-MILLINERY "NEW MILLINERY!" SPRING STYLES MRS. DUNNING'S.

Poetry. KATTE LEE AND WILLIEGRAY.

[Always published once a year,] Two brown heads with tossing curls, Red lips shutting over pearls.
Bare feet white and red with dew,
Two eyes black and two eyes blue— Little boy and girl were they, Katie Lee and Willie Gray.

They were standing where a brook, Bending like a shepherd's crook, Flashed its silver, and thick ranks Of green willows fringed the banks, Half in thought and half in play—Katie Lee and Willie Gray. They had cheeks like cherries red.

He was taller—'most a head; She with arms like wreaths of snow, Swings a basket to and fro, As she loiters, half in play, Chatting there with Willie Gray. Pretty Katie," Willie said, And there came a dash of red Through the brownness of his check, Boys are strong and girls are weak, And I'll carry, so I will Katie's basket up the hill." Katie answered with a laugh, "You shall only carry half,"

And then toossing back her curls,
"Boys are weak as well as girls," Do you think that Katie guessed

Half the wisdom she expressed? Men are only boys grown tall; Hearts don't change much, after all, And when, long years from that day, Katie Lee and Willie Gray Stood again beside that brook, Bending like a shepherd's crook,

Is it strange that Willie said, While again a dash of red Crossed the brownness of his cheek; 'I'm strong and you are weak, Life is but a slippery steep, Hung with shadows, cold and deep.

"Will you trust me, Katic dear, Walk beside me without fear! May I carry—and I will— All your burdens up the hill!" And she answered with a laugh, "No-but you may carry half." Close beside the little brook,

Bending like a shepherd's crook, Washing with its silver bands, Late and early at the sands, Is a cottage, where, to-day, Katie lives with Willie Gray. In a porch she sits, and lo! Swings a basket to and fro-Vastly different from the one That she swung in years agone; This is long, and deep, and wide,

And—has rockers at the side.

BESSIE'S VALENTINE.

BY ROSA LEIGH.

Everybody said it was the dullest rinter there had over been; no sleigning, no parties, not even the usual revivals among the churches. During the holidays there had been a faint attempt at gayety, but it all evaporated with the early snows, and left the town more desolate than ever-at least the little town of Ingleside said so-until suddenly the cloud of discontent rolled away.

The wealthy family that owned the large brown house on the hill, were entertaining guests from a neighboring city; handsome young men, most of them, and gay withal. They had run down to the rural districts on a hunting excursion, but the rabbits and quails could only claim their attention through the short wintry days. The evenings were dull and dreary. To enliven the time the hostess of the brown house proposed a ball for St. Valentine's Eve, that the gentlemen, she said, might have an opportunity to see the rustic belles of Ingleside. Of course this motive was kept in the back-ground, so there was noth ing but the purest satisfaction felt by the village girls when they received an invitation to the great house, to a great ball.

Like snow-flakes, tiny notes fluttered from house to house, as each young lady inquired anxiously if her riend was going, and what should she

"Only think, she exclaimed, "here is enough to bu the dear little house Charlie and have been planning and striving to get for so long! And enough to furnish it besides, I do believe! Oh, this can't be mine. There is some mistake. The poor lady I was talking to last night must have sent it. Do go, dear mother, and ask her brother about it. I must not keep it—but if I only could!" and she looked wistfully at the paper in her hand.

A half hour later Bessie's mother was talking with the brother of the "poor lady," showing him what her daughter had received, telling all the circumstances.

He smiled when she finished, and said he knew it all, then went on to explain, saying:

"Mý sister is somewhat unsettled in her mind, and sometimes acts without discretion. The woman who has her in charge consults me upon matters of this kind, for poor Isabelle is very generous. We were at a loss to know where she had met with your daughter. She was cunning enough not to tell that, but, after questioning Nancy as to what your circumstances were, insisted upon sending the valentine you have shown me. I think she could not have found a more worthy object to bestow it upon. We are a fortunate family as regards money, but we have our troubles for all that.". ... Then he bowed politely, and left the

The days of February passed away before any one knew it. And when the winds of March were sighing around the homes of Ingleside, above the storm the church bells rang mourn-fully and slow. Down a broad avenue came a rosewood coffin—therich man's sister was dead. The remains were taken to the city;

How hard it is to tell before marriage what kind of a husband your lover will prove, has no doubt been the secret thought of many young ladies. And how very often they have been deceived, either one way or the other. Those who thought their attentive lovers would make good husbands have found them to be tyrants: and others whose lovers acted but too natural-who could not hide their illfeelings, but gave way to their passions in presence of their beloved idol and for whom his lady-love trembled at the idea of being united for life; but. loving too well, and not caring for his faults, hoping for reform, married him in spite of all this—how different was the realization-how good she found her husband to be! She was not deceived; she knew him before marriage, and found him to be what she expected; and what other result was in store but happiness—for the love was mutual.

And how different does the husband prove who, as a lover, was all attention—acting his part as such a one will, never forgetting himself during their engagement, but was always gallant; favored his future motherin-law; made presents to the sisters, furnished the little brother with candy, was pleasant to the cook, gave hand money to the porter, patted the dog and stroked the cat because they were connected with the house where his lady-love lived. How deceived is this lady, who finds that her husband is not what she thought him to be! She only saw his bright side be-fore marriage, and the dark ones after! Such acting on his part could not last after marriage; his natural feelings must come forward, and lo! she did not find him to be what she expected. What could the result of this be but unhappiness?

When we get what we expected we are not cheated, and, therefore, a natural-acting lover is always preferable to the gallant and unfathomed lover. Most generally the man who loves truly will act natural unknowingly, and the pretender has a part to act wherein he dare not lose his wit nor exhibit his passions. But the lover who shows by an act that he loves you and the next moment shows one of his ill passions, loves truly, for he does not think nor know that he is offending, his conscience being clear, and think that you love him as well as he loves you. But the pretender's conscience plagues him, and he is afraid of losing his prey thereby.

Therefore do not get offended at a natural-acting lover; for he loves you truly, and is unconscious of hurting your feelings.

The Source of Fashien. That conspicous courtesan of Paris, Cora Pearl, is said to be worth a million of francs, plucked from her dupes. In spite of her infamy, her ridiculous freaks in dress are copied by respectable women everywhere. Cora boasted one day, at a dinner given to a few intimate friends, men well known at the Jockey Club, that she could not wear the bizarre chapeau without having it copied at once. Miss Cora prepares her own designs, and if she wants to make a present of a scarf-pin or an onyx cap, she always makes a drawing for it.

A bet was staked upon this statement; so, taking one of the visitor's hats she smashed it, trampled it under foot, cocked up the brim and jammed in the crown, then dextrously trimmed it with ribbons, and stuck a white feather in the top. It then had to be christened, and the name finally pitched upon was the "Rabagas."

The improvised chapeau was worn in the Bois De Boulogne; and the next day a similar hat, but made of other materials, was placed in the window of the modiste who supplied the inventor. A more ugly-looking hat was never mounted upon the chignon of a lady, yet in a week it had become the mode, and for three long months "the Rabagas" has been all the fashion.,

Since it must have reached New York ere this, it is well perhaps, to give the origin of this monstrosity, born of a convival dinner and a very damaged tile.

CHIEF JUSTICESHIP. The death of Chief Justice Chase leaves an important vacancy in the Sapreme Bench of the United States. President Grant will have no easy task to select the proper person to so responsible a position. In fact no more important duty devolves upon my President than the appointment of the right person to fill the Chief Austiceship of the Supreme Court, the highest Judicial tribunal known to our Government. It is important that a man of unloubted integrity, of profound learning and experience, one who has a most extended knowledge of law, be chosen for the position. With Grant's knowledge of persons, his keen perception of character and litness for position, we have no fears' but a wise selection will be made to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Chief Justice Chase. It is now said that the President will make no appointment till the meeting of Congress in December. He has no disposition to hurry the matter, but will take abundant time to consider before filling so important a position. The list of Chief Justices, since the organization of the Government, has keen quite limited. Only six persons have ever been appointed to that responsible position—Jay, Rutledge, Ellsworth, Marshall, Taney and Chase. Jay and Ellsworth resigned after a short period of service, and Rutledge's appointment was rejected by the Senate. Marshall's and Taney's united period of service was sixty-two years, and Chase's nine years. Only one of these Chief Justices ever made a decision that really disgraced the nation, the celebrated Dred Scott decision, by Chief Justice Taney. In his de-cision of that case, he said of the colored man, whether slave or free, that they were "beings of an inferior order, and altogether unfit to associate with the white race either in social or political relations; and so far inferior that they had no rights which the white man was bound to respect."

The stain of that decision has been wiped out with blood, and now the fair name of America is not disgraced by the denial to any of her inhabitants the rights to citizenship, and all the rights recognized by the Declaration of Independence.

THE BENDER MURDERERS.

The shocking and wholesale murders which have recently been brought to light in Kansas, Labeete County chill the blood in the veins. In the locality designated the Bender family had resided for some time. The family consisted of four persons, the old man, his wife, son and daughter. The children had arrived at man and womanhood, and drank deep into the crimes of their parents, all seeming possessed of demons. This family kept a little inn on a lonely road where the weary traveler stopped for repose, but to be cruelly robbed and murdered.

The daughter was a healing medium, and many doubtless went to consult her who kept their mission secret, and were never heard of afterwards. Thus many mysterious disappearances took place in that neighborhood, without any suspicion attaching to the Benders.

Last March, however, Dr. York, brother of Senator York, left Fort Scott to return to his home in Independence. Not arriving, fears began to be entertained for his safety, and Col. York proceeded to trace up his brother, who had a considerable sum of money with him when he left Fort Scott. The missing brother was traced to within about two miles of the Bender place. Nothing further could be heard of him, all search and inquiries proving fruitless. The Benders were interrogated, but declared that no such man had been seen by them. It seems, however, that the fates were against this household of murderers, who becoming alarmed, ere a suspicion had been breathed against them, packed up and fled the country. The place being deserted naturally created suspicions, and searches followed. A trap-door was discovered, a deep well, clotted blood, all revealing the fearful fact that foul play had been at work at that lonely inn on that lonely road. Investigations proceeded until the body of Dr. York had been found buried in a garden in the rear of the house. His skull had been broken. The mystery was solved, the murderers known, but they had escaped.

Now that the character of the Benders was fully known, further search was made, and up to the present writing the bodies of eleven more victims have been discovered: In one grave the father and a little girl were found. It is thought that the little child was thrown alive into the father's grave by those human fiends, and buried alive, as there were no marks of violence on her body.

Intense excitement prevailed throghout the entire region. Over 3,000 persons were at the scene of these unparalled murders on last Sunday, and further search is constantly being

It is expected that every effort will be made to discover the whereabouts of the perpetrators of these horrid crimes. Large rewards will be offered for the apprehension of the assassins; and it is hoped ere long they will be made to suffer the just penalty due the commission of such fiendish deeds.

Statement of Senator Sparks. NILES TOWNSHIP, May 10,1873.

EDITORS RECORD :- I ask the privilege of making, through the columns of the RECORD, an explanation relative to certain false and slanderous charges against my private or moral character, while in Lansing during the session of the Legislature. Said charges appeared first on or about the first of April in the Volksblatt, a low, Democratic German paper of Detroit. I wrote to the editor of the Volksblatt and the next week he made a recantation and apology, which I supposed would be the end of the matter. Since that time, however, the article referred to, with comments severe and denunciatory, has been floating about in the different local papers, making, as I fear, an impression altogether unjust and unfounded. And as the RECORD is read by more of the citizens of our county than any other paper in the county, and having so far paid no attention to this matter save only a hurried note to the Republican and Democrat of Niles, I ask that you will do me the favor to allow me to make my defense therein. Now, as to and reiterated by others. It is charged, 1st, That I was absent from my post of duty and was at a "nigger minstrel show." I am quite willing that the post" and voting as constantly and regularly as any other Senator, I shall be much mistaken. True, on that particular evening I was absent, as were also about one-half of the Senators, there being nothing of general interest before us, and some Senator, as a joke, moved a call of the Senate, and of course the absentees were all brought in and rendered excuses.

the charges made in the Volksblatt

2d. It is charged I was at a "nigger show" with a "servant girl." In reply to this charge I would say that there has been but one "nigger show" in Lansing during the session, and I did not attend that. The "minstrels" alluded to were "Robinson's Minstrels," one of the best troupes now traveling, and all white men. True, I was accompanied by a lady with whom I have been acquainted for twenty years, and who chanced to be working for the family with whom I was boarding. As to the sneering insinuation of "servant girl," I have simply to say, that I am a laboring man myself and I look upon all labor as honorable, and am not ashamed to associate with the class that labor for a living, and a man that will insinuate that because a young lady works for an honest living that, therefore, she is impure or vile and unfit to be the associate of any man is a base traducer of womankind.

3d. That I called the Germans "long eared dutch." 'What I did say was in reply to a Senator who asked me if we had any Germans in our county. and in the way of a joke, and so understood at the time, I said, "We have | I at present occupy, which seems to no long eared dutch, ours are principally Pennsylvanians who read the papers, and some of them vote the Republican ticket."

4th. That I called the Germans "sour krout eaters" and "lager beer four months, I ask you to publish guzzlers." This charge is wholly and herewith the enclosed paper presented entirely false. In proof of which I to me on the last day of the session refer all persons to ex-Sheriff J. M. | but one, by a Senator unsolicited on Seward who was present during the my part. The paper contains the discussion referred to.

I had hired a house and had brought ness. With this showing I believe from Berrien county a "servant girl" every reasonable person will be satisfrom Berrien county a "servant girl' who kept house for us. This charge is sufficiently answered in an article it is of course unnecessary to reason taken from the Volksblatt the week after the appearance of the first article referred to. It was translated by good German scholar and may be relied on as correct, as follows:

"The report of our Lansing correspondent about Senator Sparks given in our last week's edition is by said gentleman declared false so far as that Senator Sparks and Representative West keep house together and keep a servant girl to do their work. We have never intended to wrong any one, not even Senator Sparks, but notwithstanding all care it will sometimes happen that a wrong report is received. All one can then do after an explanation is had is to correct the mistake. We do this now in the case of Senator Sparks and Representative West, as we have since learned that they do not keep house together but are boarding with a respectable citizen of Lansing, and that they conduct themselves in social as well as in private life in such a manner as becomes their official sta-

Learning from the editor of the Volksblatt that the slanderous article was written by Joseph Grensel, Jr., reporter for the Free Press, I went to him about the matter, when he confessed that the article "never should have been written." That he "very deeply regretted it," and that it was written only as a joke and to get even with me for what I had said in the discussion of the immigration bill and the temperance question: He said he would write to the St. Joseph Herald and try and make the matter right; and when the matter was called up in the House, on the last day of the session, and his expulsion demanded, he made a very candid and humble confession of his wrong doings, and appeared to be so thoroughly penitent that the House decided to accept his apology and not expelihim, on the ground of his being a young man, and that it would ruin his business as reporter. In this connection I will say that there was no member of the Legislature more constantly in his seat attending to his duties than I. The Townal will show; my vote recorded on almost all questions, except when I was at home one week on account of sickness in my family; and when, in a ed in the Unitarian Church. Among very few instances, I was engaged in those present were Vice President committee work. No member was more regularly in his room at his boarding house than myself. Berrien

County

I have nothing but the very kindest of feeling for the people of Berrien County, among whom I have resided for forty-five years. I appreciate fully the very generous support they gave me last fall, and can only regret that a few individuals among them are disposed, for purposes that I cannot divine, to attack my private reputation, failing to find anything in my official acts to censure. The secret of this attack in the

that I used language in the discussion of the bill to repeal the immigration act, (a bill that I had introduced, and being Chairman of the committee had | which the casket rests is heavily drapto look after) which was construed as reflecting against the Germans, although I publicly disavowed any such intention, but principally on account of a speech I made in the Senate on the resolution to submit an amendment to the Constitution to the people authorizing the issuing of licenses for the sale of ardent spirits as a beverage. Three or four Senators had spoken in favor of the resolution, and but one (Senator Childs) in opposition, when, exercising my right as a Senaator, and speaking, as I believe I did, Journal should be examined and if I | the sentiment of a large majority of an not found to have been at "my | my constituents, I took occasion to give my views in opposition to the principle or policy of licensing the sale of liquor. I took the ground that the sale of liquor was a crime, that it is wrong, per se, that it is wrong to license a crime. That we had no right to make the State a party to the crime. That if we should license it because we can not prohibit it entirely and thereby obtain a large revenue, we should, to be consistent, license all other crimes that we cannot prohibit for the revenue we could thus obtain. I know that my speech met the approval of the clergymen and other good citizens of Lansing who were present, and the bitter denunciations of the saloon men who were there in full force, as they expected the resolution would pass. This German reporter alluded to was highly offended, and declared that "We will be even with you yet." I have the satisfaction of knowing that my course on that occasion was approved by many of my constituents who wrote me encouraging letters, and as a sample I beg to give here a quo-

Buchanan,

NEW YORK, May 10th.—At clock this morning the remains of the late Chief Justice Chase were removed from the residence of William S. Hoyt, No. 4 West Thirty-third street, where he died, to St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square, the Rev. Stephen II. Tyng, rector, where they remained in state from the opening of the edifice at 8 o'clock until 1 o'clock p. m. The casket in which the remains rest is of rosewood, ornamented with silver mouldings, and having massive silver handles at the head, foot Volksblatt is found, first, in the fact and sides. It is ornamented with a wreath of delicate white and tube roses. and a cross of white flowers rests on the lower end of the lid. The dias on ed in black, caught up in three festoons on the sides, from which depend as many black velvet tassels. The head of the coffin is placed towards the entrance of the building. The entrance for the public who desired to view the remains was through the side door, thence to the chancel, passing down the center aisle on either side of the dias on which the casket rests. As early as the church doors were opened, there was a row of carriages in front containing ladies and gentlemen waiting for admittance, to take a look at the face of the dead jurist. During the forenoon, carriages drove up to the church door in an almost continuous line, from which issued eminent citizens and clegantly dressed ladies, who passed through the church, took a look at the features of the dead and quietly drove away. There were 150 policemen present to preserve order and place the people in line, so that no crush or unseemly scene in the church should take place. At one o'clock the side entrance to the church was closed, and no more people were admitted, and as soon as those inside passed out, the front doors were closed.

> The arrangements for the funeral are as follows: At 2:30 the doors will again be opened, and the gallery will be set apart for the people. In the body of the church the following disposition of seats has been decided upon. The family of the deceased will occupy the front pews in the middle aisle, while behind them, and on either side, are to be seated the pall-bearers. Then follows the Assistant Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States; the President and Cabinet; the foreign diaplomatic representatives; the Judiciary of the United States and of the State and City of New York; the late Chief Justice in Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet; United States Senators and members of Congress; the Governor and Legislature of the State of New York; officers of the Dr. Tyng will read from the manual the service of the Episcopal Church, and the dias having been removed to the chancel the casket will be placed upon it. According to the wishes of the family of the deceased vocal music will not form a part of the ceremony. The following music will be executed by the organist: "Dead March," Petrella; "Dead March," Donizetti; "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," Handel; "Marche Funebre," Beethoven; "Dead March From Saul," Handel. At the conclusion of the services the procession will move down the aisle in the same order as it entered, and the remains will be deposited in an apartment adjoining the vestibule, to remain in charge of the guard of honor. Later in the evening they will be conveyed to the Jersey City ferry in time for the Washington train. The members of the family with a few friends will accompany the remains to the Capitol: TO WASHINGTON. At the conclusion of the services

From Ohio.

DELPHOS, May 8, 1873. MESSRS. WAGNER & KINGERY:-We have had great rains this spring as well as great snows in the winter; and mud such as the people were accustomed to when Ohio was first settled. Our canal is full of wild water; none having been let in as yet from the reservoir, for in that the water is shut up and tamed for use. It is well supplied with enough to last two years even without more rain. And what a grand sight it is! A week ago last Sunday I was at St. Mary's with Mrs. Fuller, by the appointment of the Presbytery to supply the pulpit. The Ohio state convention soon meets to frame a new constitution. It will awaken no small amount of interest. The subject of education and railroads will occupy an important place. #### Three Additional Bodies Found on the Bender Farm.

PARSONS, Kan. May 12 - Colonel Boudenot who has just returned from the scene of Bender's murders, reports three more graves discovered yesterday. Over:3,000 people: were on the ground. A special train had just arrived with seven cars filled with people. There was intense excitement all over the country, and a firm. determination to ferret out the parties engaged in the murders. It is understood that large rewards will be offered by the county and State for the arrest of the assassins. Nearly all the bodies of the dead were indecently mutilated. It is considered certain that the little girl was thrown alive into the grave of her father, as no marks of violence were found on the body:

WASHINGTON, May 12,-The Louisiana troubles are considered virtually settled., McEnery and his supporters will not combat the Federal authorities. The President, since his room is draped in black, as is that of return, has declared his intention of giving the Kellogg State Government all the moral support in his power. A letter received here to-day from one of Kellogg's friends on the conservative side, declares that the Government is master of the situation. The President said to-day that he had pledged the country. Congress, and the people of Louisiana to support the State Government recognized by the United States District Court, and that I endeavored faithfully and to the best number; marching in procession. the same as that upon which the body, he was determined so to do until high-

Thursday.

NEW YORK, May 10.—A dispatch from St. Johns, Newfoundland, of May 9, says the steamer Walrus arrived from the seal fishery, bringing news that the steamer Tigress had come into Robert's Bay, 18 miles from here, having on board 19 survivors of Capt. Hall's Arctic Expedition. The following are the names of THE RESCUED.

H. C. Tison, assistant navigator Frederick Meyer, incteorologist; John Heron, steward; W. C. Kruger, scaman; Frederick Jamka, seaman; Wm. Mirdemaun, seaman; Frederick Anting, seaman; Gustavus T. Lenguist, scaman; Peter Johnson, scaman: William Jackson, cook; Esquimaux Joe, interpreter; Hannah and child, Esquimaux; Hans Christian, of Dr. Kane's expedition; Hans Christian's wife and four children, . the youngest only 8 months old. This party, which had been landed from the Polaris, were driven from her by a gale, which burst her moorings on the 15th of October, 1872, in latitude 72.35. When they last saw the Polaris she was under steam and canvas, making for the harbor on the east side of Northumberland Island. She had

NO MORE BOATS LEFT. Of the six which she brought with her from the port of New York, two were lost in the Northern expedition, two were landed on the ice with Capt. Tyson's party, one was burned as firewood to make water for the crew, and the other is on board the Tigress. teded the Metropolitan Church, and | The Polaris was in command of Capt. Buddington, who had 13 of the crew with him and a plentiful stock of provisions. Her bow was somewhat damaged, and it is the opinion of the survivors that these will be unable to get clear until July, and even then, if the ship is unseaworthy, they will have to make new boats to effect an escape.

> On October 8, 1871, in latitude 81.28, longitude 71.44, Capt. Hall died of apoplexy, and was buried on shore, where they erected a wooden cross to mark his grave. He had recently returned from a northern sledge expedition, in which he had attained the latitude of 82.16. He seemed in his usual health, and had called the crew into the cabin to encourage, with hopes of future rewards, and stimulate them to renewed exertions, when he was suddenly struck down and expired, to the great grief of those around, to whom he had endeared himself by his kindness and devotion.

E. PLIMPTON, Complainants' Solicitor. IN SEPTEMBER, 1871. the Polaris entered winter quarters. and left August 12, 1872. The ice was very heavy, and set in a southerly direction. She was forced south, and so continued drifting till Capt. Tyson and party were driven from her. The sledge party crossed Kane's Polar Sea, which they pronounced to be a strait about 15 miles wide, and there was an appearance of open water to the north. The rescued party suffered very much during the dreary drift from hunger and cold. For the last two months they ate raw seal and polar bear as they could get it. When met by the Tigress they showed evident signs of their great sufferings, but during the nine days that they have been on board they have improved vastly, and are now in fair health The party is in charge of the United States Consul, and will arrive in St. Johns on Monday next.

County AN ARTIST. It is with feelings of pleasure that we call attention to the work of Mrs. M. Catheart in the line of oil likeness painting. She has re-cently completed some of the best and most life-like paintings that we have ever seen anywhere. Her work will bear the closest inspection, being free from that harshness and roughness which so mars the beauty and harmony of this class of paintings. It will be well worth the while of any of our citizens, who appreciate fine likeness painting, to visit the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. Cathcart, and inspect the paintings executed by the latter. We are confident that all such persons will feel highly gratified to know that Buchanan can boast so successful an ar-

THE LEAVITT'S TROUPE OF BELL RINGERS are coming to Buchanan and will give one of their incomparable entertainments at Collins & Weaver's Hall on Wednesday evening of next week, May 21st. This troupe have been traveling through the East, and are now making the tour of Michigan, of delegates duly appointed to attend having exhibited in many of our towns and cities, giving universal satisfaction. The Company consists of nine performers, five gentlemen and four ladies, and all who desire to witness an entertainment, first class and worth more than the price of admission, should not fail to attend. The following extracts, showing how this Company is regarded by those who have seen and heard them, are selected from many notices of like charac-Leavitt's troupe of Bell Ringers gave in entertainment at Union Hall, insthis city, on Friday evening of last week, to large and appreciative audience. The performance was good in every particular, and in some respects, was far superior to anything we have witnessed in many a day. We are always pleased to attend an entertainment where the performance is not only first class, but where the artists are gentlemanly and lady-like, which is a marked feature in Leavitt's Troupe.— The versatile character of the company s Harry Eades, who came upon the stage n six phases of comic life, and nearly exploded the audience with his funny songs and droll facial and bodily expressions. FROM GALIEN.

May 11th, 1873. Editors Record:—From your last paper I learn that you have been having some excitement in your place. We too have had lively times for several days in our little town. Among many things which I might speak of there are two or three which I will mention by your permission. On's Sunday, not long since, a company of young men took the hand-car and went down the track to a small lake to fish. On their way back, when running quite fast, two of the car wheels broke and precipitated said young men headlong upon the ties and rails. Two or three of them were, pretty severely injured, but no lives were lost. This should be a warning to all to stay at home on the Sabbath and read the RECORD, if they have no Bible.—Not long after the above happened the news went around that somebody had had his horse stolen. Three or four men, with the constable, started in hot pursuit, and soon caught the thief, who proved to be an old man crazy as a loon. He could give no account of himself, except that he had friends in Chicago. He was tak-en before Esq. Blakeslee, who sent him to Berrien to await trial.-Last Friday there was a very interesting lawsuit before Justice Ash. It appears that the complainant has been "on the war path" for some time with every man in Galien and vicinity. One day he will abuse a man until he gets knocked down, and the next he will get a search warrant and search his fight. The complainant gets "scart" and takes this neighbor with a warrant them had to keep them under lock and key, without food or drink, all the afternoon before they would render-a verdict without their fees, but as there they finally gave it up as a bad'i job. I understand that the complainant has WAGON FACTORY.—At a meeting of since left for parts unknown. the Directors of the Buchanan Wag-Respectfully, CITIZEN. on Manufacturing Company, on Tues-

The exercises will be public and very interesting. Petty thieving is now quite extensively carried on in our city by some unknown persons. . Baskets, wash-tubs, hoes, rakes, hammers, axes, and various other such small articles are daily or nightly being carried off from one or another. Look out for your small articles. THE BENTON HARBOR Palladium says: On Friday last Dr. Winan's little son Charley, seven years old, met with quite an accident, a narrow escape. He was riding on a wagon which was loaded with manure, and in passing through a gate a fork, which was on the load, caught against a post, and was thrown out in such a manner as to strike the child in the face. 30 negtine struck the forehead, cutting a gash to the bone; two inches long, laying bare the temporal artery. Another struck the nose and glanced across the outer canthus of the eye. Dr. Winans being absent, Dr. Bell was called in and dressed the wound, and the patient is doing well. Our county has been very well represented during the past session in the Legis lature. Senator Sparks, notwithstanding his faults, of which we spoke freey last week, has been a very good legislator; and Messrs. West, Bonine and Chamberlain have done excellent service: Several veryimportant laws were originated by Mr. West, and carried through in spite of determined opposition. The interests of this locality received his careful attention, and he did all that we could have expected him to do for us .- The fishermen are having abundant succession

- MOPE'S SONG. I hear it singing, singing sweetly, Softly in an undertone; Singing as if God had taught it, "It is better farther on."
- Night and day it sings the same one; Sings it while I sit alone, Sings it so the heart may hear it, "It is better farther ou."
- Sits upon the grave and sings it, Sings it when the heart would groun, Sings it when the shadows darken, "It is better farther on." " Farther on?" But how much farther?
- Count the milestones one by one;
  No! no doubting—only trusting,
  "It is better faither on."

Deal Gently With the Erring.

Deal gently with the erring, no mat-ter who they are. If you are a Christian, let your influence be felt in kindly acts to those who have gone astray; and the principles of religion replanted within you (which thinketh no evil, but is kind,) ever prompt you to do good as you have opportunity.

Do not withhold a kind word or pleasant smile, but give it cheerfully; it costs you nothing, and may fall on the heart just at the right time, rekindling the hopes which have been almost extinguished by deeds of sin, und create a desire for a better life. We believe there are times when those who have deeply erred are indeed sor-towful; memory recalls the days of their happy, innocent childhood; some far off loving reproof of a father or mother, whose voices have long since heen hushed in death, now comes up before them vividly portrayed, causing heartfelt sorrow; at such moments Christian sympathy cannot fail to be felt and appreciated, if gently, kindly, given, coming, too, from a heart over-flowing with the love of Christ. The command is "love thy neighbor as thyself," and are we not doing this, when we, as Christians, try to overcome the natural disgust we feel for those who do wrong, and aim to do them good by kindly influences?

The words of the Savior were, "Go and sin no more." Sorrow and love are here combined—the kind heart of the Savior was deeply touched, but he did not condemn; then we, as followers of His example, are not to judge and condemn those more unfortunate than ourselves, but to let our light shine by dealing gently and lovingly with the erring; thus leading them to forsake their evil ways and follow that which is good.—Mother's Journal.

Following the Master.

Blessed is the man who never rests his foot in any path of conduct without looking carefully for the way-marks of his Master, and consulting his guide-book! Through some lowly doors, where pride must stoop low to enter, he may be called to pass. Over thorny paths he may be made to tread. Up more than one mount of sacrifice, bearing heavy crosses, he may be summoned, but so that Christ be the lead or, he may not be afraid to follow.

And in heaven it will still be his joy and his glory to "follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth." There the "Lamb who is in the midst of the throne shall feed him, and lead him, unto living fountains of water."

The Strength of a Kind Word.

How strong is a kind word! It will do what the harsh word, or even a blow cannot do. It will subdue the stubborn will, relax the frown, and work wonders.

Even the dog, the cat, the horse, though they do not know what you say, can tell when you speak a kind word to them.

A man was one day driving a cart along the street. The horse was drawing a heavy load, and did not turn as the man wished him to. The man was in an ill temper, and beat the horse. The horse reared and plunged, but he either did not, or would not go the right way. Another man, who was with the cart, went up to the horse, kindly patted him on the neck, and called him by name. The horse turned his head, and fixed his large eyes on the man, as though he would say, "I will do anything for you, because you are kind to me;" and bending his broad chest against the load, he turned the lane, and trotted on brisk-ly, as though the load was a play-thing.

A Noble Sentiment.

Daniel Webster penned this senti-ment: "If we work upon marble, it will perish; if we work upon brass, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble into dust; but if we work on mortal minds—if we imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and our fellow men, we engrave on those tablets something that will brighten through all eterni-

Self Denial.

It is a matter that cannot be too often considered that real happiness, health, order, peace and bounty, de-pend on self-denial. If nature, in its wild state, and wishes, and indulgent sensualities, is to be humored, a dose of poison is brewing, a scourge for the fool's back is preparing—like drunkards who sit down in good humor to tipple, but soon proceed to black eyes.
No man ever found a happy life by chance, or yawned it into being with a wish. Even the kingdom of heaven suffers violence, and the violent only take it by force. So that perfect peace, may be won by perpetual war, and the health of the spirit by; the death of the flesh. My old max m is that religion will cost us something, but the want of it infinitely more. Rev. R. Cecil.

Praying with the Eyes Shut. A good deacon, on a certain occasion, while listening to the complain-ings and doubts of his brethren under peculiarly trying circumstances, when it seemed impossible that prayer should avail in their behalf, exclaimed with avail in their behalf, exclaimed with great earnestness and simplicity; "Ah, SEWING MACHINES, iren, we must pray with our ey shut!"

Yes, truly, and often do we need to follow the advice of the godly deacon. We must shut our eyes to all the difficulties in the way, to all the suggestions of the adversary, and, with uplifted hearts and hands, cry mightily unto Him with whom all things are possible for the accomplishment of our desires.

Vinegar Briters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whisky, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippier on to drunk enness and rum, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life-giving Principle, a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enricating it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, sade and reliable in all forms of disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vinegar Birtens the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sistained the sinking system.

Plin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist: There is scarcely an individual on the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy, elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminities will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Mechanical Diseases—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Typesetters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walkers's Vinegard against this, take a dose of Walkers's Vinegard against this, take a dose of Walkers's Vinegard Types, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of nunsual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walkers's Vinegar Birtens, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which healthy functions of the digestive organs.
