Story. From the Evening Wisconsin. A Little Story of the Hard Times.

BY MIGNONETTE. (CONCLUDED.) "Oakley, I want all these papers copied if it takes till midnight," which was followed by an "All right, sir," in the voice of Phil. himself. A good sized coal hod would have comfortably accommodated the shrinking form of our adventurer at that moment, but she looked in vain for even such an avenue of escape. The dreadful footsteps of J. Stubbs came striding across the floor, and she had only time to wheel about for a frantic rush to the stairs before he was in the hall and by her side. "Business hours from one to seven, sir!" said J. Stubbs in an emphatic voice and strode away. Gracie, in a whirlyind of emotion, stood irresolute one moment, and then softly returned and placed her eye to the generous key hole. Yes, certainly, there he was-at work-and evidently at home-his hat and coat hung up methodically, and paper und foolscap and all the paraphernalia of a copyist's business freshly arranged as if he had just begun his regular evening routine. He had in fact, that very instant dipped his pen in the ink and was writing fast and furiously. Oh-what to do! Her impulse was to fling wide the door and cast herself upon his neck, but as the result, ten to one, would have been a good blow-hard and square, between the eyes—(for who but a garroter would rush upon a peaceful copyist in that way?) she fortunately restrained herself and gently walked away and went down stairs.

"Not for anything would I have him—my own, good, darling, noble Phil.—see me in this plight, and know why I am in it!" she thought, with the tears of penitence and shame starting to her eyes in the most unmanly style. "But oh—wont I have an explanation to-night! And I have plenty of time to prepare for it," she laughed softly to herself-"till midnight, that man said!" But the way of the transgressor is not all smooth. Gracie walked briskly and swiftly for three blocks, and then it occurred to her that her route had been a very zigzag route, and that she would not be very apt to reach home in a straight line. It was not logical. It is a large and complicated city wherein this incident transpired, and Gracie was not, geographically speaking, well posted. So it was in a very subdued frame of mind that she turned down another street, and in so doing was suddenly congealed by the appearance of an individual who rose suddenly from a dry goods box and confronted her. "Hoodyerrahfur?" demanded this person in hardly distinguishable accents; diffusing around him a powerful atmosphere of beer.

"Hood-yer-r-r-rahfur?" the individual repeated, encouraged by her craven retreat and blockading her way at all points of the compass. "Honest Abe!" gasped Gracie in loyal desperation.

"Ole Abe be blowed:-rah fur Mac! rah fur him!-r'I'll---" The individual finished his difficult threat by "squaring off" in a clumsy but earnest manner.

For an instant patriotism and timidity warred beneath Phil's wedding vest. I think the attire masculine carries in itself tendencies to beligerourga" says, "It is the greatest sin for a woman to put on man's clothes. The devil is then master over one. Before Gracie had decided to push the tottering politician off the sidewalk; an impish gust of wind snatched her hat from her head, and she gave a little scream. It is the greatest fault, and surveying her rain dripping hair, I have to find with women—this her convulsed face and her general screaming, and screaming at nothing! ensemble with such honest horror that

The individual gave a boosy shout:

"laughter.

"Gretchen must go for the doctor!"

"dollar or two."

"he said; stepping swiftly to the door.

The individual gave a boosy shout."

"Oh; no, Phil.!—dear, good Phil.!

It is all right! Just let me breathe! and a gleam of intelligence flashed There, let me kneel here," growing suddenly calm, "and stay here until I recovered herself, made a dash at the am forgiven!" hat, caught it, and fled like an ante-

"Forgiven? — forgiven — what?"
And Phil. stared at her still quite lope, nor paused until she had reached the comparative privacy of the nearcertain that a doctor was eminently She had barely wiped the dews of necessary. "I wanted to know why you staid terror from her brow and taken a long breath, before a dulcet voice said soft-down town every evening, and where you staid. And now I know! And oh, please forgive me, Phil., for I have been so unhappy!"

Phil. looked down into her eyes,

she mentally quoted, not daring to and for his life he could see no gleam speak, and not yet ready to face the of insanity there. The facts of the case dawned upon him. This explained, then, why she had been so cold to "If it isn't you, you'd better be moving!" said the voice, less dulcet him, why all her old lightsome smiles than before, followed by a sound that and greetings had so suddenly been seemed to her fevered imagination like a hand searching for a bootjack, laid aside. The most beautiful girl in New York—so it is claimed—she attracted the attention of a young officer, a member of one of England's oldest and proudest families, who, with his regiment, entered the city when the British occupied New York, after the battle of Long Island. Charlotte, then only seventeen, was wooed and won by the dashing young officer. He deserted her, and then-the old story -she soon after died of a broken heart. A little daughter which she left was tenderly cared for, at a proper age taken to England and a fortune of $100,000 settled upon her by the head of her father's family, the Earl of Derby, great-grandfather of the present Lord Stanley. She, like a true daughter of a true -woman, returned to New York and erected the mohument that now marks the mother's grave. The inscription on it was engraved on a solid tablet of brass, an inch in thickness, heavily plated with silver and thus it read: "Sacred to the memory of Charlotte Stanley, creek; and, oh, my! down in the bottom aged 19 years." This filial duty performed she returned to England and lived a life of unobtrusive piety and

The plate placed upon the stone that marks the grave was supposed to be of solid silver, and tempted the cupidity of certain vandals, who, with hammer and chisels, succeeded in prying it from the slab. They were never detected. Many years afterward some good Samaritan caused the simple name of Charlotte Temple to be cut underneath the excavation. There it may be seen, within a few feet of Broadway, by any one who will take the trouble to look through the iron railing. The last time we glanced at the slab, now almost imbedded in the ground, we saw several sparrows taking a bath in the water which had collected in the excavation from which the villians had removed the plate; and other little feathered songsters were singing a requiem over her grave -near which we were gratified to observe a forget-me-not, doubtless planted there by some kind heart, who, in childhood, had wept over the sad and romantic story of the blue-eyed girl.

An economical Frenchman recently sought to blend the useful with the sentimental by turning the grave of his wife into an onion bed. He has been equaled, if not surpassed, by an economical Englishwomen, who makes her husband's epitaph serve as a business bulletin in this wise: "Died, on the 11th ultimo, at his shop on Fleet street, Mr. Edward Jones, much respected by all who knew him and dealt with him. As a man he was amiable; as a hatter, he was upright and moderate. His virtues were above all price, and his beaver hats were only £1 3s. each. He has left a widow to deplore his loss, and a large stock to be sold cheap for the benefit of his family. He was snatched to the other world in the prime of his life, and just as he had concluded an extensive purchase of felt, which he got so cheap that the widow can supply hats at a more moderate charge than any other house in London. His disconsolate family will carry on the business with punctuality."

Complex Relationship.

I got acquainted with a young widow who lived with her step-daughter in the same house. I married the widow; my father fell, shortly after, in love with the step-daughter of my wife, and married her. My wife became the mother-in-law and also the daughter-in-law of my own father; my wife's step-daughter is my step-mother, and I am the step-father of my mother-in-law. My step-mother, who is the step-daughter of my wife, has a boy; he is actually my step-brother, but because he is the son of my wife's stepdaughter, so is my wife the grandmother of the little boy, and I the grandfather of my step-brother. My wife has also a boy, my sten-mother is consequently the sister of my boy, and is also his grandmother. because he has got his step-mother for a wife. I am the brother of my own son, who is the son of my mother, my wife is the aunt of her own son, my son is the grandson of my father, and I am my own grandfather.

Lincoln and Speed.

One evening during the last winter of the President's life, when extremely busy, and weary as well he was called to the reception room to see Mr. Speed, then Attorney General. The latter had called to introduce a friend, and seeing the weary look of the President's face at once began to apologize.

"I am very sorry, Mr. President, to disturb you," said Speed.
"Speed," he replied, "you remind me of a story of Henry Ward Beecher. One Sunday as he was going to preach, he saw some boys playing marbles in the street. He stopped and looked at them hard. 'Boys,' he said, presently, 'I'm scared; scared.' "Then, why in h—l, don't you run?' answered the boys. If you are so sorry, Speed, why did you come?"

Wigs vs. Theology. A well known Washington beau, rejoicing as every one supposed in the undimmed luster of natural chevelure has been brought to grief by the refusal of the Episcopal Bishop of New Jersey to lay confirming hands on his aristocratic caput. It seems the Bishop discovered, in some way or other, that the brilliant beau was not altogether a work of nature, and particularly the hair on his head, which was found to be a gorgeous wig. According to the rites of the Episcopal Church a Bishop cannot lay his hands on an artificial headpiece. It must be all natural, "the capiliary substance," or he cannot rightfully perform the confirmation. The worst part of the story is that the aforesail beau was engaged to be married to a young and beautiful lady, who, in consequence of the Episcopal veto on wigs,

The following method is recommended by a German horticultural association: For each square rod to be planted, take half a pound of lawn grass, and mix it intimately and thoroughly with about six cubic feet of good dry garden earth and loam. tency of mortar. The slope is to be cleaned off and made perfectly smooth and then watered, after which the paste just mentioned is to be applied with a trowel and made as even and thin as possible. Should it crack by exposure to the air, it is to be again watered and smoothed up, day by day, until the grass makes its appearance which will be in from eight to fourteen days, and the whole declivity will soon be covered by a close carpet of green.

Power of Imagination. A wealthy lady had a tickling in the throat, and thought a bristle of her toothbrush had gone down and lodged in her gullet. Her throat daily grew worse. It was badly inflamed, and she sent for the family doctor. He examined it carefully, and assured her that nothing was the matter-it was a nervous delusion, he said. Still her throat troubled her, and she became so much alarmed that she was sure she would die. A friend suggested that she should call on Dr. Jones, a young man just commencing practice. She did not at first like the idea, but finally assented, and Dr. Jones was called. He was a person of good address and polite manners. He looked carefully at her throat, asked several questions as to the in a short time. On his second visit he brought with him a delicate pair of forceps, in the teeth of which he had inserted a bristle taken from an ordinary toothbrush. The rest can be imagined. The lady threw back her head; forceps were carefully introduced into her mouth, a prick, a prick, a loud scream, and it was over. The young physician with a smiling face, was holding up to the light, and inspecting with lively curiosity the extracted bristle. The Roasted. The Pittsburg Chronicle says: Last evening another of those fatal accidents, resulting from ignorance, occurred in the Sixth ward, Alleghany. The victim was Maggie Shano, a daughter of Martin Shano, proprietor of a tailor shop, at No. 204 Beaver avenue. About a week ago the wife of Thomas Murray became sick, and the girl was employed to wait on the woman during her illness. About 5 o'clock last evening the girl was directed to light the fire and prepare supper. She then put some wood in the stove and lit it, but it did not burn well, and she went to the cupboard and took out a can containing carbon oil, and began pouring it into the fire. In an instant the oil can exploded with a fearful report, and the child was wrapped in flames. The force of the explosion threw her to the rear of the room. At the explosion, Mrs. Murray, who was lying sick in an adjoining room, was terribly frightened, and at once jumped out of bed, and, taking her child, rushed frantically down stairs to relate the fearful The explosion had been heard down

Not a vestige of hair remained upon her head; the upper eyelids had been burned so badly that they had turned up like crisp, and her scorched eyeballs evidenced that she had lost sight. The flesh of the face was also shriveled up, and the doctor, upon opening the mouth, saw that the tongue and throat had been burned as far down as could be seen. She was also able to speak at first, and told how the accident occurred.

So she pursed up her little mouth, tucked her ringlets behind her ears, looked up, looked down, blushed a little and began: "Once there was a little girl who thought she would hide away from everybody; and she went and she hided, and she hided, and she hided "And there was a little boy who thought

THE RAILROAD QUESTION.

The Railroad question, involving the adoption or rejection of the proposed Constitutional Amendment, does not in the least enter into the present contest, as a political issue. There are many of the wisest and best men. of both political parties, occupying different sides of the railroad issue. While one Republican may vote one way, another may vote directly opposite on this question. And so of Democratic voters. Some will vote one way and some will vote another. The question is, therefore, one of general interest, and not of party policy. While the RECORD opposes the amendment, we know good Republicans who favor it. Shall we, therefore, throw our influence against such men. We say no, never. It makes no difference. where any man stands, who is running for office, on this question. It is not the province of any man to settle the issue. The people have that to do, and will do it irrespective of party. But why does it make no difference where candidates for office stand on the question? Simply because the people have the settlement of the matter, either by the adoption or rejection of the amendment. If they adopt it, then the members of the Legislature are bound to carry out the Constitutional provision thus adopted by the people, or forfeit their honor. It makes no difference where they may personally stand, or what their personal preferences may be. They go up to Lansing under instructions, by the vote of the people on the railroad issue, and they will not dare to set at defiance that will expressed so emphatically at the ballot box. On the other hand, if the amendment is rejected by the the people, which we believe will be the case by an overwhelming ly reduced. Looking at its history in the majority, then the members of the past, will it not make its pledges good in this will be a great business in Kansas. Legislature can do nothing. The the future?

people having rejected the amendment, and the Supreme Court having decided against the Constitutionality of Railroad aid by taxation, what, we ask, can the Legislature do? Nothing, just nothing. And where, we ask, is the member of that body who would dare oppose the will of the people, if he could, in the face of their decision at the ballot box, and in the face of the Supreme Court decision?

It matters not, then, to the voters. of either the Republican or Democratic parties, what the private sentiments of their respective candidates may be, on the railroad issue. Notwithstanding we are opposed to the Amendment, and trust both Republicans and Democrats will overwhelmingly vote it down, yet if we knew any or all of the candidates were in favor of Railroad Aid, and would vote in favor of the adoption of the amendment at the polls, we should still vote for them, knowing that after the question was settled by the people, that they (the candidates) are too honorable men to do otherwise than carry out the will of the people as expressed at the ballot box. Even if they should desire to do differently, (which is not supposable) they have no power to do so. Let no Republican voter of Berrien County for a moment, then, trouble himself as to where this candidate or that candidate stands on the Railroad question. But rather let every voter in the County, who is opposed to Railroad Aid by Taxation, in any shape or form, vote solidly against the proposed Railroad Amendment to the Constitution. Let the opposition to this measure see that every vote is cast on this question, as well as that every Republican voter is at the polls, and votes for the several candidates on his ticket.

THE WAR.

From the latest advices from the Franco-Prussian war, the prospects | Parties are to be judged by their record. for peace seem no nearer than they! That record of itself is no reason why did a week ago. It seems that matters are getting more and more mixed up. The Republic of France is not in a condition to guarantee a peace satisfactory to Prussia. And even Prussia seems to care but little whether peace is concluded or not, at present. Bismark is determined to press the advantages gained by the Germans | those of real progress and reform in the so as, he says, to secure a lasting past; its march is onward and upward in

Of late, however, the French appear to have been gaining some little advantages, but not sufficient to warrant any hopes of a settlement of the difficulty, on any other than Bismark's terms of peace, except by the inter-ference of other powers. This seems to be the one hope that impols the present authorities of France to hold out as long as possible. A rumor comes, that Napoleon with Bazaine in of foreign birth, and given him the highest Metz may yet inaugurate a peace positions allowed by the Constitution. Metz may yet inaugurate a peace movement, which may put entirely a different phase on the contest. It is evident from the most reliable information that the French people are in a very unsettled condition, and ready a very unsettled condition, and ready for almost any kind of a government rebellion; were ever devoted to the slave means do ulcers exist, and how are they that can offer any guarantees for the power; persecuted a freed people; oppos-supported but by a morbid state of the security of France. It is utterly im- ed the civil rights bill; resisted in overy blood? To what other source can be at possible to predict what the end of the present struggle will be. If Russia's warlike preparations are designed for operations against Prussia, then France may have hopes of saving all her territory, but if Russia means hostilities in the direction of Turkey, then the sooner France accept terms of peace the better. The of this problem.

IT STILL CONTINUES.

No one fact speaks so loudly to the people of the nation in praise of the Republican administration as the constant reduction of the public debt. It still continues to grow less; and at the present rate of reduction the debt is fast being liquidated. In the constant decrease of the national debt can be seen an exhibition of what honesty and a faithful collection of the revenue will do. During the month of September the debt has been reduced $9,007,438. This we know is a bitter thought to the Democracy, who had hoped that the present administration would fail to lessen the public debt without increase of taxation. But even taxation has been greatly reduced, and with reduced taxation the reduction in our public debt still continues. This is an argument in favor of Republican administration of public affairs, which all the people can and do fully comprehend. The total decrease of the national debt, since the first of March, being seven months, is $91,413,824. This is what a thorough Republican administration has done for the country in a financial point. It is good enough, and the people rejoice that Grant was made President.

Address of the Republican State Central Committee. To the Voters of Michigan:

The approaching State election is to decide questions of no small importance to the people of Michigan. Not only State and county officers and six members of Congress are to be elected, but the next Legislature will choose a United States Senator, and make a new apportionment of Congressional, Senatorial, and Representative districts, to equalize the representation under the census now being taken.

The Republican party has controlled the government during the past ten years, except when the factious conduct of Andrew Johnson again placed the nation under the rule of the Democracy. During that time it has subdued a great rebellion, instigated and controlled by Democratic leaders; it has struck the chains from the limbs of four millions of slaves; it has given civil and political liberty to all classes of citizens without regard to color or race; it hargiven to every settler a free homestead; secured pensions to the soldiers who saved the Union; has maintained the public credit and reduced the national debt $170,000,000 during the first eighteen months of Grant's administration; has carried out the resolutions of economy and retrenchment, to which the party was pledged at Chicago in 1864, by reducing the expenditures of Government more than $82,000,000 in the last eighteen months as compared with the last eighteen months of Johnson's administration; has restored to the Union all the States that took part in the rebellion; has greatly increased the receipts of government, while, at the same time, the national taxation has been large-into power in January, 1855, and has for sixteen years maintained its supremacy. During that time it has placed its charitable and reformatory institutions on such a footing as demanded by the wants of this commonwealth; has furnished millions of money and ninety-five thousand men to aid in the preservation of the government; has maintained the credit of the State unimpaired; has reduced State taxation: increased the receipts from specific taxes upon foreign corporations; and will provide for all the obligations of the State as they fall due. The State taxation under Democratic rule ranged from three to five mills on the dollar when they provided for the interest on the State debt, as shown by the following figures: 1848, 5.03 mills; 1849, 3.53 mills; 1850, 3.92 mills; 1851, 3.42 mills: 1852, 3.55 mills. The largest State tax of any year since the Republican party has been in power, from 1855 to 1870 was that of 1865, 3.73 mills. The aver age State tax for the sixteen years that they have controlled the State has been 1.81 mills upon the dollar. For the past four years the tax has been as follows: 1867, 2.85 mills; 1868, 2.31 mills; 1869, 1.51 mills; 1870, 1.28 mills. This includes all taxes levied by the State for any purpose. The increase of the State debt by the war was $2,489,400. The total bonded debt November 30, 1866, was $3, 979,921.25. It was reduced in 1867 $78,678.55; in 1868, $287,164.21; in 1869, $570,500; and in 1870, up to Sep-

392. The bonded debt September 15th 1870, was $2,396,639.25, or less than $8,000 more than it was November 30th, 1860, before the commencement of the Financially, the progress of the State and Nation toward renewed and sound prosperity was never more promising than now. Within eighteen months one-fifteenth of the entire national debt has been paid, and within less than four years more than one-third of the State debt. The proportionate reduction will be greatly increased in the future, as more than $11,000,000 is saved annually on the interest of the na-tional debt, and more than $114,000 an-

LANSING, Sept. 27, 1870. KANSAS LETTER. BAZAAR, Chase Co., Kan., } Sept. 24th, 1870.

EDITOR BERRIEN Co. RECORD. - Dear Sir:-Although some time has passed since a communication has been sent by me to the RECORD, yet it has not been disregarded or its columns unread. Onward is the watchword of Kansas. A tide of emmigration is pouring into this State that excels anything in the past. The emmigration of last year is estimated at 100,000, and 2,000 homesteads aggregating 320,000 acres have been entered and 285,027 acres have been disposed of under the pre-emption and other laws, and still they come more than ever; and yet there is room to make bargains in buying land, and for those that cannot buy to get homesteads.

To show the readers of the RECORD what Kansas is doing, a few statistics may be interesting. We have to-day over 1,000 miles of railroad completed, 300 miles in process of construction, and about 600 projected. There are in Kansas 1707 organized school districts, with 1213 school houses, and some 92,517 children of school age. In addition to two Normal Schools a State University, and an Agricultural College, there are sixteen denominational schools and colleges. Ten daily, and fifty weekly newspapers and four monthlies are published. The Texas cattle trade is an enormous thing in this State. A gentleman who lives near one of the western trails, told me not long since that it was no uncommon occurrence to see 10,000 head pass in a day, and that from four to five thousand was the average number that pass.

Illinois farmers buy large quantities of stock here, to stall feed in that State. One man has just driven out from an adjoining county 900 head for that purpose. Stock raising and cattle dealing is destined to be a great business in this State. With Texas on the South, with its enormous herds to supply us in the Spring, and Illinois on the East, so extensive in the production of grain to demand stock for Winter feeding, there can be no doubt but that

We are to have a railroad through our county. wood Falls) a point. It is to be completed in a few months. Business is lively. A bridge is being built across the Cottonwood River, at the Falls. A number of new houses are going up, and everybody is trying to reap some benefit from the excitement. We have been having some very heavy rains lately, and the streams are so high that the stages and the mail are quite irregular.

Among other news items from this locality, a Buffalo hunt is projected and a party being made up to engage in the sport. It is about 75 miles from here to the border of the plains where they roam. They are not as wild as many other animals, and more easily shot; but the hunter who shoots one, is in peril, if in sight of the herd. If a herd can be caught near a clump of timber, so that a hunter can shoot from a secluded place, he can kill as many as he pleases. A friend of mine shot fifteen, without scarcely moving from his tracks. He shot down a calf first; at this the others set up a hideous bellowing and roaring, and he kept shooting until all were killed.

Sometimes buffalo hunting is dear sport. A party went from this neighborhood, a few years ago, on a hunt, late in the season. A heavy snow storm came on, they lost their direction, and traveled two or three days and nights, without fire or sleep. When the sun came out, so that they could get their direction, they struck out for the nearest point of timber, felled a large tree, made a fire, hung up their clothes to dry, and laid down to sleep. They were so exhausted and slept so soundly, that their coats, blankets, boots, shoes and provisions, placed around the fire to dry, caught fire and burned up. They were obliged to make moccasins for their feet out of buffalo skins, and to wrap themselves in the hides they had with them, and thus they came home. Some of them have not asked to go buffalo hunting since. Yours, as ever,

It needs no argument to show that blood is continually forming from the food we eat, and that the blood thus formed is constantly expended to form muscle, bone cartilage, &c. All the solids comprising the Human Body, and that these solids are as constantly decomposing and wasting away, the most common observer daily witnesses this fact. Hence it necessarily follows that if the blood be not in good condition, it is utterly impossible for the blood to produce healthy solids, and consequently diseased action of the muscular and nervous system are the result. If the sap of a tree be not good it CANNOT produce healthy foliage and fruit. But medical men, contending that disease originates in the solids, are always reterring to local affections; it is seldom they consider an affection general, nuless it be where it would appear fidiculous to argue otherwise, as in fevers. They think but little of the properties or qualities of the blood, and reply to a patient, "Oh, your blood is good enough—there is nothing the matter with your blood," We unequivocally declare, THAT ALL DISEASES FIRST ORIGINATE IN THE PLUIDS, and as the fluids form the solids, the solids become secondarily affected from the impure condition of the blood What are humors, and in what way are they produced but from a morbid and

If disease, then, be generated through the agency of the blood, what other course can be adopted to eradicate it but through the agency of the blood? Render the condition of the blood healthy and it will make Lealthy deposit in the diseased organ until it becomes sound.

The question now arises-Can this be done? Can the acrid matter in the blood. producing inflamation, be neutralized and rendered harmless? When the blood is charged with mucous, lime, carbon, &c., rendering it thick and viscid, can these substances be dissolved and the blood attenuated? We unequivocally maintain that the power to accomplish these great and important objects exists, and may be experienced by those who may apply to us for that purpose.

The amount of disease prevailing throughout the community is inedscribable. Scarcely an individual, old or young, do we pass in the streets, but their countenance evinces the disease or internal derangement which is rapidly hurrying them to the termination of their mortal existence. Diseases of the Lungs, Liver, Kidneys and Spleen, are by far the most numerous, and from which many other difficulties arise, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Erysipelas, Canker Shortness of Breath, Asthma, Dizziness, Coldness of the extremities and Chilliness, Palpitations, Numbness, Debility, Costiveness, Piles, Catarrh, Diarrhea, Headache, Prolapsus Uteri, Fluor Albus, Incontinence of Urine, Inflamation, heat and burning of the body, Chills, Fevers, &c.
If you enquire of an individual why he does not do something for his complaint, the most invariable reply will be: "I don't know what to do; I have tried everything; I am discouraged; I think I can never regain my health." This experience, though dearly bought, should not be lost; it should cause deep reflection, ardent thought.

Many that have tried all the various systems of treating disease, and almost the whole list of Advertised Medicines, have found the means of restoration to health, and now live in the blessed enjoyment of it. Diseases of the Lungs, Throat, Liver, Heart, Kidneys, Scrofula, and all other complaints must necessarily yield where a medicine properly prepared and adapted to the case, is employed, of which we daily have the most incontestable proofs. The successful mode of treatment in the curability of disease, and the anti-poisonous character of our medicines, composed entirely from articles from the Vegetable Kingdom, have been the means of restoring thousands to their lost health when consigned to death by their friends and medical advisors. Our practice has been before the public for many years, and our appointments regularly kept. We invite the sick to call upon us; our advice in all cases will be gratuitously given, our opinions unbiased; no expense incurred without there is reasonable hones of a cure.

I will be for consultation upon all diseases of the lungs, throat, heart, nerves, blood, etc., on my next visit, at Niles, making our county seat (Cotton- | Reading House, Sunday and Monday the 30th and 31st of October. At Laporte, Merrill House, 11th and 12th of October.

DEATH OF THE DUKE OF NASSAU. The Duke of Nassau was killed on the 24th, while riding with the King of Prussia and staff from Rheims to Chalons, for the purpose of conferring with Prince Frederick Charles. In the thickest part of the woods there suddenly rang out a double volley of musketry from an ambuscade of Francs-Tireurs. The third carriage, containing the Duke and staff, was riddled with bullets. One of the aides-de-camp was instantly killed, another mortally wounded, and the Duke also. The fifth carriage, containing the King was struck by several balls. No one was hurt. The woods were scoured by cavalry without any result. The Duke died on Sunday. Tours, Oct. 2-General Ulsich arrived here last night. He was met at the city gates by the Ministers and an immense crowd of people, and escorted to the Archepiscopal Palace, where he is installed as a public guest.

The occupation of Strasbourg by the Germans was solemnized on the 30th by religious services in the Church of St.

The Germans took 170 guns, valued at 2,000,000 francs, property in the bank estimated at 8,000,000 francs, and an immense amount of munitions and clothing. On Wednesday there was heavy fighting at Metz, near Colombegars and Lagu-

Tours, Oct. 2—The government issued proclamation to-day in which, referring to the change in the day appointed for the election to the Constituent assembly, they explain that the earlier date, October 16, was decided on with a view to facilitating negotiations for an armistice. The government boasts that the courage of the defenders of Paris, aided by events outside, may bring deliverance before then, but should the situation remain unchanged, the Assembly will inspire the army and nation with fresh hope and courage.

LONDON, Oct. 2-A despatch says that for three days cannonading has been heard in the direction of Pont-a-Mouson. The Diplomatic Corps have resolved to make an attempt to communicate with Count Bismark, to ask for twenty-four hours' notice before bombardment com-stantinople, has arrived here. There is a constant movement of troops. Regiments and cannons are daily passing through the city. The newspapers are unanimous in urging a settlement of the eastern question and the abrogation of the treaty of Paris. Diplomatists say Gortschakoff is resolved to speedily upset it. This resolution has probably been peaceably arrived at be-tween Gortschakoff and Bismark.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Later advices from the Prussian headquarters around Paris show that the army is quietly closing in around the city. They have made no efforts thus far to bombard.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Times' London correspondent telegraphed last night as follows: "The proclamation of the government delegation at Tours, ordering the elections to take place on the 16 of October, gives great satisfaction here, and promises to give a new direction to the apparently hopeless current of French affairs, and will have the effect of depriving Bismark of the pretext that there is no government to treat with capable of giving guarantees; for this failing to listen to reason will insure vigorous support to the measures of the administration from all parts of the country, and reverse the grief of the demoralized but gallant French people."

VIENNA, Oct. 3 .- The Review of this norning says the alarming news about Russian war preparation is untrue. General Ignatieff is still at Constantinople. Russia makes no war movements whatever. The relations between Russia and Austria leave nothing to be desired.

the plan of business adopted by Noble in his trade, and are fully convinced that his is the best plan. He makes a speciality of boots and shoes, hats and caps. On these he is thoroughly posted. The result is he buys goods low, and sells for cash, making no bad debts, and hence he is able to offer the most fashionable goods for less money than goods out of fashion can be bought for. Go and see his stock and you will be sure to purchase, for prices and styles will suit.

RAILROAD OFFICERS .- At the late meeting of the Directors of the Elkhart and Lake Michigan Railroad Company, the following officers were elected: R. C. Paine, President; Joseph Risford, Vice President: Col. D. Bacon, Secretary; J. Graham, Treasurer; Gen. I. G. Abbott was added to the executive committee.

lately should go and see its improved appearance. By order of the authorities and under the direction of Marshal Smith, the drives and walks have been graded, lots filled up, so that the plan of the Cemetery can be fully seen. The beauty of the laying out of the grounds could never before be seen, but the present improvements show Oak Ridge Cemetery to be one of the finest arranged burying grounds in the whole County. We are glad to chronicle these improvements; for if there is a spot on earth that should one sacred spot where reposes the ashes of the loved departed.

THE FAIR.-We had intended to have written up a sketch of the numerous prominent articles exhibited at the Fair last week, but the press of other matters have been so great that we have been unable to do so. In many respects it was the best exhibition we have witnessed in many years. The show of Stock was peculiarly good, and in the exhibition of Swine, unsurpassed by anything ever had in the County. Floral Hall pre-sented a thousand curiosities worthy of note, and was a place of eminent attraction. We trust next week to have sufficient time to notice particularly some of the more worthy objects of the exhibition, at some length. The crowd in attendance was large on the second day, and on the last day it Weaver's Hall, on Saturday evening was extremely good, considering the next, (Oct. 8th.) at 74 o'clock, to talk weather. We regretted very much the matter over, and make such furthe unfavorable day on Friday, as it kept hundreds away who had made their calculations to be in attendance on that day. Take all things into consideration, and we cannot call it very little news for you of late. At Stevensville, thieves have undertaken to rob the stores, and one of them came very near being caught by the watch dog who jumped through the window after the fellows. It is about the time of year for them to commence their thieving. People should be on the watch for these fellows. Mr. Smith wants to hear from Jo. Baker in relation to the Aurora Borealis. I did not see the peculiar phenomenom, coruscant display of light. Mr. Smith asks for a scientific explanation of it. I think it the presage of the success of the Republican party in the coming elections. Some of the citizens were noticing other kinds of "A Roaring Borealis." They came from the north with a load of pumpkins. They all gathered around the central disk, and inhaled some of the forty rod lightning, then the pumpkins of different colors and sizes and coruscations, began to radiate in different directions, some towards the zenith and some towards the earth, and some passed in close proximity to some of our citizens heads, which alarmed some, one especially, who felt himself somewhat injured. Rich, the marshal, appeared on the scene, ery person interested, and that such a spirit of progress will prevail that the with a warrant to secure these "signal lights," and confine them in the calaboose. They were not so easily caught. These lights began to radiate from the central disk in different directions out of the village, across the fields, and through the timber. I hear they are now shining in Indiana.—At the Niles and Buchanan fairs, people could feast their eyes on the productions of Berrien County, such as wheat, corn, vegetables and fruit. There is probaoly no section of country that can compete with Berrien County in fruit. A gentleman, pointing to a person, asked me if that was the man who married for walnuts. I said, "I believe so." I saw no specimen walnuts

Hair Vigor For the Renovation of the Hair.

The Great Desideratum of the Age.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to ils original color and the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles- are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be sayed for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted

The Sea of Galilee. Pilgrims, sinners and Arabs, are all abed now and the camp is still. Labor in loneliness is irksome. Since I have been sitting outside the tent for half an hour. Night is the time to see Galileo. Genes-saret, with the glittering reflections of the constellations flecking its surface, almost makes me regret that I ever saw the rule glare of day upon it. Its history and its associations are its chiefest charm, in any eyes, and the spell they weave are feeble in the searching light of sun. Then we scarcely feel the fetters. Our thoughts wander constantly to the practical con-cerns of life, and refuse to dwell upon the things that seem vague and unreal. But when the day is done, even the most unimpressible must yield to the dreamy influences of the tranquil starlight. The old traditions of the place steals upon the memory and haunt his reveries, and then his fancy clothes all sights and sounds with the supernatural. In the lapping of the waves upon the beach he hears the dip of ghostly cars; in the secret noises of the night he hears spirit voices; in the soft sweep of the breeze, the rustle of invisible wings. Phantom ships are on the forth from their tombs, and, amid the dirges of the night wind the songs of old find utterance again. In starlight, Galilee has no boundaries but the broad compass of the heavens, and it is a theatre meet for the birth of a religion to save the world; and meet for the stately figure appointed to stand upon its stage and proclaim its high decrees. But, in the sunlight, one says: Is it for the deeds which were done and for the words which were spoken in this little acre of rocks and sind eighteen centuries gone, that the bells are to-day in the remote islands of the sea, and far and wide over the continents clasp the circum-terence of the huge globe? for such a drama.-Mark Twain.

As men begin to be about 50 years old. especially if of sedentary habits, the feeling on rising in the morning is as if they had not gotten enough sleep, not as much as they used to have, and as if they would like to have more, but they cannot get it They look upon a healthy child sleeping soundly with a feeling of envy. But it is curious to observe that there is a bliss to all in the act of going to sleep, a bliss we become cognizant of only when we happen to be aroused just as we are falling into a sound sleep; and there are strong physiological reasons to suppose that this state is a counterpart of that great event that is to come upon us all, the act of dying. In fact, those who have in rare cases been brought back to life when on its extremest verge, and in several cases those who have been recovered from drowning and other modes of strangulation, or simple smother-ing, called "asphyxia" by physicians, the expressions have been, on coming to consciousness:-"How delicious!"-"Why did you not let me go?" An emînent man, thus brought back, represented that the last remembered sensations of which he was conscious were as if he was listening to the most ravishing strains of music. Let us all, then, cherish the thought that our approach to sleep of which some unknown writer has said : "It is a delicious momen! the feeling that we are safe, that we shall drop gently to sleep. The good is to come, not past. The limbs have been just tired enough to render the remaining in one position delightful, and the labor of the day is done. A gentle failing of the perceptions comes slowly creeping over us; the spirit of consciousness disengages itself more and more, with slow and hush ing degrees, like a fond mother detaching her hand from that of her sleeping child the mind seems to have a balmy lid closing over it, like the eye, closing, more closed, closed altogether! and the mysterious spirit of sleep has gone to take its airy rounds." May such be the physical "bliss of dying" to you and to me, reader, with the spiritual added, ten thousand times more ineffable.—Dr. Hall.

In Your Sins. Christ told the Jews that if they did not believe in him they would die in their sins. This is true of all sinners. All have sinned, and Christ only can cleanse from sin. Turning from that alone way, death in sin is inevitable, with all its fearful consequences. . In your sins when you die, is out of heaven, for nothing that defileth entereth there. In your sins is under the inexorable penalty of a broken law, which must be vindicated. In your sins is under a God of "consuming fire." You are now a "prisoner of hope," but if death comes, you will be found "without hope and without God," for you will die in your sins. Believe in him who "luketh away the sins of the worll."-Christian at

Save the Moments. The man who saves his pennies will be rich before he dies; the man who saves his moments will be wise. Time is not given to us in solid bulk. We do not get a day or a week at once, but we get it by piecemeal, second after second to show us its preciousness, and to detain our thoughts upon its value. Each moment, rightly estimated is an ingot of gold, more precious indeed than rubies, if wisely spent. The little clock, the fable goes, got affrighted when it was told it must tick 86,000 times a day, and stopped; but when it was suggested that it would only have to tick once at a time, it went to ticking again. If young people and old would remember the moral of this story—do. present duty at the present time—there would be more instry, more thrift, and more joy in the world .- Religious Herald ...

Feed My Lambs.

When our Lord Jesus Christ stood by the quiet shores of the Sea of Galilee, and said to Peter, "Feed my lambs," he spoke a voice that was heard immediately by only that little company of friends, but he uttered a principle which though unknown to the philosophers of the world, and which if known by the Pharisees and Sadducees would have been utterly scorned by them, yet a principle which was to be a power in the world to upheave its foundations, and shake it to its centre. For the growth of the church of Jesus Christ, from that time to this, has been principally through the training of the children of the church. And at this period of the Christian era we are beginning, more than at any other period, to appreciate this most imposing and important fact.—Howard Crosby, D. D.

MRS. ALLEN'S Hair Restorer & Zylobalsamum Are so uniformly grateful and beneficial, that they are with justice called the natural strengtheners of the human hair. They are two entirely separate and distinct preparations, not to be used together at one time. Mrs. Allen's Hair Restorer Never fails to satisfy the most refined and cultivated. A guarantee goes with every bottle, that it will quickly restore gray or white hair to its original youthful beauty, gloss and color; after its use a few times the hair will grow thicker and stronger. It will stop its falling and induce a healthy and luxuriant growth. It is an exquisite hair dressing, agreeable, harmless and healthy. Entirely different from most other preparations for the hair, its composition and ingredients are nourishing, giving life and vigor to the Roots. Mrs. Allen' Zylobalsamum This exquisite preparation is free from any sediment, and is a toilet treasure. The urgent want of a simple Hair Dressing, for the youth of both sexes, first induced the manufacture of the Zylobalsamum, and the sale of it is perfectly immense, not only in this country, but in Europe. EXTRACTS FROM A FEW LETTERS. EXTRACTS FROM A FEW LETTERS.

Its effect is soothing, allaying the violence of the cough, facilitating expectoration, quicting the nerves and exhilirating the system. Mothers, Save Your Children No child need die of CROUP, if this Syrup is used in time: this is a fact demonstrated by experience. No family should be without this Syrup, as that fatal disease, CROUP, comes like a thief in the night, to steal away your little ones, when regular medical aid cannot be obtained.

After proceeding a short distance he was met by a gentleman followed by a dog. As the dog passed, the negro gave him a kick, which the gentleman resented by seizing him by the cost collar and giving him a thorough sha-

The New Bedford Standard says that one Saturday evening recently, a lady, who lives near a church in that city, was sitting by the window listening to the crickets, which were loudly chirping, the music from the choir rehearsal being also audible, when a gentleman dropped in who had just passed the church, and having heard the music had it full in his mind. "What a noise they are making tonight!" said he. "Yes," said the lady, "and it is said they do it with their hind legs!"

A young couple had been married by a Quaker, who, after the ceremony remarked: "Friend thou art now at the end of thy troubles." A few weeks after the young man came to the minister, boiling over with rage, his wife turned out a regular vixen. "I thought you told me I was at the end of my troubles!" "So I did, friend, but I did not say which end."

A poor Irishman applied to a magistrate for relief, and upon some doubts being expressed as to whether he was a proper object for paroichal relief, he enforced his suit with much earnestness, "Och, yer honor," said he, "sure I'd starved long since but for my cat." "But for what?" asked the astonished magistrate. "My cat," rejoined the Irishman. "Your cat how so?" "Sure, yer honor, I sould her eleven times for a sixpence a time,
