Manhood: How Lost, How Restored

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culvorwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of Sprematoraria, or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Involvation, Epilepsy, and Fits, induced by self-indulgense or sexual extravagance.

—Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents.*

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming cousequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing cut a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may he, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically. This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

THE CHILD'S INQUIRY. Carl Schurz sat down one evening late, To rest his weary head, When his little son came to the room, And looking at him said:--'Who is this Horace Greeley, pa,

That people call so wise? Is he some giant tall enough To reach unto the skies? "Oh! no, my child, about as large As I or Governor Brown; "Twas not his stature made him great, Or won him this renown.

"But he it was who nobly bailed Jeff. Davis from his cell; And now we want for President, The man that did so well." "But, then, papa, was not old Jest.
A traitor to the State?
You used to run him down and say,

That hanging was his fate. "And wouldn't Horace Greeley, pa, If he were President, Bail out and pardon every rogue,

"Oh, no, my child; Jeff. Davis was An enemy in war;
But he who bails a common rogue,
His neighbors all abhor."

"Then, pa, if I should steal a horse,
I'd steal a hundred more;
Would I be great and get bailed out, Like Davis did before ?"

"Oh, no, my child, the gospel says
That you should always do,
To every person as you would,
That they should do to you." "But, pa, did Horace Greeley think,

That in some future day, He would want bail when he should try, His country to betray?" . * * * The Senator could say no more-So, turning, quickly said:
"It's nine o'clock, my little boy; "Tis time you were in bed."

SPURNED AND ACCEPTED.

It was a cottage. Don't tell me I don't know. Haven't I been there to gather roses and feast on strawberries? No! it wasn't a cottage ornee -there was nothing Frenchified about it. It was purely American, and harmonized sweetly with the delightful scenery. No! it hadn't a flat roof, nor a portico; nothing at all of the | more valuable." kind. But then it had rose vines running all over the windows, and whole | unaccountable dullness of apprehencolonies of wrens that built their nests and sang beneath its eaves. To the right was a field of clover, red with blossoms; on the left was an orchard, whence every wind scattered a snowy shower of bloom; in front was a green lawn, shaded with some massive walnut trees; and to the rear opened a long grassy lane through which the cows walked every morning to their pasture beyond, and returned by the same way at night. I knew well enough to whom this cottage belonged. No, it wasn't to a school teacher, nor a preacher, nor an author—no such thing. It was built by the hand of him who owned it and lived in it, and I had always admitted its excellent taste in blending the useful with the beautiful, though I had never seen him, my visits having always been to his wife, and during his absence. I had learned of him, though: heard enough to make me intensely curious to see him, for not a female tongue in the neighborhood approved his wife's choice.

"What is the matter with him?" I asked; "is he immoral?" "Not that I know of," was the reioinder; "but to tell the truth, Dolly, he's insufferably ugly—his face is all scarred and cicatrized, as if by fire,

"Don't know; never heard; never made inquiries; you know they only came to live in this neighborhood last summer, and I never dared ask her what disfigured him, but I wish you would-oh, I should like to know." "I am considerably acquainted with Mrs. Winslow," I replied; "I thought of calling upon her this morning;

perhaps she will tell me without my asking. "Do! that's a dear Dolly!" And I did. The whole atmosphere seemed redolent with music and fragrance. I couldn't tell why all the birds had taken it into their heads to sing, warble and build their nests there; and I didn't know why it was that the mosses, buttercups, violets and daisies should prefer that place to any other; but they seemed to, judging from the profusion in which they grew. The whole prospect was delightfully rural and picturesque, and over all lingered an influence of dreamy quietude and repose.

A narrow footpath, crooked as footpaths always are, wound along through the lawn, beneath the shadows of a giant walnut, and by this I approached, entered the little gate and ascended the graveled walk, bordered by beds. and I went in.

day, and each other's society. I can't tell what we talked about.

No: it wasn't of balls, nor operas, nor lions nor sights. No; not a neighbor's character was dissected. No; the infirmities of the clergyman were not shown up. No; not a morsel of private scandal was cut and carved. But the time flew swiftly and pleasquiet eye, limpid as a lake in summer, serene as the heavens of June.

There was a rustle and flutter of muslin, the sound of a light, springy step, the glimpse of a fairy form, and Mrs. Winslow stood before me. She was not very beautiful, but sparkling and vivacious, with a glow of health on her cheek and its light in her eye. . The baby had roused up now, to be sure; no more of its quiet and calmness, no more of its thoughtful serenity. Its little form fairly fluttered learning how deeply I was indebted with joy. It laughed, clapping its to the man I had despised? It is necdimpled hands.

me, haven't you? and baby had such good company while mamma was gone, hadn't it?" she said in a light, chirrupy way that set off the little fellow with renewed delight. Her invitation had only seconded my design, so removing my bonnet and mantilla, while she sat down on the rocker and took the baby, we prepared to enjoy the antly after dinner, and when the great round sun was sinking behind the trees she came to where I was sitting, and without a word laid a portrait in my lap. It was that of a noble looking man, with most expressive and | the very soul of truth and nobleness

I replied in the negative. "It is almost time for him to be here," she continued. "You will stay with us this evening?" I replied that I should be happy to form his acquaintanc, and again looked at his portrait. "He doesn't look like that now." she answered, wiping away a tear, "yet he says," and a blush overspread her features, "he says he shall ever have cause to bless the fire by which he lost his good looks, but which won him what he esteems a thousand times since you have never heard perhaps I may as well tell you." "Certainly, certainly." "You see when Mr. Winslow first began his attentions to me I wasn't at all pleased. He was handsome, I knew, but I had set my mind, very foolishly, I suppose, on having a rich husband, and one who could keep me above the necessity of work. So I slighted and repulsed him on all occasions, showing him not only indifference, but actual loathing and scorn. Such treatment one might have supposed would have quickly obliterated his passion; on the contrary, however, it seemed only to increase it. "About this time I formed the acquaintance of a city gentleman, whom rumor reported immensely rich, and whose intense selfishness was veiled beneath a manner of the utmost suavity. His attentions to me were marked and not to be mistaken-and though and looked it, and I believed him. "At this time I lived with my mother, in our beautiful cottage at North Bend. The place was very gay, and social parties large and frequent; I mingled in them all, and Barton was my escort. Sometimes I saw Winslow, but he seldom approached me, though his deep, sad eyes seemed following me. "It was in October, I think, the atmosphere dry and cool, with night winds, when, as we were returning from a party, late at night, I was surprised and shocked by the appearance and with it your manner has changed in the distance of a deep red light | from scorn to kindness, so I have that seemed to climb the sky and quench the very stars. A wild and awful presentiment of approaching evil at the same moment crossed my mind. "If that should be our house,'" I almost shricked. "Nonsense-it's much farther off," exclaimed Barton. "But I was not satisfied, and hurried on eagerly, dragging him with me. We came nearer, nearer. My fears were all too true. It was indeed our heautiful home, wrapped in one broad sheet of smoke and flame, and forked tongues were lapping the pillars, and shooting from the windows, while up at one of the skylights stood my mother in her nightdress.

"With one wild shrick I called the attention of the crowd to her situaof flowers, to the door. It was open tion. There was the crash of the falling roof, mingled with wild exclamations. A great mist swam before my eyes, a noise not unlike that of the roaring flames was in my ears, and I lost con-

The clothes were burned from his body, and the flesh of his face and neck scarred and scorched till the skin seemed of the consistency of leather."

"There, my dear," said a manly voice at the door, "you have told enough, let me finish." I looked up; a man was there, on whose countenance were deep traces of the fiery element, but he didn't look ugly to me at all. Each scar seemed rather a badge of honor, and beemed radiantly in his eyes. His wife presented him, and giving me his hand he said:

"One whom my dear wife esteems so much cannot be a stranger to me, and now, since she has told you part for I have been a sad eaves dropper -let me tell you the rest."

I joyfully assented. "Then and there," he began, "I heard the flames roaring about me, and felt its fiery breath scorching my cheeks, and seemed to lap up the very springs of life, but was conscious only of a great joy at my heart, for the mother of her I prized was in my arms. "I have little more to tell," he resumed, "but when I grew strong and well enough to walk about, I observed that all the mirrors had been removed. Hitherto, in my deep happiness, I had thought little of the scars which I should have known would deface my features. This incident reminded me of it and excited my curiosity. When I requested one to be brought she implored me to desist and finally burst into tears. I knew it all, then, but, thank God, it didn't shock me in the least. I took her in my arms and whispered that 'since her beautiful face had become mine, I saw no cause to regret the loss of my old one, and wouldn't for the world change back again. You have seen and love me now,' I said, 'whereas you didn't before; you know all my disfigurement,

A Pictorial Bustle. A Washington correspondent writes: There was a ludicrous incident happened at a concert last week. I believe that it is an established fact that some ladies make a bustle of newspapers. To the mortification of a young lady attending a concert, her overskirt caught on the back of the seat, revealing through the opening an illustrated paper. This recalls the old story of how a certain city was destroyed. The women were allowed to leave, and were told that they might out compensation—and very slowly, carry away upon their backs whatever they most prized. gular velocities of the planets. Another fact, that the interplanetary spaces are filled with matter, and that consequently all planetary bodies rushing through them must meet with resistance and lose monentum proves that immense momentum will be eaten up by the resistance force. This loss of tangential momentum must bring all the planets into the sun. As the planet slowly draws near the sun its lost tangential momentum is replaced and somewhat more than replaced by the added velocity due to the gravitative force exerted by the sun at the shorter distance. At last the planet must strike the sun with tremendous force. The heat generated by the earth and the sun alone in such a collision would suffice to produce a temperature of nearly 5,000,000 degrees centigrade. Of course, disintegration would immediately follow, and the next stage is the dissipation of the whole into nebula. - Lecture of Prof. Fiske before the American Geographical So-

POLITICAL OUT-LOOK

The present political horizon presents a rather cloudy appearance. But from the best indications of the hour, there is little doubt but that Greeley and Brown will be endorsed at Balti-Moreover, to our mind there is but little prospect of any serious division in the Democratic ranks on account of Greeley. If the Baltimore Convention shall ratify the Cincinnati movement, the great mass of the Democratic party will at once acquiesce in the recommendation of that Convention: We do not see any grounds for the idea that there will be any great element, in the Democratic ranks, that will repudiate the action of the Baltimore Convention. So the Republican party may as well take the facts as they exist and meet them, as to flatter themselves that Democrats will not support Greeley, if his nomination is ratified at Baltimore.

The indications are, then, of a most vigorous and hotly contested national campaign. This contest, too, will extend to many of the States in their elections for State officers. A union has already been effected in Illinois, and the same thing will undoubtedly be accomplished in Michigan. We have some dissatisfied and disappointed office aspirants who will seek shelter within the ranks of the new party. There is no mistaking the indications in this direction. Some able and prominent Republicans will go over to the Greeley party if there appears the least shadow of success. Among these we are inclined to place Hon. Austin Blair, who is a man of no mean influence, and whose defection would cause others to follow him. We may be mistaken relative to the position of Mr. Blair, but he having been disappointed in his Senatorial aspirations, and seeing but little prospects of success in that direction, where he now stands, we are led to the conclusions above stated. We could and do desire that we may be mistaken, for it is no pleasure to witness men who have been highly esteemed in the party, turn their backs upon the very men that have trusted and supported them. Yet, Trumbull, Schurz and Sumner have done these things, and it need not be thought strange if others should follow their example.

It certainly appears now that even in Michigan, we shall have a Greeley-Democratic-fusion ticket from Governor down to the smallest county offices. In view of this contingency we have urged and shall continue to urge the nomination of only the best of men-only such men as can and do command the esteem and respect of the entire party. Be not deceived Republicans of Michigan, we shall have a fierce and earnest political contest the coming campaign, and it becomes every lover of the good and noble principles of the Republican party, as set forth in the Philadelphia platform, to put his shoulder to the wheel and labor in earnest for the triumph of those principles on the ides of November next. The danger to be feared is from over confidence by the party, especially in our own State. As the idea is that Greeley and his adherents cannot by any possibility succeed. This feeling of security has resulted in defeat many times. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." It is useless to shut our eyes to the inevitable till it is too late to avert the threatened danger. It is now time to take and use all precautionary measures, among which are the selecting of the best men to be our standard hearer, and then a hearty activity that shall insure success to the party and principles, and all will be well.

It is now ten years since the abolition of serfdom in Russia, and so successfully has this progressive movement resulted, les.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

The call for the County Convention, making but one instead of two Conventions, meets with general favor among the rank and file of the Republican party throughout the County. It is, of course, not popular with some office seekers and wire-pullers. This class want more time to lay the wires and pull the ropes, and so manipulate matters as to suit their own liking. This kind of work is more easily done in two Conventions, than if but one many of the better class stay away is held. If there were two, then it is from the primary meetings of the well known that they would not be so full, and hence, easier to control by those who have axes to grind. The rank and file of the party take no stock in these wire-working politicians, and hence, almost universally favor

It has so long been the habit of a few to run Conventions that they begin to think it is their right and privilege to control all things, politically. This class should remember that, although they may so far manipulate a Convention as to secure nominations to their liking, irrespective of the preference of the people, they in no sense own the votes. The day has gone by when a man must be elected to office simply because a few wirepulling politicians have succeeded in foisting him into nomination, knowing at the same time such nomination would be unpopular. The day has dawned when good and true men should be selected for every position of honor and trust within the gift of the people when every person, who expects the support and votes of the party should so conduct himself as to secure the confidence and esteem of but one County Convention, as called by the Committee.

the people. It has been, and shall continue to be one of the principal labors of the RECORD to do all within its power to rid the Republican party of every element of corruption, and thus preserve it in the affections of the people. This can only be done by putting good and true men into nomination for the several offices-men that the people will endorse and approve. We have plenty of persons of this character. Why then take up a single man for any office, who will not be a strength and honor to the ticket? Can any one tell? We presume those only can tell who would like office, and yet know that they do not fill the bill or that the party would approve their nomination. There are a few of this class in all parties, and they invariably weaken, disgrace and ultimately ruin the party, unless the saving element refuse to support them for places of honor and trust: We trust our coming County Convention will fully consider these things, and put no man upon our ticket who will not add strength thereto. And we also, if the State and Congressional delegates and the nominees for County offices, are all made at one Convention, that Convention will be a large one, and the voice of the people—the rank and file of the party will be heard.

CONGRESSIONAL PROSPECTS.

As the time for holding the Congressional District Convention aproaches the several candidates and heir friends become deeply interested in the result. There are an abundance of aspirants to Congressional honors. Each County will undoubtedly present the name of a candidate. Berrien County has three who are talked of, but who will be selected as the choice of the County it is difficult to tell. Or whether an agreement can be had at all, is uncertain. Hon. E. J. Bonine, Ó. W. Coolidge, Esq., of Niles, and Geo. S. Clapp, Esq., of St. Joseph, all have their friends and supporters. We trust, however, the feeling will not wax hot over the aspi-

Cass County will undoubtedly bring forward Hon. C. W. Clisbee as their first choice, a portion of the County is strongly in favor of Mr. Burrows, of Kalamazoo, another portion doubtless favors Dr. Bonine, of Berrien County. On the whole we are inclined to think Cass, as a County, will first favor the nomination of Mr. Clis-

St. Joseph County will favor the re-nomination of Mr. Stoughton, the present incumbent. Not however with any expectation that he will be re-nominated. Who that County may favor as their second choice we are unable to say. The condition of affairs at the Convention will have to when the parties polling them declared

Van Buren County is talking strongy of Dr. Josiah Andrews, and that County will undoubtedly present his name as their first choice. As to their second choice rumor makes various statements. Undoubtedly the rank and file of the Republican party in Van Buren County, so far as we can ascertain, would settle down upon Capt. Burrows, of Kalamazoo, as their next choice to Dr. Andrews.

Kalamazoo County has already determined their preference by primary caucuses, to be in favor of Capt. Burrows instead of Hon. Chas. S. May, as the first choice of that County. Who their second choice is has not yet transpired.

From the present indications, no person named stands so good a chance of receiving the nomination as Mr. Burrows. He has a large and increasing number of supporters in every County named, and is undoubtedy the next choice to their own candilate, of the rank and file of the party in every County in the District. We know this to be so in Berrien County, though what changes may be wrought by shrewd political wire pulling we are unable to say. One thing, however, is certain, if the desire of the party in Berrien County is heeded by her delegation, if the nomination of a candidate from this County is not secured, then their support will go to Mr. Burrows. What, however, may develop itself, to change or or both feet, or are otherwise equally thwart this desire, between now and disabled, $31.25 per month; for those the Convention at Decatur, or at that Convention, it will, need the wisdom of a prophet to predict.

The

Let every Township Committee in the County issue the call for the several caucuses, and give due notice thereof. These primary meetings are of the utmost importance, and every Republican should attend them. At these meetings is the place where State and County officers are made, and every man in the party should feel that his presence is needed at the. caucus. It is too much the case that party, and when it is too late, discover that men have been put in nomination for whom they cannot conscientiously vote. All this occurs through neglect to attend the Township Caucuses. There never was a time since the organization of the Republican party when it was so imperative and necessarv that the best element in the party should control its deliberations. Yet this cannot be done if good and true men stay away from the Township Caucuses. It is then for the perpetuation and purification of the party that we urge a full attendance at all the primary meetings. Let the wise and non-office seekers control the caucuses, and we will soon discover that when a ticket is put into the field every name placed thereon will be a strength and honor to the party.

Again we urge on every Republican Committee throughout the county to make an early call to hold their Township Caucuses. Not that the Caucus= es need to be held earlier than the Saturday before Monday, July 29th, the date of the County Convention, but that the call be made and fully circulated early. Let every caucus keep in view the good of the party. and only appoint such men to the County Convention who will labor faithfully for the best interests of the County by sending good and true men as delegates to the State and Congressional Conventions, and by placing in nomination a County ticket unexceptionable—a ticket that will stand the severest criticism of ninety days of a heated campaign.

ARBITRATION.

The Board of Arbitrators at Geneva have decided against the Indirect Damage Claim presented in the American case. This removes all obstacles to the further progress in the settlement of the pending claims and difficulties between Great Britain and the United States. The action of the Board in settling the principle of Indirect claims is preferable to the adoption of the supplementary article by England and America, as the former really binds the different nations represented in the Board of Arbitrators, England, America, Italy, Switzerland and Brazil, while the latter would certainly think this result will be more have only effected England and this likely to be obtained by a full Con- | country. The principle may then be vention, than by a partial one. And regarded as settled in international law, that indirect damages cannot be allowed. This disposes of Fenian claims, and also of Spanish claims growing out of fillibustering expeditions against Cuba. In short, the United States should be well satisfied with the decision of the arbitrators.

THE COUNTY PRESS ON HON. CHAS. S. MAY'S WITHDRAWAL FROM

After publishing Mr. May's letter of withdrawal from the Congressional contest in Kalamazoo County, after his defeat by his successful rival, the St. Joseph Traveler says:

"We give, above the letter of Mr. May, containing, if true, some excellent reasons for his withdrawing from the congressional race in this district. It has usually been considered an evidence of good taste in a candidate for political honors to take a defeat more philosophically, but Mr. May must of course be the judge in his own case. The Kalamazoo Telegraph says:

"The tone of the address is not such as ve would expect from a man who considered himself fit to represent $130,000\,A$ merican people in the National Congress. Its allegations are extravagant and false. When Mr. May says that the caucus in this town on Saturday was 'carried by Democratic votes through the most shameless fraud and outrage,' he utters that which is an untruth and which he ought to know is false. The vote cast was a large one (a little less than that polled for Grant in 1868, when our town of course contained fewer Republican voters than now) for the friends of each candidate made great efforts to get all his supporters to the polls Nor do we doubt that a few Democratic ballots were cast, as they should not have been at the Republican caucus. But they were few in number and only received that they were now Republicans and would support the next Republican candidate for Congress. Any who would not make this declaration and even profess willingness to substantiate it by oath, were refused. Moreover such votes were cast for Mr. May as well as for Mr. Burrows, as many, we candidly believe, for one as for the

"All this we have reason to believe, and we have no doubt that Mr. May will soon recover from the chagrin consequent upon defeat and join in the campaign as of old. At any rate he will find that there is little honor accruing to those who lend themselves to such extreme attacks upon more fortunate candidates, and attempt to inaugurate a fight that can end only as did that between the Kilkenny

thus: We have repeatedly said, and-we once nore insist, that the great, principle. empodied by Jefferson in the Declaration of American Independence, that Govern-ments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, is sound and just; and that if the slave States, the cotton States, or the Gulf States only, choose to form an independent nation, they have clear and moral right to do so: We have said, and still maintain, that, provided the Cotton States have fully and definitely made up their minds to go by themselves, there is no need of fighting about it; for they have only to exercise reasonable patience, and they will be let off in peace and good will. Whenever it shall be clear that the great body of the Southern people are conclusively alienated from the Union. and anxious to escape from it, we will do our jest to forward their views.

As men and even philosophers, not unfrequently persist in opinions which appear preposterous to the majority of mankind, so our statesman continued to repeat his previous declarations. In the Tribune of Sept. 26, 1862, in a letter to A. McChesney, of Troy, N. Y., Mr. Greeley says:

"But I shall insist that, if it had been proved that the people of the slave States or even of the cotton States alone—had already desired to dissolve the Union, and peacefully, deliberately and authoritatively expressed that wish, we should have assented it. At all events I should."

These extracts show that Greeley might be styled secessionist as well as any Southern fire-eater of the rebellion. If we contrast him with Lincoln during this period, it is Hyperion to a Satyr. And yet when Mr. Lincoln had been nominated, when certain discontented Republicans had held a convention at Cleveland, and nominated Fremont and Cochrane. when the fortunes of the republic were in a most critical condition, and our patriotic president needed all possible aid and assistance, this Tribune secessionist treacherously and secretly stabbed Mr. Lincoln by sending out the following letter as private and confidential:

NEW YORK, Sept. 2, 1864.

Your Excellency:—The undersigned have been requested by a body of influential Unionists to communicate with the loyal Governors, for the purpose of eliciting replies to the following queries: 1. In your judgment is the re-election of Mr. Lincoln a probability? 2. In your judgment, can your own State be carried for Mr. Lincoln? 3. In your judgment, do the interests of the Union party, and so of the country, require the substitution of another candi-

Driggs gives Notice. .

John F. Driggs, former Congress-man from the Saginaw District, in a letter of nearly a column and a half, published in the Defroit Tribune, declares that he shall support. Greeley. That he would take this position had been for months expected by leading Republicans in his own locality. He makes this delaration with an "if." saying he will support Greeley "provided that he shall be supported in good faith by the Democratic party.' Honest John! He is bound that there shall be some possible chance of success before even he will support Horace. He declares in this letter, 'I am not a seeker after office or position." This declaration will have great weight with those who have. known and seen his determination 'to have office even if he destroyed the party in his own district by electing a Democrat to Congress, as he did two

The defection of such a man will cause no great sensation in Michigan. His special pleading as to the corruption of others and his own freedom from it will have about as much force as the declaration of innocence on the part of a convicted murderer against the testimony of a dozen eye-witnesses of the crime.

He assures the public that "his reputation for honesty and integrity are as dear to him as they are to General Grant." It does not seem to have been dear to more than three thousand Republicans who refused to vote for him two years ago, although the regular nominee for Congress. The Republican County Convention.

The call at the head of our columns this week will inform Republicans of the time and place of holding our county Convention for the Campaign. We think the Committee did wisely in deciding to hold only one Convention, and in calling it at an early day, that the ticket may be in the field as early as posible. There is no more prolific source of heart-burning and jealousy among men who should act in harmony, than a long contest over local nominations. Ardent partisans are too apt to be tempted to use means that are not to be justified, in order to secure their ends, and the result is that antagonism and rivalries are created which are hard to reconcile.

Again, the present campaign finds many men with unsettled ideas. The earlier we begin to discuss in earnest the issues of the campaign the better. We never could see the necessity of holding one Convention to select delegates to the State Convention to nominate State officers, and a third one to nominate County officers. They, with the preliminary caucuses, constitute an unnecessary tax upon the time of the active men of the party, and some expense in money. We trust that unusual care will be exercised in the selection of delegates to the County Convention, and that the best men of the party will be ready with counsel to ensure judicious nominations. Much depends upon themmore this year than in any year since 1854. No man of doubtful integrity, no man whose capacity is not well known and approved; ought to be thought of for any office this fall for a single moment.

The selection of delegates to the Congressional Convention will this year be a duty of more than ordinary delicacy. The signs of the times indicate that Kalamazoo County will present their candidate in the person of Capt, J. C. Burrows, and urge his nomination with a good deal of force, and from what we hear, he stands some chance of success. Our own delegates may, however, hold the balance of power in the Convention. If they should, they ought to so use their opportunity as to make it certain that our interests at this end of the District are not overlooked nor neglected for the next two years.-Benton Harbor Palladium.

Some of the "loval" claimants before the Southern Claims Commission must have very elastic consciences. One of them was recently confronted with a letter written by him in 1864, in which he proposed to the rebel government a plan for the bombardment of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, and the destruction of the shipping and navy yard at those points. He went home without his money.

When to Cut Wheat.

The usual practice among farmers is to let wheat stand, before it is cut, until the straw is entirely changed in color from green to yellow, and the grain has become hard and nearly or quite dry. Numerous experiments have been made in this country, but more particuarly in England, to determine at what period of ripeness it is best to cut wheat, having in view the greatest yield of grain and the best quality. It is well known to those who have investigated the subject, that the ripening of the seed consists entirely of chemical processes, which we cannot here attempt to explain, that are of importance to be considered in order to make the most of the crop after it has been grown. The immature grain of wheat, in its early stage, is found to be filled with a milky fluid. which gradually changes in consistence from this milky state to one more firm and solid. These experiments have been instituted to determine with accuracy at what period of this change the grain should be harvested to secure the greatest advantages. The unanimous opinion appears to be, that if grain is cut soon after the straw has turned yellow below the head, while the lower part of the stem is still green and the seed yet remains in a soft and doughy state, this grain will weigh more to the bushel and yield a greater amount from a given space of ground; that more and better flour is made from, and where the straw is to be fed to stock, it is relished better and is more nutritious than if the grain was allowed to stand until it became fully These experiments have been so frequently made and with such uniform results, that we feel unwilling to let the coming harvest pass without again reminding our readers of the fact. A very careful series of experiments of this character were made some years ago in Yorkshire, England, by Mr. John Hannam, and he sums up the loss by shelling, and in the weight and quality of the grain through letting it stand until fully ripe—as equal to $6 per acre—a sum, or even half of it not to be lost sight of by the farmer. —Michigan Farmer.

A Fortune Waiting for Some One. About five years ago a youth, apparently about fifteen or sixteen years of age, called at the publishing house of John E. Potter & Co., Philadelphia, and offered a manuscript story for publication. Mr. Potter, the head of the firm, who happened to be in at the time, smiled at the idea of one so youthful aspiring to appear in literature as the author of a book; but finally, at the urgent request of the boy, consented to keep the manuscript a few days and look it over. When he had done so, he was convinced that the story, while evincing a lack of polished education on the part of the boyish author, possessed considerable merit as an exciting novel, some of the scenes being described with won-derful power; and, after consulting with other members of the house, decided to publish it. When the youth called a few days afterward he told him of his conclusion, and it was agreed that the author should receive a royalty of ten cents a copy on all sold. The story was duly published in book form, under the title of "White Rocks," and since that time 170,000 copies have been sold. But what is singular about it is, that the youthful author has not been seen or heard of since, and there is now due him the Buchanan, July 1, 1872. PRESS DEAD HEADS .- The following from a sensible writer is so terse and truthful, that we transfer it to our columns, hoping that whoever may chance to see it will give it a careful reading, and then, even if for the first time in their lives, stop and meditate:

"The press endures the affliction of dead headism from the pulpit, the barand the stage; from corporations, so-cieties and individuals. The press is expected to yield its interest, it is required to give strength to the weak, eyes to the blind, clothes to the naked, and bread to the hungry; it is asked to cover infirmities, hide weakness, and wink at quaoks, bolster up dull authors, and flatter the vain; it is, in short, to be all things to all men, and if it looks for pay or reward, it is denounced as mean and sordid. There is no great interest under the whole heavens that is expected to give so much to society, without pay or

RASPBERRIES are in market, and retail at a shilling per quart.

TIMOTHY. - The other day Mr. Frank Bolton brought into our office three timothy heads, the longest of which measured 10½ inches.

PAPER COLLARS have to suffer such weather as we are now having. CUSTOMARY harvest wages in this vicinity will be $2.50 per day.

HAIR RESTORER.—A man is in town selling a preparation to restore a heavy growth of hair on bald heads, be they ever so old. If his career here is successful, many of the old bachelors and old maids, who are repining over the Lost Cause, will again be in market and we are getting ready for a long list of marriage notices.

CAUCUSES .- We will gladly insert notices of Township Caucuses if sent to us for publication.

G. G. GRADY'S Circus and Menagerie and Balloon Ascension gave an acceptable and very entertaining exhibition on Monday. As large a crowd attended the exhibition as ever attended anything of the kind in Buchanan. The large tent was literally jammed, both afternoon and evening. We have heard but one voice, relative to the "show," and that voice pronounced Grady's establishment worthy of patronage everywhere. The performance in every respect was creditable, and gave entire satisfactien. The trapeze performance, by Miller Brothers was as fine as can be produced anywhere; and Belmont Brothers, gymnasts, were equal to anything we have ever witnessed. LaRue and his little son attracted great attention. And by no means, least in the grand attractions was Prof. Yager's balloon ascension. An immense crowd gathered on the Park grounds to witness the ascension. It was a grand and daring feat, and was accomplished to the entire satisfaction of the vast multitude. The show as a whole gave good satisfaction, and is highly spoken of by all who attended.

FOURTH OF JULY to-day, and the RECORD office as well as everybody else propose to enjoy the occasion.

They propose to keep everything in their line, on a strictly temperance plan, to accommodate everybody dur-ing the Fourth. Don't fail to call and see Strong & Powers.

"How To Go West."

Forty years ago, Illinois was as far West as most people wished to go, and journeys were made in the legendary "Prairie Schooner," but in these days of Progress and Improvement, the word West, has come to mean Iowa. Nebraska. Kansas, Colorado, California and the Territories, and the traveler reaches almost any point therein by a splendid Line of Railroad.

This Line of Railroad is the BURLING-TON ROUTE, which starts from Chicago by Kansas City, connecting with the Union Pacific, Kansas Pacific, and other Railroads running from those cities. . People going to Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, California; or any point in the Territories, will study their own interests by going "By way of Burlington," for the rates of that Line are always as low as any other, and it is the best Route in the West, therefore, you are more sure of your safety and comfort.

The Burlington Route has admirably answered the question "How to go West?" by the publication of an excellent Pam. phlet, containing a large, truthful map of the Great West, and much interesting and valuable information, which can be obtained, free of charge, by addressing General Passenger Agent B. & M. R. R., Burlington, Towa.

DURING our interview, the American Consul at Bankok, presented the King an elegant assortment of his medicines from Dr. J. C. Ayer, of Lowell, Mass., for the use of the Court. He explained to his majesty their origin from the great chemist and their uses. The Cherry Pectoral for coughs—the Sarsaparilla for eruptive diseases and the Ague Cure for the fevers that are so fatal in this hot country. The dangerous condition of a favorite wife in the palace with one of the disorders these medicines cure, gave him special interest in these products of medical skill; indeed, these medical marvels interested him more in our country than all the other attentions we had shown him. - Letters from a Lady

A workman fell from the third floor of the new furniture building and went to the ground. Being in a state of "how come you so," he escaped all injury .- The Kalamazoo Daily Gazette is informed that G. H. Murdock, Esq., of Berrien Springs, has come out for Greeley and Brown. That "post office affair" must rankle in his bosom yet.—Isaac Schnorf, who lives on the Berrien road, was seriously injured last Wednesday by falling out of a hay mow. We are not informed in regard to the nature of the injuries .- Major Duncan, of the Republican, has returned from his trip to Iowa. He still works in single harness, notwithstanding the rumors. -The basket factory on Front street will be in operation as soon as the machinery arrives.

> THE NILES Republican says: The family of J. B. Crosby, living near New Buffalo; were badly poisoned last week. Four persons were affected by the poison. Mr. Crosby came near dying, and probably would had it not been for prompt and efficient medical aid; as it was all four escaped very narrowly with their lives. What the poison was is still a mystery, the only article from which all ate who were affected with poison, was fresh meat, and a portion of the meat had been used at a previous meal and no harm felt from it.—Niles don't "enthuse" very much this year, and the Fourth promises to be unusually quiet. Our citizens will take it out this year in drinking soda water to the health of the American Eagle. Our people are saving their strength for the centennial occasion four years hence, when we propose to get up a celebration that will throw the big affair down in Philadelphia completely in the shade.—The Superintendents of the Poor meet on Tuesday next. There is not a lazy bone in the gang of hands who work with the precision and system of clock work.—We remember when every boy in town could catch white bass by the dozen from the north pier. Now very few are taken, except with fine tackle from a boat in the river. Henry Stines informs us that they are being taken by landing nets and pound nets in the Calumet river and lake in such quantities as to lower the price of white fish in the Chicago market.—The people of Benton Harbor are preparing to organize a National Bank.

THE BENTON HARBOR Palladium says: Notwithstanding some opposition it has been decided to purchase a fire engine for this village. A good fire company ought to be organized at once.-We understand that the people of Elkhart, having come to the con-clusion, at last, that Michigan people will not build the road from this place to Elkhart without their aid, have set about raising the necessary sum by private subscription. We are glad of it and hope they will succeed. . It surely makes no difference how they raise the money, if they only raise it.

Written for the Berrien County Record. BEYOND. BY M. W. POND.

I dream'd I saw beyond this world, A land all dressed in living green; With a canopy of azure hue Spread out in wide expanse; a sheen To hide the land from mortal view; And all who dwelt within the place Were noble, Godlike, firm and true: While God's own love lit ev'ry face.

I turn'd my eyes from left to right; Celestial mansions met my view; While spotless robes of purest white Were given to a noble tew. .111 those who walk'd the narrow way

Through hardships, trials, pain and care, And liv'd for Jesus ev'ry day; Were giv'n glorious crowns to wear.

I look'd again and wand'ring saw O'er plains of light with glory bright, The triends who'd left me long before: Now happy in the Father's sight. I long'd as oft I had before, To pass away and be at rest: .ini dwell with lov'd ones on the shore

Of the heavinly country, Land of the Waiting beside the river's brink Mother, Brother, and Sister stand

Watching the pilgrims as they pass
From Earth to the gates of the better

Waiting; joyful to catch a glimpse, Of a lov'd one's face, mid the hurrying throng; Who come thro' the dark stream of Death, To sing the new and Heavenly song.

I waking, left them standing there; Upon the river's bank they wait. They'll welcome me to th' oth'r land, Just beyond the pearly gate.

Jesus Among Men. Now, therefore, we are to see in Him-in Jesus-what kind of interest pertains to the lot and state of man, taken as a fallen personality. Wonderful depth of feeling and sacrifice !-how shall we compass it ?in the charities of His burdened life and sorrow and cross. He so conceives the magnitude and tragic pain of souls, or persons, that he sinks all orders and distinctions of men, in one level of suffering pity. And he is especially drawn to abject and low people, because, understanding him quite as well, they are much less withdrawn by hateful and low prejudices. His great, loving mind stoops to its burdens, and He bears the world as we bear the weight of a sorrow. The woman at the well is sure that there must be some great riddle in Him. Little children are gathered to Him and cannot look away from Him. That he gets the blind man's heart, when He leads him out, hand in hand to heal him, nobody need tell us. As little that He gets hold of another's, when, having healed him, He goes tenderly after him, cast out for being healed; even as some teacher of a Sunday School goes after the poor, much persecuted pupil he has lately missed, and leading him back, opens to him some of the deepest matters even of His great Messiahship. Why should not the penitent woman, put in hope and courage by His friendly words, wash His feet with her tears? And would it not be strange if the two sisters of Bethany were, at all, less nearly distracted by their tender: hospitalities, after He has wept the tears of Messiahship with them at their brother's grave? Notice further the significance of His look, that so much impressed the evangelist, when, surrounded by such forlorn multitudes of sick and diseased people, his feeling is described by saying, that "he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted and were scat-tered abroad as sheep having no shepherd." Humble in Hisfigure, scandal-ously unconventional, He is respected and felt everywhere. He touches the quick, so to speak, of all human sentiment and conviction, and makes a contact so pervasive that all incrustations of sin are pierced. Without a single air of popularity, or any bait thrown out to catch applause, he settles straightway into vital connection with men, because of the divine sorrow that is in Him; and though mul-ty of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HARR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic prop-erties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for arcellant and infully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPA-RATION for its intended purposes." What is the most desirable age of life? We put this question to a few friends lately, and received the following replies, but do not consider any of them satisfactory: A banker thought coin-age, the best age; a tail-or, cabb-age; a soldier, pill-age; a toper, vint-age; a vicar, vicar-age; a hungry man, saus-age; an ambitious lady, a carri-age; a brave man, courage; a dram-drinker, drain-age; a joker, badin-age; a musician, bandage; a slave-owner, bond-age; a la-

The Panama Star tells the folowing story of canine sagacity: When the dog wishes to cross a river where alligators abound, he goes up the stream a good way and barks with all ihis might, the alligators go there, and wait for him, getting in to swim across. A soldier who was an inveterable joker and punster, having had his nose, left cheek, and a portion of his chin carried away by a shot, in the battle of Shiloh, was asked by some of his comrades if they could do anything for him. "Boys," said he, speaking as well as he could in his mangled condition, "I should like a drink of water mighty well, if I only had the face to ask for it."

George Washington was once in my rear," replied the General.

I saw a man on Monday night looking intently and seriously at his block of five story stores on Water street, when writhing and roaring in the flames. I knew him and watched him. His gaze was riveted. I pitied him heartily, for I judged that he was on the verge of despair. At last I ventured to approach and break his reverie. "Well, Blake, what are you thinking of?" said I. "Ah-h!" said he, with a smile, "I was thinking that the rats must be catching h-ll!

"Charlie, have you been doing anything to the piano while I was out? Some of the keys won't work at all." "No, ma, I didn't do anything to it; but Tom said there was a mouse in it, so Legot him to hold up the top while I put the cat in to catch it, and she made such an awful row I thought sure the mouse was a goner; but if the old thing won't work, per-

Think of labor thus going on in one monotonous and continuous and eternal cycle—limbs forever on the rack, the fingers forever playing, the eyeballs forever straining, the brow forever sweating, the feet forever plodding, and brain forever throbbing, and shoulders forever drooping, the loins forever aching, and restless minds forever scheming. Think of the beauty it would efface, of the merry heartedness it would extinguish, of the giant strength it would tame, of the resources of nature it would exhaust, of the aspirations it would crush, of the sickness it would breed, of the projects it would wreck, of the groans it would extort, of the lives it would immolate, of the cheerless graves it would permaturely dig. See them toiling and moiling, sweating and fretting, grinding and hewing, weaving and spinning, sowing and gathering, mowing, and reaping and raising, and building, digging and planting, unloading and storing, striv-ing and struggling—in the garden and in the field, in the granary and in the barn, in the factory and in the mill, in the ware-house and in the shop, on the mountain and in the ditch on the roadside and in the wood, in the city and in the country, on the sea and on shore, on the earth in days of bright-
