Poetry. EGO AND ECHO.

I asked of Echo, the other day,
Whose words are few and often funny, What to a question she would say
Of courtship, love and matrimony.
Quoth Echo plainly, "Matter o' money." Whom should I marry? Should it be A dashing damsel, gay and pert, Or pattern of consistency,
Or selfish, mercenary flirt?
Quoth Echo, plainly, "Nary flirt."

What if, a-weary of the strife That long has lured the gay deceiver, She promised to amend her life
And sin no more—can I believe her?
Quoth Echo, with decision, "Leave her."

But if some maiden with a heart-On me should venture to bestow it, Pray should I act the wiser part To take the treasure or forego it? Quoth Echo, very plainly, "Go it." But what if, seeming afraid To bind her fate in Hymen's fetter,

In answer to my loving letter?
Quoth Echo, very plainly, "Let her." What if, in spite of her disdain, I find my heart entwined about With Cupid's dear, delicious chain, So closely that I can't get out? Quoth Echo, laughingly, "Get out."

She vows she means to die a maid,

But if some maid with beauty blest, As pure and fair as heaven can make her Till envious death shall evertake her? Quoth Echo (sotto voce), "Take her."

SOMEBODY'S SOMETHING.

The levee was at its height. Mertie Favor stood the center of a merry, laughing group, evidently the very life of it, the members of which were casting sharp nothings back and forth at each other, in the most good-natured manner possible, when some one called out:

"Miss Favor, do you propose tending school this winter ?" "Oh, yes," answered Mertie. "I've not outgrown the town school yet." "What do you think of the teacher?" was asked.

"Not having the honor of his acquaintance, I'm not prepared to state, but I've no doubt he is stupid enough; our teachers always are."

A burst of laughter greeted this rather sharp answer, and Mertie noticed that a most amused look lingered in the eyes of a tall stranger who | read much, and sensibly, which is a | stood near-after the general laugh had subsided. "What shall you study, Mert?"

asked a schoolmate, thinking to turn the tide of the conversation. "Oh! I shall review my old study -mischief-perhaps, and blank-books if the teacher thinks me equal to any-

Again a merry laugh, and the amused look in the eyes of the stranger grew into a broad, peculiar smile. as he turned and walked away. Mertie was used to being laughed at, so she did not mind it much; till she thought to herself: "That man questioned her in regard to her stud-"There-Mertie Favor-I never saw your equal-I guess you've done it now.' "Done what?" asked Mertie in astonishment, "what have I done?" "Why got yourself into a pretty scrape by calling the teacher a 'stupid, for that man with a long beard -that stood at your right-is Mr. Harrison, our teacher for this winter." under her breath, "and he is looking right straight at me now. Why, he looked so sedate, I thought he must be a professor, or something.' Here Mertie ventured to glance across the room, and in so doing encountered again the eyes of Mr. Harrison, and she saw that they still held in their brown depths the look of amusement that she had before ob-"I'll face the music if it kills me," she thought, and as usual, without stopping to take a second thought, she sprang lightly off the little platform on which she was standing with her companions, and much to their astonishment walked quickly across the room. In one moment she stood directly in front of Mr. Harrison bravely confronting those merry eyes. Holding her hand out frankly she "It was too bad for them to draw me out so, they knew I would say some abominable thing—I always do; but if you will excuse it. I will be a good girl all winter-if I can."

"Do not feel badly, Miss Favor; your remark was not so very unjust. perhaps. Schoolmasters are apt to e stupid."

Mertie saw at once that he meant to tease her a little, and as this was taking her on her own ground, her courage rose, so she tried to look demurely but answered wickedly: "I know it-but it is not allowable to tell them so." Evidently Mr. Harrison was not offended at her answer for he made room for her to sit down beside him. "Come and tell me something about the school I am to commence so soon—are many of my future pupils like you—having the same studies?"

Mertie flushed warmly at this reference to her studies, but answered "Oh, no! I am not a specimen; the specimen of the specimen of

"I shall expect to see you promptly at nine o'clock Monday morning, and I have no idea of finding you so deficient as you represent." "Oh, but you will-I am sorry to say—father has always called me 'Nobody's Nothing,' and I assure you the title is only too well earned." Monday morning came round as Monday mornings in November are apt to do-clear, cold and frosty, but this did not prevent the school-room from being filled to the brim with noisy boys and girls, and the disturbance only became less when curlyheaded Harry Frost came rushing in, shouting:

"The teacher's coming; get into your seats, every one of you. But a few of the elder ones lingered around the stove, Mertie among the rest, and Mr. Harrison seeing her, went to her at once, saying cordially: "I am glad to see one familiar face among so many strange ones, though I trust they will all be familiar soon. Mertie welcomed him quietly-introduced him to the scholars standing around, and after a few words of greeting they all took their seats, and the routine of all school life began.

It was not monotonous to Mertie. however, for Mr. Harrison evidently intended to know what ingredients were required to compose a 'Nobody's Nothing, for he lost no opportunity of being with her and improving the acquaintance so queerly commenced. We will not say that it was designedy that Mr. Harrison spent so much time on his other classes that he had no time in school hours to explain the difficult problems in Mertie's geometry, and was obliged to put her off till evening, when he would "just step in and explain them all to her;" but the almost utter neglect of the poor geometry in the evening could not have been entirely unintentional, for it generally lay open before them, as they sat side by side at the table, and its queer figures seemed to ask for attention; but its calls were unheeded, or discussed bits of travel, or poems which they read together. Mr. Harrison was more and more surprised each day as the mind of his thing too seldom to be said of the stand everything that she read. It is not strange that all these quiet evenings should bring them nearer together than ordinary pupil and teacher, and when the fourteen weeks of winter school began to draw to a close. Mr. Harrison often asked himself what he should do with his evenings, with no Mertie, to help him to pass them. The question came oftener and oftener as the time for parting drew near, and he found it brought him positive pain. looked at me queerly;" but she probably never would have thought of it and he—oh, dear! he almost wished again had not the schoolmate who that ten years could be clipped off his age, that he might be nearer a suitaole companion for his pet. He felt that she looked up to him as an elder brother, for she often called herself his little sister, and allowed him the quiet home familiarity that a brother has by right. He feared that by breaking in upon this delusion and showing her the reality, he should frighten her away from him and never be able to win her back; for the intercourse of these winter evenings "Oh, merciful!" exclaimed Mertie had brought him to love this truehearted little girl as only a strong heart can love, for though nearly thirty years of age-he had never loved before, Examination was over. School had closed. Pupils and teacher had bidden each other adieu with one exception. As Mr. Harrison shook hands with Mertie (as with the rest) he said

"This is not a final farewell, I must see you this evening; you will be at home?" "Yes!" answered Mertie, and she turned away quickly, that he might be diligently gathered and patiently not see her rising color, or hear the hoarded, or the wherewith to discharge quick beating of her heart. She did not know what it meantshe did not dare ask herself-all she knew was that she wanted to get away from him and from everybody else, and still the beating of her troublesome heart in the quiet of her own chamber. Early that evening, Mertie heard the well-known footsteps of Mr. Harrison in the hall, and rose herself to open the cosey sitting-room door, for her father had gone to his office, and the housekeeper was in her own room, and as usual, Mertie was alone. For a time the conversation was upon ordinary topics, and then turned upon the cost of collecting. Come here in the close of the school, and naturally. single file, that the printer may form thence to the departure of the teacher. "Shall you miss me any, Mertie?"

he asked. "Oh, yes. We shall all miss you like one of us." "I did not ask if 'we' should miss me, Mertie; I asked if you would

miss me when I am gone."
"Certainly I shall," she answered;

> From the Boston Globe. A Change of Pictures and of Wives--A Romantic Story.

There is a little romance going the rounds about Richard Farquahr Dingle and his wife Phœba, and Robert Moore and his wife Mary. The account of the strange fortune that happened these couples is so circumstantial that it must be in the main true. All the parties were English, and were newly married as above in England before they came to the New World to court the goddess fortune. Dick Dingle and his wife were both blondes, and Bob Moore and his were browns. and both women were beauties of their respective types, and all were young and adventurous. The two couples didn't come over in the same ship, but they came about the same time, and they did not know each other. Dick Dingle, together with his pretty wife, proceeded to Petroleum Center, Pa., with a capital of $10,000, which was soon sunk in oil wells-all but $400. Dick divided this sum with Phobe, and started out alone, for the Argentine Republic to retrieve his lost fortune and make another. He struck pupil became unfolded to him. A Day's List of Paris Suicides.

There were no fewer than eight suicides in one day in Paris lately. A lady ln Rue de la Pepinier strangled herself with a cord at 8 o'clock in the morning, leaving every one in ignorance of her fatal termination. At the same time a man precipitated himself from the Austerlitz bridge into the Seine. A printer followed his example later in the afternoon. Then a young man adopted the strange method of throwing himself beneath the feet of omnibus horses, and was, of course, mortally injured. Two cases of death by deliberate suffocation took place, one being by a young man crossed in love. The saddest, however, of the eight deaths, was that of two young girls, young and poor, who after dancing all night at the ball of the parisian "florists," agreed quietly to put an end to their existence. One of these, Angelique Lachemy, diệd for the very simple reason that she was tired of life. The other, Eugenie Hardy, committed suicide from chagrin caused by disappointment in love. Both these girls were only 15 years old.

Truth Stranger than Fiction.

In a late English novel the plot is based upon a wife's imprisonment of her husband in his own house for many years, and until he had become broken and imbecile: Those who have read the story have looked upon it as sensational and impossible. but it is well nigh matched in almost a parallel case at Madison, Wis. Some months ago a man named Jacob Schmitz disappeared very suddenly, and in ressince his departure she had heard that he was murdered. She refused to admit any one to the house, which was kept locked, saying that she had been ordered not to by her husband prior to his departure. The suspicions of the people were aroused, and Mrs. Schmitz was closely watched. A few days ago she determined to make her escape with her daughter from the city, but was apprehended and brought back. An examination of the house was then made, and her husband discovered, reduced in body to a mere skeleton and in intellect to the condition of a raving maniac. What cause the woman had for this singular behavior is as yet a mystery, but the fact demonstrates once more that nothing can be stranger than the truth.

A Plea for Early Marriages. Rev. Henry Morgan lectured in Boston not long since on the subject, Young Men and Early Marriages, the following is the Herald's report of the lecture: Nature, history, and revelation declare, "It is not good that man should be alone." He needs a help mate—a wife is the balancewheel, the regulator, the guardian angel of a husband's trust, confidence and prosperity. Politically, socially, morally and spiritually, man requires a wife. Man needs a home. The Romans gave . bachelors no legacies. Corinth denied them sepulcher. In Plato's common wealth, at the age of thirty-five they were fined. Man is but half a man without a wife. In all your gettings get a wife, and never rest from getting till you get married. Better live in an attic, under the hallowed in-fluence of a wife, than revel in a place of dissipation. Man needs a home. Marriage is the legitimate basis of a genuine home. Look at the deplora-ble condition of the young men of this city without homes. Boardinghouses have no elevating society of women, no home influence, no place of mental or moral improvement, no altar of prayer, no angel of love.

Grandeur of the Bible. If you have ever tried it, you must have been struck with the solid thoughts, the few suggestive ideas which survive the perusal of the most brilliant of human books. Few of them can stand three readings, and of the memorabilia which you have marked in your first reading, on reverting to them you find many of them were not striking or weighty, or original as you thought. But the word of God'is striking; it will stand a thousand readings, and the man who has gone over it the most frequently, and carefully, is the surest of finding new wonders there.

Sweet is life to an unbeliever though the torments of hell be suffered; sweeter to the Christian than the sound of falling waters is the voice which tells of happy death and a home beyond the grave.

SIGNIFICANT. At last Vanderbilt has backed out. and paid over to the Government the $400,000 he owed for taxes on his Central Railroad. This is a triumph of importance to the people, and augurs good things to come. It predicts that the Government will no longer tamely submit to Railroad dictation. The delays have been somewhat lengthy, the suits and attachments wearisome, but right has triumphed, and Vanderbilt, the railroad king, has been brought to time. For the country this is a good omen, as the next great battle will be "The People against Railroad monopolists." Already the forces are marshaling for the fray. The contest will be bitter on both sides, yet the people will triumph if they but persevere. From now till the meeting of Congress, in December, this Railroad question will continue to increase in importance. During the next session every speech, act and vote of every Member and Senator, touching the Railroad question, will be scanned and weighed in the balance by the sovereign power in this nation, the people. Politically, any Congressman might as well yield up the ghost as to favor by act, word or deed, the oppressive monopolies of the day. To advocate the unjust and oppressive claims of the Railroads will entail the lasting disapprobation of the great mass of the people of all parties, trades, conditions and avocations.

While the people do and will demand security against these moneyed corporations, they are not now disposed to ask anything unjust. They only desire that justice shall be secured, and that all just rights of Railroads shall be protected, while their oppression of the people shall be prevented. Let this be done and all will be well. Let it be denied, and these corporations and all public servants favoring their unjust extortions, will be made to suffer soon or late. The result is inevitable and it cannot be otherwise. Even the most restricted vision should be able to comprehend the signs of the times.

THE MODOCS.

At last accounts the Modocs are said to have escaped from their stronghold, and were in the vicinity of Snow Mountain. It is feared that after all, this band of savage desperadoes may escape and elude the Government troops. If they should do so, and scatter to other tribes, the result cannot be anything but disastrous. The Indians in Oregon, and in fact it in just such a condition as would insure an easy work to incite a general Indian war. It, therefore, becomes a matter of no little importance that the Modocs be captured speedily, as delays will cause more uneasiness among the red men, and perchance a speedy outbreak.

STOKES.

The case of Stokes, the murderer of James Fisk, Jr., is ordered for hearing before the Court of Appeals on Monday next. This is, as we understand the case, the last resort, being the highest Court in the State of New York. If Stokes fails here, there remains no more chance of escaping the just penalty of the law. It is not at all probable that Governor Dix will in any way interfere with the judgments and decisions of the Courts. It is sincerely to be hoped that nothing may transpire in the Court of Appeals whereby the murderer may escape the just deserts of. his crime.

OFFICIAL VOTE.

The official caucusses of the vote out of the April election, was completed at Lansing the 15th. Isaac P. Christiancy for Justice of the Supreme Court received 140,784 votes. For Regents Edward C. Walker received, 84,400 votes; Andrew Climie, 83,-622; Duane Doty, 52,032; Andrew M. Fitch 44,397. There were evidently 706 additional votes intended for Mr. Walker, 50 for Mr. Doty, 4,-288 for Mr. Climie and 6,461 for Mr. Fitch, but they were not counted owing to some defects in the ballots. Oscar D. Spaulding received 1,104 votes and Ronald Kelly, 1,114.

SPEEDY JUSTICE. The following item we find credited to the LaPorte Argus. If it is true, and we have no reason to doubt it, it speaks well for the officers and authorities connected with the arrest, trial, conviction, sentence and imprisonment of the thief Becker. If crime could be more speedily punished—if there were not usually such long delays in the visiting of punishment upon the guilty, occasioned by the law's red tapeism, we imagine crime would speedily decrease. Could every case be brought to a decisive issue, as the one reported in the following extract, horse stealing, and murders, and other crimes would be less frequent. To LaPorte County, Indiana, we accord the palm for the quickest judicial proceedings, from the arrest to the incarceration of the sentenced criminal within the prison walls.

The Argus says: "Yesterday morning, at three o'clock, Andrew Becker stole a horse from D. Hudson, of Galena township: Dan Brown heard of it at seven, captured the thief at 8:30; he was indicted at 11, sentenced at 11:20, taken to Michigan City at 2:30, had a cheviot suit on at 4, and was locked in his penitentiary cell at 4:15. As soon as I noticed it I took him from the wagon and bled him, but I saw he was getting worse so I took him about a quarter of a mile farther so that I could get something done for him, but it seemed that we could get nothing to help him for he kept growing worse until he died. He was not sick to exceed three-quarters of an hour. To tell the truth of the matter, it leaves me in a rather bad state of affairs; well, such is life. I will be compelled to stop here for awhile, I cannot say how long, for I can't sell the rest of my rig, and I cannot buy another horse just now. It may be that I will have to stay here all summer. EDITORS RECORD :- You make me tell you in the last paper that Tougaloo is 27 miles from Jackson, capital of were he in Mississippi, to visit its capital, a city of some 5,000 inhabitants, very neatly placed in the heart of a rich fruit and cotton growing region. It is 183 miles north of New Orleans, on the G. N. R. R., or, as it is familiarly known here, New Orleans and Jackson R. R. Jackson has all the State public buildings—Penitentiary, Deaf and Dumb and Blind Asylums. The State House is a good, substantial edifice, of not particularly modern style, but well adapted to its purpose, commodious and spacious, and beautifully located. The Executive Mansion, some gentleman remarked to me, is after the model of the White House at Washington. Resembles it, but of course is on a smaller scale. Jackson has a large local trade. Much cotton finds a market there, and much more passes it on its route to New Orleans. One will notice car after car loaded with this great staple, pushing on towards the Crescent City, from thence to make its way, over water, to the Eastern States and Europe. Thence how much of it comes back in other shape-bringing ornament and covering to thousands of our people. Jackson suffered considerably in the journed about the middle of April. It was composed largely of the new element in Southern politics. Many colored members held honorable seats there. The Speaker of the House was a colored man-a little, bright eyed half-and-half-once a slave in Louisiana. He made an able presiding officer, and is now member elect to Congress from this District. Surely, time has wrought some changes! And who will doubt the Great Hand was in it, that could do such wonders in so short a space! All the future of the colored people is hopeful. They mean to have elevation. They are bent upon education, and will overcome great obstacles to get it. And we feel we are doing God a most acceptable service in putting with theirs the helping hand. We feel that we are doing the best that can be done for the whites as well as blacks, when we introduce them to higher life, and give them improvement in every form we can. Blacks, it is scarcely proper to so call them. We have right here, among what are termed Berrien inclose a specimen of the cotton plant. I never had at this stage of its growth, though I had often seen it after having attained its full developement. It is, as you notice, a fine bifoliate, and hardly promises what it soon becomes as it expands into its full dimensions. When grown it exhibits, according to the richness of the soil in which it grows, a shrub varying from two to four feet in hight. Rich lands produce larger stock but no better cotton. The larger plant is apt to have coarser staple.

Senator Sparks. EDITORS RECORD:—I have read with some interest the defense of the Hon. Levi Sparks, in the last RECORD. It seems he has yet to learn that a public servant, if faithful, is bound to be defamed and slandered. I have had the privilege of reading the Legislative Journal nearly every day, during the session. I have watched the course of our delegation pretty closely, and I have noticed that no Senator responded to the roll call more punctually than did Mr. Sparks. For instance, the name of Mr. Stoddard next succeeded Mr. Sparks in the regular call, and I will venture that, take the session through, you will find Mr. Sparks' name twice to where you will Mr. Stoddard's once; and where I could understand the questions voted on I saw no reason to wish his vote had been recorded differently. I have had no doubt but that the people of Berrien County would say to him, on his return from Lansing, "Well done, good and faithful servant." The Senator's better way is to pay no attention to the Volksblatt or any other "blatt," but "go right straight on." I should like to see the man who had passed through his term of office and discharged his duties faithfully and fearlessly that didn't make somebody bleat.

BUCHANAN, May 15, 1873.

From the Detroit Tribune. The Work of the Session.

The Legislature passed 400 bills during its four months session, half of them local. Of the others, all but eight or ten are brief, and these few exceptions include some which are intended to do away with special legislation for the future, like Judge Howell's general charters for cities and villages, under which all prospective municipalities may incorporate themselves hereafter without recourse to the Legislature, thereby diminishing

The Railroad Commissionership is one of the first responsibility; its incumbent, Stephen S. Cobb, Esq., of Kalamazoo, will have the general supervision of the railways of Michigan, acting as the guardians both of the interests of the people and of the corporations themselves. The State Board of Health was reorganized, and its Secretary is to act as Superintendent of Vital Statistics. The statistics of inebriation are to be compiled with reference to the cure of its victims, and all manner of details of the history and circumstances of the inmates of jails, together with explicit statements of the expense of keeping them, are to be gathered, with a view to the scientific repression of crime by the discovery of its causes. After a hard struggle, the claims of pisciculture were recognized, a Commissioner upon Fisheries has been appointed, and the protection, as well as the propagation, of fish, is provided for by more stringent provisions against catching them in our inland waters during certain months. In addition to the establishment of a railroad commission, some railroad legislation was passed involving radical changes. Lands granted to railroad corporations are now taxable, notwithstanding the long exemption they have enjoyed; the operators of palace and sleeping car lines are also to be required to pay to the State a tax of three per cent. on their gross receipts, their immense profits having hitherto contributed nothing to the revenue; and the general railroad law was remodeled in some important par-

Some novel and important additions were made to the police regulations of the State. Two of these are likely to shorten the list of railroad casualties: one compels the introduction of the air-brake upon Michigan railways, and the other obliges corporations to establish gates and watchmen at all street-crossings where the railroad commissioner shall think it needful. Stringent regulations for the inspection of petroleum are provided, and none shall be used that will ignite or explode at 150 Fahrenheit. All poisons shall be labeled with their simplest and most accessible antidote. Nitro-glycerine must never be transported unless labeled as dangerous, and must never be carried on passenger conveyances, and must never be unloaded by daylight.

Two important joint resolutions were passed looking to a general rearrangement of the laws. One provides for a revision of the State Constitution by a committee of eighteen to be appointed by the Governor, but with only the power of reccommending changes to the consideration of the next Legislature, and the other authorizes the appointment of two commissioners to prepare a code of procedure for Michigan similar to that used in New York or Ohio. Provision was made for a new Insane Asylum to be established on this side of the State, and it is to be built if possible within four years. It is to be surrounded by at least 200 acres of land in a pleasant region, and a commission has been appointed by the Governor to select the site. Grounds are also to be chosen for the new State House of Correction, and provision is made for making extensive additions to the State Prison and for erecting the State Public School at Coldwater. -On the 22d a serious accident occurred to Mr. Lyman A. Curtis an old ing rubbish in the orchard when the Several important bureaus were ad-ed to the State government, and ad-cibly in contact with his leg, dislocating his ankle joint and breaking one of the bones below the knee. - Tecum-

-As Thomas Harris was proceeding to market with 40 dozen of eggs. one day last week, he espied some young women hanging out clothes on a line, a proceeding interesting him to sucn an extent that he failed to notice where he was driving. The spectacle of Thomas picking up the remnant of his eggs from the ditch, and righting his wagon, was a source of much amusement to the aforesaid young women, but Thomas could not see where the laugh came in .- St. Clair Republican.

-One of those blood chilling accidents which so frequently occur upon Railroads, occurred on the Grand River Valley Road on Saturday morning last at Nashville in this County. The work train went east on that morning, and on entering Nashville, the whistle blowed bown brakes, as the train was to take in wood at that place, and one of the hands, Cory by name, stepped across from the Caboose on to a flatcar just as the brakes were taken off, and was jerked backward and fell between the cars and was run over by the caboose, and mangled in a most horrible manner. His head was neary severed from his body, and scarcey a whole bone left in his body. Hewas brought back to this city, of whichne was a resident, and a Coroners Inquest was held when the above facts were elicited. He had resided here only three weeks. The deceased leaves a wife and five or six children in very straightened circumstances. Mr. C. was only about fifty-three years old. -Hastings Banner; 30th.

-A young man named William Lyne, employed as a shingle sawver

-On Monday afternoon Mr. Joshua Peck, of the township of Rutland, committed suicide by blowing out his brains with one of the old army muskets loaded with duck shot. A coroner's inquest was held by Justice Clarke, and the facts as set forth above duly proven, and the jury returned a verdict of suicide, while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity. Mr. Peck was about 75 years of age, and has been a resident of Rutland t ownship, in this county, upwards of 23 years.—Hastings Banner.

Michigan,

-We learn that a little son of Dewitt C. Shattuck, of Yankee Springs was killed on Saturday afternoon by falling out of a chair and striking his head on the rocker of another chair, the concussion breaking his skull .-Hastings Banner, 11th.

-The colporter of the American Bible Society up to last week had visited 417 families in this county, 24 of which he found without any Bible whatever. Twelve of the 24 purchased, and to the other 12, Bibles were donated.—Cassopolis Vigilant.

-Mr. J. Shaver of Emerson informs us that he had twelve valuable sheep killed by dogs on Tuesday night of last week .- Gratiot Journal.

-The Port Austin News says that last week an unsuccessful attempt was made to fire the dwelling of Charles B. Cottrell, in this village. It is now our unpleasant duty to record a a repeated and this time an entirely successful effort of the fiendish, lurking incendiary, whose torch has destroyed one of the finest houses in the place, and caused a feeling of horror and fear to prevade the breasts of many in our community. On Saturday evening last; a few minutes before 11 o'clock, Mr. Cottrell's house was again fired, and in about one hour's time its destruction was complete. Mr. Cottrell knows of no personal motive that could actuate any one in our midst to do him this great wrong. He has been a prominent man in this county for years, and had just been re-elected to the office of County Superintendent of Schools, and the destruction of no man's property could have produced a greater sensation throughout the entire community. The house cost and was fully worth $3,500; and was insured in the Detroit Fire & Marine Insurance Co. for $2,000. The furniture was also insured in the same Company, and the damage to this we put at $300.

-During last week Richard Hopkins, of Claybanks township, was tried for manslaughter in the killing of his son, and was convicted; but the Judge suspended sentence, and he is now at large. Mr. Hopkins is a man of some sixty years of age, we should judge, and although the deed was done Chicago Express..... through an unlawful act, yet the shootunintentional, and therefore the suspension of the sentence seems to be the exercise of a wise discretion on the part of the court.—Oceana Times.

--On Tuesday night last a gang of burglars visited this vicinity, and entered the lumber office of Nelson & Co., near the depot, and abstracted some $300 from the safe—by some means they gained easy admission to its contents, and aside from demolishing the inside drawers, did not do any further damage.—The depot money drawer was also overhauled, the burglars securing the sum of five cents to add to their ill-gotten gains .- The store of Chapman & Co., corner of Broad and Front street, was the last on the list for the night's work, but they left with no money to reward them for their labor.—This is undoubtedlyly the same gang who for the past two weeks have been commiting depredations in various towns on the line of the J. L. & S. R. R., and. from reports of their exploits in our exchanges, we should judge they were doing a rushing business. How soon their work will be completed, we will leave for the law officials to say.-Chesaning Times.

-The county tax of $50,000, for a new Court House, was carried by about 400 majority. The Board of Supervisors, undoubtedly will, at their next meeting, give instructions for the work of building to commence -and Marshall city will rejoice.-Albion Mirror.

More light seems to be the motto over that way.--Wm. Campbell, who was charged with being implicated in the late Treasury defalcation in this city, and whose trial was postponed from time to time, was honorably acquitted, on Thursday, there being no evidence to sustain the charge. -One of the most touching things in this life is to see a man come into a printing office, with eyes filled with recently exuded sap, and request the publisher to insert the notice of a dear, departed friend's death, and then borrow the paper from a subscriber, as soon as published, to ascertain if the matter received attention. There is a peculiar melancholy in scenes of this kind which lingers long in memory.—On Sunday last, about 12 o'clock, the stillness of the Sabbath day was broken by the alarm of fire. The fire occurred in the dwelling house of Mr. Frank Grand, on Front street. Fortunately the house was saved at perhaps a damage of several hundred dollars, which amount we are happy to learn, is covered by insurance.—Sturgeon fishing has been quite a profitable business here this season. One firm has already shipped a large quantity of these fish to Chicago, where the native genius of that city converts them into smoked halibut—nice and juicy -and they are then returned here to tickle the palates of our epicures.

Pursuit was made at he was well out of the way before his pursuers got under way, and has thus far evaded their search. Mr. Byers, father of the girl, and Sheriff Weamer, who was in town the same day, offer each fifty dollars reward, and deputy sheriff Terry twenty-five dollars for his capture.

Ivory is a young man about thirty years of age and hailing from Ohio, where it is said, he has a wife and one or two children. He came to this county some time since and was employed to teach a school in the neighborhood in which he committed the crime, Miss Byers only about fourteen years of age being one of his pupils. The greatest indignation is felt by those acquainted with the facts in the case and the conduct of the wretch since his conviction.

It is difficult to attach the blame for his escape to any particular person at present as the stories told by the parties interested conflict. The matter should be thoroughly investigated and if any one is proven derelict in his duties in the affair he should be held responsible.-Levit Canfield, of Benton township, has contrived to build a "wind mill" for the purpose of sawing stove wood, with which he cut sixty logs twelve and sixteen feet long into eighteen inch wood in three quarters of a day, which he says, is sufficient to last for house consumption during the summer months. - Only 50 Cents per Bottle. t promotes the GROWIH, PRESERVES the COLOR, and increases the Vigor Oven Thiert Years ago, Lyon's Kathamon for the Harr was first placed in the market by Professor E. Thomas Lyon, a graduate of Princeton College. The name is derived from the Greek, "Kathamo," signifying to cleane, murily, rejuvenate, or restore. The favorithas received, and the popularity it has obtained, is unprecedented and incredible. It increases the Growth and Bleaury of the Ham. It is a delightful dressing. It emdicates Dandruf, It prevents the Hair from turning gray. It keeps the head cool, and gives the hair a rich, soft, glossy appearance. It is the same in Quantity and Charley as over a Quantity of Country Stords at only Fifty Cents per Bottle.

Home.

I see away off, across the deep, blue ocean, a weary, wayworn traveler. At nightfall he enters an inn, a stranger in a strange land; and as he seats himself beside the bright fire, his thoughts wander back to his own dear native land-to his own cheerful fireside, and he thinks of the loved ones he left there a short time ago. He longs to see them, but he has a journey to perform before he can enjoy this pleasure. In the morning, re-freshed by the night's repose, he sets out on his journey with new vigor. He toils on and on! Night again ap-He toils on and on! Night again approaches. He is weary, but on he struggles. He sighs for home. At last, after a long and toilsome journey, he enters his home. And O, the joy he experiences! He meets his dear wife, the partner of his toils and the sharer of his joys. He hears the sweet voices of his dear little ones bidding him welcome. The old weary nilgrim him welcome. The old weary pilgrim weeps for joy! He is home at last, in the embrace of the ones he loves.

The Christian has no abiding city here. He is a pilgrim and sojourner, as his fathers were. His home is beyond the skies. He is weary here below. Dark nights of sorrow and affliction have often enveloped him; still he faints not. He presses onward and upward. The thought that the loved ones are awaiting him in that blessed home cheers him onward. The sun of life is almost set. By the eye of faith he views the promised land. He sees his loved ones beckoning him onward. He is almost there. Another day's journey and he will be there. Ah! this is the roughest. The dark ocean is to cross. He enters the bark that is to carry him over, with a firm step. The waves run high. The frail bark is tossed about. Fear partially over-comes him. He prays for God to assist him. He hears the voice of Him who calmed the mad waters of Galilee, again saying, "Peace be still!" He lands safely, where he has longed to be. He meets his loved ones, to part no more. He has joined the "general assembly and church of the first born."—J. B. C.

The Shell on the Shore.

I had turned over the wet pebbles and the damp weeds and sought with naked feet among the waves for some bright shell or colored stone to carry home, but I could find none. Tired out, I sat down on a pile of stones to rest, and to watch the waves unroll themselves on the waiting sands. I heeded not the tide, but let it go and come without notice. After a longer interval than I dare tell, considering I was without boots or stockings, and my coat damp with the spray of the last tide, I woke up from my dreaming and renewed my search for a prize, and sure enough, there was a shell glistening and gleaming, colored like sunlit crystal, just dropped from the white fingers of some daring wave. I did not hurry to possess myself of it, but sat still admiring. It was mine, I was sure I could reach it any moment with my stick, and who was near on this lonely beach to pick it up ere I could get it? Splash—splash, and up rolled a huge wave, hissing and hurrying, rattling the stones, wetting my feet—and the shell, where is it? I looked round, I followed the receding water, dripping sea-grass and creamy clots of froth only remained to meet me; the shell—the beautiful shell was gone. Old Neptune had altered his mind and got back his pearl.

A little loss this, but uttering a lofty lesson, never to lose an opportuni-ty of taking every gift of mercy or usefulness the tide of time may bring us; if unused—neglected—the wave that brought will soon take it away.— Bible Class Magazine (London).

Future Existence.

It is hard to think that when the ties of kindred and friendship are linked around the heart-when intellect has achieved its lofty triumphs and has wound its power into song, and left it in sculptured beauty-when the noble, the good, the loved, the beautiful have passed away, it is hard to think that we shall never behold them again; we cling to the hopes which spring up amid these dark thoughts and tell us these things are so. We behold the mean, groveling worm of to-day transformed on to-morrow, a thing of glory, that flutters in the beauty of a new and bright winged existence, and we say "Thus shall mendie and live again." We behold the seasons of the sear leaf and falling fruit—the snow-wreathed hill and icebound stream, and when they pass and the earth rejoices again, and from their loveliness, and the flowers look up and smile at us, we exclaim, "Thus shall man, who fades away like the Summer flower, or the Autumn leaf, break from the bonds of earth, and exult in a new clime, where the sun never sets, and where all is bright for-

As the beauty of the most enchanting country is heightened by a contrast with the horrors of a dreary. desert; so the charms and worth of a dying Christian's piety appear more dying Christian's piety appear more conspicuous, when contrasted with SEWING MACHINES, the dismal gloom of sad despair, of those whose day has closed while the dark stains of unpardoned guilt remained upon their souls.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made, of Poor Rum, Whisky, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life giving Principle, a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsin or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonle Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decoded an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vittated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inhammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs and in Billous Diseases.

For Sixin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanso the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

"How's TRICKS."-There is a lawyer in this city who, for the accomomdation of his clients, has a spraking tube leading from the main entrance of his building to his office. which is up just a few flights. For several days past a young wag named Swafz has amused himself by calling for the lawyer through the pipe, and then profanely ordering him to set out on an excursion to Tartarus. For some time this fun was taken in good part by the legal expounder of the new Code until the time number of the joke no long er became apparent. Accordingly the disciple of Blackstone provided him-self with a teakettle of water heated to about 210 Fahrenheit, and waited alongside the pipe. Pretty soon the old, familiar sound came up through the pipe, "Say, Cap how's Tricks?" "Tricks is better now—I guess he'll get well," responded the lawyer, reaching after the tea-kettle. "What's been the matter with

"He got burnt." "How?"

"I'll tell you in a moment." "Oh, you go to-" The lawyer had finished his last sentence and then let a quart of scalding water down the pipe. Swatz had his mouth over it, and when the water struck it he was somewhat surprised. Water was apt to surprise him, but hot water was an unexpected novelty. The man above poured in the water for about a minute and then looked out of the window. The smart young man was getting along the sidewalk at a pretty lively gait, having evidently just got up from a sitting posture. He was trying to yell "Police." but couldn't articulate with much success. About half an hour afterwards he found himself able to speak and inquired. "Did that boiler explosion hurt anybody else ?"—San Francisco

EPISCOPALIANS .- "Are there any Episcopalians in this vicinity, madam?" asked a tall, thin stranger of Mrs. A—, as she stood in the open door, in answering to his knock.

"Any which?" "Episcopalians." Now, if Mrs. A- had a failing t was that she never would admit that she could possibly be ignorant of anything. She always knew all about any subject mentioned. So she answered: "Episcopalians! Wall we don't exactly know. My John—he's my son—seed somethin' out'n the cornfield yesterday. He didn't really know what it was, but I told him I guessed it was a chip-monk. But now you speak on't I'll bet it was a Episkerpalium. And my next neighbor, Farmer C—, he said he shot at some-thing the same day that John seed his strange critter, and C——he thought it was some wild critter that had got out of some menagery somewhere. Anyhow I think that's a Piskerpalium, too. Be they bigger'n a chipmo: k?"

"You misunderstood me, madam." "Wali, you needn't feel uneasy. Ef there's any Piscopaliums in this here neighborhood, you can jest make up your mind that they'll get shot! We air too feelin' a community to let things run at large which mout destroy and devour somebody. Come in, won't ye?" We give the following for the benefit of young people who want to know just how it's done:

Inquiring Young Lady—"O, dear, tell me how John declared his love?" Expectant wife-"Well, Fanny, we were in the parlor, you know, and all at once he turned up his eyes, so I thought he was ill. Then he turned 'em down and squeezed my hand, and asked me if I'd have him-and-" Enquiring Young Lady-"Well.

Expectant Wife-"Nothing dear: but I said yes, and gracious, how he kissed me. Then, dear, I had my head on his shoulder, and then he talked, dear. Oh, how I trembled! I thought I never could go through

dear-well, what did he do next?"
