Poetry. FOUND DEAD, BY MRS. FRANCES D. GAGE.

I am weary, worn and old, On the payement hard and bare, Shivering in the west wind cold, Night frost silvering my hair.

O, rumseller! let me in. Let me sit beside your fire, Give me just one sip of gin,

I will nothing more desire—
See, my garments are so thin.
O, rumseller! let me in. Once you used to open wide, With a welcoming hand your door, Greeting me with warmth and pride;

Good rumseller let me in. I had money once, and home, Wife, and pretty babies three; They are gone; what has become Of them? I really cannot see.

For old time's sake, I implore.

O, rumseller! let me in. Some say I've broke her heart, (Me ! she was my joy of joys!) That I did not do my part,

That the poor house holds my boys.

O, rumseller! let me in. I have given you all my wealth, Strength and character, all, all— Wife, children, home and health;

I am tottering—I SHALL FALL!
O, rumseller! let me in. So the old man wailed and plead, So he shivered in despair; In the morn they found him dead On the pavement, cold and bare. No rumseller took him in.

Story.

MY CHOICE

BY LOTTIE BROWN. We were very poor, that autumn. There had been a drouth, which had destroyed the corn, potatoes and fruits, and a little later a fire had sweps over the prairie, taking a portion of our farm in its passage, and burning acres on acres of wheat.

For the first time in my life I saw my father sit down with a look of despair creeping over his face. A few years before he had been a well-to-do merchant in an eastern city, and in an unlucky hour had sunk every dollar he had in the world. He was quite past middle age, had two grown up daughters and two small ones, and an invalid wife, and yet his face never lost its cheerfulness for a moment, and he went out with the heart of a young, strong man, to make us a home in a new country.

We had been very happy, and prosperous beyond our expectations, until this unlucky year; but now every thing seemed to have turned against

Bertie and I had long talks about our troubles, and she-dear, brave little soul-suggested that she had better go away to Chicago, and get work as a teacher, a seamstress or a milliner, and thus relieve us of the burden of caring for her, and perhaps add a little toward our general support.

"You must not talk so, Bertie," I said. "I am the oldest, and must be the one to leave home, if either are compelled to do so. You can care for mother better than I, therefore you should be the one to remain at home."

We were trying to settle this weighty question, when there came a letter to us, from New York, from my father's only sister, a rich and childless widow. "It is cruel to keep the girls so long from society," she said. "I beg you to send Laura on at once and let her spend the winter. You cannot say no, for I enclose a check sufficient to you might be lonely. me. I shall expect her in one month from to-day." Aunt Clara's will was law in our family, and had it not been we should have eagerly responded to this invitation, which came as a perfect godsend. In due time my stylish suit of dark brown poplin was complete, my brown velvet hat home from the milliners, my brown kids lying with my handkerchiefs and other traveling necessities at the bottom of my reticule. Then the good-byes were said and I started. When I was safely in Aunt Clara's luxurious house I felt a little sorrowful for the poor little western home, and made up my mind to do all in my power to help them, and as a beginning sent back every cent from my Clara's generosity, this was no mean

Aunt Clara's was such a beautiful home. I had always thought so in our best days, but now, coming from our small, low rooms, with their dingy furniture, the house seemed like a bit of Paradise. I had an airy chamber fit for a princess, with every little want supplied, and in the first hours of my arrival I peeped into the bureau drawers and found them filled mixed up with it. When I entered the with rolls of silk, linen and laces, ready to be fitted to my poor self. trying on and taking off garments,

I was captivated, and like all Cupid's captives there came a time when life was a burden unless the adored object was within sight, and every tender word, and every pressure of the hand were treasured and dreamed over as the best things I had known in all my life. I realized to the fullest extent the importance of Aunt Clara's wishes. We were very poor, and it was my duty to marry advantageously, but I could not marry without love. Well, T need not.

Harry said many sweet and signifi-cant things, and he was rich, or, at least, the world said so-and I was as fond of him as I could ever hope to be of any one. One night, at a reception, he said softly, as he handed me into the carriage beside Aunt Clara: "To-morrow night will you be at

"Yes, I shall be quite at liberty."
"May I claim the entire evening?" "If you choose." I rode home in an ecstatic state, bordering on lunacy, and did not sleep a wink all night. At noon that day I began my toilet, and tried on all my dresses before I could find one to suit, and nearly worried myself into a fever before I arranged my hair to my satisfaction. Then, when evening fairly came the moments dragged themselves into hours, and I suffered all the torture of mind that poor human nature could endure. At length there came a clear aristocratic ring) and the servant tripped up stairs and looked in. "Mrs. Apthorpe!" "Aunt Clara is out," I said, "but I will go down." So I straightened my crimps and sailed into the drawing room. A very tall, broad shouldered gentleman was leaning on the mantel, and as I closed the door he turned.

Dear me! It was only Lee St. John! said, smothering my disappointment. "Oh, it is of no importance. I only came for a friendly chat."

Of course I could do nothing but ask him to remain, and as the hours passed and Harry did not come, I was | bed, leaving just enough means for a | head of his regiment till the war was not sorry for giving St. John the invitation. He was very learned and eloquent, and I forgot my exquisite Harry in listening to his rich voice, there was, however, amongst his few and the grand flow of words that, like draughts of clear water, refreshed my tired, thirsty spirit. When he went out he met Aunt Clara just descending from her car-riage, and she came in and put her ject, Colonel Allen McDonnell, in rechand upon my arm.

"Why, Auntie!" "Yes, dear, and with that shocking old Miss La Fouche." She did not say a word concerning St. John that night, but when we went next evening to Mrs. L—'s party, she walked me right past Harry Vail and sat me in a corner and left me. "I am going for St. John, Laura," she said, and I sat feeling very much like a culprit about to receive sentence. She did not order me to sit still, so when she was quite out of sight I slipped behind the curtains of a window close at hand. As I did so a party of gentlemen came near and paused. "I came as near committing myself as I ever did in my life," said one, "and, by Jove, Alf! she isn't worth a dollar. Mrs. Apthorpe is just doing her best for her, and I suppose she thinks me rich. Laura Gregor is prettraveling expenses, and, owing to aunt | ty, that's a fact, but somehow she don't reach my heart." "Miss La Fouche does."

"You're right. La Fouche is worth million.' I could not believe my own ears, but my eyes convinced me that Harry Vail was not the man I thought him. I never clearly knew how the evening passed. I remember, however, that i was a wretched one, and that Lee St. carriage Lee said, almost like an echo of the words I had so gladly heard two nights before:

I answered: "Yes, in the morning;" and then I rode home with something like a presentiment of evil bearing heavily on A telegram lay on my table, a mes-

It was an odd declaration, and although I was unprepared, and had never thought of such a thing, yet I held out my hands, crying like a great baby, and said: "Oh, Lee! I am so happy."

It was Aunt Clara who said this from the open door: "It's all right, I assure you," said Lee. "Laura is my own. I am privi-

"Will you go home now, dear?" said that artful lady, smiling blandly on the execution of her pet idea. "Of course. I must go home to mamma." "Of course," said Lee, "and I shall

A History Ended.

That fine, old-time romance called 'Thaddeus of Warsaw' must still be fresh enough in many a mind for suggestions of comparison with a matter of personal fact lately reported in the Bulletin, of San Francisco. The illustrious young exile from Warsaw, it may be remembered, endured a term of pressing poverty in obscure lodgings in London, during which he was forced to pawn many cherished memorials of his departed father and mother, retaining only one particular memento at last of the illustriaus dead. He also assumed a false name to escape humiliating recognitions, and might have perished unknown, in prison for debt, finally, had not the generous "Mary Beaumont" and her gallant cousin rescued him so delicately from the bailiff. In San Francisco, not long since, there arrived, from some unknown port, a young man of strikingly fine countenance, but much-worn attire, who sought a mean boarding-house. and, in English foreignly accented, yet gentle peal in the hall (Harry's gave some common name. Romance of the War. Our neighboring city of Tiffin is just now deeply interested in the se quel of a war episode, which shows how romance sometimes creeps into the events of life. Early in the war Tiffin and vicinity had a sort of itinerant Albright preacher named Downcy. Upon the outbreak of the war Downey entered the service as Captain in one of the Seneca regiments. and when the government decided upon employing negro troops, he became Colonel of a colored regiment. During the campaign in Tennessee, his regiment chanced to be encamped upon the estate of Colonel Washington, near Nashville. The regiment seems not to have been under the best discipline; and its black desperadoes were disposed to give free rein to their people of the house he communicated | brutal instincts. They seized Colonel Washington and threatened him with instant death, and also set about de-Colonel Downey, by great exertions, and at the imminent risk of his own life, succeeded in rescuing Colonel Washington from death, and in saving the mansion and other property from destruction. Colonel Washington felt profoundly grateful at the time for Colonel Downey's brave exertions in his behalf, and promised never to forget them. There the matter rested, and the wild scenes with which Downey was surrounded soon drove it out Finally he was found dead in his of his mind. He remained at the settled down into a quiet domestic life. Not long ago he died, leaving his family in straightened circumstances. Mrs. Downy was driven to her needle for support. She and her children lived in their humble way, with little thought that a great change was soon to be wrought in their condition. Recently Col. Washington died, when it was found that he had willed his property, consisting in $10,000 in bonds and greenbacks, and three hundred acres of improved land situated a mile and a half from Nashville-the whole valued at $100,000 at least-to the heirs of Col. Downey. Israel J. Downey, a son of the deceased Colonel, has just returned from Nashville,

Mother Eve's Servant-Girl.

"Can any one tell why, when Eve was manufactured from one of Adam's ribs, a hired girl wasn't made at the same time to wait on her?"

Because Adam never came whining to Eve with ragged stockings to be darned, a collar-string to be sewed on, or glove to be mended "right away, quick, now!" Because he never read the newspaper until the sun goes down behind the palm trees, and then, stretching himself, yawned out, "Ain't supper most ready, my dear?" Not he. He made the fire and hung over the tea-kettle himself we'll venture, and pulled the radishes, peeled the bananas, and did everything else that he ought to. He milked the cow, fed the chickens, and looked after the pigs himself. He never brought home half a dozen friends to dinner, when Eve hadn't any fresh pomegranates, and the mango season was over. He never stayed out until eleven o'clock to a "ward meeting," hurrahing for an out-and-out candidate, and then scolded because poor dear Eve was sitting up and crying inside the gates. He never played billiards, nor drove fast horses, nor choked Eve with cigar smoke. He never loafed around corner groceries, while solitary Eve was rocking little Cain's cradle at home. In short, he didn't think she was specially created for the purpose of waiting on him, and wasn't under the impression that it disgraced a man to lighten his wife's cares a little. That's the reason that Eve did not need a hired girl, and we wish it was the reason that none of her fair descendants did.

What Better Can You Offer.

When you cast a slur on religion, stop and think whether you have anything better to offer the poor wayfarer to guide him through this life in the ways of peace and respectability. Of all the thousands who are doing their pest to tear down Christianity, who offers to build up a better and a stronger temple than that they would destroy? Were you in a house with a family of children, would 'you, while a fierce storm raged outside, tear its shelter from over their heads, because it was not perfect in architecture, if you had no other house of safety into which to conduct your family? As a rule it is not well to change faith in middle or mature life which has carried a soul thus far in safety through vicissitude and temptation. To love God, be charitable and tolerant to others' opinions and actions, rather guarding our own house than our neighbor's, is the chief thing-leaving quarrels and disputes over creeds, and dogmas to die out in the activity of Remedy for Catarrh. I had this distressing disease eight years or more. It made such a stench that my family could hardly bear me in their presence. One day I decided to try to cure myself. This is the experiment and the result: I took a vial that would hold a gill and filled it nearly full of water; added to it a piece of alum the size of a common chestnut or hickory nut; to this I added 15 or 20 drops of Baker's Pain Panacea, making it as strong as it could be borne. It would be as well to pulverize the alum before putting it in the vial. After the alum is dissolved turn out into the hand a teaspoonful or so of the mixture and shuff it up the nose two or three times. Get it well up the nose. If it runs into the throat it does no harm; spit it out. Repeat this operation two or three times a day. This simple remedy cured me in about eight weeks. It is some six or eight years since I tried this, but I am all right now. It was worth more to me than the gold of India or Peru.—Cor. Moore's Ru-

No sir, there isn't a time for all things. No law, human or divine, ever set apart a time for swearing. A profane expression is a sin and an abomination, utter it when and where you will. As for ladies, yes, I'll grant you it is well to be and act our best in their presence. We can not be too true, too pure, too honorable, if we want to stand upright before a good woman or a good girl—yes, while I am about it, I'll add, or before a little mite of a girl baby, with her soul fresh from heaven. I know only of one other before whom we ought to be just as particular, if not more so. When he is not around, my boys, you can safely do just about as you please. But when you're in his presence—and, to my thinking we're all there, or thereabouts pretty much all the timehave a care! THE SITUATION. Since the October elections Greeleyism, or rather, to express it as correctly as possible, Democratic-Greeley-Liberalism has become greatly demoralized. The unmistakable direction of the great "tidal wave" has been demonstrated beyond a doubt. It is swallowing up Greeley and his adherents with such velocity as to give them no hope. The more sagacious now admit the fact:

There are now in the Electoral College 366 votes, requiring 184 for a choice. Below we give the result now generally conceded. It will be seen that the estimate gives Grant 56 electeral votes more than a majority. Even if New York, Connecticut, and North Carolina should be carried by the Democracy, the Republicans would still have a majority. It is much more probable that Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jorsey and West Virginia will be carried by the Republicans meking a grand total of 301 votes, and leaving the Greeley confederacy the votes of Delaware, Georgia, Ken-tucky, Maryland, Tennessee and Virginia. Of the latter states even Delaware and Virginia are now claimed by enthusiastic Republicans.

The following table shows now the probable result of the November elec-

Cowardly and Mean. .

The last issue of the Democrat contains an article aimed at Levi Sparks,

From the Niles Republican.

Esq., Republican nominee for State Senator in this county, that is unfair, cowardly and mean. In the entire catalogue of offenses, there is nothing more cowardly mean than insinuations. The Democrat insinuates that Mr. Sparks is in favor of building a bridge across the river at some imaginary point between Niles and Buchanan, while in point of fact no such thing is in contemplation by any body, and no such idea exists in the mind of anyone except the writer of the article in question, and which was evidently cooked up for the sole and express purpose of damaging Mr. Sparks in the minds of tax-payers in Niles and Buchanan townships. Mr. Sparks is not in favor of any such imaginary scheme, and the writer of the article in question, had no authority or right to make any such accusation. The further charge that Mr. Sparks wanted the north-(east) end of Bertrand township attached to Buchanan, is equally absurd and groundless. Neither Mr. S., nor any one else, ever thought of such a thing. The writer also says that Mr. Sparks, if elected would favor the division of Niles township. Now we know this to be false. Mr. S. did, at one time favor a change in the boundaries. This he had a perfect right to do as a private citizen, but when elected to the Senate—of which there is no doubt-he will leave all such matters to the full, free, untrammeled and unmistakable voice of the people. He will do nothing whatever to revive the controversy, and if the question is ever again raised it will be by others than himself, and to secure his vote must be undeniably the voice of the people concerned, without aid or comfort from him in any way, shape

The death of Arthur Miller was a sad event to us all, as sad as it was sudden, for very few knew he was ailing. Mr. Miller had been with us only a few years, but in this short time his genial disposition and neighborly character, and urbanity of manners had won for him a host of friends. He was buried with masonic honors, and Rev. Mr. Reiter of Berrien Springs preached the funeral sermon. It was particuarly appropriate that Mr. Reiter should officiate on this occasion, as it is scarcely three years since he united Mr. Miller and Mrs. Lucinda Pierce in marriage. The service was very impressive and all deeply sympathize.

Greeley the Enemy of Peace. in Berrien County the Confederates were using every effort to defeat Levi Sparks, and that they had given up all hopes of the balance of the ticket. If any additional evidence was needed to illustrate the vacillating character of Horace Greeley he has furnished it in his speech-making tour. He has gone out of his way to belie his Democratic ring. We know our friend of the Niles, Democrat, was greatly exercised over our giving publicity to the matter. Even the Democrat's own admission would clearly demonstrate own record and misrepresent the existing state of affairs. He has used language which belongs only to the demagogue, and we believe the future will show that he has done more to re-vive the hatred of the South for the people of the North than anything that has been said or done since the close of the war. In 1861 his words had a controlling influence over the people of the South. They regarded him as the mouth-piece of Northern sentiment, and found out their mistake too late to correct it. Now they regard him as the leader of a great party, and his words are as potent as they were in 1861. If they, follow his teachings now they may be as sadly mistaken as they were then. Mr. Greeley asks the people of the South to believe that he has always been their friend. He federates will be ready to trade every-thing for the State Senator. They will offer to vote for Grant if you will vote for Edwards. The offer will be too thin to catch Republican votes, as was their friend before the war, but they didn't know it. He was their friend during the war, but they were ignorant of the fact. He has been their devoted friend since its close, every Republican voter knows full and they have just found it out. In friendship for the law-abiding citizens of the south that through their, representatives in Congress they have extended amnesty to all but 200 out of 11,000,000 who peopled the States lately in rebellion; that confiscated property has been restored; that large appropriations have been made for the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the South; that everything has been done that could be, without surrendering the honor and integrity of the nation, to bring about true reconciliation between the two sections of the Republic. Yet Mr. Greeley ignores all this, and tells the people of the South that the Republican party has stood in the way, and still stands in the way, of their constitutional rights. Like a crafty demagogue, he has picked out a few faults in the party, and holds them up as a fair specimen of the whole. As well might he condemn the granite shaft that towers from Bunker Hill, because some hand has chipped its base, as to condemn the Republican party because, through a long series of years, it has developed some unworthy characters. We have had too many men like Greeley himself to carry along to expect to be without faults. We shall have less in the future now that these political barnacles have fallen off.

Mr. Thompson's Correspondence with Greeley.

During the latter part of 1864 a plot was discovered having for its purpose the burning of Northern cities and the release of rebel prisoners. Several attempts were made to fire New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, and other large cities. A large number of steamers were destroyed by fire on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers. To trace the guilty parties and expose the conspiracy was a difficult matter. It was generally charged home on the Southern confederacy, but no positive proof could be secured to convince the public mind that rebel hate could sanction so inhuman a scheme. But we have the truth at last. We now know who the guilty parties were, how well laid the plot was, how devilish the spirit that arranged its details, the headquarters of its agents, and, for the first time, know what a fearful danger we escaped, through the vigilance of our Government. The report of Jacob Thompson to the Confederate Secretary of War gives, a clear insight into the nature of this diabolical plot, and connects the Confederacy, officially with the most inhuman scheme to plunder and destroy of modern times. There is one feature of this report which will startle the American people, and give them a better idea of the dangerous 'eccentricities' of Horace Greeley. The feature we refer to is the correspondence which was being carried on. between the head devil of destruction, Jacob Thompson, and the present Democratic candidate for the presidency, Horace Greeley. Thompson admits this correspondence. It matters little whether Greeley knew the character of the plot on foot or not. The very fact that he could be duped into believing the men engaged in it to be honest men, and actually meet them in secret council to prefer a plan whereby the Government would consent to a dishonorable peace, shows the natural weakness of his character, and proves how easily he could be made, the victim of designing scoundrels. Here we have the spectacle of a band, of cutthroats, with headquarters in Ganada, deliberately planning the destruction of our cities, not according to the rules of civilized warfare, but according to the manner of the savage, creeping under cover of night or the garb of friend-ship to murder and destroy, and at the same time in secret correspondence with Horace Greeley, doing to the weak old man what they are now doing, patting him on the back, calling, him honest, urging him to betray the Government into their hands under the plea that the time has come for brothers to "clasp hands over the bloody, chasm." And he, just as he did in 1864, sheds tears over their repentance, and, embracing these very conspirators, says to a loyal nation, "The time has come for these erring brothers to rule the Republic." Two or three devotees to the form of the creeks and rivers, and lumber lorn hope," and pretended admirers of men, have improved the opportunity the Chappaqua Philosopher, became somewhat excited in their futile efforts to meet the overwhelming arguments of a Grant Republican this morning of a Grant Republican this morning on Washington street, finally, as if unable to defend Greeley, they "pitched into" Grant, repeating the stereotyped Copperhead slander that "Gen. Grant was drunk at Shiloh." For the special benefit of our friend who repeated this charge we will state that we have in our possession a sworn statement from a gentleman whose integrity cannot be questioned, who, at the time of "Shiloh" was a member of Grant's staff, and who was with the General during the entire battle, and who states in most positive terms that candidate on the ticket. Our ticket too thin to catch Republican votes, as is made up of the very best men in the country—men who are true to the best interests of the country—men who are sober and industrious, of strict integrity, and men who will not disgrace any position of honor and trust to who will not disgrace any position of honor and trust to who is the people of the P

"Young Man, Go West." e-opener for our. Eastern Friends; From the Bullington Hawk-Bye. The Burlington & Mo., River R

Thursday

Michigan,

R. Co., have recently sent forward from their Land office in this city, for exhibition at various Eastern Fairs, upwards:of thirty:large packages, containing more than six hundred different lots of specimens of the agricultural products of the States of Town and to the first story, and is being pushed Nebraska, embracing grains fruits along; the object being to get it enand vegetables in variety, contributed for the purpose by the farmers.

It is but simple. justice to remark that probably no other organization in the West has done so much as this B. & M. R. R. Co. to disseminate throughout the length and breadth of the land, full and reliable information concerning this vast region, presenting as it does, unrivalled attractions, not only on the score of its agricultural resources, but for the investment of capital and the energies and abilities of business men of the first order.

They have collected, compiled and furnished for publication much of the best and most reliable data which has appeared, and is now appearing in our public prints; and are also issuing immense quantities of their own unique publications, in cicular and pamphlet form, many of them beautifully and truthfully illustrated, -not only through the mails, to all who call for them, free, but by, efficient agents. in all parts of this country, no less than in England and on the continent, where an immense work of like character is being prosecuted. To attempt to make anything like a complete statement of the articles sent East in the collections above referred to, would be useless, -but if our readers will imagine every kind of grain, fruit and vegetable products, with every variety of each, and the richest and most luscious specimens of each, they may possibly commence to begin to get an idea of the tempting array of good things which is set before our Eastern friends, few of whom, not-withstanding they may have read most diligently, have any real comprehension of the richness of our soil or the extent, variety and luxuriant growth of many of the articles so familiar to the actual dwellers in the land. The Railroad Company doubtless have an eye to business in this matter, for they bave millions of acres of rich prairie lands for sale along the line of their road, which extends fron this city across, the entire State of Iowa. and through that portion of Nebraska, attractive above all others, which lavs south of the Platte river and is watered by the Big Blue and other streams -to Fort Kearney, where it crosses the Platte and forms a junction with the Union Pacific R. R.; making, in connection with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R. on the east, the now famous and favorite "Burlington Route," an important link in the most | lirect line agross the continent. They are selling immense quantities of these lands to actual settlers, at low prices, on ten years' credit, at six per cent, interest (terms so liberal that none can ask them to be made easier), and while their own interests could in no way be more surely promoted than by the exhibitions they are making of the products of the soil, they could not have done a better thing for the interests of the whole West, or which shall more effectually afford to the mul-titude of honest and earnest enquirers at the East, the practical information they need, than by this generous display, in view of which they are justly entitled to recognition as public benefactors, both at the East and West, and as such we make note of this as one of their many contributions "for the public good." 'In this case, as in many others there is nothing like Scripture to tell the plain story. Solomon says: "The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself."

A "sage" of later day has said "Young man, GO WEST."

REGISTRATION LAWS .- We see it stated in a number of papers that the registration laws require a new registration every four years, and that this is the year to register. There seems to be a mistake about this. The new registration law applies only to Wayne Co. Persons living in other counties need not register if they have already done so in the township where they claim their residence.

A Good Job.—Supervisor Alexander, together with the aid of several other members of the Board, at its recent session, succeeded in equalizing the assessments of the several townships and city of Niles on a more equitable basis than has hitherto been done. It has long been known, by many of the tax payers of the County, that Niles City was not paying her equal portion of the taxes. All efforts however, have hitherto failed, till at the late meeting, it was determined by Hon. L. P. Alexander and several others that the thing should be righted if possible. They went at it in earnest, and when the matter was thoroughly ventilated, the assessment of Niles City was raised 20 per cent., by a vote of sixteen to six. Of course the Democratic nominee for State Senator fought the increase like a tiger. He did not want Niles City to pay her just portion of the taxes. He was for throwing the burdens off the city and placing them on the rural districts. Thanks to Mr. Alexander and the rest of the Supervisors who so nobly de-termined that the day for such fraud was over.

THE ST. JOSEPH Herald says:

The meeting of the stockholders of the C. & M. L. S. R. R. Co, and that of the Muskegon and Big Rapids Railroad Co., agreed on the 15th inst. at Muskegon to consolidate, and the two companies are now one under the corporate name of the Chicago and Michigan Lake Shore Railroad Company. The following gentlemen were elected directors: James F. Joy, A. H. Morrison, C. Davis, S. R. Sanford, L. G. Mason, D. L. Filer, M. L. Sweet, F. Godfrey and George H. White. Mr. Joy was subsequently elected President; Mr. Morrison, Vice President and General Manager: Isaac Livermore, Treasurer, and J. M. Barnett, Secretary. On the first of January next, this corporation will have over 250 miles of railroad in successful operation, with 25 engines, 500 flat cars, 200 box cars, and all the necessary passenger and other coaches, all accomplished within a period of three years.

THE ST. JOSEPH Traveler says: The schooner Bessie Boalt, Capt. A. M. Elliott, owned by Boalt & Mc Donald, of Chicago, struck the inner bar on Tuesday morning as she was running into the harbor, and lost her headway and swung round into the shoal water north of the entrance to the harbor. * * She is "hogged" and will probably never be got off. She was laden with 282 tons of ore from Escanaba, a part of which will be saved. She was worth about $15,-000 and insured for $6,000.—The tug L. H. Boole is on the beach at South Haven and is probably a total wreck. Capt. L. S. Mann of this place owns one-third of her, and people here will sympathize with him in his loss. She was worth about $6,500 and we learn of no insurance.—The propeller King Bro.'s was burned at a dock about fifteen miles up the river on Saturday night last. Capt. Boswell thinks she was set on fire by some person. She

Is Doing Good .- DR SPRINGSTEEN, whose visit to this city we have hereto:ore announced, continues to administer to the afflicted with the most surprising success. He has already established in this place a reputation for the successful treatment of stubborn chronic diseases, that places him, worthily, at the head of his profession. His diagnosis of disease, pointing out with accuracy and precision its location in the human system, is, in all respects new, novel, and unique. Many in this vicinity who have been sufferers for years, have already obtained the most desirable relief at the hands of the Doctor. He don't profess to cure all cases indiscriminately, or perform evident impossibilities, but gives a candid consultation, and judicious and approved treatment to all cases under advice. His office is at the Tremont House, where he will remain till about Nov. 1st, and thereafter visit this place on the 1st of each the Dayton (Ohio) Religious Telescope: The Rev. John Brown courted a lady upwards of six years, and ed a lady upwards of six years, and was so singularly modest and bashful that he had never ventured to kiss her. One day it occurred to him that it would not be a had thing to do. So, it is recorded, he said, "Jane, my woman, we've been acquainted now for six years, an'—an'—L'yennever got a kiss yet. D'ye think I may take one, my bonnie lassie?" The reply was wonderfully characteristic of the Scottish maiden. "Just as ye like John," said-she, conly just be becoming and said-she, conly just-be-becoming and proper wil-it; "Surely, Janet," said John; "we'll-tasks as blessin"." The blessing was asked, and the kiss exchanged. O woman, said the enraptured but still devout minister.

A beggar asked for a piece of bread and butter as a house the other day, and on a couple of slices being broughtsto him he immediately refused it. "What's the matter," asked the donor; "isn't this, good, bread?" "Yes, the bread's good enough, said the beggar. "Well isn't the butter good too?" "Yes, I've no fault to find with the butter?" "I'd don't like the ways it sepread on," growled the he:way:it:s:spread on; '::growled the astidious mendicant is a translation assessment translation of a sick to with her little three year old daughter on the piazza. SPEAR KINDLY. BY MARIANNE PARNINGHAM. Speak kindly, of thou knowest not, How much of good or ill May be within the little words

Thou speakest lightly still;
How long within the rearning heart,
Their influence may remain,
Gilding the life with beams of joy,
the shading it with pain. Speak kindled crashing trials come To every pilgrim here, And earth, with all it's tinsell'd show, Is desolute and drear. But kindly, sympathising words Bring sussbine, peace and rest; They help to southe the weare head And case the throbbing breast.

Sunday Reading

Speak kindly! words are registered. In Gol's own book in heaven, And oh! remember, not in vair,

The least of them is given.
Then earn the blessing of the sad
While lift's short course ye run,
And pray that then may'st hear at last
The Master's swart "Well done?"

No Sabbath.

In a prize essay on the Sabbath, written by a journeyman printer in Scotland, which for singular power of lenguage and boauty of expression has never been surpassed, there occurs the following passage. Read it, and then reflect for a while what a dreary and desolate page would this life pre-sent if the Sabbath were blotted out from our calculation : "Yokefellow! think how the abstruction of the Sabbath would hopelessly enslave the working class with whom we are identified. Think of labor going on in one monotonous and eternal cycle, limbs forever on the rack, the fingers forever straining, the brow forever sweating, the feet for-ever plodding, the brain forever throbbing, the shoulders forever drooping, the loins forever aching, and the restless mind forever scheming. Think of the beauty it would ef-face, the merry-heartedness it would extinguish, of the giant strength it would tame, of the resources of nature it would crush, of the sickness it would breed, of the projects it would reck, of the groans it would extort, of the lives it would immelate, and of the cheerless graves it would dig! See them toiling and moiling, sweating and fretting, grinding and hewing, weaving and spinning, strewing and gathering, mowing and reaping, razing and building, digging and planting, striving and straggling—in the garden and in the field, in the granary and in the barn, in the factory and in the mill, in the warehouse and in the shop, on the mountain and in the ditch, on the roadside and in the wood, in the city and in the country, on the sea and the shore, in the day of brightness and of gloom. What a picture would the world present if we had no Sabbath!"

Good-Bye. It is a hard word to speak. Some may laugh that it should be, but let them laugh. Icy hearts are never kind. It is a word that has choked many an atterance, and started many a tear. The hand is clasped, the word spoken, we part, and are out up-on the ocean of time—we go to meet again, God only knows where. It care that your "good-bye" be not a cold one—it may be the last one you can give. Ere you meet your friend again, death's cold hand may have closed his eyes and hushed his lips forever. Ah! he may have died think-ing you loved him not. Again, it may be a long separation. Friends crowd onward and give their hand. How do you detect in each good-bye the love that lingers there; and how you bear away with you the memory of these parting words many, many days. We must often separate. Tear not your-selves away with a careless boldness that defies all love, but make your last words linger—give the heart its full utterance—and if tears fall, what of it? Tears are not unmanly.

. The Burdens of Life. "The grand difference between the Christain and the man of the world is, that the burden of the one is gather-ing as he proceeds, while that of the other is becoming lighter and more easy; the man of carnal mind and worldly affections clings more and more to his beloved earth, and now cares thicken around his death-bed; his burden is collecting as he advances, and when he comes to the edge of the grave it bears him down to the bot-tom like a millstone. But the blessed Spirit, by gradually elevating the Christain's temper and desires, makes obedience more easy and delightful, until he mounts into the presence of God, where he finds it 'a service of perfect freedom." - Charles Wolfe.

Original Texts. The customs of taking a text as a basis of a sermon is said to have originated about the time of Ezra, who, accompanied by several Lievites in a public congregation of men and women, ascended the pulpit, opened the Book of Law, and, after addressing a prayer to the Deity, to which the people said "Amen," read the Law of God distinctly, gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading. Previous to the time of Ezra, 457 years B. C., the patriarchs delivered in public assemblies either prophesies or moral instructions for the edification of the people and it was not until the return of the Jews from the Babylonian turn of the Jews from the Babylonian captivity, during which time they had almost lost the language in which the Pentateuch was written that it became necessary to explain, as well as to read, the Scriptures to them—as practice adopted by Ezra, and since universally followed. In latter times (Acts XV. 21), the book of Moses was read in the syngapure avery Schketh day

That has given such Universal Satisfaction to Thousands that liave Used them since their introduction in April 1870. Having, in every instance, produced a perfect curs in the worse cases of sore neck. The medicinal and cooling properties, with the advantage of always having a perfect, smooth surface, is a guarantee against chaing, and will in all cases cure the most irritated sore necks, as hundreds will resulfy that have given them a trial. All we ask of the most scrupulous is to give our Zine Collar Pad a fair trial, as we feel confident in warranting them to do all we claim; and give satisfaction. WHAT WE CLAIM.

TREST. Is the chemical action of the Zinc, with the soid and satine constituents of molat sores; resulting in an astringent, acting speedily on the edges of the wound, and by its smooth surface and cooling tendency, quickly produces a cure.

Scond. It prevents, in all cases, the hame straps coming in contact with the neck, or the hames from contracting the top of the collar, and thereby pinching the cords of the neck, and is the only Pad made that will not wear the hair on the neck.

Third. With the use of them you can work a faw necked horse every day, and cure the worst cases; in from six to ten days, as has been done in many cases during the last season.

Fourth. It is the most durable Pad ever made.

We deem it unnecessary to add other advantages, or even to add the numerous testimonials we have received during the short use of our Zinc Pad, and only ask that te may have a fair trial, feeling full confidence in the success of the goods.
