MY DREAM.

BY H. G.

When the world shall happy be; When elephants and hyenas

I dream of a beautiful time

Shall blossom on every tree,

Shall cease their dreadful roar, When turnip trees shall blossom In the garden forevermore.

I dream of a great republic, Whose people shall all go West, Sow plums and reap tomatoes

Where pig iron and molasses Shall bloom on every hill,
And chickens low in the barnyard,

I'm weary of seeing the cabbage
Handle the rake and hoe;
I'm weary of watching and waiting
For the grasshopper bush to grow.
I long for the time when spinach
Shall cope with bread and milk;
When hens shall lay tomatoes
And horses spin raw silk

Oh, sweet were the vanished hours

When I wandered adown the glen,

And wreathed my brow with tomatoes Or plucked the ripened hen, When the donkey twined up the trellis,

And the cucumber chirped in the grass, And the sweet potato whistled To his mate in the mountain pass.

But gone are the days of childhood, And manhood's dreams are mine, Yet I long for the bygone hours

As I sit neath this turkey vine.

And soothe my aching breast,

Oh, wreathe your blossom about me, and his mother kept house together. I could not, if I were to try, describe him personally, for he was one of those rare persons who carry with them an indescribable charm, a grace of their own, which itself cannot be conveyed in words, and without which a description is nothing.

After he came, the remaining two hours of my journey flew faster than we did, and I felt that I must be dreaming when I looked out and saw that we were actually slackening speed at my station.

"Why, here we are at home," I exclaimed in a voice of dismay and objectingly. "It cannot be possible."
He looked as though he thought it impossible too, but began promptly to get my various packages together, when the unrelenting brakeman shouted, "Dryden!" in at the door. "I'll carry these into the depot for you. I wish I could tell you how I've enjoyed meeting you; our acquaintance is just begun, not ended, I feel sure," he said rapidly, as he moved along the aisle. On the platform stood my sister Nettie and cousin Allegra. They rushed forward with "O, Lucille!" and gave me a rapturous welcome, as we made our way to the sitting-room. My wraps were hastily deposited on a chair, and he only had time to catch my hands in his for a moment, as he said "Good-bye, until we meet again," to touch his hat to the girls, and hurry back to the already moving train. I followed him to the door without speaking, and looked after the vanishing train until there was nothing left of it but a line of black smoke which went sliding off over the tree-tops.

"Who was he?" "What was his name?" "I don't know."

"Don't know? Why didn't you find out?" came in concert from my questioners.

"I never thought to, girls." "Oh, you mortal goose! And don't he know who you are, or what your name is?"

"No, I guess not; at least he did not ask me." "And how in the world are you ever going to meet again, as he said

"It may be, Miss Lucille, that I mistake you entirely; that you will regard me as presumptuous and this as unpardonable. If you do, do not write to me; I will accept silence as my rebuke. And do not fear that I will ever make another effort to make you remember me. But if you think I have done anything wrong, I—"

I had read thus far when I heard the girls coming noisily up the stairs. They should not disturb me I said to myself. I would read my letter through alone, and sit in the ery sweet word in it. It would be time enough to tell them in the morning. So, hastily springing up I flew to the door to turn the key, but just as I laid my hand on the knob the room filled with a vellow light, and looking back I saw the half sheet of my letter curling slowly up on the glowing hearth. The first I still held; the last had fluttered away from my careless hand, and the draught had drawn it into the fire. In an instant I was shaking the unburned fragment free from fire and ashes, and frantically rubbing the charred edges in my fingers. The upper half of the page was browned, but legible, but the rest was gonethe name was burned off.

The door burst open and the girls came bouncing in.

"Oh, girls, my letter, my letter!" "What letter? What is the matter, Lucille? Dear Lucille, are you crazy?" But I could only hold the black pieces in my hands, sitting on the floor in utter despair, and made them no answer. They sat down beside me, and Allegra picked up the envelope and read the postmark. "Is it from him, Lucille?"

"From Mr. A., Lucille?" cried Nettie, seizing the envelope away. "Then why in the world are you making such a fuss? Do let us see it, oh, please do! A whole sheet! Do let us see what his name is!" "I cannot; oh, Nettie, it is burnt!"

"Burnt! Why, here it is in your hand !'' "But the last page—the page with the name on—is gone! It blew into the fire, and now I cannot answer it." Profound silence reigned.

"But surely you remember the "I had not looked at it. I wanted to read it just as he wrote it. I never thought to read the name." They both fell to crying, partly through sympathy, partly through vexation, and partly through thwarted curiosity. "Go away, girls. Don't blame me, and don't pity me. It was your fault, and it was mine. Go away; I want to be alone." That was ten years ago. Nettie is married, and so is Allegra, but I am not. Lately Nettie's husband has moved to Albany, and last winter she wrote for me to visit her. If you will let me know when you are coming, I will meet you at the dewrite, take a carriage and drive to

With a pleasant "goodnight? from each, they left me out in the dark, tired and cold; where I sat stupidly staring after them. The wide hall-door opened, and (while a servant came out for the luggage) I saw him through the frosty lace of the window catch his wife in his arms as little Lu-

Roadside Talk. Two well known and highly respected itizens meet on one of the highways of Livingston County, when reining in their steeds, the following conversation takes place: BAGLEY—How are you Blair? BLAIR—Pretty well, how are you?

BAGLEY-Bully, never weighed so much n my life. What's the news? BLAIR—Have been away from home, and haven't had a chance to read the TRIBUNE for two days. BAGLEY-You still read the DETROIT TRIBUNE then, do you? BLAIR-Oh, I can't get along without it. It is the only paper in this State you can depend on if you want to keep up with the news. BAGLEY-Well, that's so; although it's always treading on my toes. Now there are corns on those toes, and when those corns are rubbed, it goes against "the grain" d'ye see? So I get mad and stop t about once in four weeks, but I generally have to order it again about the third day. Their arrangements are so perfect for getting all the news, that if I don't take it, I generally hear of something in it that compels me to buy it on the street, so I might as well have it left regularly. But I wish they would not be so confoundedly independent politically.

BLATE — Why that is just what suits me. If the TRIBUNE endorses a thing you are pretty certain to find it O. K., excepting of course its position on the Chorpenning Claim, and a thing or two of that kind in which it disagrees with me; but if it believes a thing to be wrong there is ly established before it can assume that position. I never knew but one paper that could, simply on its merits, make as good a show in that respect, and that was a paper of "Mayflower." And when a paper reaches such a point, she needs no one tobaccer! BLAIR—That is just it. No other Detroit paper—I speak now of the TRIBUNE and not of the tobacco-can adopt such a course because none is backed by such a circulation as the TRIBUNE enjoys. BAGLEY-By the way, have you seen their new press? They are now printing on a press that cost them about twenty thousand dollars and which prints from seven to ten thousand sheets per hour. I tell you it is a beauty. It is the only press of the kind in the State, and will print almost as fast as all the other newspaper presses in Detroit put together. And the governor to their engine keeps it along so steadily, too. If there is anything I adore, it is a Governor. BLAIR—(Who was a notorious wag and joker) - Ha! Ha! That's first rate! That was indeed a fine cut! But joking is joking, and that's snuff said on that subject; but their circulation must indeed be large to warrant the purchase of such a machine. but large as it is I see they are planning to increase it the present fall and winter. They will on January 1st enlarge the WEEKLY TRIBUNE by the addition of eight columns, making it one of the largest papers in the west. They are also taking steps to make it more readable and attractive than ever, and all this must add immensely to the circulation of the paper. Well, it deserves success, for it is wonderful the amount of work that has been put on the old TRIBUNE in the last few years. All it has earned has gone right back into the business, its proprietors aiming to make it the model paper of the West, and looking to the future for their remuneration. BAGLEY—Yes, they must be getting a great deal of capital locked up in this concern. I notice that they have just offered two thousand dollars in cash premiums to the most enterprising and successful get-ters up of clubs. They throw the field open to the widest competition and give till April 1st for agents to work in. A business so managed must grow. Well, on the whole I hope it may have good success. I agree with you that it deserves it, and certainly no Michigan family can afford to be without the TRIBUNE. I shall see that there is a club started in our place as soon as I get home. BLAIR-So shall I. You may depend that I feel as much of an interest in the success of the TRIBUNE as you do. Good day. Exeunt omnes.

A Model Lawyer.

'Squire Johnson was a model lawyer, as the following anecdote will show: Jones once rushed into the 'Squire's office in a great passion and said: "That infernal scoundrel of a cobbler, Smith, has sued me for five dollars for a pair of boots."

"Then you owe him five dollars." "To be sure I do, but he's gone and sued me—sued me!" "Then why don't you pay him if you owe him?" "Because he's sued me; when a man does that I'll never pay him till it costs him more than he gets. I want you to make it cost him all you can."

"But it will cost you something "I don't care for that. What do you charge to begin with?" "Ten dollars, and more if there's much extra trouble." "All right! There's the X. Now go ahead." No sooner was his client gone than 'Squire Johnson stepped across to his neighbor Smith and offered to pay the bill on condition that the suit should be withdrawn. The shoemaker gladly accepted—all he wanted was his pay. The lawyer retained the other five for his fee, and as the case was not troublesome he made no demand upon his client. Ten days after Jones came to see how his case was getting on. "All right," said the lawyer; "you won't have any trouble about that. I put it to Smith so strongly that he was glad to withdraw the suit altogether."

"Capital!" cried the exultant Jones, "You have done it brown! You shall have all my business hereafter."

A Little Romance. Mr. W. A. Morrison, patent agent, and editor of the Patent Index of Albion, recently disposed of his business not money enough in Detroit to buy its here and went West, and now from far-off Kansas comes a romantic story concerning him. It appears that BAGLEY—A paper must be very strongsome years ago, in Freeport, Ill., Mr. Morrison met his fate in the shape of a fair damsel, and became engaged, but, in 1865, business being dull, left to seek his fortune in California, promising to keep up a correspondence. Months passed without a word from him, the months grew into a couple of years, and then Mr. Chipman, postmaster at Freeport, suggested the infidelity or death of Morrison, pressed his own suit and won the hand of the maiden. Some time after their marriage he confessed that he had intercepted Morrison's letters, and wanted to be forgiven. His wife, however, declined to shake hands over that "chasm," and conducted herself in a way that led Mr. C. to think that he was not likely to exist in a state of heavenly bliss. So he left her, and in due time she secured a divorce for desertion. Morrison finds her in Kansas City, legally free; they seek a justice, and after seven years' waiting the twain are made one. After a short tour in the West they will return to Monomania.

our midst. Here's material for your novel writer.—Detroit Tribune.

An extraordinary case of monomania is related in a French exchange. A well dressed, educated gentleman recently appeared before a magistrate and gave the following account of him-

"My name is L-m. I am a teacher in a college of the Department of Gers, and have come to pass the vacation in my native town. I come to ask you to be good enough to put me in some asylum until I can overcome a dangerous monomania which possesses me. I am not mad, but am simply seized with an irresistable desire to strangle a child. During the long nights, as I lay sleeplessly in the dormitory of our college, listening to the breathing of the scholars confided to my care, I have felt the most extraordinary sensations. Often have I got up and gone toward the bed of one of the boys with the full intention of strangling him to death, but at the moment when I was about to seize him by the neck I have succeeded, by appealing to my reason and all the resources of my nature, in avoiding the committal of crime. I happily managed to ward off the dreadful impulse until vacation came. But to-day I feel that I can no longer resist. Even in coming here to you. I carefully avoided meeting any child, for had I done so I must have killed it." At this moment a boy of fourteen years happened to be brought before the magistrate to answer some charge against him. At the sight of the boy a mad glare seemed to dart from the eyes of the monomaniac, as he rushed forward to seize him, and was only prevented by the officers of the law. The magistrate immediately sent the unfortunate man to a lunatic asylum.

THE RESULT.

The smoke of the October contest n the three great States of Penn-Sylvania, Ohio and Indiana having deared away, we may look with calmless on the result. It was conceded on all hands that the election in these States would have an important bearing on the Presidential contest; and if they should go Republican the contest would be virtually ended in favor of Grant. On the other hand if they had gone Democratic the battle would be waged with renewed vigor. For it was evident that many Democrats would vote the State and Congressional tickets that in no event could be induced to vote for Greeley. Such being the case, it was thought that Pennsylvania, with the Republican divisions there, might possibly go Democratic, in October, by a small majority, and yet in November give a good round Republican majority for Grant. As it is however, the Greelevites have not the least degree of courage to re-new the contest, and Pennsylvania on the 16th of May, 1801, he graduated will roll up at least 40,000 majority at Union College in 1820. After a for Grant. The Greelevites feel weak | year or two spent in Georgia as a in the knees and tremble from head to foot, never once dreaming that Pennsylvania would go against them by so large a majority in October.

The result in Pennsylvania is magnificent. A Republican majority of some 35,000; the election of a Republican Governor, Judge of the Supreme Court, Auditor General, and twenty-two out of twenty-seven Congressmen. No one anticipated so glorious a work, and so grand a victory in the Old Key-stone State. No wonder the Liberals gave up the contest in Philadelphia, and closed up their head quarters in that city a few days ago.

The result in Ohio has been equally encouraging to the Republican cause, though not so unexpected. The usual Republican majority has been given for the State ticket of some 17,000, and thirteen out of twenty Congressmen have been elected. Thus has Greeleyism been effectually buried in Ohio. The majority for Grant in November will be largely in excess of the October election.

The Indiana result is the only one that the Greeley-Confederate party attempts to draw any consolation from. How they can extract any comfort from Indiana we are unable to comprehend. How stands the case? Let us look at it.

Hendricks is elected Governor by some 600 majority, against a Demo-cratic majority of 2,558 in 1870. All the Republican State ticket, except Governor, is elected by a majority of some 1,500. The Republicans have pleteness with which his powers were gained two Congressmen, defeating Dan Vorhees, the great Democratic champion; electing ten out of thirteen Congressmen. The Legislature has been changed to a Republican one, having in the House ten majority and in the Senate four, being fourteen on joint ballot, which secures the re-election of O. P. Morten, to the United States Senate.

Where then, in reason's name, have the Confederate, Greeley-Democratic party and journals any cause for consolation in the result in Indiana? There are, and the Confederates know it, at least 5,000 voters in Indiana that voted for Hendricks, who will not vote for Greeley. This is a low estimate, and the probabilities are that Grant will carry Indiana by from 10;-000 to 20,000 in November. Moreover, the fraudulent voting and counting by the Confederates have been such that there are strong probabili-ties of Hendricks losing his election if it is contested. We are well satisfied with the result in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Ohio. Yes, more than satisfied, as the Republican triumph is beyond our most sanguine expectations. The certainty of Grant's election is now fixed beyond a peradventure, and the Greelevites know it full well. All that settled down to await the call from all they can or will do in the future is to keep up a show of courage, if it is possible. Four years more of peace and presperity, under Republican rule, is vouchsafed to our people, and Ku Kluxism in the South will now Ku Kluxism in the South will now having attained more than the full disappear, the right of all classes and term of years "allotted" to man.

COLUMBUS, Platte Co., Neb. Oct. 2, 1872. MESSRS. EDITORS RECORD:-Nebraska, lying nearly in the same latitude with the southern portion of the State of Michigan, and the northern portion of the State of Indiana, seems to partake of the same general character of climate so far as relates to the changes of drought, rain and temperature. Nebraska has its years of drought and its seasons of rain. The previous two years have been warm. and dry ones. This season so far, has been a cool, rainy one; it has; been favorable for the growth of spring grain of all kinds. The crop of corn promises to be good in quality, and quantity. The result of so favorable a season as we have been enjoying is daily proven by the large yield of grain that is being threshed by our farmers. I have held conversation with a number of men engaged in threshing. They report thirty (30) to thirty-five (35) bushels of wheat as an average yield; oats are yielding from sixty to eighty bushels per acre. a large amount of rain during the months of April, May and June. I am told that the season of 1869 was similar to the present year. Although the general impression is that Nebraska is subject to severe drougths, yet, from careful enquiry, I am convinced that Nebraska has as much rain during a series of years as the States farther east of us have usually received. With this item in her favor, if, Nebraska is now well supplied with streams of running water, while in her present prairie state and the supply remains constant during the summer months; give the State a growth of young timber and a still larger cultivation of soil, the result will be that our future supply of rain will be equal to all we may require. The future may witness the fact of more rains in these dry regions, with still excessive droughts throughout the States bordering upon the seacoast. My attention and curiosity has been called repeatedly to what I would call a latent capacity of soil, to receive and hold the amount of water occasionally falling during the spring rains. Record

From the Benton Harbor Palladin Sheriffalty.

We hear that the candidate of the Confederates for Sheriff, Mr. Walker, is moving heaven and earth to gain votes. When the choice lies between such a man as Joseph W. Weimer and such a man as Thomas A. Walker, we wonder that any Republican, at least, should hesitate, or allow any more lo-cal preference to influence his vote. Mr. Weimer is the regular nominee of the party. If he were incompetent, or a gambler, or a libertine, or drank to execes, or addicted to other vices, the case would be different. But he is a perfectly unexceptionable mangentleman in his manners, upright in his dealings, of experience and proved integrity and energy in public affairs as well as in private, always himself, and a man of approved fidelity to cvery trust heretofore committed to his cure. It is of the utmost importance that the chief executive office of the county should be in the hands of just such a man, leaving mere politics entirely out of the question. Again, he is a man who would not be likely to carry his nersonal feelings into the discharge of his duty, but would look to the law, and that alone, to guide his conduct.

Woman's Plain Duty.

This is no time for women to say that having no vote they have no voice. When Horace Greeley is advanced as a candidate for the Presidency of the United States, if the women, ridiculed and insulted as they have been by him, were to keep silence, the very stones would cry out.

Neither is it any time for the sex to declare that all this matter of politics. must be left to the judgment and mercy of their husbands.

Horace Greeley has never left the matter of women's right of independ? ence to their individual husbands to decide, but has found it incumbent on him to take up the ground against it in what was one of the most prominent papers of the country. Yea, more: he has appealed to the conservative fears and doubts of men already half won to confess their faith in the equality of the sexes, by predicting domestic discord and social confusion, as the first result of conceding woman's right even to walk in the ordinary avenues of labor, side by side with the other

And women certainly have as just a privilege, and as clear a duty, to use their influence to prevent Horace Greeley from becoming President as ever he had to use his pen to prevent them reach.

Horace Greelev has not for years defended the cause of woman in any particular. Lately he has seldom even given it the dignity of arguing against it. Sneers and contempt and ridicule, directed not only toward woman's general advancement, but aimed at the very names of those who advocated any sentiments of equality and justice toward her sex, have been the only weapons he has recently condescended to use in this warfare against the weak.

The woman who does not, by every means, direct and indirect, seek to overthrow the pretensions of this, her mocker and slanderer, fails in her duty to herself and her sex. For woman's sake as well as for the sake of the nation, Horace Greeley must never be President of the United States.

The Victory in Pennsylvania.

The great victory won by the Re publicans of Pennsylvania on the 8th inst. may be summed up as follows: President of the United States. Governor.

Legislature. Judge of Supreme Court. Majority in the Constitutional Convention. Twenty-two (possibly twenty-three) members of Congress. United States Senator.

And over 30,000 majority on the popular vote. A greater triumph never crowned the efforts of any party.—Pitsburg

If You want a harness that will give good satisfaction you can get it at Rea's.

_____ IMPORTANT TO LOVERS OF GOOD OYSTERS .- H. H. Kinyon is again receiving those splendid Oysters in bulk, and selling them by the pint, quart or gallon. If you want oysters retaining their natural flavor, give him a call. He also dishes them up in any style to suit customers, at reasonable prices.

Record Buchanan

On Thursday of last week we took dinner at the County Poor House, and spent several hours in looking through the building, over the farm, and learning in detail the general management of the institution under its present keeper, H. H. Boon, Esq. The main building is a beautiful structure 62x52 feet, two stories and a basement, and contains in all about sixty rooms. The building is heated by steam, and by means of a force pump every room is supplied with pure water. With the exception of cells in connection with the main building for the insane, and the construction of a wider outside stairway and roofing to the second story, the building, in its different apartments and general arrangement, is everything that could be desired, and is indeed a credit even to Berrien County. The farm consists of 160 acres of land, 120 under cultivation. The soil is a mixture of clay and sand, and produces well. There are now on the farm 500 bushels of wheat and upwards of 1,000 bushels of corn. the farm to be seen anywhere in the County. There are at present 35 inmates in the County House, and have been during the year 125 in-mates. The largest number at any one time was 55. With the exception of one woman with a family of small children, the inmates at present are chiefly aged persons, two idiots, the blind, crippled and diseased persons, and four or five of the insane. Among the class altogether, the keeper has many dispositions to deal with, and must suit his dealings and rules of government to each particular case. One thing very noticeable is the attachment which some of the paupers show towards their present keeper, and with what feelings of grief and sorrow they refer to the loss of their late mistress, Mrs. Boon. We only saw one newspaper while in the institution. The keeper informed us that many of the paupers complained because of no reading matter being furnished them, and recommends that the County supply this demand by providing them books and papers. We were well pleased with the appearance of the rooms, furniture, beds, provisions furnished, and the general care and management of the institution, and think the present keeper eminently qualified for his duties, which are indeed varied, complicated and difficult. We are sorry that Mr. Boon intends to resign his position, and the Board of Superintendents will have a difficult task to find a suitable person to take his place. Mr. Boon recently lost his wife, who died from over-exertion in taking care of the sick and attending to her responsible duties, and without whose aid and assistance Mr. Boon does not wish to assume APPLES.—There is a general complaint about winter apples falling off the trees. The heavy winds have bad has been received, and the road done considerable damage to fruit on willing to undertake the management of the County farm and the County's poor. In the selection of a person for the position, he should be a man not only a good judge of human nature, kind hearted and patient, but a practical and successful farmer; one who would manage the farm in its different branches so that it would be to the best interest of the institution and the County. The place is not a desirable one, but very important and responsible, and needs to be filled by a thorough, practical, common-sense man. We would also say that changes in the keeper of the County House should be avoided, as it has always proven disastrous, unless the person who gives up the charge is unsuitable for the place and not liked by those whose care and keeping are in his tion of the vast quantity of fruit hands. Some person should be found, and who, from his circumstances and disposition, would likely remain in the position for several years. FULL MOON.—We now have full moon and light nights, but so cold that people prefer staying indoors by FIRE.—Already we begin to read of numerous fires occurring in different towns and villages. At this season people should be especially careful and use the utmost diligence to prevent fires. When stoves are removed and put up, the chimney and flues should be examined, and everything fixed so as to be perfectly safe beyond a doubt. It is blind economy to not buy good pipe, good thimbles, and have everything connected with Michigan, Written for the Berrien County Record: HAVE YOU HEARD THE NEWS?

BY * * # Oh, say, have you heard the glorious news
That has come from the States east and west?
Have you noticed the touch of delicious "blues"
That is painting the chicks in the "liberal"

It's only the point of the finger of fate, That moves on the dial of time, And shows the deluded ones ere it's too late, That they've boarded the train that's running behind.

There is now, as ever, a Hand Divine
That is guiding our Ship of State,
And it's rounding the pier with a move sublim
While it tells of the coming fate.

Meeting of the Board of Trustees.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Trustees.
At a regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Buchanan, held Oct. 14th, 1872, there were present: Wm. Pears, President; Messrs. Ross, Day, Osborn and Binns, Trustees.
The minutes of the previous meeting were read by clerk, and on motion approved.
The Committee on Engine House and Calaboose reported that the building was finished, examined by them and that in their opinion the job is a good one and in accordance with the job is a good one and in accordance with specifications. The report, on motion of Trus-tee Osborn, was accepted and the Committee discharged.

On motion of Trustee Osborn, the Board by a full vote instructed the Clerk to draw an order on Village Treasurer for $1,250 in favor of Brown & Vincent for building Calaboose and Engine House.

Engine House.

A motion was made by Trustee Binns that A. C. Bartlett be appointed Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, and that the Board authorize him to organize a fire company at once.

The Marshal was instructed on motion to procure stoves, lamps, chairs, &c., fit up room in proper shape in Engine House for fire company, and also a room for meeting of the Board.

The following accounts were presented and on motion allowed, and clerk instructed to

The County Press.

THE NILES Democrat says: The Alden Fruit Preserving Co.'s establishment in our city, is under the general superintendence of Mr. M. Woolever, who is an active, energetic man, gentlemanly and obliging in all his business relations. This fruit preserving institution is one of vast importance to our place and the country. As a benefit to the place it furnishes profitable employment to from fifty to seventy persons. Most of these are females. As a benefit to the county it furnishes a market for a large porwhich is produced here each year. With a full corps of hands this institution preserves daily from two to two hundred and fifty bushels of apples. The mode of preserving fruit is this: The apples are first pared by paring machines, then sliced in slices from an eighth to a quarter of an inch thick. These slices are placed on wire sieves. The sieves are then placed one above another, in a vat or bin, six or eight feet square extending up to the second story of the building. Heated air is introduced into these vats or bins which is forced up through all the sieves to the p. In this way the fruit is soon dried. As each sieve of fruit becomes dry it is elevated, by self adjusting elevators, to the top of the bin and the dried fruit is taken out and packed in barrels, ready for transportation. The advantage of this mode of drying fruit over the old way is that when cooked or stewed it comes back to its original green apple state. Fruit preserved in this way finds ready sale in all the large cities.—A R. R. Burlington, Iowa. young lady in this place, a few days ago, while engaged in house cleaning, threw some bundles of paper into the stove, and it so happened that among them one containing powder. As a matter of course, fire and powder cannot long agree together, and an explosion took place, causing a general stampede of stove lids, tea-kettles and other cooking utensils. The fire also leaped out on the carpet, burning it in severriage factory lately erected on the old skating park, has commenced operations and will soon be in full blast. THE ST. JOSEPH Traveler says: Charley Stoddard, night clerk at the St. Charles hotel, while attempting to board the mail train coming from the north, fell between two cars and had his right foot crushed most horribly. He was carried to Mr. Kreiger's private residence and Drs. Stratton and Scott, assisted by Dr. White, proceeded to amputate the foot, taking it off at the instep. The operation seems to have been very successfully performed, and the injured man is doing remarkably well. In addition to the injury to his foot he was attend the Grand Republican Mass quite seriously bruised about the head, Meeting at Berrien Springs on next and terribly shocked in every part of and terribly shocked in every part of his body. Charley has made many friends since he came here, who will learn with deep regret of his misfortune, and who will do all in their power to assist him during the long and Saturday. Mrs. Hazlett is undoubter to assist him during the long and painful siege he will have to go through -About ten o'clock on Wednesday evening the vacant building on State street, down near the river, owned and was chosen Presiding Elder of the formerly occupied by Billy Waters as Berrien District for the present year. a saloon; was discovered to be on fire.

insurance that we can learn. The fire is probably the result of some rascal's spite, as it must have been started intentionally by some one.

THE BENTON HARBOR Palladium says: The fruit train has been taken off the road—the Annie Laura has ceased running, and the canning factories are soon to close, we believe. The season is nearly over. So far as we can learn results are satisfactory in the various manufacturing branches here. Peaches have sold low, partly in consequence of the fact that the fruit has not been of as high quality as usual on the average. -The Confederates of this Assembly District have nominated Keyes Haid, of Bainbridge, for Representative. Of course there is no expecta-tion of electing him—if there had been some more competent man would have been selected no doubt.

THE ST. JOSEPH Herald says: Every seat in the Grammar and High School departments of St. Joseph Graded School are full.—The peach crop of 1872, which we estimated early in the season at 800,000 bas-kets, will exceed 1,000,000.—On Wednesday Messrs. Wilcox & Van Riper began the removal of the light house on the south pier at the mouth of the St. Joseph River, and are to move it 450 feet to the end of the pier. This seemingly simple work was far from easy from the great weight of the iron top, glass and fixtures.

THE NILES Republican says: Marshal Chambers on Monday arrested a mulatto, named John Lathrop, who had stolen a horse and harness from near Galesburg, in this State. The horse had been disposed of, but the harness was recovered.—Geo. Fields, an employee of the M. C. Railroad, yesterday got his foot caught in one of the "frogs" of the track, and before he could pull it out an engine backed its tender and crushed his foot so terribly that amputation is feared to be necessary.—Mr. W. W. Teall, a brakeman on the Central, was very seriously injured last Thursday, near the depot. In coupling a car and an engine, he was caught between the two and narrowly escaped being crushed. His hip bone was fractured, and he was otherwise badly bruised. Dr. Bonine was called to his aid, and at last accounts he was in a fair way to recover.

NEW AND USEFUL PATENT

That has given such Universal Satisfaction. Thousands that have Used them since their introduction in April, 1870.

Having, in every instance, produced a perfect curo in the worse cases of sore neck. The medicinal and cooling, properties, with the advantage of always having a perfect, smooth surface, is a guarantee against chaffing, and will in all cases cuto the most firitated sore necks, as hundreds will restify that have given them a trial. All we ask of the most scrupulous is to give our Zinc Collar Pad, a fair trial, as we feel confident in warranting them to do all we claim, and give satisfaction.

WHAT WE CLAIM:

First. Is the chemical action of the Zinc, with the acid and satine constituents of moist sores, resulting in an astringent, acting speedily on the edges of the wound, and by its smooth surface and cooling tendency, quickly produces a cure.

Second. It prevents, in all cases, the hame straps coming in contact with the neck, or the hames from contracting the top of the collar, and thereby pinching the cords of the neck, and is the only Pad made that will not wear the hair on the neck.

Thus. With the use of them you can work a rawnecked horse every day, and cure the worst cases in from six to ten days, as has been done in many cases during the last season.

six to ten days, as has been done in many cases during the last season.

Fourt: It is the most durable Pad ever made.

We deem it unnecessary to add other advantages, or even to add the numerous testimonials we have received during the short use of our Zinc Pad, and only ask that it may have a fair trial, feeling full confidence in the success of the goods.

The Zinc Pad must be protected from the Sun by being covered over the top with either cloth or leather, in extreme hot days, as it will, in such days, become healed in the sun, but will always KEEF GOOL IN THE SHADE. GE.

For now to birdle poice calls out
To bid ind welcome home.
No little arms stretch out to me. No blue eyes, dencing bright, Are pecping from the cottage door, When I come home at night.

And yet, it comforts me to think That when I'm coiled away From scenes below, to those of bright And everlasting day,

A little anget at the cute.

With eyes divinely blue,

Will call with birdle voice, "Papa,

I's leetla' out for you."

A Joyful Thing. It is a sweet and joyful thing; to be a sharer with Christ in anything. All enjoyments wherein he is not are bitter to the soul that loves him, and all sufferings with him are sweet. The worst things of Christ are more truly delightful than the best things of the world; his afflictions are sweeter than their pleasures, his approach more rich as Moses accounted them. Love delights in likeness and communion, not only in things otherwise pleasant, but in the hardest and harshest things, which have not anything in them desirable but only that likeness. So that this thought is very sweet to a heart possessed with this love. What does the world by its hatred, and per-so ention, and revilings for the sake of Christ, but make me more like him, give me a greater share with him in that which he did so willingly undergo for me? "When he was sought for to be made a king," as St. Bernard remarks, "he escaped; but when he was brought to the cross, he freely yielded himself." And shall I shrink and keep back from what he calls me to suffer for his sake? Yea, even all my other troubles and suffer-ings I will desire to have stamped thus with this conformity to the sufferings of Christ, in the humble, obedient cheerful endurance of them, and the giving up my will to my Father's.--Archbishop Leighton.

Higher. A noble motto for a young man— Higher. Aim high—push high—leap high. If you cannot reach the stars, you can have the satisfaction of drawing near to them. He who stands on an elevated position is sure to catch the first rays of the glorious sun. So he who is always stepping up and reaching up will first catch the favors and blessings of heaven as they descend. There is no object on which we gaze that gives us so much pleasure as the upward and continuing progress in moral culture and robust virtue of enterprising young men. When the chains of sloth, are broken, the vision is clear, and the heart buoyant, and the affections and purposes strong, higher and still higher objects will be gained—nobler purposes be achieved, and a sublime elevation attained, that will thrill with joy future generations as they march on in the same glorious path.

The Power of Sympathy. There is no class of sympathy which is not humanized and liberalized, in feelings and sentiments, by frequent and friendly intercourse. We are born to sympathize for each other in pleasure as well as in grief. The social feelings are improved where amusements are participated in, in common with our fellow-men; the mind warms and expands, and becomes sensible to pleasures unknown to him whose enjoyments are all but solitary—who confines all his interest and happiness and concern to the narrow circle of his own selfishness. The soul becomes liberalized and enlightened when mingling in the society of others, and par-ticularly when sharing in their pleasures. While, on the contrary, in solitude the man becomes misanthropic and selfish, contracted in his notions, and filled with narrow prejudices.

He who knows nothing of pillow prayers, is ignorant of one of the sweet-est modes of prayer practical to man on earth. In heaven we may have no need of pillows, as it is said we are to have none for the sun: Nor shall we there have any need of the night, in which to rest us; but here there is a night, and we need it. The day with its engrossments being gone, it is a most favorable time for gathering in of our thoughts upon ourselves—our sins, fears, and hopes—and turning of sins, fears, and hopes—and turning of them up toward heaven. This is what the Psalmist is apparently referring to in his words, "When I remember Thee upon my bed, and meditate upon Thee in the night-watches." That he uttered many a pillow prayer is a thousand fold more than probable. "I have remembered Thy name, O Lord, in the night." "I prevented the dawning of the morning and cried." Those cries were prayers before the dawn of day:

In the Night-Watches.

Simplicity.

Krummacher illustrates, simplicity by the following beautiful fable: "The angel who takes care of the flowers, and sprinkles dew upon them in the still night, that makes them open in the morning, with new beauty; once upon a time, adorned the loyeliest of flowers with simple moss. Sweety it stood there in its modest attire—

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical; temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

Consumption, Rheumatism; Catarrh. Bronchitis, Dyspensia, &c. The reputation Dr. Prios has acquired by candid, honest dealing, and years of successful practice has induced unprincipled persons to copy and imitate him as far as they dare, in order to deceive. Let, it be remembered that no person in the vest is treating Obronic Diseases similar to Dr. Price—that his practice is not one of experiments, but founded on the laws of Nature with years of experience and evidence to sustain it. That it does not lear down to build up—nake sick to make well—no harsh treatment, no trifling, no fattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of these diseases exclusively; no concurragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to concerery body, but do claim to reason, and common sonse. We invite the sick; no matter what their allment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. affliction has caused an extremely un-pleasant mistake of which her intant child is the victim. She took this babe to church the other day to have him baptized. While she was waiting in the vestibule she thought she would keep him quiet by feeding him from a bottle of milk. While the child was still taking his sustenance the mother was summoned to the church with the announcement that the minister was ready. In her agithe minister was ready. In her agistation she drew the bottle from the babe's mouth hurriedly, when the gum nozzle came off, and a pint of milk was spilt upon the child shew clothes.

When the clergyman took, the child

In a small town on the Schuykill. River there is a church in which the singing had run down. It had been led many years by one of the deacons, whose voice and musical powers had been gradually failing. One evening the clergyman gave out the hymn, which was in an odd measure, rather harder than usual, and the deacon led off. (Upon its conclusion the minister said : "Brother B——— will please re-
