THAT BOY.

Does it ring from street to roof?

Spite of all your mild reproof?

Then I have my grave suspicions, That you have at home—that Boy.

Are the walls and tables hammered?

Are your nerves and ink upset? Have two eyes, so bright and roguish,

Made you every care forget? Have your garden-beds a prowler,

These are well-known indications

Have you seen him playing circus-

With his head upon the mat, And his heels in mid-air twinkling—

When his merry pranks annoy— Listen to a voice that whispers, You were once just like—that Loy.

Have you heard of broken windows, And with nobody to blame?

But I know you've got-that Boy.

back to the original homo. In fact, in Mr. Wallace's reckoning, 6,000 years are but as a day. He begins by complaining on the timidity of scientific men when treating of this subject, and points out the fallacy of al-

Poetry.

A RUYME FOR CHRISTMAS. BY EBEN E. REXFORD.

The merry bells of Christmas, ring A glad peal, while the angels sing The song they sang so long ago, That every heart on earth should know.

They sing of peace from man to man; The peace that Jesus' birth began; And far and near the echoes swell. And blend with every Christmas bell

To-day, all hearts should trample down Each cross, and look toward the crown; For on this morning, years ago, Was born the King whose rule we know. Be peace between us, oh! my friend?

Good will to all! Let discord end; And, in the dawn of Christmas-peace, Let strife and angry warrings cease. To-day, close up, as though a book, The past, with every angered look, With bitter words, and discord sore,

And put it by for evermore.

Yea, choose a stainless page, and there, Write, day by day, a tale more fair Than this you put aside to-day, And hide in pain and tears away.

Chime, bells! your melody is sweet; Sing, angels! while our lips repeat Your song, with not one discord there The grand glad song of peace to mar.

Story. E E E A III.

BY MAY K. DALLAS. "No, Elson, I don't think you are acting quite the gentleman in regard to Annie Gray. She is but a child, and as innocent as a baby in the art of flirting. If you wish to try your powers in that line why don't you take up arms against some of the gay, heartless coquettes with which this place is swarmed. There's Kate Leslie, Maud Fulton, Mary Dubois, and a number of others, all willing to have | yer. a lark with the rich and handsome artist." "Now, Dick, old boy, don't be too hard on a fellow. Those gay butterflies tire me. I want something new. Annie is such a pretty little thing, and her simplicity amuses me. She is only my sister's servant, and of course she don't expect that I mean anything serious. She is pleased with my attentions, and just like all the women always ready to fall in love with every nice looking chap they chance to meet. I should not be surprised if she would meet me to-night with a frown and a cold how do you do, and to-morrow smile lovingly on you."

"Frank Elson, you have no more heart than a mummy. Can't you see that that child is passionately in love eyes will tell the story. Poor child, she might as well throw her affection away on a marble image as to bestow it on one like you. At least be man a wild joy: enough to undcceive her before the knowledge that you are only trifling with her gives her too much pain."

"Good Lord! man, to hear you talk one would suppose that I had been guilty of some dreadful crime, the greatest villain in the States, just be- | you please." cause I've been amusing myself with a servant maid."

There was a ring of scorn in his tones which aroused the quick blood in Richard Sword's veins, and he re-"And so you are a villain if you play with the affections of that innocent child." There was an angry flush on his face which boded no good, and Frank Elson, not wishing to provoke the anger and thereby lose the friendship of the young lawyer, said laughingly, while he knocked the ashes off the end "Well. Dick. since you take this matter so much to heart, I will let Miss Annie understand, in the most delicate manner possible, that our friendship must end. Do you know. Dick, although I treated the subject so lightly, that I do really care for the child, and if it was not for my family, I almost think I would be tempted to marry her. No woman ever inspired me with the same feeling she does. What a great pity it is that she is nothing more than a servant." "She is a thousand times better than any of the painted dolls we have here, and a more perfect lady than any of them. I am much mistaken, or Annie Gray has been reared to be waited upon, rather than to be the servant of others. Did you notice how very small and white her hands "Yes, Dick, and my sister has also remarked it. By George, I wouldn't be surprised if she had run away from home. My sister knows nothing about her. She employed her two weeks ago, through the recommendation of: one of her lady friends. When I come to think of it, no poor girl could have obtained the education which she posesses. My suspicions have been aroused, and I am determined to try and find out something about her. When I first saw this young girl she was reading a letter written in French for one of the servants. But I promised Captain Justian that we would ride with him this evening. Will you

"Yes: I want to see the Captain about the Trescot estate." The two young men rose and entertain Justian's. Annie met the young artist with bright laughing eyes and sweet smiles. She returned Dick's deep bow with a slight inclination of the head, but the lawyer saw a look in her eyes that puzzled him for a long time after. She tripped along toward the house and the young men continued their walk in the direction of the Captain's cottage.

When Frank Elson returned to the hotel that evening his sister flew to him with the intelligence that Annie | tioned in the will." Gray, her children's nurse, had left that evening. "Oh! Frank, what shall I do? Annie was a perfect treasure. I'll never get another one like her." "Probably she might be induced to return. Did she leave her address?" Frank asked the question quietly, but there was a queer feeling at his heart. "No, she didn't tell me where she was going. I even offered her higher wages, but nothing would induce her to remain.' Mrs. Hoffman ran out to meet her husband and Frank was alone. His sweet little wild rose had flown. He would miss her, for the feeling at his heart told him that he loved her.

Six months later Frank Elson was seated in Dick's town office, talking over the fortunate young lady, who, by the death of her grandfather, became heir to his vast wealth.

"I am going to call on her this evening, to give her the account of the estate. Will, you come?" "Well, I don't care if I do. Is she handsome?" asked the artist, stroking his yellow moustache. "I never saw the lady myself, but rumor says she is quite young, and very pretty. You can judge for yourself this evening," answered the law-

The town-clock had just pealed forth the hour of eight, as our two friends were shown into the brilliantly lighted parlor of the Trescot Mansion, while their cards were conveyed to Miss Trescot. The artist was as handsome as ever, but his gay, careless manner was gone. He had searched everywhere for Annie Gray, but his efforts were in vain. e found no trace of her. It grieve him much, for he discovered that he loved her fondly, and would marry her at any cost. His proud family and her position in life was forgotten. Her pure love was all he longed for. There was the rustle of silken robes as the door opened to admit Miss Tres-

Both young men rose instantly, but with you? One look into her sweet as their glance rested upon the young lady, they stood still. Frank came forward with outstretched hand, saying eagerly, while his eyes lit up with

> "Annie Grav! Is it possible? At last I've found you." The color deepened in her cheeks, but she answered haughtily, with proud inclination of her head: "Not Annie Gray-Miss Trescot, if

His outstretched hand fell listlessly to his side, as he stood looking at the fair girl in blank amazement. Miss Trescot advanced toward the astonished lawyer. She held out her hand, saying sweetly: "I am pleased to meet you again, Mr. Sword, and thank you for your noble defence of a servant." His hand closed over hers, and the eloquent look he bent upon her, expressed his pleasure more fully than simple words could have done. "Miss Trescot, by some means you have learned the conversation which passed between Mr. Sword and myself the day you left my sister's employ. But believe me when I say that I've bitterly repented of the words I used. I searched everywhere for you to ask you to marry me, but found no trace of you until this evening. Won't you forgive me? I ask nothing more, for I know you hate me and I deserve it. But ere we part-" his voice choked, and he walked hastily to the window, ashamed of his emotion. She looked after him; pity taking the look of scorn in her eyes. Miss Trescot glided to the young artist's side, and laying her hand upon his arm, said softly :-"I do not hate you, Mr. Elson, and I'm truly glad to meet you again as a friend.' Frank grasped the white jeweled hand, and a bright, eager look crept into his eyes as she spoke; but, as the word friend fell upon his ear, the light died out, and a hopeless expression settled over his face. "I freely forgive you, but all the affection I ever felt for you, died a sudden and violent death, when I accidentally overheard you and Mr. Sword conversing about Annie Gray. No doubt you think it very strange, she continued, "why one who had been reared to a life of ease and luxury, should seek employment as a common servant. The lawyer drew out a package of papers as he spoke, and taking a seat on the sofa beside Annie, he began explaining their different meanings to Frank Elson, after bidding Annie Trescot good-bye, bowed to Dick, and took his departure, a wiser if not a happier man. When he had gone, an awkward silence fell between the two; the color coming and going in the young girl's cheeks, and Dick's heart beating at a rapid rate. At last Annie buried her face in her hands and burst into tears. Dick drew one of her hands gently away from her face, and asked softly: "What grieves you, Annie?"

She did not answer, but continued to weep. "I must tell you now or never. Annie, I love you. Is there any affection for a great, rough fellow like me in your pure heart?"

There was a passionate feeling in his tones which caused her to dry her tears, and look up at him with bright, loving eyes. "Yes, Dick; I-do like you." She hid her face again, but this

Singular Solar Phenomenon. A Lexington [Ky.] dispatch of the 30th, says: A solar phenomenon of wondrous magnificence was witnessed here today. Shortly after twelve o'clock a thin, hazy halo was observed about the sun, which was shining in a cloudless sky. Gradually this halo assumed a bright yellow tint, and then, one after another, five rainbow-hued circles enveloped themselves around the sun. Soon myriads of glittering globes, apparently half an inch in diameter, were ejected from the various rings. Some came into view slowly and sailed southward in a straight line, while others shot forth at a tangent, like the balls of a Roman candle. All of them gleamed with an intense white light, which grew less intense as they approached the earth, and totally disappeared at apparently the height of a half mile. The display lasted over two hours, and was witnessed by every person in the city, and created great alarm among the ignorant and superstitious. The only other noticeable phenomena was a marked reduction of temperature. The wise men of the city are unable to explain the marvelous occurrence.

But the oddest piece of architecture in this city can be seen out on Farmington avenue, about a mile west of the depot, in a house being built for Mark Twain, who is Roughing It-Inno-cents abroad (forgive the pun), but who left the plans and contracts in the hands of a prominent builder, who is pushing things rapidly along. The style is indescribable, being a sort of cross between a Mexican adobe hut and a Swiss cottage, built of brick, to cost $40,000. It stands not far from Governor Jewell's, on the opposite indefinite anterior period." The burnt | side of the street, on the edge of a hill, rather close to the street aluvium indicates an antiquity of 20,- | it commands a fine view to the west and north, and is just the sort of a house to cause a stranger to stop and inquire: "Who lives in that queerlooking house?" Although the avenue runs east and west, the house, instead of facing the street, faces east. On the north end is a small building, near the street, which contains the kitchen and servants' rooms, separate from the main building, while immediately joining is a large dining room, 17x30, having but little light, so that when used it will be necessary to light the gas. The parlor is where the kitchen would be located in any other house, while Mark's own room, where most of his time will be spent, is at the top of the house, and, in order to offset the want of light in the diningroom, this room is almost entirely glass. Take it all in all, it is the queerest piece of architecture one has ever seen, but with one redeeming feature, that is, open fire-places all over the house, and good, generoussized ones, too .- Hartford letter to Springfield Union.

A Fee of Her Sex.

A Massachusetts woman, it is said, has lately patented a self-fastening button, which needs no button-hole, which holds as fast as the most desperate person can desire, and which yet can be unfastened by a simple touch. The time will come when that unhappy, too ingenius woman will be denounced as one of the worst foes of her sex who has ever existed. Nothing is a greater provocative to connubial ideas in the mind of a forlorn bachelor than the difficulties which he has with his apparel on the subject of buttons. How these useful fastenings leave his wristbands and collars, and vests and pantaloons every man who has been single can sadly tell, and how he himself has made absurd attempts to repair the damage by sewing on buttons himself he would be ashamed to tell: Despair at inability to conquer this annoyance of a single life has made many a man double, reduced the wild bachelor to the discipline of a home, taught him his duties as a citizen, and made him in time respected as a husband and father. And this dull sea, and the sailor would never Massachusetts woman, who undertakes to emancipate the male sex from the social influence of buttons, will become in after years a scorn and byword to her sex, especially among single sisters.

Fresh Truths.

Everything within the last few years has certainly shown us that a deeper tone of divine truth in all who profess to hold that truth is needed to meet the growing corruption of religion, and the infidelity and lawlessness which casts off all religion. God's own light as given in his word, must be more and more our guide through the darkness and conflict of these days. - We are assured also, that "when the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him." We may expect, therefore, fresh truth to shine out of the sacred volume. The word of prophecy in general, and especially

The Pearl Fisheries of Panama.

The Isthmus which forms the boundary between North and South America, might, in the possession of an enterprising nation, be rendered a fertile source of prosperity. At the extremity of the Bay of Panama is an archipelago, consisting of many islands; and near the coast lies a considerable bank of pearl oysters. These oysters produce pearls of a large size, though, in point of regularity and beauty, they are inferior to those of

All the inhabitants of Panama and vicinity who are in easy circumstances, keep negroes, who dive to procure pearls for their masters. They are dispatched to the islands, where tents and boats are kept in readiness. Eight-I refused to go for fear of being caught | een or twenty of these poor negroes, who are excellent swimmers, and who possess the power of holding in their breath for a considerable time, are under the control of an overseer. They swim about under the water until they see a bank of oysters, where the sea is not more than ten, twelve or fifteen fathoms deep. The negroes then ascend to the boat and cast anchor. They tie around their waists a rope, one end of which is fastened to the boat, and jump into the sea, taking a small weight to enable them to descend the more expeditiously. On reaching the bottom, the diver seizes an oyster which he places under his left arm, another in his right hand, and another in his mouth. He then ascends to take breath, and to deposit the oysters in a little bag in the boat. As soon as he has recovered himself, he dives a second time, and so on until he is tired or has fished a sufficounterfeiting tools, and they can be cient number of oysters. Each of seen, still preserved at my friend's these negro divers must supply his master with a sufficient number of pearls daily. When the negro has fished as many oysters as he thinks sufficient, he opens them in the presence of the overseer, and delivers them to him, whether small or large, perfect or imperfect; until he has completed the number due to his master; the remaining are the property of the negro, who usually sells them to his master. The negroes sometimes encounter great danger from monstrous fish, and the "mantas," which seize the diver so forcibly that they stifle them or by falling upon them, crush them at the bottom of the sea. "Where shall I put this paper so as to be sure of seeing it to-morrow?" inquired Mary Jane of her brother Charles. "On the looking glass,"

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874. The illustrations of THE ALDINE have wen a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate fivish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artists original.

other decent representations of the productions of great other decent representations of the productions of great painters.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifing cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art. The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J.D. Woodward.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thomsand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, Now Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoning Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The Chromos are ouch worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appearance exact face similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of: THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial, over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

Messrs. James Sutton & Co.

Gentlemen.—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the original paintings.

(Signed.) THOS. MORAN.
These chromos are in every sense American. They are by an original American process, with material of American manufacture, from designs of American scenery by an American painter, and presented to subscribers to the first successful American Art Journal. If no better because of all this, they will certainly possess an interest no foreign production can inspire, and neither are they any the worse if by reason of peculiar facilities of production they cost the publishers only a trifle, while equal in every respect to other chromos that are sold singly for double the subscription price of THE ALDINE. Persons of taste will prize these pictures for themselves—not for the price they did or did not cost, and will appreciate the enterprise that renders their distribution possible. If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longing of his heart. TERMS.

For 50 cents extra, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or banded to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is close there the certificate is CANVASSERS WANTED.

Hair Vigor, For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and haldness often, though not alway cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

THE WAR CLOUD. There seems to be a general excitement throughout the whole country relative to the indignity offered the American flag by the Cuban authorities, in their late act of the capture of the steamer Virginius. The Virginius was sailing under the American flag, and was regularly cleared under American papers. The Cuban-Spanish authorities received word that the Virginius was to sail for that Island with men and munitions of war. Learning this the Spanish war steamer, Tornado, was kept on the look-out, and after discovering the Virginius, succeeded in capturing her after a chase of nine hours. The American flag was hauled down and the Spanish colors hoisted in their stead on the Virginius. The vessel, crew and passengers were taken to Santiago de Cuba, where the greater portion of the crew were summarily tried and executed by the Spanish authorities. The whole number thus butchered by these Spaniards was about one hundred. The whole matter was so hastily done that the Madrid government nor the United States had time to protest. It is even asserted that the telegraph was so controlled as to prevent orders being delay in the execution. The result of this outrage has been to fire the American heart from one end of the land to the other, and the President and entire Cabinet are awakened to the situation. The most active preparations are being carried forward in all our Navy Yards, war vessels are being repaired and fitted for sea with the utmost dispatch.

received from Madrid directing the

It is rumored that the President has made a demand on the Spanish Government for immediate satisfaction, that if the Spanish Government cannot enforce her orders and protect the rights of American citizens in Cuba, the United States will be compelled to assume the responsibility herself. To this ultimatum the Spanish Government has as yet given no satisfactory reply. It is thought that should the matter not be arranged before the meeting of Congress, that the President will recommend very decided measures. The state of the people will sustain almost any action the Government may take, and many advise the assuming of hostilities at once, by sending forces to Cuba to take possession of the Island.

There is a still larger portion of fair quality producing nothing, and only needs cultivation of ordinary skill to amply repay the laborer. It seems such a pity, to see such capabilities in this fine climate, just lost for want of brains and muscle to use them. Thousands of acres of once fertile lands "worn out," as they call them, because an unskilled culture has skimmed them till they no longer pay for the process. The grave questions forced upon the people by the money stringency; honesty of administration, the enforcement of law, and the protection of citizens, were not to be compared, in the estimation of our ward politicians, with the momentous issue as to whether lager beer should be sold from the back door, or openly through the front. To take away his beer is to destroy the chief national characteristic of your true Teuton, and no wonder he resented it as a menace to his personal liberty; and to make him sneak in at the back door, and to enjoin upon him the necessity of speaking in a rational tone is to invade his most sacred rights, in a manner for which he can see no necessity. Of course no pot-house politician with such plastic material for moulding popular opinion as this, would let pass the golden opportunity for firing the national heart of his German fellow citizens to his own advantage, and, bringing his political fellows to bear. soon had it worked up to a white heat, which he found would be impossible to quench without an inexhaustable supply of lager beer. This national beverage was accordingly made the great issue of the day, and working his wires with that dexterity which is acquired by great familiarity with that ductile metal, completely turned the tables on those well-meaning people who imagined that enough beer could be drank in six days to last the balance of the week. But the result of the machinations of this worker in metal has completely destroyed the equilibrium for which your German is noted, and he must needs express his satisfaction in a way peculiar to himself, and display his love of license | to see how it was done. This he did, and hatred to our tyranical Police Superintendent by a monster funeral officer was to take the principal part, and the position of chief mourners to be assigned to the Mayor and certain of the Common Council. The procession was headed by a standardbearer, carrying the German and American flags, the German being place I above, followed by another bearing a keg of beer—under his vest -who represented none other than good king Gambrinus, whose image graces the front of every beer saloon in the world. Then came the defunct and chief mourners, followed by the host of our triumphant fellow citizens whose slow step and stolid, smiling faces impressed us as expressing more satisfaction than brilliancy. This procession was long and had a long way to go, and had also, many images of Gambrinus to pass, each more dear than the other, as their hearts opened to his benign influence by frequent imbibitions of his favorite beverage. But all these potations began to take effect even on the stolid constitution of our fellow citizens, and at length an impatience was manifested which boded no good to our defunct policeman, and which increased with every reflection of the above mentioned image. It was intended that the to be seen. Everything suspicious had effigy of our policeman should be drowned, but the German spirit, now thoroughly roused, would brook no such slow and slovenly method, and they at once proceeded to take our policeman from his coffin. The sight of the tyrant proved the last straw to | floor, but every one of the band esthe feelings of our fellow citizens, and no longer controlling their rage, and with all the yells that four or five thousand Teutons could produce, proceeded to tear him to pieces, and scattered his remains to the four winds -which were all raging with a violence unknown outside of Chicago.

EDITORS RECORD.—You may be entertained to learn of the advanced state our Village has attained, and how some of our city fathers, school officers, physicians, and "last but not least" ministers of the gospel amuse themselves these long evenings. I shall not try your patience by repeating any of their delicate little jokes that are frequently wafted to our homes by those who so much enjoy this questionable manner of spending their time, never thinking of the example and degrading effect it is hav-

VIRTUTES AMORE. The Counterfeiters of St. Joseph

Valley. The following article, written by E. C. Davis, M. D., for the South Bend Tribune, in regard to the Countetfeiters of the St. Soseph Valley contains much that will interest the people of this county and we publish it in full: Many readers of the Tribune may remember that over 35 years ago, the northern part of Indiana and southern Michigan, was flooded with counterfeit money. Every exertion was made in order to ferret out the men who formed the band, but these endeavors were attended with ill-success and for a long time they evaded the officers of justice, annd finally escaped altogether, few knowing their secret and none revealing it, until one who knew told the writer all of the particulars. "Thirty-five years has made great changes in the aspect of the St. Joseph Valley; and swept away many of the old landmarks. "Between South Bend and Niles, and west of Niles not long ago there were line was in her manner of managing several large farms owned by men who stood well in the community. Respected by their neighbors, they were above reproach. There were nine of these men associated together in the manufacture, and distribution of the counterfeit money, which consisted of both paper and specie. "The State Bank of Indiana was the institution that suffered through this inflation of its paper money, while the Mexican dollar was the specie medium that was counterfeited. "One day," said my friend "I was working with one of the band, named Elson. He took out a large roll of bills and offered me one half if I wished to go into the business, but I refused this method of getting rich easily, and received a good cursing for my refusal of his offer.

"I had passed my word and could not reveal what I knew of the band and its operations. "One Sunday I was over to Melton's blacksmith shop. This Melton had his residence near Gitchel's Lake, west of Niles, where the distillery now stands. The shop was a few rods from the house, I was there visiting one of his girls and during the time we went out to the shop. As we went in old Melton did not look up; hearing only the young lady's voice he was not aware of my approach. He was working on a piece of steel, engraving with great delicacy a plate for printing the notes of the Bank of Indiana, sud denly he espied me and the way that ping on some trivial piece of wood a blind. "Just then Elson came in, and told him that I knew their secret and for him to resume his labor, as I wished and I had the satisfaction of seeing how the most minute lines of the five procession, in which the above police | dollar bills were cut in the solid steel. He told me that he had made several hundred sets of counterfeiting tools, receiving $300 per set for them in good money. "One morning Elson invited me to take breakfast with him and his family. At the table he took out a $10 counterfeit bill, saying he owed my father and intended to pay him with that money. Then taking the bill he dipped it in his coffee, drying it by the stove, then rubbing it between his hands completed the process. The bill now looked liked an old and genuine note. He paid father, who paid it out to a merchant in Bertrand; neither detecting the cheat. "The paper money was manufactured near Elkhart, Indiana, and cost $25 in good money for $300 in bad. Elson offered to take me to see the place where he procured his currency, but in bad company.

"The Mexican dollars were turned out at one of the farm houses near Niles, and there it was they were finally detected. Men on the watch saw a light under a curtain late at night, and knocking at the door, it was opened after some delay but nothing was disappeared. The next day the house was searched, but the birds had flown, the stamps, dies, milling bars, some of the spurious dollars, arsenic, block tin, &c., out of which the money was made, were found secreted under the caped and their families soon followed. no one knew whither. "Some time after some one plowing in Britteles garden near a blacksmith shop on the old plank road, southeast of Niles turued up an old tin pot containing a complete set of these house, souvenirs of the wild cat times and of the counterfeiters of the St. Joseph Valley."

RETURNED .- Our young friend Wilbur Smith returned last week from the Canadian borders, having succeeded in smuggling through the lines a valuable importation. We trust the vigilance of the authorities will not find him out in his secure retreat, as he proposes now, we understand, to continue permanently in business in Buchanan. Success, Wilbur, to you and yours, long life and much happiness, only next time don't attempt to smuggle your precious freight.

Marriages.

Nov. 13th, 1878, at the residence of the bride's father, in Warren Township, St. Joseph County, Ind., by Rev. Wm. Richmond, Mr. JAMES D. HANNA, of South Bend, and Miss ALLIN LINDLEY. The marriage ceremonies on the above occasion, which

Were in their nature very solemn and impressive, were witnessed by over one hundred relatives and friends of the newly married couple. Everything in order at a wedding was provided and arranged with neatness and order. Those in attendance will often refer to the occasion in their memory with feelings of pleasure and satisfaction. We trust this will be especially the case with Jim and Allie, and that many years of the future, filled with the choicest of earthly blessings, may be theirs to eajoy together.

Wilson's Golden Ointment.

Wilson's Golden Ointment.

For the cure of complaints and diseases of children, all should get it and cure their children's Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, and prevent Oroup, Diptheria, (Patrid Sore Throat) and all other dangerous effects of sudden and severe colds. And every mother in the land should assert her rights, demand and insist on being liberally and bountifully supplied with this remedy. It will save her many sleepless nights of weary and anxious watching. Mothers, keep this remedy on hands, and save all this frouble and anxiety, and your little and precious ones from all their restless, fretful and cross spells, caused by Hives, Nervousness, Aches, Pains, &c. It regulates the stomach and bowels, opens the pores, equalizes circula thon, gives tone, strength and vigor to the whole system, and induces to a more perfect constitution in after years. The great advantage of this tion in after years. The great advantage of this over all other remedies is, that it is not necessary to know the exact name or nature of the disease before it can be used. It can be applied at any and all times. It is always the right remedy. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers. All orders should be addressed to

Only Physician of his Kind IN THE WEST. DR. PRICE has met with unparalled success in the ZINC COLLAR PAD That has given such Universal Satisfaction to Thousands that have Used them since their introduction in April, 1870.

Having, in every instance, produced a perfect cure in the worse cases of sore neck. The medicinal and cooling properties, with the advantage of always having a perfect, smooth surface, is a guarantee against chafing, and will in all cases cure the most irritated sore necks, as hundreds will testify that have given them a trial. All we ask of the most corruptous is to give our Zinc Collar Pad a fair trial, as we feel confident in warranting them to do all we claim, and gives attafaction. WHAT WE CLAIM.

NEW AND USEFUL PATENT

First. Is the chemical action of the Zinc, with the acid and saline constituents of moist sores, resulting in an astringent, acting speedily on the edges of the wound, and by its smooth surface and cooling tendency, quickly Consumption, Rhomadism, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Dyspopsia, &c. The reputation Dr. Price has acquired by candid, honest dealing, and years of successful practice has induced unprincipled persons to copy and imitate him as far as they dare, in order to deceive. Let it be remembered that no person in the west is treating Chronic Diseases similar to Dr. Price—that his practice is not one of experiments, but founded on the laws of Nature with years of experience and evidence to sustain it. That it does not tear down to build up—make sick to make well—no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of those disease exclusively; no oncouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common, sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free, Visits will be under regularly.

Dr. V. Clarence Price can be consulted at Niles, Reading House, Saturday and Sundey, the 20th and 21st of December. At LaPorte, Merrill House, Saturday and Sunday, 6th and 7th of December.

Residence and Laboratory—Waukegan Illinois. SECOND. It prevents, in all cases, the hames traps coming in contact with the neck; or the hames from contracting the top of the collar, and thereby pinching the cords of the neck, and is the only Pad made that will not wear the hair on the neck.

THIRD. With the use of them you can work a rawnecked horses very day, and cure the worst cases in from six to ten days, a. has been done in many cases during the last season.

FOURTH. It is the most durable Pad ever made.

We deem it unnecessary to add other advantages, or even to add the numerous testimonials we have received during the short use of our Zinc Pad, and only ask that it may have a fair trial, feeling full confidence in the success of the goods. cess of the goods.

"Phunygrams."

"Way down South," when a paper was printed on a Ramage by an old colored pressman named Sam, the forms were always placed on the press and made ready for him; and so, with a well trained negro boy, the work of the paper progressed satisfactorily. But it happened one day that Sam, who could not read, was thrown entirely on his own resources. He put the forms to press and pulled a sheet; looked at it intently, turned it round, and then over; something was the matter; he looked again, felt the tympan, held the sheet up to the light, and looking over his spectacles at the grinning roller boy, exclaimed: "Look heah, boy, why for you don't 'stribbit your rollah?" The form was bottom up.

A Savannah paper tells this: "From the mere misplacing of a comma in our local columns yesterday, a woman was changed into a dog. Our reporter, in describing the painting on a banner, wrote "beside this maiden is an Irish greyhound," but a comma having found its way after the first word, it read, "beside, this maiden is an Irish greyhound."

Recently a proof-sheet of the list of members of the Michigan House of Representatives was given out, on which corrections were to be made if any errors were discovered. Soon after the compiler of the Manual received the following note from one of the single gentlemen: "In proof-sheet of Manual in House I see you say I am married. Please correct or send the woman around, and oblige."

A Methodist minister, who lived on a small salary, was at one time unable to get his quarterly in-stallment. He had called a number of times, but each time had been put off with none. At last he went to his stewart and told him he must have his money, for his family must have the necessaries of life. "Money," replied the stewart—"you preach for money! I thought you preached for the good of souls." Souls!" rejoined the minister-"I can't live on souls, and if I could, it would take a thousand souls like yours to make a decent meal."

A man in Detroit was found overcome by whisky, and had to be carried home on a sleigh. A boy who supposed the man was dead, ran and informed his wife, who met the crowd at the gate, and, in broken accents, inquired of one of the men: "Do you think I fought to present his life in-surance policy to the agent this after-noon?" She seemed quite disappoint-ed when she learned the truth.

It is now announced on the authority of an "eminent physician" that it is not considered healthy to rise before eight in the morning. This applies only to men. Wives can rise at seven and start the fire as hereto-

A French gentleman, learning English to some purpose, replied thus to the saluations: "How do you do, monsieur?" "Do vat?" "How do you find yourself?" "I never loses myself." "How do you feel?" "Smooth, you just feel of me." "What's the matter there, Alice? Don't your shoes fit?" "No, papa, they don't fit me at all," replied the little one. And then she enumerated all the faults of the shoes in set terms, and reached the climax thus-"Why, they don't even squeak when I go out for a walk."

A Troy policeman swore as ollows against a prisoner: "The prisoner set upon me, called me an ass, precious dolt, a scarecrow, a ragmuffin, and an idiot—all of which I certify to be true."

"There's one ship I always teer clear of," said an old bachelor sea captain, "and that's courtship; 'cause on that ship there's always two mates and no captain." An unstamped letter was deposited in a Western post office last week, and underneath the address was the indorsement: "Let her slide, P. M.; she's all hunk; inside air one of them post hole keerds." The laying of the corner stone of the new capitol of Iowa, the other day, inaugurated a new era in public occasions. No speeches were made except a few remarks by a workman who got his fingers pinched, and they were brief and up to the point. Johnny, a seven-year old lad, once heard a visitor tell his mother that "matches are made in Heaven," whereupon the child suggested "that it would be handier to make them in t'other place, where the brimstoneis.'

A watering place correspondent writes "that very-few bathe at West end," whereupon Mrs. Partington says she "had an idea that they bathed all over."

A GOOD DUTCH REASON .- "Mynheer, do you know for what we call our boy Hans?" "I do not, really." "Well, I tell you. Der reason dat we call our boy Hans dat ish his name.' Mary Ann Chace, a colored girl of Peoria, voted herself forty dol-ars back pay out of the old man's oile the other day, and cloped with a barber. And yet they say the colored race is unfit for self government.

Sunday Reading

OUTSIDE THE FOLD. I am waiting, ever waiting, for the days that I am sitting, worn and weary, 'midst life's shadows, drear and dun; Memory o'er the Past is mourning, and the Fu-

Earth has grown so strangely gloomy. Take me, Lord, within the fold. Evening shadows gather 'round me, darker shadows shroud my soul;
There is but one rift of sunlight streaming from that far-off goal;
Shall I ever reach that portal; walk within those streets of gold?
For I'm weary—watching—waiting. Take me, Lord, within the fold.

ture's all untold:

Through the night I dream of Heaven, and m loved ones waiting there;
But, alas! it is but dreaming, for I wake t anxious care.
There, I know there comes no sighing—only peace and bliss untold.
Lead me in those sun-lit pastures. Take me, Lord, within the fold.

Is there room for one poor wanderer, who has, wanton, strayed away?
And forgiveness for a lost one, wandering farther every day?
Tender Shepherd, wilt thou hear me? I am lonely; I am cold.
With those sheltering arms support me. Take me, Lord, within the fold.

Hark! I hear the kindly welcome. Can I dare I who am so prone to evil-I who blindly grope in sin?
Now the peans of the blessed vibrate on the harps of gold;
I can hear the angels singing. Take me; Lord, within the fold. Bellan M. F. Smith.

I can hear the angels singing. Take me, Lord, within the fold. Beulem M. F. Smith.

Introvert your Vision.

There is a class of persons whose only desire seems to be to search out the faults of others, and herald them to the world. Such people, if they would stop but for a moment, and study their own characters and probe in the place of the would stop but for a moment, and study their own characters and proclivities, would be surprised, perhaps, to find in themselves the same faults and weaknesses. Shame on them. Of all the pests that infest the city and country, these are the most to be despised, dreaded. They not only injure in some degree, the persons whom they thus backbite, but their despicable practice has a contaminating influble practice has a contaminating influence on the youthful mind, which, if not constantly guarded and guided by religion, is susceptible of the worst influence that mankind can impart. Reader, if you have hitherto been guilty of this practice, abstain from it in future. Go into some more lucrative business, "introvert your vision" —"know thyself," and instead of being a pest to the society in which you move, you will be an honored and respected citizen. Young men, young women, heed this before you form a habit that shall destroy your peace.

Indian Summer of Life.

In the life of the good man there is an Indian summer, more beautiful than that of the seasons, richer, sunnier, and more sublime than the most glorious Indian summer which the world knows—it is the Indian summer of the soul. When the glow of youth has departed, when the warmth of middle age is gone, and the buds and blossoms of spring are changing to the sere and yellow leaf, the mind of the good man, still ripe and vigorous, relaxes its labors, and the memories of a well-spent life gush forth from their secret fountains, enriching, rejoicing, and fertilizing; then the trustful resignation of the Christian sheds around a sweet and holy warmth and the soul, assuming a heavenly luster, is no longer restricted to the narrow confines of business, but soars far beyond the winter of hoary age, and dwells peacefully and happily upon that bright spring and summer which await him within the gates of Paradise, evermore. Let us strive for and look trustingly forward to an Indian summer like this.

Little Things.

Life is made up of little things. He who travels over a continent must go step by step. He who writes a book must do it sentence by sentence. He who learns a science must master it fact by fact, and principle after principle. What is the happiness of our life made up of? Little courtesies, iittle kindnesses, pleasant words, genial smiles, a friendly letter, good wishes and good deeds. One in a million, once in a lifetime, may do an heroic action; but the little things make up our life come every day and hour. If we make the little events of life beautiful and good, then is the whole life full of beauty and goodness.

Controlling the Inclination, It is hard work to control the workings of inclination, and turn the bent of nature; but that it may be done I know from experience. God has given us, in a measure, the power to make our own fate, and when our energies seem to demand a sustenance they cannot get, when our will strains after a path we may not follow, we need neither starve from inanition. nor stand still from despair. We have but to seek another nourishment for the mind as strong as the forbid-den food it longed to taste, and per-haps purer, and to hew out for the adventurous foot a road as direct and broad as the one Fortune has blocked up against us, if rougher than it.— Charlotte Bronte.

Lament of a Lost Soul. "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" Robert Hall, impressed by the solemnity of these words, flowing from the lips of Him who spoke as never man spoke, asks with awful emphasis, "What would be the funeral obsequies of a lost soul? Where shall we find the tears fit to be wept at such a spectacle; or, could we realize the calamity in all its extent, what tokens of commiseration and concern would be deemed equal to the occasion? Would' it suffice for the sun to veil his light, and the moon her brightness-to cover the ocean with mourning, and the 2m6 ADDRESS, J. L. PETERS, 599 BROADWAY, N.Y. heavens with sackcloth; or, were the. whole fabric of nature to become animated and vocal, would it be possible F. M. Hungerford & Co., for her to utter a groan too deep, or a cry too piercing, to express the magnitude and extent of such a catastrophe?

In Buchanan, at all times. THESUN WEEKLY, SEMI-WEEKLY, AND DAILY,

THE WEEKLY SUN is too widely known to require any extended recommendation; but the reasons which have already given it fifty thousand subscribers, and which will, we hope, give it many thousands more, are briefly as follows:

It is a first-rate newspaper., All the news. of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment, and always presented in a clear, intelligible, and interesting manner.

It is a first-rate family paper, full of interesting and instructive reading of every kind, but containing nothing that can offend the most delicate and scrupulous taste. It is a first-rate story paper. The best tales and remaneres of current literature are carefully selected and legibly printed in its pager.

It is a first-rate agricultural paper. The most fresh and instructive articles on agricultural topics regularly appear in this department.

It is an independent political paper, belonging to no party and wearing no collar. It lights for principle, and in the election of the best mon to office. It especially devotes its energies to the exposure of the great corruptions that now weaken and disgrace our country, and threaten to undermine republican institutions altogether. It lass no fear of knaves, and asks, no favor from their supporters.
