Was that there cussed mule.

They cussed and swore—he would not go,.
Until he felt inclined;
And though they showered blow on blow,
He wouldn't change his mind.

The deck-hands to the shore then cried.

"This 'ere mule's bound to stay,"

And still upon the critter's hide With lush they fired away.

His master from the shore replied:
"The bont's about to sail,

Suppose you twist his tail!

And every other means you've tried,

"It's likely that will make him land."

There came a sudden kick behind!

For a moment there was not a sound,

It was a still, moonlight summer night, as Jennie Hallet walked lingeringly along the meadow path, home ward from farmer Burnwell's. Lingeringly-for her hand was clasped in that of Frank Duncan, and he was talking to her earnestly, as they passed under the shadows of the waterwillows, or paused for a moment on the rustic bridge, that spanned the meadow-creek.

"I'll do it, Jennie! here I swear-"Oh, Frank, don't swear!" "Then I promise—yes, here I promise not to rest day or night, until I have five hundred dollars to show to

"It's no use thinking," said the girl; sadly. "And, Frank, you are so given to thinking and dreaming, that -she looked up with a tender smilefarmer gravely. She paused at the gate, and looked back at the meadow with a strange yearning and desolation at her heart. He was gone, and the world seemed very dreary to her. No one had seen a person at all answering his description, unless it was a pious Methodist preacher who had passed hurriedly through Logansville on a journey to the west, as missionary to the Indians; and to suspect him would be a shame!

Yet, some time after, neighbor Burnwell, reading in a city, paper a description of a noted burglar who had broken out of prison, and for the strap, which throws him on three feet some weeks past had baffled the deam makes him stop suddenly. old garment. She thought of Frank-she was always thinking of him now—and won-dered whether he would ever make the five hundred dollars; how it rang in her head.

Rip! rip! something stopped the progress of the old scissors in the thick wadding of the coat. Tearing it open she drew out what appeared to be a soiled greenish rag. It was paper, however, and as she unfolded father had just such another. But it, she saw, to her surprise, that it was a bank bill—another and another followed. Through all the body of the old garment were carefully padded those precious bits of paper; and Jennie Hallet, sitting in a little room alone, counted them all out upon her lap—fifteen hundred dollars.

She kept her secret—at least from her family. But some days after she rode into Logansville on horseback, alone, as she was accustomed to do: and at the express office deposited a little package, addressed to Francis Duncan, Esq.

And by return mail came an anonymous letter for farmer Hallet, enclosing one hundred dollars, "to replace the money unlawfully taken from him," which incident set all the neighbors discoursing upon the power of conscience. And before Christmas, Frank Duncan made his appearance, and boldly asked farmer Hallet for the hand of his daughter Jennie mentioning, in answer to the farmer's inquiries, that he had "more than fifteen hundred dollars in hand." The next thing was that Mr. Duncan purchased the pretty place near the old church, and thither, in the spring, took his young bride, where they were as happy as new-married people generally are.

Jennie said that she and Frank had only borrowed the money and that it should be restored as soon as the owner appeared. But we have as yet heard of no claimant.

A Bank for Losings.

On the chief thoroughfare of New York city, I often pass a stately Savings Bank, built of freestone, and I see groups of working people going in to deposit their hard-earned money. Some are mechanics, some are domestics, some are poor widows laying by a few dollars for their fatherless

To Young Housekeepers.

Be satisfied to commence on a small scale. It is too common for young housekeepers to begin where there mothers ended. Buy all that is necessary to work skillfully with; adorn your home with ali that will make it comfortable. Do not look at richer homes and covet their costly furniture. If secret dissatisfaction is ready to spring up, go a step further, and visit the homes of the suffering poor; behold dark, cheerless apartments, insufficient clothing and absence of all the comforts Near Harrisburg, Pa., lived Mrs. —, the wife of a well-to-do merchant. Her and refinements of social life, and then return to your own with a joyful spirit. You will then be prepared to meet your husband with a grateful heart, and be ready to appreciate the toil and self-denial which he has endured in the business world to surround you with the delights of home, and you will co-operate cheerfully with him in so arranging your expenses that his mind will not be constantly harmatters stand this way in a family, there rassed lest his family expenditures may must at some time be a crisis. Even the encroach upon public payments. Be independent; a young housekeeper never needed greater moral courage than she does now, to raise the arrogance of fashion. Do not let the A's and B's decide what you shall have, neither let them hold the strings of your purse. You know best what you can and ought to afford. It matters but little what people think, provided you are true to yourself, to right and duty, and keep your expenses within your means.—Rural New Yorker.

Mothers Speak Kindly.

Children catch cross words quicker than parrots, and it is a much more mischievous habit. When mother sets the example, you will scarcely hear a pleasant word among the children in their plays with each other. Yet the discipline of such a family is always weak and irregular. The children expect just so much scolding before they do anything they are told, while in many a home, where the low, firm tone of the mother or the decided look of her steady eye is law, they never think of disobedience, either in or out of sight. O mothers, it is worth a great deal to cultivate that "excellent thing in woman," a low, sweet voice. If you are ever so much prominent lawyer in that city, who in tried by the mischievous or wilful prank formed her that a divorce would cost her of the little ones, speak low. It will be a tried by the mischievous or wilful prank $50. She thought she could do better, so great help to you to even try to be patient and cheerful, if you cannot succeed. Anshe walked down to Laporte, selling the ger makes you wretched, and your children also. Impatient, angry tones never did the heart good, but plenty of evil. Read what Solomon says of them, and remember he wrote with an inspired pen. You can not have the excuse for them that they lighten your burdens any; they make them only ten times heavier. For your own as well as for your children's sake, learn to speak low. They will remember that tone after your head is under the willows. So, too, will they well remember a harsh and angry tone. Which legacy will you leave to your children?

To Farmers.

Of all the dreary places, deliver us from the dreary farm houses, which so many people call home. Bars for a front gate; chickens wallowing before the door; pig pens elbowing the house in the rear; scraggy trees never cared for, or no trees at all: no cheering shrubs; no neatness; no trimness. And yet a lawn, and trees, and neat walk, and pleasant fence around it, don't cost a great deal. They can be so-cured little by little, at odd times, and the expense hardly felt. And if the time comes when it is best to sell the farm, fifty dollars so invested, will often bring back five hundred. For a man is a brute, who will not insensibly yield to a higher price for such a farm, when he thinks of the pleasant surroundings it offers to his wife and children. Farmers, beautify and adorn your farms; set out orchards, shrubbery, shade trees; lay off lawns; build good fences; put up good gates, and paint or whitewash your outhouses and fences.

Commercial. Farmers, Keep Accounts.

A very successful farmer says: "Farmers who never keep accounts, are, of course, always in debt, at least, most of the year, and have enormous store bills to surprise them: . They doubt the honesty of merchants, and families are berated for extravagance. Receipts and expenditures are never noted; the profits and losses in any branch of farming are unknown. Un-consciously, debts multiply, for it requires much less time and ability to dispose of money than to acquire it. Accounts properly kept would admonish them when to spend and when to check up. Carelessness in one particular is apt to foster and beget carelessness in others; consequently such farmers have little system in the building of residences, barns or out-houses. Fences are poorly kept, up, and a systematic rotation of crops is seldom practiced."

The People's Journal says: To clean kid gloves, have ready a little new milk in one saucer, a piece of white soap in another, and a clean cloth folded two or three times. On the cloth spread out the glove smooth and neat. Take a piece of flannel, dip it in the milk, then rub off a good quantity of soap on the wetted flannel, and commence to rub the glove toward the fingers, holding it firmly with the left hand. Continue this process until the glove, if white, looks of a dingy yellow, though clean; if colored, till it looks dry and spoiled. Lay it to dry, and the operator will soon be gratified to see that the old glove looks nearly new. It will be soft, glossy, smooth, and elastic."

A New Orleans paper tells of a printer who, when his fellow workmen went out to drink beer, during the working hours, put in the bank the exact amount which he would have spent if he had gone out to drink. He kept to this resolution for five years. He then examined his bank account and found that he had on deposit $521.86. In the five years he had not lost a day from ill-health. Three out of five of his fellow workmen had, in the meantime, become drunkards, were worthless as workmen, and were discharged. The water drinker then boughtout the printing office, went on enlarging his business, and in twenty years from the time he began to put by his money, was worth $100,000. -The story, whether new or old, teaches a lesson which every boy and young man should lay to heart.

THE GOOD WORK.

It is gratifying to any true Amerian heart, that loves the prosperity of is country, to be able to note from n mth to month how the good work of ce lucing the National debt is constanty going on. It seems but yesterday since General Grant assumed the high office of President of the United States, yet during his brief, but honest administration of affairs, the public debt has been reduced the immense sum of $221.889.716. This, too. has been accomplished while taxation has been constantly reduced, while the burdens are being made lighter and lighter for the people. Only think, a little over two years of a faithful collection of the revenue, and an increasing economy in the admin-istration of public affairs has resulted in relieving our country of almost two hundred and twenty-two millions of dollars of the public debt. These facts are good for Republicans, but most bitter for Democrats to swallow. They remember their predictions of ruin and increased indebtedness if Republican rule was continued. But where is the correctness of their prophecies? The people begin to see, and, we opine, feel more and more the propriety of perpetuating Republican rule, seeing it saved the country from traitor hands, and now is rapidly removing the burdens of the war from their shoulders. Let the good work go on, to which the people respond, amen.

THE KU-KLUX PROCLAMATION.

From the Proclamation, issued by the President, relative to the outrages committed in the South, it is plain to be seen that the Executive means business. He says distinctly, that he will not hesitate to exhaust the power vested in him whenever and wherever it shall become necessary to do so, for the purpose of securing to all citizens of the United States a peaceful enjoyment of the rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution and laws. This has the ring of the right kind of metal, and will doubtless do much to quiet the Ku-Klux outrages in the South. At least, those lawless ex-rebels will again be led to realize that they have to deal with Gen. Grant, in a military point of view, if they persist in the work of assassination and midnight outrages as they have heretofore

The day to suffer quietly these things is past. The time has come when law, justice and order must be things, wisely placed sufficient power in the President's hands to suppress the work of death and destruction carried on by southern KuKlux. The country now will look to the Executive to enforce such protection to life, liberty and property in the South, as is enjoyed at the north. The full results of conquering the rebellion can never be realized until any citizen of the United States can travel unmolested through the South as well as he can through the North-until the entire freedom of speech enjoyed in the North may also be enjoyed in the South. All eyes will now be directed to the President, and a strict observation kept up to see that he faithfully executes the law and carries out the full spirit of his proclamation. This work must be done before a lasting and permanent feeling of security, such as should be felt in every government adequate to protect her citizens, can be enjoyed in all parts of the country. Let the work, then, be done, and let the Executive speedily punish these Southern disturbers of the public peace. A few examples will have a wholesome effect. The voice of the people of the entire north -those who fought to preserve the nation's integrity—as one man will rally to the support of the President in his efforts to restore law and order,

peace and security at the South.

The United States Senate was convened yesterday in Extra Session, for the purpose of considering the new treaty between our Government and Great Britian, the result of the labors of the Joint High Commission. The treaty was completed and signed by all the Commissioners at the State Department, on Monday. The Commissioners and the Senators, who are conversant with its provisions, seem to think it will be satisfactory to the Country. Of its provisions, the public, as yet knows but little, and it is intended to consider it strictly in Secret Session. Senator Morton thinks if ever there was a necessity for considering a all right, and, doubtless, is; but there must be considerable fears, however, the people and the press should be so great as to defeat its adoption. It is contemplated that the Session of the Senate will last two or three weeks. This is evidence that those best informed do not anticipate entire clear sailing for the new treaty-do not anticipate its success without strong opposition."

It is to be hoped, however, that the result of the labors of the High Com. mission will not turn out fruitless. but may end in the amicable adjustment of pending difficulties between the two Governments. Such a desideratum is of great moment, both to England and the United States. Undoubtedly, if a settlement is arrived knees, but he had presence of mind enough at, Americans, as well as Englishmen. will have to make disagreeable concessions. This, however, unless they are too great, will be better than war:

THE SITUATION. We concluded to make no mention or comment on the address recently issued to the American people by the Democratic members of Congress. but as more significancy is attached to it than its bare face would import, and as it furnishes an index to the Democratic creed for 1872, more for its omission of certain important principles as settled, than from any declaration it contains, we will notice some of its most peculiar features.

The first thing which must be admitted is, that in order for the Demorracy to elect their next President, they must make several conversions from the Republican party, or greatly add to their present number, between now and the Presidential election. This fact will be generally conceded, nothwithstanding the Demoeratic party in the North and South continue to act together in perfect harmony. The object first to be secured in gaining the necessary accessions to the party, is to cement more firmly together the North and South wing of the Democratic party, and to have and advocate certain principles that will not be offensive or obnoxious to either the people in the North or in the South. This is what the Democrats, doubtless, had in view in publishing their address; and for this reason they neglected to recognize the principles contained in the Four-teenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution as settled. If they had done this when the election came around, the Democratic party would have two candidates in the field, as before the war. So, in regard to Ku-Klux outrages. They neither dared to approve of them or condemn them. If it approved of them, and attempted to justify the action of the lawless, muederous Ku-Klux, success in 1872 would be hopeless, as the cause would ose friends and supporters in the Northern States; if it condemns the Ku-Klnx, the party would lose taken up, but the prairie land is not strength in the Southern States, and all taken yet. Crops are looking in either event the election of a Democratic President in 1872 would be defeated. This is the dilema in which the Democratic party finds itself at | greenbacks. The people are generpresent. The only plan that will se- ally poor, and are mostly from Michcure to it any reasonable hope of suc- igan and Indiana. ILLINOIS RAILROAD LAW. During the past session of the Legislature of the State of Illinois a the different railroads into four classes. according to their earnings per mile, as shown, we suppose, from the annual reports of the gross earnings of each. Thus: Class A includes those whose annual earnings per mile are $10,000 and upwards, and the rate fixed for fare of passengers is 2½ cents per mile. Class B includes those earning between $8,000 and $10,000, on which the fare is to be 3 cents per mile. Class C embraces those earning between $4,000 and $8,000 per mile, on which 4 cents per mile is allowed to be taken. When the earnings are less than $4,000, the rate authorized is 5½ cents per mile. The effect of this law will be to reduce the fare about one-half on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Illinois Central, the Galena Division of the Northwestern, and the Chicago, Alton & St. Louis roads, which come within Class A. The Companies may resist this legislation in the Courts, but if nothing be attempted nothing will ever be accomplished in the way of regulating these huge monopolies which are assuming vast proportions and alarming power. The people will regard the action of the Legislature as a move in the right direction and will sustain the law. The bill for the regulation of freights is, perhaps, objectionable in many respects. It attempts to do away with the distinction between through and way freights. It is regarded as an act to compel railroad companies to perform for the same money work and labor which is vastly different in amount and cost to the company. It is often of no more trouble and expense to the company to carry freight over the entire line, than to some intermediate point; besides, in the latter case, the trouble and time of switching and delivering would be precisely so much extra. This is what is termed by some "impossible legislation." It is subject to grave objections, and, if executed, would practically compel the railroad corporations to abolish their local way stations. Some rule, it seems, might be established, in the regulation of freight charges, that would do away with some of the aband, if the subject is properly agitated, and care and legal discretion exercised, a law may yet be produced that will place some limit to the extortions of railroad monopolies, and the people be relieved, in a measure, from their exactions and impositions. -The Sanilac Jeffersonian, contains the following: Some days ago Mr. S. P. Davis, who lives in the town of Moore, was returning to his home by way of the Port Sanilac and Tuscola State Road, and when near the line between towns 13 and I4, in the deep woods, was suddenly sprung upon by a man with a club, who darted from the bushes where he had been concealed. He struck Davis a powerful. blow on the head with the club, which brought Davis down on his hands and o rise when the fellow aimed anot blow, which was warded off and gave Davis an opportunity to get a club himself, as the fellow had slipped from the force of his blow. Davis threw his club at him which brought him clear down, and then Davis declared to him if he did not leave he would shoot him, which the fellow did, although Davis' threat was a mere ruse he

Торека, Мау 6, 1871. EDITORS RECORD :- A few words about heathen Kansas may not be uninteresting to your readers from one who used to reside in the vicinity of of your village. Some four years ago I left there and have since traveled all through Kansas, and in three or four of the Territories. This is rather a new country, but at the rate emigration has poured in here, for the last two years, it will soon be well settled. The counties south of here. Wilson, Montgomery, Labette and Neosho have a settler to nearly every quearter section, and scarcely any of them have been here more than three years. The country here is a little rolling, and I think it is as nice and as rich soil as anything I ever saw in Kansas. Water is good, and plenty of it. Timber is about the same as that along the Railroad between your place and Dayton, except black jacks on the hills. Coal, and building stone of good quality abound. The climate is far better than Michigan, and healthier too. Bad colds are very rare, and I have never heard of a case of Consumption or Typhoid fever here yet. Those who have settled along the creek bottoms have considerable ague, but that is about the only complaint, except a lack of "grub." The summer seasons are not as warm as in Michigan; for there is always a little air stirring-sometimes a good deal of it too. The winter seasons, generally, are very mild. Some winters stock lives through without feeding. It is not, however, always safe to depend on the prairie grass. A ton of hay to each head of stock is what most feeders calculate on. Land can be had here by any one who is twenty-one, or is the head of a family, for $1.25 per acre, by building a house, improving ten acres and living on it six months. The timber claims are all well-wheat better than I ever saw it before. Provisions are not very high, and are easy to get, if a man has the are, however, of a wandering turn of tucky, then to Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, stopped in Kansas. DELPHOS, O., May 4, 1871. MESSRS. WAGNER & KINGERY:-There are some matters in Ohio that have more than a local interest. In a neighboring county, the last year, they made 125 miles of free turnpike, with 16 inches of gravel on its bed, for the convenience of travel and trade. In that part of Delphos, east of the canal, among about 1,300 people, there has been the last year only eight deaths; five of them aged 83, 84, 86, 66, and 64 respestively. The weather is unusually dry. The largest artificial reser voir in the United States, of the canal 20 miles south of this, containing 17,000 acres, is six feet lower than ever before known at this season. We have had no wind nor rain storms. The land is so far drained, and the timber so much cut off, that the former amount of rain cannot be anticipated.

A large amount of business is being done on the canal; the boats are moving up and down continually. Seventy-three thousand dozens of eggs have been sent off on the cars, within the last five months. Recently, 125 barrels of eggs were shipped in a single day. There is a lair prospect, of fruit, notwithstanding the injury from

A PROCLAMATION. The acts of Congress, entitled an act their own voluntary efforts, through the agency of local laws, and to maintain the rights of all citizens of the United States. and to secure to all such citizens the equal protection of the laws.

Congress to which public opinion is now called, and reluctant to call into exercise any of the extraordinary powers thereby conferred upon me, except in cases of imperative necessity, I do, nevertheless, deem t my duty to make known that I will not hesitate to put the power thus vested in execution, whenever and wherever it shall hecome necessary to do so, for the purpose of securing to all citizens of the United States the peaceful enjoyment of the rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution and the laws. It is my earnest wish that peace and cheerful obedience to the law may prevail throughout the land, and that all traces of our late unhappy civil strife. may be speedily removed. These ends can be easily reached by acquiesence in the conflict, now written in our Constitution, and by the due and proper enforcement of equal; just and impartial laws in every part of our country. The failure of local communities to enforce such means for the attainment of results so earnestly desired imposes upon the National Government the duty of putting forth all its energies for the protection of citizens of every race and color, and for the restoration of peace and order throughout the:

—We copy the following from the Tuscola Pioneer: On Thursday, April 25th, Mr. Jacob Snider, of Gilford, left home in state of mental aberration, is thought to have gone in the direction of Vassar, and has not been heard from since. The afflicted family will be thankful for any information in regard to him. On Monday Mr. S. had done a hard days work—at night was taken with fits-next day became deranged, and was so when he wandered from home.

-One of the liveliest scenes witnessed on our streets in some time, occurred yesterday during the operation of conducting an unruly ox through the streets to the steam boat. He was a powerful animal and extremely ugly and dangerous, as Mr. Frank Bradford learned to his cost. While coming down Military street, by a sudden start the ox broke from his keepers. Mr. Bradford approached to secure him, when the ox dashed at him, tossing him several feet in the air, and as he fel to the ground, sprang forward with the most violent efforts to gore the prostrate man to death. His horns struck the ground on either side, when the infuriated beast sought to crush the man with his knees. The spectators were at first almost paralyzed with horror, but some of the most resolute rallied and catching the ropes drew the animal back. Mr. Bradford was assisted to arise and was found not lo be seriously injured, although considerably bruised, and his coat and shirt were almost entirely stripped from his back.—Port Huron Commercial.

-The Manistee Times, says that a poor man in Pontiac who was employed to build the Union School House at that place has invented a machine for raising material on the building. This machine he has had patented and he received the patent March 1st, 1871; and since then has sold State and city right, to the amount of $31,500: The man's name is Scott.

The Board of Inspectors of the Michgan State Brison held a three days session this week, and ordered many improvements of a substantial character in the institution provided by the Legislature. To Nebraska, California, Kansas, and the B. & M. R. R. Lands.

The starting points of this Route are at Chicago and Peoria. The central point is BURLINGTON, on the Mississippi. It traverses Illinois and the whole breadth of Southern Iowa. Near the Missouri, its trunk forks into three branches, for it has three western termini.

Its Northern terminus is ouncil Bluffs, where crossing to Omaha, it connects with the Union Pacific for all places on the intra-continental and Pacific slopes. Overland travel and trafic choose this reliable route more and more.
Its next terminus is Lincoln, the Capitol of Nebraska, fifty-five miles west of the Missouri and Plattsmouth. This is the only direct avenue to the South Platte country, where the sales of railroad land ast season, rose to half a million. Its third terminus is at Hamburg, and Nebraska city. At Hamburg, it makes close connections, twice a day, for St. Joseph, Leavenworth, Kansas City, and the whole South-west.

In Journeying then, from the East to Kansas, via Burlington' you enjoy advantages you secure on no other line. You both pass over a road second to no other in speed, safety, or any Pullman luxury of modern travel; and while on your way, survey the garden of Illinois and Missouri, as well as 400,000 acres of prairie in Southvestern Iowa, now in market at low prices and long credit Prompted by a desire to benefit the afflicted and unfortunte, I will send the recipe for preparing and using this medicine, in a scaled envelope, to any one who needs it, free of charge. Address JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, Eible House, N. X. City.

This remedy does not simply relieve for a short time, but it produces perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases of Chronic Nasal Catarrh, and I will pay $500 relivard for a case that I cannot cure. "Cold in the head," and Catarrhal Headsche are cured with a few applications. If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, stopping up of the nose at times, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel duil, have pain or pressure in the head, you may rest assured that you have Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in Consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. I will send my pamphlet on Catarrin to any address free. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is now

Among the many who were driving around our city on Sunday last, enjoying the beautiful weather, bright sunshine and exhibarating breezes that were wafted to us from the sunny south ladened with its frieght of delicious perfume, were two handsome and stylish turnouts from Buchanan, and permit me to add, the occupants were equally so. And here let us say that to the honor of the town they represent and to their credit perhave favored our city with, we have never yet seen one of them intoxicated. In fact they have always conducted themselves like gentlemen: It is true that in every community there are a few who go to neighborby outrageous conduct. They entertain the delusive idea that no one knows them away from home. In this respect they are sadly deceived. A stranger's conduct and actions are noticed and criticised far more abroad than at home. In whatever town he may choose to have a "good time" in, if he is "on the war path" very heavy, his name and place of residence is soon known, and his character well established. Farmers, when very busy, are apt to neglect the editor at the very time when he is most in need of his pay. We therefore take this means, (which is the most convenient to us,) of stating to our friends that we are in need of money at present, and must have it; and further, that unless they are more prompt in the payment of their subscriptions for the paper, we will be obliged to adopt the "pay in advance" system—a thing we dislike very much to do under the circumstances, and will not do unless necessity compels it, although convinced that it is the only proper method of conducting a newspaper. STATISTICS. - From Supervisor Clark we learn that during the year 1870, there have beeen in Buchanan Township seventy births, sixteen deaths, and the number of persons subject to military duty, the male pop-

METINGS OF SUPERVISORS FOR 1871 There will be a meeting of the Board of Supervisors this year on the second Monday in June, for the equalization of the assessment rolls. This is required as it is the year of State equalization. Their duty at this meeting is prescribed in Chap. 7, page 105, Vol. 2, Compiled Laws. They are required to add up the columns of acres of land, as well as the valuation thereof, and to meet for the equalization of their assessment rolls, after which the clerk of the Board will make and forward to the Auditor General a tabular statement of such equalized assessment for the use of the State Board of Equalization, which meets in Lansing on the third Monday in August. At the annual meeting of the Board, to be held on Monday, October 9, each county is to be re-apportioned for Representative purposes, according to section 347 Compiled Laws. Russell McCoy came to this County in 1829 and in 1830 engaged to work at the mission near Niles. 'A part, of his work was to build the fires in the morning. He was once dis. missed from the employ of the missionaries ulation between the ages of eighteen for stoping to talk with the girls after building and forty-five, is a little over four the fire, and he was dismissed a second time for swearing at some hogs which broke into a field and refused to go out without giving him more exercise than he cared to take. After leaving the mission, he worked for several years as a boatman on the river. In 1834, he resolved to stake a claim on the land at the mouth of the creek, which appeared to be an excellent place for a mill. The first step was to obtain permission of the Indians to build a house, and for this purpose he visited Topenebe, who, after hearing his request answered, "No." As the old chief always meant just what he said, McCoy went to see Pokagon, who was too shrewd to offend the Indians by giving permission, or to offend McCoy by a refusal, but told him, that if he should build one, the Indians would tear it down. McCoy soon had his solitary log house erected, and one day the Indians, taking advantage of a short absence, tore it down. It was put up a see and time and allowed to remain. Hiram Wray came soon after McCoy had fin ished his house, with his family, consisting of his wife, and, one child. Mr. McCove being a single man, boarded with Mr. Wray, and in company with him erected a saw mill during the following year. Charles Cowles came in 1834 and made claim on the south west quarter of section 25 and erected a shingle mill on the site of the Rural Mills. His mill was in running order before McCov's. Fourteen sections of land for University purposes were selected in different parts of the reservation, without regard to the claims of settlers, and the price was raised to twelve or afteen dollars per acre. One of the selections made by the Commissioners appointed for the purpose fell on the land of Mr. Cowles. As the price was raised beyond his means he soon after sold his property to Chas.

C. Wallin. Mr. Wallin put a run of stone in the mill and furnished the neighborhood with Graham flour and corn meal. The flour was bolted by hand.

Leonard Madren located on the same section with Mr. Cowles. He sold his property, consisting of his claim, a shanty, .ow, and half acre of potatoes to Andrew O. hay for fifty dollars. Air. Day moved to his place on the oth of July, 1836, and has lived there ever since. With the exception of Charles Cowles and Russell McCoy, he is the oldest inhabitant 1.150 E 31. 16.2 in Buchanan.

the same year, but subsequently sold to Watson Roe, and moved to the farm he now owns. At the time of Mr. Watson's arrival John and Robert Martindale were living on section 34, and William McIntyre lived north of Dayton. John J. Dragoo came in 35 or 36 and located in section 23.

Among the sarly settlers whom we that of hot mentioned were William Wagner, who built a saw mill on section 17; John Juday, who lives in the western part of the township; Darius Jennings, a boatman on the river, who moved from Niles township in 1837 to the west side of the river below Moccasin Bluff; Levi Sanford, Absolem Colvin and Arvin Chapman.

THE DYING MOTHER, ..

BY TRENE. My limbs are growing stiff and cold, And shorter grows my breath;
A chill comes stealing o'er me now,
Oh, tell me is this death? The angels becken "come;"
It seems so hard to leave you all,
To say "Thy will be done;"

But there I'll see my Father's face, And with Him ever dwell; I soon shall reach that happy place. And Heavenly authems awell. Here, kusband, take me by the hand, I cannot see you now; The chill comes closer to my heart, It seems to freeze my brow.

Oh, do not grieve when I am gone, But heart and soul prepare, To meet me when God calls you hence; There'd be no parting there. Now bring me here my baby, "Grace," And let me findly press Upon her lips the last cold kiss, And give the last caress.

I hope that God a faithful watch,
Will over my darling keep;
The hard to say "good-bye" to her,
Sho, made my life so sweet.
I'm cold—so cold—now all is dark,
The angel, death, is nigh;
Farewell, my filends, meet me in Heaven—
To all, a last good-bye.

Led by a Little Child.

I have spent years of sinning and losing necause I did not believe the personal tyre of God to me. Yes, I knew he loyed "even me;" but I was disgusted and impatient with myselt, and I could not feel that he looked upon me with tenderness and favor, as a fathor yearns over a wayward child. He taught me a lesson of his love once is a peculiar way. A child was left for a time in my care in the absence of his parents. It was a good child and very dear to me. But it happened just at that season that some very unfavorable influences were thrown around his home, and as the usual restraints of parental authority were removed, he took the opportunity to behave in a very un-pleasant manner. He refused all obedience and set at naught my kindness, and did every naughty, rebellious thing he wished or knew how to do. It was a sore trial; I did little in the case but weep and pray, and wait until the acknowledged authority should return. Meanwhile I loved the boy, laying myself out in care and kind-ness as I never dil at a happier time, or for a dutiful child. I felt no anger, no impatience; I felt that I could spend my whole life in love and tenderness and service for him. I loved him for his need of love and forbearance, and pitied him for the trouble he was bringing to himself. Such a great yearning affection for a needy being had never come to my soul. And then it flashed upon me—If I feel thus toward a rebellious child that is not mine, how infinitely more tender and loving does my heavenly Father feel toward me l If T a poor impatient human spirit can forbear and forgive thus a disobedient, un grateful little one, how may He who gave His Son to die for my sins wait patiently for His grace to bring forth the true fruit in me I I saw a little how God can love a sinner and be patient with a child that is Useful but not Indispensable.

Those good souls who grieve for the loss they will be to the world when they leave it, may perhaps be comforted by these remarks of the American Churchman: There is no man so important as he seems. It is wonderful how well the world gets along without any of us. Somebody, on whose shoulders seems to rest the body, on whose shoulders seems to rest the weight of a State, dies, and we all cry out "how shall we do now he is gone? Who can take his place, and bear his burdens? Alas! the fixed stars are all dying out in our sky. We have only farthing candles left to light the darkness of the world." We bury him, and say our say over him, and in a few months we have ceased to miss him. The world goes on just as assual.

Somebody dies in the Church. He has been a leader for long. We have all looked upon him as a fixture. His place and work have been a part of our lives for years. We feel a blank sense of loss, which nothing can fill. We look about and decide that nobody can do what he has done. He is buried amid our lamentations, and the Church goes on just the same. In a few weeks or months time, we scarcely miss the man we mourned. Somehow his place is filled, and things go on just as they always have.

The generations are long. The single life is short. The ages have their long story to tell. The largest life is but an

There is a lesson of humility here, and a lesson of wisdom. The best of us will not be much missed. The work is of more consequence than the worker. We do our small share better or worse, but the world, and the ages and the great God can get along satisfactorily without us. After all, we are personally more interesed than they in seeing that we do our day's work well. There is a lesson also of hope. The work will be done by somebody. We need never fear for that. Our lives may seem failures, our feeble efforts of little worth. Let us not fret. It is ours to do what we can. The great business will prosper, no matter what becomes of the single doer. Meanwhile, if a man wants the conceit taken out of him, let him, no matter how large a space he fills, withdraw from the work and get into some corner, under the delusion that every thing will come to a dead lock without him. It will not be long before he finds how small a cipher he is in the great result. which is summed up just as well without him as with him. The truth is, there was never the man yet that the world could not do without a There) was never the man yet that the Church, if necessary, could not cing medicine in a small village in Chautangua county, New York. Every evening there was gathered a goodly number of loungers in the solitary store, who were wont to discuss topics both great and small. The subject under exhaustive analysis at the moment I stepped in was the school tax. One G-, a loquacious and most obstinate fellow, and habitual monopolizer of conversation, had nearly finished a long tirade about the injustice of the tax and his being compelled to pay it, though having no children to send to school. Finally, he said, "I'll buy me a hog, and send him; I'll get the worth of my money somehow." Mr, L, the school teacher, who was sitting behind the stove, quietly remarked, "Better come yourself, and save the expense!"

A gentleman, one evening, was seated near a lovely young woman, when the company around were proposing conundrums to each other. posing conundrums to each other. Turning to his companion he said: "Why is a lady unlike a mirror?" She gave it up. "Because," said the rude fellow, "a mirror reflects without speaking; a lady speaks without reflecting." "Very good," she said, "now answer me. Why is a man unlike a mirror?" "I cannot tell you." "Because the mirror is polished, and the man is not." the man is not."

Mark Twain thus prescribes for an aspirant for literary fame 2 "Young Author."-Yes, Agassiz does recommend authors to eat fish, because the phosphorous in it makes brains. So far you are correct. But cannot help you to a decision about the amount you need to eat-at least, not with certainty. If the specimen composition you send is about your fair usual average, I should judge that perhaps a couple of whales would be all you would want for the present. Not the largest kind, but simply good middling sized whales.

A short time since a Mr. Knott was tried in an interior county of Georgia for a violation of law. The verdict of the jury was, "We find the defendant Knott guilty." The Judge was at a loss whether to sentence Knott or not to sentence. He took time to consider.

Bob Brown, did you say that my father had not as much sense as Billy Smith's little yellow dog?" "No; I never said any such thing. I never said that your father had not as much sense as Billy Smith's little yellow dog. All I said was that Billy's little yellow dog had more sense than your father; that's all I ever said."
"Well, it's well you didn't say the other, I tell you."
