Value of Advertising.

"Without advertising I should be a poor man to-day."—Wm. H. H. H.

"I advertised my productions and made money."—Nicholas Longworth.

"Advertising has furnished me with a competent man who is liberal in advertising is liberal in trade, and such a man succeeds, while his neighbor, with just as good goods, fails and drops out of market."—Horace Greeley.

"He who invests one dollar in business, cannot invest one dollar in advertising."—A. T. Stewart.

"Constant and persistent advertising is a prelude to wealth."—Stephen Oliver.

P. T. Barum, the noted exhibitor, ascribes his success in accumulating a million of dollars in ten years to the unlimited use of printers ink.

Fire Insurance.

vicinity of the Methodist Church?

FACTS IN REGARD TO GROCERIES.—

Largest stock, best goods and lowest prices at H. H. Kinyon's. Reasons why: Long experience, buys in large quantities for two stores, pays cash, and sells for ready pay only. Be sure to look there, before you buy.

We take Austin's Ague Drops for Ague.

SPORTING.—Several of the Sons of Nimrod, from Berrien Springs and this village, enjoyed a hunting match last week, and from reports had a splendid time. The company succeeded in bagging fifty chickens in all.

NEW SIDE WALK.—Mr. D. Totten has completed the new side walk in front of his premises on Main street, which adds much to the appearance,

and greatly pleases pedestrians.

Barr's Ague Medicine contains neither quinine or arsenic.—Sold by Osborn.

FRIDAYS.—Friday is getting to be one of the best days of the week for business in our village. On last Friday there were as many in town, or more, than on Saturday or Monday.

It is said that more trading is done on both Mondays and Fridays than on any other days, in proportion to the number who come to town.

SESSION LAWS.—The first volume of the Session Laws of 1871 is now being distributed. We have examined it cursorily, and think that it compares favorably with any that has preceded it, both as to the importance of the matters contained and the wisdom displayed in the legislation upon upon them.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.—Supt.

of Public Instruction, Hon. O. H. Foster,

has appointed Teachers' Institute,

to be held at Benton Harbor, commencing on Sept. 4th.

READ.—We trust that farmers in the vicinity of Buchanan will not fail to read the communication of "Q," relative to the "Home Wheat Market."

It treats of literal facts.

Malicious Fevers yield at once to the influence of Barr's Ague Medicine.

FISH.—Mackerel and White fish at

PENNY READINGS.—On Monday evening a meeting was held at the Union School House for the purpose of effecting an organization, literary in its character. There was a good turn out of young ladies and young gentlemen, who seemed much interested in the proposed work. An organization was duly effected by the election of proper officers, and the establishing of "Penny Readings" as the name of the new society. Everything passed off pleasantly, to the satisfaction of all concerned. It is the desire and special request of the members of said society, that the parents

Sunday Reading.

TO-MORROW.

A bright little boy with laughing face. When every motion was full of grace. Who knew no trouble, and feared no care, Was the light of our household—the youngest there.

He was too young, this little elf, With troublesome questions to vex himself; But for many days he thought would arise, And bring a shade to the dancing eyes.

He went to one whom he thought more wise Than any other beneath the skies; "Mother,"—a word that makes the home— "Tell me, when will to-morrow come?"

"It is almost night," the mother said; "And time for my boy to be in bed; When you wake up to-morrow's day again, It will be to-morrow, my darling, then."

The little boy slept through all the night, But woke with the red streak in the light; He pressed a kiss on his mother's brow, And whispered, "Is it to-morrow, now?"

"No, little Eddie, this is to-day; To-morrow is always one night away; He pondered awhile, but joys came fast, And the vexing question quickly passed.

But it came again with the shades of night; "Will it be to-morrow when it is light?" From years to come he seemed care to borrow, He tried so hard to catch to-morrow.

"You cannot catch it, my little Ted; Enjoy to-day," the mother said; "Some wait for to-morrow through many a year, It always is coming, but never is here."

Judicious Praise.

No heart is insensible to words of praise, or the kindly smile of approbation; and none are utterly above being affected by censure or blame. Children are particularly sensitive in this respect. Nothing can discourage a child more than a spirit of incessant fault-finding; and perhaps nothing can exert a more baneful influence upon both parent and child. If your little one, through the day, has been pleasant, and obedient, and you say to him, "My son, you have been good to-day, and it makes me very happy; and if, with more than a usually affectionate embrace, you say, "Good night, my dear child," a throb of joy, pleasant feelings fill his breast, and he resolves on always earning such approval. If your grown son, or daughter, have accomplished some difficult piece of work, rendering you essential assistance; or have climbed some steep in the daily drill of study; or have acquired some new accomplishment, or added grace; or, better than all, have gained the victory over some bad habit or besetting sin—acknowledge it, see it, praise them for it. Let them see, by your added tenderness, the deep joy and comfort it gives you. Thus you will create a great incentive to right conduct, and lay a broad foundation for a character which shall be redolent with succulent fruit and fragrant blossoms.—Templar's Magazine.

Sometime.

It is a sweet, sweet song, warbled to and fro among the topmost boughs of the heart, and filling the whole air with such joy and gladness, as the songs of birds do when the summer morning comes out of darkness, and day is born on the mountains. We have all our possessions in the future, which we call "sometime." Beautiful flowers and singing birds are there, only our hands alone grasp the one or other, and the other is lost. But oh, reader, be of good cheer, for all this good there is a golden "sometime;" when the hills and valleys of time are all past; when the wear and fever, the disappointments of life are over, then there is the place and the rest appointed of God. A homestead, over whose roof fall no shadows nor even clouds, and over whose threshold the voice of sorrow is never heard; built upon the eternal hills and standing on its spires and pinnacles of celestial beauty among the palm trees of the city on high, those who love God shall rest under thy shadow, where there is no more sorrow nor pain, nor the sound of weeping, "sometime."

Watch.

A friend was recently overtaken by night on a mountain ridge. The path behind was too perilous to be retraced in the darkness, and the way in front was stopped by a projecting rock which, in his exhausted state he could not scale. His only alternative was to wait for the morning. But his resting place was a steep slope, ending in a sheer precipice. One careless movement might prove his destruction. As the darkness deepened, the danger was disguised. With a lessening sense of peril, there came on increasing drowsiness. What efforts were his during those long hours to drive off sleep! How he had to stir up his mind to a conviction of the necessity of unremitting vigilance! For, should he once be overpowered, he might unconsciously slide down his sloping couch, and be hurled into the valley below. Such is our position. If we do not fall down the precipice, let us watch lest during slumber we slip along the treacherous incline.—Newman Hall.

Overworking.

Our Saviour never drove his over-tired faculties. When tired, "He sat by the well." He used to get and rest in the house of Mary and Martha after the fatigues of working in Jerusalem. He tells us all, you and me, to let the morrow take care of itself, and merely to meet the evils of the present day. Real foresight consists in reserving our own forces, so that we may be able to meet the future. We take more in hand than now we can do well, we break up, and the work is broken up with us.

A small insect, the most inconsiderable part of the creation of God will struggle hard to preserve the life he hath. Many of the creatures below us will take pains, and drudge; and toil to sustain a short perishing life; how much more ought man to make haste and bestir himself, who hath a soul to save!—Outram.

Seeking the good of others gives him the most amiable, and fills him with the most exquisite sense of propriety. He knows how to do good in the right way. There is ever so much Scripture against doing good with a noise and racket.
