THE RIVER OF SPEECH. There flows a river through the earth, From hills of heaven it hath its birth; Through all the lands that stream hath gone,

For men to float their thoughts upon. Some send rich fleets of myrrh and gold, Ships argosied with gems untold! And though the men upon the shore Bind them upon their hearts, the store,

Like prophet's oil, grows more and more And some send flowers from fairy lands, That float to little children's hands, And some—alas! that this should be— Send ships, that sail to meet the sea,

And send some idle straws alone And some rich seeds, that may be sown In quiet creeks, for they will rise Dear flowers to aching heart and eyes. And send some holy words that shed

A stranger light on the river's bed— A light so steady, earnest, fair, You almost think God's stars are there.

"And so you are going to California, are you, Phil?"

"So she would, bless her loving good income, every penny of which is I have health and strength."

"But suppose you don't succeed?"
"I shall succeed. I feel perfectly sure of it. And I shall not be scalped but shall come home before long, in good health and the possessor of a

What right had he to expect a woman to wait for him, when his fortune and even his life were so uncertain? Could he blame her, if, after a reasonable time, she should "accept the first good offer that came to hand?".

So she tripped down to the parlor, where she found her visitor alone. She had never found herself tete-a-tete with him before. She had never noticed for her to her father. He talked a good while on different subjects, displaying much tact and good sense, as Bertha began to hope that the dreaded question was not to be asked her. In the course of the conversation he alluded to having visited San Francisco. As he spoke the name a slight blush came to her face, which he evidently noticed.

"By the way," he said, "I knew a young man there, a friend of your father's-Philip Travers."

"Did you, indeed?" she asked, trying to conceal the interest she felt under the mask of indifference. "Yes," he replied. "A very fine young fellow, but not very successful.

Only about one in a hundred succeeds out there." He seemed to her to watch her face as he said this, to mark the effect of his words. Her papa, she thought, must have told him something.

Presently he said, moving his chair nearer her own, "Miss Clark, I am a comparative stranger to you, but I have been in the army, I have also been a successful speculator, and I have proved to your father my respectability. I am rich—so rich that it is impossible to enjoy my riches without some one to spend them with me. could not reasonably ask a young and pretty woman like you to fall in love with an old gray-headed fellow like me; but if you could like me well enough to marry me, I should treat you so well that I believe love might come afterwards."

"Oh, Phil, how could you?" "I wanted to try you a little, Bertha. I wanted to be sure that you loved me still-poor as I might be.' "What do you suppose I care for your poverty? Was your faith in me so slight as to need confirmation of this kind?" "Bertha, don't be angry, but tell me that you love me and forgive me,' he pleaded.

"Of course I love you, miserable doubter! And, of course, I must forgive you! So you have come back as poor as you went?" she said, stro-king his ebon hair and smiling. He returned her smile with inter-

I take it," she said gleefully. "Not such a hand as this," said he, kissing it. "Such hands were made to wear diamond rings."

Suiting the action to the word, he slid a magnificent jewel upon her finger-a diamond worth a small for-"Phil, what does this mean?" she asked, turning pale. "It means, dear love, that I am rich-so rich that it is impossible to enjoy my riches without you to spend them with me. I have been fortunate in California. Will you love me just 'as well, knowing that I'm a millionaire?"

Our finished work shall stand!

An Example Wanted—The Increase of Murder—The Atrocious Case of Mrs. Lydia Sherman—A Demand for Hanging the New York Murderers All Together.

The philosophy of dispensing punishment to criminals as an example and a warning to others does not fit altogether beside the law of the Bible which, in its iron maxim, demanded an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a life for a life. It is, in that sublime book of wisdom, the delegation of a portion of the revenge which God reserves otherwise to Himself. "Vengeance is Mine, saith the Lord," is the revenge for all wrong which the Almighty in somber majesty takes unto himself; a life for a life is what He. delegates to man-to society. Whether States be founded in their organization upon Paganism or Christianity, the "deep damnation" of homicide is recognized as being most fitly compensated by the death of the murderer. The finer distinctions of advancing civilization have resulted in a gradation of the offense which ends sudden- deress received her reward. This ly a fellow being's existence. In rough, wild woman of half-barbarous America we have refined on these distinctions overmuch, and increase of man; but the law says no outraged homicides has been the consequence. We look back over a year in this city and are horrified at the increase. What is to be done? We shall say further on. Before touching the remedy so far as New York is concerned, let us look outside of New York. In July last, after a patient trial and overwhelming evidence, a woman on trial at New Haven. Conn., for poisoning her husband was found guilty of murder in the second degree. It may be futile now to ask, when the evidence was so clear, when the man's blood was, as it were, red upon the woman's hands, how a jury could be found to bate her doom one jot. It was, perhaps, a mistaken spirit of feeble humanity which led them to do it; but we venture to say that when these jurymen read in the Herald of to-day the litany of horrors that Lydia Sherman coolly confesses too, they will shudder to their finger tips that the iron of the Hebraic law was not in their souls when they agreed upon a verdict. We have used the word woman in her regard; but it would degrade the name of the vilest beast or reptile, whose noisomeness has made it an enemy to be killed at sight, by comparing her to it. The one figure that Milton, in his broad imagination, built into a master devil is too massive and almost too kindly for the comparison. The picture which he gives of Sin, at the gate of Hell as being "woman to the waist and fair, but ended foul in many a snaky fold," with all her foul progeny barking round her loins, is scarcely enough to picture the intolerable wickedness that went to make that murderess. The verdict assured her that her neck could not be broken on the gallows as it should be, had she a thousand spinal columns within it. Hence she makes her confession. Meek-faced, pious to the last, she excuses the confession on the ground that Christ called her to sorrow for her sins. She flung herself on her knees at night, and in the morning she says, "I felt the burden was gone and I was forgiven." Words of cynicism more bitter were never hurled in the teeth of deluded mercy than these. The mask under which she murdered was the mask under which she would confess. If she had cast it aside and told baffled justice that she heralded her crimes since she could safely glory in them, and in order that she might take the highest place in the niche of infamy, she would have told the truth. We can now look for a moment at the triumphant murderess. She was not a woman who bore the devil on her face that lurked within her heart. She was a Methodist, a church member, ja good woman, whom doctors and good people delighted to send to tend the sick as a nurse. What a nurse will be seen in a brief resume of the crimes which she confessed to. Her too. She marries a third time, and confesses to poisoning her step-son and step-daughter, and finally the man she married. It sums up a total of eight successive cold-blooded, pitiless murders, which she admits. Two more of the deaths of those near her were in all human probability her work. She was a nurse for the sick, and how high her crimes in their cold calculation may have mounted up in this profession it would be impossible to say. She was tried only for the murder of her last victim. The point, however, which we insist in calling attention to is that, with all this blood upon her head, she will be permitted to live, comtaminating God's air as long as prison diet will support her life. Is there no reversal to this, we ask? If Connecticut can try her for the other murders she has committed within its borders it should be done. If New York can still try her and hang her for the murders she confesses to on Manhattan Island, it should be done. Not a murderer within the Tombs; not a wretch outside it with murder in his heart, but will feel the devil leap within him as he learns that half a score of human that a slim one, of being imprisoned for life, total escape from punishment occupying the heaviest side of the probabilities. This woman's record is the most horrible that has ever seen the light. In Russia it is told that a woman with three children once started in a sledge over the snow upon a journey to her father's house. Night comes on, and a pack of howling wolves pursue the sledge. The woman lashes the horses and still the wolves are gaining. She flings a child to them, and gains upon them. Again they close upon the sledge, and she hurls them another. The baying of the devouring wolves and the jingle of the bells drown his cries. She is nearing her father's house, but they are upon her once more. What might have seemed self. She casts the last child to them, lives can be taken on the chance, and humanity now is seen in all its love of and stands at last alone at her father's door. "Where are the children?" "The wolves!" That is enough; an ax is buried in her brains; the murhumanity shall satiate itself for their blood. Clearly we must return to the old law-to something. A change must be made. In this city we have Stokes condemned to be hanged. We have Foster condemned to be hanged, and half a dozen more. We have awaiting trial Sharkey, who slew Dunne; Scannell, who blew out the brains of Donohue; King, who shot O'Neill dead; Simmons, who slashed his victim Duryea into slivers almost, with a knife. Are we to wait years and years to see the sentence carried out on those convicted? Are we to wait in shame and grief at the law's delay a twelvemonth for the trial and conviction of others if they are guilty? We want speedy trials. The new District Attorney is pledged against pigeon-holeing cases, whether of murder or theft, whether the criminals be rich or poor, whether they be "influential," as the word has been understood, or whether they are as naked of "influence" as Jack Reynolds. If crime will have its carnival, let justice in New York, so long defined, have its carnival too. Give us, then, at an early day, a broad scaffold, with the throats of all our murders in stout ropes beneath it. Let them all swing together. And then let us see afterward whether terror is a better curative than encouragement. With murderers we say leave mercy to the other world, on which nine out of ten of them in their last moments are ready

M. Quad's Last.

"The Ruling Passion strong death," is graphically portrayed in the following: "They sent for me to come up to the hospital and see him. 'He's most gone, said the doctor, but perhaps he'll rally when he sees you.' I went up. There laid Quill, eyes closed, and as pale as a sheet. He couldn't speak, and the doctor said he'd be a gone up chap in half an hour. He came to the city ten years ago, and was rosy, fat and stout. He said he could run forty newspapers, and that he'd shoot himself if he couldn't sit up twenty days and nights without a wink of sleep. I remember how he tore round after the fire engines, ran after suicide items, trotted down around the docks after bodies, and he seemed made of iron. He set up all night and tramped around all day, but at last he had to go under. The rosy color faded, his fat was tried out by the sun, and the flags used up his. feet. He had to go to the hospital, and now his end was near. For a month after going there he kept calling for paper and pencil, thought he heard fire alarms and started up when the cook let a kettle fall, making a sound like a boiler explosion. He

Twenty-seven women left widows!' Poor man, I had only spoken of three victims, but of course, he wanted to make as big a thing of it as possible. He tried to sit up but fell back and I whispered: Boy run over! Suicide! Burglary!' without moving him. Finally the doctors induced me to concentrate all into one thing, I whispered: 'Ho! Quill! Ferry boat blown up! Forty persons killed! Boat sinks-terrible thing!' He rose right up and shouted: 'Put fifteen display heads and thirty exclamation points to it!' and then fell back as dead as a door-nail! The doctor says I killed him. I didn't. Justice Demanded. Danger of Using Ambiguous Terms.

A week or two ago one of our reporters had occasion to refer to a woman, whom we will call Hannah Smith, as a denizen of the Eleventh Ward. A day or two afterward a huge man entered the office with his brow clothed with thunder. In his hand he carried a fearful club, and at his side trotted a bull dog whom hunger evidently had made desperate. With that quick appreciation of the situation which is creditable to the superior intelligence of educated men, the editor of this paper and the proprietors darted to the window, climbed outside, slid down the lightning rod and went across the street to watch the bloody fray through a spy glass. With the fearlessness of conscious innocence we sat still, merely inserting our legs in two sections of stove pipe, to guard against any misapprehension of facts on the part of the bull dog. The man with the club approached. "Are you the editor?" he asked. spitting on his hand and grasping the club. We told him the editor was out; that he had gone to the north pole with Capt. Hall, and that he would not return before 1876, in time for the centennial celebration.

"Are you the proprietor?" asked the man.

We explained to him that we were not, that the proprietors were also out; that they had gone to South America for the purpose of investigating the curative properties of cundurango, and they expected to remain there for several years.

"Well, whoever you are," exclaimed the warrior, "my name is Smith." We told him we were glad; because, if there was one thing better than the possession of the name of Smith, it was the privilege of knowing a man of that name. "But Smith," we said "why this battle array? It is absurd for a man to put on the panoply of war, and frisk into editor's sanctums fumbling a club and accompanied by a disheartening bull dog, simply because his name happens to be Smith." He said he called in to burst the head of the man who insulted his sister. "It is impossible, Smith, that such a thing could have been done by any one in this office."

"Is, but it was, though; and her name was published, too, Miss Smith -Miss Hanner Smith. "May we be permitted to inquire,

Mr. Smith, what was the precise character of the affront offered to Hannah?" "Well, you see," said Smith, "the blackguard said she was a denizen. And I want you to understand," exclaimed Smith, becoming excited, and brandishing his club in a wild manner over our head, while the bull dog advanced and commenced to sniff up and down our stovepipe-"I want you to understand that she is a decent young woman, with a good character, and none of your denizens and such truck. The man who says she is a denizen is a blackguard and thief, and I'll smash him over the nose if I get a chance. They may say what they please about me, but the man who absuses my sister has got to suffer." And Smith struck the table in a violent manner with his club, while the bull dog put his forelegs on the back of our chair. We pacified Smith with a dictionary. We pointed out to the raging warrior that the Websterian definition of the word "denizen" gives such a person an unoffending character, and deprives the term of everything like reproach. Smith said he was satisfied, and he shook hands and kicked the bull dog down stairs. The editor and the proprietors, seeing that all was safe, immediately climbed the lightning rod and soon appeared at the window, where they were introduced to Smith, with the remark that they had returned from the North Pole and the clime of the cundurango somewhat unexpectedly, in order to surprise their rela-

1876 THE GRIST MILLER'S SIGNAL. It is to let each man's grist pass through all the bolting machinery before taken off, giving each man all the flour of his own grain, avoiding the old practice of leaving from 20 to 40 pounds of flour in the machinery for the next grist to take, giving just cause for dissatisfaction, as there are frequent grists of bad or damaged grain.

Republican County Couvention.

A Republican County Convention will be held at the Court Rouse in Berrien Springs, MONDAY, FEB. 317, 1573, for the purpose of choosing two Delegates from each Representative District to the State Convention to be held in Lansing, Feb. 26th, to nominate one in the of the Supreme Court and two Regents of the University. The several Townships and the Wards of the City of Miles are entitled to delegates as follows: l'inbridge... BY ORDER OF CO. COMMITTAEL tries to be witty over the facts and figures we presented two weeks since, relative to the proposed swindle of Niles, upon the balance of Berrien County, in their endeavor, through Representativo Bonine, to secure an amendment to their Charter giving that city two additional Supervisors, making four instead of two as they now have. We would assure our friend of the Republican that we knew whereof we affirmed, when we stated that such was the design and intention of the proposed bill. And further, we happen to know that this very matter was agitated in Niles previous to the November election, and that it was used as an inducement for all voters of Niles to east their ballots for Dr. Bonine, as he could secure that city two additional Supervisors, which his opponent would of course oppose. There, now, Mr. Republican, perhaps the RECORD knows nothing about it!

THE NILES REPUBLICAN-AND BO-MINE'S FOUR SUPERVISOR BILL FOR THE CITY OF NILES. Our neighbor, the Wiles Republican

It is a wonder our friend of the Republican, when casting his ungentlemanly flings at Buchanan, which he calls "a little village through which the express trains of the Michigan Central pass at the rate of forty-five miles an hour," had not also given the RECORD a dig, and said it was "a little sheet without influence or circulation.' But then he remembered that the people of Berrien County and Southwestern Michigan subscribed for the RECORD to more than twice the number that they did to the Republican. He also remembered that when there was danger threatened to the County, through the machinations of the great city of Niles, a town of 4,600 inhabitants, or from any other source, the RECORD has always been ready to sound the alarm. This is what troubles the Republican because the RECORD will always let the people know of "the ways that are dark and the tricks that are vain," with which our neighboring town so often attempts to hoodwink the unsuspecting "inhabitants of the rural districts."

The Republican says, "The people of this city have made no effort whatever to secure an additional representation in the Board of Supervisors." We happen to know that this matter has been talked quietly around among the "knowing ones," and was used at the election last fall as an argument why Niles Democrats should vote for the present Representative from the 2d district. These knowing ones hoped to secure for their city four Supervisors, and the rest of the County would be "none the wiser till it was too late, and the bill was passed. We happen to know that the provision for two additional Supervisors was a designed item of the new bill, the Republican to the contrary notwithstanding. After throwing dust so as to mud-dle the atmosphere, the Republican finally says, "But really there would be no great amount of injustice or swindling in this operation." The italicising in the quotation is ours, and shows that even our neighbor could not so stretch his conscience as to say, there would be no injustice or swindling in the operation. We are glad that even neighbor Duncan is compelled to acknowledge that there would be just a little injustice and swindling in attempting to secure four Supervisors. It does us good to be able to chronicle the fact that even the Republican is not wholly deprayed on the subject of the interests of Niles, as against the balance of the County, the week the Senate has passed the But what will your constituency say, Bro. Duncan, of you for your admission of injustice and swindling in the operation?

We have simply to say that no man outside of Niles can for a moment look upon such an attempt in any other light than a gross swindle upon the entire balance of Berrien County. The Republican's argument that because Niles is more wealthy and populous than some of the rural Townpopulous than some of the rural Town-ships, therefore they ought to have deeming shall pay the money bid, and two more Supervisors, is about as senting interest at twenty per cent. As sible as the argument, because New the law now is no one will bid on such lands, as they get only seven per cent. When the law now is no one will bid on such lands, as they get only seven per cent. They have not learned. A meet have double the number of U.S. Senting of days has recently been constructed up of the Dubic Buildings authorizing the Secretary of the Methodist of the Treasury to exchange the old professors. Meetings were held of the Treasury to exchange to the Contract of the Contract o has always manifested to control the entire affairs of the County, with an eye only to her own interests. In making these statements, we but reiterate the sentiment and feeling of almost, if not quite, the entire County outside of Niles. There is no disposition in the "rural districts," (that means every place but Niles, according to the Republican,) to withhold one solitary just claim from that city, but there is equally a determination not to be swindled by the "ways that are dark and the tricks that are vain" of the few "knowing ones," who run the. city machine.

AN IMPORTANT BILL.

Senater Gray, from Newaygo, introduced a bill in the State Senate on Tuesday, in behalf of the Committee on Railroads. This, bill looks to the establishment of uniform, rates of freight on all the railroads within the State. It establishes certain rates for freight of certain descriptions, allowing for transportation, so much for specified distances. The bill also provides that no railway shall charge over three cents for each mile traveled by passengers. Undoubtedly the railroad interest will kick against the passage of the bill, but the people will approve it. It is now a pretty general feeling that railroad corporations usually only act with a view to securing the greatest amount of money. Hence when there is no competition the most exhorbitant rates are charged for freight. This bill, if passed, will settle, on an equitable basis, all freight charges, and passenger tariff. It also provides that if any company shall charge or demand more than the rates specified, they shall be prosecuted by the State Attorney General, for the forfeiture of their charter, or for the collection of a fine of $1,000, for each offence. If any company shall refuse to receive freight or passengers under the regulations of this act, it shall pay the aggrieved party $1,000 as settled and quidated damages. The bill also further provides that all Railroad Companies shall forward freight in the order in which it is received, and if any discrimination is made in favor of any shipper, by giving lower rates such rates to be enjoyed by all ship-Should this bill become a law and be faithfully executed, it will do much toward regulating the freightage and passenger business on an equitable basis. There is no question but the time has arrived when the State or National puthorities must take the railroad bull by the horns. The longer the matter is delayed the more difficult of accomplishment. We say let the State, nation and community deal fairly and justly by the railroads, and then require the railroads to do the same toward the people. This is just and right, and all reasonable men will say, "so be it."

CONGRESS.

The question is now being agitated as to the proproity of a session of Congress from and after the 4th of March. The feeling among the Senators and Representives seem to be rather against such a session. We trust however, if the needed legislation is not consummated that such a session will be had. The interests of the country should not be allowed to suffer for the want of proper legislation. Our Senators and Representatives are paid, if not quite as much as they ought to be, for doing the proper legislation for the country, and hence they ought to be perfectly willing to remain in Washington till the needed work is accomplished.

Lansing Correspondence.

Feb. 8th, 1873. EDITORS RECORD :- The "swing around the circle" having been completed last week and a pretty thorough inspection made of the leading State Institutions, the members of the Legislature came back on Monday, and on Tuesday settled down to work again. The impression now seems to be general that business will move on a little brisker in the future. Quite a large number of bills were introduced on Tuesday, but few of them however, of any general interest. The House on Tuesday refused, to pass a bill making it the duty of Railroad Companies to fence their roads and to be responsible for damages on account of loss of stock. On Wednesday the House passed by one more than the requisite votes a bill to provide for the appointment of a fish commission, and for the erection of two hatching houses, one on the eastern and the other on the western shore, and appropriating $10,000 for each of the years 1873 and 1874. Its fate in the Senate is doubtful. - Senator Wheeler has introduced a bill to provide for the appointment of a Railroad Commissioner to see that the law in relation to railroads is carried out.

The House, on the day after passing the fish bill, reconsidered the vote by which the bill was passed and referred it back to the committee again. They have reported it the second time in substantially the same shape, but its passage again is doubtful. During following bills of general interest: A bill to provide for the publication of Territorial Laws of Michigan, a bill making an appropriation for the State Normal School. It appropriates $30,-000 for 1873 and 1874. Also a bill appropriating $25,000 to complete the new hall of the University; a bill to facilitate the collection of recognithat if real estate sold under this act shall be redeemed the person so re-week in the Senate: By Mr. Sparks, to repeal sections 11, 12, 18, of act 163 of laws of 1861 relative to appeals to Town Soards. By Mr.-King, a bill to provide for the safe keeping of persons acquitted on the plea of insanity. By Mr. DeLand, a bill to provide for a Superintendent of public printing. By Mr. Prutzman, a bill to provide for fish ladders in streams of this State. By Mr. DeLand, a bill to provide for joint loan and trust companies, also a bill to limit the time for which Supervisors shall draw pay. By Mr. Dewey, a bill to provide for letting by contract the furnishing of fuel and stationery for the State, and also the public printing. By Mr. Crosby, a bill to protect the people of this State against empiricism and imposition in the practice of medicine. By

Mr. Sparks, a bill to amend sections 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8 of chapter 27 of compiled laws relative to encroachments upon highways. In the House a bill to bar the right of dower of insane, imbecile or idiotic married women. A bill to provide for the appointment of a Railroad Commissioner and define his powers and duties. A bill making an appropriation to the State Pomological Society. A bill defining the labors and duties of County Superintendents of Schools and their compensation. present. She made some capital hits on the idea of "falling in love," and the way marriages are contracted in these latter days. And if she ever visits your, part of the State I would advise the young ladies and gents of Buchanan to be sure and hear her. She is none of your ranting "free lovers" of the Woodhull or Tilton stripe, but teaches a morality as pure as truth itself, and yet we deprive such women of the ballot and give it to the most ignorant or brutal native or foreigner, provided, only, he is called a man. But 'twill not always be "thusly," "wait a little longer." This week we are to have lectures by President Angel and two or three gentlemen from Detroit. Shall ex-

BAZAAR, KAN., JAN. 23, 1873. The weather seems to be the topic of all your correspondents, so that I presume you will expect a report in that direction from your correspondent in sunny Kansas, but I had almost forgotten the name (sunny Kansas) for we have seen old Sol but few times since my last was written.

The clouds have looked so dark and frowningly from the northeast, and the snow has been so sharp and pelting that we had concluded something terrible was to pay up in Michigan, or that the world had taken a jog and thrown Kansas into some other notch. Our lowest thermometer reports are 18° below zero: The ground has been frozen about one foot, and for the first time in our history here, we have enjoyed good sleighing. Sleds of all forms, shapes and sizes came into existence as if by magic, and if I only could have heard the jingling bells I should have associated Michigan withithe scenery; but alas, every thing of an earthly character is short lived, so was our sleighing, it lasted but one week. Some one may ask how is this for wintering cattle? Stock has done finely thus far, though we have but few barns, we have the best stock shelter I ever saw in any State. The low valleys along the streams are from twenty to fifty feet lower than the prairie and are covered with thick, brushy timber that makes an excellent wind break. In a social point of view Kansas is improving. The first gathering attended by me in these parts was a prayer meeting, the spirit of the Master was present and I could not help feeling at home, but the appearance of everything made me feel that  $oldsymbol{\mathrm{I}}$  was far out on the frontier. The men wore soldiers' overcoats and the women sun-bonnets. The meeting house was seated with slabs and ceiled with rough elm boards covered with dog tracks; so that I could not help but think that by some freak of nature dogs as well as flies had learned to walk on

There have been some interesting meetings in Southwestern Kansas, but no such revivals as Christian people pray and long for: A series of meetings have been held at Bazaar under the jurisdiction of the Methodist brethren, that have somewhat stirred up

Topeka-and Santa Fe R. R. Is-a great shipping point for Texas cattle. A Baptist church was organized there bill appropriates $5,000. They have a few months ago and connected with also passed a large number of bills of the Southwestern Kansas Association. There is great anxiety that the meetings there progressing may result in port have been introduced during the much good. Our Baptist church at Bazaar continues its regular meetings. and is doing all that a feeble church could expect. Quite an improvement has recently been made in the way of singing. Yours &c. C. G. Manney.

Thomas.—Just what our St. Joseph neighbors are after in their effort to btain a city charter, is not yet fully apparent, but enough has come to light to lace people somewhat on their guard. The proposition is gravely made to include all that portion of the township not now included in Benton Harbor. To most of our readers, who are well aware of the situation, no words of ours will be necessary to expose its absurdity and injustice. To others the situation may be made more clear by the statement that this proposed corporation includes outlaying neighborhoods from one to three miles from St. Joseph—one of which is separated by the river and a mile or more of marsh, so that in order to reach the present village of St. Joseph, the inhabitants are obliged 'to pass through-Benton Harbor. To tax the people of Heath's Corners and the Chas. Hull neighborhood to build side walks, keep up fire companies, and the thousand and one forms of city expenditure necessary, would be an act of the most flägrant injustice. We advise the promoters of this scheme to be a little less bashful. Make your city charter include Millburg, Hartford,

Bangor and Grand Junction, Holland,

and about half of Kalamazoo, while you are about it. 🕏

On Monday it was quietly whispered that all was not right with the City funds, and on Tuesday it became generally known that the thing was too serious to be a joke, in fact, that the City Treasurer, Thos. A. Bunbury, was absent, and that not far from $10,000 of tax money recently collected, was not to be found. About ten days before Mr. Bunbury was married, and started to Kansas on a wedding tour. Nothing was thought wrong till the time above mentioned, when the bondsmen were sufficiently suspicious that all was not right, and commenced investigation. We have talked with Mr. Bunbury's friends, and are prepared to give both sides of the question. They say that a month or more ago the Treasurer placed a tin box containing the City funds under the head of his bed, and that the box and its contents were stolen, and gives as a reason for not making the matter known that he hoped by parol evidence, within two years from the passage of the act. They also claim to have telegrams from him stating that he is on his way back, and say they expect him on every train. On the other hand, those most interested in the affair say that he drew largely from the banks where he deposited, just before going away, that he reluctantly paid what school funds have been paid, that he is reported by telegraph to have left Emporia, Kansas, for Texas, several days, ago; and that it looks to a man up a tree a "put up job." ALMOST A FIRE. - The house of Mr. Stephen Atwood, on Day's Avenue, caught fire on Monday last. The alarm was given and the sudden appearance of some half dozen men soon succeeded in extinguishing the brought as load of potatoes in town flames, and preventing the distruction Saturday quite a distance expecting tunity for people to clean the snow off of the building. Our new fire com to get 80 cents a bushel for the same, their side walks. Let this be done to use or sale. Every farmer and stock man themselves this time.

WORTHY OF NOTICE.—An instance of the generous liberality of Mr. Sargent, the popular Superintendent of the Michigan Central Railroad, deserves mention in our columns. All our citizens well remember the misfortune of our fellow townsman, Mr. Louis Hahn, by which he lost his right leg. Mr. Hahn last week went to Chicago to see Mr. Sargent, who kindly, enquired into his circumstances and the condition of his family, and although Mr. Hahn was injured by attempting to get off the train, he made no claim against the R. R. Co., but Mr. Sargent generously gave an order on a Detroit limb manufacturer for the best limb that could be made, and gave him at the same time free passes over the Road to Detroit and return. He also intimated, that when he had become used to the artificial leg, he would try and find him some situation that he could fill in their employ. Such instances of thoughtfulness deserve a public acknowledgment.

THE REASON -A substantial farmer remarked to us the other day, that the reason some of our farmers occasionally went to other towns to trade was, that our business men would not pay as much for the farmers' products as could be realized at other places. Now, if this is so, then we must say to our tradesmen, look about and see to a that such things shall not be There is no reason why all products of the farm should not bring as much in Buchanan as at any other town in Berrien County. In fact we have always thought, that as a general rule, the prices paid in Buchanan for the products of the farm, were fully as good, if not better than could be realized at other towns in the county. Our farmer friend thought, while we were constantly urging people to purchase their goods in Buchanan, we should also give the reason why some persons went to other places to trade occasionally. He thought also that we should urge our business men and produce dealers to pay as good prices as at any other place. We trust our dealers will make every effort to retain all the trade of this region, both by selling goods at low figures, and paying the highest possible prices to the farmer for all the products of the

Those who desire to witness the drawing are requested to be present, especially the ladies. The Hall will be kept comfortable, and order shall be maintained throughout. The Prizes will be delivered at the time of drawing in the Hall, should the proper shareholders be present. The plan of drawing is not known, but will be agreed upon as the discretion of the shareholders present shall determine. The Musical Box, one of the grand prizes to be drawn, will-discourse its beautiful Operatic airs during the evening's entertainment. A pleasant time is promised to any who may attend. No admittance fee.

Very Respectfully, JNO. C. WELCH.

FIRE COMPANY .- The new Fire Company completed their organization on Saturday evening last. We were present at the meeting a short time, and were pleased to see a determination, on the part of those present, to make the Company a success. The Constitution and By-Laws were signed by members present, and some changes made in the officials of the Company. Chief Engineer, C. S. Black, resigned the Foremanship of the Engine Co., and Mr. Geo. Churchill was elected in his stead. This arrangement will divide the duties of Chief Engineer and Foreman between two persons, organized and officered. Now the we in getting the Engine and Pump ready fifteen minutes wasted at the commencement of a fire is of great importance, and often determines the loss or saving of much valuable property. Let every one of our citizens give the Fire Company that encouragement which it deserves, and we shall not again be called upon to chronicle a disbandment thereof.

RUNAWAY.—A team came down Day's Avenue Friday on a good run' hitched to a sled on which were two large saw logs. They turned up Front street and were stopped when going around the corner by the Bank by a man who made a grab and caught the lines, which were dragging along on the ground.

THE small pox prevails in Berrien and St. Joseph Counties. It may not be long before it will appear in this county. Those who are not vaccinated should take the precaution early.

-Lawton Tribune. We think the above is a mistake so far as relates to this County. We have not heard of any recent case of small pox anywhere in Berrien county.

VOLUME SIX.—With this number closes the sixth volume of the RECORD. We think the paper has given at least as good satisfaction during the past as any previous year. We close the volume feeling that we have fulfilled our promise at its beginning and have discharged our duties the best we knew how. The New Charter:

We hear some complaint as well as some gross misrepresentations, relative to the proposed new Charter for our village. That the Village Board have acted wisely and for the best interests. of this community in having a new Charter drawn up, there is no question. The representation that is being hawked about the streets, that the new Charter will increase taxation is, as we understand it, wholly without foundation. The new Charter, in every respect in the judgment of the Board, as well as in the judgment of nearly every citizen who has given it any attention, is superior and much to be preferred to the old one. We speak advisedly when we say that we are confident that nine-tenths of our citizens would heartily approve the new Charter if they could but thoroughly examine it. But why, asks some op-poser, was it sent off to Lansing in such a hurry? We answer, for the very best of reasons. It was understood to be necessary that the bill should be in Lansing by Saturday, or it would be impossible to get it passed at this session of the Legislature, in which case nothing could be done for two years more. All due haste was made to get the Charter ready at an earlier day, but owing to other business it was impossible for the village Attorney to draft the bill any earlier. After the Charter was drawn up it must then be examined by the Board, section by section, discussed and finally copied. This all took time, and when completed, no time was left if action was had upon the matter during this session of the Legislature. These reasons we have no doubt will be satisfactory to all our citizens, who have a disposition to be reasonable. When the new Charter shall have passed the Legislature, as it evidently will if the best interests of our village are consulted, we hope that even the most skeptical will find its workings much to be desired above the present; and that, too, without any additional taxation. We say by all means let ever lover of good order and the prosperity of our Village lend his influence in favor of the passage of our new Charter, now before the Legislature.

$75.000 IN CASH FOR $1.—We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column of the Nebraska State Orphan Asylum. Here is a chance to win a fortune in a Public Legal Drawing, and aid a noble the RECORD for publication. We have had a very severe winter here and I suppose all the people of Berrien County know how to sympathize with us. The people of the Valley have improved their time in hauling logs to the mills, and the mill-yards look almost like lakes of logs. The schools of Oronoko are all in a flourishing condition, and the educational interest is on the advance. There have been a few spelling schools and much 0 interest has been manifested in the same. Spelling schools are not so common as they were twenty years ago, and we notice as a general thing that spelling is very much neglected in our day schools. We can remember the time when it was a very diffi-0 cult matter to find words in the spelling book to spell the school down, and now it does not require more than a page or two of the difficult part of the spelling book to spell down the best speller of a school. We have had two spelling schools in District No. 2, of Oronoko and the order and attendance were of the very best, and a great interest has been awakened in spellling. There is a wide space for improvement in the art.

"How To Go West." This is an enquiry which every one should have truthfully answered before he starts on his journey, and a little care taken in examination of Routes will in many cases save much trouble, time and money The "C., B. & Q. R. R.," running from Chicago through Galesburg to Burlington. has achieved a splendid reputation in the last two years as the leading Passenger Route to the west. At Burlington it connects with the great' Burlington Route which runs direct through Southern Iowa to Nebraska and Kansas, with close connections to California and the Territories; and passengers starting from Berrien County, on their way westward, cannot do better than to take the C. SAMUEL P. SUMMERS, Dated Berrien, Jan. 17th, A. D. 1873.

A little giel, nine years of age, was w o was on trial for a felony committel in her father's house. "Now, Emily," said the counsel for in prisoner, upon her being offered as a vitness, "I desire to know if you understand the nature of an oath?" "I dan't know what evon mean," was the simple answer.

"There, your Honor," said the coursely addressing the court, "is strything further necessary to demonrate the validity of my objection? This wirness should be rejected. She does not comprehend the nature of an

"Int us see," said the judge. "Come here my daughter." Assured by the kind tone and man-ner of the judge, the child stepped toward him, and looked confidingly up in his face, with a calm, clear eye, and in a manner so artless and frank, that it went straight to the heart. "Did you ever take an oath?" in quired the judge. The little girl scepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush . Il over her face as she answered,

"No, sir." She thought that he intended to in-quire if she had ever blasphemed. "I do not mean that," said the judge, who saw her mistake, "I mean were you ever a witness before?" "No, sir; I never was in court before," was the answer. He handed her the Bible, open. "Do you know that book, my daughter ?" She looked at it and answered, "Yes, sir, it is the Bible." "Do you ever read it?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, every evening." "Can you tell me what the Bible is?" inquired the judge. "It is the word of the great God," she answered.

"Well, place your hand-upon this Bible, and listen to what I say;" and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually administered to witnesses.
"Now," said the judge, "You have sworn as a witness; will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth?" "I shall be shut up in the State prison," answered the child. "Anything else?" asked the judge. "I shall never go to heaven," she replied. "How do you know this?" asked the judge again.

The child took the Bible, and turning rapidly to the chapter containing the commandments, pointed to the injunction, "Thou shall not bear false witness against thy neighbor." "I learned that before I could read."

"Has any one talked with you about your being a witness in court here against this man?" inquired the judge. "Yes, sir," she replied. "My mother heard they wanted me to be a witness, and last night she called me to her room and asked me to tell her the Ten Commandments, and then we kneeled down together, and she prayed that I might understand how wicked it was to bear false witness against my neighbor, and that God would help me, a little child, to tell the truth as it was before Him. And when I came up here with father she kissed me, and told me to remember the ninth Commandment, and that God would hear every word that I

"Do you believe this?" asked the judge, while a tear glistened in his eye, and his lip quivered with emo-

"Yes, sir," said the child, with a voice and manner that showed her conviction of the truth, was perfect. "God bless you, my child," said the judge; "you have a good mother. This witness is competent," he continued. "Were I on trial for my life, and innocent of the charge against me, I would pray God for such a witness as this. Let her be examined." She told her story with the simplicity of a child, as she was, a directness about it which carried convicton of its truth to every heart. She was rigidly cross-examined. The counsel plied her with infinite and ingenious questioning, but she varied from her first statement in nothing. The truth as spoken by that little child was sublime. Falsehood and perjury had preceded her testimony. The prison-er had intrenched himself in lies. Witnesses had falsified facts in his favor, and villainy had . manufactured for him a sham defence. But before her testimony it was scattered like chaff. The little child for whom a mother had prayed for strength to be given her to speak the truth as it was before God, broke the cunning devices of matured villainy to pieces like a potter's vessel. The strength that her nother prayed for was given her, and the sublime and terrible simplicity terrible, Linean, to the prisoner and his associates-with which she spoke, was like a revelation from God him

How We Fade. As the trials of life thicken and the dreams of other days fade one by one, in the deep vista of disappointed hope, the heart grows weary of the struggle, and we begin to realize our insignificance. Those who have climbed to the pinnacle of fame, or revel in luxury and wealth, go to the grave at last with the poor mendicant who begs by the wayside, and like him are soon forgotten. Generation after generation, says an eloquent writer, have felt as we feel, and their fellows were as active in life as ours are now. They passed away as a vapor, while nature wore the same aspect of beauty as when the Creator commanded her to be. The heavens will be as bright over our graves as they are now around our path; the world have the same attraction for offsprings yet unborn that she once had for ourselves, and that she has now for our children:

Dr. Willet, lecturing in Boston the other night told a droll story of himself. He said that at one time, when he was a connoisseur in birdstuffing, he used to criticise other people's bird-stuffing severely. Walking with a gentleman one day, he stopped at a window where a gigantic owl was exhibited. "You see," said the doctor to his friend, "that there is a magnificent bird utterly ruined by unskillful stuffing. Notice the mounting! Execrable, isn't it? No living owl ever rested in that position. And the eyes are fully a third larger than any owl ever possessed." At this moment the stuffed bird raised one foot and solemnly blinked at the critic, who said very little more about stuffed birds that afternoon.

"I have been watching the smoke for some time;" said he "Why, then, did you not give us notice?" asked the travelers. "Well," responded the rustic, "there are so many new-fan-
