A Text for a Sermon.

We learn from an exchange that 'Dr. E. N. Texts are not wanting. Story.

THE CHUMS.

BY JAMES MAURICE THOMPSON. Tom Baker and I were better friends than most twin brothers are, yet we were no akin to each other any more than you or I. We hunted together, we fished together, we slept together, we ate together, and I am ashamed to say that once in a while we drank toher a bottle of port or sherry. Tom and I were loafers, yes, regular built loafers. We had nothing to do and didn't like to do that any oftener than we could help it. Some folks don't like loafers. Well, I nevor liked but one, that was Tom Baker. I loved him. He was my partner in everything, my other self, my shadow. You know I'm not much account for anything; well, neither was Tom. We had been to California together and got enough gold to live off the interest, and that's how it happened that we always had good duds on and took a game or two of seven-up. But that's been a long time ago, and needn't be mentioned at all. Tom and I were just of an age to a day-just of one size, and somewhat alike in the face. Don't know but I own up that Tom played poker a good deal in California, and as for me, kept ourselves spruce like.

Tom was rather the best looking of the two; likely he was. Many's the time we've been in danger together, Tom and I, and it so happened that he saved my life twice or three times. O, well, we were all wrapped up in each other, all bound together by cords of that kind of affection that breaks but with breaking hearts. Strange how two great rough men should love one another as Tom and I did. We had our bachelor quarters over Beekman's bank, just opposite Mrs. Malone's boarding-house. Our windows were a little higher from the ground than those of the boardinghouse, and it so happened that we often sat smoking, with our feet elevated, looking over at the lady boarders and making remarks about them. I remember that one of them was a slim old maid, of whom Tom never tired talking about, in his dry way, often reminding me that she looked like a yard of calico wrapped around a bundle of fishing-rods. But this doesn't belong to my story; I'm always getting off the subject.

One day Tom sat at one window and I at the other. I recollect that we had got a fresh box of cigars that day, good ones as ever I set teeth on. Tom was gazing dreamily through his smoke out across the street and I was gazing just as dreamily at Tom. It was an August morning, hot as fire, and not a breath of air that would stir a feather. We had off our coats and vests, our shirt-sleeves rolled up and our collars thrown open. All was still down in the street. O, it was red hot out doors, and still a heating. Suddenly Tom started a little. I thought he had burned his finger, for he was knocking the ashes from his cigar, but slowly a look of wonder spread over his big, good humored face. His eyes dilated pleasantly, he stroked his beard and smiled, gazing steadily across the little sea of smoke rolling off before him.

one evening, and managed to get an introduction to Miss Victorine Saunders-the young lady's name, sir; pretty name, too. I don't think it would be prudent to try to describe my feelings when for the first time I took a seat face to face with that wee fairy of a girl. My heart just galloped about loose in my breast. Once it got into my throat and staid there some time just a rolling over and over. I think my face must have changed color fifty times in a minute. Can't remember what I said nor what she said, but I had a pleasant sort of a time for the hour I staid. Miss Saunders was a niece of Mrs. Malone. She was a chatty little thing with the most expressive face in the world, but roguish, bless my life! Why, sir, her eyes just danced in her

"Call again, Mr. Duncan," she said as she rose to bid me good evening. I left that house feeling lighter than cork and sweeter than sugar. Music hummed in my ears-joy leaped through my veins. On the steps that led up in our rooms I met Tom. I looked right straight into his eyes and there I saw just a little bit of a cloud, just a faint gleum of displeasure. We ran up stairs side by side, our feet spatting sharply on the steps. When we reached our room Tom sat down and hauled out a newspaper to which for half an hour he paid strict attention. I got out my banjo and he read aloud the anecdote that had so tickled him. For my part I didn't think it funny at all. Next morning I proposed a fishing. Tom said he had a big headache, so I went alone, leaving him smelling vig-orously of a camphor hottle. In all my life I had never before known him to have the headache.

Pshaw! such a fishing as I had.

Presently Tom leaned back in his chair and laughed loud and long, then

Not a nibble did I get. The brook bubbled lazily, and the wind hummed sleepily away up in the white sycamore trees. A little bit of a bird with yellow wings and a red throat sat on a swinging branch and sang "Chip-a-ree, victorine" all the time, and a tiny nest was hard by, just chuck full of young ones. I staid by the brook an hour, thinking how happy it would be to have a nest like that little bird, with some one to sing around it like a bee around a flower. Then I wound up my line and walked toward town, while fainter and fainter grew the voice of the redthroat, "Chip-a-ree, Victorine!" When I reached the foot of the stairway to our attic, I glanced over toward the boarding house of Mrs. Malone. Some one came out of the door. It was Tom. I saw by the smile on his face that his headache was not so severe as it had been: Iran up to our room, put away my fishing-rod, and was singing, "Bury me under a pile of straw," when Tom came in. I did not look up but just picked away at those strings with

"Umph!" said Tom, taking a cigar and raking a match on the wall. 'Catch any fish ?'' "No," said I. "Did you?" Tom sucked away at his cigar as if he did not hear me. "How's your headache?" I added. He looked at me sharply for a sec-ond, then wagging his head dolorous-

"Did ache awfully. Like to a bursted." Well, time ran on slowly and deliciously; but somehow I didn't enjoy it just as I ought to. Tom and I

Republican State Convention. A Republican State Convention, to appoint 22 delegates to represent this State in the National Republican Convention, to be held at Philadelphia, June 5th, 1872, to usualistic candidates for President and Vice President, and also elect a Republican State Control Committee, will be held in the city of Jackson, at Union Hall, on Thursday the 16th day of May next, at 11 o'clock A. M. The several counties will be entitled to two delegates for each Representative in the lower branch of the State Lyislature; and every organized county having no representation will be entitled to one delegate.

By the resolution of 1858, no delegate will be entitled to a seat who does not reside in the county he represents.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ELECTION AND ITS RESULTS.

The results of the late election in New Hampshire, being a complete Republican triumph, has somewhat, we judge, cooled the ardor of the Democracy and the dissatisfied element in the Republican party. . It was expected, by the element referred to, that a great falling off would occur from the regular Republican vote, and that at least the Temperance and the Labor Reform candidates would run far ahead of their last year's vote. Such however, was not the fact, as the result finds the Labor Reform and Temperance candidates several hundred behind the vote of last year. The regular Republican ticket had a gain of some 2500 over the last year's vote. This result caused great confidence throughout the entire Republican ranks, and of course had a corresponding depressing effect on the dissatisfied and the Democracy.

It was positively asserted prior to the New Hampshire election that Senator Sumner would preside at the Cincinnati Liberal Republican Convention. It is now asserted that he will not do so, and that even the convention is to be only for consultation and not for the purpose of nominating a candidate for President.

The Governor's Message.

The following is a synopsis of Governor Baldwin's message:

The first census of Michigan as State was that of 1840, when it was the twenty-third State of the Union, and contained 212,267 inhabitants. In 1850 it ranked the twentieth, and numbered 397,644. In 1860 the population was 749,113, and the State claimed the sixteenth place. The census of 1870 gave us a population of 1,184,059, making Michigan the thirteenth in the rank of States. Her growth in national wealth has kept pace with her increase of population. The assessed valuation of real and personal property in round numbers $129,000,000; in 1856, $137,000,-000; in 1861, $172,000,000; and in 1871, $630,000,000. The representation in the lower branch of the National Legislature has advanced as follows: From 1836 to 1843, one member; 1848 to 1853, three; from 1858, six, and under the recent act of Congress making a new apportionment Michigan is entitled to nine members. The apportionment of State into Congressional Districts is a most important duty. It is required that districts be composed of contiquous territory and as nearly as practicable of the same number of inhabitants. Due regard should be paid, however, to the fact that the growth of population will be much greater in some districts than in others.

By an act passed at the session of 1871, it was made the duty of the Board of State Building Commissioners to procure plans, specifications, and estimates for a new Capitol, not to exceed $1,000,000. They were authorized to proceed to the erection of such buildings, but with a provision that no contract should be entered into involving the expenditure of more than the $1,000,000 then appropriated. Future contracts were prohibited, except as appropriations might be made. The duty committed to the Board is one of importance and great responsibility, to secure the erection of a suitable edifice with a sum much less than usually devoted to such purpose, and will demand most careful attention, much time and labor. In response to advertisements twenty designs were received, that of Elijah E. Myers, of Spring-field, III. being adopted. His estima-tated cost of the building is $1,070,-345. In the option of experts it can be completed for $1,100,000, provided the whole work can be let under one contract. After careful examination and consultation with experienced architects and builders, the Commissioners are of the opinion that a much better building can be obtained and a large amount of money saved by contracting for the whole work at one time. In this opinion I fully concur. The cast of machinery and other appliances necessary for the economical construction of so large and expensive an edifice, will be such as no responsible contractor would be willing to expend for a small portion of the building only. If the whole is offered at one time, experienced and responsible builders will compete for the work, but if let in sections, from year to year, the advantages of such competition will be lost. In this connection will be asked, can the means be provided by the Legislature at its present session, to be expended within a proper limit of time, without jeopardizing the payment of the funded debt of the State at its maturity, as necessary appropriations for our several State institutions, or without imposing upon the people a heavy burden of taxation? Having made careful estimates of the receipts and expenditures of the State Government for the years 1872, 1873, 1874, 1875, of 1872 of one and one-third mill on the dollar, and but one mill on the dollar annually thereafter, the bonded debt of the State can be paid at maturity, all necessary appropriations be made for each of the State institu-

the whole work, to be completed within six years, at a cost not to exceed $1,200,000. For the accomplishment of this object I recommend the appropriation of $100,000 annually for each of the years 1873, '4, '5, and '6, THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 21, 1872. and $300,000 for 1877.

Ample provisions having been made for the payment of the funded debt of the State by setting apart some of the trust fund receipts and such portion of the specific taxes as may not be required for the payment of the prising and beautiful town. interest on the public debt, there is Yours. no longer a necessity for the oneeighth mill tax to constitute a sinking fund. Leaving this off, the State tax will be reduced $73,750, and he recommends legislation to effect this object. The receipts from specific taxes set apart by the Constitution for the payment of the interest and princioal of the State debt having become so large as to do away with the necessity for appropriations of specific amounts from the general fund for the payment of interest, the government recommends an appropriation from the general fund of the amount necessary. annually hereafter, for the payment of interest on the bonded debt. He recommends that the swamp lands of the Upper Peninsula be placed under the direction of the State Board of Control: calls attention to a defect in the law relating to the killing of cattle by railroad trains; also, asks legislation to enable towns to lay pipes beyond the corporation limits, where necessary, to obtain a supply of water; advises the passage of an act to enable guardians of minor heirs residing in Michigan, but having property in the State of New York, to obtain possession of such property.

The report of the Geological Survey of the entire Upper Peninsula, nearly ready, suggests the passage of joint resolution authorizing the expense of its publication.

His Excellency's attention has been called by the President of the United States to the twenty-seventh Article of the recent treaty with Great Britain. He is not aware that the laws. of this State relating to St. Mary's Falls Ship Canal in any way discriminates between the citizens of the United States and those of any other country, but it is proper that Michigan should place upon record its approval of the article by giving official assent to the use of the canal within its borders upon terms of entire equality to the subject of her Britanic Majesty and citizens of our own country, and recommended the passage of a joint resolution to this effect.

The Governor recites the history of the fires which swept a portion of the State last October. The total cash contribution to the relief fund was $462,106, besides clothing and other supplies, the estimate value of which was $250,000. He compliments the members of the several Relief Committees for the fidelity and good judgment with which they discharged their difficult task; Makes grateful mention of valuable favors and substantial service rendered by railroad, express, and telegraph companies. Freight in very large quantities had been transported free of charge; the use of the telegraph wires had been freely given for all relief business, by which thousands of dollars had been saved to the ## Legislative Correspondence.

LANSING March 18, 1872. EDITORS RECORD :-The Legislature is now in session under the call of the Governor, for the purpose of making nine Congressional Districts, and doing such other business as the Executive shall deem proper to lay before it. Thus far, all the recommendations suggested by him have been promptly and nearly unanimously passed by both Houses. The very important bill authorizing the building of a State House, to cost $1,200,000 has passed. In the Senate it was unanimous, and in the House only two votes were recorded against it It is to be completed in six years. $200,000 is to be raised by tax each of the years 1873 1874, 1875 and 1876, and $300,000 in the year 1877, making a total tax for the building of it of $1,100,000. The other $100,000 being appropriated to start the job with, in 1872, out of the building fund now on hand. The bill requires the commissioners to let the job to the lowest bidder being responsible. The plans and specifications selected by the commissioners. are now about ready and the contract will no doubt be let within sixty days, and the work commenced this season. The most complicated and difficult work before the Legislature is the redistricting of the State into Congressional districts, at which both Houses are now at work, with but little seeming headway. It is very difficult to predict when the work will be accomplished or what the result will be. There are so very many slates, and such an amount of conflicting opinions and interests. The thermometer stood at 21° below zero on 4th inst., snowing to-day. We are anticipating large improvements the coming season, in the way of damming the river at this place (i. e. the Little Muskegon River), thereby affording one of the best water powers in Northern Michigan. Privieges will be for sale immediately after the river is dammed. Preparations are being made for the building of a large Planing and Lath mill. Our village at the present time owes its prosperity to the great amount of lumbering done on the Little Muskegon, this being a central point to obtain supplies. But, as we have some of the best of farming land around our village, which is every day being purchased by actual settlers, we beieve will, when the pine is all gone be so improved as to furnish a large support in the way of trade. All we lack is for some one to improve the golden opportunity of building a Flouring mill which, if we had it, would draw all the trade from what is called the Canada Settlement, east of this place. Some have to go 15 miles to get their wheat ground, and, of course when there, will do most of their trading. This settlement is only six or seven miles from our village, and is an old settlement of Canadians, most of whom raise quite a large amount of grain. On Thursday evening we had an exhibition at the school house, which was attended by a very large crowd, all: seemed well pleased and pronounced it a success. To the parents and patrons of the school I would say that they have my sincere thanks for

FROM CHIRAMING. March 16, 1872. EDITORS BERRIEN RECORD:—Dear Sirs.—I have often, when reading your paper, felt that we needed a local correspondent from this place; one who would give the names and items as they take place among us. Although I feel very incompetent. I will do the best I can to supply that need... The Baptist church of this place, gave G. Bell, of Chicago University, a call to fill their pulpit once in two weeks. As he was not ordained they concluded to call a council of ministers, and members from different churches, as is their custom, and ordain him on the eighth. And notwithstanding on that day there was all kinds of bad weather, from a snow storm to a thunderstorm, the ordination took place. The council metin the afternoon to examine the candidate for the ministry, W. Stone, of Niles, acting as clerk ofthe council. The ordination took place in the evening, Rev. J. Huntington, of Niles, gave the right hand the charge, which was very impressive. . pressive. The school in district No. agony.—Lapeer Clarion.

FROM OHIKAMING. March 11, 1872. EDITORS RECORD :-- As my private letter to you of two weeks ago and your Editorial of last week agree, we shall have no dispute in regard to personalities. In reply to Jo. Baker's article of the 4th inst., I would say that in that one, as in all his letters, the less you believe of them, the more truth you get, and the less you read of them, the more general information you obtain. I think Jo. is subject to worm fits, and usually writes when he has one of those bad spells. He is to be pitied rather than blamed. He is a good fellow when his mind is all

-A sad and fatal accident happened in the north-east part of Dryden, on the morning of the 10th. A little three year old son of Mr. Benjamin Anger, being left alone in the house while the mother was absent at one of the neighbors, took the can of kerosene oil, poured out the contents on the floor in various places, and it is supposed, got its clothes more or less saturated with it. In some manner its clothes then caught fire, and when discovered by the mother on her return they were literally burned off, and the child nearly roasted alive. The floor was on fire in several places, and, but for the timely return of the mother the house must have been burned. The poor child lingered for about half an hour in terrible agony. -Lapeer Clarion.

They both bolonged to Mr. Ralph Wadhams, were together valued at six thousand dollars, and the insurance was two thousand. The flames performed their work very rapidly, and in an hour from the time of starting, the mills were in ashes. The grist mill was rented by Mr. Robert P. "THAT WOOD CHUCK" AGAIN.

He knew, that gray-haired varmint did, That a pet hobby which Tre "rid," Was, that no sign could e'er be true, No more than black or green is blue;

And so he snickered in his sleeve, And said, "I'll make that chap believe, Before the daisies bloom again That I am wiser far than men."

And, so he crawled into his hole, And bid the sun in glory roll; And told the birds to come and sing And make me think that we had Spring.

And then, when he had got me foul, That ancient, grim and ugly ghoul, He gathered ice, and frost, and snow, And said to Spring, "hold on, go slow;"

Manufacturing Interests of Buchauan, From present indications, Buchanan is going to take a "new departure" this year in the building of manufactories. Prospects are flattering. Before many months more we hope to be able to state that several large manufacturing companies now organizing are doing business in our village. The desirability of our location, and the superior water power afforded here, have at last awakened attention of capitalists, and if we do not mistake the signs of the times, we are soon to have a manufacturing town of no little importance. Our numerous church spires indicate, in some sense, the moral and religious tone of our inhabitants; the large and elegant school building tells that our citizens appreciate the advantage of knowledge and intellectual development, the nice store buildings and extensive sidewalks show the thrift and enterprise of the people. Our villagers had almost begun to think that they had overreached in their endeavors to build up, and beautify the town, but their enterprise is now going to meet with a reward it deserves. Nothing more is needed to give stability and permanancy to the business of the place and to make a live town, than a few such manufactories as are now about to be started. The people interested in the town have shown wisdom in doing so much to encourage the establishment of manufactories in the place. When we can hear the hum of machinery on every hand, from factories that furnish steady and remunerative employment to hands living in the village, and send their shipments abroad, spending the money they get therefrom at home increasing the amount which is circulated in this town and vicinity—then we may look for easier times, business will improve, and every one feel the advantages of Home Manufactories.

DECLINED .- It is not according to our ideas of propriety to admit into our columns personal bickerings. The parties have both been hard, and to publish private letters on the affair, would be out of order. Our Laketon friends, will, therefore, be content without our stepping aside from the rules of propriety.

CHEESE FACTORY .- Let every farmer, and all others interested, turn out to the meeting on Saturday relative to the Cheese Factory business. It CONSOLIDATION .- The Peninsula Herald and National Prohibitionist have consolidated, and have a publication office in Detroit and Chicago. It is now one of the best publications of its class in the United States, and we predict for it a successful career every new comer in the village who is in the future. The new paper is called The New World.

> The Postmaster General has just decided that post office envelopes having the address printed on them and also a printed stamp, cannot be used by crossing out the address and writing a different one in its place. Letters so treated will not be forwarded unless they have an extra stamp put upon them. We fail to see the justice in such a rule.

> PRINTED TICKETS .- Do not fail in having printed tickets ready for the coming spring elections. The cost is but a trifle, and it prevents, to a large extent, the voting of spurious tickets, by many who think they are voting for the regular nominees.

> Cotten has just received a splendid stock of Spring goods. Everything in the line of boots and shoes cheap, and warranted.

> NIAGARA FALLS .- We have received the beautiful Chromo of Niagara Falls from the publishers of Wood's Household Magazine. In looking at this chromo, one almost imagines he sees the rushing of the great cataract and hears its roar. This picture retails at $5, but the publishers of this Magazine furnish it as a premium for three subscribers. Wood's Household Magazine is one of the best publications for the family circle in America. It is filled with such articles and stories, entertaining and interesting, calculated to advance knowledge, virtue and temperance. There is no family in the land, but would be the happier for the visits of Wood's Household Magazine. Terms only $1 per year. Address S. S. Wood, Newburgh, N.

REDEMPTION OF MUTILATED CUR-RENCY.—The following regulations for the redemption of mutilated currenby have recently been issued by the $1,200—but it is not certain that Postmaster General:

"Postmasters are not required by law to redeem or accept, in payment of post office dues, money orders, stamps or stamped envelopes, any currency which may be so mutilated as to be uncurrent, nor is it any part of their duty to receive and transmit to the Treasury for redemption, mutilated currency belonging to individuals, except as regular mail matter forward ed in the usual manner at the risk of the owner. Such packages addressed to the 'Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. Seron years! and life rises against us. And drifts us still further apart, And the old timid anguish of silence Sets a seal on the lips and the heart.

Joining the Church.

Most converted persons come, sooner or later, to think of "joining the church," But they do not always come to a decision without a struggle. Many arguments have been urged, and many excuses have been pleaded first. As to the excuses, it is curious how utterly absurd most of them are. Said a most interesting convert, "I am not good enough." Not good enough? Not good enough? You might as well have urged as an excuse for not repenting, "I am not good enough to have my sins forgiven." Is not a humble sense of your unworthiness the proper prerequisite to the reception of any divine gift or the performance of any Christian duty? Besides, is not the neglect to confess Christ before men,. as a failure in duty, itself a barrier in the way of becoming better? We certainly can have no goodness, except as we believe and obey.

Not good enough? Then the door of the Church has been opened by Christ only for those already established in righteousness. Is the Church a garden only for the planting of full grown trees? Is it a mere granary for harvested believers? The truth is in an opposite direction. The Church is a nursery for the training of young plants; a field for the growing and maturing of the upspringing harvest. When Christians have attained to "the full corn in the ear," they are fitter for heaven than for the Church on earth. With all its defects, that Church is the best place, if right-ly used, in which to become strength: ened and built up in the Lord.

But perhaps the objection is that such and such church members are so bad. Then it is high time that those who are so much better as to tell how bad those others are, should step in and rescue the cause of the Master from disgrace. Who are better fitted to set a proper Christian example than those who feel the evil of such had examples!" Aside from this, which is the worst, to fail when, attempting to save a drowning man, or to refuse to try to save him, because some one else has failed? This plea; however, usually comes from a person far from possessing true Christian humility, or from some mere worldly person who knows nothing of the conflict of the Christian life. The children of the light should neither plead the objections of the children of this world against the Ghurch, nor imitate their evil example of refusing to do duty. What right has a wicked man to complain of the Christian's failure to live up to his profession? He himself is doing the same when he admits himself to be a sinner and yet fails to repent. - Observer.

Golden Grains.

It is not until the flower has fallen off that the fruit begins to ripen. So in life it is when the romance is past that the practical usefulness begins. ""We all grieve for our friends as if they were no better yonder, and for ourselves as if there were no better here, for all our passions are, by birth, atheists and unbelievers.

"A little word in kindness spoken" has made many a fortune, and, what is better, secured a pleasant and peaceful life, and triumphant death and a blessed immortality. If you wish success in life, make perseverance your bosom friend, experience your wise counselor, cantion your elder brother, and hope your guardian genius. - William Penn's famous saying should be written upon every church's banner: "No pain, no balm; no thorn no throne; no gall, no glory; no cross, no crown.

When the disciples saw Jesus on the dark and stormy sea, they "cried out with fear." He silenced those fears by making himself known. It is so now also. Come to God for what no one else can give you, or do for you; plead His promise, and expect His aid: so you honor Him. You cannot trust man too little nor God too much. Satan would have me while away, my life in activity, under pretenses of modesty, diffidence, and humility, and he is never wanting to furnish me with excuses for delaying or shifting service .- Scott.

Trust.

Amid all disorders, God is ordering all wisely and justly, and to them that love him, graciously; therefore we ought not to be dismayed. Let us calm our thoughts with this remember who it is that rules all, and disposes of peace and war, and all affairs, and we cannot wish them in better hands. I am persuaded, that, in all the commotions of the world, when a believer thinks on this, it cannot but calm and compose his spirit exceeding-ly... "My Father rules in all."

No man is a gentleman, who without provocation, would treat with incivility the humblest of his species.
It is vulgarity for which no accomplishment of dress or address conjever atone... Show me the man who desires to make every one around him happy, and whose greatest solicitude is never to give cause of offence to lany one, nature and practice.

World with the second s The sovereignty: Jost adivine grace, and the impartiality of divine justice, are points difficult to recon-cile tout it is a mercy to know, I that God has not imposed on us this diffiheve; but nowhere required to unravel such difficulties.

HAIR TES HAIR RENEWER

Every year increases the populari ty of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We cansassure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected, preparation for restoring GRAY, or FADED HARE to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair, from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical Ham: Dressing ever used as it requires fewer applications, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair asplendid, glossy appearance; A.A. A. Interferings with the Devotions. On one of the recent cold nights, a ady acquaintance of ours, put her two boys in bed in a cold room, tucked them up and sat down on the edge of the bed to hear them say their prayers. Johnny, aged seven, got through all right and cuddled up to Willie, aged five, who had just commended his prayer. Eresently Willie began to hurry, the words coming faster than he could distinctly utter them, and the prayer ended thus: "I pray the Lord my soul to keep-amentake your hand off from me or I'll graph: ....

No. Some years ago, in one of our western courts, three men—an Englishman, and rishman and a Scotch-man—were found guilty of murder and sentenced to be hung. The Judge told them they could each choose a tree on which they would like to be "strung up." The Scotchman promptly chose an ash free, and the Englishman an oak tree. "Well, Pat, what will you be hung on," asked the Judge. "If it please your honor, I'd rather behing on a gooseberry bush." "Oh," said the Judge, "That's not big enough." "Begory, then," replied Pat, "I'll wait till it grows."

The pioneer Methodist, Peter Cartwright, uttered many wise and odd and witty sayings. He was often much annoyed at one sister, more noisy than pious, who would go off on a high key at every opportunity. At an animated class-meeting one day she broke out with, "If I had one more feather in the wing of my faith, I could fly away and be with my Savior." Stick in the feather, O Lord! and let; here go, iffervently responded Brother Cartwright.
