned, and that no treaty will be signed unless in Paris or on the banks of the Rhine. The idea has been started in Berlin of converting Alasce and Lorraine into an independent republic, and it is regarded favorably in London. It is looked upon as a condition to which both belligerents can agree.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Thiers looks worn and ill, and shows a disinclination to conversation. A few words were interchanged with an old acquaintance at Dover, who inquired whether he came as an accredited envoy of the French Republic. He intimated that he knew no republic, only the government for the defence of Paris. There is good authority for believing definite propositions for peace will be offered in behalf of the provisional government of Paris, and that Thiers is authorized to lay them before the British Government, whose intervention is solicited. The terms are as follows: Payment to Prussia of the war expenses: destruction of the forts in Alsace and Lorraine: temporary occupation of Metz and Strasbourg by the German troops, until an election is authorized for a government for France, and ratification of the treaty by the proper au-

Paris, Sept. 13 .- The exact position of the Prussian advance is unknown. According to various accounts, the enemy nas arrived at Meaux, Lagny, and Welun. The Uhlans have cut the railway and destroyed the telegraph lines near Noissy le See, eight miles from Paris.

A motion was suggested, but nor formally made, to have the nomination of Whereupon Mr. J. M. Moore, of Van Buren, took the floor, and said that he had a few words to say here and now, that he thought of the highest importance. He begged gentlemen would pause before this final step was taken. With evident deep feeling, "I ask you," he said, "to look forward and see if the blunder of to-day will not prove a defeat two years from now? We are here, a few of us, in a great minority, and do not expect anything we can say will change the situation, but for myself and many of my friends who believe facts. Here we have a district of at least 250,000 people, entitled in truth to two Representatives in Congress, and what have we? We have got in that seat now a fourth-rate man, and that is all. The question at issue is a serious one, and here in this convention is where we should fight it out! There is a widespread "disrest" in Van Buren county and all over the District, as to William L. Stoughton, notwithstanding all his Iriends may say. Come up here as strong as you may for William E. Stoughton, and you can't change this fact. The strongest-yes, the only claim that he has to this office is the two-term plea, and on this he is to be thrust upon us. I tell you again, this district is worthy of an abler man than Wm. L. Stoughton, I say nothing against him or his record as a soldier, but, sir, he has are sent daily to Pont-a-Mousson, and not made himself worthy of the people for a second term. He has treated a large number of our citizens with disrespect and contempt. He has disregarded our wishes and the petitions we have sent him he slept on, or put them in his pocket and never answered or acknowledged them. Of course, this thing is settled, and no protest can change the verdict; but-if Van Buren county does not resent the indigni-ty forced upon her by an overwhelming demonstration, she will do less than is now determined to do. The majority of the Republican papers there oppose William L. Stoughton and they do it heartly and sincerely, for they know the man, and they know, too, that they must now hunt their holes, or bow down and support him. I tell you gentlemen I doubt greatly whether the regal majority of 7,800 votes rolled up two years ago can be repeated. Wm. L. Stoughton will run thousands behind his ticket, and what a sight is that for the Republicans of this district. We should stop and consider that we have got to meet a decided foe two years from now. There is another thing—take out of Gen. Grant's administration the fact of the reduction of enue, and there is nothing that would help carry the Republican party to victory in 1872. What has Wm. L. Stoughton done

NEW YORK, Sept, 11 .- A Paris special last night says the prospects of peace are more tavorable. Austria and Russia have consented to negotiate with Germany, and have begun by insisting on an ormistice. The envoys of Russia and Austria are authorized in the name of all neutral powers to protest against any dismemberment of France, and if intervention secures a suspension of hostilities, an attempt will be at once made to adjust terms of peace. Bismark and Von Beust are in active negotiation, Lut Bismark insists, as a preliminary CIRCUS. On Tuesday of next week the Great European Circus will exhibit at Buchanan. This is, no doubt, the greatest institution of the kind in America. In order to get an idea of the magnitude of this circus read the advertisement in another column. The proposed exhibition of the cage of Lions and the great lion tamer will be worth seeing. All circus lovers will, undoubtedly, find this one all that they could desire. It is none of your "one horse" concerns, but is a big institution."

TEACHERS' INSTITUTES. — The Teachers' Institute in Berrien Springs commences to-day (Thursday) and will close on Saturday. The Institute in Three Oaks will commence next Monday, Sept. 19, and close on Wednesday. The Institute to be held in Buchanan is to commence next Thursday, Sept. 22d, at 9 A. M., and close on Saturday, the 24th. During the evenings addresses and discussions of interest will be the order of exercises. It is the design of Supt. Ford to have competent assistance during these Institutes, so that they may be rendered thoroughly interesting and profitable.

THE PREMIUM LISTS.—We issue a supplement to the RECORD this week, containing the list of Premiums offered at the approaching Fair to be held in Buchanan, Sept. 28th, 29th and 30th. Road the List garefully and see if you have not something worthy of exhibi-tion. There is searedly a farmer, a fruit grower, a mechanic or an artist of any kind that has not some productions worthy of note, and that will lend to the interest of the Fair. Bring something to the Fair. Preserve the Promium List for reference.

Third Annual Re-Union of the 28th Mich. Regiment, (Infantry Volunteers,) at Coldwater, October, 26, 1870.

COLDWATER, Mich., Aug. 23, '70. EDITOR RECORD, Sh: At the last Annual Re-Union of our Regiment a resolution was passed fixing upon Coldwater as the place of meeting for the next Annual Re-Union, and Wednesday, the 26th day of October, 1870, as the time. THE FAIR.—The readers of the RECORD will bear in mind the Agricultural and Mechanical Fair that is to come off on the grounds of the Park Association on the 28th, 29th and 30th of September. The premiums offered are liberal, and the arrangement for the display of the various products of the soil, mechanical arts and stock are all that could be desired. No finer grounds can be found in the State for an exhibition of the kind proposed, and everything indicates a large interest in the coming Fair. Let every farmer begin to make his calculations to attend, and have a full display of the finest products of his farm. Let every mechanic bring the best specimens of his work. The artists, too, should not fail to be represented. No department lends more to the attractive features of a Fair than having the Floral Palace filled with a thorough display of such articles as usually find place there.

Buchanan.

Record.

The stock department we trust to see fully represented, as we know the farmers and stock growers of Berrien county and adjoining counties have some as fine stock as can be found any where in the State. These Agricultural and Mechanical Fairs have done much for the stimulation of efforts to improve, in the various branches of industry. Let the people of Berrien county attend the Fair on the 28th, 29th and 30th of the present month, and we have no doubt but every one will feel amply rewarded for their time and trouble.

JOINT STOCK MANUFACTURING COM-PANY.—The enterprise looking to the getting up a Joint Stock Company in Buckanan, for the purpose of manufacturing wagons, carriages and such like, is progressing encouragingly. It is proposed to commence with capital of Fifty Thousand dollars. Shares are fixed at one hundred dollars each. Every person taking as many shares as he may desire. There is already subscribed some thirty-five thousand dollars, leaving only fifteen thousand yet to raise.

We know of no manufacturing enterprise that promises a surer return than that of the wagon business. There is not an establishment in all the country anywhere, but has all that they can do. The demand is greater than the supply, and is likely to continue so, as the western country continues to be improved, and of course the demand continues to increase. Farmers in the vicinity of Buchanan, and others having a few hundred dollars or more that they would like to invest in a business where there is every prospect of a good profit, will do well to consider this matter. Those desiring further information on the subject can obtain the same by consulting Messrs. J. D. Ross, N. B. Collins or G. II. Richards, a committee of collections and balancing the appointed to receive subscriptions and books. REDDEN & DUNCAN. impart information touching the designs of the organization.

> School House.—Now that it has been decided that Buchanan is to have a School House worthy the name, it is to be hoped that no time will be lost in making preparations to commence the work. Let the strictest economy be considered in its erection as well as good taste. This done, when it is completed, we opine, there will be no one but who will be proud that Buchanan stands equal, if not superior, in point of educational facilities, to our sister villages throughout the State. While we are decidedly in favor of the erection of a School House that shall be an honor as well as an ornament to the place, we are also in favor of granting to the southeast por-tion of the village a small house to accommodate the smaller children in that region, if the inhabitants thereof desire. A house could undoubtedly be erected there that would cost about $1,500—which would amply meet all present demands. Let there be a united effort to secure such educational facilities in Buchanan, as shall induce men who wish to educate their children to come among us. We has been lost to Buchanan simply on account of the poor educational facilities found in our midst. The inducements in this direction which Buchanan will have to offer will be equal to anything to be found in any place of its size in the State. This taken in connection with the pleasant location and the general healthiness of the county, cannot fail to bring many inhabitants in our midst.

How to Stop a Paper.—An exchange says: You have an undoubted right to stop a newspaper whenever you are disposed, upon payment of the arrearages. When you discontinuo a paper do so manfully. Don't beso pitiful as to throw it back to the postmaster with a contemptuous, "I don't want it any longer," and have "refused" written on the margin, and the paper returned to the editor. No gentleman ever stopped a paper in that way, no matter if his head is covered with gray hairs that would be honorable. If you do not wish longer to receive a newspaper, write a note to the editor like a man, saying so-and be sure that arrearages are paid. This is the way to stop a news-

"Health is Wealth."

Messra. E. B. Treat & Co., Publishers of First Class Subscription Books, No. 654 Broadway, New York, have sent us a copy of their New Family Medical Work entitled OUR HOME PHYSICIAN, a new and popular guide to the art of preserving health and treating disease, with plain advice for all the medical and surgical emergencies of the family. By GEO. M. BEARD, A. M., M. D., Lecturer on Nerv. ous Diseases in the University of the city of New York, Member of the New York County Medical Society, assisted in the various departments by eminent medical authorities.

In scope and character this work is new, full and comprehensive; in style, clear and intelligible; and throughout it is emphatically common sense and practical. The sections relating to hygiene—the preservation of health, prevention and treatment of disease, etc., etc.,—are full and explicit.
and brought down to the latest dates, and seem to us especially good and adapted to the wants of the people. We know of no other medical guide for popular use, that at all approaches it. The work is fully illustrated, and is sold through agents, (either local or traveling), and we hespeak for it a ready sale in this community. We presume such of our renders as desire copies, can, by writing directly to the publishers, arrange for the same. We close our review of this most excellent work by quoting the following from a late number of the The New York Evening Post: "Dr. Beard has been assisted in this work by a number of eminent men: and has succeeded in making a popular treatise on the science of medicine very far superior to any other in existence. It teaches when and how the physician ought to be consulted : in what spirit his directions are to be followed and his efforts seconded: and it puts in a striking light the dangers of quackery and ignorance. There are thousands of households which have no access have known considerable capital that at all to physicians whom they trust, and still more which are so far from their medical advisers that it takes much time to summon them, and they are not called at all except in pressing need, and often too late to be useful. To such families this work will be invaluable, showing clearly, as it does, what is best in all such cases to do, when the physician must be called, and what must be done in the interval before his arrival. The careful study of the book may be confidently recommended to all who desire to understand the general principles of a science to whose hands our lives and dearest interests are so often confided. 'Our Home Physician' may be confidently recommended to those who are seeking such information, as containing all that any unprofessional man can need or care to learn of medical science."

> THE PRINTER.—A Pennsylvania paper puts a case as follows: "If you are a farmer, and raise a thousand or fifteen hundred bushels of wheat, and had to trust it out by the bushel all over the country, would you not think that those you had trusted should make every exertion to pay you, so that you could get in next year's crop and live while it was maturing? The printer is in the same predicament, and taking the case home yourself-don't you think you ought to pay him?

THE passenger traffic on the C. & M. L. S. R. R. is steadily on the increase. We predict that this road will be one of the greatest thoroughfares through Michigan when completed to Grand Rapids. Mr. Morrison informs us that it will be completed two hundred miles north by the first of July, 1971 .- St. Jo. Traveler.

A well-dressed young man was found lying on the grass in front of the dwelling of Mr. Marsh, on Wednesday afternoon last, apparently in a state of beastly intoxication. Father Marsh made an effort to arouse him, but without success. At 8 o'clock in the evening he was still lying there. Where are our city patrols? No such unfortunate should be allowed to lie, exposed to the scorching rays of the sun, for five or six hours, in the heart of our village.—St. Jo Traveler.

SEVERE ACCIDENT.—Theresa, daughter of George Martin, of Royalton, met with a serious accident while attempting to escape from a cow that frightened her, by which her limb between the knee and ancle was broken twice. Dr.'s Webster and Scott successfully reduced the compound fracture, and the young lady is as comfortable as the severity of the injury will permit.—St. Jo. Herald.

County Nominations.

NILES, Sept. 10th, 1870.

EDITOR RECORD:—The time to nominate County officers approaches, and believing it always best that candidates should be mentioned before the convention meets, in order that their respective merits may be canvassed, I would like to mention the name of Hon. John M. Glavin, for Register of eeds, since it is well known that Mr. Dix, who has made an efficient officer for the last six years, is not a candidate for re-election. Mr. Glavin we believe would command the hearty support of the party and make a good officer. It seems to us that it would be for the best interests of the County to have a new Sheriff. We think so, for many reasons which might be of-Yours, &c., ALPHA.

Prices Retreated to the Last Sept. 7th, 1870. EDITOR RECORD :- It must be that your former correspondent at this place has either got married, eloped, or committed suicide, else his pen would not have been so long silent. I have been expecting for some time, to see some mention, in your paper, of Mr. C. M. Beard's new store at Hill's Corners. It is decidadly, one of the very best finished stores in our County, and reflects great credit upon the builder, Mr. Edward Babcock, of Ohio. I am told Mr. Babcock has purchased some land near St. Joseph. am glad he has located in our county, for such mechanical talent should be encouraged among us.—It is said that the exhumed five year old imaginary "infant" at New Troy, would not even "cast a shadow" when bro't to the light of your Justice-Court. That when the learned counsel from Niles put his "re-agents" into the opposite scale, that the infant "kicked the beam!" The analysis, I am told, was this: 80 parts of spite-work, 10 parts of ignorance, and 10 parts of gas, making 100 parts of too etherial, vaporous substance upon which to fasten the charges upon the county, so the much abused, ill tempered complainants will have the bills to pay, unless they can frighten some poor ignorant woman into doing it for them. It would seem as if pettifogging lawyers at times must tremble when they see the mighty effect of chemi-cals in the hands of the alchemist. Fear lest this truthful test might some time be applied to their nefarious schemes, and they pass off like Jacob Faithful's mother, "in a cloud of smoke." It is a trite saying, "that if there is one more dishonest boy than the rest, in a family, that he should be made a lawyer." I don't know but this is rather severe on the "craft," for in my long experince I have known one honest lawyer, a man who would not advocate the wrong. When satisfied the parties were in error, he would advise them settling as best they could; but if determined to litigate, some one else had the suit. This man, though a lawyer, was respected where he lived, and when he died his

Poor, Yet Making Many Rich.

A female missionary was visiting a poor colored woman, one of the Lind's suffering children, and there came into the room another one, aged and infirm, and so weary that she could scarcely speak. She was in trouble. She was poor and wretched, and yet in a distant city there was property that belonged to her and which she was anxious to go and obtain. But she had not the means needful for lier conveyance there. She had been to those friends for whom she had worked, and had walked long distances, to try to borrow the money necessary for her traveling expenses, but was unsuccessful. She, therefore, betook herself to prayer. The missionary said this is, perhaps, what the Lord has sent me here for, to-day. And so they, together, laid the matter before the Lord, at the throne of grace. The missionary went out and soon procured the means required, and the poor afflicted child of God was comfortably provided for and sent on her journey. She was successful in her errand and has come back safely, and now has the means to take care of herself the rest of her days.—N. Y. Observer.

Stop that Thought.

The Divine law denounces a sinful act and of a necessity the siniul thought that led to it; repel it, for it will soon defy your power. An indulged wicked thought -how long before it excites other wicked thoughts, and the lateful passions of the soul are set on fire. Suppose that with effectual power David had checked it, when the first impulse was given to that career of guilt, which made him an adulterer and a murderer. What shame and remorse: how many agonies and tears would have been prevented. Had Judas stopped that thought, which fired the train of Tovetous emotions in his heart and which ended in the betraying of his Lord, what a kindness it had been to his soul. Had the timid Peter repelled that unbelieving thought which laid open his Leart to the tempter, and caused the countless tears of remorse, what shame and suffering had been saved him. We would stay disease as we saw it widening the sphere of its ravages. Who would not cry in earnestness, "Stop that fire." did we see it kindling upon a neigh bor's dwelling? But there is a farther reaching benevolence when we cry, "star that wicked thought." A house may be laid in ashes in the one case, but in the other an immortal soul may sink into everlasting burning.

. Dispair.

If there is anything that will kill a man, it is despair. It has nerved the poor victim to steady the knife on its way to his heart, to the core of life. It has flung the proud woman who stood in her beauty and loveliness where before life was worth liv ing, into the filthy throng to be trampled on, and a filthy thing herself, an outcast from human love, poor wanderer from the love of God. Men and women are among us, on every side of us, who take our hand and speak a passing word but they do not live life; they live instead an awful, ever dying death. Hope is gone, and they work as the clock works, work as a machine. Turn not too coldly, proud fortunate, from a fairer one who has fallen at your feet-she was better than you once —she stood up longer than you could have done—she is your sister—she is God's.

Zeal.

There may be, and are, different degrees of zeal—just as the blood of some animals is warmer, and the lustre of some star is brighter, and the perfume of some flowers is sweeter than that of others, but zeal for the Lord more or less developed, will be found in all true Christians. Continued torpor is as incompatible with spiritual existence, and cold indifference to the cause of Christ, the glory of God, the good of souls, the honor and interests of the Redeemer's kingdom as great a moral as this is a physical impossibility—a man who does not breathe, or a sun that does not shine, or a fire that does not burn. Piety as has been well remarked, may consist with error but cannot with indifferenceand if such be our usual and permanent condition, in imagining ourselves Christians, it is certain that "we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us."—Dr

A Divine Life.

The secret mysteries of a divine life, of a new nature, of Christ formed in our hearts, they cannot be written or spoken A painter that would draw a rose, though he may furnish some likeness of it in figure and color, yet he can never paint the scent and fragrancy; or if he would draw a flame he cannot put a constant heat into its colors; he cannot make his pencil draw a sound. Neither are we able to inclose in words and letters the life, soul, and essence of any spiritual struths, and, as it were, incorporate it in them.—Cudworth.

Little Things.

Little things and little people have often brought great things to pass. The large world in which we exist is made up of little particles, smaller than the sands on the sen-shore. The vast sen is composed of small drops of water. The little busy bees how much honey they gather! Do not be discouraged because you are little. A lrttle star shines brightly up in the sky in the dark night, and may be the means of saving many a poor sailor from shipwreck; and a little Christian may do a great deal of good, if he or she will try. There is nothing like trying.

Be Brave. Be brave! be strong! be manly! There will be sorrows in your life which will unedge your joys, as those little cobble stones do your scythe. But there is the grindstone of Faith, upon which you may hold the dullest sickle of Hope, until it shall grow bright and keen, ready to cut your way bravely on again, if you but hold it with a steady, honest, earnest hand.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I would respectfully solicit a share of the FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrotulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by its Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the Scrofulous affections of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt, tonant of the organism undermines the constitution and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body; and them, on: some favorable occasion, rapidly developinto one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by cruptions on the skim, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear.
